506. One motive of the Sea Regulations is to minimise the results (k) and lessen the damage arising from a collision (l); and this is to be taken into account in construing these Regulations. Thus disobedience to the Regulations or improper delay in taking action imposed by them, which causes an increase of the damage, renders a vessel to blame (m).

(g) Compare The Libra (1881), 6 P. D. 139, 142, 143, C. A.; The Dunelm (1884) 9 P. D. 164, 171, C. A.; The London, [1904] P. 355, 357, 358.

(h) Compare The Dunelm, supra, at p. 171.

(i) See art. 27, post.

(j) Compare The Sylvester Hale (The Schooner) (1873), 6 Benedict, United States District Court Reports, 529 ("the paramount importance of having international rules [for the prevention of collisions] understood alike by all nations, is manifest"). See also Wells v. Gas Float Whitton No. 2, (Owners), [1897] A. C. 337, 344 (though they [the American cases] are not authorities in our courts, the opinions and reasoning of the learned judges of courts in the United States have always been regarded with respectful consideration, and have often afforded valuable assistance); Readhead v. Midland Rail. Co. (1869), L. R. 4 Q. B. 379, 392, Ex. Ch. The report of a case, however, is no proof of the foreign law, which can only be proved by a practised lawyer; the decision may be inconsistent with other cases, or may be reversed or varied.

(k) Stoomvaart Maatschappy Nederland v. Peninsular and Oriental Steam Navigation Co. (1880), 5 App. Cas. 876, 904 ("with a view to minimise the results of collision").

(l) As to the meaning of "collision," see note (c), p. 359, ante.

(m) Compare Maclaren v. Compagnie Française etc. (1884), 9 App. Cas. 746 (there was fault on both sides contributing to the damage and loss); The Margaret (1881), 6 P. D. 76, C. A. (contributing not to cause the collision, but to increase the damage, makes a vessel to blame). Stoomvaart Maatschappy Nederland v. Peninsular and Oriental Steam Navigation

SECT. 1. Statutory Provisions as to Sea Regulations etc.

Judicial construction of former regulations.

507. There is another principle of construction which affects the importance of decisions of the Admiralty Court and Courts of Appeal on earlier statutory regulations, now annulled. Where a statute has received a judicial construction putting a certain meaning on its words, and the same words are used in a subsequent statute on a like matter, there is a presumption that those words were intended to bear that meaning; and unless this presumption is rebutted, the statute is to be so construed, even if the words are such that they might originally have been construed otherwise (n).

SUB-SECT. 3.—Statutory Provisions as to Observance of the Sea Regulations, and the Enforcement thereof.

Penalties for disobedience upon owner and master.

508. All owners and masters of ships must obey the Sea Regulations, and must not carry or exhibit any other lights, or use any other fog signals, than such as are required by those Regulations (o). If an infringement of the Sea Regulations is caused by the wilful default (p) of the master or owner of the ship, that master or owner is in respect of each offence guilty of a misdemeanour (a).

The Board of Trade must furnish a copy of the Sea Regulations to any master or owner of a ship who applies for it (b).

Co. (1880), 5 App. Cas. 876, is not an authority to the contrary. In that case the vessel was deemed to be in fault under the M. S. Act, 1873 (36 & 37 Vict. c. 85), s. 17, and in such a case it did not matter whether the infringement in fact contributed to the collision, unless it was also shown that it could not have contributed; and it was held not to be clear, but at the best left in doubt, whether obedience to the rule could not have avoided the collision. It was in these circumstances that it was held to be immaterial that the purpose of the infringement was to alleviate the violence of the collision or even that the course adopted probably did alleviate it.

(n) Mersey Docks and Harbour Board v. Cameron, Jones v. Mersey Docks and Harbour Board (1864), 11 H. L. Cas. 443, 480, 481; Re Cathcart, Ex parte Campbell (1870), 5 Ch. App. 703, 706; and see title STATUTES, Vol. XXVII., p. 142, and the cases collected in Maxwell on the Interpretation of Statutes, 5th ed., p. 500, note (n).

(o) M. S. Act, 1894, s. 419 (1). As regards the former principle of presumption of fault for infringement of the Sea Regulations, and its abolition in all collision actions begun since the 16th December, 1911, see note (a), infra. As regards the statutory provisions as to the observance of the Sea Regulations, 1910, by foreign ships, and as to the special application of these Regulations to those ships, see under the preliminary article, "by all vessels," pp. 374, 375, post.

(p) This statutory proviso as regards "wilful default" does not exempt the owners from liability for the act of the master (Grill v. General Iron Screw Collier Co. (1866), L. R. 1 C. P. 600; affirmed (1868), 3 C. P. 476, Ex. Ch.). In construing "wilful default," a man must be taken to intend the natural consequences of his act (Gayford v. Chouler, [1898] 1 Q. B. 316). See also M. S. Act, 1894, s. 220; Deacon v. Evans, [1911], 1 K. B. 571.

(a) M. S. Act, 1894, s. 419 (2). As to the punishment for a misdemeanour, see ibid., s. 680. Since the 16th December, 1911, such an infringement no longer raises any presumption that damage arising therefrom was occasioned by default of the person in charge of the deck of the ship; see Maritime Conventions Act, 1911 (1 & 2 Geo. 5, c. 57), s. 4 (2). As to this presumption before that date, see M. S. Act, 1894, s. 419 (3). The enactment of this presumption of fault first appeared in substance in stat. (1846) 9 & 10 Vict. c. 100, s. 13. Negligence contributing to the collision had, apparently, to be proved in order to show that the damage had arisen in consequence of the non-observance of one of the collision regulations; compare Morrison v. General Steam Navigation Co. (1853), 8 Exch. 733; Tuff v. Warman (1857), 2 C. B. (N. S.) 740.

(b) M. S. Act, 1894, s. 419 (5).

Inspection as to ship's lights and fog signals.

509. A surveyor of ships (c) may inspect (d) any ship, British or foreign, for the purpose of seeing that the ship is properly provided with lights and the means of making fog signals (e), in conformity with the Sea Regulations; and if the surveyor finds that the ship is not so provided, he must give to the master or owner notice in writing pointing out the deficiency, and also what is, in his opinion, requisite in order to remedy the same (f). Every notice so given must be communicated (g) in the proper manner to the chief officer of customs at any port at which the ship may seek to obtain a clearance or transire (h); and the ship must be detained until the production of a certificate from a surveyor of ships to the effect that the ship is properly provided with regulation lights and means of making fog signals (i).

SUB-SECT. 4.—Principles as to Observance of the Sea Regulations, and as to Exceptions thereto.

General principles.

510. The principles with regard to observance of collision regulations, and with regard to the exceptional circumstances which justify departure (k) from them, were to a great extent laid down by the courts between 1840 and 1851 (l), in reference to the first general collision regulations, the Trinity House Regulations, 1840 (m), and to the later statutory regulations (n) introduced during that period. These principles, since the 16th December, 1911, again (o) represent the existing law, and are further enforced by the statutory provisions as to observance of the Sea Regulations which have been stated above; they are also supplemented by the principles laid down by the courts between 1851 and 1911, so far as those principles have a general bearing and are not confined to the construction of the special statutes which then prevailed as regards the observance of general collision regulations (p).

(c) For the purpose of an inspection the surveyor has all the powers of a Board of Trade inspector under the M. S. Act, 1894, s. 420 (3).

(d) Such fees as the Board of Trade may determine are payable for the inspection (ibid., s. 420 (8)).

(e) Compare The Love Bird (1881), 6 P. D. 80.

(f) M. S. Act, 1894, s. 420 (1).

(g) Ibid., s. 420 (2).

(h) A transire is a permit from the custom-house to let goods pass.

(i) M. S. Act, 1894, s. 420 (2); see, further, pp. 81, 336, ante.

(k) That is to say, which prevent the rule applying in the particular instance; see pp. 471 et seq., post.

(l) Before any statutory presumptions of fault, or other special penalties, were attached to breach of the regulations. The first special penalty, namely, inability of the owner to recover damages, in case of non-observance of one of the rules, was introduced by the Steam Navigation Act, 1851 (14 & 15 Vict. c. 79), s. 28 (now repealed).

(m) Compare The Duke of Sussex (1841), 1 Wm. Rob. 274, 275 ("The rule emanates from the Trinity House, and although it cannot be said to constitute a law per se, the courts will consider this rule of binding authority").

(n) Stat. (1846) 9 & 10 Vict. c. 100, s. 9. As regards the Admiralty Regulations, 1848, as to lights, made under this Act, see note (k), p. 403, post.

(o) By the Maritime Conventions Act, 1911 (1 & 2 Geo. 5, c. 57), s. 4; see pp. 382, 516 et seq., post.

(p) Between 1840, when the first general collision regulations came into force, and the 16th December, 1911, when statutory presumption of fault was

SECT. 1. Statutory Provisions as to Sea Regulations etc.

Obedience.

511. The first principle which has been always insisted upon by the courts, when the earlier general collision regulations or the later Sea Regulations have applied, is obedience (q). From the first it has been held that such regulations must in ordinary cases be adopted by all persons having charge of the navigation of vessels, and the owner of a vessel is responsible if the person in charge disobeys them (r). Obedience must be prompt (s). Each done away with, there were four periods in which various principles were applied as regards observance of the general collision regulations. In the first period, between 1840 and 1851, no statutory consequence was attached to non-observance of the general collision regulations; liability for a collision only arose on proof of negligence, and the importance of a breach of the various general collision regulations at this time was that it was primary evidence of negligence. In the second period, between 1851 and 1863, if the collision was proved to have been occasioned by non-observance of the statutory collision regulations, the owner of the ship by which any such regulation had been infringed could not recover damages unless the departure from the regulation was justified or made necessary by the circumstances (Steam Navigation Act, 1851 (14 & 15 Vict. c. 79), s. 28; M. S. Act, 1854, s. 298). During this period, as in the first period, liability only arose if the non-observance amounted to negligence which contributed to the collision (Tuff v. Warman (1858), 5 C. B. (N. S.) 573, Ex. Ch.); but if the non-observance did amount to this, then, in cases of both to blame, the party guilty of the non-observance could recover nothing, and the other party not thus guilty could in the Admiralty Court recover half damages from him (The Aurora, The Robert Ingham (1861), Lush. 327). In the third period, from 1863 till 1873, if the collision was proved to have been occasioned by non-observance of any of the Sea Regulations, the ship by which such regulation was infringed was deemed to be in fault, unless the departure from the regulation was made necessary by the circumstances (M. S. Act, 1862, s. 29). During this period, also, liability only arose if the infringement was negligence which contributed to the collision; and in cases of both to blame, the party guilty of the infringement could in the Admiralty Court recover half damages, as in the first period. It appears that during this period the statutory consequence attached to an infringement only affected the burden of proof; and that in other respects the principles as regards observance of the Sea Regulations were the same as the principles relating to observance of the general collision regulations during the first period. In the fourth period, from 1873 till 1911, if in a collision case it was proved that any of the Sea Regulations had been infringed, the ship by which the regulation was infringed was deemed to be in fault, unless the departure from the regulation was made necessary by the circumstances or to avoid immediate danger, or unless it could not by any possibility have contributed to the collision (M. S. Act, 1873 (36 & 37 Vict. c. 85), s. 17; M. S. Act, 1894, s. 419 (4); Sea Regulations, 1880 and 1884, art. 23; Sea Regulations, 1897, art. 27; Eastern Steamship Co. v. Smith, The "Duke of Buccleuch," [1891] A. C. 310). During this period proof of any infringement of the Sea Regulations, unless brought within the narrow exceptions just stated, carried with it liability; and thus the owner of a vessel became liable for a collision either on proof of negligence of his servants contributing to the collision, or on proof of an unexcused infringement, even if there was no negligence on their part (Stoomvaart Maatschappy Nederland v. Peninsular and Oriental Steam Navigation Co. (1880), 5 App. Cas. 876, per Lord BLACKBURN, at pp. 890—894). See, further, Marsden, Collisions at Sea, 4th ed., pp. 46—50.

(q) See also M. S. Act, 1894, s. 419 (1); and see p. 362, ante.

(r) The Duke of Sussex (1841), 1 Wm. Rob. 274; The Gazelle (1842), 1 Wm. Rob. 471, 476 (laid down for the regulation of ordinary cases); Stoomvaart Maatschappy Nederland v. Peninsular and Oriental Steam Navigation Co., supra, at p. 909 (to be adopted by all persons having charge of the navigation of vessels).

(s) The Stadacona (1847), 5 Notes of Cases, 371, 374.

rule is made not merely for the sake of the vessel which is to obey it, but also for the sake of other vessels, which may be approaching from far off and at night or in fog, or may be manœuvring at close quarters, and which have every right and reason to suppose that the vessel will obey the rule, and none to suppose that she will break it (t). A master is not allowed to engraft upon a regulation his own exceptions, according to his own views of seamanship (u), or convenience or advantage, as if there were no rule; for if so, the rule would soon degenerate into no rule (x). Where there is an express regulation, and a master departs from it on his own authority and without justifiable reason—for instance, by putting a light in some other position than that prescribed—it ought to be at his own risk (a). Convenience, such as gaining greater speed, does not afford any ground for exception to a regulation; nor a usage to the contrary, if it is based on mere convenience (b). For instance, it is a well-known convenience to keep at the side of a channel and in the slack of the tide when it is against a vessel, and in its strength when it is in one's favour, but when the legislature, in spite of this, has made a regulation applying to a narrow channel that vessels shall keep to the starboard side, this matter of convenience is not to be regarded (c). Hence a practice based merely on such convenience of navigation in respect of wind and tide is superseded by a regulation to keep to the starboard side. And no suggestion of danger from not following the practice, which may arise because a great number of people follow it, can be listened to as a reason for following the practice in preference to the rule (d).

(t) Compare Stoomvaart Maatschappy Nederland v. Peninsular and Oriental Steam Navigation Co. (1880), 5 App. Cas. 876, 909; The Mangerton (1856), Sw. 120, 124 (both parties are bound to act on the presumption that the statute will be obeyed by the other; the confusion otherwise would be endless); General Iron Screw Co. v. Moss, The Araxes and The Black Prince (1861), 15 Moo. P. C. C. 122, 131.

(u) Compare Stoomvaart Maatschappy Nederland v. Peninsular and Oriental Steam Navigation Co., supra, at p. 895 (even if it would in the absence of such a rule be better seamanship to keep way on the ship, the legislature has thought it better to prescribe the course which must be followed).

(x) The Gazelle (1842), 1 Wm. Rob. 471, 476.

(a) "The Telegraph," Valentine v. Cleugh (1854), 1 Ecc. & Ad. 427, 435, 436.

(b) The "Sylph" (1854), 2 Ecc. & Ad. 75, 80.

(c) Ibid. As to following a usage which is essential to safety in navigation, see pp. 370, 371, post.

(d) The "Sylph," supra. As to such usages which have been disallowed when contrary to regulations, see The Duke of Sussex (1841), 1 Wm. Rob. 274 (practice in river Thames for steam vessels going down to keep to the north shore, superseded by Trinity House Regulation to the effect that when steam vessels must cross so near that by continuing their respective courses there would be risk of collision, each shall port); The Gazelle, supra; The Friends (1842), 1 Wm. Rob. 478. As to a similar custom in the Tyne, contrary to the M. S. Act, 1854 (17 & 18 Vict. c. 104), s. 297, see The Unity (1856), Sw. 101; The Hand of Providence (1856), Sw. 107; see also H.M.S. Topaze (1864), 10 L. T. 659 (alleged custom for His Majesty's ships coming in or going out of Devonport harbour to display the pilot jack, and so warn merchant ships to leave them the deep water channel); The Nimrod (1851), 15 Jur. 1201 (question whether circumstances as to tide or otherwise rendered it dangerous or unreasonable or improper for a steam vessel to keep to her

SECT. 1. Statutory Provisions as to Sea Regulations etc.

Opportunity to know that rule applies.

512. The consideration, however, must always be, in these cases, not whether the rule was in fact applicable, but whether the circumstances were such that the person in charge ought to have known that it was applicable (e). The question is whether with ordinary skill and care he could have ascertained this (f). If he could not, he does not break the regulation. Thus, where a sailing vessel closehauled ported to another sailing vessel a little on her starboard bow, which her master could not with ordinary skill and care know to be running free, he was held not to have broken the regulation (g). So also, where a vessel's sudden change of course is so startling and the period before the master of the other vessel acts is so brief that he could not be fairly expected to know that a collision was imminent before he gave the proper order (stop and reverse), the rule is not broken, because it cannot be reasonably held to have applied before it was obeyed (h).

Ordinary nerve expected of master.

A master of a ship is only bound to show ordinary nerve, and the same amount of skilled judgment is not to be expected in such a case as in other circumstances (i).

Exceptional cases.

513. On the other hand, there is the question whether the particular regulation applies in the circumstances. Even if it purports to apply (k), good seamanship may determine that the case is exceptional, and that it ought not to be applied. If any regulation were laid down which could never be departed from in certain circumstances, it would necessarily involve on many occasions the destruction of those ships which it was intended to preserve (l). Paramount authority must be given to the obligation to obey the dictates of good seamanship (m). The court is bound to consider not the law alone, but what circumstances might justify any departure from it; it seems a reasonable comment on collision regulations that, as they are passed to prevent danger, so they may be departed from to avoid immediate danger (n). The applicability of a regulation depends on its being a probable means of avoiding collision (o). No doubt there are certain rules as to right side); The Earl Wemys (1889), 6 Asp. M. L. C. 407, C. A. (the custom of sailors to treat sailing ships when in the trades as closehauled, when they are sailing a point or two from being as closehauled as they can be, does not affect the legal construction of the Sea Regulations). Where, however, a usage is essential to the safety of navigation, it will be valid, although it may constitute an exception to a regulation; see p. 370, post.

(e) The Beryl (1884), 9 P. D. 137, 139, C. A.; Dryden v. Allix, The "Moderation" (1863), 1 Moo. P. C. C. (N. S.) 528.

(f) Baker v. The "Theodore H. Rand" (Owners), The "Theodore H. Rand" (1887), 12 App. Cas. 247, 250.

(g) Ibid.

(h) Stoomvaart Maatschappy Nederland v. Peninsular and Oriental Steam Navigation Co. (1880), 5 App. Cas. 876, 901, 902.

(i) The Bywell Castle (1879), 4 P. D. 219, 226, C. A; "Tasmania" (Owners and Owners of Freight) v. Smith, "City of Corinth" (Owners), The "Tasmania" (1890), 15 App. Cas. 223, 226.

(k) The Sea Regulations only purport to apply to certain cases, and a great variety of other cases are left to be determined by the rules of good seamanship; see p. 485, post.

(l) The Allan v. The Flora (1866), 2 Mar. L. C. 386.

(m) The Grovehurst, [1910] P. 316, C. A., per BUCKLEY, L.J., at p. 334.

(n) The Irishman (1858), 4 Ir. Jur. (N. S.) 24, 26.

(o) General Steam Navigation Co. v. Tonkin, The Friends (1844), 4 Moo.

what vessels ought to do in particular circumstances, but the first rule is to avoid a collision, if it can be done with safety (p). There may be too pertinacious an adherence to the strict rule of navigation (q). Under the Sea Regulations introduced in 1863 and later years, these principles have been further emphasised by an article (r), now art. 27 (s), which contains a warning that, in obeying and construing these Regulations, due regard must be had to all dangers of navigation and collision and to any special circumstances which may render a departure from the previous rules necessary in order to avoid immediate danger.

These principles, however, should be applied very cautiously (t). It is of the greatest importance to adhere as closely as possible to established rules and never to allow a deviation from them unless the circumstances which are alleged to have rendered such a deviation necessary are distinctly proved, otherwise vessels would always be in doubt and doing wrong (u). To leave to masters of vessels a discretion as to obeying or departing from the sailing rules is dangerous to the public, and to require them to exercise such discretion, except in a very clear case of necessity, is hard upon the masters themselves (x). The burden of proof to justify the exception is upon the party deviating from the general rule (a).

P. C. C. 314, 320, 321 (the port helm rule of the Trinity House Regulations, 1840, "can only be applicable where the vessels by continuing their respective courses are likely to come into collision, and where, by putting their helms to port, the collision may probably be avoided"); and see The Eliza v. The Orinoco (1865), Holt (ADM.), 98, 101 ("parties are released," by art. 19 of the Sea Regulations, 1863, "from the severe obligation of complying" with the previous articles "by circumstances which would render obedience to them conducive to peril, while by deviation they might escape from that peril"). But where the chances of avoiding collision by following or deviating from a rule are equal, the rule should no doubt be followed.

(p) The Lady Anne (1850), 15 Jur. 18; The "Test" (1847), 5 Notes of Cases, 276, 278 (it is a principle of law that you are not to adhere to strict rules of navigation, but avoid an accident if possible).

(q) The Hope (1840), 1 Wm. Rob. 154, 157.

(r) Sea Regulations, 1863, art. 19; Sea Regulations, 1880 and 1884, art. 23; Sea Regulations, 1897 and 1910, art. 27.

(s) See pp. 471 et seq., post.

(t) The William Frederick, The Byfoged Christensen (1879), 4 App. Cas. 669, P. C. (reversing a decision which had held a vessel, whose primary duty was to keep her course, to blame for not adopting some manœuvre to avoid the collision); The "Test," supra.

(u) The "John Buddle" (1847), 5 Notes of Cases, 387, 388.

(x) The William Frederick, The Byfoged Christensen, supra, at p. 672; and see The Immaganda Sara Clasina (1850), 7 Notes of Cases, 582, 584, 585; on appeal this judgment was reversed on the facts only, sub nom. Vaux v. Sheffer, The Immaganda Sara Clasina (1852), 8 Moo. P. C. C. 87 (unless absolutely necessary to prevent a collision, the Trinity House rules ought to be followed).

(a) The Concordia (1866), L. R. 1 A. & E. 93, 98; The Immaganda Sara Clasina, supra, at p. 585; see the Sea Regulations, 1910, art. 21, pp. 445 et seq., post, under which a vessel which deviates from the regulation by altering her course must not deviate more than necessary, and must show that the departure was necessary to avoid immediate danger, and that her new course was reasonably calculated to avoid that danger; and see under the same article the cases which show that the anticipation by one vessel that a second vessel is going to depart from the regulation is no excuse for the first vessel doing so.

SECT. 1. Statutory Provisions as to Sea Regulations etc.

Reasons for exceptions.

514. Exceptions to the general collision regulations were created by judicial interpretation before any express exceptions were contained in such regulations or in the statute relating to them. The courts have allowed exceptions to such regulations in strong and stringent circumstances(b), such as cases of necessity (c) and of immediate danger (d), whether the danger was one of navigation or collision (e). Remote dangers and, usually, doubtful dangers have not been held to justify departure from the regulations (f). These exceptions, springing from judicial interpretation of the terms of regulations, chiefly statutory, are instances of the application of well-recognised principles of construction of statutes (g).

From 1851 until 1911 the statutes, which imposed special penalties falling on owners of vessels for violation of the regulations, in each case provided in effect for such exceptions as were allowed by the courts (h). These express exceptions have now disappeared, together with the special penalties to which they were attached; but this does not appear to affect the judicial exceptions to the regulations as previously admitted and insisted upon by the courts.

Classes of exceptions.

515. Exceptions to general collision regulations, which are based on immediate danger or other necessity, may be divided into two classes: first, cases of absolute necessity, where the regulations

(b) The Gazelle (1842), 1 Wm. Rob. 471, 476 (there sometimes exists so peculiar a combination of circumstances of a strong and stringent nature as to render the adoption of a rule no longer fitting or expedient); The "Superior" (1849), 6 Notes of Cases, 607, 610 (no vessel is required to obey the general rule and go on shore); The Lucia Jantina v. The Mexican (1864), Holt (ADM.), 130, 132 (it would be sufficient excuse if she would have run herself aground); The Immaganda Sara Clasina (1850), 7 Notes of Cases, 582 (no man is bound by a technical rule of navigation to the destruction of life and limb); The "Sylph" (1854), 2 Ecc. & Ad. 75, 80 (if there is danger in following in particular cases the directions of the legislature, that would be an adequate reason for not complying with them); The Benares (1883), 9 P. D. 16, C. A., per BOWEN, L.J., at p. 19.

(c) The Immaganda Sara Clasina, supra.

(d) The David Cannon (1865), 2 Asp. M. L. C. 353, n. (it is an ancient principle, much acted upon in the Admiralty Court, that whatever be the rules or regulations which govern ships generally, yet in cases of immediate danger it is the duty of every ship to avoid others).

(e) For instance, The "Superior," supra; General Steam Navigation Co. v. Tonkin, The Friends (1844), 4 Moo. P. C. C. 314, 320.

(f) Compare The Rondane (1900), 9 Asp. M. L. C. 106, and other cases under art. 16, pp. 414 et seq., post, where excuses for not stopping in fog, based on remote or doubtful dangers, have been disallowed. The excuse for not stopping and reversing that the object was to avoid a worse form of collision, more destructive to the vessel or more dangerous to life, has not in some doubtful cases been accepted in the Admiralty Court.

(g) See The Duke of Buccleuch (1889), 15 P. D. 86, C. A., per LINDLEY, L.J., at p. 96; Curtis v. Stovin (1889), 22 Q. B. D. 513, C. A., per BOWEN, L.J., at p. 517; see title STATUTES, Vol. XXVII., pp. 134, 136; and the cases collected in Maxwell on the Interpretation of Statutes, 5th ed., p. 500, note (n).

(h) See Steam Navigation Act, 1851 (14 & 15 Vict. c. 79), s. 28 (unless it appears to the court before which the case is tried that the circumstances of the case were such as to justify a departure from the rule); M. S. Act, 1854, s. 298 (unless it is shown to the satisfaction of the court that the circumstances of the case made a departure from the rule necessary); and compare ibid., s. 296; the same proviso in the M. S. Act, 1862, s. 29; and practically the same proviso in the M. S. Act, 1873, s. 17, and M. S. Act, 1894, s. 419 (4).

relate to appliances or conditions which do not exist without any fault of the owner or those for whom he is responsible; and secondly, cases of reasonable necessity or immediate danger of collision or other justification (i).

Though these two classes of exceptions are broadly distinct, they sometimes run into one another, especially when they relate to the general condition of the vessel.

Non-existent appliances.

516. Where the regulation relates to the use of appliances, such as the rudder, lights, foghorn, or other things on board of a vessel, and such appliances break down, or cease to exist, without any fault of the owner, the regulation cannot apply, and those in charge of such a vessel (k), or of other vessels manœuvring for her (l), must be guided by the dictates of good seamanship. So also, where there is a want of means to navigate from the disabled state of the vessel (m), or a vessel is stationary in the water (n), or there is no room to keep out of the way or to pass another vessel, a collision regulation may not apply; and where a vessel's engines or other appliances are not available in their full use, a regulation may not apply as strictly as usual, or at all (o). A vessel is not, however, excused for disobeying the regulations by not sounding a mechanical foghorn, if she has not one on board but ought to have it (p); or for not having a regulation light properly burning, when the glass has been broken by severe weather several hours before, and a fresh light ought to have been shown (q); or if without necessity she disables herself from keeping out of the way when it is her duty to do so (r), because a vessel which has the duty to keep out

(i) The danger might not be a danger of navigation or collision, for instance, in a case of running without lights to escape from the King's enemies.

(k) The Kjobenhavn (1874), 2 Asp. M. L. C. 213, 216, 217, P. C. (use of masthead light when at anchor instead of a riding light destroyed); The Chilian (1881), 4 Asp. M. L. C. 473 (mouth foghorn used instead of broken mechanical foghorn).

(l) The Rob Roy (1845), 3 Wm. Rob. 190, 195 (where one steamer's green light was put out by a heavy sea shortly before the collision, and although she was on an opposite course and almost end on but starboard to starboard with another steamer, that other was held not to blame for porting).

(m) The "Sylph" (1854), 2 Ecc. & Ad. 75, 81; compare The "Blenheim" (1854), 1 Ecc. & Ad. 285 (nemo cogitur ad impossibilia). As to the duties, apart from regulations, to keep out of the way of a disabled vessel, and her duty to avoid causing trouble, see pp. 508 et seq., post.

(n) Compare The Gladys, [1910] P. 13; and see the cases under the Sea Regulations, 1910, art. 9, pp. 393 et seq., post.

(o) Compare The Helvetia (1868), 3 Asp. M. L. C. 43, n., P. C.

(p) The Love Bird (1881), 6 P. D. 80 (where a barque had left port for a long voyage with only a mouth foghorn, a few days before the Sea Regulations, 1879, which imposed the use of a mechanical foghorn, came into force).

(q) The Saxonia, The Eclipse (1862), Lush. 410, 422, P. C.

(r) The "Blenheim," supra (a brig lying to reefing sails did not alter and struck another brig which was closehauled on the starboard tack. This reefing of sails was no sufficient reason for her not obeying the statutory regulation, which was in effect to port her helm); see Seccombe v. Wood (1840), 2 Mood. & R. 290 (it is no defence that the injury was accidental and wholly involuntary on defendant's part, unless the vessel had become unmanageable without his fault. First collision, due to crew's negligence, caused disabled state. Owner of vessel held liable for second collision a few minutes later and half a mile farther on, caused by the

SECT. 1. Statutory Provisions as to Sea Regulations etc.

of the way must do all she can to accomplish this (s). If a vessel chooses to go down a river by means of warping at a time which renders it difficult to escape collision, she must bear the consequences (t).

Reasonable necessity or immediate danger of collision.

517. In the second class of cases, a departure from the regulations is justified by reasonable necessity or immediate danger of collision or otherwise. If from want of means to navigate with safety, for instance, from the vicinity of shoals, a vessel takes a course which the legislature has prohibited (by not keeping to the starboard side of a narrow channel), in such circumstances she would be unquestionably relieved from punishment (a). Thus, the difficulties of manœuvring in a very narrow place or against a strong tide may involve obvious exceptions to the rules, from it being seriously dangerous for vessels which meet to manœuvre past each other in such circumstances (b). There are exceptions also to articles 19 and 20 of the present Regulations in the case of incumbered fishing vessels (c). And departure from a rule is allowed where to follow the rule would clearly make a collision certain, or more likely (d), or of a worse character (e), and where to act outside it is the only (f) or best (g) chance of avoiding a collision. So also a usage may constitute an exception to the rule, where it is essential to the safety of vessels in navigation (h). Such an exception disabled state); The Jennie S. Barker, The Spindrift (1875), 3 Asp. M. L. C. 42; The Byron (1879), 2 New South Wales Law Reports, Admiralty, 1; compare The Douglas (1882), 7 P. D. 151, C. A. (owners of vessel sunk by her own fault in a collision not liable for subsequent collision with wreck due to it being unlighted without their fault).

(s) The Test (1847), 5 Notes of Cases, 276 (when a sailing vessel could not keep out of the way by porting, it was held to be her duty to do so by wearing); Ship Calcutta (Owners) v. Barque Emma (Owners), The Calcutta (1869), 21 L. T. 768, P. C. (a sailing vessel, which had to keep out of the way, ported; she was held to blame because she had not also brailed up her spanker and squared her after-yards and done other things to aid her port helm).

(t) The Hope (1843), 2 Wm. Rob. 8.

(a) The "Sylph" (1854), 2 Ecc. & Ad. 75, 81 (supposing a vessel, to avoid certain flats, kept away from the prescribed shore to a reasonable extent, no man would say the Act of Parliament was violated).

(b) The Prince Leopold de Belgique, [1909] P. 103; and see Sea Regulations, 1910, arts. 19, 25.

(c) See ibid, art. 9.

(d) Compare General Steam Navigation Co. v. Tonkin, The Friends (1844), 4 Moo. P. C. C. 314, 320.

(e) The Immaganda Sara Clasina (1850), 7 Notes of Cases, 582, 584, 585 (if the helm was starboarded only to avoid a collision that would have been more destructive, and the necessity was occasioned by the delay of the other vessel in porting her helm, no doubt can be entertained that the starboarding was justifiable). As to Stoomvaart Maatschappy Nederland v. Peninsular and Oriental Steam Navigation Co. (1880), 5 App. Cas. 876, see note (m), p. 361, ante.

(f) The Benares (1883), 9 P. D. 17, 19, C. A.

(g) The Columbine (1843), 2 Wm. Rob. 27, 32. This was a case of necessity, in which the master of the vessel (though starboarding, and so acting contrary to the rule that he should give way, that is, port) adopted the best measures in his power to avoid the accident. The mere fact that there is danger of collision is, of course, no ground for departing from the rule to reverse (Stoomvaart Maatschappy Nederland v. Peninsular and Oriental Steam Navigation Co., supra, per Lord WATSON, at p. 902).

(h) Compare The "Sylph," supra, at p. 80; The Ezardian, [1911] P. 92.

also may arise from the disabled state or misconduct of other vessels; and in these cases the departure from the rule may become a positive duty. An officer in charge is not allowed to follow a rule of the sea to the injury of another vessel where he could avoid the injury by pursuing a different course (i). When one person neglects a duty, and so puts another into danger, the second person is not justified in doing nothing to avert that danger (a).

SUB-SECT. 5.—Subsidiary Statutory Provisions.

(i.) As to Rendering Assistance after Collision.

Duty of rendering assistance.

518. In every case of collision (b) between two vessels it is the duty (c) of the master or person in charge (d) of each vessel (e), if and so far as he can do so without danger (f) to his own vessel,

(i) Handaysyde v. Wilson (1828), 3 C. & P. 528; The Boanerges and The Anglo-Indian (1865), 2 Mar. L. C. 239 (you must depart from a rule if you see with perfect clearness, almost amounting to positive certainty, that adhering to the rule will bring about a collision and violating a rule will avoid it); The Legatus v. The Emily (1865), Holt (ADM.), 217, 219 (you have no right to stand in a difficulty upon a right obstinately, recklessly, and regardless of the safety of others).

(a) The Jane Bacon (1878), 27 W. R. 35. For instances of the application of this rule, see especially the cases under the Sea Regulations, 1910, art. 21, of the duty of a vessel to depart from the regulation and alter her course.

(b) M. S. Act, 1894, s. 422 (1). A general duty on the person in charge of a vessel to render salvage assistance is imposed by the Maritime Conventions Act, 1911 (1 & 2 Geo. 5, c. 57), s. 6 (1).

(c) The duty to render assistance was first imposed by M. S. Act Amendment Act, 1862, s. 33, and afterwards by M. S. Act, 1871, s. 9, and M. S. Act, 1873, s. 16, all of which are now repealed. The duty only arises if there is danger from the collision. The question is whether looking at all the circumstances (such as that a collision happened in broad daylight and in a narrow part at no great distance from the centre of a river) the duty in fact arose. If one vessel is able to render assistance, the extent of the obligation will depend upon the degree of danger apprehended at the time; and when a collision takes place at night, which might probably endanger life, it is the duty of a vessel to stay by till the extent of the danger can be ascertained (The Queen of the Orwell (1863), 7 L. T. 839). The duty to assist thus created by statute does not so destroy the voluntariness of the service as to deprive the vessel of salvage reward (The Hannibal, The Queen (1867), L. R. 2 A. & E. 53). As to salvage services in such circumstances, see, further, p. 563, post.

(d) "In charge" in M. S. Act, 1894, s. 422 (1), means not only at the time of collision, but at any time afterwards when life could have been saved (Ex parte Ferguson (1871), L. R. 6 Q. B. 280, 287 (where the mate in charge at the time of collision, and the master who came up from below afterwards, were both found not to have rendered assistance as provided by statute)). Under the M. S. Act Amendment Act, 1862, s. 33 (where the words were "it shall be the duty of the person in charge"), it was held that, though a compulsory pilot was in command at the time of collision, the words "person in charge" must refer to the master); The Queen (1869), L. R. 2 A. & E. 354; compare The Sussex, [1904] P. 236, 247, 248.

(e) The duty appears to apply to the master of a tug, although the tow alone has been in collision (The Hannibal, The Queen, supra, at p. 56). A tug which is to blame for a collision cannot recover salvage (see pp. 568, 569, post), but may recover towage remuneration for services rendered to the injured vessel (The Harvest Home, [1904] P. 409).

(f) A reasonable apprehension that delay may cause capture by the enemy may excuse a steam vessel from staying to render assistance when crew, and passengers, first to render to the other vessel, her master, crew, and passengers, such assistance as may be practicable (g) and may be necessary to save them from any danger caused by the collision, and to stay by the other vessel until he has ascertained that she has no need of further assistance; and secondly, to give to the master or person in charge of the other vessel the name of his own vessel and of the port to which she belongs, and also the names of the ports from which she comes and to which she is bound. If the master (h) or person in charge fails without reasonable cause to comply with these duties, he is guilty of a misdemeanour (i), and if he is a certificated officer an inquiry into his conduct may be held and his certificate cancelled or suspended (k).

SECT. 1. Statutory Provisions as to Sea Regulations etc.

(ii.) As to Entry in Log.

Entry in official log.

519. In every case of collision (l) in which it is practicable to do so, it is the duty (m) of the master of every ship, immediately after the occurrence, to cause a statement thereof, and of the circumstances in which the same occurred, to be entered in the official log-book (n), if any. The entry ought to be signed by the master, and also by the mate or one of the crew (o).

SECT. 2.—Regulations for Preventing Collisions etc.

SUB-SECT. 1.—History of General Collision Regulations.

History of general collision regulations.

520. The rules of navigation in the first part of the nineteenth century were treated in courts of common law as matters for the testimony of experts (p).

that assistance may be rendered by the approaching enemy (The Thuringia (1872), 1 Asp. M. L. C. 283, 292).

(g) When a vessel cannot stay by, a master may commit a breach of his statutory duty if he does not send his boat to assist, when there is no reason why he should not (The Adriatic (1875), 3 Asp. M. L. C. 16, 19), or if he does not reply to distress signals by returning the signals (The Emmy Haase (1884), 9 P. D. 81).

(h) M. S. Act, 1894, s. 422 (3).

(i) As to the punishment, see ibid., s. 680.

(k) Ibid., s. 470; as to disciplinary powers over certificated officers, see pp. 649 et seq., post.

(l) M. S. Act, 1894, s. 423 (1).

(m) If the master fails to comply with this duty, he is liable for each offence to a fine not exceeding £20 (ibid., s. 423 (2)).

(n) As to official log-books, and making entries therein, see ibid., ss. 239—243; pp. 82, 83, ante.

(o) M. S. Act, 1894, s. 423 (1).

(p) Compare Jameson v. Drinkald (1826), 5 L. J. (O. S.) (C. P.) 30. Rules of navigation for British vessels, established by custom and on occasion by authority of a British admiral, have existed from the sixteenth century onwards, and doubtless earlier; and when cognisable by the law courts they were often considered to be part of what was called "the general maritime law." Records of collision cases in the Admiralty Court during the sixteenth century are rare, but include cases where ships, which were being navigated, without excuse fouled others at anchor, in breach of what appears to be the oldest of the rules of navigation now recognised; compare Selden Society, Select Pleas in the Court of Admiralty, Vols. I. and II.; Marsden, Collisions at Sea, 1st ed. p. 133; and see p. 488, post. Apparently the first recognition in a court of common law of the rule to the effect that a sailing ship running free shall keep out of the way of one which is close-hauled occurred between 1778 and 1800; see Lord Erskine's letter in

From 1840 onwards a great number of more or less general regulations have been made from time to time by Orders in Council and otherwise. These regulations on some occasions have been limited to special duties of special vessels, for instance, regulations for the fog signals of fishing vessels, and on other occasions have had a much wider scope, sometimes containing a whole code of navigation for vessels generally, and having to some extent an international operation, for instance, the Sea Regulations, 1863. The older regulations have been from time to time annulled, and new regulations have been introduced which have been usually a fuller development of them. Thus in order to understand one of the various articles of the regulations now in force, it is sometimes necessary to trace it back to its first introduction, and to consider the decisions upon the earlier and later terms in which the article has been stated. A table of the general collision regulations made between the years 1840 and 1910 is given in the Appendix (q).

SUB-SECT. 2.—The Sea Regulations, 1910.

Preliminary article.

521. The preliminary article of the Sea Regulations, 1910 (r), is as follows:—

Preliminary.

> These Rules shall be followed by all vessels upon the high seas and in all waters connected therewith, navigable by sea-going vessels. (1896) (a)
>
> In the following Rules every steam vessel which is under sail and not under steam is to be considered a sailing vessel, Kenyon's Life of Lord Chief Justice Kenyon, p. 343. This rule was recognised in the Admiralty Court in 1815 (The Woodrop-Sims (1815), 2 Dods. 83) and 1821 (The Dundee (1821), Times, 5th December, 1821), and again in a court of common law in 1828 (Handaysyde v. Wilson (1828), 3 C. & P. 528; see also 1 Maude and Pollock, Law of Merchant Shipping, 4th ed., p. 583, note (a)). The port tack rule, to the effect that a ship close-hauled on the port tack shall keep out of the way of one close-hauled on the starboard tack, though imposed in effect on ships under convoy by Admiralty Regulations of the latter part of the eighteenth century (Marsden, Collisions at Sea, 6th ed., p. 314), was apparently refused recognition as a rule of navigation by the Trinity Masters in the Admiralty Court as late as 1789 (Nelson v. Fawcett, The Resolution and The Langton (1789), Burrell, 332, 333, n.), but was recognised at common law in 1834 (Chitty, General Practice (1834), Vol. II., p. 515), and in the Admiralty Court in 1836 (Jupiter (1836), 3 Hag. Adm. 320).

(q) The Appendix is printed at the end of this title, after p. 663, post.

(r) The Sea Regulations, 1910 (hereinafter usually referred to as "these Regulations"), were made by Order in Council of the 13th October, 1910 (Stat. R. & O., 1910, p. 457), under the power conferred by the M. S. Act, 1894, s. 418 (1), and under that provision have effect as if enacted in the Act. They came into force on the 13th October, 1910, and they reproduce with little alteration the provisions of the Sea Regulations, 1896, including art. 9 of those Regulations, which came into force on the 1st May, 1906. The modifications of art. 8 of 1896, by Order in Council of the 7th July, 1897 (Stat. R. & O. Rev., 1904, Vol. VIII., Merchant Shipping, p. 283), are now incorporated in art. 8 of 1910, and certain new notes are added to arts. 9 and 15 of 1910. Under the Order in Council of the 13th October, 1910, in the case of Chinese ships, the application of these Regulations is limited to ships of foreign type. The expression "The Sea Regulations, 1910," has judicial sanction; see note (b), p. 359, ante.

(a) Year when the same or a similar regulation was first introduced.

SECT. 2. Regulations for Preventing Collisions etc.

and every vessel under steam whether under sail or not, is to be considered a steam vessel. (1863) (b)

The word "steam vessel" shall include any vessel propelled by machinery. (1897) (b)

A vessel is "under way" within the meaning of these Rules when she is not at anchor, or made fast to the shore or aground. (1897) (b)

"By all vessels."

522. The Sea Regulations, 1910, must be observed (c) by all British ships (d) except ships belonging to His Majesty (e), (b) Year when the same or a similar regulation was first introduced.

(c) M. S. Act, 1894, s. 419 (1); compare s. 418 (1). As to the observance of these Regulations, see pp. 362 et seq., ante.

(d) "Ships," not "vessels." In the Sea Regulations of 1863, 1879 and 1884 the word generally used was "ship," and "ship" was generally used in the M. S. Act, 1854 (ss. 291, 295—299 etc.), and in the M. S. Act Amendment Act, 1862 (ss. 25, 57, 58), when referring to collision regulations. And the meaning of "ship" in these circumstances was judicially determined to a great extent. So also, though the word "vessel" is sometimes used in Part V. and other parts of the M. S. Act, 1894, the provision in ibid., s. 418 (1), is that His Majesty may, on recommendation as therein provided, by Order in Council, make regulations for the prevention of collisions at sea, and may thereby regulate the lights to be carried and exhibited, the fog signals to be carried and used, and the steering and sailing rules to be observed by "ships." The Sea Regulations, 1910, were applied by the Order in Council of the 13th October, 1910, which made them, to all British "ships"; but in the Sea Regulations, 1910, just as in those of 1897, the word "ship" is not to be found, and the word "vessel" is generally used. The question therefore, in future, will be as to the meaning of the word "vessel," and as to what kind of water structures are included under this term as used in these Regulations. First of all, it appears that the meaning of the word "vessels" in these Regulations cannot be wider than that of "ships" within the M. S. Act, 1894, s. 418 (1); compare Carse v. North British Steam Packet Co. (1895), 22 R. (Ct. of Sess.) 475; The Lighter No. 3 (1902), 18 T. L. R. 322), and should therefore correspond with the definition of "ship" in the M. S. Act, 1894, s. 742; see Interpretation Act, 1889 (52 & 53 Vict. c. 63), s. 31. This definition of "ship" is in some respects narrower than the definition of "vessel" in the M. S. Act, 1894, s. 742 (compare Gapp v. Bond (1887), 19 Q. B. D. 200, 202, C. A.). The term "vessel" may not always have its widest possible meaning in these Regulations, as it may be limited by the context (see Interpretation Act, 1889 (52 & 53 Vict. c. 63), s. 31), and it appears that a raft or Thames wherry is not a "vessel" (Gapp v. Bond, supra, at p. 202). A fixed floating landing stage is not a "vessel" so as to involve the filing of preliminary acts in an action for damage done to it by a ship (The Craighall, [1910] P. 207, C. A.). "Ship" in the M. S. Act, 1894, s. 742, "includes every description of vessel used in navigation not propelled by oars," unless the context otherwise requires. "Ship" in this connexion is used in its popular and not its technical sense (The Mac (1882), 7 P. D. 126, C. A., per BRETT, L.J., at p. 130). So even if "vessel" in these Regulations is confined to "ship" within this definition it has a wide meaning, as to which see p. 14, ante. A dumb barge was held to be a "ship," and bound to carry lights as a "vessel" being towed, under the Sea Regulations, 1896 (The Lighter No. 3, supra); and should therefore be within the Sea Regulations, 1910; but see, as to former regulations and otherwise, The Swallow (1877), 3 Asp. M. L. C. 371, C. A.; The C. S. Butler (1874), L. R. 4 A. & E. 238; The Owen Wallis (1874), L. R. 4 A. & E. 175; Gapp v. Bond, supra; Everard v. Kendall (1870), L. R. 5 C. P. 428. A small open boat for pleasure rowing, which had no sail and did not go to sea, and which was anchored in a river while being used by gentlemen for fishing, was held not to be a "ship," and therefore not required by the Sea Regulations, 1884, art. 10 (f), to carry a light as "an open boat and possibly ships subject to the laws of the legislatures of British oversea dominions (f) subject to special rules of local authorities (g). These Regulations must also be observed by all foreign private (h) ships within British jurisdiction (i), and by ships of certain foreign countries (k) whether within British jurisdiction or not.

(e) For note (e) see p. 375, post.

when at anchor" (Carse v. North British Steam Packet Co. (1895), 22 R. (Ct. of Sess.) 475; compare Weekes v. Ross, [1913] 2 K. B. 229 (motor boat used to carry passengers); and for a distinction between boat and ship or vessel, compare The Gas Float Whitton No. 2, [1896] P. 42, 57, C. A.). A gas float is not a "ship," so that a county court, which has jurisdiction over collisions between ships, has no jurisdiction when such an object in a river is struck by a ship (The Upcerne, [1912] P. 160). As to a nondescript sort of craft used in dredging not being a "ship," compare The Blow Boat, [1912] P. 217). As to what is a ship for the purpose of salvage, see pp. 559, 560, post. See, further, the recitals in the Orders in Council of the 13th October, 1910, and 27th November, 1896; and p. 14, ante.

(e) These Regulations do not apply to ships belonging to His Majesty, which are, however, governed by precisely similar rules set out in the King's Regulations; see M. S. Act, 1894, s. 741; H.M.S. Sanspareil, [1900] P. 267, C. A. Rules similar to the statutory regulations were first issued to the Royal Navy about 1865 (Holt (ADM.), pp. vi, 190). "Ships belonging to His Majesty" include a ship owned by the Government and entered in the Navy List, but exclusively employed in carrying coal to ships of the navy (Symons v. Baker, [1905] 2 K. B. 723), but do not include a tug and lifeboat owned by the Board of Trade, and used for ordinary commercial harbour purposes (The Cybele (1878), 3 P. D. 8, C. A.). Government ships may be registered as British ships, so that the M. S. Act, 1894, and therefore these Regulations, will apply to them; see M. S. Act, 1906 (6 Edw. 7, c. 48), s. 80; see also under art. 13, p. 408, post.

(f) Compare M. S. Act, 1894, s. 735, giving a limited power to the legislature of any British possession to repeal any provision of the Act other than those which relate to emigrant ships; and ibid., s. 736, giving a limited power to these legislatures to regulate the coasting trade. The M. S. Act, 1894, Part V., is not expressly applied to all British ships like the corresponding M. S. Act, 1854, Part IV.; and there is no special provision relating to its entire application, as there is for many other Parts of the Act. Still there is a presumption that this Part of the Act applies to all British ships, and it is in fact so applied by the Order in Council of the 13th October, 1910; and compare the doctrine that the whole M. S. Act, 1854, generally applied to the colonies (The Rajah of Cochin (1859), Sw. 473). There is an intention on the part of some of the legislatures of the British oversea dominions to pass laws as regards the Sea Regulations, 1910, as was done in some cases as regards former Sea Regulations; compare Marsden, Collisions at Sea, 4th ed., 1897, p. 371, note (t).

(g) See art. 30, p. 477, post.

(h) "All foreign ships" are the words used in the M. S. Act, 1894, s. 418 (2); but this appears to mean foreign private ships, as on general principle the statute cannot be intended to apply to the public ships of another sovereign state without its consent; compare The Parlement Belge (1880), 5 P. D. 197, C. A. But in the United States the Sea Regulations have been applied to their own public as well as private vessels by Act of Congress.

(i) By virtue of the M. S. Act, 1894, s. 418 (2), the Sea Regulations, 1910, together with the provisions of the M. S. Act, 1894, Part V., relating to collision regulations, or otherwise relating to collisions, must be observed by all foreign ships within British jurisdiction; and in any case arising in a British court concerning matters within British jurisdiction foreign ships must, so far as respects the collision regulations and the said provisions of the M. S. Act, 1894, be treated as if they were British ships. British jurisdiction extends over the open seas adjacent to the coasts of the United Kingdom, and of all other parts of His Majesty's dominions to such a distance as is necessary for the defence and security of such dominions;

(k) For note (k) see p. 376, post.

SECT. 2. Regulations for Preventing Collisions etc.

Area of application.

523. The Sea Regulations, 1910, apply generally in waters connected with the high seas navigable by sea-going vessels, and these words must not be treated as ultra vires (l), although His Majesty is only empowered to make regulations for the prevention of collisions at sea. Thus while these Regulations do not apply in an artificial channel like the Manchester Ship Canal, although navigable by such vessels, which is locked off from the sea, even though there is an influx of sea water in its lower portion at times when the gates are open (m), they do apply in tidal (n) waters connected with the high seas, navigable by sea-going vessels, if there are no local rules, or no local rules which ought reasonably to prevent their application (o), and if their application is suitable (p). They see Territorial Waters Jurisdiction Act, 1878 (41 & 42 Vict. c. 73), preamble, s. 7 (definitions). This distance is at least one marine league, or three miles. As to the older law, see R. v. Keyn (1876), 2 Ex. D. 63, C. C. R., commented on in Carr v. Fracis Times & Co., [1902] A. C. 176; The Saxonia, The Eclipse (1862), Lush. 410, P. C.; The Annapolis, The Johanna Stoll (1861), Lush. 295.

(k) By the M. S. Act, 1894, s. 424, power was given to His Majesty by Order in Council with the consent of a foreign country to apply these Regulations to the ships of that country, subject to restrictions; and by various Orders in Council the Sea Regulations, 1897, were so applied. Such power was first given by the M. S. Act Amendment Act, 1862, ss. 58, 62, and the Sea Regulations, 1863, were first thus applied. By the Order in Council of the 13th October, 1910, subject to certain restrictions (which will be found in the subsequent notes to arts. 9 and 15 of these Regulations), and subject to the proviso in the case of Chinese ships that the application of those Regulations shall be limited to ships of foreign type, the Sea Regulations, 1910, were applied to ships of the following countries, whether within British jurisdiction or not, and such ships for the purpose of such regulations are to be treated as if they were British ships:— Argentine Republic; Austria-Hungary; Belgium; Brazil; Bulgaria; Chile; China; Costa Rica; Denmark; Ecuador; Egypt; France; Germany; Greece; Guatemala; Italy; Japan; Mexico; the Netherlands; Norway; Peru; Portugal; Rumania; Russia; Siam; Spain; Sweden; Turkey; the United States; Venezuela. There are a few foreign ships which are not governed by the Sea Regulations, 1910, for instance, the ships of Hayti and Uruguay. As to cases of collisions where the vessels are not governed by the same regulations, see 1 Maude and Pollock, Law of Merchant Shipping, 4th ed., p. 584, note (f); p. 13, ante.

(l) The Anselm, [1907] P. 151, C. A., where reliance was placed on the fact that the Sea Regulations had been constantly applied to harbours, rivers and inland waters, e.g., in The Concordia (1866), L. R. 1 A. & E. 93; General Steam Navigation Co. v. Hedley, The "Velocity" (1869), L. R. 3 P. C. 44; Malcomson v. General Steam Navigation Co., The "Ranger" and The "Cologne" (1872), L. R. 4 P. C. 519; The Germania (1875), 1 Maude and Pollock, Law of Merchant Shipping, 4th ed., p. 606, note (i), P. C.; Little v. Burns (1881), 9 R. (Ct. of Sess.) 118; The Leverington (1886), 11 P. D. 117, C. A.; Norwegian S.S. "Normandie" (Owners) v. British S.S. "Pekin" (Owners), The "Pekin," [1897] A. C. 532; and The Carlotta, [1899] P. 223. See also Morrison v. General Steam Navigation Co. (1853), 8 Exch. 733, where the Admiralty Notice respecting Lights, 1852, was held to apply in the Thames.

(m) The Hare, [1904] P. 331.

(n) The Carlotta, supra, per BARNES, J., at p. 226. Possibly they also apply in non-tidal waters connected with the sea and navigable by sea-going vessels, at any rate where there is no tide in the neighbouring sea.

(o) Ibid. In British colonial waters the local rules are sometimes enforced by colonial laws.

(p) The Sea Regulations are primarily made for the sea; compare The Franconia (1876), 2 P. D. 8, C. A., per BRETT, J., at p. 14. The end-on rule (art. 18) has not always been applied in winding rivers; compare do not apply where they would interfere with a special rule duly made by a local authority for the navigation of any harbour, river, or inland waters (q); and where there was a local provision as to whistling applying to a ship in a certain position, it was held that this provision was not to be supplemented by a provision in the Sea Regulations (r).

Sea-going vessels.

524. Sea-going vessels are those which go to sea, and not those which are capable of doing so, but which do not in fact go beyond the tidal waters of a river (s).

"Steam vessel."

"Steam vessel" includes any vessel propelled by machinery. And so the Sea Regulations as to steam vessels apply to ships propelled by electricity or other mechanical power (t). Although a vessel might not be within the meaning of a steamship for some purposes (u), she will be a "steam vessel" within these Regulations if she is in fact under steam. The provision that "every steam vessel which is under sail and not under steam is to be considered a sailing vessel, and every vessel under steam, whether under sail or not, is to be considered a steam vessel," seems intended to divide all navigating vessels as far as possible into the two classes of sailing vessels and steam vessels, but they are not exhaustive; for instance, they do not necessarily cover a steam vessel in tow (x).

"Under sail."

It has been held that a vessel hove to, reefing her mainsail, is "under sail" (a).

"Under steam."

There is sometimes a difficulty in deciding whether a vessel is "under steam" when she is fitted with steam-engines but has too little steam at the time to manœuvre fully, or at all, and is, perhaps, under sail. In such cases the question appears to be whether she has acted reasonably in not having more steam up in the circumstances. If so, she seems to come under the description "not under steam." If not, she seems not to be absolved from the ordinary obligations of a steam vessel by her own act in not having sufficient steam (b).

General Steam Navigation Co. v. Hedley, The "Velocity" (1869), L. R. 3 P. C. 44, 49; and the crossing rule (art. 19) is also often inapplicable (ibid.; The "Esk" and the "Niord" (1870), L. R. 3 P. C. 436; General Steam Navigation Co. v. Hedley, The "Velocity," supra).

(q) Sea Regulations, 1910, art. 30.

(r) The Carlotta, [1899] P. 223, 228; The Bitinia, [1912] P. 186 (as to lights).

(s) Salt Union v. Wood, [1893] 1 Q. B. 370 (decided under M. S. Act, 1854 (17 & 18 Vict. c. 104), s. 109).

(t) M. S. Act, 1894, s. 743.

(u) E.g., for the purpose of a contract for the carriage of goods (Fraser v. Telegraph Construction Co. (1872), L. R. 7 Q. B. 566).

(x) But see The Whitlieburn (1900), 9 Asp. M. L. C. 154, which shows that art. 25, as to steam vessels, applies to a tug towing a sailing vessel.

(a) The City of London (1857), Sw. 245, 300, P. C. In The C. S. Butler (1874), L. R. 4 A. & E. 238, Sir R. PHILLIMORE held that a ballast lighter of sixty tons, which was under sail, was not a "ship" within the definition in the M. S. Act, 1854, s. 2 (which is practically the same as that in the M. S. Act, 1894, s. 742), and was therefore not a "sailing ship under weigh" within the Sea Regulations, 1863, art. 5. But the reason for this decision was that the lighter could not be a "ship," as she did not go to sea; and this reason is doubtful; see note (d), p. 374, ante.

(b) Thus a tug seeking in daylight with twenty miles of sea on each side of her, lying-to, with jib and foresail set and not motionless, with her fires pulled forward and just enough steam to enable her to go a little astern, which never in fact altered her course until the collision, was held not to come within the crossing rule and not to blame for a collision (The Helvetia (1868), 3 Asp. M. L. C. 43, note (a), P. C.), and was to be considered as not "under steam" (ibid., as explained in The Broomfield (1905), 10 Asp. M. L. C. 194). On the other hand, a tug seeking and lying hove-to in a fair-way, with only just sufficient steam to reverse her engines, was held alone to blame for a collision with a sailing vessel on the ground that she was bound to keep ready to move out of the way of sailing vessels (The Jennie S. Barker, The Spindrift (1875), 3 Asp. M. L. C. 42). And similarly a tug lying drifting in a fair-way with so little steam that she failed to go ahead when she tried to do so at the critical moment was held partly to blame for collision with a vessel in tow of a steamer (Port Jackson Steamboat Co. v. Llewellyn, The Brig Byron (1879), 2 New South Wales Law Reporter, Admiralty, 1); and see art. 14; p. 409, post.

SECT. 2. Regulations for Preventing Collisions etc.

"Under way."

A vessel is "under way" within the meaning of the Rules (c) when she is not at anchor, or made fast to the shore or aground, and accordingly a vessel is "under way" within the definition, as, for instance, a trawler hauling her trawl and stationary, though she is not "proceeding" within article 20 (d); and a steam drifter, while shooting her nets, though unable to go ahead or astern without fouling her propeller, but sailing about one knot an hour under a little mizen sail (e). Under the definition a tug towing a vessel up to her anchor is not considered to be under the control of that anchor, and is "under way" (f); but the vessel herself is considered to be at anchor (g). And it would seem that a vessel may be neither "under way" nor at anchor if she is moored to another vessel or floating structure which is itself fast to the shore (h).

(c) Formerly "under way" was sometimes written "under weigh," e.g., in the Sea Regulations, 1863, art. 10, and in the Admiralty Regulations as to Lights, 1848 (see Table in Appendix, post). Probably "under weigh" expressed a somewhat different idea; compare National Steamship Co. v. Merry, The Pennsylvania (1870), 23 L. T. 55, P. C., decided on art. 10 of the Sea Regulations, 1863, where the corresponding words in the French Regulations were "en marche," and Sir R. PHILLIMORE, apparently referring to this, said that the French rule was not properly translated; and compare The Edith (1876), 10 I. R. Eq. 345, 348, in argument. Before 1897 the words had been given somewhat contrary meanings in different cases. Thus, in National Steamship Co. v. Merry, The Pennsylvania, supra, a barque under sail, but hove-to and making one knot an hour, was held to be "under weigh," within the Sea Regulations, 1863, art. 10 (b), "sailing ships under weigh shall use a foghorn"; in The George Arkle (1861), Lush. 382, P. C., under the Admiralty Notice respecting Lights etc., 1858, a sailing vessel was held to be "under way" when driven from her anchors and setting sail, even if wholly unmanageable; and again under the same regulation, in The Esk (1869), L. R. 2 A. & E. 350, if having her anchor down but not holden by it or under the control of it; compare The Indian Chief (1888), 14 P. D. 24 (sailing vessel dredging down a river with anchor down and mast lowered to go under a bridge, and with a white light on her mast case, held not under way); The Dunelm (1884), 9 P. D. 164, 171, C. A. (where fishing vessels attached to their nets and stationary were said to be not under way); The Chusan (1885), 5 Asp. M. L. C. 476.

(d) The Gladys, [1910] P. 13.

(e) The Pitgaveney, [1910] P. 215.

(f) The Romance, [1901] P. 15.

(g) Ibid., semble.

(h) Compare The Turquoise, [1908] P. 148. As to the meaning of "at anchor" in art. 11, see p. 403, post.

SECT. 2. Regulations for Preventing Collisions etc.

525. The regulations as to lights are dealt with in certain rules, as follows:—

Rules concerning lights.

Rules concerning Lights etc.

"Visible."

The word "visible" in these Rules, when applied to lights, shall mean visible on a dark night with a clear atmosphere. (1848)

Article 1.

Article 1.

The Rules concerning lights shall be complied with in all weathers from sunset to sunrise, and during such time no other lights which may be mistaken for the prescribed lights shall be exhibited. (1863)

Use of other lights.

526. The words "no others" in previous regulations were altered in 1897 to "no other lights which may be mistaken for the prescribed lights." A vessel had been held entitled to show a flare to a vessel approaching her from the side (i), even before 1897, when permission to this effect was given in the Regulations (k). The altered words also permit the reasonable use of lights for ship's purposes.

Object of regulations as to lights.

527. One general object of the regulations as regards lights (l) is to tell other vessels whether the vessel carrying them is stationary or in motion, so that the other vessel may direct her course accordingly, and, when it is her duty to keep out of the way, may give the vessel carrying the under-way lights and in motion a wider berth than she would give if that vessel carried an anchor light and was therefore presumably stationary (m). The object of the coloured side

(i) The Merchant Prince (1885), 10 P. D. 139.

(k) By art. 12, introduced in the Sea Regulations, 1897.

(l) Regulation lights, both under way and at anchor, were first imposed on steam vessels in 1848, and on sailing vessels in 1852; see Table in Appendix, post. Previously the duty to show lights depended on circumstances; see The Osmanli (1850), 7 Notes of Cases, 507, 509 (beyond all doubt it has been determined that there is no such general obligation as a duty on a sailing vessel to show a light at night); and compare The Rose (1843), 2 Wm. Rob. 1, 4; The Iron Duke (1845), 4 Notes of Cases, 94, 97; Londonderry (Owners) v. Dolbadarn Castle (Owners) (1845), 4 Notes of Cases, Supplement, xxxi., xlii.; The Victoria (1848), 3 Wm. Rob. 49, 53 (no general obligation on a vessel at anchor to exhibit a light, though circumstances might render it obligatory; the season of the year, the state of the night, and the locality, were circumstances to be considered; both vessels held to blame, the vessel at anchor for having no light). In 1862 it was declared that a close-hauled vessel was bound to show a light in sufficient time to enable the steamship, or other vessel which had the duty to give way to her, to avoid collision (The Saxonia, The Eclipse (1862), Lush. 410, 422, P. C. (the Master of the Rolls, in delivering the judgment of the Privy Council, also said that a vessel at anchor or a fishing boat was bound to exhibit a light to afford the vessels whose duty it was to avoid her the means of doing so)). The duty of a vessel which is being overtaken to show a light to the overtaking vessel grew slowly and was successfully denied for the last time in 1873, on the ground that some authorities considered the exhibition of a stern light to be a disadvantage (The Earl Spencer (1875), L. R. 4 A. & E. 431); but this duty was finally established by the Sea Regulations, 1880, art. 11 (see Table in Appendix, post). Even after this, one decision against the continued existence of this duty was obtained (The Reiher (1881), 4 Asp. M. L. C. 478), but it was soon overruled (The Main (1886), 11 P. D. 132, C. A.); see, further, under art. 10; p. 399, post.

(m) The Esk (1869), L. R. 2 A. & E. 350, 353.

SECT. 2. Regulations for Preventing Collisions etc.

lights and of the additional foremast light is to show the course or heading of the vessel when under way.

Application of the regulations as to lights.

528. These regulations do not impose the duty of carrying a light on every vessel. Special lights are imposed on vessels towing, on vessels from any accident not under command, on telegraph cable vessels, on pilot vessels, and on fishing vessels and fishing boats. Also a vessel being towed, a vessel aground in or near a fair-way, and certain small vessels and boats are required to carry certain lights; and a vessel being overtaken is required to show a light from her stern. But apart from these special regulations, the general duty to show lights is only imposed on vessels under way and vessels at anchor. A vessel, however, may be fast to the shore (n), or to a structure fixed to the shore, or to one or more vessels which are fast in one of these ways (o); or again, a vessel may be fast to an island, or to a landing stage, pontoon (p), or similar structure, which is more or less detached from the shore, or may be lying in a tier with a number of other vessels made fast either to buoys or to each other (q). In such cases it would appear that the vessel is not at anchor (r), and that none of these regulations as to lights apply to her. It may well be, however, that a vessel which is riding alone moored to buoys or a single buoy, or which while not under way (s) is made fast to another vessel at anchor, may be considered to be so held by the anchors of the buoy or of the other vessel as to be herself "at anchor."

Vessel aground.

A vessel aground but not in or near a fair-way is not within any of these regulations as to lights (a).

Dumb barge.

A dumb barge is a "vessel" within these regulations as to lights, and when being towed is bound to carry green and red side lights (b). A dumb barge when drifting on the tide (c) or dredging

(n) And a craft permanently fast to the shore, or permanently moored as a hulk, might be held not to be a "vessel" within the meaning of these Regulations, and on that account not bound to carry any of the prescribed lights; see the discussion as to "vessels," note (d), p. 374, ante.

(o) The Turquoise, [1908] P. 148 (a trawler, moored outside another vessel at a wharf, was held not to be "at anchor" within art. 11, and not bound to show a light).

(p) Compare The Titan, The Rambler (1906), 10 Asp. M. L. C. 350, where a tug, moored to a pontoon which was connected by a bridge with the shore, was apparently held by BARNES, P., not to come within the local rule, which was to the effect that the bell should be rung in fog upon a steam vessel when anchored.

(q) Compare The St. Aubin, [1907] P. 60. A dumb barge was fast by her head rope to the side of a barge, which was alongside a steamship lying at a tier in the river Thames. The barge had no one on board, and at the time of the collision was swinging at right angles across the stream.

(r) Within art. 11; see pp. 404, 405, post. Compare the notes (p), (q), supra; and as to the definition of "under way," see p. 378, ante.

(s) A vessel which is fast to another vessel at anchor, but which is herself under way, for instance, a tug towing a vessel up to her anchor, must exhibit the under-way lights (The Romance, [1901] P. 15).

(a) See art. 11, pp. 403 et seq., post.

(b) Under art. 5; see pp. 388 et seq., post. See The Lighter No. 3 (1902), 18 T. L. R. 322. But art. 5 may interfere with the operation of a local rule, and if so will not apply; compare art. 30; p. 477, post. As to such a barge when under sail, see p. 377, ante.

(c) The Owen Wallis (1874), L. R. 4 A. & E. 175; followed in The

for sand (d) was held not to be bound by former Sea Regulations to carry a light; but now she may be held to be a rowing boat within article 7.

A dumb barge, however, or any of the vessels in any of the conditions above stated, may be bound to show a light by a local regulation (e), or by the rules of good seamanship.

Obedience to regulations.

529. When these regulations as to lights apply, the general principle adopted by the courts is that it is not advisable to allow these important regulations to be satisfied by equivalents, or by anything less than a close and literal adherence to what they prescribe (f).

Exceptions and excuses.

In special circumstances a vessel may be excused for showing unusual lights (g).

A vessel which has lost or damaged her lights owing to bad weather, collision, or otherwise, is bound to replace them as soon as she reasonably can (h).

It is no excuse for the absence of lights that they were unnecessary owing to bright moonlight (i), or that they were being trimmed (k), or went out by accident (l).

The owners of a vessel have been held liable for a wrong light being carried, though this was done by direction of a compulsory pilot (a). A tow has been held liable for her tug not carrying Swallow (1877), 3 Asp. M. L. C. 371, where Sir R. PHILLIMORE held that a dumb barge going down on the tide was not bound by the Sea Regulations, 1863, or at all, to carry a light, but held that the steamer which collided with her was to blame; and the Court of Appeal, reversing this decision, held the collision to be an inevitable accident.

(d) The Palmyra v. The Charles (1865), Holt (ADM.), 59 (a dumb barge dredging for sand off Blackwall Point in the Thames, and alleged to be lying within the low-water mark, was found by the jury not to be negligent in not showing a light: point reserved as to whether the Sea Regulations, 1863, applied to other than sea-going vessels: no report as to whether a motion to this effect was made).

(e) See art. 30, p. 477, post; compare The Swansea v. The Condor (1879), 4 P. D. 115, C. A., where a barge going up river and bound by one of the Thames Rules to show a white light from the stern, as the last of a line of barges being towed, failed to show such light; and it was held that a steamer coming down which struck the barge abaft her beam might have been misled by the absence of the light, and might fairly have assumed that there were only one or two barges astern of the tug; compare also The St. Aubin, [1907] P. 60.

(f) The Emperor v. The Lady of the Lake (1865) Holt (ADM.), 37, P. C., per Lord CHELMSFORD, at p. 38. As to general principles as regards observance of the regulations, and exceptions thereto, see pp. 363 et seq., ante.

(g) The Buckhurst (1881), 6 P. D. 152; The Faedrelandet, [1895] P. 205, C. A.; The Merchant Prince (1885), 10 P. D. 139. For an unsuccessful effort to justify a wrong light by custom, see The Talbot, [1891] P. 184.

(h) The Aurora, The Robert Ingham (1861), Lush. 327; The Saxonia, The Eclipse (1862), Lush. 410, P. C.; The Kjobenhavn (1874), 2 Asp. M. L. C. 213, P. C.

(i) The City of London (1857), Sw. 245.

(k) The C. M. Palmer, The Larnax (1873), 2 Asp. M. L. C. 94; The Victoria (1848), 3 Wm. Rob. 49.

(l) The Rob Roy (1849), 3 Wm. Rob. 190; The Sylph (1854), 2 Ecc. & Ad. 75; The Hibernia (1874), 2 Asp. M. L. C. 454, P. C.

(a) The Ripon (1885), 10 P. D. 65; The Giraffe (1853), Pritchard's Admiralty Digest, 3rd ed., p. 249. As to the effect of the Pilotage Act, 1913 (2 & 3 Geo. 5, c. 31), on the liability of a shipowner for the negligence of a compulsory pilot, see note (o), p. 529, post.

SECT. 2. Regulations for Preventing Collisions etc.

towing lights (b); and a sailing ship towing a pilot boat has been held liable for the latter showing a white light while being towed (c).

Liability if damage caused by breach.

530. In collision actions begun since the 16th December, 1911, an infringement of these regulations is only evidence of negligence, and the other party has to prove that it was in fact to some extent the cause of the collision (d). But in some circumstances, for instance, when a vessel under way and showing no light in breach of the Sea Regulations comes into collision, there appears to be a rebuttable presumption against her owners that this breach contributed to the collision (e); and if a missing light would probably have been seen and would have conveyed additional information (f), the vessel may be held to blame.

Obscuration of lights.

531. It would probably be too strict to hold that an occasional obscuration of a light at sea under exceptional circumstances is a breach of the Sea Regulations (g). But when the light is undoubtedly in the wrong position, and the evidence is strong that it could not be seen, and there is no evidence of any confusion or absence of care on the other vessel, the offending vessel has been held to blame (h). When a steamer sees a sailing vessel a long

(b) The Devonian, [1901] P. 221, C. A.

(c) The Mary Hounsell (1879), 4 P. D. 204.

(d) See p. 507, post; Maritime Conventions Act, 1911 (1 & 2 Geo. 5, c. 57), s. 9 (2); and ibid., s. 4 (1), repealing M. S. Act, 1894, s. 419 (4); compare The Enterprise, [1912] P. 207. In actions for collision brought before the 16th December, 1911, a vessel which was subject to the strict statutory presumption of fault which prevailed since 1873 could only escape liability for not carrying lights as prescribed by the Sea Regulations, if she could show that this was necessary owing to the circumstances of the case, or to avoid immediate danger, or that the infringement could not by any possibility have contributed to the collision (see Sea Regulations, 1910, art. 27; M. S. Act, 1894, s. 419 (4); The "Fanny M. Carvill" (Owners) v. "Peru" (Owners), The "Fanny M. Carvill" (1875), 13 App. Cas. 455, n., P. C.; Eastern Steamship Co. v. Smith, The "Duke of Buccleuch," [1891] A. C. 310; China Merchants' Steam Navigation Co. v. Bignold, The "Hochung," The "Lapwing" (1882), 7 App. Cas. 512, P. C.; The Chusan (1885), 5 Asp. M. L. C. 476; The Argo (1900), 9 Asp. M. L. C. 74, C. A.; The Englishman (1877), 3 P. D. 18; The Sans Pareil (1900), 9 Asp. M. L. C. 59; The Sophie Rebecca (1902), Shipping Gazette, 5th February; The Pitgaveney, [1910] P. 215; Emery v. Cichero, The "Arklow" (1883), 9 App. Cas. 136, P. C.; The Vera Cruz (No. 1) (1884), 9 P. D. 88; The Imbro (1889), 14 P. D. 73; The Talbot, [1891] P. 184; The Devonian (1901), 9 Asp. M. L. C. 158, 160; The Breadalbane (1881), 7 P. D. 186; explained in The Devonian, [1901] P. 221, C. A.).

(e) The "Fenham" (1870), L. R. 3 P. C. 212, 216; Cayzer v. Carron Co. (1884), 9 App. Cas. 873, 882; and see p. 507, post.

(f) Compare The Devonian, [1901] P. 221, 226, 227, C. A. (light missing, which would have shown that the vessel was towing another vessel).

(g) The "Glamorganshire" (1888), 13 App. Cas. 454, 466, P. C.; compare The Duke of Buccleuch (1889), 15 P. D. 86; The Duke of Sutherland (1875), L. R. 4 A. & E. 417, 419; The Fire Queen (1887), 12 P. D. 147.

(h) S.S. "Gannet" (Owners) v. S.S. "Algoa" (Owners), The "Gannet," [1900] A. C. 234 (this decision in the House of Lords appears to have been unaffected by the strict statutory presumption of fault, which then applied). Compare also, as to obscuration, The Hermod (1890), 6 Asp. M. L. C. 509 (Mersey Regulations); The Tirzah (1878), 4 P. D. 33; The Pacific (1884), 9 P. D. 124 (where the light is not carried so as to be visible, the court will not be over-nice in inquiring whether the sails and hull could have been seen sooner than they were).

way off, but cannot see her lights owing to their being wrongly placed, and the rash and careless navigation of the steamer is the real cause of the collision, it may be held that the invisibility of the sailing vessel's lights could not properly be said to have contributed to the collision (i). A steamer whose lights are being obscured by her own smoke may be under a duty to slacken speed on approaching another vessel (k).

Duty of good seamanship to show lights in special cases.

532. Apart from any general or local regulations, it has long been recognised that vessels in certain circumstances are bound to show lights; for instance, when a vessel is getting under way (l), or coming to anchor (m) in circumstances in which her regulation lights are not visible, or when a vessel is obstructing a fair-way (n), or is being approached in circumstances in which it is proper to show a light, though a light is not specially prescribed by any regulations in force (o), and in other cases (p).

Lights on wrecks.

533. The owner of a ship sunk, whether by his default or not, if he abandon possession and control of her, has not any responsibility to light her so as to protect other vessels from collision with her; but so long and so far as possession, management and control of the wreck be not abandoned or properly transferred, he is bound to take proper steps as regards lighting. In order to fix the owner with liability, it must be shown that, as regards lighting, the control of the vessel had not been abandoned or legitimately transferred, and that the owner has been negligent in the discharge of his legal duty (q).

(i) Beal v. Marchais, The "Bougainville" and The "James C. Stevenson" (1873), L. R. 5 P. C. 316. This decision was given when the M. S. Act, 1862 (25 & 26 Vict. c. 63), s. 29, was in force, under which it had to be proved that the collision was occasioned by the non-observance of a regulation before a statutory presumption of fault could arise, and might well be the same under the law as it is now.

(k) The Rona and The Ava (1873), 2 Asp. M. L. C. 182, P. C.

(l) The John Fenwick (1872), L. R. 3 A. & E. 500.

(m) The Philotaxe (1877), 3 Asp. M. L. C. 512.

(n) The Industrie (1871), L. R. 3 A. & E. 303, 308; The Thomas Lea (1876), 3 Asp. M. L. C. 260; The St. Aubin, [1907] P. 60 (where an unlighted dumb barge at night was fast by her headfast to another barge which was alongside a steamship at anchor in the Thames, and swung round at right angles athwart the stream, and was struck by a steamship coming down river; it was held that under the duty of good seamanship there ought to have been a man on board the barge, and he ought to have shown a light to the approaching steamer).

(o) The Anglo-Indian (1875), 3 Asp. M. L. C. 1, P. C. (vessel being overtaken); The Chanonry (1873), 1 Asp. M. L. C. 569; The Jane Bacon (1878), 27 W. R. 35; compare The Merchant Prince (1885), 10 P. D. 139.

(p) As to a steamer dredging up stern first, see The Juno (1894), 7 Asp. M. L. C. 506; as to a ship so dredging, see The Indian Chief (1888), 14 P. D. 24; The Smyrna (1860), cited in Lush. 385.

(q) S.S. "Utopia" (Owners) v. S.S. "Primula" (Owners and Master), The "Utopia," [1893] A. C. 492, 498, P. C.; The Snark, [1900] P. 105, C. A. (independent contractor); The Douglas (1882), 7 P. D. 151, C. A. (vessel sunk by fault of her master: owners not liable for collision with another vessel due to their vessel being unlighted a few hours after sinking); White v. Crisp (1854), 10 Exch. 312 (it is the duty of the owner of a sunken vessel in a public navigable river, while he has possession and control, to take precautions to prevent injury to other vessels by their striking it: this obligation may be transferred with the transfer of possession and

SECT. 2. Regulations for Preventing Collisions etc.

Article 2.

534. Article 2 of the Sea Regulations, 1910, is as follows:—

Article 2.

A steam vessel when under way (r) shall carry—

(a) On or in front of the foremast (s), or if a vessel without a foremast, then in the fore part of the vessel (t), at a height above the hull of not less than 20 feet, and if the breadth of the vessel exceeds 20 feet, then at a height above the hull not less than such breadth (a), so, however, that the light need not be carried at a greater height above the hull than 40 feet (b), a bright white light, so constructed as to show an unbroken light over an arc of the horizon of 20 points of the compass, so fixed as to throw the light 10 points on each side of the vessel, viz., from right ahead to 2 points abaft the beam on either side, and of such a character as to be visible at a distance of at least 5 miles. (1848) (c)

(b) On the starboard side a green light so constructed as to show an unbroken light over an arc of the horizon of 10 points of the compass, so fixed as to throw the light from right ahead to two points abaft the beam on the starboard side, and of such a character as to be visible at a distance of at least 2 miles. (1848) (d)

(c) On the port side a red light so constructed as to show an unbroken light over an arc of the horizon of 10 points of the compass, so fixed as to throw the light from right ahead to 2 points abaft the beam on the port side, and of such a character as to be visible at a distance of at least 2 miles. (1848) (d)

(d) The said green and red side-lights shall be fitted with inboard screens projecting at least 3 feet forward from the light (e), so as to prevent these lights from being seen across the bow. (1848)

(e) A steam vessel when under way may carry an additional white light similar in construction to the light mentioned in subdivision (a). These two lights shall be so placed in line with the keel that one shall be at least 15 feet higher than the other, control to another person); Brown v. Mallett (1848), 5 C. B. 599 (the duty to use reasonable skill and care to prevent mischief while the owner has the control and management of his vessel is the same whether the vessel be floating or aground, under water or above it).

(r) As to the meaning of "under way," see p. 378, ante.

(s) In the Sea Regulations, 1880, the previous words, "at the foremast head," were changed to "on or in front of the foremast."

(t) The words "or if . . . of the vessel" were added in the Sea Regulations, 1897.

(a) The words "at a height . . . such breadth" were added in 1880. As to carrying lights at the proper height, compare The Hirondelle (1905), 22 T. L. R. 146, C. A.

(b) The words "so however . . . feet" were added in 1897.

(c) In the Sea Regulations, 1863, the words "and of such a character as to be visible at least five miles' were added, with the insertion here of the words "on a dark night with a clear atmosphere," after the word "visible," as to which now see p. 379, ante.

(d) The words "and of such a character . . . miles" were added in 1863.

(e) In 1858 the previous words "with screens on the inboard side of at least 3 feet long" were altered in effect to the present words "with inboard screens . . . light." In 1893 some precise regulations were made as to screening (see Vessels Side Lights Regulations, 1893, in the Table in the Appendix, post), but they appear to have expired in 1897.

and in such a position with reference to each other that the lower light shall be forward of the upper one. The vertical distance between these lights shall be less than the horizontal distance. (1897)

535. The vessels to which these regulations apply are required to have masts of sufficient size to carry the lights at the prescribed height (f). These lights are not required to be fixed in a particular place, but must be so placed as to be properly visible in accordance with the regulations (g). The Board of Trade publishes instructions for fixing and screening, but these instructions, except in so far as authorised by statute, have no legal force (h).

Position of lights.

536. Article 3 of the Sea Regulations, 1910, is as follows:— Article 3.

Article 3.

A steam vessel when towing another vessel shall, in addition to her side-lights, carry two bright white lights in a vertical line one over the other, not less than 6 feet (i) apart, and when towing more than one vessel shall carry an additional bright white light 6 feet above or below such lights, if the length of the tow, measuring from the stern of the towing vessel to the stern of the last vessel towed, exceeds 600 feet (k). Each of these lights shall be of the same construction and character, and shall be carried in the same position as the white light mentioned in Article 2 (a), except the additional light, which may be carried at a height of not less than 14 feet above the hull. (1863) (l)

Such steam vessel may carry a small white light abaft the funnel or aftermast for the vessel towed to steer by, but such light shall not be visible forward of the beam. (1897)

537. The purpose of the towing lights is to warn other vessels that the tug is incumbered, and not in all respects mistress of her movements (m). A tug towing a vessel up to her anchor should Tug and tow.

(f) A steam tug which had her lights lashed in a line to a rail on the top of the cook-house was held not justified by the fact that she had neither masts nor rigging (The Louisa v. The City of Paris (1864), Holt (ADM.), 15), and on appeal the tug was held alone to blame; compare The Hirondelle (1905), 22 T. L. R. 146, C. A., where a torpedo boat destroyer was similarly not justified in carrying her anchor lights below the prescribed height.

(g) Beal v. Marchais, The "Bougainville" and The "James C. Stevenson" (1873), L. R. 5 P. C. 316. Questions as to the placing and screening of side lights have arisen chiefly with regard to sailing vessels; see under art. 5, pp. 389, 390, post; and as to obscuration, see under art. 1, pp. 382, 383, ante.

(h) The Magnet (1875), L. R. 4 A. & E. 417, 426 (except in so far as authorised by statute, the instructions can have no binding force upon English, much less upon foreign, vessels). The court has power to order an inspection of the vessel's lights by the Trinity Masters; see Admiralty Court Act, 1861 (24 & 25 Vict. c. 10), s. 18; R. S. C., Ord. 50, r. 3; The Germania (1868), 3 Mar. L. C. 140. Such an order was made after evidence in The Magnet, supra; but an application for such an order before the hearing was dismissed as premature in The Victor Covacevich (1885), 10 P. D. 40. Such an inspection should be at night (The Germania (1869), 21 L. T. 44, P. C.).

(i) In the Sea Regulations, 1896, the previous distance, 3 feet, was altered to 6 feet.

(k) The words "and when towing . . . 600 feet" were added in 1897.

(l) The words "except . . . hull" were added in 1897.

(m) Union Steamship Co. v. "Aracan" (Owners), The "America" and

SECT. 2. Regulations for Preventing Collisions etc.

exhibit the towing lights (n). Even when the strict statutory presumption of fault applied, it was held that a tug might escape liability although her small white light was visible before the beam, when the other lights should have shown unmistakably that the vessels in question were tug and tow (o).

Where the tow controls the navigation, the tow will be liable for an infringement by the tug of the regulations as to lights (p).

Article 4.

538. Article 4 of the Sea Regulations, 1910, is as follows:—

Article 4.

(a) A vessel which from any accident is not under command shall carry at the same height (q) as the white light mentioned in Article 2 (a), where they can best be seen (r), and, if a steam vessel, in lieu of that light, two (s) red lights, in a vertical line one over the other, not less than 6 feet (t) apart, and of such a character as to be visible all round the horizon (a) at a distance of at least 2 miles; and shall by day carry in a vertical line one over the other not less than 6 feet (t) apart, where they can best be seen, two (s) black balls or shapes each 2 feet in diameter. (1880) (b)

(b) A vessel employed in laying or in picking up a telegraph cable shall carry in the same position as the white light mentioned in Article 2 (a), and if a steam vessel, in lieu of that light, three lights (c) in a vertical line one over the other, not less than 6 feet apart. The highest and lowest of these lights shall be red, and the middle light shall be white, and they shall be of such a character as to be visible all round the horizon, at a distance of at least 2 miles (d). By day she shall carry in a vertical line one over the other, not less than 6 feet apart, where they can best be seen, three shapes not less

The "Syria" (1874), L. R. 6 P. C. 127, 131. As to the duties and liabilities of tug and tow as regards one another and other vessels, see p. 492, post, (n) The Romance, [1901] P. 15.

(o) The Sanspareil (1900), 9 Asp. M. L. C. 59, 62.

(p) The Devonian, [1901] P. 221, C. A.

(q) In the Sea Regulations, 1897, the words "in the same position" were altered to "at the same height."

(r) In the Sea Regulations, 1897, the words "in front of but not lower than her foremast head" were altered to "where they can best be seen."

(s) In the Sea Regulations, 1897, the number of red lights and of black balls for disabled vessels was reduced from three to two.

(t) In the Sea Regulations, 1897, the distance apart was altered from 3 to 6 feet.

(a) In the Sea Regulations, 1897, the words "all round the horizon" were added.

(b) Special lights and day signals for a ship which from any accident is not under command, and for a telegraph cable ship, were introduced in the Sea Regulations, 1880, and were then the same in each case—three red lights at night, and three black balls by day. In 1884 the telegraph cable ships had allotted to them substantially their present signals; compare the Submarine Telegraph Act, 1885 (48 & 49 Vict. c. 49).

(c) In the Sea Regulations, 1897, the words previously inserted here, "in globular lanterns, each not less than ten inches in diameter," were omitted.

(d) In the Sea Regulations, 1897, the words "they shall be of such a character that the red shall be visible at the same distance as the white light" were altered to "they shall be of such a character as to be visible all round the horizon at a distance of at least 2 miles."

than 2 feet in diameter, of which the highest and lowest shall be globular in shape and red in colour, and the middle one diamond in shape and white. (1880)

(c) The vessels referred to in this Article when not making way through the water, shall not carry the side lights, but when making way shall carry them. (1880)

(d) The lights and shapes required to be shown by this Article are to be taken by other vessels as signals that the vessel showing them is not under command and cannot therefore get out of the way. (1880)

These signals are not signals of vessels in distress and requiring assistance. Such signals are contained in Article 31. (1884)

Vessel "not under command."

539. The phrase "cannot get out of the way" in sub-section (d) of article 4 is used as explanatory of the phrase "not under command," and appears to be included under it; so that if a vessel is able to get out of the way she cannot be said to be not under command (e). Whether a vessel is under command or not depends on all the circumstances. It is a question for the opinion of the Elder Brethren (f). A vessel is not within this rule unless she is not only not under command, but also not under command from an accident (g).

It may be that a vessel which has steerage way and can steer, but can only answer her helm very slowly so that she cannot get out of the way in the ordinary manner, may properly carry these signals (h); and so also a vessel, which can only stop and reverse after great delay (i); and so also if owing to an accident the loss

(e) The P. Caland, [1891] P. 313, 319. A steamship, with engines and steering gear undamaged, but reduced to slow speed owing to hull damage (Cory & Son, Ltd. v. Kopajtic, The "James Joicey" v. The "Kostrena," [1908] S. C. 295), and a steamship working full speed ahead under a hard-a-port helm, and dragging through the mud on her course at about a knot an hour, and reversing at times to clear her propeller and assist her in answering her helm (The Bellanoch, [1907] P. 170, C. A., not appealed against on this point, sub nom. S.S. Canning (Owners) v. S.S. Bellanoch (Owners), [1907] A. C. 269) have been held to be under command. On the other hand, where a steamship in a gale near the Goodwin Sands unshackled her anchor, banked her fires, shut off steam, and rode head to wind by her chains, and at night took down the black balls which she had hoisted and put up only anchor lights fore and aft, it was held that the master having rendered his vessel unmanageable ought to have shown the red lights (The Faedrelandet, [1895] P. 205, C. A.). A sailing vessel in the English Channel which had her stern and bows damaged and her head gear and foretopmast carried away in a collision, and was putting back in distress, moving slowly under her lower maintopsail, and was trying to get fast to a tug, was held justified in showing the red lights, considering the traffic and all the vessels out of the way of which she would otherwise have had to keep (The Hawthornbank, [1904] P. 120; compare The Buckhurst (1881), 6 P. D. 152). A steamer with her engines broken down but in tow is not within the rule (The Matpen (1913), Times, 23rd May).

(f) The Hawthornbank, supra, at p. 129.

(g) Compare The Bellanoch, supra, at p. 174.

(h) "P. Caland" and Freight (Owners) v. Glamorgan Steamship Co., The "P. Caland," [1893] A. C. 207, 212. But as to a vessel which can only go ahead very slowly by repeated reversals of her engines, and can only imperfectly obey her helm by reason that she is on the ground, see The Bellanoch, supra, per FLETCHER MOULTON, L.J., at p. 187.

(i) "P. Caland" and Freight (Owners) v. Glamorgan Steamhip Co., The "P. Caland," supra, at p. 213. But in this case a steamship which was held wrong in carrying the red lights had been found to be probably not able to reverse as quickly as before (The P. Caland, supra, at p. 318); the testimony was that in ordinary circumstances she could of the power to go ahead is reasonably regarded as likely to occur at any moment (k). A vessel capable of high speed may be not under command, like a runaway horse (l).

SECT. 2. Regulations for Preventing Collisions etc.

Special fog signals are prescribed for a vessel under way, which is unable to get out of the way of an approaching vessel through being not under command, or unable to manœuvre as required by these rules (m).

Disabled vessel making way.

540. This article contemplates that a vessel carrying these disablement signals may be making way through the water; and she may be justified in doing so, for instance, if she is very near port, or to avoid an otherwise imminent danger. But she is not justified in proceeding in all cases, and may be to blame for doing so (n).

A vessel which puts up these signals and proceeds states that she is in a crippled condition, and should act accordingly, not manœuvring for other vessels, but leaving them to get out of her way (o).

Vessels touching and aground.

541. While the duty to give these disablement signals may apply to a vessel touching and moving, it does not apply to a vessel which is hard and fast aground; for in the case of a vessel "aground in or near a fair-way" it was considered necessary expressly to specify in article 11 that she should carry the red lights, and the meaning of a vessel not under command is illustrated by article 15 (p).

Article 5.

542. Article 5 of the Sea Regulations, 1910, is as follows:—

Article 5.

A sailing vessel under way, and any vessel being towed, shall carry the same lights as are prescribed by Article 2 for a steam vessel under way, with the exception of the white lights mentioned therein, which they shall never carry. (1858) (a)

"Under way."

543. A sailing vessel is "under way" within this article when parted from her anchors and setting sail even if wholly reverse in three or four seconds, but on this occasion it took nearly a minute (S. C., [1892] P. 191, 195, C. A.).

(k) "P. Caland" and Freight (Owners) v. Glamorgan Steamship Co., The "P. Caland," [1893] A. C. 207, at p. 213.

(l) The P. Caland, [1891] P. 313, 320.

(m) See art. 15 (e), p. 410, post.

(n) "P. Caland" and Freight (Owners) v. Glamorgan Steamship Co., The "P. Caland," supra, at p. 212 (steamship in Straits of Dover which had accident to her machinery, but could steer and proceed at four to five knots without imminent risk of the engines ceasing to work, though unable to reverse as quickly as before, held not to be entitled to carry the red lights).

(o) The Hawthornbank, [1904] P. 120, 129, 130.

(p) The Carlotta, [1899] P. 223, 227.

(a) Under the Admiralty Notice, 1852, sailing vessels when under way or being towed, approaching or being approached by any other vessel, were required in effect to show a bright light in time to avoid collision. The coloured side lights for sailing vessels under way or being towed were introduced by the Admiralty Notice, 1858, and were required to be fixed when practicable, but were confined to sea-going sailing vessels. In 1897 the words "or being towed" were altered to "and any vessel being towed."

unmanageable (b); and so is a sailing vessel with her anchor down, but not holden by it (c).

A dumb barge lashed alongside a tug is "a vessel being towed," and should carry the side lights (d); but not a vessel being drawn up to her anchor by a tug (e). Before 1880, when separate lights were introduced for a pilot vessel, it was held that a pilot cutter, towing astern of a sailing vessel, infringed this article owing to the pilot cutter showing a white light instead of the side lights and that the sailing vessel was therefore to blame (f).

"Vessel being towed."

The substance of the regulation is that the lights must be fairly visible as described. There is no order that the lights must be fixed in any peculiar manner or in any particular part of the ship, nor that the lights must be fixed on the actual sides of the ship; the order is that the green light shall be exhibited on the starboard side, and the red on the port side. The whole question is whether, taking the description of the manner in which the lights are replaced on the vessel, they are so fixed as to be fairly visible (g). It is the effect that the legislature looks to, and not the position in which the lights are placed (h). The side lights are allowed to be fixed in the rigging (i), but not if they are thereby obscured (k). When the side lights of a barque were fitted with screens projecting Fixing of lights.

(b) The George Arkle (1861), Lush. 382, P. C. (decided under the Admiralty Notice, 1858); and the vessel was held not exempted for not showing the coloured lights by the excuse that such lights were to show a vessel's course, and that being unmanageable this vessel had no course.

(c) The Esk (1869), L. R. 2 A. & E. 350 (decided under the Sea Regulations, 1863); see, further, the definition of "under way" in the preliminary article, and notes thereto, p. 378, ante. Under this definition a sailing vessel dredging down a river with her anchor down to check her way would no doubt be held to be "under way" within this article. As to the older law, compare The Indian Chief (1888), 14 P. D. 24 (decided on a similar Thames rule), and The Smyrna (1860), cited in Lush. 385.

(d) The Lighter No. 3 (1902), 18 T. L. R. 322. As to the lights of dumb barges under art. 1, see, further, pp. 380, 381, ante.

(e) The Romance, [1901] P. 15.

(f) The Mary Hounsell (1879), 4 P. D. 204.

(g) Side lights placed near the outer edges of a galley 7 feet broad, which was just behind the foremast on a brig of 21 feet beam, were held to be properly placed (The City of Carlisle (1864), Brown. & Lush. 363, P. C.; compare Beal v. Marchais, The "Bougainville" and The "James C. Stevenson" (1873), L. R. 5 P. C. 316 (the side lights are not required to be affixed in a particular place, but to be so placed as to be properly visible); The Gustav, The New Ed (1864), 9 L. T. 547 (side lights not properly placed though duly screened when fixed on stands secured to the paul-bitts of the windlass on a foreign brig of 221 tons)). Placing the side lights forward, where they were obscured a point and a half on either bow, was held not to be justifiable on account of rough weather (The Tirzah (1878), 4 P. D. 33); but the obscuration of the starboard light by the cathead to an extent of two and a half to three degrees was held not to be an unreasonable departure from the Regulations (The Fire Queen (1887), 12 P. D. 147). As to the position of lights, see, further, under art. 2, p. 385, ante; and as to obscuration, see, further, under art. 1, p. 382, ante.

(h) The Gustav, The New Ed, supra.

(i) The "Glamorganshire" (1888), 13 App. Cas. 454, P. C.

(k) The Germania (1868), 3 Mar. L. C. 140; S. C. (1869), 21 L. T. 44, P. C. (placing the side lights in the mizen rigging of a barque, where owing to her form and rig they would not be visible to a vessel coming end on, was held to have partly caused a collision with a steamer struck by the barque's stem obliquely amidships).

SECT. 2. Regulations for Preventing Collisions etc.

only one foot instead of three feet, so that they could be seen across the bow, this together with obscuration of these lights by the main rigging was an inexcusable infraction of the regulations (l).

544. Article 6 of the Sea Regulations, 1910, is as follows:—

Article 6.

Article 6.

Whenever, as in the case of small vessels under way during bad weather, the green and red side-lights cannot be fixed, these lights shall be kept at hand lighted and ready for use; and shall, on the approach of or to other vessels, be exhibited on their respective sides in sufficient time to prevent collision, in such manner as to make them most visible, and so that the green light shall not be seen on the port side nor the red light on the starboard side, nor, if practicable, more than 2 points abaft the beam on their respective sides. (1858) (m)

To make the use of these portable lights more certain and easy, the lanterns containing them shall each be painted outside with the colour of the light they respectively contain, and shall be provided with proper screens. (1863)

Small vessels.

Side lights.

545. There is no statutory or judicial definition of "small vessel" (n). These lights are those which have been previously indicated in art. 2 (b), (c) and (d), and not the different side lights referred to in art. 7, 1 (b). Therefore the present article will not usually apply to steam vessels of less than 40, and vessels under oars and sails of less than 20, gross tons, since they will probably exercise their option not to carry the green and red side lights under art. 2.

"Cannot be fixed."

Whether it was practicable for the vessel to carry the side lights fixed is a question for the Trinity Masters (o).

"In sufficient time to prevent collision."

It will probably not be sufficient to carry these lights below (p). The words "in sufficient time to prevent collision" mean that the light should be shown when the vessels are approaching under such circumstances that there exists a risk of collision; then there is a duty to show it in time to prevent collision (q). Under these words

(l) The Emperor v. The Lady of the Lake (1865), Holt (ADM.), 37, P. C.

(m) This regulation was introduced in its original form in the Admiralty Notice as to Lights, 1858, which directed that when the lights were not fixed, "they shall be kept upon deck between sunset and sunrise, and on their proper sides of the vessel, ready for instant exhibition, and shall be exhibited in such a manner as can best be seen, on the approach of or to any other vessel or vessels, in sufficient time to avoid collision, and so that," etc. In the Sea Regulations, 1863, the words were altered to "in such manner as to make them most visible," and there were other verbal alterations. In the Sea Regulations, 1880, the words were altered to "shall be kept on deck, on their respective sides of the vessel, ready for use." In the Sea Regulations, 1884, there was no change. In the Sea Regulations, 1897, the words were altered to "shall be kept at hand lighted and ready for use"; and at the end the words were added "nor, if practicable, more than two points abaft the beam on their respective sides"; and there was also a small verbal alteration.

(n) As to the meaning of "vessel," see, further, note (d), p. 374, ante.

(o) Compare The Livingstone (1859), Sw. 519; The Calla (1859), Sw. 465.

(p) Compare The Margaret v. The Tuscar (1866), 15 L. T. 86, where, however, the rule was "shall be kept upon deck," etc.

(q) Compare The Orion, [1891] P. 307, 311, decided under the Sea in other rules, lights shown at a distance of not more than a third of a mile (r), and even of two to three hundred yards (s), have been held sufficient.

546. Article 7 of the Sea Regulations, 1910, is as follows:—

Article 7.

Article 7.

Steam vessels of less than 40, and vessels under oars or sails of less than 20, tons gross tonnage, respectively, and rowing boats, when under way, shall not be obliged to carry the lights mentioned in Article 2 (a) (b) and (c), but if they do not carry them they shall be provided with the following lights:—

1. Steam vessels of less than 40 tons shall carry:
 (a) In the fore part of the vessel, or on or in front of the funnel, where it can best be seen, and at a height above the gunwale of not less than 9 feet, a bright white light constructed and fixed as prescribed in Article 2 (a), and of such a character as to be visible at a distance of at least 2 miles.
 (b) Green and red side-lights constructed and fixed as prescribed in Article 2 (b) and (c), and of such a character as to be visible at a distance of at least 1 mile, or a combined lantern showing a green light and a red light from right ahead to 2 points abaft the beam on their respective sides. Such lantern shall be carried not less than 3 feet below the white light.
2. Small steamboats, such as are carried by sea-going vessels, may carry the white light at a less height than 9 feet above the gunwale, but it shall be carried above the combined lantern, mentioned in sub-division 1 (b).
3. Vessels under oars or sails, of less then 20 tons, shall have ready at hand a lantern with a green glass on one side and a red glass on the other, which, on the approach of or to other vessels, shall be exhibited in sufficient time to prevent collision, so that the green light shall not be seen on the port side nor the red light on the starboard side.
4. Rowing boats, whether under oars or sail, shall have ready at hand a lantern showing a white light, which shall be temporarily exhibited in sufficient time to prevent collision.

The vessels referred to in this Article shall not be obliged to carry the lights prescribed by Article 4 (a), and Article 11, last paragraph (t). (1897)

Regulations, 1884, art. 10, as modified by Orders in Council of the 30th December, 1884, and 24th June, 1885.

(r) The Orion, [1891] P. 307, 309.

(s) The Picton, [1910] P. 46 (decided under the Sea Regulations, 1897, art. 9 (d) 2, made in 1906). But in this case the steamer had a very bad look-out.

(t) This article was first introduced in the Sea Regulations, 1897; but under the Sea Regulations, 1863, art. 9, open fishing and other open boats were not required to carry the side lights, but might carry a lantern with green and red sides; and there was a similar provision under the Sea Regulations, 1884, art. 10. A dumb barge, dredging for sand, recovered judgment in a common law court, though showing no light under the Sea Regulations, 1863, art. 9 (The Palmyra v. The Charles (1865), Holt (ADM.), 59); and a fishing smack was held to blame under that article for carrying an insufficient light in an improper position (The Robert and Ann v. The Lloyds (1864), Holt (ADM.), 55).

SECT. 2. Regulations for Preventing Collisions etc.

547. It may be that this article is not intended to apply to a little river boat used for pleasure rowing (a); but it would apply to a barge using oars.

"Rowing boat."

548. Article 8 of the Sea Regulations, 1910, is as follows:—

Article 8.

Article 8.

Pilot-vessels, when engaged on their station on pilotage duty, shall not show the lights required for other vessels, but shall carry a white light at the masthead, visible all round the horizon, and shall also exhibit a flare-up light or flare-up lights at short intervals, which shall never exceed fifteen minutes (b). (1858)

On the near approach of or to other vessels they shall have their side-lights lighted, ready for use, and shall flash or show them at short intervals, to indicate the direction in which they are heading, but the green light shall not be shown on the port side, nor the red light on the starboard side (c). (1897)

A pilot-vessel of such a class as to be obliged to go alongside of a vessel to put a pilot on board, may show the white light instead of carrying it at the masthead, and may, instead of the coloured lights above mentioned, have at hand ready for use a lantern with a green glass on the one side and a red glass on the other, to be used as prescribed above (c). (1897)

A steam pilot-vessel exclusively employed for the service of pilots licensed or certified by any pilotage authority or the Committee of any pilotage district, when engaged on her station on pilotage duty and not at anchor, shall, in addition to the lights required for all pilot boats, carry at a distance of eight feet below her white masthead light a red light visible all round the horizon and of such a character as to be visible on a dark night with a clear atmosphere at a distance of at least two miles, and also the coloured side-lights required to be carried by vessels when under way. (1892) (d)

When engaged on her station on pilotage duty and at anchor she shall carry, in addition to the lights required for all pilot boats, the red light above mentioned, but not the coloured side-lights. (1892) (d)

Pilot-vessels, when not engaged on their station on (a) Compare Carse v. North British Steam Packet Co. (1895), 22 R. (Ct. of Sess.) 475.

(b) This paragraph, when introduced in its original form in the Admiralty Notice as to Lights and Fog Signals, 1858 (see Table in Appendix, post), applied only to sailing pilot vessels; and under it the flare was to be exhibited every fifteen minutes. In the Sea Regulations, 1863, there were some verbal alterations, and the words "visible all round the horizon" were added. In 1880 the words "when engaged on her station on pilotage duty" were added after what were then the first words, "a pilot vessel"; and the previous words, "a flare-up light every fifteen minutes," were altered to the present words.

(c) These paragraphs were introduced in the Sea Regulations, 1897.

(d) These paragraphs, in their original form, were introduced by Order in Council of the 18th August, 1892; and after the words "pilotage district" there then appeared the words "in the United Kingdom," and after "pilotage duty" there were the words "and in British waters"; see Table in Appendix, post. Under an Order in Council of the 27th November, 1896, these paragraphs in their original form were added as part of the Sea Regulations, 1897, art. 8; see Table in Appendix, post. In the Sea Regulations, 1910, the words stated above have been omitted, and thereby these Regulations have become of wider application.

pilotage duty, shall carry lights similar to those of other vessels of their tonnage (e). (1880)

Pilot vessels.

549. All pilot boats, that is, all boats and ships regularly employed in the pilotage service of any district, must be licensed (f). But "pilot-vessel" in this article may include a vessel hired and used for pilotage purposes by unlicensed pilots (g).

Pilot vessel "engaged on her station on pilotage duty."

550. A pilot vessel is engaged on her station on pilotage duty while she is on her station and is on the look-out for vessels to pilot, or is putting a pilot on another vessel; but she is no longer so engaged when she has done this work and has no longer a pilot on board (h).

Article 9.

551. Article 9 of the Sea Regulations, 1910, is as follows :—

Article 9 (i).

Fishing-vessels and fishing-boats, when under way and when not required by this Article to carry or show the lights herein-after specified shall carry or show the lights prescribed for vessels of their tonnage under way.

(a) Open boats, by which it is to be understood boats not protected from the entry of sea water by means of a continuous deck, when engaged in any fishing at night with outlying tackle extending not more than 150 feet horizontally from the boat into the seaway, shall carry one all-round white light.

Open boats, when fishing at night, with outlying tackle extending more than 150 feet horizontally from the boat into the seaway, shall carry one all-round white light, and in addition, on approaching or being approached by other vessels, shall show a second white light at least 3 feet below the first light and at a horizontal distance of at least 5 feet away from it in the direction in which the outlying tackle is attached.

(b) Vessels and boats, except open boats as defined in sub-division (a), when fishing with drift-nets (k), shall, so long as the nets are wholly or partly in the water, carry two white lights where they can best be seen. Such lights shall be placed so that the vertical distance between them shall be not less than 6 feet and not more than 15 feet, and so that

(e) The last words in this paragraph, "of their tonnage," were added in the Sea Regulations, 1897; and the other words come from the Sea Regulations, 1896, being altered a little from their original form in the Sea Regulations, 1880.

(f) M. S. Act, 1894, s. 611.

(g) The Mary Hounsell (1879), 4 P. D. 204 (where it was held that the first paragraph of this article, as it appeared in 1863, did not contemplate a vessel being towed but an independent vessel, and a cutter for unlicensed pilots which was being towed by a sailing vessel was held guilty of an infringement in showing a white light when being towed).

(h) The Reginald (1907), 10 Asp. M. L. C. 519.

(i) The following notes are appended to the Sea Regulations, 1910, art. 9, as scheduled to the original Order in Council of the 13th October, 1910 :— "This article does not apply to Chinese or Siamese vessels." "The expression 'Mediterranean Sea' contained in sub-sections (b) and (c) of this Article includes the Black Sea and the other adjacent inland seas in communication with it."

(k) "Dutch vessels and boats when engaged in the 'kol,' or hand-line, fishing, will carry the lights prescribed for vessels fishing with drift-nets." (This note is appended to sub-section (b) of the article as scheduled to the original Order in Council of the 13th October, 1910.)

SECT. 2. Regulations for Preventing Collisions etc.

the horizontal distance between them, measured in a line with the keel, shall be not less than 5 feet and not more than 10 feet. The lower of these two lights shall be in the direction of the nets, and both of them shall be of such a character as to show all round the horizon, and to be visible at a distance of not less than 3 miles.

Within the Mediterranean Sea and in the seas bordering the coasts of Japan and Korea (l) sailing fishing vessels of less than 20 tons gross tonnage shall not be obliged to carry the lower of these two lights; should they, however, not carry it, they shall show in the same position (in the direction of the net or gear) a white light, visible at a distance of not less than one sea mile, on the approach of or to other vessels.

(c) Vessels and boats, except open boats as defined in sub-division (a), when line-fishing with their lines out and attached to or hauling their lines, and when not at anchor or stationary within the meaning of sub-division (h), shall carry the same lights as vessels fishing with drift-nets. When shooting lines, or fishing with towing lines, they shall carry the lights prescribed for a steam or sailing vessel under way respectively.

Within the Mediterranean Sea and in the seas bordering the coasts of Japan and Korea (l) sailing fishing vessels of less than 20 tons gross tonnage shall not be obliged to carry the lower of these two lights; should they, however, not carry it, they shall show in the same position (in the direction of the lines) a white light, visible at a distance of not less than one sea mile on the approach of or to other vessels.

(d) Vessels, when engaged in trawling, by which is meant the dragging of an apparatus along the bottom of the sea—

1. If steam vessels, shall carry in the same position as the white light mentioned in Article 2 (a), a tricoloured lantern so constructed and fixed as to show a white light from right ahead to two points on each bow, and a green light and a red light over an arc of the horizon from two points on each bow to two points abaft the beam on the starboard and port sides respectively; and not less than 6 nor more than 12 feet below the tricoloured lantern a white light in a lantern, so constructed as to show a clear uniform and unbroken light all round the horizon.
2. If sailing vessels, shall carry a white light in a lantern, so constructed as to show a clear uniform and unbroken light all round the horizon, and shall also, on the approach of or to other vessels, show where it can best be seen a white flare-up light or torch in sufficient time to prevent collision.

All lights mentioned in sub-division (d) 1 and 2 shall be visible at a distance of at least 2 miles.

(l) "Also, as regards Russian vessels, in the seas (excluding the Baltic) bordering the coasts of Russia." (This note is appended in sub-sections (b) and (c) of the Sea Regulations, 1910, art. 9, as scheduled to the original Order in Council of the 13th October, 1910.)

(e) Oyster dredgers and other vessels fishing with dredge-nets shall carry and show the same lights as trawlers.

(f) Fishing-vessels and fishing-boats may at any time use a flare-up light in addition to the lights which they are by this Article required to carry and show, and they may also use working lights.

(g) Every fishing-vessel and every fishing-boat under 150 feet in length, when at anchor, shall exhibit a white light visible all round the horizon at a distance of at least one mile.

Every fishing-vessel of 150 feet in length or upwards, when at anchor, shall exhibit a white light visible all round the horizon at a distance of at least one mile, and shall exhibit a second light as provided for vessels of such length by Article 11.

Should any such vessel, whether under 150 feet in length, or of 150 feet in length or upwards, be attached to a net or other fishing gear, she shall on the approach of other vessels show an additional white light at least 3 feet below the anchor light, and at a horizontal distance of at least 5 feet away from it in the direction of the net or gear.

(h) If a vessel or boat when fishing becomes stationary in consequence of her gear getting fast to a rock or other obstruction, she shall in daytime haul down the day-signal required by sub-division (k); at night show the light or lights prescribed for a vessel at anchor; and during fog, mist, falling snow, or heavy rain-storms make the signal prescribed for a vessel at anchor. (See sub-division (d), and the last paragraph, of Article 15.)

(i) In fog, mist, falling snow, or heavy rain-storms, drift-net vessels attached to their nets, and vessels when trawling, dredging, or fishing with any kind of drag-net, and vessels line fishing with their lines out, shall, if of 20 tons gross tonnage or upwards, respectively, at intervals of not more than one minute make a blast; if steam vessels, with the whistle or siren, and if sailing vessels, with the fog-horn; each blast to be followed by ringing the bell (m). Fishing vessels and boats of less than 20 tons gross tonnage shall not be obliged to give the above-mentioned signals; but if they do not, they shall make some other efficient sound signal at intervals of not more than one minute.

(k) All vessels or boats fishing with nets or lines or trawls, when under way, shall in daytime indicate their occupation to an approaching vessel by displaying a basket or other efficient signal where it can best be seen. If vessels or boats at anchor have their gear out, they shall, on the approach of other vessels, show the same signal on the side on which those vessels can pass.

The vessels required by this Article to carry or show the lights herein-before specified shall not be obliged to carry the lights prescribed by Article 4 (a), and the last paragraph of Article 11. (1906) (n)

(m) This is an improvement on the former regulation, art. 10 of 1884; compare The London, [1904] P. 355.

(n) The first regulations as to lights and day signals for British sea fishing vessels were the British and French Fishermen's Regulations, 1843, imposed by the Sea Fisheries Act, 1843 (6 & 7 Vict. c. 79). These were followed by the Sea Regulations, 1863, art. 9. And so far the regulations

SECT. 2. Regulations for Preventing Collisions etc.

Fishing vessels and fishing boats.

552. This article is in the same terms as art. 9 of the Sea Regulations, 1897, which came into force on the 1st May, 1906. Fishing vessels and fishing boats are probably here coupled together as the statutory and ordinary expressions for the same kind of vessel. "Fishing-vessel" means (o) a vessel of whatever size, and in whatever way propelled, which is for the time being employed in sea fishing (p) or in the sea fishing service, excepting (q) a vessel fishing for pleasure.

Steam fishing vessels incumbered over fishing.

553. One general rule may be drawn from these Regulations and the decisions of the courts as regards the navigation of steam fishing vessels when incumbered (r) over fishing, for instance, a steam vessel were simple and clear. The Sea Fisheries Act, 1868 (31 & 32 Vict. c. 45), annulled the British and French Fishermen's Regulations, 1843, by repealing the Sea Fisheries Act, 1843 (6 & 7 Vict. c. 79), and made new regulations as to the lights for sea fishing vessels. These Sea Fisheries Act Regulations, however, were not consistent with the Sea Regulations, 1863, art. 9, and great uncertainty prevailed as to the proper lights to be carried by British sea fishing vessels; see Maude and Pollock, Law of Merchant Shipping, 4th ed., p. 594. This difficulty continued till 1884, the Sea Fisheries Act, 1868 (31 & 32 Vict. c. 45), being repealed on the 15th May, 1884, and the Sea Regulations, 1863, art. 9, being annulled as regards British ships on the 1st September, 1884. On the 1st September, 1884, the Sea Regulations, 1884, art. 10, came into operation, and remained in force till the 1st May, 1906, and was in many respects similar to the Sea Regulations, 1910, art. 9. But the Sea Regulations, 1884, art. 10, was modified by the Fishing Vessels Lights Regulations, 1885, and the Sailing Trawlers Lights Regulations, 1885, and the Fishing Vessels Fog Signals Regulations, 1905. The result was very complicated. All these regulations were annulled on the 1st May, 1906, and the Fishing-vessels and Fishing-boats Regulations, 1906 (which were styled "art. 9 of the Sea Regulations, 1897"), then came into force. This art. 9 was annulled on the 13th October, 1910; but the Sea Regulations, 1910, art. 9, which then came into force, was in the same terms. As to the regulations referred to in this note, see Table in Appendix, post.

(o) This is the meaning in M. S. Act, 1894, Part IV., unless the context otherwise requires (ibid., s. 370); and it appears to have the same meaning in these Regulations; compare Interpretation Act, 1889 (52 & 53 Vict. c. 63), s. 31.

(p) By the Sea Fisheries Act, 1868 (31 & 32 Vict. c. 45), s. 5, "sea-fishing" in that Act is to be construed to refer only to "sea-fish," and "sea-fish" does not include salmon, as defined by any Act relating to salmon, but save as aforesaid, includes every description both of fish and of shell fish which is found in the seas to which that Act applies.

(q) Strictly "but, save as otherwise expressly provided, that expression" (fishing-boat) "shall not include a vessel used for catching fish otherwise than for profit" (M. S. Act, 1894, s. 370).

(r) The Grovehurst, [1910] P. 316, 333, 335, C. A. In Maddox v. Fisher, The Independence (1861), 14 Moo. P. C. C. 103, 115, 116, where the question was whether a sailing vessel ought to give way to a tug towing a sailing ship, Lord KINGSDOWN contrasted an "unincumbered" steamer, first, with a sailing vessel, pointing out that such a steamer can turn out of her course and into it again with little difficulty or inconvenience, and that she can slacken and increase her speed, and stop or reverse her engines; and contrasted her, secondly, with a steamer towing a ship, which is at a disadvantage compared to her in many respects. But an "incumbered" steam fishing vessel is much more incumbered than a tug with a tow, and cannot, like a tug, indicate the nature or line of the obstruction astern of her, and this is a reason for exempting her from the ordinary duties of keeping out of the way which fall on such a tug; see The Grovehurst, supra, at p. 333. The principle that unincumbered vessels should keep out of the way of sailing vessels engaged in fishing is much older; see the cases collected in Pritchard's Admiralty Digest, 3rd ed., p. 239.

engaged in trawling, and a steam vessel fishing with drift-nets. The rule is that such a vessel is exempted from the duty of keeping out of the way of an unincumbered vessel (whether steam vessel or sailing vessel) under article 19 or 20 of these Regulations, and the duty of keeping out of the way is thrown on the unincumbered vessel (s), and the incumbered vessel ought to keep her course and speed (a). In such cases it is not correct to say that article 19 or 20 does not apply to such an incumbered vessel; either article may apply in full force if such a vessel meets a steam fishing vessel or sailing fishing vessel which is similarly incumbered (b); but when such an incumbered vessel meets an unincumbered vessel, article 27 intervenes and makes a departure from article 19 or 20 necessary. Thus it is the duty of a sailing vessel to keep out of the way of a steam trawler engaged in trawling (c) or a steam vessel fishing with drift-nets (d); and a sailing drifter when not fishing should keep out of the way of a steam drifter which has her nets in the water (e). This duty of the unincumbered vessel to keep out of the way applies by day as well as by night, since the steam fishing vessel incumbered over fishing has to carry a fishing signal in day-time under sub-division (k) of this article (f). At night the tricoloured lantern of a trawler engaged in trawling is not merely, like the towing lights of a tug, to give information as to the amount of obstruction to be expected from the length of the line of tows astern of her, because the trawl is below the sea, but it indicates that such a trawler cannot keep out of the way (g).

Steamers passing among fishing vessels.

Steamers which choose to pass through a fleet of fishing vessels ought to regulate their speed so as to be able to keep out of the way of incumbered fishing vessels (h).

(a) "Open boats."

The words "open boats" appear to mean open fishing boats which go to sea, and probably do not include a small open boat, used in a river for pleasure fishing (i).

(s) The Grovehurst, [1910] P. 316, C. A.; The Tweedsdale (1889), 14 P. D. 164 (decided under the Sea Regulations, 1884, art. 10, but the principle of this case was approved by the Court of Appeal in The Grovehurst, supra, as applying under the present art. 9); The King's County (1904), 20 T. L. R. 202. As to the nautical reasons for the rule, see, further, The Dunelm (1884), 9 P. D. 164, 172, 173, C. A.

(a) The Ragnhild, [1911] P. 254, 259, 260; The Tweedsdale, supra, at p. 171; compare The Upton Castle, [1906] P. 147, 153.

(b) The Grovehurst, supra, at pp. 333, 334.

(c) The Grovehurst, supra, overruling The Craigellachie, [1909] P. 1; and approving The Tweedsdale, supra; The Gladys, [1910] P. 13 (steam trawler hauling her trawl).

(d) The Pitgaveney, [1910] P. 215; compare The Grovehurst, supra, at pp. 328, 329 (a steamer crossing the course of a steam trawler engaged in trawling, so as to involve risk of collision, and although on the starboard side of the steam trawler, ought to keep out of the way).

(e) The Pitgaveney, supra.

(f) Compare The Gladys, supra.

(g) The Grovehurst, supra, at p. 333.

(h) The Picton, [1910] P. 46 (a steamer which passed at a speed of about nine knots through a fleet of fishing smacks engaged in fishing was held to have travelled at a reckless and excessive speed, but in this case a very bad look-out was being kept).

(i) Compare M. S. Act, 1894, s. 370; and Carse v. North British Steam Packet Co. (1895), 22 R. (Ct. of Sess.) 475, where it was held that "every open boat when at anchor," in the Sea Regulations, 1884, art. 10 (f), did

SECT. 2. Regulations for Preventing Collisions etc.

The words "fishing with drift nets" include the case of a vessel shooting her nets (k), but possibly not a vessel just about to shoot (l). But where a vessel cast off and buoyed her nets, and steamed up to another vessel, she was held to have infringed these Regulations because she still carried the two white lights instead of the under-way lights (m).

(b) . . "fishing with drift nets."

(c) . . "engaged in trawling."

554. "Engaged in trawling" is not the same as "trawling," but seems to cover the work of fishing with a trawl from the first shooting until in any case the trawl is got on board again. So it has been held that a vessel is "engaged in trawling" and must carry the trawling lights, not only when she has her trawl down, but when she is shooting or hauling it in (n). And "engaged in trawling" even covers the interval after the trawl has been got on board and before the vessel shoots again, if she is going to shoot immediately on the same ground (o); or if she is hove-to with the work of trawling not yet completed (p). But if she decides to go off to another spot to trawl, then, as soon as she is under command and in a position to go full speed ahead, she ought to shift her lights and put up the under-way lights (q).

Judicial notice has been taken of certain nautical facts as to the condition of steam trawlers when trawling; they are extremely helpless and cannot properly execute manœuvres (r); trawlers fish at times in rough weather (s); trawl fishing must be very slow because the net is on the ground, and if trawlers go at all too fast they tear their nets (t); and a steam trawler when hauling her trawl is practically stationary (a).

(d) (2) . . "in sufficient time to prevent collision."

555. A flare shown to a steamer when between two and three hundred yards away was held to have been shown in sufficient time, on the ground that, if the steamer could not then avoid collision, this ought to be attributed in the circumstances to her excessive speed (b).

(h) . . "stationary."

556. "Stationary" does not denote absolute immobility, as a perfectly stationary condition could not last on water beyond a mere not include a small open boat for pleasure rowing, which had no sail and did not go to sea, and which was anchored in a river while being used by gentlemen for fishing.

(k) The Pitgaveney, [1910] P. 215, 222.

(l) Compare The Englishman (1877), 3 P. D. 18, 22.

(m) The Cockatrice, [1908] P. 182.

(n) Ibid., at p. 188.

(o) Ibid.

(p) The Picton, [1910] P. 46.

(q) The Upton Castle, [1906] P. 147; The Cockatrice, supra.

(r) The Dunelm (1884), 9 P. D. 164, 172, C. A.

(s) Ibid., at p. 172 ("vessels do fish in what is not exactly calm sea").

(t) Ibid., at p. 173; compare citation in The Grovehurst, [1910] P. 316, 336, C. A., "it is told us by experienced persons that the mode of fishing with regard to these trawl-nets, is that the vessels go with the tide, and not against it."

(a) The Upton Castle, supra, at p. 149.

(b) The Picton, supra; but in this case the steamer had a very bad look-out. See also The Orion, [1891] P. 307 (flare shown at not more than a third of a mile and held sufficient); and as regards "in sufficient time to prevent collision," see under art. 6, pp. 390, 391, ante.

point of time. The rational view is that the question is one of degree (c). But "stationary" is a strong word, to which full effect should be given (d).

"Prescribed for a vessel at anchor" in sub-division (h), when it qualifies "signal," refers to article 11, and therefore, apparently, when it qualifies "light or lights" it also refers to the light or lights prescribed in article 11, not in sub-division (g) of this article.

(h) . . "prescribed for a vessel at anchor."

557. Article 10 of the Sea Regulations, 1910, is as follows:—

Article 10.

Article 10.

A vessel which is being overtaken by another shall show from her stern to such last-mentioned vessel a white light or a flare-up light. (1880)

The white light required to be shown by this Article may be fixed and carried in a lantern, but in such case the lantern shall be so constructed, fitted, and screened that it shall throw an unbroken light over an arc of the horizon of 12 points of the compass, viz., for 6 points from right aft on each side of the vessel, so as to be visible at a distance of at least 1 mile. Such light shall be carried as nearly as practicable on the same level as the side-lights. (1897).

558. This article, like other rules as to lights, aims at giving notice to vessels both of the existence of a vessel where the light is and of its position (e).

Object of article.

The first paragraph of article 10 (with "ship" for "vessel") was first introduced in the Sea Regulations, 1880 (f), in order to make clear (g) the duty to show a light in these circumstances.

(c) The Edith (1876), 10 I. R. Eq. 345.

(d) The Dunelm (1884), 9 P. D. 164, 173, C. A. Further, as to the interpretation of "stationary" in previous Sea Regulations, see The Robert and Ann v. The Lloyds (1864), Holt (ADM.), 55; The Englishman (1877), 3 P. D. 18 (sailing trawler just about to let out her trawl held not included in "vessels attached to their nets and stationary").

(e) The Main (1886), 11 P. D. 132, 135, 137, C. A.

(f) By art. 11 of those Regulations; see Table in Appendix, post.

(g) As to the older cases which show the gradual growth of the idea of a duty on the part of a vessel overtaken to show a light to the vessel overtaking her, see note (l), p. 379, ante. Under the Sea Regulations, 1863, arts. 2, 17—20, it was held at first in the Admiralty Court that as regards the duty to hoist a light in such circumstances, it was the duty of those who saw any chance of an approaching collision to take all reasonable means to avoid it (The Hannah Park and The Lena (1866), 14 L. T. 675; compare S. C., Holt (ADM.), 61). Afterwards it was held that although the overtaken vessel might be in such a position that the overtaking vessel could not see her regulation lights, the overtaken vessel was rarely bound to give a signal or show a light to the other, as such a light was a fancy light not within the Regulations (The Chanonry (1873), 1 Asp. M. L. C. 569). In a later case, Sir R. PHILLIMORE, after stating in effect that some great nautical authorities considered the exhibition of a stern light to be a disadvantage, held that a vessel was not required to exhibit a stern light to an overtaking vessel (The Earl Spencer (1875), L. R. 4 A. & E. 431, 435; followed in The Cybele (1879), 5 Quebec Law Reports, 262). The Privy Council, however, when the question came before them, held it to be the duty of the overtaken vessel if she saw a vessel overtaking her, which she had reason to suppose did not see her, to give some warning, not necessarily by a light, but by firing a gun or otherwise, to call the attention of that vessel (The Anglo-Indian (1875), 3 Asp. M. L. C. 1, P. C.). But though it was the duty of a vessel in exceptional cases to keep a look-out astern and give such a signal to an overtaking vessel, the overtaken vessel was not held negligent for not giving such a signal when the night

SECT. 2. Regulations for Preventing Collisions etc.

The second paragraph of this article first appeared in the Sea Regulations, 1897. One object of this paragraph was to give vessels a plain right to carry a fixed stern light (h). Another object was to prescribe the proper screening of a fixed stern light and prevent it from showing near at hand in the area of a side light (i).

"Being overtaken."

559. Every vessel, coming up with another vessel from any direction more than two points abaft her beam (that is to say, in such a position that at night she would be unable to see either of that vessel's side lights) is deemed to be an overtaking vessel; and notwithstanding any subsequent alteration of the bearing between the two vessels, such a vessel has a duty to keep clear of the overtaken vessel until she is finally past and clear (k).

The general object of the rule is that, when a vessel is able to see and ought to see that another vessel is coming nearer to her, and is on such a course as may ultimately lead to a position of danger, and is yet not in a position to see her lights, then the vessel overtaken shall be bound to show a light from her stern (l).

The overtaking vessel, if there were no other vessel near her, would have the right to alter her course as she pleased, and she may have to alter her course for good reason; and an alteration of her course cannot be negligent if she has no means of knowing that there is another vessel in front of her. Therefore the duty to show a light may apply although the course of the overtaking vessel does not cross the track of the other, and even if the lights of the overtaking vessel are broadening on the quarter of the overtaken vessel; to deny that the rule may apply although the lights are thus broadening would be to overlook the liberty of action on the part of the overtaking vessel to change her course (m).

was such that she could be seen at a sufficient distance for the other vessel if going at a proper speed to avoid her (The Earl Spencer (1875), 3 Asp. M. L. C. 4, P. C.). In The City of Brooklyn (1876), 1 P. D. 276, C. A., when on a very dark night the overtaken vessel, when she saw the danger, rang a bell and tried to show a light but had not time, the overtaking vessel was held in the Court of Appeal alone to blame for too great speed.

(h) A fixed stern light was in practice often carried by vessels before 1897. But there were conflicting decisions as to whether this was contrary to the Sea Regulations, 1884. In The Imbro (1889), 14 P. D. 73, it was held to be contrary, and in The Stakesby (1890), 15 P. D. 166, not contrary.

(i) Compare The Palinurus (1887), 13 P. D. 14, and The Imbro, supra (where the stern and the red lights of a vessel were alleged to have been taken for the masthead light of a steam vessel and the red of a sailing vessel). Even under the Sea Regulations, 1884, the real intention in prescribing the stern light was to have it so placed that it should not be seen in front of the stern (The Fire Queen (1887), 12 P. D. 147, 152).

(k) See art. 24, second paragraph, which first appeared in the Sea Regulations, 1897; see p. 461, post. But the meaning of "overtaking," as regards the duty of a vessel to show a light to an overtaking vessel, had been laid down previously in similar terms (The Main (1886), 11 P. D. 132, 135, 136, C. A.; The Franconia (1876), 2 P. D. 8, 12, C. A.), the alternative and rejected constructions being either that a vessel was only "overtaken" when the course of the overtaking ship was such that, if it were left unchanged, a collision would ensue (The Main, supra, at p. 135), or that a vessel could be overtaking as well as crossing (The Franconia, supra, at p. 12).

(l) The Main, supra, at p. 136.

(m) Ibid., at pp. 137, 138. In this case the overtaken vessel was

Application of rule.

560. A sailing vessel lying-to is bound to show a light under this rule, as being an overtaken vessel (n). Even before 1880, when the first paragraph of the rule came in force, a steamer, coming to anchor in a place and manner such that her regulation lights could not be seen by a sailing vessel which was following and ran into her, was held to blame for not giving notice of her position to the other vessel (o). Similarly, when a vessel cast off from her moorings in a river and placed herself partly across the fair-way, so that her regulation lights could not be seen by vessels coming up astern of her, it was held that she ought to have given proper warning to such vessels of her position; and a service lantern hung over the rail was held not to be sufficient warning (p).

One vessel crossing near the stern of another.

561. Overtaking seems to imply three conditions—greater speed, similar heading within a wide range, and a degree of nearness (q). As regards heading, it is difficult to say that one vessel is overtaking another if she is steering to cross the other's course about astern at right angles from a distance at which she cannot see the side lights of the other; and still more difficult, if she is steering a course more divergent to pass about astern. In such circumstances therefore the duty to show a light, if necessary, to a vessel approaching from a position in which the side light was shut out (r) would be a matter of good seamanship and not of this rule.

Time for showing the light.

562. The duty to show a light arises under this rule, as already indicated, when a vessel ought to see that an overtaking vessel is approaching her, and is on such a course as might ultimately lead to a position of danger (s). The light must be shown at a reasonable time before the overtaking vessel is brought into a position of danger, in order that she may know where the other ship is and so avoid risk of collision (t). Whether it has been shown within a reasonable time is a question for the nautical assessors, and must depend on the facts of each case (u). The duty does not arise till the held by the Court of Appeal to have infringed the rule, by not showing a light astern, though she saw the overtaking vessel 3 points on the quarter and the overtaking vessel's green light broadened to about 6 or 7 points on that quarter, the overtaking vessel afterwards wrongly hard-a-porting. In The Reiher (1881), 4 Asp. M. L. C. 478, it was held that, as the overtaking steamer first showed her green light and then shut it in and opened her red on the starboard quarter of the overtaken vessel, and was thus in a position to pass clear, there was no necessity for the overtaken vessel to show a flare under this rule, because she had a right to assume that the steamer had seen her. But on this point The Reiher (1881), 4 Asp. M. L. C. 478, was overruled by The Main (1886), 11 P. D. 132, C. A.

(n) The Reiher, supra; The Nostre Padre (1880), Pritchard's Admiralty Digest, 3rd ed., p. 244.

(o) The Philotaxe (1877), 3 Asp. M. L. C. 512.

(p) The John Fenwick (1872), L. R. 3 A. & E. 500.

(q) As regards nearness, see The Main, supra, at p. 138.

(r) This duty seems to be implied in The Main, supra, per Lord ESHER, M.R., at pp. 136, 138.

(s) The Main, supra, at p. 136.

(t) Ibid., at p. 139.

(u) Ibid.; and see The Picton, [1910] P. 46, 49 (a decision upon Sea Regulations, 1897, art. 9 (d) (2), "shall also, on the approach of . . . other vessels, show . . . a white flare-up light . . . in sufficient time to prevent collision").

SECT. 2. Regulations for Preventing Collisions etc.

overtaken vessel has had an opportunity of seeing that the other vessel is in a position to need the light (a).

Burden of proof.

563. The burden of proof under this rule lies in the first place on the overtaken vessel which complains that she has been run down; she must prove that she has shown the light properly. If she does not show proper lights it is almost inevitable to find that she is in the wrong. The other vessel is bound to keep a good look-out, and the duty of giving affirmative evidence of it lies with her owner at the trial. But if those on a vessel do not see a light, that does not show conclusively that they were not keeping a good look-out (b).

Flare or other intermittent light.

564. When there is no fixed stern light on the overtaken vessel this rule, if taken literally in its most limited sense, would be satisfied by showing a light once at the extreme distance at which it could be seen. But the rule is to be read in a businesslike sense, so as to bring about the result intended (c). If a vessel shows a flare or intermittent light, she ought to continue to show it from time to time, because it is intermittent (d); and she should go on showing it from time to time, so long as she continues to be overtaken; it is not sufficient to show it once, for two minutes, nine or ten minutes before the collision. The rule is framed to guard not merely against the defects of men's sight, but of their minds and attention (e). The vessels may be in such a position that if the flare is shown once it ought to be seen that once, but the question whether the overtaking vessel ought to see one flare depends upon the position of the two vessels both as to bearing and distance (f). On the other hand, as against the overtaking vessel, if she has seen a flare once, it is not true in every position of the vessels that she need not take any notice of it because it is not repeated (g).

If no proper light (h) is shown, and the overtaken vessel alleges that the other vessel ought to have seen her hull or sails in time to avoid collision, the burden of proving this lies upon her; it may be that the hull and sails of a sailing smack, even on a clear night, will not be visible at thirty yards (i).

(a) The Main (1886), 11 P. D. 132, 136, C. A.
(b) The Bassett Hound (1894), 7 Asp. M. L. C. 467, 468, C. A.
(c) Ibid., at pp. 468, 469.
(d) Ibid., at p. 469.
(e) The Essequibo (1888), 13 P. D. 51.
(f) The Bassett Hound, supra, at p. 469.
(g) Ibid., at p. 469 (if one vessel was a quarter of a mile ahead of the other, as a matter of practice it would be said that if the overtaking vessel kept a proper look-out she must have seen it. But if the flare is shown at a very great distance, although ahead, and could be seen, it is not true that it must be negligence not to have seen it).
(h) A binnacle light is not a proper light to show by hand even for a time, because of the small scope of light visible from it and for other reasons (The Patroclus (1888), 13 P. D. 54). And before 1897, when the second paragraph of the rule was introduced, it was held that the fact that the reflection from a binnacle lamp would pass through a pane of glass in the after-part of the deck-house and be visible astern to overtaking vessels was not a compliance with the duty to show a light under the rule; see The Breadalbane (1881), 7 P. D. 186.
(i) The Bassett Hound, supra, at p. 469.

565. Article 11 of the Sea Regulations, 1910, is as follows:— Article 11.

Article 11.

A vessel under 150 feet in length, when at anchor, shall carry forward, where it can best be seen, but at a height not exceeding 20 feet above the hull, a white light in a lantern so constructed as to show a clear, uniform, and unbroken light visible all round the horizon at a distance of at least 1 mile. (1858) (k)

A vessel of 150 feet or upwards in length, when at anchor, shall carry in the forward part of the vessel, at a height of not less than 20, and not exceeding 40, feet above the hull, one such light, and at or near the stern of the vessel, and at such a height that it shall be not less than 15 feet lower than the forward light, another such light. (1897)

The length of a vessel shall be deemed to be the length appearing in her certificate of registry. (1897)

A vessel aground in or near a fairway shall carry the above light or lights and the two red lights prescribed by Article 4 (a). (1897)

566. One object of the Regulations as to anchor lights is to let other vessels which are under way know that the vessel showing such a light is not under way, like a vessel showing the side lights, so that they may direct their course accordingly and need not give her such a wide berth (l). Object of the Regulations as to anchor lights.

When it is the duty of a vessel to carry an anchor light, no excuse such as that of taking down the lamp to be trimmed can be admitted (m).

(k) The first general regulation as to anchor lights was made by the Admiralty Regulations as to Lights, 1848, which ordered that steam vessels should exhibit when at anchor a common bright light. This was repeated in the Admiralty Notice respecting Lights, 1852, which also ordered that sailing vessels at anchor in roadsteads or fair-ways should exhibit a constant bright light at the masthead, when there were no local regulations for other lights. By the Admiralty Notice respecting Lights and Fog Signals, 1858, revoking the last regulations, a regulation was made in much the same terms as the first paragraph of art. 11; except that the regulation was applied to all sea-going vessels in roadsteads or fair-ways, and that, besides stating that the light was to be visible for at least one mile, it was prescribed that it should be in a globular lantern of 8 inches in diameter, and the words "under 150 feet in length" were not inserted. In the Sea Regulations, 1863, art. 7, the regulation remained in practically the same terms as before, except that it applied to ships, whether steamships or sailing ships. In the Sea Regulations, 1879 and 1884, the regulation (art. 8) remained practically the same. In the Sea Regulations, 1897, art. 11, the first words of the regulation were altered to "A vessel, under 150 feet in length," and "forward" was added after "carry," and the direction as to the shape and size of lantern was dropped; and the other paragraphs of the regulation were then added. As to the regulations cited, see Table in Appendix, post; and as regards the old cases before 1848 as to the duty of a vessel at anchor in a fair-way to carry a light, see under art. 1, note (l), p. 379, ante.

(l) The Esk (1869), L. R. 2 A. & E. 350, 353; compare The Louisa v. The City of Paris (1864), Holt (ADM.), 15, where a tug coming down a river was held to blame for carrying her side lights so improperly placed that the up-coming steamer was misled into thinking that she was at anchor.

(m) The C. M. Palmer, The Larnax (1873), 2 Asp. M. L. C. 94, P. C.; The Hirondelle (1905), 22 T. L. R. 146, C. A. (torpedo-boat destroyer

SECT. 2, Regulations for Preventing Collisions etc.

"At anchor."

567. The expression "at anchor" is not defined by the Regulations, but it is a nautical phrase which is well understood (n). A vessel is at anchor when she is held in a berth by her own anchor or anchors, or something equivalent to an anchor; and also when she is fast to moorings which are secured by an anchor or anchors, or something equivalent (o).

First, as regards a vessel riding by her own anchor. The true criterion as to a vessel being "at anchor" in these circumstances is whether she is "holden by and under the control of her anchor" (p), which seems to mean, as regards a vessel coming to anchor, that the vessel must be held by her anchor and also that her anchor must be in the ground and must be holding. When a vessel is coming to anchor, the side lights ought to be taken in and the anchor light put up immediately the vessel is brought up by her anchor; and a vessel may be to blame for a collision if those on board wait an appreciable time before doing these things (q). A vessel ought to have her anchor light up as soon as she is held by her anchor, and while she is swinging round to it (r).

A vessel which is getting up anchor continues to be "at anchor" as long as her anchor holds (s), even if she is being towed up to her anchor by a tug (t); but the tug towing her is not herself at anchor and ought to carry the under-way lights (a).

A vessel which has her anchor down for anchorage purposes, but is not held by it, is not "at anchor" (b). And it is still clearer that a vessel is not "at anchor" if she is using her anchor to help her on her course; for instance, a barge dredging down a river with her anchor down to check her way (c). If a vessel is riding head to wind in a gale with only her anchor chains out, she is wrong to carry an anchor light, which is misleading, and ought perhaps now to carry the two red lights (d).

having no mast to carry an anchor light at the proper height, according to the King's Regulations, carried her anchor lights only 5 and 6 feet above the deck, where they might be obscured; the action of those who sent the ship to sea in such a condition was held to be negligence).

(n) The Dunelm (1884), 9 P. D. 164, 171, C. A.

(o) Ibid., at p. 171.

(p) The Esk (1869), L. R. 2 A. & E. 350, 353.

(q) The Wega, [1895] P. 156, 159, 160.

(r) The Wega, supra.

(s) The Esk, supra. In this case the vessel getting up anchor was found not to be holden by it, and so was held not to be "at anchor."

(t) The Romance, [1901] P. 15.

(a) Ibid. In The Devonian, [1901] P. 221, C. A., a tug in the Mersey was connected by a hawser with a vessel in order to hold her up against the tide if her anchors dragged. By the Mersey rule the tug, being "attached for the purpose of towing" a vessel, was bound to carry two white lights and the side lights. The tug carried only one white light, and was held to have broken the rule.

(b) The Esk, supra. But a vessel dragging her anchors has usually kept up her anchor lights, and has not hitherto been blamed for it in the Admiralty Court. The anchor light may perhaps be justified in the circumstances as the least misleading light.

(c) The Indian Chief (1888), 14 P. D. 24. This case was before "under way" had been defined in the Sea Regulations, and the barge was held to be neither "at anchor" nor "under way," but it would seem that now such a vessel would be held to be "under way."

(d) The Faedrelandet, [1895] P. 205, C. A. In The Buckhurst (1881),

It is not necessary for a vessel to have an actual anchor down, in order to be "at anchor"; for instance, a vessel is "at anchor" when she is brought up by dropping overboard a heavy stone, as some fishing boats do (e).

Secondly, a vessel is "at anchor" when she is fast to moorings, though she has no anchor of her own down; and this is so if the moorings are not fastened by an anchor, but by something else equivalent to it (f).

Some further light is thrown on the expression "at anchor" by the definition of "under way" in the preliminary article, namely, that a vessel is under way when she is not at anchor, or made fast to the shore or aground (g). It follows that in no case when a vessel is "under way" (h) can she be at anchor. On the other hand, in exceptional cases a vessel may be "at anchor" as well as made fast to the shore or aground, but ordinarily a vessel which is in one condition is not in the other, which is doubtless the reason why these conditions are stated as alternative in the definition.

Lights.

"In the forward part of the vessel."

"At or near the stern."

568. An anchor light which is hung on the fore shroud of the fore rigging 72 feet from the stem of a vessel 313 feet long is well before amidships and is "in the forward part of the vessel" (i).

An anchor light which is hung on the fore shroud of the main rigging at 100 or 120 feet from the stern of a vessel 455 feet long is not carried "at or near the stern"; and it was held that the owners of the vessel in default had failed to make out that the light as actually shown ought to have been seen by those on the other vessel (k).

6 P. D. 152, a sailing ship in a gale, having parted from her anchors, drove before a gale with her anchor light up across the sands and into a brig lying at anchor in Penarth roads. The court found that it would have been misleading for the sailing ship to have put up her side lights, and also that the non-carrying of the side lights or the three red lights could not have contributed to the collision, which was an inevitable accident. The court did not decide whether she ought to have carried the three red lights or not.

(e) The Dunelm (1884), 9 P. D. 164, 171, C. A.

(f) The Dunelm, supra, at p. 171.

(g) Compare The City of Seattle (1903), 9 Canadian Exchequer Reports, 146 (vessel moored to a wharf with her bowsprit projecting 20 feet beyond the end of the wharf is not "at anchor" within art. 11); The Turquoise, [1908] P. 148 (vessel moored stem and stern outside another vessel at a wharf was held not to be "at anchor" within this article, and was not to blame for not carrying an anchor light, it not being the custom for vessels lying there to carry the light); The Titan, The Rambler (1906), 10 Asp. M. L. C. 350 (it appears that a vessel lying moored to a pontoon which is connected by a bridge with the shore is not really at anchor); The St. Aubin, [1907] P. 60 (a dumb barge, fastened only by her headfast to the side of another barge, which was alongside a steamship moored at a tier in a river, so that the dumb barge could swing out across the fairway, was held not to be "at anchor or moored" within the Thames rule, so as to be bound thereby to carry an anchor light. But the dumb barge was held to blame for not, as a matter of good seamanship, having a man on board with a light ready to show to an approaching vessel while the barge was swinging across the fair-way).

(h) As to cases of vessels under way, see p. 378, ante.

(i) The Philadelphian, [1900] P. 262, C. A.

(k) S.S. "Gannet" (Owners) v. S.S. "Algoa" (Owners), The "Gannet," [1900] A. C. 234.

SECT. 2. Regulations for Preventing Collisions etc.

A vessel swinging to her anchor in a river was held not to have performed her duty under a local rule to exhibit a globular light visible all round the horizon in the forward part of the vessel, and at or near the stern "another such light," when the light at the stern was a masthead light showing only over twenty points of the compass, and would not afford proper notice to vessels going up or down (l).

"Another such light."

"Aground."

569. A vessel proceeding ahead through mud at a speed of about a knot an hour with her engines working full speed ahead, and sometimes full speed astern to clear the propeller from mud, is not "aground" within this article (m).

"Fair-way."

570. Fair-way means a clear passage-way by water. Whenever there is an open navigable passage used by vessels proceeding up and down a river or channel, that may be said to be a fair-way (n).

Article 12.

571. Article 12 of the Sea Regulations, 1910, is as follows:—

Article 12.

> Every vessel may, if necessary in order to attract attention, in addition to the lights which she is by these Rules required to carry, show a flare-up light or use any detonating signal that cannot be mistaken for a distress signal. (1897)

The right to show flares.

572. Ships generally, therefore, before 1897 (a), could only show

(l) The Wega, [1895] P. 156, 161.

(m) The Bellanoch, [1907] P. 170, 174, C. A.; on appeal on another point, [1907] A. C. 269. Compare The Turquoise, [1908] P. 148 (a vessel was lying where she would ground on mud at low water, but would float at high water, and was held near high water not to be "aground in or near a fair-way" within this rule); and compare The Bitinia, [1912] P. 186 (art. 11 does not apply when the Thames Rules, 1898, art. 30, applies).

(n) The Blue Bell, [1895] P. 242, 246. In this case a vessel anchored in Sea Reach of the river Thames, inside the buoys marking the deep-water channel, and in a part of the river used by vessels of moderate draught, was held to be "in the fair-way" within the local rule, and bound to ring her bell in fog. And a vessel which had got out of the proper course down the river in thick weather, and was lying at anchor inside the Mussel bank in Long Reach of the river Medway, was held to be at anchor "in the fair-way" within the local rule, and bound to ring her bell in fog (The Clutha Boat 147, [1909] P. 36); compare The Turquoise, supra (a fishing vessel, lying moored outside another vessel at a wharf in an artificial waterway, where vessels had to lie to discharge fish cargoes, was held not to be "aground in or near a fair-way" within this article, nor "fast in a fair-way" within the local bye-law). Even before 1897, when these lights were first prescribed for a vessel aground in or near a fair-way, it was held that those in charge of such a vessel at night were bound, in the absence of any regulation, to take proper measures to apprise other vessels of her position (The Industrie (1871), L. R. 3 A. & E. 303, 308). And when a vessel ran aground in the Clyde, and lay across the fair-way partly submerged and hung an anchor light over her stern, and a second vessel came into her, being misled by the light into thinking she could pass inside the first vessel, it was held that the first vessel was bound to adopt every reasonable means in her power to warn other vessels in order to prevent them running into her, and that the single light shown was not sufficient, and that she ought to have kept a better look-out and used other means besides the lights to warn other vessels timeously (Kidson v. McArthur (1878), 5 R. (Ct. of Sess.) 936).

(a) Ships generally, before 1897, had no express permission to show any other than the regulation lights, but by of the Sea Regulations, 1863, art. 9, fishing vessels and open boats, and again by the Sea Regulations, a flare at the risk of being mistaken for a fishing vessel or an overtaken vessel, and of being responsible for a collision arising from the mistake. This article removed the risk, so that a flare could be shown freely in order to attract attention, and the practice was thus made conformable to the law. The express permission to use a flare was the more necessary under the Sea Regulations, 1897 and 1910, because the prohibition of unauthorised lights was made to some extent more strict in these Regulations, no other lights which might be mistaken for the prescribed lights being allowed to be "exhibited" (b).

"Detonating signal that cannot be mistaken for a distress signal."

573. The distress signals are stated in article 31. The words "detonating signal" are not used there. The distress signals in article 31, for which detonating signals which are allowable must not be able to be mistaken, are a gun or other explosive signals fired at intervals of a minute.

Article 13.

574. Article 13 of the Sea Regulations, 1910, is as follows:—

Article 13.

> Nothing in these Rules shall interfere with the operation of any special rules made by the Government of any nation with respect to additional station and signal lights for two or more ships of war or for vessels sailing under convoy, or with the exhibition of recognition signals adopted by shipowners, which have been authorized by their respective Governments and duly registered and published (c). (1880)

1884, art. 10 (e), fishing vessels and open boats in certain European waters were allowed to use a flare in addition to their regulation lights. Under the Sea Regulations, 1863, by art. 2, no other light than those specified was allowed to be carried, though by art. 20 nothing in the rules was to exonerate any ship from the consequences of any neglect to carry lights or neglect of any precaution required by the ordinary practice of seamen or by the special circumstances of the case. Under these Regulations it was held that a vessel placing herself across the fairway of a river, so that her regulation lights could not be seen by vessels coming up astern, ought to have shown a special light as a warning (The John Fenwick (1872), L. R. 3 A. & E. 500). Under the Sea Regulations, 1884, the two articles last referred to remained in practically the same terms, and by a new art. 11 a ship being overtaken was required to show from her stern a white light or flare. A ship which was not being overtaken, but which showed a flare to a steamer approaching her starboard side, was held not thereby to have infringed these Regulations, on the ground that art. 2, which forbade any other lights to be "carried," referred to fixed lights, and did not mean that no other light should be "shown." In this case the Trinity Brethren stated that a general practice existed among seamen to show a flare if circumstances made it judicious. The court intimated, however, that it would always be a question depending on the circumstances as to whether the showing of the flare was calculated to mislead, as if this was so, and an accident happened in consequence, the blame must be attributed to the vessel showing it; and that as flares had to be shown by fishermen and overtaken vessels, a vessel seeing a flare had to consider whether the vessel was a fishing vessel or an overtaken vessel or not (The Merchant Prince (1885), 10 P. D. 139).

(b) See art. 1, p. 379, ante; and compare the express permission in art. 9 (f), p. 395, ante, for other lights to be used by fishing vessels, and in art. 13 for certain lights ordered by the Government of a nation, and for recognition signals.

(c) The first part of this article is in the same terms as the Sea Regulations, 1880 and 1884, art. 26, with the substitution of "vessels" for

SECT. 2. Regulations for Preventing Collisions etc.

Ships of the Royal Navy.

575. Ships belonging to His Majesty are not bound by the Sea Regulations, 1910 (d). But ships of His Majesty's Naval Service are bound by the King's Regulations and Admiralty Instructions, which contain precisely the same articles (e); and there are in addition certain special lights and signals used by ships of His Majesty's Naval Service only, as contemplated by this article (f). The result is that as the Regulations which bind the ships of the Royal Navy and merchant vessels are in the same terms for all practical purposes, the navigation of each must be conducted as if the Regulations, together with the exceptions in article 27 as regards special circumstances, which apply to both, were the same (g). Therefore when a ship of the Royal Navy and a merchant vessel are manœuvring for each other, if either vessel disobeys an article of the Regulations binding on her, it is a neglect of good seamanship and navigation, and if such negligence causes or contributes to the collision, in the one case the owners of the merchant vessel, or in the other the officer responsible for the navigation of the ship of the Royal Navy, will be held liable (h).

Foreign warships.

576. So also ships of war of foreign nations, when they have submitted themselves to the Admiralty Court, have, it seems, always consented to be judged by the Regulations applicable to merchant ships (i).

Private signals.

577. If a shipowner desires to use for the purpose of a private code any rockets, lights, or other similar signals, he may register those signals with the Board of Trade, and that Board will give public notice of the signals so registered in such manner as it thinks requisite for preventing those signals from being mistaken for signals of distress or signals for pilots (k). The Board may refuse to register any signals which in its opinion cannot easily

"ships" in the phrase "vessels sailing under convoy." The latter part, as to recognition signals, was introduced in 1897. As to the need for the special permission granted by this article, see under art. 12, p. 406, ante.

(d) M. S. Act, 1894, s. 741. His Majesty's ships were not bound by the collision regulations in M. S. Act, 1854 (17 & 18 Vict. c. 104), ss. 296, 297, or by the Sea Regulations, 1863 (H.M.S. The Topaze (1864), 2 Mar. L. C. 38).

(e) See King's Regulations and Admiralty Instructions, 1906, as amended 1911, art. 1035.

(f) Ibid., arts. 1036, 1040 etc.; and see H.M.S. Sans Pareil, [1900] P. 267, 272, C. A.

(g) H.M.S. Sans Pareil, supra, at pp. 272, 281, 285, 288; compare H.M.S. Supply (1865), 2 Mar. L. C. 262 (those on board a sailing vessel approaching a steamer within risk of collision may expect, though for different reasons, the same course to be adopted by the steamer, whether belonging to His Majesty or otherwise).

(h) H.M.S. Sans Pareil, supra, at p. 273; followed in The Etna, [1908] P. 269, 281; compare The St. Paul, [1909] P. 43, C. A.

(i) The Lord Byron (1879), cited to this effect in 1 Maude and Pollock, Law of Merchant Shipping, 4th ed., p. 607, note (k). And where such a ship has submitted to the jurisdiction of the Admiralty Court, the foreign Sovereign has been ordered to give security for damages to a defendant who counterclaimed (The Newbattle (1885), 10 P. D. 33, C. A.); and so also a foreign Government has been ordered to give security for costs (Costa Rica Republic v. Erlanger (1876), 3 Ch. D. 62, C. A.).

(k) M. S. Act, 1894, s. 733.

be distinguished from signals of distress or signals for pilots (l). When a signal has been thus registered, the use of it by any person acting under the authority of the shipowner in whose name it is registered does not subject any person to any fine or liability under the Merchant Shipping Act, 1894, for using or displaying signals improperly (m).

578. Article 14 of the Sea Regulations, 1910, is as follows:— Article 14.

Article 14.

A steam vessel proceeding under sail only, but having her funnel up, shall carry in daytime, forward, where it can best be seen, one black ball or shape 2 feet in diameter. (1897)

579. By the preliminary article (n) every steam vessel which is under sail and not under steam is to be considered a sailing vessel, and every vessel under steam, whether under sail or not, is to be considered a steam vessel. Accordingly, when a steam vessel is under sail, other vessels are bound to manœuvre for her as a steam vessel or as a sailing vessel according to whether she is under steam or not. Before 1897 other vessels had to determine as best they could the often difficult question whether such a vessel was under steam or not. Now it is the duty of such a vessel, if she ought to be treated as a sailing vessel, to indicate this by the special signal in this article. Steam vessel under sail.

A steam vessel sailing without steam and hove-to is in all probability "under sail," within the meaning of this article, just as a sailing vessel when hove-to was considered to be "under sail" within the Admiralty Notice respecting Lights, 1852 (o).

580. Article 15 of the Sea Regulations, 1910, is as follows:— Article 15.

Sound-Signals for Fog, etc.

Article 15.

All signals prescribed by this Article for vessels under way shall be given:

1. By "steam vessels" on the whistle or siren. (1897)
2. By "sailing vessels and vessels towed" on the fog-horn. (1897)

The words "prolonged blast" used in this Article, shall mean a blast of from 4 to 6 seconds' duration. (1897)

A steam vessel shall be provided with an efficient whistle or siren, sounded by steam or some substitute for steam, so placed that the sound may not be intercepted by any obstruction, and with an efficient fog-horn, to be sounded by mechanical means, and also with an efficient bell (p). A sailing vessel of 20 tons gross tonnage or upwards shall be provided with a similar fog-horn and bell. (1880)

(l) M. S. Act, 1894, s. 733.
(m) Ibid.
(n) See pp. 373, 374, ante.
(o) The City of London (1857), Sw. 245, 300, P. C.
(p) Here the following note is appended in the Sea Regulations scheduled to the original Order in Council of the 13th October, 1910:— "In all cases where the Rules require a bell to be used a drum may be substituted on board Turkish vessels, or a gong where such articles are used on board small sea-going vessels."

SECT. 2. Regulations for Preventing Collisions etc.

In fog, mist, falling snow, or heavy rain-storms, whether by day or night, the signals described in this Article shall be used as follows, viz. :—

(a) A steam vessel having way upon her, shall sound, at intervals of not more than 2 minutes, a prolonged blast. (1880)

(b) A steam vessel under way, but stopped and having no way upon her, shall sound, at intervals of not not more than 2 minutes, 2 prolonged blasts, with an interval of about 1 second between them. (1897)

(c) A sailing vessel under way shall sound, at intervals of not more than 1 minute, when on the starboard tack one blast, when on the port tack two blasts in succession, and when with the wind abaft the beam three blasts in succession. (1880)

(d) A vessel, when at anchor, shall, at intervals of not more than 1 minute, ring the bell rapidly for about 5 seconds. (1880)

(e) A vessel, when towing, a vessel employed in laying or in picking up a telegraph cable, and a vessel under way, which is unable to get out of the way of an approaching vessel through being not under command, or unable to manœuvre as required by these Rules shall, instead of the signals prescribed in sub-divisions (a) and (c) of this Article, at intervals of not more than 2 minutes, sound three blasts in succession, viz.: one prolonged blast followed by two short blasts. A vessel towed may give this signal and she shall not give any other. (1897)

Sailing vessels and boats of less than 20 tons gross tonnage shall not be obliged to give the above-mentioned signals, but if they do not, they shall make some other efficient sound-signal at intervals of not more than 1 minute (q). (1897)

Fog signals.

581. The first general regulations as to fog signals were made in 1858 (r). The Sea Regulations, 1863 (s), directed steamships "under weigh" to use a steam whistle, sailing ships "under weigh" to use a foghorn, and both when "not under weigh" to use a bell, at least every five minutes. In the Sea Regulations, 1880, article 12 was in much the same form as the several paragraphs of the present article which have that year marked against them; the chief differences, which were made in 1897, are the addition of the words

(q) Here the following note is appended in the Sea Regulations scheduled as above :—"Dutch steam pilot-vessels, when engaged on their station on pilotage duty in fog, mist, falling snow, or heavy rain-storms are required to make at intervals of 2 minutes at most one long blast with the siren, followed after 1 second by a long blast with the steam whistle and again after 1 second by a long blast on the siren. When not engaged on their station on pilotage duty, they make the same signals as other steamships."

(r) By the Admiralty Notice respecting Lights and Fog Signals, 1858, which directed steam vessels under way, and sailing vessels under way and on the port or starboard tack, to sound certain fog signals once at least every five minutes, but which provided no fog signals for a vessel at anchor. Long before any general regulations as to fog signals had been made, foghorns or other means of making a loud sound in fog were in use on board vessels; and in 1853 it was held to be negligence on the part of a sailing vessel in a fog not to give notice by sounding a foghorn, when a steamer came in sight, at a distance of three or four cables' length (The "Carron" (1853), 1 Ecc. & Ad. 91).

(s) By art. 10.

"of 20 gross tons or upwards" after "sailing vessel," and of the words "heavy rain-storms" after "snow," and that the interval of time between the fog signals both of a sailing vessel under way and of a vessel at anchor has been altered from two minutes to one minute (t).

Liability for fog signals not being heard.

582. Judicial notice has often been taken of the difficulties which may prevent those on board a vessel hearing the fog signals of another vessel, even though they are keeping a good look-out. The vagaries of sound in a fog are of the most astonishing character; sometimes where a whistle has been given which it was calculated would be heard at four or five miles, it is not heard at a distance beyond a couple of cables' length (a). This particularly applies to foghorns, which are not heard at any very great distance; and in their case there is always this to consider, that when a steamer is sounding her fog whistle, she may drown the sound of a foghorn sounded near her (b). The fact that the sound of a foghorn sounded on board one vessel does not reach the ears of those on board a second vessel approaching her is not sufficient to override credible evidence of witnesses from the first vessel that it was being properly sounded (c). And it is impossible to infer from the fact that a whistle is not heard in a fog that there is an inefficient look-out on the vessel which does not hear it (d). A vessel is not necessarily in fault for not hearing the fog signal of another vessel, even when at anchor, until too late to avoid her, even if no special reason can be given for this; but in such circumstances the collision may be an inevitable accident (e). On the other hand, the fact that fog signals are found to have been regularly sounded, and are admitted not to have been heard, may be sufficient in the circumstances to justify the finding that the failure to hear was due to a bad look-out (f). It appears proper to ask the nautical assessors in such a case whether it was impossible or highly improbable in the circumstances that those on board the vessel, if keeping a good look-out, should have failed to hear the fog signals of the other vessel before they did (g). A vessel which has neglected to sound fog signals cannot be allowed to say that they would not have been heard (h).

Look-out in fog.

It has been held that a steamship proceeding in a fog in certain circumstances ought to have a double look-out forward (i).

(t) The Sea Regulations, 1884, art. 12, was in the same terms as the Sea Regulations, 1880, art. 12; and the Sea Regulations, 1897, art. 15, was in the same terms as the present art. 15, except that in the present article a note as to Dutch steam pilot vessels has been added; see note (q), p. 410, ante.

(a) The Rosetta (1888), 6 Asp. M. L. C. 310.

(b) The Merthyr (1898), 8 Asp. M. L. C. 475, 476.

(c) The Campania, [1901] P. 289, 292, C. A.

(d) The Rosetta, supra; The Merthyr, supra; The Zadok (1883), 9 P. D. 114.

(e) The Nador, [1909] P. 300 (inevitable accident: steamship under way and vessel at anchor); The "Marpesia" (1872), L. R. 4 P. C. 212 (inevitable accident: two sailing vessels approaching each other and coming into sight at a distance of about 200 yards).

(f) The Curran, [1910] P. 184, C. A.

(g) The Merthyr, supra.

(h) The London, [1904] P. 355, 359.

(i) The Europa (1850), 14 Jur. 627.

SECT. 2. Regulations for Preventing Collisions etc.

On the other hand, in a case where the officers of a steamship were keeping a good look-out, the vessel was not held to blame for not having a man stationed exclusively on the look-out (k). It is quite as much the duty of a look-out to report fog signals as to report lights (l).

Mechanical foghorn.

583. It is a breach of this article for a vessel to use a mouth foghorn if she has not, but ought to have had, a mechanical foghorn (m); but if her mechanical foghorn breaks down by accident, the use of a mouth foghorn may be excused (n). There is no express obligation on the master of a vessel to have his foghorn overhauled by an expert mechanic every time he leaves port, and where the foghorn appeared to be right and showed nothing to suggest doubt, a master was held not to be negligent either for not having sent it for such an overhaul or, where it broke down and he could not remedy the defect, for blowing a mouth foghorn instead (o).

The failure to use a mechanical foghorn may be held not to have contributed to the collision (p).

There is no rule that no other fog signals than those specified shall be given, unlike the case of lights (q), so probably in special circumstances a fog signal other than those specified may properly be given under article 27 or on general principles (r).

"Fog, mist, falling snow."

584. There is fog if the thickness of the weather impairs the protection obtained by sight so far as to render it proper to supplement it by use of the fog signals (s).

(k) The Bernard Hall (1902), 9 Asp. M. L. C. 300, 302 (the steamship was a vessel of 2,715 tons gross).

(l) The King (1911), 27 T. L. R. 524.

(m) The Love Bird (1881), 6 P. D. 80.

(n) The Chilian (1881), 4 Asp. M. L. C. 473.

(o) "Fortunato Figari" (Owners) v. "Coogee" (Owners) (1904), 29 Victorian Law Reports, 874, 911, 912.

(p) National Steamship Co. v. Merry, The Pennsylvania (1870), 23 L. T. 55, P. C. (where a steamer was proceeding at an excessive speed and wrong orders were given on board after a barque was sighted, although the barque was wrongly sounding a bell instead of a foghorn, and although the foghorn would have been heard farther, yet the failure to use a foghorn was held not to be the cause of the vessels coming into the position which caused the collision, and the steamer was held alone to blame); compare Lohnes v. S.S. Barcelona (1884), 10 Quebec Law Reports, 305 (where a fishing vessel at anchor was sounding her foghorn instead of her bell, in accordance with the universal custom to do so of fishing vessels sailing from Nova Scotia, this was held to be no excuse, but the fishing vessel was not held liable, on the ground that the steamer which struck her was solely to blame for the collision, either for not seeing or hearing the fishing vessel more than one minute before the collision or for not taking any precaution to avoid her); compare also The "James Joicey" v. The "Kostrena," [1908] S. C. 295.

(q) See art. 1, which directs that no other lights which may be mistaken for the prescribed lights shall be exhibited; see p. 379, ante.

(r) Compare The Merchant Prince (1885), 10 P. D. 139, where showing a flare was held not to be a breach of the Sea Regulations, 1884.

(s) The Milanese (1881), Pritchard's Admiralty Digest, 3rd ed., p. 251, H. L., per Lord BLACKBURN; compare The Milanese (1880), 4 Asp. M. L. C. 318, C. A., where there was a conflict of evidence as to the weather, and it was held by BRETT, L.J. to be clearly a case of fog, as the governing facts were that one vessel was coming to anchor for the weather and the other vessel was shortening sail.

It is not an infraction of this rule for a vessel, not herself in fog, not to sound a fog signal when approaching a bank of fog, but it is a neglect of a proper precaution (t), as it is her duty in such circumstances to sound fog signals to apprise vessels in the fog of her presence (u). There is a similar duty to sound fog signals when approaching falling snow, though the vessel herself is not in it (a). And if a compulsory pilot is in charge when fog signals are not being, but ought to be, sounded, the master, or doubtless the other officer on watch, ought to call his attention to the fact (b).

Effect of compulsory pilotage.

585. The signal of two prolonged blasts is a very useful signal, conveying an almost invaluable piece of information; but it is extremely important that it should not be given unless the vessel giving it is lying dead in the water (c). She must be absolutely stopped, and it is not sufficient that she should have substantially no way (d). As this signal indicates that the vessel is stopped, those on the other vessel are entitled to act on that assumption (e), and to manœuvre accordingly to go past (f), and a vessel which gives it wrongly may be misleading the other vessel. It can usually be very easily ascertained, by throwing a piece of paper over the side or otherwise, whether the vessel is stopped or not, and it appears to be the duty of the navigating officer to take some such step before sounding this signal (g). Negligence in sounding the two long blasts improperly will be immaterial, unless it in fact misleads the other vessel (h).

(b). . . "2 prolonged blasts."

586. If a vessel hears the two long blasts, and acts as she has a right to act upon it, and manœuvres to go past the other vessel, there is a duty upon her to advance with such very great caution that, supposing the other vessel comes into sight very close, she shall be able to bring herself up within a very short distance; and a speed of four or five knots on a heavy ship in an extremely dense

Duty of vessel hearing two long blasts.

(t) The N. Strong, [1892] P. 105.

(u) The Milanese (1880), 4 Asp. M. L. C. 318, C. A. But where a vessel saw a second vessel approaching in such a position that if both vessels did not alter they would go clear, and a fog then came on and shut out the second vessel, it was held that the first vessel was under no such special obligation to whistle for the second vessel, though the second vessel wrongly starboarded and caused a collision (The Oravia (1907), 10 Asp. M. L. C. 434, C. A.).

(a) The St. Paul, [1909] P. 43, C. A. But in this case it was held that the absence of the sound signals on the steamship did not contribute to the collision, as the vessels saw each other at a sufficient distance and time to enable them with reasonable care to pass each other in safety; compare The Ape (1914), 30 T. L. R. 286.

(b) The St. Paul, supra, at p. 54; compare The Elysia, [1912] P. 152.

(c) The Castleventry (1904), Shipping Gazette, 16th April.

(d) The Antwerp City (1912), Shipping Gazette, 29th January.

(e) The Matiana (1908), 25 T. L. R. 51.

(f) The Castleventry, supra.

(g) The Bittern (1908), Shipping Gazette, 2nd April.

(h) In The Castleventry, supra, and The Matiana, supra, the vessel sounding the two long blasts improperly was held to blame on this account. In The Antwerp City, supra, the vessel so sounding was held not to blame, as the blasts were alleged by the other vessel wrongly to have been two short blasts, and it was held that the misreading of the signal was sufficient to show that it could not have contributed to the collision.

SECT. 2. Regulations for Preventing Collisions etc.

fog was held in these circumstances to be excessive (i). Where a steamer had heard the two prolonged blasts about ahead, although that signal had been wrongly given, she was held entitled to manœuvre by porting her helm (k).

(c). . . "Sailing vessel under way."

587. A sailing vessel when tacking must continue to sound the signal for the tack she is on until she actually has the wind on the other side (l).

(d). . . "When at anchor."

588. Where a vessel was moored in a fog to a pontoon connected by a bridge to the shore, and it was not usual or reasonable for a vessel in such a position to ring a bell, and to do so might have misled other vessels into thinking she was really at anchor so that they could pass on either side of her, it was held that the vessel was not bound to ring a bell under the local rule by which such a vessel was directed to ring the bell "if and when anchored" (m).

(e). . . "When towing."

589. Where a steamship was proceeding in a fog under her own steam sounding prolonged blasts, and a tug was fast to her by a short scope to tow her when it became necessary to do so, but had not in fact begun to tow, it was held that the tug was not "towing" within this article; and it was held that the tug in the circumstances was not bound to sound two prolonged blasts under article 15 (a), because, even if the tug was properly to be regarded as a separate vessel, and would therefore be bound by this article to sound prolonged blasts, which was doubtful, still it was less confusing, from the point of view of warning to others and safe navigation, for the steamship to give her signals unaccompanied by any signals from the tug (n).

Article 16.

590. Article 16 of the Sea Regulations, 1910, is as follows:—

Speed of Ships to be Moderate in Fog, etc.

Article 16.

Every vessel shall, in a fog, mist, falling snow, or heavy rain-storms, go at a moderate speed, having careful regard to the existing circumstances and conditions. (1863)

A steam vessel hearing, apparently forward of her beam, the fog-signal of a vessel the position of which is not ascertained, shall, so far as the circumstances of the case

(i) The Castleventry (1904), Shipping Gazette, 16th April.

(k) Ibid.

(l) The Constantia (1889), 6 Asp. M. L. C. 478.

(m) The Titan, The Rambler (1906), 10 Asp. M. L. C. 350; and, as to "at anchor," in art. 11, see pp. 404, 405, ante.

(n) The Sargasso, [1912] P. 192; compare The "James Joicey," The "Kostrena," [1908] S. C. 295 (a steamship with her stern carried away and her forward compartment filled owing to a collision, but with engines and steering gear uninjured so that she was able to proceed and manœuvre slowly, hoisted the two black balls for a vessel not under command, but in a fog sounded signals of one prolonged blast under art. 15 (a), instead of a long and two short blasts under art. 15 (e). She was held not to blame in respect to her fog signals, first, because she was under command and ought not to have hoisted the two black balls and did not come within art. 15 (e); and secondly, because, even if she had been bound to sound the special signal under art. 15 (e), the fact that it was not sounded did not contribute to the collision, which was due to the other steamship not stopping her engines on hearing the fog signal which was sounded).

admit, stop her engines, and then navigate with caution until danger of collision is over. (1897) (a)

SECT. 2. Regulations for Preventing Collisions etc.

Application of rule.

591. A vessel approaching a fog bank ahead of her is not within the terms of this article, but it is her duty under the general rules of good seamanship to ease and go at a moderate speed (b); and the same applies to a steamer with falling snow ahead (c). But a vessel is not bound to go at a moderate speed if there is no fog ahead but only in the vicinity, for instance, at a distance on the port bow (d).

A moderate speed.

592. The words "having careful regard to the existing circumstances and conditions" were probably added to make the rule clearer from a popular point of view, since the legal doctrine, that moderate speed was not an absolute term but depended on the circumstances, existed long before (e).

The object of imposing moderate speed on vessels is not merely that it will lessen the violence of a collision, but also that their speeds shall give as much time as possible for making any necessary manœuvres in unforeseen circumstances, for in a fog it cannot be told exactly from what quarter the danger may come (f). Also each vessel has thus more opportunities of hearing the sound signals of the approaching vessel; a steamer going at slow speed has the chance of hearing about twice as many sound signals from an approaching sailing vessel as compared with what she would hear if going at double the speed (g). And the way of a vessel is more quickly taken off by reversing when going at slow speed (h).

Circumstances affecting speed: weather; place;

593. What is a moderate speed depends on the circumstances and conditions of each case (i), so that what is moderate speed at one time is not moderate at another (k). The chief circumstances and conditions are the state of the atmosphere, wind, and sea; the circumstances as regards the place, especially as to whether it is

(a) In the Sea Regulations, 1863, art. 16, it was provided that every steamship should when in a fog go at a moderate speed. This was altered in the Sea Regulations, 1880, art. 13, to "Every ship, whether a sailing ship or steamship, shall in a fog, mist, or falling snow go at a moderate speed." The Sea Regulations, 1884, art. 13, was in the same words. In 1897 the first paragraph of the article was altered to its present form, and the second paragraph was added. Long before 1863, however, it was a duty of good seamanship to moderate a vessel's speed in fog (Perth (1838) 3 Hag. Adm. 414; The Lord Saumarez (1848), 6 Notes of Cases, 600; and see other cases cited in Pritchard's Admiralty Digest, 3rd ed., pp. 222—226). And a similar duty applied in other circumstances, for instance, when the weather was squally, rainy, and dark (The Emperor v. The Lady of the Lake (1864), Holt (ADM.), 202; and (1865) in Privy Council, ibid., p. 37). Neither this article nor any of the Sea Regulations applies to ships in an artificial navigable channel terminating in locks, like the Manchester Ship Canal (The Hare, [1904] P. 331). As to what is fog, see under art. 15, p. 412, ante.

(b) The N. Strong, [1892] P. 105, 110.

(c) The St. Paul, [1909] P. 43, C. A.

(d) The Bernard Hall (1902), 9 Asp. M. L. C. 300, 302.

(e) See, for instance, The Zadok (1883), 9 P. D. 114, 117; The Ebor (1886), 11 P. D. 25, 27, C. A.

(f) The Zadok, supra, at p. 115.

(g) The Campania, [1901] P. 289, 296, 297, C. A.

(h) Ibid.

(i) Ibid., at p. 292; and see the terms of art. 16.

(k) The Ebor, supra.

SECT. 2. Regulations for Preventing Collisions etc.

open sea or narrow waters, whether there are difficulties of tide or current, and whether it is a place where many vessels are likely to be at anchor or under way or not; and the condition of the vessel herself, especially as to whether she is a sailing vessel or a steam vessel, and as to her manœuvring power and her likelihood of doing damage, and in this connexion as to what is her tonnage, and whether she is loaded or light, and if she is a steam vessel, as to what is the power of her engines, and as to whether she is a paddle steamer or a screw steamer with one or more propellers, and what her steering gear is and how well she answers to it (l). The facility in handling a steamer, large or small, must be taken into account (m); and one of the most important considerations is how soon the way can be taken off a very large ship (n). A cargo vessel with a full speed of nine or ten knots can and apparently should as a rule reduce her speed in fog to about three knots (o).

condition of vessel.

Condition of atmosphere.

As regards the atmosphere, a moderate speed must depend in a great measure on whether the fog is slight or dense (p), whether it is one through which daylight can be seen (q), or whether it is such that another vessel can only be seen at a ship's length, so that it may be impossible to see her until a collision is inevitable (r).

Vessels in narrow waters.

When the place is a narrow arm of the sea or a river, even if those on board a vessel do not hear a whistle, they should contemplate the probability of meeting other vessels, and that in such a place vessels would meet almost on the same line (s). In the Thames, for example, before a whistle is heard, a vessel in a dense fog should be brought as nearly as possible to a standstill, so as only to be just under command (t). In a narrow channel or current, owing to danger from such a condition, it might be necessary for a vessel to go at a higher speed (a); and on the open sea, where the probabilities of meeting another ship are less, the speed need not be as moderate as if a vessel is navigating a narrow channel (b).

Dense fog.

As a rule, at sea in a fog it appears to be proper for a steamship while moderating her speed to leave herself with the capacity of being properly steered (c). But a fog may be so dense that it is not possible to see across the ship, and in that case a vessel will probably have to stop her engines (d). And even at sea in a fog as dense as it well could be, a steamship, when she had reached a proper anchorage, was held to blame for proceeding dead slow

(l) Compare The Beta (1884), 9 P. D. 134, C. A.; The Elysia (1882), 4 Asp. M. L. C. 540, C. A., per COTTON, L.J., at p. 544 (the question of what is a moderate speed might depend on whether a vessel is rapid in answering her helm).

(m) The Campania, [1901] P. 289, 302, C. A.; The Elysia, supra.

(n) The Campania, supra.

(o) Ibid., at p. 297.

(p) Oceanic Steam Navigation Co. v. Waterford Steamship Co., The Oceanic (1903), 9 Asp. M. L. C. 378, H. L.

(q) The Beta, supra.

(r) The Dordogne (1884), 10 P. D. 6, 10, C. A.

(s) Ibid.

(t) Ibid.

(a) The Campania, supra, at p. 303.

(b) The Dordogne, supra.

(c) This appears to be the general effect of the decisions; compare The Zadok (1883), 9 P. D. 114, 117.

(d) Compare The Campania, supra, at p. 297.

instead of anchoring (e). Still more in a river, a fog may be so thick that it is the duty of a vessel not to get under way (f), and if under way to come to anchor as soon as possible (g). In a thick fog in a river, if there is an opportunity of coming to anchor, and an attempt to proceed involves danger to property and possibly to life, it is the duty of those who have the control of the steamer to anchor, notwithstanding the convenience and urgency of passengers (h). Even a ferry steamer, which proceeds in a river in such a fog, takes upon herself all the responsibility of such a course, and her owners must pay if by so doing she injures life or property (i). Those in charge of a vessel in tow were held negligent for not ordering the tug to stop, when proceeding in a dense fog in the river St. Lawrence, when they could not see the river banks (k).

It has been held that a steamer overtaken by a dense fog, when going up river on the flood tide, should dredge up stern first with her anchor down, so that she can be brought up at any moment (l).

Speed of steam vessel in a fog.

594. When a steam vessel is entitled to proceed in a fog, even at sea, she is not justified necessarily in going at the lowest speed at which she is constructed to go; if she cannot go at a moderate speed, she must take the consequences (m).

A steam vessel is not entitled to go at a certain speed merely because it is her lowest continuous speed. If a vessel cannot reduce her speed sufficiently with the continuous action of her engines, and therefore cannot go at a reasonable speed without stopping her engines, it is her duty to stop them (n). There is great difficulty in checking a vessel's speed by stopping and taking the way off from time to time, and it has a tendency to throw the vessel out of her course, and it leads to difficulties, but it must be done (o). And the fact that it involves loss of position and difficulty and delay and taking precautions to haul out from the coast, if approaching it, is no sufficient reason to justify a higher rate of speed (p).

It has been laid down as a rule that a steamer ought not to go so fast in a fog that she cannot pull up in the distance which those on board can see (q). This appears to be in substance an application of the much older rule, which applies in all weathers, that no steamer has a right to navigate at such a rate that it is impossible for her to prevent damage, taking all precautions at the moment she sees (e) The Otter (1874), L. R. 4 A. & E. 203.

(f) The Aguadillana (1889), 6 Asp. M. L. C. 390.
(g) Girolamo (1834), 3 Hag. Adm. 169, 174.
(h) The North American v. The Wild Rose (1865), 2 Mar. L. C. 319.
(i) The Lancashire (1874), L. R. 4 A. & E. 198, 202.
(k) Smith v. St. Lawrence Tow-Boat Co. (1873), L. R. 5 P. C. 308.
(l) The Aguadillana, supra. A steamship of 3,700 tons gross which turned round near the entrance to the sea channels leading to the Mersey in a dense fog and drifted up stern first at about a knot an hour on a flood tide, was not blamed for not anchoring (The Kirby Hall (1883), 8 P. D. 71, 76).
(m) The Irrawaddy (1887), cited in The Campania, [1901] P. 289, 294, C. A.
(n) The Resolution (1889), 6 Asp. M. L. C. 363, 364.
(o) The Irrawaddy, supra.
(p) The Campania, supra, at p. 301.
(q) The Counsellor, [1913] P. 70; see The Campania, supra, at p. 296 (as a general rule, speed such that another vessel cannot be avoided after being seen is excessive).

SECT. 2. Regulations for Preventing Collisions etc.

danger to be possible (r). And in cases where the other vessel when first seen is found to be stopped in the water, or is not going too fast (s), the rule is easy to apply.

It has also been held that when a fog comes on it is the duty of a ship, whether a steamer or sailing vessel, to moderate her speed as much as she can, leaving herself with the capacity of being properly steered; but some margin must be allowed for particular circumstances, and the same rule would not exactly apply in mid-ocean (t).

Speeds held immoderate.

595. Various rates of speed in the case of steam vessels have been condemned by the courts as immoderate in different circumstances (u).

Speed of sailing vessel in fog.

596. A sailing vessel in a fog, when she is rightly under way, is entitled to move at such a rate of speed as will enable her to keep properly under command (a). Moderate speed for a sailing vessel is not the same as for a steamer; for instance, a speed of three knots may be moderate for a steamer when it would be dangerous for a sailing vessel to reduce her speed so far (b). A

(r) The Europa (1851), Pritchard's Admiralty Digest, 3rd ed., p. 223, P. C.; in Admiralty Court (1850), 14 Jur. 627; compare The City of Brooklyn (1876), 1 P. D. 276, 279, C. A.

(s) As in The Counsellor, [1913] P. 70.

(t) The Zadok (1883), 9 P. D. 114, 117.

(u) Seven knots in a thick fog 200 miles eastward of Sandy Hook, where there must frequently be a great number of vessels congregated, has been condemned; see The Pennsylvania (1870), 3 Mar. L. C. 477, P. C. As regards higher speeds, see The Oravia (1905), 10 Asp. M. L. C. 100 (a twin screw steamship off the entrance to the estuary of the river Plate was going at least 10 knots an hour in a fog in which she could not see more than 300 or 400 yards, and her case was held to be hopeless on this account); affirmed on appeal on other points, at ibid., p. 434, in C. A., and at ibid., p. 525, in H. L.; The Campania, [1901] P. 289 (a large twin screw mail and passenger steamship was held to blame for going 9 to 10 knots in a dense fog: it was no justification that this was her lowest continuous speed, as she ought to have stopped at times, though this involved delay and might involve loss of position and hauling out from the coast which she was approaching). Other speeds which have been condemned are:—6 or 7 knots over the ground in the Clyde in very foggy weather (Little v. Burns (1881), 9 R. (Ct. of Sess.) 118); $6\frac{4}{5}$ knots in a dense fog off Shantung Promontory, North China (The Chinkiang, [1908] A. C. 251, P. C.); $6\frac{1}{2}$ knots in a thick fog in the channel between the Mull of Galloway and Port Patrick (The Irrawaddy (1887), cited in The Campania, supra, at p. 294); $6\frac{1}{3}$ knots in a thick fog in the Irish Sea, though the steamer could stop her way at that speed in 400 feet (Oceanic Steam Navigation Co. v. Waterford Steamship Co., The Oceanic (1903), 9 Asp. M. L. C. 378, H. L.); $5\frac{1}{2}$ knots, including $2\frac{1}{2}$ knots tide, in a fog in the North Sea off the coast of Norfolk (The "James Joicey," The "Kostrena," [1908] S. C. 295); 5 knots in a dense fog against a $2\frac{1}{2}$ knot current in the Straits of Gibraltar, when the steamer could have reduced her speed and yet have had steerage way (The Resolution (1889), 6 Asp. M. L. C. 363); 4 to 5 knots in the Baltic when another vessel could not be seen more than a ship's length (The Magna Charta (1871), 1 Asp. M. L. C. 153, P. C.); $4\frac{1}{2}$ knots in a fog in the Bay of Biscay (The Counsellor, supra); 3 knots in a thick fog in the North Sea 4 or 5 miles off the Tyne, when the steamer could have gone at $1\frac{1}{2}$ to 2 knots (The Bromsgrove, [1912] P. 182). On the other hand, 3 to $3\frac{1}{2}$ knots over the ground in a thick fog in the North Sea off Cromer, before a whistle was heard, was held to be a moderate speed (The Ebor (1886), 11 P. D. 25, 28, C. A.).

(a) The N. Strong, [1892] P. 105, 108.

(b) The Elysia (1882), 4 Asp. M. L. C. 540, C. A.

sailing vessel in a fog is entitled in some circumstances to go faster than in others; and whether the position of the vessel is in the open sea, or in a river like the Thames, or off a difficult coast, is a matter to be taken into consideration (c). She must have way on to fill her sails, otherwise she cannot control her movements; but subject to that, in a fog where she cannot see her way, it is her duty to moderate her speed as much as she can while keeping proper steerage way (d). Some margin must be allowed for the particular circumstances, and the same rule does not exactly apply to a sailing vessel in mid-ocean; but the rule applies in a river (e); and it applies in the English Channel when a sailing vessel is passing across a course in which it is expected that numerous vessels may be (f). If another vessel is coming near, a sailing vessel, if under full sail, ought to take sail off till she brings herself as nearly to a standstill as is consistent with being under command (g).

A sailing vessel going at speed in a fog has no right to keep her course and do nothing, merely because she is a sailing vessel (h).

A sailing vessel approaching the coast will not be held in the wrong for lying-to in a fog in order to avoid collision or running ashore (i).

Speeds held immoderate.

597. Various rates of speed have been held to be moderate or immoderate for sailing vessels in different circumstances (k).

(c) The N. Strong, [1892] P. 105, 108.
(d) The Zadok (1883), 9 P. D. 114, 117.
(e) The Beta (1884), 9 P. D. 134, C. A.
(f) The Zadok, supra.
(g) The Dordogne (1884), 10 P. D. 6, 12, C. A.
(h) The Zadok, supra (a barque which was proceeding in a fog at 5 knots in the English Channel, close-hauled in a moderate breeze, ought to have taken precautions against meeting a steamer in a position which required caution, and ought to have had men stationed to work on the braces and put the foresails aback by letting them fly).
(i) The "Attila" (1879), 5 Quebec Law Reports, 340.
(k) A barque in a fog in the English Channel, carrying nearly all the canvas she could, and making more than 5 knots, close-hauled in a moderate breeze, was held not to be going at a moderate speed (The Zadok, supra). A schooner in a dense fog in the Bristol Channel, under all plain sail, was held not to be going at a moderate speed, as she had speed more than enough to keep her under reasonable control (The Beta, supra). On the other hand, a brig in a fog in the North Sea near Flamborough Head, with all sail set except her foretop gallant sail, which justified her speed on the ground that she was going against the tide and that it was essential for her safety to make the best headway she could, was held not to blame, though it might have been more prudent to take in the studding sails; and the collision was held to be an inevitable accident (The Itinerant (1844), 2 Wm. Rob. 236). In a collision in foggy weather off Orfordness a brig was carrying all her sails set except her lower studding sails, and it was found that it would have been more prudent for her to have had no studding sails (The Lord Saumarez (1848), 6 Notes of Cases, 600). So also a schooner on an exceedingly misty night in the North Sea, which justified running under a press of sail on the ground that a very large number of vessels were in her wake, and that she carried these sails to avoid the possibility of any of them running into her, was held not to blame; and the collision was held to be an inevitable accident (The Ebenezer (1843), 2 Wm. Rob. 206). A brig in the Atlantic Ocean under all plain sail, and going 5 knots in a fog, when vessels ought to have been seen more than 200 to 300 yards, was held to be going at a moderate speed (The Elysia (1882), 4 Asp. M. L. C. 540, C. A.). A barque off the Longships at Land's End making about 4

SECT. 2. Regulations for Preventing Collisions etc.

598. A dumb barge in a river, which has no duty to carry an anchor and has no means of bringing up, is entitled to go on in a fog until she comes in contact with something to which she can make fast (l).

Article 16 qualifies other articles.

599. Although article 21 is a general rule, it is qualified by the second paragraph of article 16, so that a steamer which hears a whistle and believes that she is on the starboard bow of the other steamer and is crossing her, must not keep her speed under article 21, but must stop her engines under this article (m), though she may afterwards have to aid in averting collision under the note to article 21 (n); and similarly, when a steamer hears a whistle of another steamer on her starboard bow and the vessels are, in fact, crossing, the first steamer will not be justified in manœuvring to keep out of the way under article 19, but must stop her engines (o); and it has been held that articles 19 and 21 only apply when the vessels are in sight of each other (p).

The object of the rule that a steam vessel shall stop her engines is to lessen the danger (q), to stop as much as possible all sound from throbbing engines, rush of water or rush of air, and give opportunity for accurate observation of sound (r), so as to enable those on board to hear better than when the noise of the engines and propeller is going on, and so as to call their special attention, that they may be more acute to hear a second whistle and to locate it if possible (a).

Vessel in neighbourhood of fog.

600. This rule applies to a vessel even if she is not herself in a fog; for the danger arising from a fog signal forward of the beam may be as great and exactly of the same kind whether the steamer which hears it is herself in a fog or not, and the terms of this rule, that she shall stop her engines, apply in either case (b).

knots in a fog was held not to blame (The N. Strong, [1892] P. 105, 108). But a barque making 7 knots an hour in a fog over fishing grounds on the Banks of Newfoundland was held to be going at an improper speed (The "Frank" (1876), 2 Quebec Law Reports, 295).

(l) The Rose of England (1888), 6 Asp. M. L. C. 304 (a barge came in contact with the fluke of the anchor of a steamer, which was improperly out of the water; the barge was sunk, and the steamer was held alone to blame).

(m) The Cathay (1899), 9 Asp. M. L. C. 35.

(n) Crawford ("Warsaw") v. Granite City Steamship Co., Ltd. ("Linn o' Dee") (1906), 8 F. (Ct. of Sess.) 1013, per Lord STORMONTH-DARLING, at p. 1023. Art. 21 is to be read with art. 16, so far as it will live with it, as to aiding in averting collision in case of thick weather (ibid.).

(o) The King (1911), 27 T. L. R. 524.

(p) Ibid.

(q) The Koning Willem I., [1903] P. 114, 122. As to the duty to stop on hearing the whistle of another vessel before this rule existed, see The Knarwater (1894), 63 L. J. (P.) 65, C. A.; S.S. "Lebanon" (Owners) v. S.S. "Ceto" (Owners), The "Ceto" (1889), 14 App. Cas. 670.

(r) Crawford ("Warsaw") v. Granite City Steamship Co., Ltd. ("Linn o' Dee"), supra, at p. 1021.

(a) The Rondane (1900), 9 Asp. M. L. C. 106.

(b) The Bernard Hall (1902), 9 Asp. M. L. C. 300 (when a steamer was not in a fog and the weather was tolerably clear ahead of her and on her starboard bow, but there was a fog on her port bow out of which a fog whistle came, and she slowed instead of stopping her engines, she was held to blame for a breach of the rule).

"Ascertained."

601. The question at times arises: when is the position of a vessel (the fog signal of which is heard apparently forward of the beam) "ascertained," so as to justify a steamer which hears it in not stopping her engines? "Ascertained" in this connexion seems to mean ascertained not to involve any reasonable risk of collision. And to ascertain for this purpose where another vessel is in a fog seems to mean learning, at any rate to some extent, her distance and bearing and, if under way, her course.

The effect of the decisions under this rule is that, if both vessels are in the open sea, and if nothing is known about the other vessel beforehand, the first fog signal heard apparently forward of the beam cannot tell those on board one vessel enough of the circumstances to make the position of the other vessel "ascertained" under the rule. It is not true to say that because a whistle sounds distant those on the ship hearing it are entitled to treat it as distant; many a case in the Admiralty Court has shown that an apparently distantly sounding whistle has really been close at hand (c). It is not correct, again, to say that, a whistle having been heard, it can be located so as to be certain it is at a precise bearing on the bow; case after case in the Admiralty Court shows that that is not true (d).

But when a peculiar whistle was heard in a fog overtaking and passing ahead, and was then heard for the first time where it would be expected forward of the beam, the position of the vessel was held to be "ascertained" (e); and when the weather had been clear and one steamer had seen another far off in a position of safety, namely, on an opposite course port to port and broadening, and the steamer then passed into a fog and heard a whistle bearing, as expected, from the other vessel, she was held not bound to stop her engines, as the position of the other was "ascertained" (f). When two steamers are in a narrow artificial channel like the Manchester Ship Canal the position of one vessel probably is "ascertained" by the other under this rule (if the rule applies at

(c) The Britannia, [1905] P. 98, 103 (where those on board a steamer in a fog heard the whistles of two other steamers, one on each bow, and while these two vessels were drawing clear to pass astern, they heard a long way off the whistle of a third steamer, with which they came into collision, but did not stop their engines because the whistle sounded a long way off and because the whistles of the first two steamers enabled them to judge the situation and distance of the third steamer, and they afterwards made out her whistle to be one and a half points on their starboard bow; it was held that this was wrong and that the engines of the steamer ought to have been stopped). In this case GORELL BARNES, J., said (at p. 104): "I do not desire to be any party to weakening the effect of that rule. If this court were to hold that, upon hearing a whistle which sounded to be distant, a vessel was justified in not stopping, every case in this court would be that the whistle sounded such a long way off that the ship was justified in not stopping."

(d) The Britannia, supra, at p. 104; The Dordogne (1884), 10 P. D. 6, 11, C. A.; The "James Joicey" v. The "Kostrena," [1908] S. C. 295, 305 (a steamer in a dense fog heard one whistle and believed it to be broadish on the port bow, and she had several other vessels around her blowing foghorns; it was held that these circumstances were no excuse for the steamer porting her helm without stopping her engines).

(e) The Geelong, Shipping Gazette (1908), 5th March, C. A.

(f) S.S. Oravia (Owners) v. S.S. Nereus (Owners), The Oravia (1907), 10 Asp. M. L. C. 525 H. L.

SECT. 2. Regulations for Preventing Collisions etc.

all in a place so shut off from the sea) on hearing the first whistle, so that the steamer need not be to blame for not stopping her engines (g).

"Shall, so far as the circumstances of the case admit, stop her engines."

602. Those in charge of a steamer will have to show very strong circumstances to justify themselves if they do not stop their engines on hearing such a whistle (h). If stopping the engines would cause a danger of stranding or probable risk of collision with another vessel, this would naturally be a good reason against it, but such cases are only likely to occur in confined waters, and in the open sea it is not easy to imagine circumstances in which a vessel could not stop her engines (i).

When in the case of tug and tow the tug can without difficulty stop her engines sufficiently to let the way run off her tow it is her duty to do so (k).

Failure to stop.

603. If a steamer fails to stop under this rule, it will be difficult for her to escape liability on the ground that she stopped at a later period for a considerable time, and that therefore her failure to stop at the first whistle made no difference; because if she had stopped in the first instance she might not have reached the place of collision, and the results would have been altogether different (l).

When those on board a steamer hear the first fog signal (m) of another vessel, the circumstances may be such that articles 22 and 23 apply, so that it will be the duty of the steamer, if the circumstances of the case admit, to avoid crossing ahead of the other vessel, and, if approaching her, and if necessary, to reverse her engines (n). But a steamer in a fog, hearing the first whistle of (g) The Hare, [1904] P. 331.

(h) It is a bad excuse for not doing so that another vessel is following close astern (The Rondane (1900), 9 Asp. M. L. C. 106), even if the steamer herself is loaded aft with dynamite (The Star of New Zealand (1899), Shipping Gazette, 7th November), because stopping engines does not at once stop a vessel's way, and it will be the duty of the vessel following to check her speed. It is a worse excuse that there is a vessel at some distance away on the quarter (The Britannia, [1905] P. 98, 102). It was held to be no excuse for not stopping her engines on the part of a vessel stemming the tide at the mouth of the Humber in a dense fog that there was a vessel at anchor 100 yards astern of her (The Ariadne (1911), 27 T. L. R. 304).

(i) The Rondane, supra.

(k) The Challenge and Duc d'Aumale, [1905] P. 198, C. A.

(l) The Britannia, supra, at p. 104.

(m) As to the navigation of a steamer after hearing the signal of two prolonged blasts from another steamer, see under art. 15; pp. 413, 414, ante.

(n) The Merthyr (1898), 8 Asp. M. L. C. 475, 477. A steamer in a dense fog in the North Sea was on a course of N. by W. ½ W., and the wind was about S., and a foghorn sounding a single blast was heard on the port bow; it was held that those on the steamer must have known that the sailing vessel was crossing their bows on the starboard tack, and that as a foghorn cannot carry far, especially against the wind, the sailing vessel could not be very far from them; and it was held that in such a position, which is a common position, the steamer ought at once to have reversed her engines and taken the whole of her way off. The court did not accept the excuse given by the master of the steamer for not reversing at once, namely, that he was afraid that the sailing vessel might be more ahead of him than she appeared to be, and that she might cant towards his vessel if she got more towards the starboard bow, and that he did not know her exact position; and the steamer was held to blame on this account alone, another steamer on her starboard bow, is not bound to treat her as a crossing vessel and therefore reverse her engines (a).

"Navigate with caution until danger of collision is over."

604. A steamer having stopped her engines must keep them stopped, until she can, by hearing further signals, ascertain the position of the other vessel (b). But the object of the rule is not to keep two vessels permanently stationary in a fog ; move they often must, even in the densest fog, as when they know they are near a dangerous shoal (c). A steamer will be justified in some circumstances in going slow ahead when she hears a second whistle (d).

On the other hand, when the indications for a considerable time are that the other vessel is approaching and not broadening, the steamer ought not to proceed and keep on even at dead slow, but ought to stop, at any rate from time to time, when by giving an occasional touch ahead she can keep on her course and under control (e).

Duty to reverse.

605. The duty of a steamer to reverse when another vessel approaches dangerously close in a fog appears to be the same under this article as it was when the article as to reversing (f) applied to steamers in fog. A steamer ought to be brought to a standstill at once by reversing when in a dense fog the first whistle of an approaching steamer is heard in close proximity on the bow (g). When one steamer is approaching near another steamer in although her engines had been stopped on hearing the first blast of the foghorn, and were reversed on hearing the second blast.

(a) Crawford ("Warsaw") v. Granite City Steamship Co., Ltd. ("Linn o' Dee") (1906), 8 F. (Ct. of Sess.) 1013.

(b) The Rondane (1900), 9 Asp. M. L. C. 106.

(c) The Vaderland (1907), Shipping Gazette, 28th November, H. L.

(d) A steamer going dead slow off the Goodwin Sands in a dense fog heard a whistle about two points on her starboard bow, apparently a long way off, and stopped her engines, and about a minute later heard it a second time three to four points on that bow, and then went slow ahead again, as she was losing steerage way ; she was held to have navigated with caution in that place, where she might at any moment have had to manœuvre for another vessel ; see The Vaderland, supra ; and in the Admiralty Court (1907), Shipping Gazette, 27th February. A steamer in foggy weather off the coast of Spain, going slow against a strong head sea, heard a bright-toned whistle a little on the port bow, and stopped for five minutes, and then, hearing the same whistle again slightly on the starboard bow, went dead slow ahead for ten minutes without hearing anything, raising her speed to about a knot or a knot and a half ; she was held to have navigated with caution, as against such sea it was prudent to keep the vessel under command ; see The Byron (1905), Shipping Gazette, 9th February.

(e) The Aras, [1907] P. 28 (in the English Channel in foggy weather, when the court found the indications were not such as to show distinctly and unequivocally that, if both vessels continued to do what they appeared to be doing, they would pass clear without risk of collision, the steamer proceeding and keeping on at dead slow was held to blame). When a steamer in a fog had brought herself to a standstill in the water before she heard a fog signal, it was held that while she was entitled on hearing a whistle on the port bow to get such way on her as would put her under command, she was not justified in keeping on for four minutes at thirty-five revolutions with helm hard-a-port (The Earl of Dumfries (1885), 5 Asp. M. L. C. 329, n.).

(f) Sea Regulations, 1863, art. 16 ; Sea Regulations, 1880 and 1884, art. 18.

(g) The Kirby Hall (1883), 8 P. D. 71.

SECT. 2. Regulation for Preventing Collisions etc.

a dense fog, and there is a succession of whistles, and the indications to the officer in charge of one steamer are that the other is coming substantially nearer, and he cannot tell the direction in which she is coming, it has been held that before the other steamer comes in sight the engines of this steamer ought to be reversed until her way is stopped (h). A steamer ought to reverse when in a fog several whistles are heard on the bow from a steamer approaching in the vicinity and not broadening (i). When two steamships invisible to each other in a thick fog find themselves gradually drawing nearer to each other until they are within a few ship's lengths, each is bound to reverse unless the fog signals of the other distinctly and unequivocally indicate that she will pass clear without involving risk of collision (k). A steamer ought to reverse in a fog when another steamer approaches her on the bow within what would be hailing distance if they were stopped, and ought not to wait till she comes in sight (a). When in a fog the whistle of a vessel is heard ahead, the officer in charge of a steamer should act sooner than if heard from any other quarter, and should take extreme precautions; and if a second whistle shows the vessel is approaching, probably it is his duty to reverse (b).

Keeping course.

It is a sound rule that when two vessels are approaching one another in a fog without any sufficient indication to justify action, neither vessel ought to alter her course for the other, but each, while complying with the regulations as to speed, should keep the course on which she is proceeding (c). What indications are sufficient to warrant a change of course for the other vessel is a question of fact which must depend on the circumstances of each case (d). There is no rule that a vessel having only the indication

(h) The Dordogne (1884), 10 P. D. 6, 11, 12, C. A.; The Ebor (1886), 11 P. D. 25, 29, C. A.; S.S. "Lebanon" (Owners) v. S.S. "Ceto" (Owners), The "Ceto" (1889), 14 App. Cas. 670; Morton v. Hutchinson, The "Frankland" and The "Kestrel" (1872), L. R. 4 P. C. 529; The Kirby Hall (1883), 8 P. D. 71.

(i) The John McIntyre (1884), 9 P. D. 135, C. A.

(k) S.S. "Lebanon" (Owners) v. S.S. "Ceto" (Owners), The "Ceto," supra, at p. 686.

(a) Morton v. Hutchinson, The "Frankland" and The "Kestrel," supra, at p. 534.

(b) The Ebor supra, at pp. 27, 29.

(c) S.S. "Vindomora" (Owners) v. Lamb and S.S. "Haswell" (Owners and Owners of Cargo etc.), The "Vindomora," [1891] A. C. 1, 4, 8.

(d) Ibid., at p. 8. Before 1897, when the duty to stop on hearing a whistle forward of the beam was laid down by the second paragraph of this article, the question arose in some cases as to whether a steamer was right in altering her course on hearing the first whistle of another steamer. When a steamer going dead slow in a dense fog in the North Sea heard a whistle three and a half to four points on her starboard bow, and apparently from half a mile to a mile distant, she was held not to blame for starboarding her helm on hearing this first whistle (S.S. "Vindomora" (Owners) v. Lamb and S.S. "Haswell" (Owners and Owners of Cargo etc.), The "Vindomora," supra; compare Morton v. Hutchinson, The "Frankland" and The "Kestrel," supra, at p. 533). But when in the Straits of Gibraltar in a dense fog a steamer was proceeding to the northward of the ordinary course and starboarded on hearing the first whistle two and a half points, as she alleged, on her starboard bow though she ought to have known that in all probability she was crossing the course of other vessels, her starboarding was held to be wrong (The Resolution (1889), 6 Asp. M. L. C. 363). As to keeping the wrong side of

of a single whistle is never justified in altering her course for the other vessel (e).

606. The steering and sailing rules in the Sea Regulations, 1910, are as follows:—

Steering and sailing rules.

Steering and Sailing Rules.

Preliminary—Risk of Collision.

Risk of collision can, when circumstances permit, be ascertained by carefully watching the compass bearing of an approaching vessel. If the bearing does not appreciably change, such risk should be deemed to exist. (1897)

Article 17 (f).

Article 17.

When two sailing vessels are approaching one another, so as to involve risk of collision, one of them shall keep out of the way of the other, as follows, viz.:— (1884)

(a) A vessel which is running free shall keep out of the way of a vessel which is close-hauled. (1884)

(b) A vessel which is close-hauled on the port tack shall keep out of the way of a vessel which is close-hauled on the starboard tack. (1884)

(c) When both are running free, with the wind on different sides, the vessel which has the wind on the port side shall keep out of the way of the other. (1884)

(d) When both are running free, with the wind on the same side, the vessel which is to windward shall keep out of the way of the vessel which is to leeward. (1884)

(e) A vessel which has the wind aft shall keep out of the way of the other vessel. (1884)

607. Under the steering and sailing rules, in two cases (article 18, end on, and article 23, narrow channel), both vessels have to manœuvre, but the scheme of the rest of the rules is to pick out one of the two vessels, throw upon her the general duty of keeping out of the way, dictate certain manœuvres which she is to make, and oblige the other vessel to keep her course and speed. In general.

In manœuvring under these rules, it is an accepted principle that each vessel is bound to act on the presumption that the rules will be obeyed by the other, otherwise the confusion would be endless (g). And although one vessel has been disobeying the rule, for a river in a fog in violation of a local rule, see Russian S.S. "Yourri" v. British S.S. "Spearman" (1885), 10 App. Cas. 276, P. C.; The Raithwaite Hall (1874), 2 Asp. M. L. C. 210.

(e) S.S. "Vindomora" (Owners) v. Lamb and S.S. "Haswell" (Owners and Owners of Cargo etc.), The "Vindomora," [1891] A. C. 1, 4, 8. In a dense fog in the North Sea the master of a steamer heard the fog signal of a brigantine which he knew was crossing his course from port to starboard, and on hearing it again more ahead and nearer he reversed his engines and hard-a-ported his helm; he was held not to blame for hard-a-porting, as it was done to keep his ship straight, and was therefore advisable; see The Merthyr (1898), 8 Asp. M. L. C. 475.

(f) These rules for sailing vessels were introduced in the Rules of 1884, in their present form, except that "vessel" was substituted in 1897 for "ship." But in some respects they may be traced back to the Trinity House Regulations, 1840 (see Table in Appendix, post), and even earlier; see note (p), p. 372, ante.

(g) The Mangerton (1856), Sw. 120, 124; The "Jesmond" and The "Earl of Elgin" (1871), L. R. 4 P. C. 1 (the anticipation of a default of instance, to keep out of the way, the other vessel has generally a right to expect that she will not continue in her obstinacy (h).

SECT. 2. Regulations for Preventing Collisions etc.

Conflict of rules.

608. Occasionally some of the steering and sailing rules come into conflict with one another. Two rules may apply at the same time in such circumstances that they conflict, and then one rule must override the other. Thus where both the crossing and the narrow channel rules apply, the crossing rule may override the narrow channel rule, and then the steamer having the other on her starboard side should keep out of the way and not cross ahead on to her starboard side, while the other steamer, instead of porting on to her own starboard side, should keep her course (i).

Again, when one rule has applied, there is the question whether a conflicting rule can come into force. On this point it is certain that when the overtaking rule has once applied, so as to cast on one vessel the duty to keep out of the way, it continues to apply till she is finally past and clear, and the crossing rule cannot come in so as to shift the duty of keeping out of the way (k). And the converse, that the crossing rule cannot be superseded by the overtaking rule, so as to shift the burden of keeping out of the way, seems to be true, as otherwise there would be confusion. But it cannot be said that the same principle would always apply to the rules for sailing vessels, when there might be changes of wind.

Effect of wrongful act of one of two approaching vessels.

609. It seems clear also that when vessels are approaching each other in a condition of safety, one vessel cannot by wrongful action throw the duty of keeping out of the way on the other vessel under these rules. For instance, if two steamers are approaching starboard to starboard, and one wrongly ports, the other vessel's duty appears to be regulated by the dictates of good seamanship and not by article 19 etc. But a steamer approaching another in a condition of safety port to port may bring in the crossing rule by wrongly starboarding, so as to throw on herself the duty of keeping out of the way, and give the other vessel the benefit of keeping her course and speed subject to the note in article 21 (l).

the other vessel in not porting under the end-on rule was not an element which could be reasonably imported into the risk of collision); and see p. 365, ante.

(h) The Beryl (1884), 9 P. D. 137, 142, C. A. In Wilson, Sons & Co. v. Currie, [1894] A. C. 116, 119, 120, two steamers were approaching end on or nearly so, and the first blew her whistle and ported and saw the second steamer coming towards her and not porting, and so again blew her whistle and again ported, and did not reverse her engines till afterwards; it was held not to be true that the first steamer ought to have seen that there was risk of collision when she saw the other steamer not porting and herself ported again, as she was not bound to assume that, though the other steamer disregarded the first whistle, she would pay no attention to the second.

(i) See under art. 19, pp. 436 et seq., post; The Leverington (1886), 11 P. D. 117, C. A.; The Ashton, [1905] P. 21. Compare The Annie, [1909] P. 176 (two sailing vessels were beating down a river tacking from side to side, and one vessel gradually came up with the other; the question of which should keep out of the way was held to be decided by the port tack rule, art. 17 (b), and not by the overtaking rule, art. 24).

(k) Art. 24; and this was so under the less complete terms of art. 20 of 1884 (The Molière, [1893] P. 217).

(l) See under art. 21, p. 445, post; The Boynton (1898), Shipping Gazette, Circumstances authorising departure from rule.

610. Again, sometimes the circumstances of the case may make a departure from these rules necessary under article 27, or may prevent a rule coming into operation at all. Thus the narrow channel rule (article 25) will not come into operation when vessels have to manœuvre for one another in a very narrow place, unless there is adequate room for them to pass at that place, but the incoming vessel may have to give way to the outgoing vessel (m). Or again, neither the narrow channel rule nor the crossing rule may come into operation in very confined waters, but it may be right on the footing of good seamanship for the vessel going against the tide to give way to the other (n).

"Risk of collision."

611. What constitutes risk of collision must always be decided according to the circumstances of each case (o). It is a matter partly of nautical experience (p) and partly of law.

On the one hand, when two vessels are approaching to pass at all near to one another, there is always a possible chance or risk of collision. This is not the "risk of collision" contemplated in the rules. It never was intended that a vessel should begin to change her course because there is a possibility of collision (q). If two steamers are meeting one another end on or nearly end on so as to involve risk of collision, and one of them at a proper distance ports sufficiently to put her on a course to pass clear of the other port to port, the "risk of collision" referred to in the rules is determined, so that she is no longer approaching the other so as to involve "risk of collision" (r); though in these circumstances the "risk of collision" will be revived again if the other steamer starboards (s). Two vessels are not approaching so as to involve "risk of collision" when the giving-way vessel is in sight of the other vessel, but has not reached the point where she would manœuvre for her (t).

21st January; The Ornen (1900), 16 T. L. R. 149, C. A.; reversed on the facts (1901), 17 T. L. R. 359, H. L.

(m) Taylor v. Burger (1898), 8 Asp. M. L. C. 364, H. L.; The Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse, [1907] P. 259, C. A.

(n) The Prince Leopold de Belgique, [1909] P. 103.

(o) The Mangerton (1856), Sw. 120, 123.

(p) Compare The Mangerton, supra.

(q) The Ericsson (1856), Sw. 38; H.M.S. Inflexible (1856), Sw. 32, 35; The "Sylph" (1854), 2 Ecc. & Ad. 75, 83 (a rule referring to risk of collision does not apply "where two vessels are sailing properly, and there is no chance of a collision").

(r) The "Jesmond" and The "Earl of Elgin" (1871), L. R. 4 P. C. 1.

(s) Ocean Steamship Co., S.S. "Hebe" (Owners) v. Apcar & Co., S.S. "Arratoon Apcar" (Owners), The "Arratoon Apcar" (1889), 15 App. Cas. 37, P. C.

(t) The Bellanoch, [1907] P. 170, 180, C. A.; compare The Banshee (1887), 6 Asp. M. L. C. 221, C. A. (a vessel which was being overtaken ported four minutes before the collision, and when there was a distance of 800 yards between her and the overtaking vessel; she was held to have acted before there was "risk of collision" and before the regulation that she should keep her course had begun to apply); see also similar cases cited under art. 21, p. 446, post. As to risk of collision in a river, where there is a rule for vessels approaching each other with risk of collision to pass port to port, and another rule for a vessel navigating against the tide to wait above a point, see The Libra (1881), 6 P. D. 139, C. A. In effect, by the rules in the M. S. Act, 1854, a steamship or sailing ship meeting another ship, so that if both were to continue their courses they would pass so near as to involve risk of collision, was

SECT. 2. Regulations for Preventing Collisions etc.

On the other hand, a time comes when the risk of collision is immediate or imminent. This, again, is not the moment to look at; it is too late. The rules referring to "risk of collision" are all applicable "at a time when the risk of collision can be avoided," and not "when the risk of collision is already fixed and determined" (a).

The time to look at is, therefore, intermediate between the time when collision is a mere possibility and the time when the risk is immediate. The rules referring to risk of collision apply as soon as there is a reasonable probability of risk of collision (b).

The object of these rules is not merely to prevent collision (c), but to prevent the risk of collision (d) and, if it has arisen, to terminate it.

The risk must appear.

612. The "risk of collision" contemplated by these rules means a state of things which calls for action. It can only apply when one vessel has come within sight or sound, or has in some way knowledge, of another vessel; the conduct of persons in unknown circumstances cannot be provided for (e). The consideration must always be not the mere fact that the terms of one of these rules applied, or in other words that there was risk of collision, but whether the circumstances were such that it was or ought to have been present to the mind of the person in charge that there would be risk if nothing was done to prevent it (f). The question is what ought to have appeared to be the facts to a navigating officer of ordinary skill and reasonable care in the circumstances in which he was placed (g).

How risk may arise.

613. The risk of collision may arise from uncertainty as to the course of the other vessel (h) or as to the action of those on bound to port her helm; a sailing ship running up the English Channel saw the green light of a steamer between three and four points on her starboard bow distant about a mile and a half, and as a matter of precaution starboarded her helm; she was held justified (The Sylph (1857), Sw. 233).

(a) The Beryl (1884), 9 P. D. 137, 140, C. A.

(b) The Cleopatra (1856), Sw. 135, 136; The Dumfries (1856), Sw. 63, 65; The Duke of Sussex (1841), 1 Wm. Rob. 274, 276 (whenever there is a reasonable probability that by standing on a collision may ensue); The "Sylph" (1854), 2 Ecc. & Ad. 75, 83 (as soon as the risk of collision has become a reasonable chance).

(c) The Beryl, supra, at p. 138.

(d) Ibid.

(e) Ibid., at pp. 138, 139.

(f) The Bellanoch, [1907] P. 170, C. A., per KENNEDY, L.J., at p. 192; The Beryl, supra, at p. 139.

(g) The Beryl, supra, at p. 139; The Benares (1883), 9 P. D. 16, 17, C. A.; Baker v. "Theodore H. Rand" (Owners), The "Theodore H. Rand" (1887), 12 App. Cas. 247, 250 (a sailing vessel at night was running free, and the navigating officer of the other ship, who did not know that she was running free, and therefore that the risk of collision existed, and who acted for her as close-hauled, was held not to blame).

(h) Thus, a steamer going eight or nine knots observed a sailing vessel ahead distant about three miles and apparently coming end on, with no light visible, and the steamer ported for her; it was held that this was wrong, and that the steamer should either have slackened her speed on the ground that there was risk of collision, or should have waited, before taking the decided step of porting, to ascertain on which side of her the sailing vessel was going (Beal v. Marchais, The "Bougainville" and

board (i). If in all probability a vessel has done something which, if in fact she has done it, will produce risk of collision, a person who is aware of the fact of this probability of risk ought to consider that there is risk (k).

Cutting fine or delaying.

614. The vessel which has to act for risk of collision must not cut things fine or delay her action; if there is a reasonable chance of collision, that is sufficient to call for action (l). For instance, it is the duty of the giving-way vessel to make certain of avoiding the other, and she has no right to make a nice calculation which must be attended with some risk (m). A vessel is not entitled to run the matter very fine, and to go on till the last moment before stopping and reversing (n).

Duty to observe bearing of approaching vessel.

615. A navigating officer ought to ascertain in the daytime whether an approaching vessel keeps the same bearing from his vessel, or whether her bearing narrows or broadens, and from this he ought to draw conclusions as to the risk of collision. The bearing of the other vessel can be ascertained accurately by compass. If the bearing remains the same long enough, as the two vessels continue approaching, it is certain that there must be a collision, and that is why the preliminary paragraph before article 17 was put in (o). If the bearing narrows, this means that the other vessel is crossing ahead. And if the bearing begins to narrow when the vessels are at a short distance apart, there will usually be considerable risk of collision.

Similar conclusions ought to be drawn at night from a light on a vessel remaining on the same bearing or narrowing (p). It is the duty of those who are navigating a ship to observe a light on a vessel approaching them, to see whether it appreciably changes its position. If they see a masthead light, they are not left to wait until

The "James C. Stevenson" (1873), L. R. 5 P. C. 316, 323; The James Watt (1844), 2 Wm. Rob. 270 (a steamer going down a river at night and discovering a sailing vessel coming up with an adverse wind ought not immediately to port her helm before she discovers what course the other vessel is upon, but will act with greater prudence by slackening speed). A steamer approaching another, of which she could only see the smoke, was held to blame for not slackening speed, as she could not tell whether the other steamer was nearly end on or crossing or at what speed she was going (The Rona, The Ava (1873), 2 Asp. M. L. C. 182, P. C.).

(i) The master of one steamer saw the white and green lights of another steamer on her starboard bow coming more into line, apparently showing that she was porting, which if done would produce risk of collision; it was held that he was bound to consider that there was risk of collision (The Stanmore (1885), 10 P. D. 134, C. A.).

(k) The Stanmore, supra.

(l) Compare The "Sylph" (1854), 2 Ecc. & Ad. 75, 82; and in this case with reference to the risk of collision under the port helm rule in the M. S. Act, 1854 (see Table in Appendix, post), it was said: "This chance of collision is not to be scanned by a point or two."

(m) The Colonia (1844), 3 Notes of Cases, 13, n. (in daylight and fair weather a brig with the wind free kept her course to within a cable and a half of another brig, while she had the power to adopt, long before the collision, manœuvres which would render it impossible; she was held to blame).

(n) Wilson, Sons & Co. v. Currie, [1894] A. C. 116, 120.

(o) The City of Berlin, [1908] P. 110, 120, C. A.

(p) Ibid., at p. 123.

they see a green or red light, but they ought to look and see if the masthead light alters its position, and they should deal with it by compass bearing (q).

Observation of relative position of steamer's lights.

616. Conclusions also as to risk of collision may be drawn with certainty from the additional white light of a steamer coming more into line with, or farther apart from, her masthead light. With regard to the conclusions as to risk of collision which are sometimes drawn from a side light coming more into line with the masthead light, the fact that the side light of an approaching vessel is drawing more into line with the masthead light may mean that she is altering her course towards the observer's vessel and causing risk of collision, or it may mean that she is proceeding to pass clear (r). It depends entirely upon the relative position of the masthead and coloured lights whether the closing together of the masthead light and the coloured light shows risk of collision, and a master who does not draw the conclusion that there is risk of collision merely from such closing together is not necessarily to blame on that account (a).

"Close-hauled," "running free," and "wind aft."

617. Of the three descriptions of vessels contained in article 17, namely, close-hauled, running free, and having the wind aft, no one is applicable with rigid exactitude; but vessels the courses of which vary materially may nevertheless fall under the same definition. In each case it is a question of fact, to be determined upon the evidence or balance of evidence, to which of the three definitions the vessel most nearly answers (b). In each case the solution may be approached by comparing the evidence upon the trim of the sails, the mode of working the ship and the direction of the wind. Testimony as to the actual trim of a vessel's sails, and as to the mode in which she was being navigated, being evidence of facts and doings capable of accurate description, which cannot without false swearing be to any great extent misrepresented, will generally

(q) The President Lincoln, [1911] P. 248, 251.

(r) The lights cannot come quite into line to a vessel ahead. The distance between any two lights looks greatest when a line joining them is at right angles to the gaze of the observer. Most steamships carry their side lights not abreast of but abaft the masthead light. In such a case the masthead and side light, to a vessel approaching on a parallel course from almost ahead will at first come farther apart, then for a short time probably remain at about the same distance, and will afterwards draw more into line as the vessel comes past the observer's vessel. If the side light is carried forward of the masthead light, the two lights will close in more quickly to a vessel approaching on a parallel course, and will actually come into line some time before the vessel carrying them is abeam of the observer's vessel.

(a) The Albis (1895), 8 Asp. M. L. C. 92 (decided under the Sea Regulations, 1884). On the other hand, under the same Regulations, when two steamers were green to green, and the master of one steamer concluded from the white and green lights of the other steamer coming more into line that this steamer was altering her course towards his vessel, which was the case, it was held that he ought to have considered that there was risk of collision and acted accordingly, and that he was to blame for not doing so (The Stanmore (1885), 10 P. D. 134, C. A.). But it may be that he would not be held to blame under the present Regulations if the other steamer had not indicated her alteration by whistle, as she would now be bound to do under art. 28.

(b) The "Privateer" (1881), 9 L. R. Ir. 105, 111, C. A.

be found more trustworthy than evidence purporting to state with mathematical accuracy the point of the compass from which the wind was blowing. It must be much more difficult to observe the precise angle at which the wind is crossing the ship than to observe her condition and working. The wind may be variable, compasses vary somewhat, the ship must be somewhat unsteady, and different ships vary considerably in their ability to keep close to the wind. For these reasons greater weight should be given to evidence as to the ships themselves than to statements of the direction of the wind by compass, or inferences from its direction at different times and places (c).

(a) . . . "running free."

618. A vessel "running free" may be distinguished from a vessel "close-hauled" (d); but no clear line has been or apparently can be drawn between a vessel "running free" and a vessel which "has the wind aft" under rule (e) (e).

Duty of vessel running free.

619. Under this rule a vessel running free ought to make certain of avoiding the other, and not make a nice calculation attended with risk (f). Her duty is not to shave too closely, and the question is whether she acted as soon and effectually as she ought to have done (g).

By article 22 (h) the vessel running free, like all other vessels which have to keep out of the way under these rules, must, if the circumstances of the case admit, avoid crossing ahead of the other vessel.

(b) . . . "close-hauled."

620. A sailing vessel is "close-hauled" within this rule although she is not jammed close to the wind, that is to say, not as close-hauled as she can be. If she is half a point off this, she is still clearly close-hauled, and perhaps so if a point or a point and a half off (i). A barque heading within seven points of the wind has

(c) The "Privateer" (1881), 9 L. R. Ir. 105, 111, 112, C. A.

(d) As to "close-hauled," see the text, infra.

(e) The "Privateer," supra, at pp. 119, 120. When a vessel was steering W. by N. with the wind E.N.E. or S.E., it was held that she was "running free" within rule (a), and "had the wind aft" within rule (e). Under the Sea Regulations, 1863, when a vessel running free in the English Channel was being overtaken by a vessel close-hauled, the rule (art. 12) was held to apply which directed the vessel running free to keep out of the way, and not the rule (art. 17) which directed the overtaking vessel to do so; see The Peckforton Castle (1877), 2 P. D. 222; affirmed (1878), 3 P. D. 11, C. A., where, on appeal, the court found that in fact the vessel close-hauled was not overtaking, but was on the bow of the other vessel, so that the point did not then arise; and apparently the same decision would be given under the present Regulations; compare The Annie, [1909] P. 176.

(f) The Colonia (1844), 3 Notes of Cases, 13, n. (when in daylight and fair weather a brig with the wind free kept her course to within a cable and a half of another brig, in the hope that the vessels might pass each other, she was held to blame).

(g) The John Brotherick (1844), 8 Jur. 276; The Mobile (1856), Sw. 127, P. C. (when a vessel running free and crossing a schooner and brig, which were on her port side both close-hauled on the starboard tack, kept on so long that she was unable, on the schooner coming round in stays, to avoid the brig, she was held to blame).

(h) See pp. 453, 454, post.

(i) The Earl Wemyss (1889), 6 Asp. M. L. C. 407, C. A. A vessel is close-hauled although she could be put a quarter of a point nearer to the wind (Chadwick v. City of Dublin Steam Packet Co. (1856), 6 E. & B. 771, 777).

SECT. 2. Regulations for Preventing Collisions etc.

been held to be close-hauled, or sufficiently close-hauled to be within this rule (k); and the same has been held of a barque which was sailing not more than a point or two free with the wind at farthest on her beam (l). On the other hand, it appears that a vessel which is sailing two points or more off the wind is not close-hauled (m); and a brig on a course of S. by E. with the wind W. by N. has been held not to be close-hauled (n).

Duty of keep-on vessel.

621. When any of the rules (a)—(e) of article 17 applies, so that one vessel has to keep out of the way, it is the duty of the other vessel under article 21 to keep her course and speed, though when, in consequence of thick weather or other causes, such vessel finds herself so close that collision cannot be avoided by the action of the giving-way vessel alone, she also must take such action as will best aid to avert the collision (o). The giving-way vessel and the keep-on vessel must also, under article 27, have due regard to all dangers of navigation and collision, and to any special circumstances which may render a departure from these rules necessary in order to avoid immediate danger (p).

(b) ... "Close-hauled on the port tack."

622. A vessel hove-to on the port tack appears to be "close-hauled on the port tack" within this rule (q), and bound to keep out of the way.

(k) The "Singapore" and the "Hebe" (1866), L. R. 1 P. C. 378. A ship sailing within seven and a half points of the wind has been described as close-hauled (The Breadalbane (1881), 7 P. D. 186).

(l) The "Privateer" (1881), 9 L. R. Ir. 105, C. A.

(m) The Earl Wemys, (1889), 6 Asp. M. L. C. 407, C. A. A practice of sailors to call a ship in the trade winds close-hauled when she is really free does not make her close-hauled within the rule (The Earl Wemys, supra).

(n) The "Blenheim" (1854), 1 Ecc. & Ad. 285, 287. It was held under art. 12 of the Sea Regulations, 1863, that a vessel running free ought to keep out of the way of a vessel lying-to in the ordinary sense and making little way or almost stationary; and when a brig was lying-to on the starboard tack with her foreyard aback, driving to leeward at between two and three knots an hour, a vessel running free, which ought to have seen her in time to avoid her, was held alone to blame; see The Eleanor v. The Alma (1865), 2 Mar. L. C. 240.

(o) As to this duty under art. 21, see that article and the cases there cited, pp. 445 et seq., post.

(p) As to this duty under art. 27, see that article and the cases there cited, pp. 471 et seq., post. The duty of the close-hauled vessel to keep her course only arises if those in charge of her with ordinary skill and reasonable care could have ascertained that the other vessel was running free, and therefore that the rule applied. And when at night the navigating officer of a ship close-hauled on the port tack believed that a vessel crossing his course was close-hauled on the starboard tack, when she was in fact running free, and put his helm hard-a-port so that a collision occurred, he was held not to have been negligent, as it was not shown that with ordinary skill and reasonable care he could have ascertained that she was running free (Baker v. "Theodore H. Rand" (Owners), The "Theodore H. Rand" (1887), 12 App. Cas. 247); and see p. 361, ante.

(q) A vessel hove-to on the port tack is usually lying as close to the wind as she can, and vessels hove-to on the port tack are in fact in the habit of keeping out of the way of vessels close-hauled on the starboard tack. A ship hove-to on the port tack was held bound to keep out of the way of a ship close-hauled on the starboard tack under the Sea Regulations, 1863, art. 12: "When two ships are crossing so as to involve risk of collision, then, if they have the wind on different sides, the ship with the wind on the port side shall keep out of the way of the ship with the wind on the

A vessel close-hauled (r) on the port tack will not be excused for not seeing and keeping out of the way of a vessel close-hauled on the starboard tack on the ground that she was furling her sail (a).

When two vessels are beating down a river and one is overhauling the other, and they meet in mid-river, the vessel overhauling being on the starboard tack and the other vessel on the port tack, the overtaking rule (article 24) does not apply, but article 17 (b) applies, and the vessel on the port tack which is being overhauled must keep out of the way of the other (b).

(c), (d) .. "running free."

623. A vessel "running free" in rules (c) and (d) has the same meaning as in rule (a) (c).

(e) .. "the wind aft."

624. A vessel may "have the wind aft" although it is not blowing precisely at right angles to her beam (d). A vessel which had the wind almost certainly not more than three points from her course, and in all probability more nearly aft, was held to have the wind aft (e). If the wind is abaft the beam and at any less angle than forty-five degrees with the line of the vessel's keel, it is a wind aft within the meaning of the rule (f).

Article 18.

625. Article 18 of the Sea Regulations, 1910, is as follows:—

Article 18 (g).

When two steam vessels are meeting end on, or nearly end on, so as to involve risk of collision, each shall alter her starboard side," unless one is close-hauled and the other free (The Rosalie (1880), 5 P. D. 245). See also The Eleanor v. The Alma (1865), 2 Mar. L. C. 240, cited in note (n), p. 432, ante. In The James (1856), Sw. 60, P. C., two vessels lying-to and meeting were held to be within the rule in M. S. Act, 1854, s. 296 (see Table in Appendix, post), and each was bound to port her helm. Similarly in The "Blenheim" (1854), 1 Ecc. & Ad. 285, a vessel lying-to on the port tack with her hands furling the sails in tempestuous weather was held not to be excused from porting her helm under the rule in the Steam Navigation Act, 1851 (14 & 15 Vict. c. 79), s. 27 (see Table in Appendix, post), to avoid a vessel close-hauled on the starboard tack.

(r) As to the meaning of "close-hauled," see pp. 431, 432, ante.

(a) The City of Carlisle (1864), Brown. & Lush. 363, 366.

(b) The Annie, [1909] P. 176; compare The Peckforton Castle (1877), 2 P. D. 222; affirmed (1878), 3 P. D. 11, C. A.; see note (e), p. 431, ante.

(c) See p. 431, ante.

(d) The "Privateer" (1881), 9 L. R. Ir. 105, 111, C. A. (decided under the Sea Regulations, 1880, art. 14, which was practically in the same terms as the present art. 17 (e)).

(e) The "Privateer," supra, at p. 116.

(f) Ibid., at p. 117. In The Spring (1866), L. R. 1 A. & E. 99 (decided under the Sea Regulations, 1863, art. 12), a sloop which was sailing with the wind four points from right astern was held to be a ship which "has the wind aft."

(g) This article, which reached almost its present form in 1868, was a development from the rule in stat. (1846) 9 & 10 Vict. c. 100, s. 9, as to every steam vessel "meeting" or passing any other steam vessel, and the rule in the Steam Navigation Act, 1851 (14 & 15 Vict. c. 79), s. 27, as to a vessel which "meets" another, and from the rule which superseded this under the M. S. Act, 1854, s. 296. The rule in the Steam Navigation Act, 1851 (14 & 15 Vict. c. 79), s. 27, applied both to sailing vessels and steam vessels. There was no rule in the Trinity House Regulations, 1840, as to steam vessels meeting, but only as to steam vessels crossing; see Table in Appendix, post.

As regards the rule in the M. S. Act, 1854, s. 296, it was held in The course to starboard, so that each may pass on the port side of the other. (1863) (h)

SECT. 2. Regulations for Preventing Collisions etc.

This article only applies to cases where vessels are meeting end on, or nearly end on, in such a manner as to involve risk of collision, and does not apply to two vessels which must, if both keep on their respective courses, pass clear of each other. (1868) (i)

Cleopatra (1856), Sw. 135, that this rule applied when one steamer saw the green and white lights of another two points on her starboard bow, the two vessels being on opposite courses. In The Arthur Gordon and The Independence (1861), Lush. 270, 277, P. C., it was held that the rule applied only to a case where vessels met in opposite directions end on, or nearly so. In General Iron Screw Co. v. Moss, The Araxes and The Black Prince (1861), 15 Moo. P. C. C. 122, 131, it was held that the rule must be obeyed even if each vessel saw the light of the other slightly on the starboard bow, and if a collision might equally have been avoided if both vessels had starboarded, and if there might in such case have been less risk of their coming into contact, and though many nautical men of great skill and experience were of opinion that the rule might be modified with advantage.

The Sea Regulations, 1863, art. 13, which superseded the rule under the M. S. Act, 1854, s. 296, was: "If two ships under steam are meeting end on, or nearly end on, so as to involve risk of collision, the helms of both shall be put to port, so that each may pass on the port side of the other." The similar art. 11 of the Sea Regulations, 1863, applied to sailing ships: "If two sailing ships are meeting end on, or nearly end on, so as to involve risk of collision, the helms of both shall be put to port, so that each may pass on the port side of the other." As regards steamships, it was held that art. 13 was a rule of prudence and safety (The Esther v. The Concordia (1866), Holt (ADM.), 142, P. C.); and that to excuse a vessel from porting it must be quite clear that there was a difference of three points from end on, and not less (The Thames v. The Stork (1866), Holt (ADM.), 151, 153, P. C.). There were difficulties in deciding whether this article, thus broadly interpreted, or the crossing rule applied (The Golden Pledge v. The Cognac (1865), Holt (ADM.), 133; The Fruiter v. The Fingal (1865), Holt (ADM.), 158; see also The Lucia Jantina v. The Mexican (1864), Holt (ADM.), 130; The Amazon v. The Osprey (1867), Holt (ADM.), 137). As regards sailing vessels, it was held that when a sailing vessel close-hauled on the port tack heading W.N.W. was approaching another sailing vessel close-hauled on the starboard tack heading S.E. by E., the vessels were crossing and not meeting end on, so that the port tack rule applied, and not art. 11 (Dean v. Mark, The "Constitution" (1864), 2 Moo. P. C. C. (N. S.) 453); so also where the headings were N.N.E. ½ E., and S.W. ½ W. (Henry St. Cyran (1864), 12 W. R. 1014).

(h) This paragraph first appeared as the Sea Regulations, 1863, art. 13, but the words "ships under steam" were there used instead of "steam vessels" and "the helms of both shall be put to port" instead of "each shall alter her course to starboard." The latter words were introduced in the Sea Regulations, 1880, art. 15, owing to the directions to the helm of "port" or "starboard" in certain foreign countries having the contrary meaning to what they have in this country.

(i) The Additional Regulations, 1868, which were substantially the same as the three latter paragraphs of the present article, were made to remove doubt and misapprehension concerning the effect of art. 13, and the similar art. 11 of the Sea Regulations, 1863, which then applied to sailing vessels; see Order in Council of the 30th July, 1868 (London Gazette, 4th August, 1868). The explanation of the origin of the Additional Regulations, 1868, given in The Odessa (1882), 4 Asp. M. L. C. 493, C. A., in the argument, is not correctly stated; they were not made in consequence of The Cleopatra (1856), Sw. 135.

Since 1868 the interpretation of "end on or nearly end on" has depended on the three latter paragraphs of the article, so that the earlier decisions on this point do not directly apply.

The only cases to which it does apply are when each of the two vessels is end on, or nearly end on, to the other; in other words, to cases in which, by day, each vessel sees the masts of the other in a line, or nearly in a line, with her own; and, by night, to cases in which each vessel is in such a position as to see both the side-lights of the other. (1868) (j)

It does not apply, by day, to cases in which a vessel sees another ahead crossing her own course; or by night, to cases where the red light of one vessel is opposed to the red light of the other, or where the green light of one vessel is opposed to the green light of the other, or where a red light without a green light, or a green light without a red light, is seen ahead, or where both green and red lights are seen anywhere but ahead. (1868) (j)

"End on or nearly end on."

626. The precise meaning of the words "end on or nearly end on," since 1868, when the last three paragraphs of this article were introduced, has not been decided. It seems probable that two steam vessels will not come within this article, if each has the other more than a point on her bow (k).

Steam vessels cannot be within this article when neither can see the other, nor when only one can see the other (l).

When steam vessels are "meeting end on or nearly end on" within the meaning of this article, and one of them at a proper distance ports her helm sufficiently to put her on a course on which she would have gone clear of the other port to port, if the other had even kept her course, the risk is determined, so that the vessels are no longer approaching so as to involve risk of collision (m).

In circumstances in which this article applies each vessel is entitled to assume that the other will port, as these rules for the safety of navigation are all framed on the supposition that navigators will depend on each other for the observance of them (n).

(j) See note (i), p. 434, ante.

(k) In The Aberdonian, [1910] P. 225, 227, it was held to be a vessel's duty to port, under this article, when the other vessel was about a point on her bow, and sheering slightly, sometimes to starboard and sometimes to port. Compare The Rona, The Ava (1873), 2 Asp. M. L. C. 182, P. C. ("It is clear that two vessels so steering" (one S.S.W., and the other between N.E. and N.E. by N.) "could not be considered as vessels each having the other not more than a point on her bow, or as meeting end on within the rule"). In Little v. Burns (1881), 9 R. (Ct. of Sess.) 118, 135, however, it was held, per Lord SHAND, following decisions before 1868, that the rule was to have a large interpretation put upon it as being a rule of caution and safety; and where two vessels were approaching in foggy weather in the estuary of the Firth of Clyde, and came in sight within 200 or 230 yards of each other, and the second was half a point on the starboard bow of the first, and the first was half a point on the port bow of the second, it was held that they were at least "nearly end on" within this article. In The "Jesmond" and The "Earl of Elgin" (1871), L. R. 4 P. C. 1, two steamships were held, in the Admiralty Court and the Privy Council, to be meeting end on or nearly end on. Their pleaded courses were N.N.W. and S.E., but it does not appear that these courses were accepted by the courts.

(l) The Rona, The Ava, supra.

(m) The "Jesmond" and The "Earl of Elgin," supra. A steamer which had thus ported was held not bound to slacken her speed under the Sea Regulations, 1863, art. 16, on the ground that that article only applied where there was a continuous approaching of the two ships (The "Jesmond" and The "Earl of Elgin," supra).

(n) Little v. Burns, supra, at p. 135.

SECT. 2. Regulations for Preventing Collisions etc.

This article has been applied in the river St. Lawrence (o). It may be subject to qualifications in special circumstances in narrow channels (p). It appears not to apply in narrow winding rivers (q). If one vessel sees that the other is lying dead in the water and unable to help herself, she will not be justified in porting into her (r).

Article 19

627. Article 19 of the Sea Regulations, 1910, is as follows:—

Article 19.

When two steam vessels are crossing, so as to involve risk of collision, the vessel which has the other on her own starboard side shall keep out of the way of the other. (1863) (s)

"Crossing rule."

Application in general.

628. A vessel is not within the terms of this rule, usually called "the crossing rule," if she is not properly to be considered as "under steam" (t). A tug with a vessel in tow has been held bound, from the time when this rule was first introduced, to keep out of the way in accordance with it (a).

This rule, like the other steering and sailing rules, only applies when there is "risk of collision." It appears that steam vessels are not crossing so as to involve risk of collision when the giving-way vessel is in sight of the other vessel, but has not reached the point where she should manœuvre for her (b).

Application in open waters and at sea.

629. The application of the crossing rule in open waters and at sea is generally simple. It applies to vessels at sea, and if two vessels, not end on or one overtaking the other, are seen, keeping the courses to be expected with regard to them respectively, to be likely to arrive at the same point at or nearly at the same moment, they are vessels crossing so as to involve risk of collision, but they

(o) The Corinthian, [1909] P. 260, 270, C. A.

(p) Compare The Prince Leopold de Belgique, [1909] P. 103, 104.

(q) Compare General Steam Navigation Co. v. Hedley, The "Velocity" (1869), L. R. 3 P. C. 44, 49, where the end on rule was admitted not to apply in the river Thames under the Sea Regulations, 1863, and the Additional Regulations, 1868.

(r) The Concordia (1866), L. R. 1 A. & E. 93, 97.

(s) This rule first appeared as art. 14 in the Sea Regulations, 1863, except that the words then were: "If two ships under steam . . . , the ship . . ." The rule remained the same in the Sea Regulations 1880 and 1884, and the words above were altered to their present form in the Sea Regulations, 1897. In 1863 the crossing rule, then art. 14 and now art. 19, was first differentiated from the meeting rule, then art. 13 and now art. 18. In the Trinity House Regulations, 1840, there was a rule as to steam vessels crossing, but none as to steam vessels meeting. In the Act of 1846 there was a rule as to a steam vessel meeting or passing any other steam vessel; and in the Acts of 1851 and 1854 there were rules as to a vessel or ship which "meets" another, which applied to steam vessels; but there was no rule in any of these Acts as to steam vessels crossing; see Table in Appendix, post.

(t) See "under steam" in the preliminary article, p. 377, ante, and the cases there referred to: see also The Helvetia (1868), 3 Asp. M. L. C. 43, n., P. C.; The Broomfield (1905), 10 Asp. M. L. C. 194; The Jennie S. Barker (1875), 3 Asp. M. L. C. 42; Port Jackson Steamboat Co. v. Llewellyn, The Brig Byron (1879), 2 New South Wales Law Reports, Admiralty Cases, 1.

(a) The Fruiter v. The Fingal (1865), Holt (ADM.), 158; The Milo v. The William Hunter (1866), Holt (ADM.), 161.

(b) The Bellanoch, [1907] P. 170, 180, C. A. (a decision on the overtaking rule, art. 24 (see p. 462, post); but the principle seems to apply by analogy in other cases). See, further, as to "risk of collision" under art. 17, p. 427, ante.

are not so crossing if the course which is reasonably to be attributed to either vessel will keep her clear of the other (c).

This principle has been invoked, for instance, when two steamers have been steering on crossing courses to the same point in order that each may take a pilot (d), for the crossing rule applies to such a case when there is risk of collision, and the fact that each vessel is manœuvring to take a pilot is not a "special circumstance" which justifies departure from it under article 27 (e). Each vessel in ordinary course will slow down as she approaches the pilot vessel. But the master of the vessel which has to keep out of the way cannot rely upon any supposition as to the reduction of the other vessel's speed (f); nor is he entitled to rely upon the other vessel keeping the actual heading and speed at which she is approaching, for the other vessel is entitled to reduce her speed in order to take the pilot on board, and is only bound to such course and speed as are properly involved in following out the nautical manœuvre in which she is engaged (g).

The crossing rule does not apply unless each vessel can see the other and know how she is heading, and, therefore, it does not apply in case of fog, when article 16 applies (h).

630. This rule, if not ousted by a local rule (i), applies in Application in narrow waters.

(c) S.S. Albano v. Allan Line Steamship Co., Ltd., Union Dampfschiffsrhederei Actiengesellschaft v. S.S. Parisian, [1907] A. C. 193, 205, P. C., citing Norwegian S.S. "Normandie" (Owners) v. British S.S. "Pekin" (Owners), The "Pekin," [1897] A. C. 532, P. C.; The Olympic and H.M.S. Hawke, [1913] P. 214, C. A.

(d) S.S. Albano v. Allan Line Steamship Co., Ltd., Union Dampfschiffsrhederei Actiengesellschaft v. SS. Parisian, supra, at p. 205.

(e) Ibid., at p. 206; The Ada, The Sappho (1873), 2 Asp. M. L. C. 4, P. C. In these circumstances the steamer which has had the duty of keeping out of the way under the crossing rule has occasionally alleged that she had stopped her engines and was lying more or less motionless waiting for her pilot, and that the other steamer was under a duty of good seamanship not to keep on so as to strike her (see ibid.). And if it could have been proved that she was in fact motionless at a considerable distance from the other vessel, it appears that this would have made the crossing rule inapplicable, as the vessels could not then be reasonably regarded as crossing; see S.S. Albano v. Allan Line Steamship Co., Ltd., Union Dampfschiffsrhederei Actiengesellschaft v. SS. Parisian, supra, at pp. 206, 208.

(f) Ibid., at p. 208.

(g) The Roanoke, [1908] P. 231, C. A.

(h) The King (1911), 27 T. L. R. 524; compare The Cathay (1899), 9 Asp. M. L. C. 35. As to cases in which it is the duty of a merchant ship not to cross the course of warships proceeding in a fleet, see under art. 27, p. 471, post. And it appears that the crossing rule may not apply where one vessel is turning round in open waters; compare The Chittagong, S.S. Kostroma (Owners) v. S.S. Chittagong (Owners) (1901), 9 Asp. M. L. C. 252, P. C. (when a steamer, which was outward bound and had been lying at anchor on the western side of the Bosphorus, steamed slowly ahead and turned short round, opening her green and masthead lights on the port bow of a second steamer which was coming up the Bosphorus, and the first steamer afterwards starboarded and the second ported, and there was a collision, it was held that the first steamer was to blame for making too short a turn and for her manœuvre of starboarding, and that the second steamer was right in porting, and it appears to have been held that the crossing rule did not apply).

(i) See art. 30, p. 477, post.

SECT. 2. Regulations for Preventing Collisions etc.

narrow waters, and most of the difficulties in applying it have arisen with regard to such waters.

Soon after 1863, when this crossing rule was first introduced, the question arose as to whether it applied to certain cases in a winding river. When one steam vessel is proceeding up a river and another down, and they are approaching one another round a sharp bend in the river, they will usually, for a time, bear from one another as if on crossing courses, and yet their courses may not in fact cross and the crossing rule may not apply. To apply it to a vessel whose course is continually varying as she has to follow the turns and windings of the river would lead to doubt and perplexity, and accordingly, in such cases, the crossing rule does not apply (k).

Certain decisions (l) relating to such circumstances explained and illustrated the distinction which exists in the effect of this rule as regards vessels navigating the open sea and those passing along the winding channels of rivers. The crossing referred to in this article is "crossing so as to involve risk of collision," and it is obvious that while two vessels in certain positions and at certain distances in regard to each other in the open sea may be crossing so as to involve risk of collision, it would be completely mistaken to take the same view of two vessels in the same positions and distances in the reaches of a winding river in which the vessels must follow, and must be known to intend to follow, the curves of the river bank. But vessels may, no doubt, be crossing vessels within this article in a river. It depends on their presumable courses. When in a river two vessels, not end on or one overtaking the other, are seen, keeping the courses to be expected with regard to them respectively, to be likely or not likely to arrive at the same point at or nearly at the same moment, the same rule, as stated above with regard to the open sea, applies to them. The question, therefore, always turns on the reasonable inference to be drawn as (k) Thus a steamer going down a river on the north side, her own port side, of the river, and rounding a bend in the river under starboard helm, showed her red light for a time a little on the starboard bow of a steamer coming up river in mid-channel. It was usual for vessels going down the river to keep on the north side, and the second vessel had no special reason to assume that the first vessel was in the act of crossing the river. The second vessel, however, argued that the crossing rule applied, and, therefore, that the first vessel was bound to keep her course and follow the direction in which her head happened to be turned at the time when she was first seen by the second vessel, that is, that she was bound to proceed across the river. The second vessel therefore ported her helm to keep out of the way, assuming that the other vessel would cross the river, while the second vessel starboarded to keep along the north side, and a collision occurred. It was held that the crossing rule did not apply in the circumstances; see General Steam Navigation Co. v. Hedley, The "Velocity" (1869), L. R. 3 P. C. 44; compare Malcomson v. General Steam Navigation Co., The "Ranger" and The "Cologne" (1872), L. R. 4 P. C. 519 (a very similar case occurring in about the same place). And see The Carlotta, [1899] P. 223, 226 (no Thames bye-laws were cited in General Steam Navigation Co. v. Hedley, The "Velocity," supra, or Malcomson v. General Steam Navigation Co., The "Ranger" and The "Cologne," supra, because no steering or sailing rules then existed in the Thames). Compare The Oceano (1878), 3 P. D. 60, C. A. (decided under the Thames rule, which was in practically the same terms as this article), and The Bywell Castle (1879), 4 P. D. 219, C. A., per BRETT, L.J., at p. 224.

(l) See the cases cited in note (k), supra.

to a vessel's future course from her position at a particular moment, and this greatly depends on the nature of the locality where she is at that moment (m).

From this statement of the principle two conclusions appear to follow with regard to two vessels proceeding one up and another down a bend in a river and bearing from one another as if on crossing courses. First, it appears that the crossing rule can only apply when the lines of the courses to be expected with regard to the two vessels will in fact cross, and when there is risk of collision, that is to say, when both vessels will come to the point of crossing at or nearly at the same moment. Secondly, it appears that the two vessels will not come within the crossing rule, whatever their bearings from one another while rounding the bend may be, when there is no indication that either vessel is in fact crossing the river, and when they are keeping on opposite sides of the channel or one is keeping in mid-channel, so that the vessels, on the courses to be reasonably attributed to them, will pass clear of each other.

Similarly two vessels proceeding one up and the other down a river will not come within the crossing rule, although one vessel turns out of her way to avoid any third vessel (n) or an obstacle (o) with the result that the two vessels bear from one another for the time as if on crossing courses, if this vessel is to be expected to turn back to her original course in the channel and the future line of this course will not cross the future line of the course of the other vessel; and it may be the duty of the vessel thus to turn back into her original course, if her way in that direction is open and clear (p).

Application to vessels in river on opposite courses.

631. When, however, in the case of two vessels bound respectively up and down a river, one vessel is in fact crossing the river so as to cross the course of the other, and there is risk of collision, this article applies unless it is ousted by a local rule under article 31 (q); but there may be a question in such a case as to whether the vessel crossing the river is justified in doing so, for if the two vessels with safety would have gone clear of each other provided each held on her course in the channel, one vessel will primâ facie not be justified in crossing the course of the other so as to bring them into the position of vessels crossing so as to involve risk of collision (r).

(m) Norwegian S.S. "Normandie" (Owners) v. British S.S. "Pekin" (Owners), The "Pekin," [1897] A. C. 532, 536, P. C.; compare The Kjobenhavn (1874), 2 Asp. M. L. C. 213, 217, P. C. (as to vessels in a river on courses which point across each other but do not cross).

(n) General Steam Navigation Co. v. Hedley, The "Velocity" (1869), L. R. 3 P. C. 44, 51.

(o) The Oceano (1878), 3 P. D. 60, 63, C. A.

(p) Ibid., at p. 62.

(q) Ibid.; Norwegian S.S. "Normandie" (Owners) v. British S.S. "Pekin" (Owners), The "Pekin," supra; see also The Bywell Castle (1879), 4 P. D. 219, 226, C. A., per BRETT, L.J. (when two steam vessels are rounding a bend in a river from opposite directions, and one under a starboard helm crosses so that her red light is on the port bow of the other, it may be that the vessels should pass port to port, as it may be dangerous for her to starboard back).

(r) The "Esk" and The "Niord" (1870), L. R. 3 P. C. 436, 441, 442. See also The Bywell Castle, supra, per BRETT, L.J., at pp. 224, 225, as to

SECT. 2. Regulations for Preventing Collisions etc.

Steam vessels passing at canal or harbour entrance.

632. When two steam vessels, one going out and the other coming in, have to pass each other near the entrance of a canal or harbour where the narrow channel rule applies, they should each keep to the starboard side so as to pass clear of each other port to port; and the crossing rule will not apply, although for a time during the operation they are bearing from one another as if on crossing courses (s).

River with two channels.

633. It often happens that a river at a certain point is divided into two narrow channels, naturally by land or artificially by a buoy or otherwise, the two channels being of similar importance, or else one of the channels remaining the main channel and the other being a smaller channel. In these circumstances when two steamers, one bound up and the other down one of the two channels, have to pass each other near the point where the two channels join into one channel, difficulties arise in the interpretation of the crossing rule, not only from the usual bend or bends in the river at that point, but also from the existence of the two channels, and from the provisions of articles 22, 23 and 25 (the narrow channel rule), which may apply.

When, near a place where two narrow channels join into one, two steam vessels going in opposite directions are about to pass each other, and it is reasonable to assume that the vessel coming out of the single channel will either pass down that one of the other two channels in which her course will not cross the course of the other vessel, or will pass down the other of the two channels in such circumstances that she will pass well ahead or astern of the other vessel, although at first, as they approach, they may bear from one another as if on crossing courses, they will be bound not by the crossing rule but by the narrow channel rule, and each should keep to her starboard side so as to pass port to port (t).

On the other hand, where two narrow channels join into one, it navigating for the tide in a river when there is no rule to prevent it. In local regulations there are sometimes, for instance, in the Tyne, special regulations as to vessels crossing a river; see pp. 479 et seq., post.

(s) The Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse, [1907] P. 36, 44, 259, 263, C. A.; The Knaresbro (1900), [1907] P. 38, n.; compare The Harvest (1886), 11 P. D. 14; but see The Winstanley, [1896] P. 297, C. A. (the crossing rule was applied in this case in the Admiralty Court on the ground that there was no defined channel to which the narrow channel rule could apply; and in the Court of Appeal it was held that the Govino had entered the harbour on the wrong side and had then crossed on to her right side, and that those on the Winstanley seeing her thus crossing ought to have stopped in order to let her go by, and ought not to have starboarded on to their wrong side, where the collision took place, and so they were wholly in fault for the collision).

(t) Norwegian S.S. "Normandie" (Owners) v. British S.S. "Pekin" (Owners), The "Pekin," [1897] A. C. 532, 537; 8 Asp. M. L. C. 367; it would appear that the Pekin was proceeding up the outside channel as stated in the latter report, and not the inside channel as stated in the former report; otherwise she would not have had the line of buoys on her starboard side, and her course would not, as stated in the judgment, have crossed the course of the Normandie if that vessel proceeded for the inside channel. Compare The Prince Leopold de Belgique, [1909] P. 103, 106 (if one vessel comes to the point of intersection reasonably in advance of the other, she must keep on, and the other must wait till she has passed).

may be that the course of the steamer proceeding from the single channel will intersect the course of the steamer proceeding from one of the other two channels so that they will meet at about the point of intersection. In such a case both the narrow channel rule and the crossing rule apply. It is then the duty of each vessel to keep to the starboard side of the channel in which she is, otherwise she will ordinarily be to blame (a). It is also the duty of the vessel which has the other on her starboard side to keep out of the way, and, under article 22, not to cross ahead of the other (b): she may do this either by porting or by stopping (c), and it is her duty under article 23 to stop and reverse her engines if necessary for this purpose (d); or, though this will be in most cases less advisable, she may keep out of the way by starboarding if she can starboard without danger (e). It is also the duty of the vessel which has the other on her port side to keep her course and speed, and to cross ahead of the other vessel if necessary on to her starboard side of the new channel, and she will be to blame if she ports unnecessarily (f).

In such cases, however, under article 27, difficult circumstances may prevent the crossing rule from operating to its full extent; and it seems that where there is much tide, it may be reasonable that the vessel going against the tide, though ordinarily under a duty to keep her course and speed, should wait till the other has passed (g).

(a) The Glengariff, [1905] P. 106; The Ashton, [1905] P. 21, 28 (a steam trawler coming into Grimsby came into collision close to the Clee Ness buoy with a steamship going out from there: held that the steam trawler was to blame under the narrow channel rule for being on the wrong side of the channel and for porting to the green light of the other vessel instead of keeping her course, and that the steamship was to blame under arts. 19 and 22 for starboarding when there was risk of collision and so attempting to cross ahead of the trawler, as well as for not reversing her engines); and see The Winstanley, [1896] P. 297, C. A., where the incoming vessel entered on the wrong side of the channel. But in difficult circumstances it may be unsafe and impracticable for a steamer to remain on her starboard side of the channel, and it will be wrong for her to do so if she is improperly forcing the other vessel out of her position; see The Try Again (1908), Shipping Gazette, 2nd June.

(b) The Ashton, supra. Before art. 22 was introduced, it had been held that the vessel which had to keep out of the way was entitled to increase her speed and cross ahead (The Leverington (1886), 11 P. D. 117, C. A.).

(c) The Ashton, supra, at p. 31; The Try Again, supra (where it was held that the Scotia could have safely ported and have passed out of what she alleged to be the channel and have gone to the southward of the inner shoal buoy).

(d) The Try Again, supra.

(e) The Ashton, supra, at p. 31; The Try Again, supra.

(f) The Leverington, supra; The Ashton, supra, at p 28; The Try Again, supra; compare The Ship Cuba v. McMillan (1896), 26 Supreme Court (Canada), 651.

(g) See The Prince Leopold de Belgique, [1909] P. 106; The Olympic and H.M.S. Hawke, [1913] P. 214, 265, 269, C. A., per KENNEDY, L.J., as to the duties of two steam vessels in a buoyed channel approaching each other on converging courses being sometimes regulated by the rules of good seamanship, and not by art. 19; compare The Clan Cumming, [1907] P. 311, C. A., as to the duty of a vessel, which has the right of way in the Suez Canal, to act reasonably and keep herself well in hand so as not to approach too near while the giving-way vessel is tying up. But a steamer crossing a channel towards the entrance to a dock is not excused from keeping out of the way, under the crossing rule, of a steamer coming down the channel,

SECT. 2. Regulations for Preventing Collisions etc.

Exclusion of rule in special circumstances.

634. In some special circumstances, when vessels have been on courses which will cross and when there has been risk of collision, it has been held that the crossing rule did not apply. It was held not to apply when a steamer came at full speed out of a dock entrance at the side of a river, showing her port side close to, and on the starboard side of, a tug and tow proceeding down about one-third of the breadth of the river from that side (h). The crossing rule was held not to apply owing to the nature of the place in a confined space of water about 1,000 yards long by 300 yards wide at the widest with three or four dock entrances leading from it, when one steamer was proceeding out from one of the dock entrances into it, and the other was proceeding in it towards another dock entrance, and the steamer coming out was held bound to wait for the other (i).

Article 20.

635. Article 20 of the Sea Regulations, 1910, is as follows :—

Article 20.

When a steam vessel and a sailing vessel are proceeding in such directions as to involve risk of collision, the steam vessel shall keep out of the way of the sailing vessel. (1863) (a).

Reason for rule.

636. The reasons for this rule are the same as were given for the old rule of 1840 (b), under which a steamer, considered as in the light of a sailing ship having the wind free, was bound to give way to a sailing vesssel on either tack. A steamer, when unincumbered by tow or otherwise, is, as compared with a sailing vessel, nearly independent of the wind. She can turn out of her course, and turn into it again with little difficulty or inconvenience. She can slacken or increase her speed, stop or reverse her engines, and can move in one direction or the other with the utmost facility (c).

because she herself is bound for the dock and is carrying the docking signal of two bright lights hoisted aft; see The St. Audries (1886), 5 Asp. M. L. C. 552.

(h) The Sunlight, [1904] P. 100; The Llanelly (1913), 30 T. L. R. 154.

(i) The Red Cross (1907), 10 Asp. M. L. C. 521; compare The Hazelmere, [1911] P. 69, C. A. (where a steamship proceeding towards Barry Dock came into collision with a steamship which was on her port side and which was proceeding out between the breakwaters; and it was held that the steamship proceeding out was not to blame under this article and art. 23 for not reversing, as that was impracticable; and it was queried, per Lord ALVERSTONE, C.J., as to whether the Sea Regulations applied in such circumstances). As to the case of two steam vessels which turned into the same channel on crossing courses and came into collision, where it was alleged that the one which was showing her port side on the starboard side of the other should have passed clear by following a certain course in the channel, see The Olympic and H.M.S. Hawke, [1913] P. 214, C. A. As to whether the crossing rule can come in when two steamers are approaching safely green to green, or red to red, and one improperly ports or starboards, see under art. 17, p. 426, ante.

(a) This article is substantially the same as the Sea Regulations, 1863, art. 15. The effect of the previous general rules in the M. S. Act, 1854, and the Steam Navigation Act, 1851 (14 & 15 Vict. c. 79), was that when a sailing ship and a steamship met, so as to involve risk of collision, both should port so as to pass port to port; and under the Trinity House Regulations, 1840, the recognised rule was that a steam vessel, considered as a vessel with a fair wind, should give way to a sailing vessel on either tack; see Table in Appendix, post.

(b) Trinity House Regulations, 1840; see note (a), supra.

(c) The Arthur Gordon and The Independence (1861), Lush. 270, 278, P. C

A tug hove-to in a fair-way waiting for employment is "a steam vessel proceeding" within this article, and is bound to keep herself in readiness to get out of the way. A tug in these circumstances was held to blame because her engineer was not ready to carry out an order to the engines (d).

Application of rule.

637. A steam vessel is bound to keep out of the way under this article, subject to due regard to dangers of navigation and collision, and to special circumstances rendering a departure from the rule necessary in order to avoid immediate danger (e). In order to condemn a steamer for an omission under this or any other article, it must be proved, first, that the thing omitted to be done was clearly within the power of the steamer to do; secondly, that if done it would in all probability have prevented collision; and, thirdly, that it was an act which would have occurred to any officer of competent skill and experience in command of the steamer (f).

Duty of steam vessel under the rule.

A steamer may perform her duty of keeping out of the way of a sailing vessel at a distance when there is risk of collision by decreasing her speed or by altering her helm so as to pass astern; but she should not alter her helm to a sailing vessel approaching from a distance at night if she cannot see her lights owing to their improper position or otherwise and is in doubt as to the course the sailing vessel is pursuing and on which side she is going to pass (g). A prudent master of a steamer, if in doubt as to the course

(d) The Jennie S. Barker (1875), 2 Asp. M. L. C. 42; compare Port Jackson Steamboat Co. v. Llewellyn, The Brig Byron (1879), 2 New South Wales Law Reports, Admiralty Cases, 1 (a tug lying on the edge of a fair-way without sufficient steam up to keep out of the way was struck by a brig in tow of another tug; the first tug and the brig were both held to blame, the tug for lying where she was without being able to move, and the brig because her tug steered a course which made a close shave of it); and see "under steam" in the preliminary article, p. 377, ante, and the cases there cited. So also a steam trawler in the open sea which was showing the fishing signal of a basket, and was stationary and practically immovable, being engaged in hauling her trawl, and, it being impracticable in the circumstances for her to go ahead or astern, was held not to be "proceeding" within the meaning of this article, and it was the duty of a sailing vessel proceeding on a course to keep out of her way (The Gladys, [1910] P. 13). A steam drifter shooting her nets and sailing with a little mizen sail at about one knot an hour, and with steam up but unable to go ahead or astern without fouling her propeller, is either not "proceeding" under art. 20, or is relieved by art. 27 from the duty under this article of keeping out of the way of a sailing vessel proceeding on her course, and the latter vessel should keep out of the way (The Pitgaveney, [1910] P. 215).

(e) See art. 27, p. 471, post; Union Steamship Co. v. "Aracan" (Owners), The "American" and The "Syria" (1874), L. R. 6 P. C. 127, 131.

(f) Inman v. Reck, The "City of Antwerp" and The "Friedrich" (1868), L. R. 2 P. C. 25, 34. This statement of what it is necessary to prove against the steamer must be taken as qualifying the more absolute terms earlier in the judgment (ibid., at p. 30) as to the duty of the steamer: "It is undoubtedly true, in cases of collision between a sailing ship and a steamer, that, although the sailing ship may be found to have been guilty of misconduct, or not to have observed the sailing regulations, yet the steamer will be held culpable if it appears that it was in her power to have avoided the collision. It cannot be too much insisted on that it is the duty of a steamer, where there is risk of collision, whatever may be the conduct of the sailing vessel, to do everything in her power that can be done consistently with her own safety, in order to avoid collision."

(g) Beal v. Marchais, The "Bougainville" and The "James C.

SECT. 2. Regulations for Preventing Collisions etc.

of the sailing vessel, and if it is necessary to act, ought to wait by slackening speed or stopping (h) until he can ascertain her course (i).

Tug and tow.

638. A tug or other steamer with another vessel in tow is subject, under the terms of articles 20 and 27, to the same duty as a steamer without a tow (k). It is only in exceptional cases that a tug towing a vessel is relieved under article 27 from keeping out of the way under this article (l), and the fact that a tug is towing a heavily-laden ship against a strong wind is not sufficient to relieve her under article 27 (m).

Application to fishing vessels.

639. Another class of cases arises in which a departure from this article becomes necessary under article 27, when a sailing vessel unincumbered and a steam fishing vessel incumbered over fishing are proceeding in such directions as to involve risk of collision (n).

Stevenson" (1873), L. R. 5 P. C. 316, 323; The General Lee, of Dublin (1869), 19 L. T. 750.

(h) Under art. 23; see p. 454, post.

(i) Beal v. Marchais, The "Bougainville" and The "James C. Stevenson" (1873), L. R. 5 P. C. 316, 323.

(k) Union Steamship Co. v. "Aracan" (Owners), The "American" and The "Syria" (1874), L. R. 6 P. C. 127, 131; The Warrior (1872), L. R. 3 A. & E. 553. Under the rules in force before 1863 a distinction was drawn between the relations towards a sailing vessel of a steamer incumbered with a tow and an unincumbered steamer (The Arthur Gordon and The Independence (1861), Lush. 270, P. C., per Lord KINGSDOWN, at p. 278; compare The Cleadon (1860), Lush. 158); and it was held to be a question of circumstances whether a tug incumbered with a tow ought to keep out of the way of a sailing vessel on either tack, or whether the sailing vessel ought to keep out of their way, and it depended upon the state of the wind and weather, the direction in which the tug was towing, and what were the impediments in her course (The Kingston-by-Sea (1850), 3 Wm. Rob. 152, 154); and when the tug and tow were proceeding against wind and tide, and the sailing vessel might without any difficulty and with very little loss of time have got out of the way, it was the sailing vessel's duty to have done so (The Arthur Gordon and The Independence, supra). Since the Sea Regulations, 1863, it has been no longer a question of convenience whether the tug with a vessel in tow or the sailing vessel should keep out of the way, and a tug can only justify her failure to keep out of the way by proof of necessary departure from the rule under art. 27. But, in considering this question of necessity, the distinction above referred to between the relations of an incumbered and an unincumbered steamer is manifestly a just one and still applicable (Union Steamship Co. v. "Aracan" (Owners), The "American" and The "Syria," supra, at p. 131). It necessitates allowances being made in particular circumstances for the comparatively disabled condition of the incumbered steamer, and imposes upon the sailing vessel approaching her the duty of additional caution (ibid.). It is difficult to understand the statement in this judgment, ibid: "But the rule of navigation, though formulated, can scarcely be said to have been altered by the regulations," i.e., the Sea Regulations, 1863. There is no doubt that the rule of navigation as between a sailing vessel and a steamer, whether towing or not, was altered by the Sea Regulations, 1863, the obligation of the steamer to keep out of the way except in case of necessity being introduced and substituted for the rule, to the effect that a steamship and sailing ship meeting so as to involve risk of collision should each port her helm (M. S. Act, 1854, s. 296).

(l) The David Cannon (1865), 2 Asp. M. L. C. 353, n.

(m) The Warrior, supra; compare Union Steamship Co. v. "Aracan" (Owners), The "American" and The "Syria," supra.

(n) As to these cases, see, further, under art. 9, pp. 393 et seq., ante.

It is the duty of a sailing vessel to keep out of the way of a steam trawler engaged in trawling (a), or of a steam vessel fishing with drift-nets (b); and a sailing drifter, when not fishing, must keep out of the way of a steam drifter which has her nets in the water (c). This duty of the unincumbered vessel to keep out of the way applies by day as well as by night, since the steam fishing vessel when fishing has to carry a fishing signal in daytime (d). At night the tricoloured lantern of a steam trawler engaged in trawling indicates that such a trawler cannot keep out of the way of an unincumbered vessel (e). A steam trawler which has got her trawl on board and has decided to go off to another spot to trawl ought to change her fishing lights for ordinary lights as soon as she is under command and in a position to go full speed ahead, and ought then to keep out of the way of a sailing vessel (f).

Sailing vessel overtaking steamer.

640. Notwithstanding this article, a sailing vessel overtaking a steamer is bound to keep out of her way under the overtaking rule (g).

Other duties of a sailing vessel and a steamer navigating to avoid risk of collision are considered elsewhere (h).

Article 21.

641. Article 21 of the Sea Regulations, 1910, is as follows:—

Article 21.

Where by any of these Rules (i) one of two vessels is to keep out of the way, the other shall keep her course and speed. (1863) (k)

Note.—When, in consequence of thick weather or other causes, such vessel finds herself so close that collision cannot be avoided by the action of the giving-way vessel alone, she also shall take such action as will best aid to avert collision. (See Articles 27 and 29). (1897)

(a) The Grovehurst, [1910] P. 316, C. A., overruling The Craigellachie, [1909] P. 1, and approving The Tweedsdale (1889), 14 P. D. 164; see also The Gladys, [1910] P. 13 (steam trawler hauling her trawl).

(b) The Pitgaveney, [1910] P. 215.

(c) The Pitgaveney, supra.

(d) Art. 9 (k); p. 395, ante; and see The Gladys, supra.

(e) The Grovehurst, supra, at p. 333.

(f) The Upton Castle, [1906] P. 147.

(g) See art. 24, first paragraph, p. 461, post. Even before 1880, when in substance this paragraph was added, it was generally accepted that the overtaking rule applied to a fast sailing vessel overtaking a slow steamer; see The Philotaxe (1877), 3 Asp. M. L. C. 512, in argument.

(h) As to the duty of a sailing vessel to keep her course and speed, when the steamer has to keep out of the way under this article, see art. 21, infra. As to the duty of a sailing vessel in tacking, and as to other duties of good seamanship, see pp. 492, 493, post. As to the duty of a sailing vessel under the Thames bye-laws to keep out of the way of a steam vessel, when it is unsafe and impracticable for the steam vessel to keep out of her way and she has given the signal of four blasts or more, see The Longnewton (1888), 6 Asp. M. L. C. 302. As to the duties of a sailing vessel in a fog, see under arts. 15 and 16, pp. 409 et seq., 414 et seq., ante.

(i) The Rules referred to in this article, which require one of two vessels to keep out of the way, are, as regards steam vessels, arts. 19, 20 and 24, and as regards sailing vessels, arts. 17, 24 and 26.

(k) The Sea Regulations, 1863 (art. 18), 1880 (art. 22), and 1884 (art. 22), provided: "Where, by the above rules, one of two ships is to keep out of the way, the other shall keep her course"; and this was subject to the article as to departure from the rules for special circumstances, now art. 27. In 1897 this article took its present form with the addition of the note.

SECT. 2. Regulations for Preventing Collisions etc.

Interpretation of the rule.

642. The result of the alterations in 1897 (l) in this article and in article 23 is that the keep-on vessel since that date is, in the first instance, as much bound to keep her speed as her course; that she is no longer bound by any article to slacken speed or stop and reverse, if necessary, when approaching the other vessel so as to involve risk of collision; and that the moment when it becomes her duty to take action is defined as it never had been before, and is postponed to a later period, namely, when collision can no longer be avoided by the action of the giving-way vessel alone.

Article 21 does not come into force until it is the duty of the giving-way vessel to keep out of the way, and that duty does not arise until there is risk of collision (m) within the meaning of the rules. This article, therefore, has no application till the two vessels have reached the position where the giving-way vessel ought to act for the keep-on vessel (n).

"Course and speed."

643. The words "course and speed" in this article mean course and speed in following the nautical manœuvre in which, to the knowledge of the other vessel, the keep-on vessel is at the time engaged (o); and they mean the course and speed which the vessel would take naturally and independently of the presence of the other vessel, as the proper method of her navigation at the particular time and place (p).

(l) The Sea Regulations, 1897, made a great alteration in this article by the addition of the words "and speed" and the Note; and it is to be remembered in this connexion that by an alteration of the same date in art. 23 the duty under that article ceased to apply to the keep-on vessel. Under previous Sea Regulations, the keep-on vessel was bound to keep her course, but was not bound to go on at the same pace, as the art. 22 then in force and similar to the present art. 21 had nothing to do with speed (The Beryl (1884), 9 P. D. 137, C. A., per BRETT, M.R., at p. 140); on the other hand, the keep-on steam vessel at that time was subject to the duty under another article (the Sea Regulations, 1880 and 1884, art. 18) to slacken her speed, or stop and reverse, if necessary, when approaching another ship so as to involve risk of collision. The effect of these two articles of the previous Regulations was that the keep-on steam vessel was bound to keep her course, and at first was free as regards speed; but she was bound to slacken her speed, or stop and reverse, if necessary, before the collision became unavoidable by the action of the giving-way vessel alone, and even before the giving-way vessel could no longer avoid her without difficulty (The Beryl, supra, at pp. 142, 143; The Oporto, [1897] P. 249, C. A.); and if the giving-way vessel was failing to keep out of the way and running it fine, it was the duty of the keep-on vessel to slacken speed if the risk of collision as a whole would thereby be decreased, even if in one event the slackening of speed might increase the risk (Liverpool, Brazil, and River Plate Steam Navigation Co. v. Campanhia Bahiana de Navegacio a Vapor, The Memnon (1889), 6 Asp. M. L. C. 488, 489, H. L.).

(m) As to "risk of collision," see under art. 17, pp. 427, 428, ante.

(n) The Bellanoch, [1907] P. 170, 180, C. A.; The Roanoke, [1908] P. 231, 241, 245, C. A. (when the keep-on steamer put her engines to half-speed the crossing and giving-way steamer was three-quarters of a mile away on her port side and could have found no real difficulty in avoiding her, and therefore the slackening of speed was not a violation of art. 21, because no risk of collision was then involved (ibid., per KENNEDY, L.J., at p. 245). A steam vessel which was being overtaken ported four minutes before the collision and when there was a distance of 800 yards between her and the overtaking steam vessel, and it was held that she acted before the rule as to keeping her course applied (The Banshee (1887), 6 Asp. M. L. C. 221, C. A.; compare The Sylph (1857), Sw. 233). A schooner, seeing a steamer's masthead and red lights about two miles off and about a point on the starboard bow, ported enough to bring these lights a little on the port bow; this porting, having regard to the distance and its degree, was held to be at the least an innocent manœuvre (The Norma (1876), 3 Asp. M. L. C. 272, P. C.; but see The Great Ship Co. v. Sharples, The "Great Eastern" (1864), 3 Moo. P. C. C. (N. S.) 31).

Thus the keep-on vessel which is going to take up a pilot is entitled to reduce her speed for this purpose (q); but the duty of the giving-way vessel is to keep out of the way, and her master cannot in such a case rely on a supposition that the other vessel will slow down and stop entirely (r). If the proper course of navigation for the keep-on vessel in getting a pilot is to turn at the place where the pilot vessel is, and follow a course up river, she is not to blame for doing so and keeping headway for this purpose (s).

Keeping course in a winding river.

A steam vessel approaching another in a winding river is bound to keep her course and speed under this article, if the crossing rule (article 19) applies, that is to say, if the vessels keeping the courses reasonably to be expected of them are likely to arrive at the same point at or nearly at the same moment (t). But "keeping course" in a winding river does not necessarily mean keeping the head of the vessel in the direction in which it was turned when the other vessel was sighted, but it means keeping the course reasonably to be attributed to the vessel, that is, her proper course in the river and round a bend, altering as necessary from time to time to avoid other vessels and obstacles (a).

(o) The Roanoke, [1908] P. 231, C. A., per Lord ALVERSTONE, C.J., at p. 239.

(p) Ibid., per KENNEDY, L.J., at p. 247.

(q) Ibid.

(r) S.S. Albano v. Allan Line Steamship Co., Ltd., Union Dampfschiffsrhederei Actiengesselschaft v. S.S. Parisian, [1907] A. C. 193, 207, 208, P. C.

(s) The Ada, The Sappho (1873), 2 Asp. M. L. C. 4, 5, P. C.

(t) Norwegian S.S. "Normandie" (Owners) v. British S.S. "Pekin" (Owners), The "Pekin," [1897] A. C. 532, 536, P. C.; General Steam Navigation Co. v. Hedley, The "Velocity" (1869), L. R. 3 P. C. 44. In both these cases it was held that the crossing rule did not apply and that there was no duty to keep course under this article. The argument in General Steam Navigation Co. v. Hedley, The "Velocity," supra, that the crossing rule applied whenever the direction of one vessel's head was crossing the direction of the other vessel's head when they came in sight of each other, and that the keep-on vessel was then bound to "keep her course" by following the direction in which her head happened to be turned at the time, was rejected; and it was held that, in considering whether the two vessels were within the crossing rule, not merely the relative positions of the vessels when they came in sight of each other must be regarded, but also other circumstances, including the bend of the river, the usual track of vessels, and the necessity to turn out of the way to avoid other vessels; and it was held that if the crossing rule could have applied, the keep-on vessel would only have been bound to keep her course down river on her proper side.

(a) The Oceano (1878), 3 P. D. 60, C. A.; Norwegian S.S. "Normandie" (Owners) v. British S.S. "Pekin" (Owners), The "Pekin," supra; General Steam Navigation Co. v. Hedley, The "Velocity," supra. In The Olympic and H.M.S. Hawke, [1913] P. 214, C. A., where two steam vessels were rounding into a channel, it was argued unsuccessfully that the Olympic, the giving-way vessel under art. 19, was justified in inferring that as a matter of good seamanship the other vessel would round into the channel

SECT. 2. Regulations for Preventing Collisions etc.

Primâ facie, however, in ordinary circumstances, when no alteration of helm or engines is required by the manœuvre which the vessel is carrying out, the first duty of the keep-on vessel under this article is not to make any alteration in either, but to keep her course (b) and speed as long as this will enable the other vessel to keep out of the way (c); and the giving-way vessel is entitled to rely on this being done, especially if she hears no signal under article 28.

When departure from rule justified.

644. Departure from this rule may be justifiable on the general principles governing the observance of the Regulations (d), and particularly by article 27 (e). But a vessel which seeks to justify alteration during this period takes upon herself the obligation of showing both that the departure from the rule was necessary when it took place in order to avoid immediate danger, and also that the course adopted by her was reasonably calculated to avoid that danger (f). If it is necessary for her to manœuvre for a danger to her navigation, she ought not to deviate more than is necessary to avoid immediate danger (g). There is nothing which would be more likely to lead to mischievous consequences than to suppose that a vessel whose duty it is to keep her course should anticipate that another will not give way, and so give way herself; the consequence would be that there would be no certainty (h). The keep-on vessel is not justified in altering her course because the other vessel is cutting it fine, since the other vessel's action is guided by the presumption that the keep-on vessel will keep her course (i).

An important instance of necessary departure from this article on such a course as would keep her clear, and that the other vessel was to blame for not doing so.

(b) The duty to keep course is not satisfied merely by not altering the helm or engines; see The Farewell (1882), 8 Quebec Law Reports, 87 (two sailing vessels were in tow of a tug in a river, the light one being injudiciously placed in front of the heavier one and steering badly. When a steamer was passing, the heavier vessel sailed up under a high wind, struck the lighter one, and drove her into collision with the steamer. The light sailing vessel was held to blame for not keeping her course under the article, apparently on the ground that she was responsible for the mode of sailing).

(c) Compare The Ranza (1898), 79 L. J. (P.) 21, n.

(d) See pp. 363 et seq., ante.

(e) It was said that art. 19 (compare art. 18) of the Sea Regulations, 1863, which was similar to the present art. 27, was framed for the purpose of the protection of a vessel that was required to keep her course, and for no other purpose (The David Cannon (1865), 2 Asp. M. L. C. 353, n.; and see The Allan v. The Flora (1866), 2 Mar. L. C. 386).

(f) The "Agra" and "Elizabeth Jenkins" (1867), L. R. 1 P. C. 501, 504.

(g) The Saragossa (1892), 7 Asp. M. L. C. 289, C. A.

(h) The Test (1847), 5 Notes of Cases, 276; The Vivid (1849), 7 Notes of Cases, 127 (similar observations were made in this case with special reference to a vessel on the port tack taking upon herself, on seeing a steamer, to deviate from her course to get out of the way); The Superior (1849), 6 Notes of Cases, 607 (where a brig, according to the Regulations, ought to have ported her helm for a second vessel, but as a previous vessel had, rightly or wrongly, passed her to starboard, she expected the second vessel to do the same; so the brig starboarded, the other vessel ported, and the brig was held alone to blame).

(i) The Highgate (1890), 6 Asp. M. L. C. 512. In The Franconia (1876), may arise when the vessel, which would ordinarily have to keep out of the way, is one of a fleet of warships steaming in company. In this event another vessel, which ordinarily under this article should keep her course and speed, may be bound to avoid crossing the bows of the warship (k), as this state of things may constitute "special circumstances" (l) under article 27. This duty, to avoid crossing the course of the warship in such circumstances instead of keeping course and speed, has been applied in the case of a steamship (m), and with still more force in the case of a tug and tow (n); and when a merchant vessel was on a course to cross the course of one of a column of five vessels, part of a flotilla of ten torpedo boat destroyers (o); and in cases of larger fleets; and when a merchant vessel was crossing the line of warships at a fine angle, the steamship heading E. by N. and the warships about W. ½ N. (p). On the other hand, one of a squadron of three warships was held to blame for not keeping out of the way of a crossing steamship (q). The officer in charge of the warship, though he may be bound to keep out of the way of the other vessel, is also bound by the King's Regulations not to change the course without directions from the captain, unless to avoid immediate danger, and this should be borne in mind in considering whether his manœuvre was taken in time (r).

When the keep-on vessel finds herself so close that collision

2 P. D. 8, 13, C. A., it was held that an overtaken steamer, when the other steamer on her port quarter came within three lengths and ported, was not to blame for yielding a point and afterwards hard-a-porting; and in The Olympic and H.M.S. Hawke, [1913] P. 214, C. A., where two crossing vessels were rounding into the same channel, it was held that the keep-on vessel, by porting away from the other vessel the small amount of ten degrees, did not show bad navigation.

(k) H.M.S. Sans Pareil, [1900] P. 267, 282, 283, C. A.; The Hero, [1911] P. 128, 132, C.A.; and see the other cases cited in subsequent notes. The Board of Trade Notice, 1897 (see H.M.S. Sans Pareil, supra, at p. 275), warned single vessels against approaching a squadron of warships so closely as to involve risk of collision, or attempting to pass ahead of, or through, or to break the line of, such squadrons, and bade them keep out of the way. This notice was also relied on in The Etna, [1908] P. 269, where the officer in charge knew of it; but it was held not to be available against a foreigner who did not know of it, in H.M.S. King Alfred (1913), 30 T. L. R. 102.

(l) H.M.S. Sans Pariel, supra.

(m) S.S. Hero (Owners) v. Commissioners for Executing the Office of Lord High Admiral of the United Kingdom, [1912] A. C. 300.

(n) H.M.S. Sans Pareil, supra.

(o) The Etna, supra.

(p) The Colstrup (1908), Shipping Gazette, 22nd October.

(q) The Melampus (1903), Shipping Gazette, 22nd December. In this case the leading warship had the second warship about six cables on her port beam, and the third warship about three cables astern. The steamship sighted these vessels about on her port beam showing their masthead and green lights on a crossing course, and they began to draw ahead, and she kept her course. The first warship, instead of going under her stern, unwisely starboarded and ported to avoid her, and the third warship, following the first one, failed to keep out of the way of the steamship and was held alone to blame; and see H.M.S. Sutlej (1905), 21 T. L. R. 325, C. A.

(r) H.M.S. Sutlej, supra, per BRETT, M.R., at p. 328. The officer in charge of the warship was held to blame in H.M.S. Sans Pareil, supra, and The Melampus, supra; he and the merchant vessel were held to blame in Hero (Owners) v. Commissioners for Executing the Office of Lord High Admiral of the United Kingdom, supra; The Etna, supra; and The cannot be avoided by the action of the giving-way vessel alone, she also is bound to take such action as will best aid to avert collision. It has been said in reference to this duty that article 21 is the most difficult of all the regulations to understand and obey (s).

SECT. 2. Regulations for Preventing Collisions etc.

The duty of the keep-on steam vessel to assist at the last in avoiding collision has been frequently discussed in recent cases (t). It is quite impossible to determine mathematically the point at which the keep-on vessel must act; these rules have to be construed so that men may act reasonably upon them (a). Where good seamanship would assume that collision cannot be avoided by the action of the giving-way vessel alone, the case falls within the exception, even though in fact the giving-way vessel could by her own action have averted collision (b). The burden of taking action and departing from the rule cannot be pressed very severely in any case. If the officer in charge is found to have been watching the other vessel and doing his best to make up his mind when to act, he ought not to be held to blame for waiting a moment too long before acting (c). In determining the duty to act, there are always many ingredients, such as the light, the clearness of atmosphere, the speed and course of the other vessel, from which an estimate must be formed as to where the courses will meet, and the difficulty of detecting at night the moment when the giving-way vessel may be altering her course (d). The obligation to act is more imperative and immediate in daytime, when it can be seen Cambridge (1903), cited at [1911] P. 146, 147; and the merchant vessel was alone to blame in H.M.S. Sutlej (1905), 21 T. L. R. 325, and in The Colstrup (1908), Shipping Gazette, 22nd October.

(s) The Bruxellesville (1907), Shipping Gazette, 23rd November, per BUCKNILL, J.

(t) "It must always be a matter of some difficulty for the master of" a keep-on vessel "to determine when the time has arrived for him to take action, for if he act too soon he may disconcert any action which the other vessel may be about to take to avoid his vessel, and might be blamed for so doing, and yet the time may come at which he must take action. Therefore he must keep his course and speed up to some point and then act, but the precise point must be difficult to determine, and some little latitude has to be allowed to the master in determining this" (S.S. Albano v. Allan Line Steamship Co., Ltd., Union Dampfschiffsrhederei Actiengesellschaft v. S.S. Parisian, [1907] A. C. 193, 207, P. C.).

(a) The Ranza (1898), 79 L. J. (P.) 21, n.

(b) The Olympic and H.M.S. Hawke, [1913] P. 214, C. A., per VAUGHAN WILLIAMS, L.J., at p. 245.

(c) The Ranza, supra. In this case the master of the keep-on vessel reversed his engines too soon, but was held not to blame; whether the distance at which he reversed was a quarter of a mile, or 400 or 500 yards, it was impossible to say. In The Ornen (1901), 17 T. L. R. 359, H. L., the keep-on steamer was held not to blame in the House of Lords, though both courts below had blamed her for keeping her speed too long. In The Bruxellesville, supra, a giving-way vessel crossing at an angle of $2\frac{1}{2}$ points tried to cut across the bows of the other vessel, and at the last moment, when very near, ported; the officer in charge of the keep-on vessel first blew a long warning blast to her, and afterwards, when she was in line with his vessel and was swinging under a port helm but before he could know that she was porting, starboarded and reversed and went off a point to starboard, and it was held that he was justified in his action.

(d) The Huntsman (1911), 11 Asp. M. L. C. 606. Two steamers were approaching with risk of collision on courses crossing at an angle of about four points, and the giving-way vessel came on without taking any steps; the officer in charge of the keep-on vessel believed the other vessel would what the vessel is and how she is manœuvring, than at night, when the only information as to her position or movement is derived from the lights exhibited (e). A vessel which acts under the note to article 21, but neglects to signal under article 28, does not take such action as best aids to avert collision (f).

Meaning of "keeping her course" for a sailing ship.

645. As regards sailing vessels, the same general principles apply. The rule that a sailing vessel is to keep her course has been enforced very strictly; it is only where a clear case of necessity for departing from the rule is made out that the captain of a vessel can excuse himself for not following the rule (g). If a close-hauled vessel is sailing half a point off being jammed close to the wind, and comes up only half a point, it cannot be said that she is not keeping her course. It has not been decided whether, if she is sailing a point off and comes up the whole point, she would be altering her course (h). When a close-hauled vessel luffed to an extent which was doubtful but was not proved to be more than half a point, and did not luff so much as to lose headway, it was held that she substantially kept her course (i). If the luffing is not more than is necessary for the vessel to maintain the course which she is following, she is not to blame (k). It is the duty of a close-hauled vessel to keep close to windward (a). But if a vessel comes up until she is more than close-jammed and until her sails are shaking, and so reaches a point that she must go off again before the wind before she can sail, then she does not keep her course and breaks the rule (b); or if, being two points free, she luffs up until she is close-hauled (c).

When a vessel is hove-to, apparently getting her under way on the same tack is no breach of the duty to keep her course (d), and it may be a proper precaution to take.

port eventually, and so, shortly before the collision, he slowed his engines in order to keep his vessel more under command, and he was held not to blame. So also a keep-on vessel, a steam trawler, has been held not to blame for not altering course or speed till within one and a half lengths of another steam trawler, and then porting, the other vessel never altering at all (Beucker v. Aberdeen Steam Trawling and Fishing Co., [1910] S. C. 655). But this case and the last were before the Maritime Conventions Act, 1911. When two steamships were on courses crossing at an angle of half a point, and the giving-way vessel had just crossed on to the starboard bow of the other, and had come green to green at a very short distance ahead, and then suddenly ported, the Court of Appeal treated art. 21 as still applicable in considering the duty of the keep-on vessel as regards reversing (The Koning Willem II., [1908] P. 125, C. A.; and see under art. 19, pp. 436 et seq., ante).

(e) Ship "Tasmania" (Owners and Owners of Freight) v. Smith and Ship "City of Corinth" (Owners), The "Tasmania" (1890), 15 App. Cas. 223, 226.

(f) The Annie (1912), Shipping Gazette, 2nd February, C. A., per FARWELL, L.J.

(g) The Highgate (1890), 6 Asp. M. L. C. 512.

(h) The Earl Wemys (1889), 6 Asp. M. L. C. 407, C. A.

(i) The Aimo, The Amelia (1873), 2 Asp. M. L. C. 96, P. C.

(k) The Water Nymph v. The Carlisle (1865), Holt (ADM.), 121, 123.

(a) The Marmion (1872), 1 Asp. M. L. C. 412, P. C.

(b) The Earl Wemys, supra. But this did not apply to action which it was the duty of the vessel to take just before the collision (The "Singapore" and the "Hebe" (1866), L. R. 1 P. C. 378, 383).

(c) The Earl Wemys, supra, per BUTT, J.

(d) The General Lee, of Dublin (1869), 19 L. T. 750 ("it is very

SECT. 2. Regulations for Preventing Collisions etc.

A keep-on sailing vessel is wrong to go about unnecessarily to get out of the way of a steamer (e).

When sailing vessel justified in departing from rule.

646. It is, however, sometimes the duty of a sailing vessel, which in ordinary circumstances ought to keep her course and speed under this article, to depart from the rule and keep out of the way of the other vessel owing to special circumstances. For instance, a sailing vessel, which should ordinarily keep on under the rule, will be to blame for running down another sailing vessel, which should ordinarily keep out of the way, if, as the keep-on vessel learns in sufficient time, the giving-way vessel has thrown herself into stays and is helpless, although she has failed to take proper steps in her helpless state, and is also to blame (f). But it has been held in certain circumstances that it is not the duty of a questionable whether the mere getting the cutter under way on the same tack, would not, nautically speaking, be keeping her course").

(e) The General Lee, of Dublin (1869), 19 L. T. 750; and see The Monson v. The Neptune (1865), 2 Mar. L. C. 289. A barque in Margate Roads at night, wearing round to come to anchor as she had failed to stay, showed first her green light and then both lights, and then her red to an approaching steamer, which starboarded for her and afterwards eased her engines, but collided with her; the barque was charged with not keeping her course, but was held not to blame. And as to the duties of good seamanship on the part of a sailing vessel going about, see pp. 492, 493, post.

(f) Wilson v. Canada Shipping Co. (1877), 2 App. Cas. 389, P. C., where two ships were beating up the river St. Lawrence, and one coming round on the port tack was lying in stays; the vessel on the starboard tack was held to blame for not porting her helm when she received a warning hail from the other ship, though she could not see the state of the canvas of the other ship, and though the other ship was also to blame for not giving herself sternway so as to avoid the collision; compare The Rosalie (1880), 5 P. D. 245. In The Ida v. The Wasa of Nicolaistadt (1866), 15 L. T. 103, a vessel close-hauled on the starboard tack kept her course and ran into a vessel which was in stays coming round on the port tack, and the first vessel could easily have avoided the collision, and the second vessel could do nothing; the first vessel was alone to blame. In The Lady Anne (1850), 15 Jur. 18, two schooners, which were close-hauled on opposite tacks, came in sight of each other at night at a short distance, and the schooner on the port tack did all she could, by porting her helm and easing her main sheet, but could not avoid collision; it was held that the schooner on the starboard tack ought to have ported and eased off her head sheets. In The Paramatta (1891), Stockton's Vice-Admiralty Reports (New Brunswick), 192, a schooner was drifting hove-to on the port tack in foggy weather, and at a distance of a quarter to half a mile came in sight of a barque close-hauled on the starboard tack and making between four and five knots an hour, and had no time to swing off and clear the barque; it was held that the barque ought to have seen that the schooner was helpless to manœuvre, and that the barque could easily have swung off one or two points to clear her, and was alone to blame. In The General Gordon (1892), 7 Asp. M. L. C. 317, H. L., a fishing smack was lying-to on the starboard tack with one hand on deck and helm lashed a-lee, when another fishing smack crossed ahead of her on the port tack and, coming round on the starboard tack, came off the wind and struck the smack, which took no steps to avoid the collision. The first smack was charged with negligence in not having two hands on deck so that the foresail sheet could have been let go, and the helm put down; but there was held to be no evidence that this smack had in any way contributed to the collision, and the other smack was alone to blame. In The Aimo, The Amelia (1873), 2 Asp. M. L. C. 96, P. C., a ship close-hauled on the port tack had her headgear carried away and could not bear up, and the other ship, in ignorance of this, kept her course; the collision was held to be an inevitable accident. Compare The Zadok (1883), 9 P. D. 114 (on a barque in fog, when a steamer's whistle was heard, hands sailing vessel to alter her course to avoid crossing the bows of one of a fleet of warships sailing in formation (g).

It is the duty of a sailing vessel to take action, under the note to this article, when she finds herself so close that the other vessel cannot by herself keep out of the way. Large allowance, however, should be made for the officer in charge, as in the case of a keep-on steam vessel, and very clear proof of contributory negligence should be required; because the other vessel which is charging negligence has caused the difficulty, and the decision has to be made suddenly and almost in the agony of collision, when perfect nerve and presence of mind ought not to be required by the court, and no alteration should be made as long as there is any reasonable probability of the other vessel keeping out of the way, since otherwise action may counteract the manœuvres of the other vessel and cause collision (h).

When a vessel sailing close-hauled, whose duty it is to keep on, is compelled to alter her course to assist in avoiding collision, she should do so as a rule not by going off, but by luffing up to the wind and thereby stopping her way and mitigating the effect of a collision (i).

Article 22.

647. Article 22 of the Sea Regulations, 1910, is as follows :—

Article 22.

Every vessel which is directed by these Rules to keep out of the way of another vessel shall, if the circumstances of the case admit, avoid crossing ahead of the other. (1897)

Application of rule.

648. This article applies to all vessels which should keep out of the way under articles 17, 19, 20, 24, and 26.

Under this article it can never be right for the giving-way vessel when there is risk of collision to cross ahead of the keep-on vessel, if the circumstances admit of her passing astern (k).

should have been stationed ready to work the braces etc., so as to help to throw off the ship's head if necessary when the steamer came in sight).

(g) H.M.S. Sutlej (1905), 21 T. L. R. 325, C. A., where a fleet of eight warships was proceeding at night in two columns of four; a sailing vessel was approaching to pass between the third and fourth vessels of the port column, and was alone in fault for a collision through not keeping her course and speed.

(h) Compare Ship "Tasmania" (Owners and Owners of Freight) v. Smith and Ship "City of Corinth" (Owners), The "Tasmania" (1890), 15 App. Cas. 223, 226, 235, 238. Before 1897, when the note to this article was introduced, a keep-on sailing vessel was bound to take action when she ought to have concluded that the other vessel was not going to keep out of the way; see The William Frederick, The Byfoged Christensen (1879), 4 App. Cas. 669, 672, P. C. As soon as it was, or ought to have been, obvious that to keep her course would involve immediate danger, the officer in charge was not only justified in departing from it, but bound to do so, and to exercise his best judgment to avoid the danger (Ship "Tasmania" (Owners and Owners of Freight) v. Smith and Ship "City of Corinth" (Owners), The "Tasmania," supra, at p. 226). If she could then reasonably have made some effort to avoid the collision, and did not do so, but pertinaciously kept her course, she was to blame (The William Frederick, The Byfoged Christensen, supra; The Commerce (1850), 3 Wm. Rob. 287, 298; The Rosalie (1880), 5 P. D. 245). But she was only required to act in a very clear case of necessity (The William Frederick, The Byfoged Christensen, supra); and she was wrong if she acted before there was immediate danger (The Spring (1866), L. R. 1 A. & E. 99).

(i) The "Agra" and "Elizabeth Jenkins" (1867), L. R. 1 P. C. 501, 505.

(k) Before this article was introduced it was well established that a

SECT. 2. Regulations for Preventing Collisions etc.

Under this article a steam vessel should port to a red light on her starboard bow approaching with risk of collision. If there are difficulties of navigation which prevent this, she should stop and wait till the red light has crossed her bows, or she may run away under a hard-a-starboard helm, although that will be in most circumstances a much less advisable course (l).

Article 23.

649. Article 23 of the Sea Regulations, 1910, is as follows :—

Article 23.

> Every steam vessel which is directed by these Rules to keep out of the way of another vessel shall, on approaching her, if necessary, slacken her speed or stop or reverse. (1863) (m)

Object of rule.

650. The object of this article is to obviate the risk and minimise the results of collision ; and the more imminent the risk, the more imperative is the necessity for implicit obedience to the rule (n). Slackening speed, or stopping or reversing, not only directly avoids collision in some cases, but also in other cases indirectly assists to avoid both collision and even the risk of it by allowing more time and space for manœuvres.

Application of rule.

651. The rules referred to in this article are articles 19, 20, and 24. When any of the rules imposes on a steam vessel the duty to "keep out of the way," there is a correlative duty on the other giving-way vessel when there was risk of collision was entitled to keep out of the way by crossing ahead or astern, and even if necessary by increasing her speed in order to cross ahead (The Leverington (1886), 11 P. D. 117, C. A.).

(l) The Ashton, [1905] P. 21, 31; The Try Again (1908), Shipping Gazette, 2nd June.

(m) The Sea Regulations, 1863, art. 16, which corresponded to this article, was : "Every steamship, when approaching another ship so as to involve risk of collision, shall slacken her speed, or, if necessary, stop and reverse, and every steamship shall, when in a fog, go at a moderate speed." The Sea Regulations, 1880, art. 18, was : "Every steamship, when approaching another ship, so as to involve risk of collision, shall slacken her speed or stop and reverse, if necessary." The Sea Regulations, 1884, art. 18, was in the same words. Four important changes were made in this article in 1897. First, by an alteration in the earlier words of the article it became no longer applicable to the keep-on vessel, and was confined to a giving-way vessel ; the former rule (art. 16 of 1863 and art. 18 of 1880 and 1884) was unique in applying to both of two vessels on all possible occasions when approaching so as to involve risk of collision, and was described as a rule "wholly independent" of the other rules ; see The Beryl (1884), 9 P. D. 137, 140, C. A. Secondly, the words "so as to involve risk of collision" were omitted. Thirdly, the position of the words "if necessary" was altered so as more clearly to qualify the obligation to slacken speed as well as the other obligations. Fourthly, the words "stop and reverse" were altered to "stop or reverse." Also in 1911 the principle of presumption of fault in case of infringement, which had greatly affected the interpretation of this article (see, for instance, Stoomvaart Maatschappy Nederland v. Peninsular and Oriental Steam Navigation Co. (1880), 5 App. Cas. 876), was done away with by the Maritime Conventions Act, 1911 (1 & 2 Geo. 5, c. 57), s. 4 (1).

(n) Stoomvaart Maatschappy Nederland v. Peninsular and Oriental Steam Navigation Co., supra, per Lord WATSON, at pp. 903, 904; compare Maclaren v. Compagnie Française de Navigation à Vapeur (1884), 9 App. Cas. 640, per Lord WATSON, at pp. 651, 652; compare The Zadok (1883), 9 P. D. 114, 115, as to the similar object of stopping under art. 16.

vessel under article 21 to keep her course and speed; and therefore article 23 only comes into force when this correlative duty exists. Thus it does not apply to vessels which come under the end-on rule (article 18), and the duty of such vessels to slacken speed or stop or reverse depends on the dictates of good seamanship.

This article does not apply to vessels which have to keep their course and speed under article 21, and their duty to slacken speed or stop or reverse depends on that article (o). Nor does it apply to vessels in fog, for in such cases the fog rules (articles 15 and 16) apply; this and the other steering and sailing rules are only intended to be applicable when the vessels are in sight of each other (p).

Burden of proof.

652. The burden of proving a breach of this article is upon those who allege it (q).

"On approaching her."

653. "On approaching her" only means when there is a continuous approaching of the two vessels, if they are approaching one another at a considerable distance in fine weather (r).

From the omission of the words "so as to involve risk of collision" from the present article it may be inferred that it was intended to leave the duty under the article more at large; the obligation under it, both

(o) See art. 21, p. 445, ante. The cases decided under the Sea Regulations, 1863, 1880, and 1884, as to the vessel which had the duty to keep her course obeying also the rule to stop and reverse which applied to her under those Regulations, have no longer any direct application; see The Beryl (1884), 9 P. D. 137, C. A.; Liverpool, Brazil, and River Plate Steam Navigation Co. v. Campanhia Bahiana de Navegacio a Vapor, The Memnon (1889), 6 Asp. M. L. C. 488, H. L.; The Oporto, [1897] P. 249, C. A.

(p) The King (1911), 27 T. L. R. 524; compare The Cathay (1899), 9 Asp. M. L. C. 35. In the Sea Regulations, 1863, the rule as to slackening speed or stopping and reversing, and the rule as to moderate speed in a fog, were included in the same article. And when the two rules were placed in different articles in the Sea Regulations, 1880 and 1884, they remained closely connected. Thus, in circumstances in which moderate speed in a fog meant going as slowly as possible, a breach of the rule as to moderate speed when approaching another ship, so as to involve risk of collision, involved a breach of the rule as to slackening speed; see The Ebor (1886), 11 P. D. 25, 29, C. A. As to cases decided with regard to reversing in fog under the Sea Regulations, 1863, art. 16, and the Sea Regulations, 1880 and 1884, art. 18, see under art. 16, p. 414, ante.

(q) Steamship "Lebanon" (Owners) v. Steamship "Ceto" (Owners), The "Ceto" (1889), 14 App. Cas. 670, per Lord SELBORNE, at p. 676. When the master of a steamer testified that the engines were stopped and reversed as soon as ordered by the compulsory pilot, but the pilot testified to the contrary, and the engineer was not called as a witness, the steamer was held to blame (The Ripon (1848), 6 Notes of Cases, 245).

(r) Compare The "Jesmond" and The "Earl of Elgin" (1871), L. R. 4 P. C. 7 (decided on the Sea Regulations, 1863, art. 16). When a barge steering S.E. by S., a little above the Nore light in the river Thames, saw on her port bow the red light of a steamer steering west, the barge was not "approaching or being approached by any other vessel," so as to be bound to show a light under the Admiralty Notice respecting Lights, 1852; see The Ceres (1857), Sw. 250. It was held that an overtaken steamship could not be "approaching" the overtaking ship within the meaning of the Sea Regulations, 1863, art. 16; see The Franconia (1876), 2 P. D. 8, 13, C. A.

SECT 2. Regulations for Preventing Collisions etc.

as regards time and as regards a breach not involving a statutory presumption of fault, appears to be less stringent than formerly (s).

"If necessary."

654. The words "if necessary" now apply to slackening speed as well as to stopping or reversing (t).

"Necessary" is a word of flexible meaning to be interpreted according to the circumstances (a). It does not allow the officer in charge of the steam vessel to wait till the last moment. It does not mean that the situation is such that without stopping or reversing a collision will take place; "necessary" means rather "prudent" or "expedient" (b). The question is whether the facts were such that, as a prudent and reasonable person, the officer who is responsible for the navigation of the ship should have acted under the rule (c). The necessity must be such as would be apparent to a seaman of ordinary skill and prudence with the knowledge which he possesses at the time (d). It does not depend upon the state of facts afterwards ascertained, unless there was enough to tell him at the time what the condition of facts was (e). Thus the important consideration is not whether the rule was in fact applicable, but whether the circumstances were such that it ought to have been present to the mind of the person in charge that it was applicable (f); for a regulation can hardly be said to have been infringed by him till he knows, or ought to have known, and but for his negligence would have known, of the change of circumstances which brings the regulation into force (g).

If the officer in charge is uncertain whether it is his best course to keep on at full speed or to reverse, he should obey the rule and reverse (h). A man is not bound to exercise his judgment instantaneously as to stopping and reversing his engines; a short,

(s) Compare The Boynton (1898), 14 T. L. R. 173.

(t) The original words in 1863 were "slacken her speed or, if necessary, stop and reverse." In 1880 and 1884 these words became "slacken her speed or stop and reverse, if necessary"; but under these words it was still held that the slackening of speed was imperative when there was risk of collision, whereas the act of stopping and reversing was only required when there was necessity for it; see Steamship "Lebanon" (Owners) v. Steamship "Ceto" (Owners), The "Ceto" (1889), 14 App. Cas. 670, per Lord WATSON, at p. 684.

(a) Ibid., at pp. 670, 676, 690, per Lord SELBORNE and Lord FITZGERALD (a dissenting judgment).

(b) Ibid., at p. 689, per Lord BRAMWELL (as to art. 18 of the Sea Regulations, 1884).

(c) Ibid., at pp. 673, 693, 694, per Lord HALSBURY, L.C., and Lord HERSCHELL.

(d) Ibid., per Lord HERSCHELL, at p. 694.

(e) Ibid., per Lord HALSBURY, L.C., at p. 673. The suggestions in The Beryl (1884), 9 P. D. 137, 144, 145, C. A., that the necessity might mean actual necessity or necessity determined by the event, are thus negatived.

(f) The Beryl, supra, per BRETT, M.R., at p. 139. "The rules can only apply to circumstances which must or ought to be known to the parties" (ibid., per BRETT, M.R., at p. 138).

(g) Stoomvaart Maatschappy Nederland v. Peninsular and Oriental Steam Navigation Co. (1880), 5 App. Cas. 876, at pp. 894, 902, per Lord BLACKBURN and Lord WATSON; compare Baker v. "Theodore H. Rand" (Owners), The "Theodore H. Rand" (1887), 12 App. Cas. 247, 250.

(h) Windram v. Robertson (1905), 42 Sc. L. R. 602, 606.

but a very short, time must be allowed him for this purpose (i). A master has been held in fault for delaying to stop and reverse for about a minute (k), but not for a delay of a few seconds (l). Full speed astern is an emergency order, and according to the practice of engineers should be executed with extreme promptitude; more so, as a matter of seconds, than the order full speed ahead when a vessel is moving slowly ahead (m).

Duty of giving-way vessel.

655. A giving-way vessel appears to be entitled to keep out of the way of the other vessel by using her helm when at a sufficient distance without altering her engines under this article (n).

Rule is continuous.

656. This article relates to three operations, namely, slackening speed or stopping or reversing, and therefore comes into operation from time to time whenever the circumstances existing at the time make it necessary that the article should be acted on (o). A vessel which has properly slackened speed under it has been held to blame for not obeying it by reversing (p).

Distinction between rule and obligations of good seamanship.

657. A difference appears to exist between the obligation to slacken speed or stop or reverse under this article, and the similar obligation under the dictates of good seamanship. This article is a general rule to be adopted in certain circumstances by all persons in charge of the navigation of vessels, for the sake of the safety of their own vessel, and of the vessel approaching at a distance commanded by a man who has no right or reason to suppose that the other person will break the rule (q). Hence, even if it would, in the absence of such a positive rule, be better seamanship to

(i) The Emmy Haase (1884), 9 P. D. 81; S.S. "Kwang Tung" (Owner) v. S.S. "Ngapoota" (Owners), The "Ngapoota," [1897] A. C. 391, P. C.

(k) Stoomvaart Maatschappy Nederland v. Peninsular and Oriental Steam Navigation Co. (1880), 5 App. Cas. 876, 882, 888, 898.

(l) S.S. "Kwang Tung" (Owner) v. S.S. "Ngapoota" (Owners), The "Ngapoota," supra.

(m) Stephen & Sons, Ltd. v. Allan Line Steamship Co., Ltd., [1911] S. C. 836, 844.

(n) Under the Sea Regulations, 1863, a steamship, which was bound to slacken her speed when approaching another ship so as to involve risk of collision, was not bound to slacken her speed if she had determined the risk of collision by porting (The "Jesmond" and The "Earl of Elgin" (1871), L. R. 4 P. C. 1 (in this case the end-on rule applied)). And under the Sea Regulations, 1880, art. 18, by which a steamship was bound when approaching another ship, so as to involve risk of collision, to stop and reverse if necessary, a steamship which was coming round a point and saw the masthead and red lights of another steamship about a mile off on her starboard bow, hard-a-ported and only stopped and reversed when it was perceived that her helm would not answer owing to an eddy tide, and was held not to blame (Scicluna v. Stevenson, The "Rhondda" (1883), 8 App. Cas. 549, P. C.). Under a later rule in the same terms it was held not to be necessary for two approaching steamers to stop and reverse until it became apparent to the eye that if they continued to approach they would in all likelihood either shave close or collide (Steamship "Lebanon" (Owners) v. Steamship "Ceto" (Owners), The "Ceto" (1889), 14 App. Cas. 670, per Lord WATSON, at p. 686).

(o) The Beryl (1884), 9 P. D. 137, C. A., per FRY, L.J., at p. 145.

(p) Ibid.

(q) Stoomvaart Maatschappy Nederland v. Peninsular and Oriental Steam Navigation Co., supra, per Lord HATHERLEY, at p. 909 (as to the Sea Regulations, 1863, art. 16).

SECT. 2. Regulations for Preventing Collisions etc.

keep way on the ship in order to make her more manageable, the opposite course has been prescribed when prudent and must be followed (r). Thus it appears that a vessel may be held in fault for not reversing under the rule when, if there had been no rule, she might not have been in fault. This difference of obligation, however, cannot be pressed very far, and probably in many cases it makes no difference whether the rule exists or not (s).

It is the duty of the officer in charge of a steamer, whether under this rule or the duty of good seamanship, to slacken speed on approaching close to a vessel at night when he is uncertain as to her course (t).

A steamer ought not to proceed at full speed when the wind is such that her smoke is blown over her bows so that she cannot properly see or be seen by other vessels; and a steamer approaching another steamer, of which only the smoke can be seen, so that it cannot be known whether she is end-on or passing clear or crossing, ought to slacken her speed (a).

An overtaking steamer has been held to blame for starboarding only and not reversing, when the overtaken steamer, a length and a half on the starboard bow and about a length in advance, wrongly starboarded across her bows (b).

(r) Stoomvaart Maatschappy Nederland v. Peninsular and Oriental Steam Navigation Co. (1880), 5 App. Cas. 876, per Lord BLACKBURN, at p. 895.

(s) Compare Steamship "Lebanon" (Owners) v. Steamship "Ceto" (Owners), The "Ceto" (1889), 14 App. Cas. 670, per Lord WATSON, at p. 686.

(t) At night the master of a steamer, going at eight and a half or nine knots, observed a sailing vessel three miles off a little on his starboard bow, and owing to not being able to see her light was uncertain what was her course, and ported and hard-a-ported seven points off his course, and afterwards came into collision; he was held in fault for not slackening speed until he could ascertain her course (Beal v. Marchais, The "Bougainville" and The "James C. Stevenson" (1873), L. R. 5 P. C. 316, 323). Owing to the defective light of a sailing vessel, the officer in charge of a steamer saw something on his starboard bow but could not tell what, and he had a small space of time to act; he was held in fault for starboarding and keeping on at full speed instead of stopping and reversing (Windram v. Robertson (1905), 42 Sc. L. R. 602, 605). Those on board a steamer, having passed several fishing boats, mistook the light of a vessel sailing on the port tack for that of a fishing boat at her nets, and starboarded; though the mistake was not an unreasonable one, the steamer was held to blame for not adopting the more prudent measure of easing or stopping (The Birkenhead (1848), 3 Wm. Rob. 75; compare The James Watt (1844), 2 Wm. Rob. 270, 277). The master of a steamer steering N.E. saw a light a little on the starboard bow, and did not exactly know what it was, but thought it was a green light of a vessel standing away from him, when it was in fact the white light of a pilot cutter hove-to and heading S.W.; he starboarded and kept on for ten minutes at full speed, and afterwards the pilot cutter put her helm down and the steamer ported and came into collision; the steamer was held to blame for not slowing and stopping until the position of the other vessel had been ascertained (The General Lee, of Dublin (1869), 19 L. T. 750).

(a) The Rona, The Ava (1873), 2 Asp. M. L. C. 182. When a steamer was proceeding with the wind aft, and her smoke obscured a vessel approaching her until almost in contact, she was held to blame for not slackening speed, (The Vivid (1849),7 Notes of Cases, 127). As to steamers slackening speed, see, further, pp. 487, 488, post.

(b) S.S. "Nord Kap" v. S.S. "Sandhill," The "Sandhill," [1894] A. C. 646.

658. There are sometimes good excuses for not stopping or reversing. Thus, when the crossing rule applied, the giving-way vessel has been excused for not reversing owing to want of room (c). Similarly a trawler may be excused from reversing if she has her trawl down (d). A tug, however, with a tow will be to blame for not stopping under the article when this is practicable (e). A vessel is excused from reversing if the other vessel is so close when the danger arises that the only chance of avoiding collision is by continuing the vessel's speed (f); but when the officer in charge of a steamer at night saw something on his starboard bow, but could not tell what, the fact that as the screw was right-handed the head of his steamer would have tended to go to starboard was held to be no excuse for starboarding and keeping on instead of reversing (g). Similarly, the fact that reversing the left-handed screw would have deadened the effect of the proper port helm was held to be no excuse for not reversing (h).

When departure from rule justified.

The officer in charge of a steamer has been excused for taking the wrong step in the agony of collision. A ship has no right by her own misconduct to put another ship into a situation of extreme peril and difficulty, and then charge that other ship with misconduct (i). But this principle only applies when the first vessel's negligence leads directly to the second vessel breaking the rule (k).

A vessel has been held not to blame when she ought to have reversed immediately before the collision and did not do so, but if she had it would not have made the slightest difference to the collision (l).

659. Quite apart from this article there is a duty upon a steam vessel to slacken her speed or stop or reverse when good seamanship requires it (m); and since 1897 this duty has applied to vessels in Similar obligation of good seamanship.

(c) The Hazelmere, [1911] P. 69, C. A.

(d) The Tweedsdale (1889), 14 P. D. 164, 168.

(e) The Challenge and Duc d'Aumale, [1905] P. 198, C. A. (a decision upon art. 16).

(f) The Benares (1883), 9 P. D. 16, C. A.

(g) Windram v. Robertson (1905), 42 Sc. L. R. 602, 606. If a vessel has a right-handed propeller, that is, one which revolves from left to right when looked at from astern, her head is apt to cut to starboard when her engines are put full speed astern; and there is an opposite tendency with a left-handed propeller.

(h) Ocean Steamship Co., S.S. "Hebe" (Owners) v. Apcar & Co., S.S. "Arratoon Apcar" (Owners), The "Arratoon Apcar" (1889), 15 App. Cas. 37, 40, P. C.

(i) The Bywell Castle (1873), 4 P. D. 219, 223, C. A. (the wrong step in this case was porting to a green light); The Olympic and H.M.S. Hawke, [1913] P. 214, 280, C. A.

(k) Windram v. Robertson, supra, per Lord DUNEDIN, L.P., at p. 605.

(l) The Harton (1884), 9 P. D. 44.

(m) See The "Trident" (1854), 1 Ecc. & Ad. 217, before the introduction of the article in 1863. (In this case a steamer, going down the Thames against the tide and coming round Blackwall Point, after stopping her engines came into collision with a barge in mid-channel; she was held to blame for not reversing). A steamer on a dark and thick night, proceeding across a channel near the entrance to the river Thames in order to come to anchor, was held to blame for not easing her engines (The Ceres (1857), Sw. 250). As to the rule in the river Thames for a vessel navigating many circumstances which would have come within the wider terms of the article before that date.

SECT. 2. Regulations for Preventing Collisions etc.

General duty to stop or reverse engines.

660. It is a seaman's reasonable duty to stop and reverse when the circumstances are such that it must be apparent to the eye that if the vessels continue to approach they will in all probability either shave close or collide (n).

Duty arising from incorrect behaviour of other vessel.

661. There is often a duty to stop or reverse when two vessels have been approaching safely and one alters so as to cause danger (o); on the other hand, the officer in charge of a steam vessel need not stop or reverse if he has a right to suppose that the other vessel, though she acted wrongly, will not continue in her obstinacy (p), but will take proper steps to clear (q).

against the tide to wait before rounding certain points until any other vessels rounding the point with the tide have passed clear, see The Libra (1881), 6 P. D. 139, C. A.

(n) The Archtor (1908), Shipping Gazette, 7th March, C. A., per KENNEDY, L.J., citing Steamship "Lebanon" (Owners) v. Steamship "Ceto" (Owners), The "Ceto" (1889), 14 App. Cas. 670, 686.

(o) The City of Berlin, [1908] P. 110, C. A.; The Nereo (1907), Shipping Gazette, 2nd November; on appeal (1908), Shipping Gazette, 7th March, C. A. (two steam vessels were meeting in a narrow channel and collided; one was to blame for not showing side lights, for showing a mysterious white light, and for not giving a port helm signal when the helm was ported; but the second vessel was also to blame because, seeing the white light narrowing on the port bow at a short distance and getting nearer, involving risk of collision, she hard-a-ported and kept full speed ahead instead of going full speed astern); The Archtor, supra (two steamers were approaching in the Bristol Channel red to red, one going nine and the other nine and a half knots, and the first steamer at a distance of a quarter to half a mile and two to three points on the port bow of the other wrongly shut in her red and opened her green. The second mate, who was in charge of the second steamer, thought it was his duty to keep his course and speed, and stamped on deck to summon the master, who came on the bridge and stopped and reversed the engines. The second steamer was held also to blame, because the second mate, when he saw the red light did not broaden at half a mile and then saw the green at a quarter to half a mile, ought to have stopped and reversed at once); The Oporto, [1897] P. 249 (where the officer of a steamship in the Swin Channel, having the green light of another steamship half a mile off on his port bow crossing to the wrong side, was not justified in waiting to see if there would be a change of light until the vessels were only a quarter of a mile apart); Ocean Steamship Co., S.S. "Hebe" (Owners) v. Apcar & Co., S.S. "Arratoon Apcar" (Owners), The "Arratoon Apcar" (1889), 15 App. Cas. 40 (decided on the Sea Regulations, 1884, art. 18); The Stanmore (1885), 10 P. D. 134, C. A. (a steam vessel was held to blame for stopping only and not reversing when the vessels were green to green on opposite courses, and the other vessel at a little more than a quarter of a mile off on the starboard bow was seen to be porting); Stoomvaart Maatschappy Nederland v. Peninsular and Oriental Steam Navigation Co. (1880), 5 App. Cas. 876 (two steamers were approaching green to green on parallel courses at somewhat less than a mile, when one wrongly put her helm hard-a-port; the master of the other hard-a-starboarded, and delayed for about a minute to stop and reverse, and for this delay was held to be in fault).

(p) The Beryl (1884), 9 P. D. 137, 142, C. A.

(q) See China Navigation Co., Ltd. v. Asiatic Petroleum Co., Ltd. and Taku Tug and Lighterage Co., Ltd., [1910] A. C. 204, P. C. (a steamer was held free from blame for not stopping, when she was in a river approaching red to red with a tug towing a lighter, though her signal that she was porting was not answered by the tug); The Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse, [1907] P. 259, 662. Article 24 of the Sea Regulations is as follows :— Article 24.

Article 24.

Notwithstanding anything contained in these Rules, every vessel, overtaking any other, shall keep out of the way of the overtaken vessel. (1863) (r)

Every vessel coming up with another vessel from any direction more than two points abaft her beam, i.e., in such a position, with reference to the vessel which she is overtaking, that at night she would be unable to see either of that vessel's side-lights, shall be deemed to be an overtaking vessel; and no subsequent alteration of the bearing between the two vessels shall make the overtaking vessel a crossing vessel within the meaning of these Rules, or relieve her of the duty of keeping clear of the overtaken vessel until she is finally past and clear. (1897)

As by day the overtaking vessel cannot always know with certainty whether she is forward or abaft this direction from the other vessel, she should, if in doubt, assume that she is an overtaking vessel and keep out of the way. (1897)

663. The words "these Rules" in the first line of the article refer to articles 17, 19, 20 and 26 (s). Although the words "so as to "... these Rules."

266, 267, C. A. (when a steamship, going into a harbour entrance which was a narrow channel, was approaching a second steamship which was coming out and showing her green, and the second steamship improperly sounded a starboard helm signal when about half a mile off or nearer, the first steamship was entitled to pause before acting on that signal); Wilson, Sons & Co. v. Currie, [1894] A. C. 116 (reasonable anticipation that other ship would attend to sound signal is excuse for not stopping and reversing earlier): The "Jesmond" and The "Earl of Elgin" (1871), L. R. 4 P. C. 1, 7 (decided on the Sea Regulations, 1863, art. 16), where it was held that a steamer having terminated an original risk of collision was under no duty to slacken her speed.

(r) The corresponding art. 17 of the Sea Regulations, 1863, was: "Every vessel overtaking any other vessel shall keep out of the way of the said last-mentioned vessel." This article and the crossing rule (art. 14) of the same regulations left a doubt in some cases as to the relative duties of ships one of which was under these articles at once a crossing and an overtaking ship; for instance, when an overtaking steamship came up before the starboard beam of another steamship and was on a course which crossed hers, did the overtaking rule still apply notwithstanding the crossing rule? Accordingly art. 20 of the Sea Regulations, 1880, the first words of which were directed to remove such doubt (The Seaton (1883), 9 P. D. 1, 2), was as follows: "Notwithstanding anything contained in any preceding article, every ship, whether a sailing ship or a steamship, shall keep out of the way of the overtaken ship." The terms of art. 20 of 1880 also made it clear that a sailing ship when overtaking a steamship was bound to keep out of the way notwithstanding the rule (art. 17 of 1880) that when a steamship and sailing ship were proceeding in such directions as to involve risk of collision, the steamship should keep out of the way of the sailing ship. There had been a decision by Dr. LUSHINGTON to this effect under the Sea Regulations, 1863 (The Wheatsheaf v. The Intrepide (1866), 13 L. T. 612), but in a later case Sir ROBERT PHILLIMORE had left this point open (The Philotaxe (1877), 3 Asp. M. L. C. 512). In the Sea Regulations, 1884, the overtaking rule (art. 20) remained the same. As regards the terms of the rule in 1880 and 1884, in The Seaton, supra, BUTT, J., said that a vessel might be both overtaking and crossing, but afterwards withdrew this in The Imbro (1889), 14 P. D. 73, 77. In the Sea Regulations, 1897, it was altered into its present form.

(s) The words "these Rules" were substituted in 1897 for "any pre-involve risk of collision" are not inserted in the first paragraph of this article as in most of the other steering and sailing rules, yet the article cannot apply when the vessels are far distant, but only applies when the time comes for action and improper action will involve risk of collision (t). If one vessel has aleady overhauled another before there was any question of risk of collision, and first comes in sight of the other's side light at a considerable distance, it may be that some other rule than the overtaking (u) rule, for instance the crossing rule, will apply (v); but if the overtaking rule has once applied, the overtaking vessel must keep out of the way until she is past and clear. Thus a steam vessel which is an "overtaking" vessel within the definition, even if her course intersects that of the other vessel, cannot come within the crossing rule (article 19) either when she is more than two points abaft the beam or when she has come before the beam of the other, until at any rate she has become finally past and clear (a).

SECT. 2. Regulations for Preventing Collisions etc.

The definition of an overtaking vessel in the second paragraph of this article (b), and the continuation of the obligation of the overtaking vessel until past and clear (c), are taken from decided cases.

Overtaking vessel.

664. The definition of "an overtaking vessel" is a practical rule, and it is not exhaustive (d). It appears to imply three conditions: greater speed, a similar direction within a wide range, and a certain degree of nearness.

As regards speed, it appears that one vessel cannot be "overceding article" in the corresponding article of the Sea Regulations, 1884, apparently in order to include any case under art. 26, which was then a new rule.

(t) The Banshee (1887), 6 Asp. M. L. C. 221, C. A., per Lord ESHER, M.R., and LINDLEY, L.J.

(u) As regards the meaning of "overtaking," see, further, under art. 10, p. 401, ante.

(v) The Molière, [1893] P. 217, 221.

(a) See the terms of this article, and The Franconia (1876), 2 P. D. 8, 12, C. A.

(b) In The Franconia, supra, the Court of Appeal laid down the following definition: if the ships were in such a position and were on such courses and distances that if it were night the hinder ship could not see any part of the lights of the forward ship, then if the hinder ship was going faster, she was an overtaking ship. It had been argued to the contrary (see ibid., at p. 11) as if ships must always be under the crossing rule, even when one came up astern of the other, unless they were going on parallel or nearly parallel lines; but it was held ibid., as it had been in The Chanonry (1873), 1 Asp. M. L. C. 569, that when one vessel was coming up astern of the other, they did not come within the crossing rule, although their courses intersected. In The Peckforton Castle (1878), 3 P. D. 11, C. A., the Court of Appeal, as then constituted, refused to give unqualified assent without further argument to the definition of "overtaking" in The Franconia, supra, on the ground that it was not a necessary part of the decision; compare The Breadalbane (1881), 7 P. D. 186. But the altered article in the Sea Regulations, 1880 and 1884, which directed in effect that the overtaking rule should override the crossing rule, gave support to the decision and the definition in The Franconia, supra; and the definition laid down in that case was afterwards treated in the Court of Appeal as undoubted law; see The Main (1886), 11 P. D. 132, 138, C. A.

(c) The Molière, supra.

(d) The Main, supra, at p. 136.

taking" another which is not under way; but she may be overtaking if the other vessel is lying-to (e). A vessel must be going faster than the other (f), and have sufficient speed to be coming up with her, in order to be "overtaking."

The divergence of the courses of the overtaking and overtaken vessels may be very wide (g); but it is clear that the duty of keeping out of the way of another vessel is one which arises from the proximity of the two vessels, and without such proximity there can be no such duty (h). This article only applies when, if either of the vessels does anything contrary to the regulations, it will cause danger of collision; and anything done before that time is immaterial (i).

Rights and duties of overtaken vessel.

665. The overtaken vessel is entitled to keep her course and speed without being bound to look round to see what the overtaking vessel is doing; but when she is aware of a vessel overtaking her and the article is applicable, she has no right to alter her course or speed without looking to see where the overtaking vessel is (k).

While the overtaken vessel keeps her course, the obligation of the overtaking vessel to keep out of her way is absolute (l). The (e) Compare The Helvetia (1868), 3 Asp. M. L. C. 43, n., P. C. (a case under the crossing rule); The Eleanor v. The Alma (1865), 2 Mar. L. C. 240.

(f) The Franconia (1876), 2 P. D. 8, C. A.

(g) The Seaton (1883), 9 P. D. 1; The King's County (1904), 20 T. L. R. 202. Under a Tyne bye-law "when steam vessels are proceeding in the same direction," but with unequal speed, the vessel which steamed slowest should keep sufficiently to port and offer no obstruction to the free passage of the faster vessel, but "no vessel overtaking any other vessel" would be justified in passing such vessel at certain places. This bye-law was considered only to apply to a vessel overtaking and passing another actually upon the same course with itself (The Henry Morton (1874), 2 Asp. M. L. C. 466, P. C.).

(h) The Main (1886), 11 P. D. 132, C. A., per Lord ESHER, M.R., at p. 138.

(i) Thus the article was held not to apply when four minutes before a collision the overtaken steamship, being 800 yards ahead, ported to pass a pilot cutter (The Banshee (1887), 6 Asp. M. L. C. 221, C. A., per Lord ESHER, M.R., at p. 222).

(k) Compare The Banshee, supra, at p. 223. As to the duty of the overtaken vessel to keep her course and speed, see under art. 21, p. 445, ante. And as to the right of a sailing vessel in a river when she can no longer stand on to go about without notice to a following steamer, see The Palatine (1872), 1 Asp. M. L. C. 468, and see pp. 492, 493, post.

(l) When a screw steamer alleged that she had been drawn out of her course by suction of a larger screw steamer passing her, it was held that as the overtaking steamer was bound to keep clear of the other, it was enough to find that from no fault of the overtaken vessel she had failed to do so (The "Hilda" (Owners) v. The "Australia" (Owners) (1884), 12 R. (Ct. of Sess.) 76; compare The Olympic and H.M.S. Hawke, [1913] P. 214, C. A.). Before the overtaking rule existed, when one brig was passing another, which was drifting in a river, she was held bound to take such measures as would enable her to pass with safety (The Globe (1848), 6 Notes of Cases, 275). And if it was practicable for a vessel which was following close upon the track of another to pursue a course which was safe, and she adopted one that was perilous, if mischief ensued she was answerable for all the consequences (The John Munn (1848), Stuart's Vice-Admiralty Court Cases, Lower Canada, 265; compare The Batavier (1854), 1 Ecc. & Ad. 378, 382).

SECT. 2. Regulations for Preventing Collisions etc.

overtaken vessel may be excused for deviating from her course owing to immediate danger, for instance owing to another vessel or a rock or wreck in her way, or, if she is a sailing vessel, owing to a hurricane catching her sails. But if, when the article applies, she deviates from her course for another vessel when not obliged to do so, or deviates more than is necessary, then the absolute obligation on the overtaking vessel is gone, and that vessel is only bound to act reasonably, and the burden then falls on the overtaken vessel of justifying her action (m).

Sailing vessels.

666. A sailing vessel, coming up with a steam vessel and in the position stated in this article, is an overtaking vessel, and must keep out of the way, notwithstanding article 20 (n).

When one sailing vessel is overhauling another, the question generally turns on the duties of good seamanship rather than on the terms of the overtaking rule (o).

When one sailing vessel is overhauling another on the same tack, and they will arrive at a point where both must tack, the leading vessel must not suddenly go about under the bows of the other; and no vessel must keep her course and run into another vessel which she sees is going about (p).

(m) The Saragossa (1892), 7 Asp. M. L. C. 289, C. A., per Lord ESHER, M.R., and LOPES, L.J.; KAY, L.J., however, did not accept this change of obligation on the overtaking vessel. Before the rule to show a stern light was introduced, a steamer was held to blame for collision with an overtaken sailing vessel, the burden being on her to show that it was impracticable to avoid collision; see The Hannah Park and The Lena (1866), 2 Mar. L. C. 345; compare S.S. Nova Scotian v. S.S. Quebec (1875), 2 Quebec Law Reports, 1 (steamer held to blame for trying to pass another steamer in a river under dangerous circumstances when she could have avoided this by slackening speed); The Farewell (1882), 8 Quebec Law Repotrs, 87 (steamer trying to pass a tug and tow in a narrow channel in similar circumstances).

(n) So decided under the Sea Regulations, 1863; see The Wheatsheaf v. The Intrepide (1866), 13 L. T. 612, and The Philotaxe (1877), 3 Asp. M. L. C. 512 (see note (r), p. 461, ante). "Sailing ship" was expressly included in the overtaking rule in the Sea Regulations, 1880 and 1884. But its omission in 1897 made no difference, as a sailing vessel is a "vessel" within the article.

(o) Two sailing vessels were beating down the river Mersey, and in the process of tacking from side to side one gradually overhauled the other, and the overhauling vessel while close-hauled on the starboard tack came into collision one-third of the way across the river with the other vessel close-hauled on the port tack; it was held that the overtaking rule could not apply as, if it did, the overhauling vessel's duty would have been to keep out of the way and not cross ahead, and the other vessel would have been bound to keep her course, and these duties could not be carried out; and that art. 17 (b) applied, and it was the duty of the vessel close-hauled on the port tack, though being overhauled, to keep out of the way of the other (The Annie, [1909] P. 176).

(p) Ibid; see also The Priscilla (1870), L. R. 3 A. & E. 125; p. 493, post; compare The Falkland, The Navigator (1863), Brown. & Lush. 204, where the overtaken ship was held to blame for improperly wearing instead of tacking, and The Crescent (1853), Stuart's Vice-Admiralty Court Cases, Lower Canada, 289, where one steamer ahead of another was held to blame for making a short and unusual turn across the course of the other in a crowded roadstead.

667. Article 25 of the Sea Regulations, 1910, is as follows :—

Article 25.

In narrow channels every steam vessel shall, when it is safe and practicable, keep to that side of the fair-way or mid-channel which lies on the starboard side of such vessel. (1840) (q).

Article 25.

668. Primâ facie a narrow channel (r) is a channel bounded on

"Narrow channel."

(q) The terms of this article have remained the same since 1880, except that in 1897 "vessel" was substituted for "ship." The history of the narrow channel rule is important. Between 1840 and 1863, by the Trinity House Regulations and various statutes, a narrow channel rule, almost to the same effect as in this article, had been applied to steamers; and in various forms a port helm rule (mostly to the effect that vessels meeting one another with risk of collision should pass port to port) had been applied first to steamers and afterwards to sailing vessels. In the Sea Regulations, 1863, however, both the narrow channel rule and the port helm rule were omitted, and from 1863 till 1880 there ceased to be any such rule apart from local regulations. The narrow channel rule for steamers and the port helm rule for crossing steamers were first introduced by the Trinity House Regulations, 1840; see Table in Appendix, post. The narrow channel rule then was: "A steam vessel passing another in a narrow channel, must always leave the vessel she is passing on the larboard hand." This applied to a steamer passing a sailing vessel (The Friends (1842), 1 Wm. Rob. 478, 484); and the rule was of a stringent nature and of almost universal application, and the convenience of steering for the tide could not be regarded, but must give way to the rule when there was risk of collision (The Duke of Sussex (1841), 1 Wm. Rob. 274; The Gazelle (1842), 1 Wm. Rob. 471; The Friends, supra, affirmed, sub nom. General Steam Navigation Co. v. Tonkin, The Friends (1844), 4 Moo. P. C. C. 314). The narrow channel rule for steamers and the port helm rule for meeting steamers were introduced in new forms in stat. (1846) 9 & 10 Vict. c. 100, s. 9. The narrow channel rule was: "Every steam vessel navigating any river or narrow channel shall keep as far as is practicable to that side of the fair-way or mid-channel of such river or channel which lies on the starboard side of such vessel, due regard being had to the tide and to the position of each vessel in such tide." The proviso as to the tide allowed very great scope for judgment; and the meaning was very much that a steamer should keep along her starboard side of the channel, provided it might be done with convenience or safety to the vessel she might meet (The Leith (1849), 7 Notes of Cases, 137); but a steamer was bound to show sufficient cause for not keeping on her starboard side (The Nimrod (1851), 15 Jur. 1201). In the Steam Navigation Act, 1851 (14 & 15 Vict. c. 79), s. 27, the port helm rule was extended to any vessel, thus including sailing vessels; and the narrow channel rule was: "The master of any steam vessel navigating any river or narrow channel shall keep as far as is practicable to that side of the fairway or mid-channel thereof which lies on the starboard side of such vessel." The proviso as to the tide in the previous Act had been omitted on purpose from this rule; and any usage which was contrary to the Act, in order to be valid, had to be based on such a matter of safety as the avoidance of shoals, and could not rest on convenience of steering for the tide (The "Sylph" (1854), 2 Ecc. & Ad. 75; compare The "Panther" (1853), 1 Ecc. & Ad. 31, 34). In the M. S. Act, 1854, ss. 296, 297, the port helm rule (s. 296) was further elaborated, still applying to any vessel. The narrow channel rule was contained in ibid., s. 297. The cases decided under ibid. are cited in note (r), infra, notes (s)—(g), pp. 467, 468, post.

(r) There have been many decisions of the courts as to whether particular waters are narrow channels. In the territorial waters of the United Kingdom the following have been held to be narrow channels:—The Firth of Forth, from the Forth Bridge upwards (Screw Colliery Co. v. Webster or Kerr, [1910] A. C. 165). The river Humber, between the Bull and Clee either side by land, so that a vessel cannot navigate at any great width

SECT. 2. Regulations for Preventing Collisions etc.

Ness buoys on the south side, and the buoys on the north side (The Ashton, [1905] P. 21). In the river Thames, the Swin channel on each side of the Swin Middle lightship (The Oporto, [1897] P. 249, C. A.; before the N. E. Maplin buoy was lighted, vessels bound inwards and outwards passed between the Swin Middle lightship and the Middle Sand, and this passage was a narrow channel within the rule; see The Minnie, [1894] P. 336, C. A.; The Corennie, [1894] P. 338, n.); and a space of water in Sea Reach between four red conical lighted buoys and the Nore Sand buoys to the south of them (The Gustafsberg, [1905] P. 10, 20). The Solent (The Assaye, [1905] P. 289, 291). Falmouth harbour just inside the entrance (The Clydach (1884), 5 Asp. M. L. C. 336). The Bristol Channel in the neighbourhood of the English and Welsh grounds (The Brooklyn City (1885), Pritchard's Admiralty Digest, 3rd ed., p. 2371). Cardiff Drain near Roath Basin channel, in the case of small vessels, which can safely pass each other (The Leverington (1886), 11 P. D. 117, C. A.; 6 Asp. M. L. C. 7; in this case, as appears from the latter report, the steamers were of 581 tons gross and 679 tons register); but in The Red Cross (1907), 10 Asp M. L. C. 521, a barque of 2,785 tons gross was proceeding up Cardiff Drain with a tug fast ahead and astern, and it was held that for good seamanship a steamship of 2,877 tons gross bound out of Roath Basin channel ought to have waited until the incoming traffic up the Cardiff Drain had passed, and that the crossing rule and other Sea Regulations could not be applied in the circumstances. Swansea entrance channel (The Prince Leopold de Belgique, [1909] P. 103). Queenstown harbour entrance channel (The Glengariff, [1905] P. 106). On the other hand, the channel near the Bell buoy outside the Queen's channel of the Mersey was held not to be a narrow channel (The Florence Nightingale, The Mœander (1863), 1 Mar. L. C. 301, P. C. (decided under the M. S. Act, 1854, s. 297)); and so also Lerwick harbour in the Shetland Islands, except in so far as its northern and southern entrances are narrow channels (The Seymolicus, [1909] P. 109). In The Try Again (1908), Shipping Gazette, 2nd June, the court decided a collision case in Lowestoft North Roads as if it might be a narrow channel, while refusing to determine whether it was so.

In other British territorial waters the following have been held to be narrow channels:—In Canadian waters, the roadstead of Sydney harbour, Cape Breton (see The Santanderino (1893), 3 Exchequer Court Reports of Canada, 378; The Ship Cuba v. McMillan (1896), 26 Supreme Court of Canada Reports, 651 (decided under Revised Statutes of Canada, c. 79, s. 2, art. 21)). As regards the south channel of the river St. Lawrence, near the Margaret Tail buoy and not far from Quebec, it was held that steamers ought to navigate as if it was a narrow channel, though it was not decided to be one (The Corinthian, [1909] P. 260, 265, 266, C. A.). The Narrows outside Vancouver appears to be a narrow channel; see Bryce v. Canadian Pacific Rail. Co. (1908), 13 British Columbia Reports, 446 (the point was admitted). In Queensland, the space between cuttings Nos. 5 and 6 of the Brisbane river was held by the Chief Justice not to be a narrow channel within the Queensland Navigation Act, 1876 (Australian Steam Navigation Co. v. Smith & Sons (1889), 14 App. Cas. 318, P. C.).

In foreign waters the following have been held to be narrow channels:—The River Scheldt near the Kattendyk dock, Antwerp (The Whitlieburn (1900), 9 Asp. M. L. C. 154); Cherbourg harbour entrance (The Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse, [1907] P. 36, 259, C. A.); the Strait of Messina (Scicluna v. Stevenson, The "Rhondda" (1883), 8 App. Cas. 549, P. C.); the Sulina arm of the Danube (S.S. "Diana" v. S.S. "Clieveden," The "Clieveden," [1894] A. C. 625, 629, P. C.); and the Great Bitter Lake, Suez Canal, near the northern entrance to the dredged channel (The Knaresbro (1900), [1907] P. 38, n.). But the inner harbour of Boston, Massachusetts, has been held not to be a narrow channel; see Ship Calvin Austin v. Lovitt (1905), 35 Supreme Court of Canada Reports, 616 (decided under rule 25 of the United States Inland Rules to prevent collisions, which was in the same terms as this article).

between the two banks; it is opposed to "at sea" (s). The court will not lay down what particular width or length will constitute a narrow channel (t); but while a narrow channel is of necessity comparatively small in breadth, it may also be very short in length (u). An entrance between the piers of a harbour has more than once been held to be a narrow channel (v): looking at the object which is the prevention of risk of collision, there is as much reason to apply the rule to such an entrance as to a longer channel (x).

When such an entrance or opening is a narrow channel, the duty to keep to the starboard side applies in so much of the water inside and outside of the entrance as is required for manœuvring for the entrance (a).

Although physical conditions remain the same, the alteration in lights and other marks which affect navigation sometimes makes a part of a large piece of water into a narrow channel (b).

Application of rule to certain waters.

669. In some instances, while not deciding that certain waters were a narrow channel, the courts have held that steamers should navigate therein as if the narrow channel rule applied (c).

"The fair-way or mid-channel."

670. The starboard side of "the fair-way" appears to be distinguished from the starboard side of "mid-channel" (d). Fair-way means a clear passage-way by water; wherever there is an open navigable passage used by vessels proceeding up and down a river or channel, that may be said to be a fair-way (e). It would appear

(s) The Florence Nightingale, The Mœander (1863), 1 Mar. L. C. 301, P. C., per Dr. LUSHINGTON.

(t) Scicluna v. Stevenson, The "Rhondda" (1883), 8 App. Cas. 549, 552, P. C. Whether a space of water is a narrow channel may apparently be so much a matter of fact as to be a question for the jury (Australian Steam Navigation Co. v. Smith & Sons (1889), 14 App. Cas. 318, P. C.).

(u) The Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse, [1907] P. 259, C. A., per Lord ALVERSTONE, C.J., at p. 263.

(v) Ibid.; and as to places which have been held to be narrow channels, see note (r), p. 465, ante.

(x) The Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse, supra, at p. 264. The question whether the rule applies to an opening between buoys or lightships does not depend on whether there is a dredged channel there or not (ibid.).

(a) Ibid., at p. 44, per GORELL BARNES, P.; The Knaresbro (1900), [1907] P. 38, n. Even apart from this rule a vessel, going out of or coming into a narrow harbour entrance, ought not to cross the entrance so close as not to leave room for vessels going the other way, but ought to make a wide sweep so as to leave them a fair-way (The Harvest (1886), 11 P. D. 90, C. A.). And in a harbour where there was a rule to the effect that a vessel when proceeding out or in should be kept to the right of mid-channel, and two buoys really marked the entrance to the channel, although there was sufficient water for vessels to go outside the buoys, it was held that a vessel ought to round in so as to enter either on the right side of the channel marked by the buoys, or outside the right-hand buoy (The Winstanley, [1896] P. 297, C. A.).

(b) The Gustafsberg, [1905] P. 10, 19.

(c) The Ashton, [1905] P. 21; The Try Again (1908), Shipping Gazette, June 2; The Corinthian, [1909] P. 260, 266, C. A.

(d) "Fair-way" appears to give an additional meaning and not to be merely synonymous with "mid-channel," as has been suggested; see The Blue Bell, [1895] P. 242, in argument.

(e) The Blue Bell, supra, per BRUCE, J., at p. 264. The dictum is general; that when there is a fair-way and no deep water channel, a vessel must keep to the starboard side of the fair-way; but when there is a fair-way and deep water channel, a steam vessel must keep to the starboard side of the mid-channel. When on one side of a fair-way there were four or five hundred yards of navigable water, it was held that under this article, though not bound to keep in the fair-way, a steam vessel in it ought to keep to her starboard side of the middle of the fair-way, and that she had no right to keep over to her port side in order to cheat the tide (f).

SECT. 2. Regulations for Preventing Collisions etc.

Construction of the article.

671. The narrow channel rule is to be construed with reasonable latitude; some allowance has to be made for tide, locality, and wind, and for the case of a vessel being in tow (g). And though the court might be of opinion that the vessel might have kept fifty yards closer to the proper shore of the river (h), it may refuse to look at a question of a few yards more or less (i).

Obeying the article.

672. This article is not merely a rule which is to be obeyed by one steam vessel as regards another vessel, but it is a positive direction that a steam vessel shall be kept as far as is safe and practicable on the starboard side of the channel (k), irrespective of manœuvring for any other vessel.

The rule has to be obeyed unless it is unsafe or impracticable; even apart from this qualification, it could be departed from under article 27, and if it was impracticable it would not be binding on principle (l). No consideration, however, of convenience of the vessel or increase of speed can justify disobedience; and no custom to the contrary can be maintained without proof of some local but the question in that case was as to the meaning of the Thames bye-law as regards vessels "when in the fair-way of the river, and not under way" ringing the bell in fog. And in The Clutha Boat 147, [1909] P. 36, as to the similar bye-law in the river Medway as to vessels "at anchor in the fair-way of the river," GORELL BARNES, P., held that, considered in its context, the bye-law applied to a vessel at anchor in the ordinary course of her navigation, and when she was in a part of the river where small vessels went. Compare Smith v. Voss (1857), 2 H. & N. 97 (decided under the M. S. Act, 1854, s. 297); the direction to the jury that the vessel should be kept to the starboard side of, but within, the fair-way or mid-channel was upheld on appeal, but see ibid., per BRAMWELL, B., at p. 102.

(f) The Glengariff, [1905] P. 106, 110; and see The "Sylph" (1854), 2 Ecc. & Ad. 75; and other cases cited in note (q), p. 465, ante. But when there is no narrow channel rule, a vessel may be entitled to keep on her port side of a river or channel to cheat the tide, and other vessels may be bound to allow for her doing so (The "Esk" and The "Niord" (1870), L. R. 3 P. C. 436, 443; The Bywell Castle (1879), 4 P. D. 219, C. A., per BRETT, L.J., at p. 224).

(g) The La Plata (1857), Sw. 220 (decided on the M. S. Act, 1854, s. 297; see note (q), p. 465, ante); reversed on appeal for nautical considerations ((1857), Sw. 298, P. C.).

(h) In the river Thames, near Halfway Point.

(i) The "Sylph" (1854), 2 Ecc. & Ad. 75, 81 (decided on the Steam Navigation Act, 1851, s. 27; see note (q), p. 465, ante).

(k) The Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse, [1907] P. 259, C. A., per Lord ALVERSTONE, C.J., at p. 265; and a vessel ought to keep to her starboard side in proper time, and has no right at the last to port across the bows of the other vessel (The Glengariff, supra, at p. 210).

(l) See p. 366, ante.

impediment or inconvenience (m). The burden of proof lies on a steamer to show not vaguely, but distinctly, what obstacles there were to prevent her going to the starboard side (n). If she improperly goes to the other side, she does so at her own risk (o). The mere fact that the vessels are approaching at a certain time green light to green light, as one vessel comes round, is no justification for keeping on the wrong side (p). But it is conceived that a steam vessel overtaking another vessel, or having to manœuvre for a sailing vessel may, in some circumstances, avail herself of the qualification to the rule (q).

Vessel swinging.

673. This article does not apply to a vessel swinging in a narrow channel where a vessel turns round in the way in which she must turn round (r).

Allowance for behaviour of other vessel.

674. In obeying this article, allowance must sometimes be made for the other vessel under the dictates of good seamanship. Those who framed this article were quite aware that there might be circumstances which would make it unsafe and impracticable for a steam vessel to remain on the starboard side of the channel, and that the vessel would be wrong in remaining there (a). A vessel may be wrong in obstinately staying on the starboard side of the channel, expecting all other vessels coming into the channel to get out of her way; and on the other hand a vessel may be wrong which tries to force out of position another vessel which is on the starboard side of her own channel (b). Circumstances may prevent the rule from operating to its full extent (c) where two vessels have to manœuvre for one another in dangerous

(m) The Unity (1856), Sw. 101; The Hand of Providence (1856), Sw. 107; compare The Seine (1859), Sw. 411 (crossing the river to take on board a customs officer was no excuse for disobedience).

(n) Malcomson v. Meeson, "The Malvina" (1863), 1 Moo. P. C. C. (N. S.) 357, 368 (decided on the M. S. Act, 1854, s. 297).

(o) The Fyenoord (1858), Sw. 374, 377, P. C.

(p) The Clydach (1884), 5 Asp. M. L. C. 336; nor that in a fog it was necessary for the vessel to keep along one bank to guide her, and that she kept to the port bank when she might have kept to the starboard bank (Russian S.S. "Yourri" v. British S.S. "Spearman" (1885), 10 App. Cas. 276, P. C.).

(q) But a vessel passing another vessel which was crossing a river has been held to blame for not passing astern of her on the proper side of the river or else stopping and waiting (The Henry Morton (1874), 2 Asp. M. L. C. 466, P. C.).

(r) The Whitlieburn (1900), 9 Asp. M. L. C. 154 (a sailing vessel in tow of a tug was turning round in the river Scheldt and her stern was on the port side of mid-channel, the tide setting the vessel over to that side; art. 25 was held not to be at all applicable to the case).

(a) The Try Again (1908), Shipping Gazette, 2nd June.

(b) Ibid. In this case the court held that, whether the narrow channel rule applied or not, it was the duty of the vessel which had the other on her starboard side to keep out of the way; and that the other vessel was also to blame, because it was her duty not to port but to keep her course.

(c) The Prince Leopold de Belgique, [1909] P. 103, 105; 11 Asp. M. L. C. 203. In this case two steam vessels came into collision in a dangerous place nearly end on, and there being no local rule to govern the case, it was held that the vessels must deal with each other on the footing of good seamanship, complying as far as possible with this article.

SECT. 2. Regulations for Preventing Collisions etc.

circumstances. In very confined waters it has been held that this article and the other Sea Regulations do not apply, and that one vessel must act for another according to good seamanship (d), and the same principle may apply when one vessel coming out of a lock into a river has to manœuvre for another vessel (e).

Sometimes a channel, for instance, into a lock is so narrow that two vessels cannot pass in it, and one must wait for the other; in such circumstances it has been said to be a universal rule that the incoming vessel should wait for the outgoing vessel (f). But such a rule has no application even to big vessels in an entrance channel half a mile wide, where the narrow channel rule applies (g).

Narrow channel and crossing rules.

675. The application of the narrow channel rule in connexion with the crossing rule has been already considered (h).

Local rules and practices.

676. A local rule or practice often exists in a river to the same or a similar effect as the narrow channel rule (i).

When this article or a similar rule applies in a river, its effect may be qualified by the rule of good seamanship under which, when two steam vessels are approaching from opposite directions so that they would meet at the point of a sharp bend, the one having the tide against her should ease her engines and wait above or below the point until the other has passed (k). Good seamanship also requires that a steam tug with a vessel in tow navigating a sharp bend in a river with the tide should give warning by whistle

(d) The Red Cross (1907), 10 Asp. M. L. C. 521, 524.

(e) The Hazelmere, [1911] P. 69, C. A., per Lord ALVERSTONE, C.J., at p. 77.

(f) Taylor v. Burger (1898), 8 Asp. M. L. C. 364, H. L., per Lord HALSBURY, L.C.

(g) The Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse, [1907] P. 259, 269, 274, C. A. When a vessel in the Suez Canal has to tie up and wait in a siding to allow another to pass, she must act reasonably by slowing down, stopping her engines, and going to the siding in sufficient time; the other vessel must watch what is happening and see that she does not get too near, and for that purpose must if necessary slow down so as to have herself properly in hand as she approaches (The Clan Cumming, [1907] P. 311, C. A.). As to the rule in the Danube, at points of insufficient breadth, for one vessel going up stream to wait for the other, and as to the duty of the second vessel not to go on when the other wrongly fails to wait, see S.S. "Diana" v. S.S. "Clieveden," The "Clieveden," [1894] A. C. 625, P. C.).

(h) See under art. 19, pp. 439, 440, ante.

(i) As to the rule in the river Tees, see The Mary Lohden (1887), 6 Asp. M. L. C. 262, C. A.; and in the river Tyne, The Henry Morton (1874), 2 Asp. M. L. C. 466, P. C.; and see note (a), p. 483, post. There is no rule at present in the Thames (where new rules will soon come into force) that steam vessels should keep to the north side going up; the only rule is that such vessels approaching so as to involve risk of collision should pass port to port; if there is no such risk, there is no rule to prohibit their passing starboard to starboard (The Marie Gartz (1913), 30 T. L. R. 88, C. A.); but in (The Agnes (1913), 7th February (unreported), EVANS, P., said that the effect of the cases was that steam vessels should so proceed that if approaching so as to involve risk of collision they could obey the rule to pass port to port; see, further, note (a), pp. 482, 483, post. As to a rule in the Danube, see Russian S.S. "Yourri" v. British S.S. "Spearman" (1885), 10 App. Cas. 276, P. C.

(k) The Talabot (1890), 6 Asp. M. L. C. 602; compare The Ezardian, [1911] P. 92. See also the Thames Rules, 1898, art. 47; note (a), pp. 482, 483, post.

signals to enable a vessel on the other side to approach the bend in such a way as to avoid collision (l).

SECT. 2. Regulations for Preventing Collisions etc.

Article 26.

677. Article 26 of the Sea Regulations, 1910, is as follows:—

Article 26.

Sailing vessels under way shall keep out of the way of sailing vessels or boats fishing with nets, or lines, or trawls. This Rule shall not give to any vessel or boat engaged in fishing the right of obstructing a fairway used by vessels other than fishing-vessels or boats. (1897)

Application of article.

678. This article is to be looked upon as completing the code of rules applicable to one vessel unincumbered meeting another vessel incumbered over fishing (m). It overrides the provisions of article 17, but that article may still apply when two sailing fishing vessels or fishing boats (n) are approaching one another (o).

A sailing vessel shooting her nets is "fishing with nets" within the meaning of this article, and her condition is not a casus omissus (p). A steam drifter, shooting her nets and sailing with a little mizen sail at about one knot an hour, and with steam up, is not a "sailing" vessel fishing with nets under this article (q).

When this article applies, it is the duty of the sailing fishing vessel or fishing boat to keep her course and speed (r).

Article 27.

679. Article 27 of the Sea Regulations, 1910, is as follows:—

Article 27.

In obeying and construing these Rules, due regard shall be had to all dangers of navigation and collision, and to any special circumstances which may render a departure from the above Rules necessary in order to avoid immediate danger. (1863) (a)

680. This, like the other articles, appears to be a general rule laid down to govern any person who has charge of a vessel, both

(l) The Kennet, [1912] P 114.

(m) The Grovehurst, [1910] P. 316, C. A., per BUCKLEY, L.J., at p. 332. It was at one time contended that the rule that an unincumbered sailing vessel should keep out of the way of a steamer incumbered over fishing (see p. 397, ante) had been abrogated by the introduction of this article, on the principle that expressio unius est exclusio alterius and for other reasons, but the argument did not succeed (The Grovehurst, supra, at pp. 329, 332, 337, overruling The Craigellachie, [1909] P. 1. The argument had been used previously in The Upton Castle, [1906] P. 147).

(n) As to the meaning of "fishing-vessel" and "fishing-boat," see p. 396, ante.

(o) Compare The Grovehurst, supra, per BUCKLEY, L.J., at pp. 333, 334, as to an analogous case.

(p) The Pitgaveney, [1910] P. 215.

(q) Ibid.

(r) Compare The Ragnhild, [1911] P. 254, 259, 260.

(a) The Sea Regulations, 1863, art. 19, was as follows: "In obeying and construing these Rules, due regard must be had to all dangers of navigation; and due regard must also be had to any special circumstances which may exist in any particular case rendering a departure from the above Rules necessary in order to avoid immediate danger." This article bore the marginal note: "Proviso to save special cases." It was specially referred to in the previous article, which was the keep-course rule; and in The David Cannon (1865), 2 Asp. M. L. C. 353, n., it was said that this art. 19 was framed for the purpose of the protection of a vessel that was required to keep her course. In The Zephyr (1864), 2 Asp. M. L. C. 352, n., it was said that the meaning of these two articles was to impose the

SECT. 2. Regulations for Preventing Collisions etc.

Application.

for the sake of the safety of his own vessel and of vessels approaching him (b). It is addressed to such persons (c). It is a proviso for special cases (d). It is a warning that something more is required than obedience to these regulations, namely, proper attention to all dangers, and discretion in deciding whether the particular circumstances give rise to one of the common cases which are contemplated by a regulation (e), or whether there are special or extraordinary circumstances which make a departure from the rule necessary to avoid immediate danger and thus prevent the rule applying (f).

Interpretation.

681. This article does not appear to create any new principle as regards the judicial interpretation of the regulations (g). In substance it appears to declare, and thus emphasise, the ancient principle laid down by the courts, namely, that whatever be the regulations which govern ships generally, in case of immediate danger it is the duty of every ship to avoid collision (h). So far as the principle or principles involved in this article are concerned, they have already been considered among the other principles established by the courts as to the observance of the collision regulations and the exceptions thereto (i); and their application has been considered under the various articles. The principles in this article may be applied either as imposing an obligation upon the officer in charge to act otherwise than is specified in another article, or to exonerate him for having thus acted (k).

This article contains no direction in itself as to what an officer in charge of a vessel is to do. It contemplates a departure from the obligation as strictly as possible of obeying art. 18 as far as was consistent with not incurring immediate danger. Art. 23 of the Sea Regulations, 1880 and 1884, was to the same effect as art. 19 of the Sea Regulations, 1863. Art. 27 of the Sea Regulations, 1897, was the same as the present article. The words "and collision" were added in 1897, possibly in order to make the exceptions on this account clear for international purposes, as such exceptions were already recognised in the courts of this country; see pp. 366, 367, ante.

(b) Stoomvaart Maatschappy Nederland v. Peninsular and Oriental Steam Navigation Co. (1880), 5 App. Cas. 876, per Lord HATHERLEY, at p. 909.

(c) See the terms of the article "In obeying," p. 471, ante.

(d) Marginal note to art. 19 of the Sea Regulations, 1863.

(e) The Dunelm (1884), 9 P. D. 164, C. A., per FRY, L.J., at p. 176.

(f) The simpler view appears to be that the departure from the rule is a departure from applying it; see The Tweedsdale (1889), 14 P. D. 164, 169 "art. 23" [now art. 27] "prevents the application of art. 17"); The Immaganda Sara Clasina (1850), 7 Notes of Cases, 582, 584, 585. The departure, however, from a rule under this article is sometimes described as a violation of the rule; see The Boanerges and The Anglo-Indian (1865), 2 Mar. L. C. 239.

(g) It, however, affected the construction of the statutes between 1863 and 1911, which imposed special penalties, falling on the owner of a vessel, for non-observance of the Sea Regulations; see p. 367, ante.

(h) The David Cannon (1865), 2 Asp. M. L. C. 353, n.; and see note (p), p. 363, ante, and The Eliza v. The Orinoco (1865), Holt (ADM.), 98, 101, there referred to. An exception to the Sea Regulations is sometimes said to be based on this article (see The Grovehurst, [1910] P. 316, 330, C. A.), since it declares this ancient principle, which is the foundation of all exceptions.

(i) See pp. 362 et seq., ante.

(k) Compare H.M.S. Sans Pareil, [1900] P. 267, 274, C. A.; and see p. 371, ante, as to cases where departure from a rule becomes a positive duty.

regulations, and the officer is then left to take what according to the best of his knowledge is the course of good seamanship (l).

This article, notwithstanding the words "the above Rules," has been applied to the interpretation of article 28 (m).

682. The sound signals for vessels in sight of one another in the Sea Regulations 1910, are as follows :—

Sound signals. Article 28.

Sound Signals for Vessels in Sight of one Another.

Article 28.

The words "short blast" used in this Article shall mean a blast of about one second's duration.

When vessels are in sight of one another, a steam vessel under way, in taking any course authorized or required by these Rules, shall indicate that course by the following signals on her whistle or siren, viz. :—

One short blast to mean, "I am directing my course to starboard."

Two short blasts to mean, "I am directing my course to port."

Three short blasts to mean, "My engines are going full speed astern." (1880) (n)

683. The first purpose of this article is to give the other vessel information, and part of the importance of the signal is that it is a clear indication of the manœuvre, instead of leaving it to inference, which might sometimes lead to mistake, and must always take time (o). But the essence of the article is to call the attention of the other vessel to what is going on ; it is an appeal to a vessel which is acting wrongly to consider her course (p).

Intention of article.

684. The words "in sight of one another" are qualified by the subsequent words "in taking any course authorised or required by these Rules." Thus "in sight" does not mean at any distance, but

"In sight of one another."

(l) H.M.S. Sans Pareil, [1900] P. 267, 282, 291, C. A. (this case decided that art. 27 was not a collision regulation within the meaning of the M. S. Act, 1894, s. 419 (4), so that a breach of art. 27 was not an infringement of a collision regulation for which a vessel came within the statutory presumption of fault, which then existed) ; and see The Eliza v. The Orinoco (1865), Holt (ADM.), 98, 101.

(m) The Bellanoch, [1907] P. 170, C. A., per GORELL BARNES, P., at p. 175 ; though this was doubted by FLETCHER MOULTON, L.J., at p. 189, in a dissenting judgment. As to this, see note (a), p. 471, ante. If, as seems clear, art. 27 does not alter the law as regards exceptions to the regulations, the point is not of great importance.

(n) The Sea Regulations, 1880, art. 19, was as follows :—"In taking any course authorised or required by these Regulations, a steamship under way may indicate that course to any other ship which she has in sight by the following signals on her steam whistle, viz. : " [The next three paragraphs are the same as in the present article.] "The use of these signals is optional ; but, if they are used, the course of the ship must be in accordance with the signal made." The Sea Regulations, 1884, art. 19, was the same. Under the Sea Regulations, 1897, art. 28, which was the same as the present article, the signals became compulsory, and the effect of the article was completely altered.

(o) The Anselm, [1907] P. 151, C. A., per Lord ALVERSTONE, C.J., at p. 166 ; The Corinthian, [1909] P. 260, C. A., per FLETCHER MOULTON, L.J., at p. 281.

(p) The Corinthian, supra, at p. 281.

SECT. 2. Regulations for Preventing Collisions etc.

in sight with reference to manœuvres for the purpose of avoiding collision (q). The time referred to is the time when it ought to be apparent that there will be risk of collision, if nothing is done to prevent it. Until one vessel ought to act for the other, there is no duty upon a vessel to whistle under this article, and it may be wrong, because misleading, to do so (r).

The word "vessels" seems to be similarly qualified, as the article does not appear to apply when a steamer is manœuvring to keep clear of a vessel which is not under way. It applies, however, if the other vessel is under way, although she is keeping in approximately the same position (s).

When duty arises.

685. The duty of a steam vessel to signal under this article arises in all cases when the time has come for one vessel to act for the other, and when a steam vessel in fact acts for the other vessel by altering her helm or going full speed astern. This is so whether the vessel which takes such action is the giving-way vessel taking ordinary action under article 19, 20, 22, 23 or 24 (t), or the keep-on vessel acting under the note to article 21 (a), or a vessel acting under article 18 or 25 (b), or any vessel taking exceptional action under article 27 (c), or acting under the dictates of good seamanship according to the warning in article 29 (d). In all these cases the steamer is taking a course either "required" or "authorised" within the meaning of the article (e). Even if the alteration of helm is only to mitigate the collision, and not to avoid it, there is the same duty to signal (f). An officer in charge should err, if at all, on the side of whistling (g).

When, however, although the time has come for one vessel to act for the other, the steam vessel, which alters her helm or goes full speed astern, does so for some other purpose than manœuvring for the other vessel, the question whether she ought to whistle under this article is more complicated (h). In such a case, supposing that

(q) The Bellanoch, [1907] P. 170, C. A., per Lord ALVERSTONE, C.J., at p. 181; affirmed, sub nom. S.S. Canning (Owners) v. S.S. Bellanoch (Owners), [1907] A. C. 269.

(r) The Bellanoch, supra, per KENNEDY, L.J., at pp. 192, 193, 195; The Aristocrat, [1908] P. 9, 23, 25, C. A.

(s) The Aristocrat, supra, at p. 20.

(t) Compare The Mourne, [1901] P. 68, 72.

(a) The Annie (1912), Shipping Gazette, 2nd February, C. A.

(b) The Anselm, [1907] 151, 164, C. A.; The Mourne, supra; The Corinthian, [1909] P. 260, C. A.

(c) The Hero, [1911] P. 128, 159, C. A.; reversed on appeal on another point, sub nom. S.S. Hero (Owners) v. Commissioners for Executing the Office of Lord High Admiral of the United Kingdom, [1912] A. C. 300; The Anselm, supra, at p. 168.

(d) The Uskmoor, [1902] P. 250; The Hero, supra; The Aristocrat, supra.

(e) "Authorised" is a very much larger word, and a large interpretation ought to be given to it; the narrow interpretation which would have confined it to courses where a certain amount of choice is allowed by the Sea Regulations is to be rejected (The Uskmoor, supra, at p. 254, approved in The Anselm, supra). The original inclination of the nautical world to obey this article only in narrow waters was condemned (The Uskmoor, supra, at pp. 254, 255).

(f) The Annie, supra, per KENNEDY, L.J.

(g) The Uskmoor, supra, at p. 255.

(h) The simplest interpretation of the article would appear to have been the steam vessel is not bound by article 21, and therefore is under no duty to keep her course and speed, then if in altering her helm or putting her engines full speed astern she is not acting for the other vessel at all, but is acting in the ordinary course of her navigation, she is not bound to whistle under this article (i). On the other hand, supposing that a steamer is bound at the time to keep her speed under article 21, then if she goes full speed astern, even though only for the purpose of her own navigation, she appears to be bound to give the proper signal (j).

"Course."

686. "Course" in this article cannot mean compass course only, but includes directions to alter the helm or reverse the engines full speed for the purpose of avoiding collision or to put an end to any existing danger of it (k). It has been said that the continuing of a helm is just as much a directing of the vessel's head to one side or another as a change of helm in the other direction (l). The signal should be given every time when a distinct manœuvre is made with the helm (m).

Time for giving signal.

No precise time for giving the signal is specified in the article, but the signal should be given immediately the order to the helm or engines has been given and received, and the officer in charge ought not to wait until he sees whether the execution of the order has had an effect on the course of the vessel (n).

that in all such cases the steamer was taking an "authorised" course, and therefore, ought to whistle. The advantage of the information to the other vessel may be as great as in the case where the steamer is in fact acting for her; and the danger which may arise from the other vessel not having this information is illustrated by the facts in The Mourne, [1901] P. 68. But it is clear from the cases that, as the law stands, a steamer in such a case is not always bound to whistle under the article.

(i) The Wakasa Maru (1908), Shipping Gazette, 2nd June, C. A. (steamer in river ported for a wreck and starboarded back); The Calgarth (1906), Shipping Gazette, 3rd November (tug in river ported a little to keep well on her starboard side); The Mourne, supra (steamer coming from dock entrance continued to swing round in river under starboard helm); The Aristocrat, [1908] P. 9, 19, C. A. (if the vessel only starboarded sufficiently to keep her head on her course, "very different considerations would arise").

(j) The Bellanoch, [1907] P. 170, C. A., per KENNEDY, L.J., at p. 194 (if she did go astern, when the period for action had arisen, "she was bound to give a signal under art. 28"), and per Lord ALVERSTONE, C.J., at p. 182; and on appeal, [1907] A. C. 269, the duty to whistle was assumed; see also the explanation of this case in The Corinthian, [1909] P. 260, C. A.; compare The Tempus, [1913] P. 166.

(k) The Anselm, [1907] P. 151, 163, C. A.

(l) The Aristocrat, supra, per Lord ALVERSTONE, C.J., at p. 21, an obiter dictum. It was contended in vain in this case that the tug crossing the river under a starboard helm was not "taking" a "course" within this article when she further starboarded for the other steamer; and see The Anselm, supra; but see also The Corinthian, supra, per BUCKLEY, L.J., at p. 286.

(m) The Corinthian, supra (a steamship which ported and blew a port helm signal, and then steadied, was held wrong in not blowing another port helm signal when she shortly afterwards hard-a-ported).

(n) The Annie (1912), Shipping Gazette, 2nd February, C. A., per VAUGHAN WILLIAMS, L.J., and see ibid., per KENNEDY, L.J.: the latest time to be allowed for giving the signal is when the order is actually being carried out, "although it may not at that moment have had actual effect."

SECT. 2. Regulations for Preventing Collisions etc.

Principles governing use of signals.

687. It is far more important that these sound signals should be given when the course taken is not the ordinary one prescribed by the Sea Regulations, but is dictated by good seamanship, and is justified only by the particular circumstances and imminent danger (o). There is a more stringent duty to signal than ordinary upon a vessel acting under the note to article 21, in order to give the other vessel an opportunity to understand the manœuvre (p); it has been said that when two vessels have to co-operate in carrying out manœuvres, it is obvious that they must communicate with each other (q). A long-blast signal is no sufficient substitute for a helm signal, especially if given by a tug, because a long-blast signal is given for all sorts of reasons, and is no indication that one vessel is manœuvring for the other, and it may have no connexion with navigation, so that it does not invite at all the same attention (r). The three-blast signal is the most powerful warning to draw the attention of the other vessel to what is happening and to lead her to take proper measures, especially if given by a vessel in daylight and at a distance (s).

Exceptional cases.

688. A vessel, which goes full speed astern for another vessel and sounds three short blasts, is not bound to sound another short blast if she puts her helm hard-a-port to counteract the canting of her head to starboard, because she is not "directing" her "course" to starboard (t). The officer in charge of a vessel cannot successfully contend that, because the course he took is afterwards found by the court to be wrong and not "authorised or required," his failure to sound the appropriate signal was not a breach of the article (u). If a steam vessel is hailed by the other vessel to port or starboard, and does so, the omission to whistle will probably not be a substantial breach of the article (x).

Apart from the provisions of this article, it may be the duty of

(o) The Anselm, [1907] P. 151, C. A., per FLETCHER MOULTON, L.J., at p. 168.

(p) The Annie (1912), Shipping Gazette, 2nd February, C. A., per KENNEDY, L.J.

(q) Ibid., per VAUGHAN WILLIAMS, L.J.

(r) The Aristocrat, [1908] P. 9, 21, C.A. A vessel which gives the wrong helm signal is doubly to blame (The Frankfort, [1910] P. 50, C. A.).

(s) The Anselm, supra, per FLETCHER MOULTON, L.J., at p. 168.

(t) The Aberdonian, [1910] P. 225.

(u) The Hero, [1911] P. 128, C. A. (decided when presumption of fault applied). The decision is based on two grounds: first, the absurdity of excusing a vessel, if its course was wrong, from the obligation to whistle and consequences of not doing so, which applied if its course was right; and secondly, on the ground that in the action the party contended until the judgment that the course was authorised or required, and a course "authorised or required" according to the article included a course thus alleged to have been authorised or required. Another ground which appears to underlie the judgment is the maxim "Nemo allegans suam turpitudinem est audiendus."

(x) The Annie (1911), Shipping Gazette, 11th November; reversed on another point (1912), Shipping Gazette, 2nd February, C. A. Even when presumption of fault existed upon infringement of this article, disobedience was sometimes excused; e.g., in S.S. Canning (Owners) v. S.S. Bellanoch (Owners), [1907] A. C. 269, on the ground that a failure to signal could not have contributed to the collision, as it could not have told the master of the other vessel more than he knew; and in The a steam vessel to give any of the signals specified as a matter of good seamanship (a).

689. Article 29 of the Sea Regulations, 1910, is as follows :— Article 29.

No Vessel under any circumstances to neglect proper Precautions.

Article 29.

> Nothing in these Rules shall exonerate any vessel, or the owner, or master, or crew thereof, from the consequences of any neglect to carry lights or signals, or of any neglect to keep a proper look-out, or of the neglect of any precaution which may be required by the ordinary practice of seamen, or by the special circumstances of the case. (1863) (b)

690. This article is simply a warning; it does not in itself impose any obligations (c); but it is one of the "Rules" referred to in article 28, and has an effect in the interpretation of that article (d). Application of article.

691. Article 30 of the Sea Regulations, 1910, relates to the Reservation of Rules for Harbours and Inland Navigation, and is as follows :— Article 30.

Reservation of Rules for Harbours and Inland Navigation.

Article 30.

> Nothing in these Rules shall interfere with the operation of a special rule, duly made by local authority, relative to the navigation of any harbour, river, or inland waters. (1880) (e)

692. The purpose of this article appears to have been (f), and Intention of rule.

Calgarth (1906), Shipping Gazette, 3rd November, because the vessels were perfectly visible and only a few hundred yards apart. As to the right of a vessel which, while rounding a bend in a river, is in a position of safety red to red with another vessel, and which alters her course away from the other vessel and so signals, to treat the position as still safe though she gets no answering signal, see China Navigation Co., Ltd. v. Asiatic Petroleum Co., Ltd. and Taku Tug and Lighterage Co., Ltd., [1910] A. C. 204, P. C.

(a) Compare The Anselm, [1907] P. 151, C. A., per Lord ALVERSTONE, C.J., at p. 165; The Battersea (1912), Shipping Gazette, 14th February, where a steamer, which was dredging up the river Thames stern first and going sometimes slow astern with a touch ahead now and again, was properly blowing signals of three short blasts.

(b) This article is first to be found at the end of the International Code of Sea Regulations, 1863, and was apparently placed there in order to warn seamen that the full set of rules then introduced was not to be treated as a complete guide for conduct or as any excuse for want of vigilance in observing the common rules of good seamanship in navigable waters. It has remained the same since it first appeared, except that in 1897 "vessel" was substituted for "ship." As to breaches of the rules of good seamanship, see pp. 483 et seq., post.

(c) H.M.S. Sans Pareil, [1900] P. 267, 271, C. A. Art. 29 was held not to be a "collision regulation" within the meaning of the M. S. Act, 1894, s. 419 (4), now repealed; see H. M. S. Sans Pareil, supra, at pp. 282, 291.

(d) See art. 28, p. 473, ante; The Uskmoor, [1902] P. 250; The Anselm, supra.

(e) This article has remained the same since its introduction in the Sea Regulations, 1880, except that in 1897 the last word, "waters," was substituted for "navigation."

(f) In the statute which authorised the first international Sea Regulations,

SECT. 2. Regulations for Preventing Collisions etc.

still to be, to preserve all local rules lawfully made, whether under a local Act or not, from any presumption of being abrogated by the Sea Regulations, and also to make such local rules prevail over the Sea Regulations when the latter clash with a special local rule. This is the more important because in many cases the authorities which make the local rules are not consulted as regards the Sea Regulations (g).

Application of rule.

693. The Sea Regulations, when first introduced, were frequently applied in some inland waters (h), as local rules were then much less numerous and complete (i); and in 1897 the Sea Regulations were formally stated to apply in waters connected with the sea navigable by sea-going vessels (k). The Sea Regulations apply in the river Thames (l), and other waters of the above description, when these regulations are suitable and where there are no such local rules as ought reasonably to prevent their application (m). But where there is a special local rule which deals with the whole scope of a subject, parts of the provisions of the Sea Regulations must not be added, as this would be to "interfere with the operation" of the special rule (n).

A rule, in order to be "duly made by local authority," must be made in accordance with its powers and must be properly published (o).

1863, certain provisions preserved the full force and effect of local rules of navigation for inland waters made under the authority of any local Act, and provided that local rules made under Order in Council in certain cases should have the same effect as the Sea Regulations (M. S. Act, 1862, ss. 27, 31, 32); and these provisions have been in effect re-enacted and are still in force (M. S. Act, 1894, ss. 419 (1), 421 (1), (2)).

(g) See ibid., s. 418 (1).

(h) As to cases of this kind, see p. 377, ante.

(i) There were no steering or sailing rules in the Thames before 1872 (The Carlotta, [1899] P. 223, 227).

(k) See p. 373, ante.

(l) The Carlotta, supra.

(m) Ibid.

(n) Thus, where there is a local rule for steam vessels aground to give certain whistles, this ought not to be supplemented by art. 4 (a) of the Regulations, even if that could be applied to a vessel aground (The Carlotta, supra). A local rule which provides for the lights of a vessel aground excludes the operation of art. 11 of these Regulations (The Bitinia, [1912] P. 186). When the local sailing rules do not contain a starboard hand rule, the narrow channel rule in art. 25 of these Regulations is not to be imported into them (The Écossaise (1885), Shipping Gazette, 15th December, cited in The Carlotta, supra, at p. 229; compare The Marie Gartz (1913), 30 T. L. R. 88, C. A.). And when the bye-laws of the river Thames did not impose on a lighter the duty to carry a light, it was held that the Sea Regulations did not apply to introduce such an obligation (The C. S. Butler (1874), L. R. 4 A. & E. 238).

(o) Compare Imperial Royal Privileged Danubian Steam Navigation Co. v. Greek and Oriental Steam Navigation Co., The "Smyrna" (1864), 2 Moo. P. C. C. (N. S.) 435, 447; Prowse v. European and American Steam Shipping Co., The "Peerless" (1860), 13 Moo. P. C. C. 484, 497; H.M.S. The Topaze (1864), 2 Mar. L. C. 38. When local regulations are pleaded by one party and not denied by the other, there is no necessity to prove them, especially if the other party relies on them (Prowse v. European and American Steam Shipping Co., The "Peerless," supra, at p. 506). Navigation rules, even though not emanating from any competent authority, might by long usage of well-recognised practice obtain the force of law (Imperial Royal Privileged Danubian Steam Navigation Co. v. Greek and

There appears to be no doubt that "local authority" in this article includes authorities in foreign countries (p).

694. The article as to distress signals in the Sea Regulations, 1910, is as follows :— Distress signals.

Distress Signals.

Article 31. Article 31.

When a vessel is in distress and requires assistance from other vessels or from the shore, the following shall be the signals to be used or displayed by her, either together or separately, viz. :—

In the daytime—

1. A gun or other explosive signal fired at intervals of about a minute ;
2. The International Code signal of distress indicated by NC ;
3. The distant signal, consisting of a square flag, having either above or below it a ball or anything resembling a ball ;
4. A continuous sounding with any fog-signal apparatus.

At night—

1. A gun or other explosive signal fired at intervals of about a minute ;
2. Flames on the vessel (as from a burning tar-barrel, oil-barrel, &c.) ;
3. Rockets or shells, throwing stars of any colour or description, fired one at a time, at short intervals ;
4. A continuous sounding with any fog-signal apparatus. (1884) (q)

695. If the master of a vessel uses or permits any person under his authority to use any of these signals when a vessel is not in distress, he will be liable to pay compensation for any labour undertaken, risk incurred, or loss sustained in consequence of that signal having been supposed to be a signal of distress, and that compensation may be recovered in the same way as salvage (r). But this does not give any right of compensation to those who, in response to signals of distress properly used, offer services which are not required (s). Exemption from this provision may be obtained in the case of registered private signals (t). Abuse of distress signals.

SUB-SECT. 3.—Local Rules of Navigation.

696. All vessels navigating in the waters comprised in districts Local navigation rules.

Oriental Steam Navigation Co., The "Smyrna" (1864), 2 Moo. P. C. C. (N. S.) 435 ; and see The Fyenoord (1858), Sw. 374, P. C.) ; and such rules, if necessary for the safety of navigation, may constitute exceptions to the Sea Regulations ; see p. 370, ante. As to local rules of navigation, see, further, the text, infra.

(p) See the cases on local rules in foreign waters, p. 480, post.

(q) This article, which is made under special statutory authority (M. S. Act, 1894, s. 434 (1)), has remained in almost the same terms as when it first appeared as art. 27 of the Sea Regulations, 1884. Previous rules as to signals of distress were contained in the M. S. Act, 1873, Sched. I., which was repealed by the M. S. Act, 1894, Sched. XXII.

(r) Ibid., s. 434 (2).

(s) The Elswick Park, [1904] P. 76.

(t) M. S. Act, 1894, s. 733.

SECT. 2. Regulations for Preventing Collisions etc.

for which local rules (a) for inland navigation have been made should strictly observe them.

(a) Such local rules have been made in the following districts:— Arundel (25th April, 1895): Avon River (23rd Sept., 1892); see also Bristol: Balta Sound, Isle of Unst, Shetland (16th May, 1904): Barrow Harbour and Docks, and Peel Harbour (29th March, 1905): Barry Docks (8th June, 1891): Belfast (6th Nov., 1888): Berehaven (12th Aug., 1907): Berkeley Canal, see Gloucester: Blyth Harbour (6th March, 1889): Boston, Lincolnshire (29th Aug., 1853): Bridgwater Canal, see Mersey and Irwell Navigation: Bristol (29th June, 1896); see also Avon River: Bristol Docks (14th Feb., 1876): Bute Docks, Cardiff (Oct., 1865; 30th April, 1891): Caledonian Canal (rules made under stat. (1803) 43 Geo. 3, c. 102, s. 31; recent additions made 24th July, 1896): Carron River, Grangemouth Harbour (23rd May, 1893): Castle Bay, Island of Barra (16th May, 1904): Chatham and Sheerness Dockyards (29th June, 1888): Clyde, Firth of (9th Feb., 1859): Clyde, River, and Harbour of Glasgow (6th Aug., 1889): Cork (22nd March, 1889); see also Queenstown: Cowes (13th June, 1899): Dartmouth (27th June, 1887): Deptford Dockyard (29th Feb., 1868); see also Thames: Dover (23rd June, 1904): Dublin (18th March, 1898): Falmouth Harbour (5th June, 1871): Fleetwood-on-Wyre (30th Sept., 1888): Foss River Navigation (27th Aug., 1888): Fowey Harbour (7th May, 1900): Galway (28th Nov., 1900): Glasgow, Harbour of, see Clyde, River: Gloucester and Berkeley Canal (17th Sept., 1884): Grangemouth, see Carron River: Holyhead Harbours (2nd June, 1905): Humber, Ouse, Trent (8th Feb., 1890; 19th July, 1910): Ipswich, River Orwell (13th April, 1883): Limerick (22nd Aug., 1897): Littlehampton, see Arundel: Londonderry, Lough Foyle (1st Sept., 1858): Manchester Ship Canal (5th Aug., 1895): Medway (9th Oct., 1896): Mersey (17th Sept., 1900): Mersey and Irwell Navigation (18th May, 1870): Milford Haven, see Pembroke: Newhaven (27th Feb., 1895): Newport (Monmouth) (8th March, 1894): Newry Navigation (2nd May, 1859): Orwell River, see Ipswich: Ouse (Lower) (31st July, 1886); see also Humber, Ouse, Trent: Ouse, Upper Navigation, and River Foss (6th July, 1885): Pembroke (26th Sept., 1891): Plymouth (24th Oct., 1904): Poole (undated; made under Pier and Harbour Order Confirmation Act, 1891, No. 3 (54 & 55 Vict. c. clix.)): Portland Harbour (17th June, 1903): Portsmouth (26th Feb., 1897): Port of Preston (28th Dec., 1893): Port Talbot (3rd Aug., 1898): Queenstown, Dockyard Port (10th Aug., 1903); see also Cork: Runcorn and Weston Canal, see Mersey and Irwell Navigation: Ryde (3rd May, 1882); see also Cowes: Sharpness New Docks, and Gloucester and Birmingham Navigation (1900): Sheerness, see Chatham and Medway: Shoreham (1st Feb., 1877): Solent Navigation, see Cowes and Ryde: Southampton (29th Nov., 1898): Suir, River (Ireland) (28th Nov., 1887); see also Waterford: Sunderland (7th June, 1906): Swansea Harbour (10th Nov., 1856; also Rules by Harbour Master (undated): Tees (2nd May, 1887): Thames (28th April, 1898): Trent (7th March, 1887); see also Humber and Ouse: Tyne (15th Nov., 1884): Warkworth Harbour (15th June, 1870): Waterford (5th Sept., 1870): Weaver Navigation (11th Nov., 1896): Whitby (5th Aug., 1898): Windermere (19th Nov., 1902): Wisbeach (14th Feb., 1896): Woolwich Dockyard (29th Feb., 1868): Youghal Port and Harbour (16th June, 1879). As to the making and alteration of these rules, see note (o), p. 478, ante. They are constantly changing, but the dates given are those of rules which were recently in force. There are also local rules in force in various foreign waters, including the Bosporus, the Danube, the Suez Canal, and the Inland Waters, the Great Lakes, and the Western Rivers of the United States; see Stuart Moore's Rules of the Road at Sea, 4th ed., where the most important of them will be found. As to breach of a local regulation, constituting negligence, see pp. 506, 507, post; as to the application generally of the Sea Regulations, 1910, to waters connected with the sea and navigable by sea-going vessels, see the preliminary article, pp. 373 et seq., ante; and as to the Sea Regulations not interfering with local rules, see art. 30, p. 477, ante.

The local rules for the particular districts named in the following list have been the subject of judicial decisions in the cases named :—

Bute Docks, Cardiff.—The Red Cross (1907), 10 Asp. M. L. C. 521 (Sea Regulations held inapplicable in the case of a vessel coming out of the Roath Dock basin and colliding in Cardiff Drain with a vessel bound to the East Bute Dock) ; The St. Audries (1886), 5 Asp. M. L. C. 552 (a steamship bound for Penarth Dock and carrying the usual docking signal not exempted from obeying the crossing rule of the Sea Regulations).

Clyde River.—Little v. Burns (1881), 9 R. (Ct. of Sess.) 118 (Sea Regulations, 1863, applied within the limits to which these bye-laws relate) ; The "Nerano" v. The "Dromedary" (1895), 22 R. (Ct. of Sess.) 237 (Sea Regulations, 1884, similarly applied).

Cowes.—And see the Solent Navigation Act, 1881 (44 & 45 Vict. c. ccxix.), s. 8 (presumption of fault applies in case of infringement of regulations as to mooring in part of the Solent).

Danube.—As to steamers stopping before rounding points, see S.S. "Diana" v. S.S. "Clieveden," The "Clieveden," [1894] A. C. 625, P. C. ; as to vessels keeping to the right bank in fog, see Russian S.S. "Yourri" v. British S.S. "Spearman" (1885), 10 App. Cas. 276, P. C. ; and as to the validity of certain regulations in 1860, see Imperial Royal Privileged Danubian Navigation Co. v. Greek and Oriental Steam Navigation Co., The "Smyrna" (1864), 2 Moo. P. C. C. (N. S.) 435.

Humber Rules, art. 2, as to anchor lights ; see The Magneta (1890), 15 P. D. 101 (as to height of anchor light). As to waiting before rounding the bend at Whitton Gas Float No. 3 against the tide, see The Ezardian, [1911] P. 92. As to the entrance to the Humber between certain buoys being a narrow channel within the Sea Regulations, 1910, art. 25, see The Ashton, [1905] P. 21. Presumption of fault for infringement of the Humber Rules existed formerly; see The Ripon (1885), 10 P. D. 65 (a steamship under way improperly carrying a white globular light).

Manchester Ship Canal.—As to the Sea Regulations not applying in the canal, see The Hare, [1904] P. 331 ; see also The City of Liverpool (1912), 29 T. L. R. 139 (good seamanship does not require a vessel in one of the lay-bys to sound her bell in fog). Certain bye-laws made under the Manchester Ship Canal Act, 1885 (48 & 49 Vict. c. clxxxviii.), s. 198, were not confirmed by the Board of Trade.

Medway Bye-laws, 1896.—Art. 43 (c) : "at anchor in the fairway of the river" ; see The Clutha Boat 147, [1909] P. 36.

Mersey Rules, 1881.—Art. 4, as to anchor light ; see The Talbot, [1891] P. 184 ; The Hermod (1890), 6 Asp. M. L. C. 509. Art. 4 (a), as to towing lights ; see The Devonian, [1901] P. 221, C. A. Art. 5, as to stern light ; see The Fire Queen (1887), 12 P. D. 147. As to the regulation as to anchor lights in the Mersey Collisions Act, 1874 (37 & 38 Vict. c. 52), s. 1 (2) (now repealed), see The Lady Downshire (1878), 4 P. D. 26. As to the proper precautions on launching a vessel in the Mersey, see Ketch Frances (Owners) v. Steamship Highland Loch (Owners), [1912] A. C. 312 ; The George Roper (1883), 8 P. D. 119 ; The Cachapool (1881), 7 P. D. 217 ; The Glengarry (1874), 2 P. D. 235. Presumption of fault for infringement of regulations formerly applied in the Mersey ; see The Lady Downshire, supra ; The Fire Queen, supra. As to the port side rule under the Steam Navigation Act, 1851 (14 & 15 Vict. c. 79), s. 27, being applied in the Mersey, see The Nimrod (1851), 15 Jur. 1201.

Newport.—As to the Newport (Monmouth) bye-laws, 1894, arts. 12 and 13, and the proper way to enter the harbour, and the application of the Sea Regulations, 1884, art. 16, see The Winstanley, [1896] P. 297, C. A.

Ouse.—As to the practice of dredging up stern first with anchor down when proceeding up Goole Reach, see The Frankfort, [1910] P. 50, C. A. ; and as to keels drifting up, see The Ralph Creyke (1886), 6 Asp. M. L. C. 19.

Suez Canal.—As to the relative duties of vessels going north and south in a certain part of the canal, see The Clan Cumming, [1907] P. 311, C. A. ; and as to the liability of the owner of a vessel for negligence of the canal pilot compulsorily taken, as he is merely the adviser of the master, see The Guy Mannering (1882), 7 P. D. 132, C. A.

Tees.—The former Tees Rules, arts. 17 and 18, as to keeping to the starboard side etc., were held to apply even when vessels were approaching so as to show their green lights to each other; see The Mary Lohden (1887), 6 Asp. M. L. C. 262, C. A. Art. 22 of these former rules, as to a steamship not being navigated at more than six miles an hour, meant six miles over the ground and not through the water; see The R. L. Alston (1882), 8 P. D. 5, C. A. See also The Peter Benoit (1914), 30 T. L. R. 277.

SECT. 2. Regulations for Preventing Collisions etc.

Thames.—[N.B. In 1912 a series of new "Port of London River Bye-laws" were deposited with the Board of Trade for confirmation, but have not yet been confirmed.] Thames Rules, 1898: Art. 4 (interpretation clause); quære, whether the definition of "master" does not include a pilot compulsorily in charge (The Umsinga, [1911] P. 234). Art. 8, as to not navigating within the anchorage ground in Gravesend Reach; see The City of Delhi (1887), 6 Asp. M. L. C. 269. Art. 10, as to anchoring in the fairway during fog; see The Aguadillana (1889), 6 Asp. M. L. C. 390. Art. 11, as to carrying the anchor stock awash; see The Six Sisters, [1900] P. 303. As to earlier rules to the same effect, see The Monte Rosa, [1893] P. 23; The Dunstanborough (1891), [1892] P. 363, n.; The J. R. Hinde, [1892] P. 231; The Rose of England (1888), 6 Asp. M. L. C. 304; The City of Delhi, supra; The Margaret (1881), 6 P. D. 76, C. A. Art. 14, as to the master remaining on the bridge; see The Umsinga, supra. Art. 23, as to towing not more than six vessels; see Gadney v. Rough (1879), 4 Asp. M. L. C. 73. Art. 27, as to the manning of a lighter; see Gosling v. Newton, Gosling v. Eagers, [1895] 1 Q. B. 793; Goldsmith v. Slattery (1890), 6 Asp. M. L. C. 561. Preliminary article, as to general precautions and lights, see The John Fenwick (1872), L. R. 3 A. & E. 500 (neglecting to signal, when lying across river so that regulation lights could not be seen by vessels astern); as to the duty of a vessel to signal when dropping up river stern first, see The Juno (1894), 7 Asp. M. L. C. 506; steam vessels going up the Thames are not bound to keep to the north side; see The Marie Gartz (1913), 30 T. L. R. 88, C. A., qualifying The Gere, [1909] P. 287, and The Brook (1913), Shipping Gazette, 7th February; compare The Écossaise (1883), Shipping Gazette, 15th December; and see p. 470, ante; as to the duty of a steamship to keep out of the way of a dumb barge driving with the tide, see The Owen Wallis (1874), 2 Asp. M. L. C. 206; but see The St. Aubin, [1907] P. 60 (collision with unlighted barge attached to a vessel but swinging across fairway at night); The Swallow (1877), 3 Asp. M. L. C. 371, C. A. (under a former rule). Art. 29, as to the lights of a sailing vessel under way; see The Indian Chief (1888), 14 P. D. 24 (sailing barge dredging down). Art. 30, as to anchor lights; see The Wega, [1895] P. 156 (they should be put up as soon as the vessel is held by her anchor). As to the provision as regards the lights for a vessel aground in or near a fairway, and the Sea Regulations, 1910, art. 11, not applying, see The Bitinia, [1912] P. 186; The Carlotta, [1899] P. 223. As to the want of provision for lights and signals in the case of a vessel temporarily aground, see The Bromsgrove, [1912] P. 182. Art. 36, as to fog signals for vessels under way; see The Juno, supra (a steamer dropping up the river stern first). Art. 38, as to the fog signal of the bell for vessels in the fairway of the river, and not under way, see The Blue Bell, [1895] P. 242 (the fairway includes all that part of the river inshore of the buoys which is navigable for vessels of moderate draught); The Clutha Boat 147, [1909] P. 36; see also The Carlotta, supra (this article does not apply to a vessel taking the ground whilst proceeding up the river, and remaining fast). The article cannot apply in clear weather (The Rhein (1902), 9 Asp. M. L. C. 278). Art. 39, as to whistle signals to intimate course; see The Harberton, [1913] P. 149 (a vessel which is backing and filling while turning in the river, having given four short blasts under art. 40, need not give three short blasts when her engines are put full speed astern). Art. 40, as to a steam vessel giving four short blasts when turning round or not under command etc.; see The New Pelton, [1891] P. 258 (as regards not giving three short blasts when going full speed astern); The Harberton, supra. A vessel temporarily taking the ground is within the article (The Carlotta, supra; see also The Bromsgrove, supra); and so, also, a vessel throwing herself athwart the river and stopping her way to anchor was within the former rule to the same effect (The Wega, supra). A sailing vessel should SUB-SECT. 4.—Rules of Good Seamanship.

(i.) Scope of Rules.

SECT. 2. Regulations for Preventing Collisions etc.

Scope of rules.

697. These rules extend over the whole range of conditions in the working of a vessel from the time of launching and getting under way until she returns to her anchorage in port or moorings in a dock; there are special rules of good seamanship for the manœuvring of sailing ships and other vessels, and for cases of fog and heavy weather, and for navigation in rivers and other inland waters.

take reasonable steps to get out of the way of a steam vessel which has been compelled to give the four blasts (The Longnewton (1888), 6 Asp. M. L. C. 302). Art. 43, as to no other signals being used than those mentioned; see The Kennet, [1912] P. 114. Art. 45, as to a steam vessel keeping out of the way of a sailing vessel; see The Palatine (1872), 1 Asp. M. L. C. 468 (a sailing vessel after tacking as close over to the shore as prudent is entitled to go about without warning other vessels of her intention). Art. 46, as to steam vessels when approaching with risk of collision passing port side to port side; see The Guildhall, [1908] P. 29, C. A. (the rule was applied when the vessels were approaching green to green in such positions that they would have passed close); The Odessa (1882), 4 Asp. M. L. C. 493, C. A.; The Lady Wodehouse (1886), 2 T. L. R. 252, C. A. (vessels not likely to meet); see also p. 482, ante; and as to the application of art. 47, and this rule, see The Libra (1881), 6 P. D. 139, C. A. As to the former crossing rule in the Thames, see The Oceano (1887), 3 P. D. 60, C. A.; and as to the application of the crossing rule in the Sea Regulations, 1863, to the windings of the Thames, see under Sea Regulations, 1910, art. 19, pp. 436 et seq., ante. Art. 47, as to steam vessels waiting before rounding certain points against the tide; see The Margaret (1884), 9 P. D. 47, C. A. (the "point" begins where the vessel having to round would, if nothing were in the way, have to use her steerage power for the purpose of continuing in a proper course, and it ends where the necessity for using that steerage power ceases); S.C., sub nom. Cayzer v. Carron Co. (1884), 9 App. Cas. 873; The Ovingdean Grange, [1902] P. 208, C. A.; The Ursula Fischer (1913), 29 T. L. R. 529 (the rule applies to the case of a steamer meeting a sailing vessel); see also The Libra, supra. Art. 48, as to steam vessels, crossing from one side of the river towards the other, keeping out of the way of vessels going up and down; see The John Hollway, [1900] P. 37 (article held not to apply to a steamship turning on one side of mid-channel, though owing to her length some portion of her hull might be at some time while turning across the line of mid-stream); The River Derwent (1891), 7 Asp. M. L. C. 37, H. L. (where the steamer in fact moved from one side of the river to the other while turning, and was held to come within the article); The Schwan (1889), 6 Asp. M. L. C. 409. Art. 49, as to a steamer slackening speed and stopping and reversing when approaching so as to involve risk of collision; see The Harton (1884), 9 P. D. 44. Art. 53, as to one vessel keeping her course and speed when the other has to keep out of the way; see The Schwan, supra; The River Derwent, supra.

Tyne.—The Tyne Rules, 1884, art. 18 (c), as to a vessel at anchor ringing her bell in foggy weather; see The Titan, The Rambler (1906), 10 Asp. M. L. C. 350 (article not applied to a vessel moored at a pontoon connected with the bank). Art. 20, as to a vessel being brought into port to north of mid-channel, and being taken out of port to the south, see The Harvest (1886), 11 P. D. 90, C. A. (reasonable room should be left by the incoming steamer for the outgoing one); The John o' Scott, [1897] P. 64, C. A.; The Raithwaite Hall (1874), 2 Asp. M. L. C. 210 (as to this rule in foggy weather). Arts. 21 and 22, as to crossing vessels keeping out of the way of vessels going up and down; see The Skipsea, [1905] P. 32; The Thetford (1887), 6 Asp. M. L. C. 179; The Henry Morton (1874), 2 Asp. M. L. C. 466, P. C.; see also The Hand of Providence (1856), Sw. 107 (no custom for vessels in ballast to come up on the south shore).

SECT. 2. Regulations for Preventing Collisions etc.

(ii.) Usual Events.

(a) Launching a Vessel.

Launching a vessel.

698. When a vessel is to be launched, those in charge of her are bound to give customary (b) or reasonable (c) notice thereof, to prevent injury to vessels in the neighbourhood, such as by hoisting flags, by having boats in attendance to warn passing vessels (d), by giving written notices, or otherwise. Those in charge are also bound to take customary (e) or reasonable (f) precautions to prevent injury to other vessels, by keeping a good look-out, by having a tug or tugs in attendance and otherwise. And the burden of proving such notice and such precautions lies on them, even when they are defendants (g). But there are obligations also on those in charge of passing vessels to keep out of the way (h). A vessel at anchor in the track of a launch is bound to get out of the way, if she has warning and the offer of a tug to move her (i); and if she refuses, those in charge of the launch may be justified in risking the chance of injuring her to avoid serious risk to life and property which would result from postponement (k).

(b) Getting under Way.

Getting under way.

699. It may be exceedingly imprudent to move a large vessel with a tug in a river at night in anything like thick weather (l), and an owner is likely to be held liable for a collision if his vessel gets under way unnecessarily in bad weather with other vessels about her (a). If a vessel getting under way places herself across a fair-way, she must signal, if necessary, to a vessel which cannot see her regulation lights (b).

(c) Carrying and Dropping Anchor.

Anchors.

700. A steamship ought to have both anchors ready to let go when navigating in port past other vessels, where the existence of an exceptional current is known to be possible (c). But a steamer (d) or a sailing vessel (e) may be excused for not dropping her anchor

(b) The Vianna (1858), Sw. 405, 406 (no one is bound to do more in this respect than the custom of the place requires).

(c) The Blenheim (1846), 2 Wm. Rob. 421 (what is reasonable notice depends on local considerations and other circumstances. Notice of the day is not sufficient; it should state the time more definitely).

(d) The Vianna, supra, at p. 407; The George Roper (1883), 8 P. D. 119 (held a breach of duty for the tug not to warn approaching vessels).

(e) Such as having the harbour master present; see The United States (1865), 12 L. T. 33, P. C.

(f) The George Roper, supra, at p. 120.

(g) The Glengarry (1874), 2 P. D. 235, n.

(h) The United States, supra (both to blame, the tug for not signalling, and the other vessel for being there negligently).

(i) The Cachapool (1881), 7 P. D. 217. Even if her anchor is foul and she will incur expense by slipping it; see Ketch Frances (Owners) v. Steamship Highland Loch (Owners), [1912] A. C. 312.

(k) Ketch Frances (Owners) v. Steamship Highland Loch (Owners), supra.

(l) The Borussia (1856), Sw. 94.

(a) The Carrier Dove (1863), Brown. & Lush. 113, P. C.

(b) The John Fenwick (1872), L. R. 3 A. & E. 500.

(c) The "City of Peking" (1888), 14 App. Cas. 40, P. C.

(d) The C. M. Palmer, The Larnax (1873), 2 Asp. M. L. C. 94, P. C.

(e) The Elizabeth, The Adalia (1870), 22 L. T. 74; compare Doward v.

in time to prevent a collision. And in a river a vessel should carry her anchor, as far as permissible, so as not to expose other vessels to damage by it (f). Whether she is under way or moored, her owners will be liable for damage done by the improper projection of the anchor at night (g), though not in daytime, if the other vessel could with ordinary care have avoided it (h).

(d) Steering Gear.

Steering gear.

701. When a steamship has used steam steering gear in crowded waters, she has been held to blame in some instances for not having her hand gear ready in case of a breakdown (i).

(e) Taking Tug Assistance.

Tug assistance.

702. A ship may be held to blame for manœuvring without taking tug assistance when it is available and reasonably necessary, for example, a steamship getting up her anchors off Dover in a gale without tug assistance (k), and a sailing vessel when trying to bring up ahead of another vessel in the Downs after losing one anchor and without using available tug assistance (l).

(f) Officers and Watch on Look-out.

Officers and watch on look-out.

703. As regards the officer on watch, it is a want of due care for a senior officer to give up charge to a junior officer and go below while his vessel is actually manœuvring for another vessel which is drawing near to her (m). To constitute a good look-out on a ship there must be a sufficient number of persons stationed for the purpose, who must know and be able to discharge that duty (n). As a rule, except doubtless in the case of very small vessels, there ought to be a look-out forward (o) besides the officer on the bridge, even on a fine day (p). Sometimes the proper place for the

Lindsay, The "William Lindsay" (1873), L. R. 5 P. C. 338; The Peerless (1860), Lush. 30.

(f) The Six Sisters, [1900] P. 302; and see p. 482, ante, under Thames Rules, 1898, art. 11, as to carrying the anchor stock awash.

(g) The Margaret (1881), 6 P. D. 76, C. A. Or she may be partly to blame if a man ought to have been on the other vessel who would have prevented the damage (The Scotia (1890), 6 Asp. M. L. C. 541; The Dunstanborough, [1892] P. 363, n.).

(h) The Monte Rosa, [1893] P. 23 (collision with tug).

(i) The Turret Court (1900), 69 L. J. (P.) 117; The Merchant Prince, [1892] P. 179, C. A.; see other cases as to steering gear, cited in note (e), p. 536, post.

(k) The Gertor (1894), 7 Asp. M. L. C. 472.

(l) The Annot Lyle (1886), 6 Asp. M. L. C. 50, C. A.

(m) Compare Stoomvaart Maatschappy Nederland v. Peninsular and Oriental Steam Navigation Co. (1880), 5 App. Cas. 876, 880, 881, 896, 897; The Arthur Gordon, The Independence (1861), Lush. 270, 280, P. C. (ship in tow held in fault for tug being left, while tug-master was at breakfast, in charge of a common sailor, as he was not competent and failed to manœuvre soon enough for another vessel).

(n) The George (1845), 4 Notes of Cases, 161.

(o) Or astern, if the vessel is proceeding stern first (The Juno (1894), 7 Asp. M. L. C. 506, 507).

(p) Compare The Glannibanta (1876), 1 P. D. 283, 290, C. A.; The Hector (1883), 52 L. J. (P.) 47, C. A.; London and Edinburgh Shipping Co. v. Eaton, The Iona (1867), 2 Mar. L. C. 479, 481, P. C.; Netherlands Steam Boat Co. v. Styles, The Batavier (1854), 9 Moo. P. C. C. 286.

SECT. 2. Regulations for Preventing Collisions etc.

look-out is not forward, but on the bridge (q). The crow's nest is a proper place for a look-out on a ship off Beachy Head (r). In deciding what is a proper look-out, one must consider the state of the night and the proximity of vessels; the greater the necessity for the look-out owing to thick weather or otherwise, the more vigilant it should be. It is no excuse for a bad look-out to urge that no vigilance could have avoided the other vessel (s). In some cases it has been considered that a steamship proceeding at high speed in a thronged thoroughfare (t), or in fog (a), ought to have a double look-out forward. It is a want of due caution for the look-out forward to be engaged on other duties, such as clearing the anchor (b). As regards a look-out astern at sea, there is no necessity as a rule for a ship at night, if she has a fixed stern light (c), to look out for ships astern (d), but there may be if there is reason to suppose that a vessel so approaching does not see her (e). Not having any look-out has been said to be a breach of the Sea Regulations, and it is no excuse that it was immaterial because the vessel had to keep her course (f). It is the duty of a ship towing another to keep a look-out for both (g), but this does not emancipate the tow from keeping a good look-out, and even a pilot cutter lashed alongside a ship in tow has been held liable for not doing so (h). In a river the duty of a look-out as to reporting lights is different from the duty in the open sea; to report every light in a river would mean confusion, but the duty is to watch until a light, which perhaps has been seen before, becomes material, and to report every material light as soon as it becomes material (i).

(q) Even where a river rule provided for a look-out at the bow, it was said that the proper place for the look-out in the circumstances was on the bridge instead, and that a pilot and two other persons there were a sufficient look-out (Clyde Navigation Co. v. Barclay (1876), 1 App. Cas. 790, 797, 798).

(r) The Bethania (unreported) (1910), 1st November, C. A., per Lord ALVERSTONE, C.J.

(s) The Mellona (1847), 3 Wm. Rob. 7, 11, 12, 13 (the duty to keep a good look-out is specially incumbent in hazy weather); The Nevada (1872), 1 Asp. M. L. C. 477; The Milanese (1883), Pritchard's Admiralty Digest, 3rd ed., p. 222.

(t) Compare The Germania (1869), 3 Mar. L. C. 269, P. C.; The Iron Duke (1846), 4 Notes of Cases, 94, 585, P. C.; S.S. Londonderry (Owners) v. Dolbadarn Castle (Owners) (1845), 4 Notes of Cases, Supplement, xxxi.

(a) The Europa (1850), 14 Jur. 627. As to duty of a look-out in fog to report whistles, see p. 412, ante.

(b) The Bold Buccleugh (1853), Pritchard's Admiralty Digest, 3rd ed., p. 221.

(c) See Sea Regulations, 1910, art. 10; pp. 399 et seq., ante.

(d) The City of Brooklyn (1876), 1 P. D. 276, 279, C. A.; compare The Earl Spencer (1875), L. R. 4 A. & E. 431.

(e) The Anglo-Indian (1875), 3 Asp. M. L. C. 1, P. C. And if a vessel is proceeding stern first, there is, of course, a duty to keep a look-out astern; see p. 497, post.

(f) The Craigellachie, [1909] P. 1, 5, dissented from on a different point in The Grovehurst, [1910] P. 316, C. A.

(g) The Jane Bacon (1878), 27 W. R. 35.

(h) The Harvest Home, [1905] P. 177, C. A. A vessel sailing so close to another as to obstruct her own look-out has been held to blame (The Zollverein (1856), Sw. 96, 97).

(i) The Skakkeborg, [1911] P. 245, n. In river rules it is sometimes prescribed that a master of a small steamer shall stand on the bridge, and in such a case he has been found to blame for bad look-out through not doing so (The Wirrall (1848), 3 Wm. Rob. 56, 62, 64).

He is stationed to see what vessels or obstacles are in the channel, and his attention is properly directed to this, and not elsewhere, as, for example, to the blue peter of a vessel in a basin and just coming out (k).

(g) Speed.

Speed.

704. No rate of speed by steamers or other vessels can be said absolutely to be dangerous, and whether any given rate is dangerous or not must depend on the weather, locality, sea room, and other facts (l). Fog or clear, light or dark, no steamer has a right to navigate at such a rate that it is impossible for her to prevent damage by taking all precaution at the moment she sees damage to be possible or probable (m); but no rate of speed will be laid down by the court for steamers (n). When a steamer's lights are obscured by her own smoke so as to prevent her from seeing or being seen by ships approaching, it is negligence for her to proceed at full speed (o).

In case of a fishing ground, even a sailing vessel has been held to blame for crossing the ground at excessive speed (p); and steamers which choose to pass through a fleet of fishing vessels ought to regulate their speed so as to be able to keep out of the way of incumbered fishing vessels (q).

In a river, steamers must proceed only at a rate compatible with the safety of other vessels; and they have been held to blame for swamping other vessels by their swell (r).

(k) Moss v. African Steamship Co., The "Calabar" (1868), L. R. 2 P. C. 238, 242. As to the absence of glasses for the look-out, when they are needed, see The Hibernia (1874), 2 Asp. M. L. C. 454, P. C.; and see Lord MERSEY'S Report as regards The Titanic, August, 1912. As to having a bargeman on a dumb barge in a river, see pp. 494, 495, post; and as to anchor watch, see pp. 489, 490, post.

(l) The Europa (1850), 14 Jur. 627, 630; The Milan (1861), Lush. 388.

(m) The Europa (1851), 5th December, P. C.; Pritchard's Admiralty Digest, 3rd ed., p. 223; see also the passage cited in somewhat similar terms in The S.S. Pennsylvania (1874), 2 Asp. M. L. C. 378; and compare The Europa (1850), 14 Jur. 627.

(n) The Great Eastern (1864), 2 Mar. L. C. 97, 100, P. C. Where a rate of speed for steamers is prescribed by bye-law, it means speed over the ground and not through the water (The R. L. Alston (1882), 8 P. D. 5, C. A. (decided on the Thames rule)).

(o) The Rona, The Ava (1873), 2 Asp. M. L. C. 182, P. C. Before lights were prescribed for vessels (compare The Rose (1843), 2 Wm. Rob. 1), and later when no light astern had as yet to be shown (compare The City of Brooklyn (1876), 1 P. D. 276, C. A.), the speed of steamers was restricted, ten to eleven knots being held excessive in crowded waters. It is no excuse for a vessel going at excessive speed that she is under contract to carry Government mails at a higher speed (see The Vivid (1856), Sw. 88; affirmed, sub nom. Churchward v. Palmer, The Vivid, 10 Moo. P. C. C. 472).

(p) The Pepperell (1855), Sw. 12.

(q) The Picton, [1910] P. 46. A speed of nine knots in such a case has been held excessive with a bad look-out (ibid.), but not with a good one; see The Pacific (1884), 9 P. D. 124; see also The Margaret v. The Tuscar (1866), 15 L. T. 86; The Columbus (1848), Pritchard's Admiralty Digest, 3rd ed., p. 239 (it is the duty of a vessel with a fair wind not to disturb a smack engaged in fishing); The Rose (1843), 2 Wm. Rob. 1; Murphy v. Palgreave (1869), 21 L. T. 209 (a steamer bore down on a yawl boat moored on a fishing ground, and touched her without damage. Three men who jumped overboard, in reasonable fear of their lives, recovered damages).

(r) The Batavier (1854), 1 Ecc. & Ad. 378, 382; affirmed, sub nom. Netherlands Steam Boat Co. v. Styles, The Batavier, 9 Moo. P. C. C. 286.

SECT. 2. Regulations for Preventing Collisions etc.

It is the duty of steam vessels by the rules of good seamanship to slacken speed, or stop, or reverse, in order to avoid collision (s).

(h) Keeping Clear of Vessel at Anchor.

Keeping clear of vessel at anchor.

705. It is the duty of every vessel seeing another at anchor, whether in a proper or improper place, and whether properly or improperly anchored, to take reasonable care to avoid, if practicable and consistent with her own safety, a collision (t); and a ship brought up in an exposed position has been held not to contribute to a collision with a ship driving into her (a). But it appears that a vessel may be so lying at anchor as to require more than ordinary care to avoid her (b). There is a similar duty to keep clear of a sailing vessel which is compelled at the moment to go about (c), or of an incumbered fishing vessel (d), or of other disabled vessels (e); and there is a statutory duty not to run foul of any lightship or buoy (f).

(i) Standing too Close, and Speaking.

Standing close and speaking.

706. A vessel ought not to stand so close to another in bad weather that if she is struck by a squall there will be a collision (g); and if she tries to pass in a narrow space between vessels unnecessarily, she will be to blame for a collision which results from her doing so (h).

But where the sinking of a barge was due partly to the swell and partly to her being moored in a very exposed place, she could not formerly recover at common law (see The Duke of Cornwall (1862), Pritchard's Admiralty Digest, 3rd ed., p. 226), nor if her sinking was partly due to her being improperly trimmed (compare Luxford v. Large (1833), 5 C. & P. 421; Smith v. Dobson (1841), 3 Scott (N. R.), 336). As to damage to barges by steamers, see, further, p. 494, post.

(s) See the Sea Regulations, 1910, art. 23; p. 454, ante.

(t) Compare The Secret (1872), 1 Asp. M. L. C. 318; The Batavier (1845), 2 Wm. Rob. 407; Girolamo (1834), 3 Hag. Adm. 169, 173; The Duna (1860), 5 Ir. Jur. (N. S.) 384; The Anne (1860), 5 Ir. Jur. (N. S.) 360. As to defences of compulsory pilotage or otherwise, compare The Lochlibo (1850), 3 Wm. Rob. 310, 319; The Batavier, supra). As to the burden of proof in such cases, see pp. 500, 501, post.

(a) The Despatch (1860), Lush. 98, P. C.

(b) The Telegraph, Valentine v. Cleugh (1854), 1 Ecc. & Ad. 427, 429; compare The Bothnia (1860), Lush. 52. And in various American cases the vessel at anchor has been held in such circumstances to have caused or contributed to the collision; see United States v. St. Louis and Mississippi Valley Transportation Co. (1902), 184 United States Reports, 247; The Clara (1880), 12 Otto, 200; The Scioto (1847), Daveis, 359; Strout v. Foster (1843), 1 Howard, 89.

(c) The Priscilla (1870), L. R. 3 A. & E. 125; compare Chadwick v. City of Dublin Steam Packet Co. (1856), 6 E. & B. 771.

(d) See under Sea Regulations, 1910, art. 9; pp. 396, 397, ante.

(e) As to the duty to keep clear of a vessel in stays, see The Sea Nymph (1860), Lush. 23; and as to the duty of a vessel either not to throw herself in stays (see The Allan v. The Flora (1866), 2 Mar. L. C. 386), or if in stays to get under command as quickly as possible, see Wilson v. Canada Shipping Co. (1877), 2 App. Cas. 389, P. C.; The Kingston-by-Sea (1850), 3 Wm. Rob. 152; The Calcutta (1869), 3 Mar. L. C. 336. In such cases a collision has sometimes been held accidental (The John Buddle (1847), 5 Notes of Cases, 387; The Thornley (1843), 7 Jur. 659). As to a vessel which is disabled being excused for departure from the Sea Regulations, see p. 369, ante.

(f) M. S. Act, 1894, s. 666.

(g) The Globe (1848), 6 Notes of Cases, 275.

(h) The Schwalbe (1861), Lush. 239.

A ship which approaches another to speak to her does so at her own risk (i); and a vessel ought not to run alongside another for this purpose while running before the wind (k).

(j) Coming to Anchor, and Foul Berth.

Coming to anchor, and foul berth.

707. A vessel intending to come to anchor ought to make preparations (l), choosing her time (m) and easing her speed (n), and ought to see carefully that all is clear around her (o); and in a river should round to against the strength of the tide (p), and give any necessary warning before putting herself across the line of navigation (q).

When one vessel anchors near another, there should be sufficient space left for swinging to the anchor, so that in ordinary circumstances the two vessels cannot come together; and a berth such that sufficient space is not left is a foul berth (r). It is improper to anchor directly ahead or directly astern of another vessel, in the direction of the tides or prevailing winds, unless at so great a distance as will allow time for either vessel to take measures to avoid collision in the event of either driving from her anchors (s). When a vessel has given another a foul berth, she has no right to demand that the other should take extraordinary precautions (t), and when the difficulty calls for instant decision, the other may not be to blame for an error of judgment (a).

(k) Anchor Watch.

Anchor watch and precautions.

708. A vessel at anchor ought to have a competent person on watch to see that the anchor light is duly exhibited, and also do everything in his power to avert or minimise a collision (b).

(i) H.M.S. Bellerophon (1875), 3 Asp. M. L. C. 58, P. C.

(k) The Thames (1805), 5 Ch. Rob. 345.

(l) If necessary, by getting tug assistance; see p. 485, ante.

(m) Compare Bibby v. Boissevain, The "Egyptian" (1863), 1 Moo. P. C. C. (N. S.) 373 (delaying to bring up till night instead of doing so safely in daytime).

(n) Compare The Ceres (1857), Sw. 250, 252. A sailing vessel should shorten sail in time before bringing up near other vessels; compare Neptune the Second (1814), 1 Dods. 467; The Secret (1872), 1 Asp. M. L. C. 318.

(o) The Ceres, supra; The Annot Lyle (1886), 6 Asp. M. L. C. 50, C. A. On grounds where drift-net fishing is going on, fishing boats are forbidden to anchor (Sea Fisheries Act, 1883 (46 & 47 Vict. c. 22), Sched. I., art. 14).

(p) The Shannon (1842), 1 Wm. Rob. 463, 471.

(q) The Queen Victoria (1891), 7 Asp. M. L. C. 9, C. A.; The Philotaxe (1877), 3 Asp. M. L. C. 512.

(r) The "Northampton" (1853), 1 Ecc. & Ad. 152, 160; compare The Woburn Abbey (1869), 3 Mar. L. C. 240 (foul berth, though collision not for some days); The Innisfail, The Secret (1876), 3 Asp. M. L. C. 337 (foul berth and hurricane; inevitable accident).

(s) The Cumberland (1836), Stuart's Vice-Admiralty Court Cases, Lower Canada, 75, 79. A vessel has been held to blame for coming to anchor in a bay during bad weather two cables ahead of another (The Volcano (1844), 2 Wm. Rob. 337). But a cable's length was held a clear berth in the Mersey (The Princeton (1878), 3 P. D. 90).

(t) The Vivid (1873), 1 Asp. M. L. C. 601.

(a) "Mary" Tug Co. v. British India Steam Navigation Co., The "Meanatchy," [1897] A. C. 351, P. C.

(b) Ibid.; Lack v. Seward (1829), 4 C. & P. 106; Vanderplank v. Miller

SECT. 2. Regulations for Preventing Collisions etc.

She must take proper precautions to prevent driving in heavy weather (c). It may be her duty to shift her berth (d), or to slip and put to sea (e). A vessel coming last to a tier has been held in fault for not hauling out from it in bad weather, that being the only means of avoiding damage to a vessel alongside (f). And when one vessel is lying on shore or in dock, and a second vessel is voluntarily placed where damage will happen if some probable event arises which it is not possible to control, the owners of the second vessel will be responsible (g). So the owners will be liable if a vessel moors where she will take the ground and heel over and damage another vessel (h).

(iii.) Special Vessels.

(a) Tug and Tow.

Tug and tow.

709. When one vessel is in tow of another, the tug and tow owe certain duties towards each other and other vessels to prevent a collision. When the tug controls the navigation, and her master and crew are not the servants of the owners of the tow (i), as is usual when a tug is towing barges in a river, the duty of those on board the tow towards the tug appears to be substantially confined to following her manœuvres (k), and the tow is entitled to act on the (1828), Mood. & M. 169. Two persons have been considered sufficient look-out for an anchor watch (The Christiana (1849), 7 Notes of Cases, 2, 6). A ship moored to buoys in the Tyne was held to blame for not having an anchor watch (The Pladda (1876), 2 P. D. 34, 39). A single watchman may suffice for a ship in a dock (The Excelsior (1868), L. R. 2 A. & E. 268, 271).

(c) A single anchor may suffice for a vessel intending to stop for only one tide (The Gipsey King (1847), 2 Wm. Rob. 537); but not in a gale (The Maggie Armstrong v. The Blue Bell (1865), 2 Mar. L. C. 318). As to mooring appliances, persons who give the use of them for value warrant their fitness (Allen v. Quebec Warehouse Co. (1886), 12 App. Cas. 101, P. C.), and port authorities which permit their use treat them as sufficient (Doward v. Lindsay, The "William Lindsay" (1873), L. R. 5 P. C. 338, 343). As regards anchor chain, sixty fathoms were found an improperly short cable for a vessel of 1,489 tons in the Mersey in a strong wind and tide (The City of Cambridge (1874), L. R. 4 A. & E. 161; affirmed, sub nom. Wood v. Smith, The "City of Cambridge," L. R. 5 P. C. 451); compare The Peerless (1860), Lush. 30 (catching of cable on windlass an inevitable accident). A ship has been held to blame for not getting a rope fast, when necessary, to a pier-head 800 feet off (The Lyn (1883), Pritchard's Admiralty Digest, 3rd ed., p. 291); and for not striking her top gear and yards (The Ruby Queen (1861), Lush. 266; The Excelsior (1868), L. R. 2 A. & E. 268). As to inevitable accident, see, further, pp. 535, 536, post.

(d) The Woburn Abbey (1869), 3 Mar. L. C. 240.

(e) The Uhla (1867), 19 L. T. 89.

(f) The Patriotto v. The Rival (1860), 2 L. T. 301.

(g) The Lidskjalf (1856), Sw. 117, 119; The Jacob (1860), 5 Ir. Jur. (N. S.) 379.

(h) The Jacob, supra; The Indian v. The Jessie (1865), 2 Mar. L. C. 217 (damage to barge); The Western Belle (1906), 10 Asp. M. L. C. 279 (damage to moorings); but see Dalton v. Denton (1857), 1 C. B. (N. S.) 672.

(i) As to when the tug or tow takes control, and as to the liabilities of the tug and tow towards one another and third parties, see, further, pp. 357, 358, 529, post.

(k) The Jane Bacon (1878), 27 W. R. 35; The Marmion (1913), 29 T. L. R. 646 (when tug sounding regulation whistles tow need not sound her whistle).

belief that the tug will be reasonably well navigated (l). But in the case of a ship in tow of a tug at sea or in a river (m), whether by night or day, as a rule the tow controls the navigation in order to avoid a divided command, and because the pilot, if there be one, takes his station on the tow, and the officers of the tow are usually of a higher class and better able to direct the navigation than those of the tug (n). The rule is subject to exception (o), and it is a question of fact as to whether the master of the tug has undertaken the management of the tug and tow (p). In the ordinary case of a ship in tow the general direction is to be given by those on the tow, but she is not constantly to interfere, and those in charge of the tug must use their judgment and not constantly expect orders from the tow (q). At night a ship in tow is liable for the wrong lights of a tug over which she has reasonable control, and which is attached to her for the purpose of towing (r). But when a tug controls the navigation, for instance when towing a barge in a river, blame for breach by the tug of sailing regulations cannot be affixed to the tow (s). The tug contracts to obey the orders of the tow (t). When there is a pilot on the tow, he is bound to give the tug proper directions and the tug is bound to obey them (a). If the tug does not get orders, she is responsible for the direction of the course (b). It is the duty of those on the tow (c) to check the tug, and of those on the tug (d) to warn the tow, if they know that the course which is set is dangerous. It is in general the duty of the tow to follow all the tug's manœuvres (e), and when other vessels are likely to be met to have the means ready of slipping or cutting the rope (f).

(l) Lightship Comet (Owners) v. The W. H. No. 1 (Owners), The W. H. No. 1 and The Knight Errant, [1911] A. C. 30.

(m) The Isca (1886), 12 P. D. 34, 35.

(n) The Niobe (1888), 13 P. D. 55, 59.

(o) Union Steamship Co. v. "Aracan" (Owners), The "American" and The "Syria" (1874), L. R. 6 P. C. 127.

(p) The Isca, supra. As to a ship in tow at night with a long hawser not directing the movements of the tug, see The Stormcock (1885), 5 Asp. M. L. C. 470. The legal relationship of master and servant arising from a towage contract is not material to the question as regards third parties whether either or both tug and tow are to blame for a collision between the tow and a third vessel (The W. H. No. 1 and The Knight Errant, [1910] P. 199, C. A.).

(q) The Isca, supra.

(r) The Devonian, [1901] P. 221, C. A.

(s) S.S. Devonshire (Owners) v. Barge Leslie (Owners), [1912] A. C. 634; The W. H. No. 1 and The Knight Errant, supra.

(t) The Mary (1879). 5 P. D. 16.

(a) The Energy (1870), L. R. 3 A. & E. 48 (order to try to slip the tow-rope); Spaight v. Tedcastle (1881), 6 App. Cas. 217; Smith v. St. Lawrence Tow-Boat Co. (1873), L. R. 5 P. C. 308 (order to stop in fog); The Duke of Sussex (1841), 1 Wm. Rob. 270; The Christina (1848), 3 Wm. Rob. 27.

(b) The Altair, [1897] P. 105, 115; The Robert Dixon (1879), 5 P. D. 54, 58, C. A.

(c) The Altair, supra, at p. 116.

(d) Shersby v. Hibbert, The Duke of Manchester (1847), 5 Notes of Cases, 470, P. C.

(e) The Jane Bacon (1878), 27 W. R. 35.

(f) Ibid. As to the tug casting off the tow, compare The Annapolis, The Golden Light, The H. M. Hayes (1861), Lush. 355, P. C. As to two

SECT. 2. Regulations for Preventing Collisions etc.

Tug and tow manœuvring for other vessels.

710. As regards manœuvring for other vessels, many of the ordinary obligations of a steamer are shared by a tug and her tow, because to a great extent they partake of the nature of a steamer (g). A tug has been held bound to stop her engines enough to let the way run off the tow, on hearing in fog the fog signal of a vessel under conditions in which an ordinary steamer ought to stop her engines (h). On the other hand, when it would have been the duty of an ordinary steamer to stop her engines on approaching another vessel so as to involve risk of collision, a tug with a ship in tow has been held excused for not stopping them when she was going extremely slowly (i). A tug with a vessel in tow is bound to keep out of the way of a sailing vessel (k), but allowances should be made for the comparatively disabled condition of the tug as an incumbered steamer, and a duty of additional caution is imposed on the sailing vessel approaching her (l).

(b) Sailing Vessels.

Sailing vessels.

711. As regards sailing vessels (m), one general rule is that when a ship is in stays or in the act of going about, she becomes for the time being unmanageable, and in this case it is the duty of a vessel which ought otherwise to have kept her course to execute any practical manœuvre which would prevent collision (n); but when a ship goes about very near to another, and without giving any preparatory indication from which that other can be warned in vessels being in tow of a tug, and one being damaged by the grounding of the other without fault of the tug, see Harris v. Anderson (1863), 14 C. B. (N. S.) 499; as to contract of towage, see also p. 528, post.

(g) The Lord Bangor, [1896] P. 28, 33; The Knarwater (1894), 63 L. J. (ADM.) 65.

(h) The Challenge and Duc D'Aumale, [1905] P. 198, C. A.; compare Sea Regulations, 1910, art. 16; pp. 414, 415, ante.

(i) The Lord Bangor, [1896] P. 28.

(k) The Warrior (1872), L. R. 3 A. & E. 553.

(l) Union Steamship Co. v. "Aracan" (Owners), The "American" and The "Syria" (1874), L. R. 6 P. C. 127, 131. A steamer with a ship in tow is under the control of and has to consider the ship to which she is attached, and of which she may for many purposes be considered as a part, the motive power being in the steamer and the governing power in the ship towed. She cannot by stopping or reversing her engines at once stop or back the tow. She cannot at once, and with the same rapidity, by slipping aside out of the way of another vessel draw the tow out of the way. She may have a long hawser, and the movement which sends the tug out of danger may draw the tow into it. The vessel in tow may be a log upon the water, only moving in the direction in which she is drawn; see Maddox v. Fisher, The Independence (1861), 14 Moo. P. C. C. 103, 115, 116; The Cleadon (1860), Lush. 158, P. C. Whether such a steamer is to be considered under the same obligation as an ordinary steamer depends upon the state of the wind and weather, the course of the steamer, and the nature of the impediments in her course (The Kingston-by-Sea (1850), 3 Wm. Rob. 152, 154; compare The La Plata (1857), Sw. 298, P. C. (where it was held that a small vessel in tow of a tug in a river should get out of the way of a large ship in tow).

(m) As to the chief rules of navigation for sailing vessels, see Sea Regulations, 1910, art. 17; p. 425, ante.

(n) Wilson v. Canada Shipping Co. (1877), 2 App. Cas. 389, P. C.; The Ida v. The Wasa of Nicolaistadt (1866), 15 L. T. 103.

time to prepare to give room, the damage may arise from the fault of those in charge of the ship going about at such improper time or place (o). When a vessel, which ought to keep out of the way of another, has thrown herself into stays, she ought still to take any reasonable steps to avoid collision (p). When a sailing vessel beating up a river has gone as near one shore as she can safely go so as to avoid collision with vessels at anchor, she is entitled to go about without warning to other vessels, and it is the duty of a steamer coming up astern to know from her position and the state of her sails that she is going about, and to keep out of her way (q). It is the duty of a sailing vessel following another to go about where the leading vessel is compelled to go about (r).

A sailing vessel is entitled to wear instead of staying, but ought not to resort to the extraordinary operation of wearing unless she is sure she has room to do so safely (s).

A vessel sailing free ought to get out of the way of a sailing vessel lying-to (t). A vessel hove-to should exercise more than ordinary care not to obstruct navigation (u); heaving-to in the track of ships and lying with helm lashed a-lee may be negligence (x).

In manœuvring for other vessels, it is the duty of a sailing vessel to use her sails to assist her helm, when necessary (a).

(c) Dangerous Vessels.

Dangerous vessels.

712. If there is on a ship a latent instrument of danger, for instance a ram on a warship, those who have the control are bound to take all reasonable precautions that it shall not cause damage to other vessels; but the obligation to give notice is dependent on

(o) The Leonidas (1841), Stuart's Vice-Admiralty Court Cases, Lower Canada, 226, 229; The Allan v. The Flora (1866), 2 Mar. L. C. 386 (duty of a vessel to take a proper survey of the sea immediately surrounding her before going into stays); The Sea Nymph (1860), Lush. 23 (burden of proof, first, on vessel to show that she is in stays, which is almost the same as at anchor, and then, on the other vessel to show that the first vessel was improperly in stays or otherwise); The Mobile (1856), Sw. 69, 127, P. C.

(p) Wilson v. Canada Shipping Co. (1877), 2 App. Cas. 389, P. C. (by getting sternway on her); The Kingston-by Sea (1850), 3 Wm. Rob. 152, 158 (through making her pay off before the wind, by squaring the mainyard).

(q) The Palatine (1872), 1 Asp. M. L. C. 468. But the vessel in stays, when the state of her canvas is not visible to the other vessel, should warn the other vessel in sufficient time (Wilson v. Canada Shipping Co., supra).

(r) The Priscilla (1870), L. R. 3 A. & E. 125; compare The Annie, [1909] P. 176, 179. As to not standing too close in a time of squalls, compare The Plato v. The Perseverance (1865), Holt (ADM.), 262.

(s) The Falkland, The Navigator (1863), Brown. & Lush. 204, P. C.

(t) The Eleanor v. The Alma (1865), 2 Mar. L. C. 240.

(u) Ibid.

(x) The Attila (1879), 5 Quebec Law Reports, 340.

(a) The Marpesia (1872), L. R. 4 P. C. 212 (assist helm by hauling in head-sheets and letting go lee braces, if there is time); The Ulster (1862), 1 Mar. L. C. 234, P. C. (duty of schooner to run up her outer jib to assist in turning her head); The Lady Anne (1850), 15 Jur. 18; The James (1856), Sw. 55, 60, P. C.

SECT. 2. Regulations for Preventing Collisions etc.

having a reasonable opportunity of giving it, and there is no obligation to give it unless there is a reasonable probability of danger to the other vessel from want of it (b).

(d) Small Vessels.

Small vessels.

713. In the case of a large ship in tow in a river close over to her right side, and a small vessel also in tow but on her wrong side, it was stated that it is the duty of small vessels to keep out of the way of large ships in time (c); and where there is no custom or rule to the contrary, it may well be that a small vessel should take into account such a consideration, for instance, as regards increasing her speed, or choosing the moment for a necessary alteration in her course.

(e) Dumb Barges.

Dumb barges.

714. A dumb barge (d) in the Thames, in the absence of any rule of the road, regulation or custom to prevent it, may navigate as hitherto on either side of the river (e), and in the deep water, although she thereby obstructs larger vessels, having as much right as they to the advantage of a swift stream (f). There is no duty imposed by statute on a dumb barge to get out of the way of a steamer; on the contrary, it is the steamer's duty to keep out of her way (g). And as a dumb barge carries no anchor and has no means of bringing up, she is entitled to go on in a fog until she comes in contact with something to which she can make fast (h). A dumb barge drifting on the tide was not formerly bound by the Sea Regulations to carry a light (i); and when there was no local rule for her to show a light, and if she did not do so, a collision between the barge and a steamer on a dark night afforded no presumption of negligence against the steamer, and was an inevitable accident, unless negligence was proved (k). But if the Sea Regulations, 1910, article 5, applies to her, because she is lashed alongside a tug, she is bound to carry the proper lights (l). Whether a barge when not under way ought to have a man in charge of her depends on circumstances. One important point to be considered is whether it is usual in the (b) H.M.S. Bellerophon (1875), 3 Asp. M. L. C. 58.

(c) The La Plata (1857), Sw. 298, P. C., in which case it was so stated by the nautical assessors and approved by the Privy Council.

(d) A dumb barge is a barge without sails or helm; compare Aktieselkab Helios v. Ekman & Co., [1897] 2 Q. B. 83, 87, C. A. (it is a barge which, with the exception of two small cabins at the ends of the barge, one for stowing the tackle of the barge and the other for the use of the bargeman, is altogether undecked and open for the reception of cargo).

(e) The Owen Wallis (1874), L. R. 4 A. & E. 175, 177.

(f) The Ralph Creyke (1886), 6 Asp. M. L. C. 19. And there is nothing negligent in one keel driving up river on the flood tide lashed to another keel, they together taking up no more room than a steamship (ibid.).

(g) The Owen Wallis, supra, at p. 177. As to damage to barges by the swell of steamers, see p. 487, ante.

(h) The Rose of England (1888), 6 Asp. M. L. C. 304.

(i) The Owen Wallis (1874), L. R. 4 A. & E. 175; but see now, as to vessels under oars, Sea Regulations, 1910, art. 7.

(k) The Swallow (1877), 3 Asp. M. L. C. 371, C. A.

(l) The Lighter No. 3 (1902), 18 T. L. R. 322.

circumstances to have a man in charge (m); but that is not conclusive (n). The principle of the cases as regards barges, even when in dock, has been that it is negligence not to have a man in charge if there are dangers likely to be incurred which he could prevent, and which are so obvious that they ought to be prevented. The same principle applies wherever a barge is situated, whenever someone should be there on account of the run of the river or exposure of the barge (o).

(iv.) Special Weather.

Special weather.

715. In addition to the rules of good seamanship in fog (p), a vessel may be to blame for neglecting such precautions as good seamanship dictates to guard against dangers arising from special weather. Thus a steamship with three hands on board, which broke from her moorings in a gale, has been held to blame for not having her anchor ready to let go, and for her master and more of her crew not being on board (q); and a steamship, properly moored but dashed into by another vessel in heavy weather and broken adrift, was held to blame for collision with a third vessel, among other reasons, for having her chains improperly unbent from her anchors, so that no anchor could be let go (r). The master of a vessel has been held in fault for not having a sufficient crew on board in heavy weather to protect his ship against the ordinary incidents of peril which a competent seaman would guard against (s).

(m) The Western Belle (1906), 10 Asp. M. L. C. 279 (absence of man not negligence).

(n) The Scotia (1890), 6 Asp. M. L. C. 541.

(o) The Western Belle, supra. A dumb barge at night with her head fast to another barge at a tier is in fault for swinging athwart the fair-way of a river with no one on board to show a light or warn approaching vessels (The St. Aubin, [1907] P. 60 (barge alone to blame)). When a barge was fast by her head rope in dock, with her stern swinging out as an obstacle, but there was plenty of light, and a tug coming down the dock struck her, the absence of a bargeman was held to have nothing to do with the collision (The Hornet, [1892] P. 361). And where a barge was moored in barge roads and out of the track, and it was not usual to have a man on board, his absence was held not to be negligence, although if on board he might have averted the damage (The Western Belle, supra). But where a steamer and barge were moored in dock at night, and the steamer got under way and her propeller struck the barge, and a bargeman would have avoided the accident, his absence was held to be negligence contributing to the collision, although it was not usual to have a man on a barge in dock; see The Scotia (1890), 6 Asp. M. L. C. 541; compare The Dunstanborough (1891), [1892] P. 363, n. (absence negligent); Lack v. Seward (1829), 4 C. &. P. 106 (if the plaintiff's men put the barge in such a place that persons using ordinary care would run against it, the defendant is not liable at common law, nor is he liable if the accident would have been avoided but for the negligence of the men in not being on board the barge when it was lying in a dangerous place).

(p) As to which, see Sea Regulations, 1910, arts. 15, 16; pp. 410, 417 et seq., ante.

(q) The Kepler (1875), 2 P. D. 40, n., in which case the steamship was moored in a place which required every precaution, and there was a bye-law requiring her not to be left without a responsible person on board.

(r) The Pladda (1876), 2 P. D. 34.

(s) The Excelsior (1868), L. R. 2 A. & E. 268, 272. As to vessels in heavy weather, see, further, p. 490, ante, p. 536, post.

SECT. 2. Regulations for Preventing Collisions etc.

(v.) Navigation in Rivers and Narrow Waters.

(a) Tide and Current.

Tide and current.

716. When an exceptional current or tide occurs at a place at distant intervals, but may occur at any time, a cautious mariner is bound to keep in view its possibility and be prepared for it, and if those in charge of a vessel are caught unprepared by such a current because they think there is no probability of it, they will be in fault (t). Where an eddy noted in the charts prevented a vessel's port helm from acting, so that a collision occurred, but the necessity for port helm arose from the other vessel proceeding along the wrong side of a channel and suddenly coming out, when the first vessel had a right to expect that the coast would be clear, the first vessel was held not to blame (u).

(b) Waiting at Bend.

Waiting at bend.

717. In a tidal river where there is a strong bend, a steam vessel having the tide against her should ease her engines and wait under the point until another vessel coming with the tide has cleared her (a); and where a steamship coming up with the tide failed to answer her helm at a sharp and dangerous bend in the river owing to the eddy, another steamship coming down against the tide was held to blame for the collision, owing to her not having waited for the first vessel to clear the bend (b). A steamship proceeding down a difficult reach in a river against the flood tide on a night not very clear ought to navigate with great care and great caution, because there being a flood tide vessels will probably be met, and she has a special duty to keep a good look-out (c). Sometimes good seamanship requires a steamer to whistle when rounding a bend even with the tide (d).

(c) Dredging Stern First.

Dredging up stern first.

718. A steamship proceeding up river with a strong flood tide and approaching a bend may be held to blame for not swinging

(t) The "City of Peking" (1888), 14 App. Cas. 40, P. C. Those who allege an unusual eddy as excusing them should give positive evidence of it; it is not enough to say that a strong eddy must have caught the vessel, otherwise she would have come round (The Polynésien, [1910] P. 28, 33).

(u) Scicluna v. Stevenson, The "Rhondda" (1883), 8 App. Cas. 549, P. C.

(a) The Talabot (1890), 15 P. D. 194 (this rule of good seamanship applied, although there was also a rule that the vessels should pass port to port). See also the cases cited on pp. 482, 483, ante, under the Thames Bye-laws, 1898, r. 47. In The Symrna (1864), 11 L. T. 74, P. C., it was held that common prudence required that a vessel ascending a river with a strong current should place herself out of the strength of the current, so as to allow full swing to the descending vessels. In The La Plata (1857), Sw. 220, 223, Dr. LUSHINGTON appears to have thought that a vessel towing against the tide was responsible to other vessels for any danger which might arise to other vessels greater than if she were towing with it; but this opinion received no support on the appeal, when the decision was reversed ((1857), Sw. 298).

(b) The Ezardian, [1911] P. 92.

(c) The "Trident" (1854), 1 Ecc. & Ad. 217, 220, 223.

(d) The Kennet (1911), 12 Asp. M. L. C. 120; and see under Sea Regulations, 1910, art. 28; pp. 474, 475, ante.

round and dredging up stern first, according to local practice, in order to avoid excessive speed (e). A vessel proceeding up river stern first at night should exhibit a stern light to down-coming vessels (f) and should keep a look-out up river, and, if a steamship, should give some signal, such as a prolonged blast on her whistle, to prevent a mistake by down-coming vessels (g). When a keel, with her mast lowered, lashed to another keel, was driving up the deep-water channel of a river on the flood tide, it was held that both keels should have dredged up, so that by keeping the anchor on the ground they could practically steer themselves and by letting the anchor hold could bring themselves to a standstill (h).

(d) Difficulties of Warping, or Smelling the Ground.

Difficulties of warping, or smelling the ground.

719. If a vessel chooses to use a particular mode of going down river at a time which makes it difficult for her to escape collision, she must bear the consequences of a contingency to which she has exposed herself. Accordingly, when a steamship was warping down river against the flood, it was held to be no excuse that she was incapable of getting out of the way (i). When those in charge of a vessel are navigating a river where they know there is a risk of her smelling the ground, they ought, if necessary by occasionally stopping their engines, to keep her so well under control as to be able to avoid collision with other vessels in case she smells the ground and fails to answer her helm (k).

(e) Crossing or Turning in a River.

Crossing or turning in a river.

720. It is not uncommon to have a bye-law in a river to the effect that a vessel crossing shall keep out of the way of other traffic. Such a rule does not mean that if two vessels come into collision the one which is crossing is to blame (l). The whole river belongs to everybody, and nobody has an exclusive occupation of the road. If a vessel is properly endeavouring to get as soon as practicable to the other side of the river, and is doing that in a proper way, she is merely making a legitimate use of the river (m). The crossing vessel may cross if there is time and opportunity to do so without hampering another vessel, and the other vessel which sees a vessel about to cross must act reasonably with regard to her, and if she wants a little more room to assist her in crossing must give it. It is a kind of give and take; but the weight of responsibility for the operation at the outset is principally upon the vessel crossing, in that she must see whether she has room to cross.

(e) The Frankfort, [1910] P. 50, C. A.
(f) Compare The Indian Chief (1888), 14 P. D. 24.
(g) The Juno (1894), 7 Asp M. L. C. 506; or three short blasts; see The Battersea (1912), Shipping Gazette, 14th February.
(h) The Ralph Creyke (1886), 6 Asp. M. L. C. 19. As to a duty to dredge up river if under way in a dense fog, compare The Aguadillana (1889), 6 Asp. M. L. C. 390; and see Sea Regulations, 1910, art. 16; pp. 414 et seq., ante.
(i) The Hope (1843), 2 Wm. Rob. 8.
(k) The Ralph Creyke, supra.
(l) The Thelford (1887), 6 Asp. M. L. C. 179.
(m) Ibid.

SECT. 2. Regulations for Preventing Collisions etc.

Where one vessel about to cross is near a second vessel which must act for her if she crosses, those on the first vessel ought to make up their minds at once whether to cross or not and indicate their intention in an unmistakable way (n). Similarly a burden is sometimes placed on a vessel turning in a river either not to cause damage to other vessels (o) or, if a steamship, to give certain sound signals (p), and a vessel has been found in fault for trying to turn round too sharply across the course of another vessel in the Bosphorus (q).

(f) Anchoring or Aground in Fair-way.

Anchoring in fair-way.

721. A vessel is justified in anchoring in the fair-way of a river if overtaken by a dense fog, but those in charge ought to move her as soon as they reasonably can (r). When a vessel is compelled by damage from collision through no fault of hers to drop her anchor, it is not negligent to drop it in the fair-way in what would otherwise have been an improper place (s). It is not necessarily unlawful in fine weather to anchor in a river in the track of a ferryboat (t).

Aground in fair-way.

722. Apart from any regulations, those in charge of a vessel aground at night in the fair-way of a navigable channel are bound to take proper means to apprise other vessels of her position (a). A vessel in a fog which neglected to give prescribed signals by ringing the bell was held partly in fault for the collision, though the other vessel had no right to be under way (b).

(g) Incoming Vessel to Wait for Outgoing.

Incoming vessel to wait for outgoing.

723. When two vessels from opposite directions are approaching the entrance to a dock or harbour so as to reach it at about the same time and there is not room for them to pass each other there, it is the universal rule that the incoming vessel should wait to enter until the outgoing vessel has got clear (c). When a vessel is (n) The Skipsea, [1905] P. 32, 37, 41. As to vessels crossing a river, see, further, the cases on the Thames Rules, 1898, art. 48, and the Tyne Rules, 1884, art. 22, pp. 482. 483, ante.

(o) Compare Tyne Rules, 1884, art. 22.

(p) Compare Thames Rules, 1898, art. 40.

(q) S.S. Chittagong (Owners) v. S.S. Kostroma (Owners), [1901] A. C. 597, P. C.

(r) The Aguadillana (1889), 6 Asp. M. L. C. 390, 391.

(s) The Kjobenhavn (1874), 2 Asp. M. L. C. 213.

(t) The Lancashire (1874), L. R. 4 A. & E. 198, 200.

(a) The Industrie (1871), L. R. 3 A. & E. 303, 308 (no light shown); The Bromsgrove, [1912] P. 182; compare The Queen Victoria (1891), 7 Asp. M. L. C. 9, C. A. (a steamship in the Firth of Clyde suddenly stopping to anchor ought to signal by whistle to vessels approaching from astern, though she is carrying a stern light).

(b) The Clutha Boat 147, [1909] P. 36, 42; The Blue Bell, [1895] P. 242; and see Thames Rules, 1898, art. 38.

(c) Taylor v. Burger (1898), 8 Asp. M. L. C. 364, H. L.; compare The Henry Morton (1874), 2 Asp. M. L. C. 466, 467, P. C., where the judge of the Admiralty Court held that it was the duty of a steamship by the common rules of navigation, having the tide assisting her, to stop to allow another vessel to come out of dock; and it was held in the Privy Council to be her duty to stop or go under the stern of such vessel.

coming out of dock to turn up or down river, another vessel is entitled to take for granted that she will resort to all the means proper for the purpose; and if a vessel, for instance, by not running up her jib fails to take such means, and so causes a collision, she is to blame for it (d).

(h) Obeying Orders of Dock Master or Harbour Master.

Orders of dock master or harbour master.

724. It is the duty of a harbour master or dock master to consider the interests of all the shipping under his care, and he is entitled to order a vessel to move from her berth if a second vessel, which is disabled, absolutely requires the protection of this berth, while the first vessel can with care do without it, even if in the interests of the first vessel alone the order to move would be injudicious (e). A dock master has authority to give directions to a vessel which is coming into dock (f), and to order a ship to leave the premises of the dock authority (g). The primary duty of those in charge of a vessel is obedience to the dock master's orders; it is not their duty in any doubtful case to consider whether the order is right or wrong. But if it is certain that a disaster will happen by obeying an order, then and then only it ought to be disobeyed (h).

SECT. 3.—Negligence Causing Damage; and the Rule of Division of Damage or Loss in Proportion to Fault.

SUB-SECT. 1.—Negligence Causing Damage by Collision between Vessels: Preliminary Rules as regards Negligence.

(i.) Negligence must Cause Collision and Damage.

Cause of action.

725. The ordinary case of negligence causing damage by collision is that of one vessel coming into collision with another

(d) Laird v. Brownlie, The "Ulster" (1862), 1 Moo. P. C. C. (N. S.) 31, 41; compare The Mourne, [1901] P. 68, where the vessel coming out under a starboard helm was held not bound to give the starboard helm signal, nor to stop her engines, on seeing the other vessel; The Sunlight, [1904] P. 100, where the outcoming vessel was held in fault while in the half-tide lock for not seeing the lights of the vessels in the river and for not easing her engines and starboarding; Richelieu and Ontario Navigation Co. v. Taylor, [1910] A. C. 174, P. C. (when there is a regulation as to a vessel lying off at a specified distance, if there are several vessels waiting to enter, this is intended to preserve order among those competing for entrance, and is not intended to excuse the erratic and dangerous movements of another vessel).

(e) The Excelsior (1868), L. R. 2 A. & E. 268. In such a case the master of the vessel ought to move her, and may be in fault if he has not sufficient crew on board to protect his vessel against ordinary perils (ibid.).

(f) Reney v. Kirkcudbright Magistrates, [1892] A. C. 264, 269; and see Harbours, Docks and Piers Clauses Act, 1847 (10 & 11 Vict. c. 27), ss. 52, 53; pp. 640, 641, post.

(g) The Sunlight, [1904] P. 100, 112.

(h) Taylor v. Burger (1898), 8 Asp. M. L. C. 364, 365, H. L. When a signal was given for a sailing vessel to enter a narrow channel leading to a dock, a tug was held to blame for entering the channel to pick up a buoy and thereby obstructing the sailing vessel and causing a collision (The Effort (1847), 5 Notes of Cases, 279).

SECT. 3. Negligence Causing Damage.

vessel. In these circumstances, to establish a right of action against the owner of a vessel, the court must decide that there was a collision, that damage was done by it, and that the collision or damage was caused wholly or in part by the fault of the owner, or the person for whom he is responsible (a). Impact of two vessels without damage gives no right of action (b); but if the defendant's negligence has caused the damage, though not the collision, he will be at least partly in fault (c). Impact and damage without fault on the part of those in charge of a vessel give no right of action in rem against the vessel (d), and the damage is then either an inevitable accident (e), or is due to the fault of the other party, or some other person, such as a compulsory pilot (f).

(ii.) Burden of Proof of Negligence in Collision Cases.

Burden of proof.

726. The burden of proof, in the case of collision between two vessels, usually at first rests on the plaintiff (g), even if the defendant has broken a collision regulation (h), or even if the defendant alleges inevitable accident (i) or admits that he is partly in fault (k). Where the evidence on both sides is nicely balanced and conflicting, the court will be guided by the probabilities of the cases set up (l), and the reasonable way is to analyse the facts so as to ascertain what is the principal subject of inquiry on which the case hinges, and endeavour to arrive at a satisfactory conclusion as to the testimony upon that (m). But the plaintiff cannot succeed if the case is left in doubt (n), and it is for him to give preponderating evidence (o). By proving certain circumstances the plaintiff may shift the burden of proof on to the defendant (p). Thus, where a

(a) Compare The Margaret (1881), 6 P. D. 76, 79, C. A.

(b) Ibid.

(c) Ibid., at p. 76. But the defendant will not be liable for his anchor wrongly projecting, even if it is the instrument of damage, provided the plaintiff's vessel could see it and with ordinary care avoid it (The Monte Rosa, [1893] P. 23). And he may be only partly in fault if there ought to have been a man on the other vessel who ought to have veered the vessel away (The Dunstanborough (1891), [1892] P. 363, n.).

(d) Morgan v. Castlegate Steamship Co., The "Castlegate, [1893] A. C. 38, per Lord WATSON, at p. 52. In a claim made in respect of a collision the property is not treated as the delinquent per se. Though the ship has caused injury by collision by reason of the negligence of those in charge of her, yet she cannot be made the means of compensation if those in charge of her were not the servants of her then owners, as if she was in charge of a compulsory pilot. This doctrine is conclusive to show that the liability to compensate must be fixed, not merely on the property, but also on the owner through the property (ibid.).

(e) See pp. 535, 536, post.

(f) See pp. 529 et seq., post.

(g) The Bolina (1844), 3 Notes of Cases, 208, 210.

(h) As to breaches of collision regulations, see pp. 506, 507, post.

(i) The Otter (1874), L. R. 4 A. & E. 203.

(k) The Cadeby, [1909] P. 257.

(l) The Mary Stewart (1844), 2 Wm. Rob. 244.

(m) The "Singapore" and The "Hebe" (1866), L. R. 1 P. C. 378.

(n) The City of London (1857), Sw. 300, 302, P. C.

(o) Ligo (1831). 2 Hag. Adm. 356.

(p) The "Carron" (1853), 1 Ecc. & Ad. 91, 93.

vessel under way in daylight and clear weather runs down a vessel at anchor, the burden at the outset is on the owners of the vessel under way to prove they were not in fault (q). In a similar case at night, the owner of the vessel at anchor establishes a primâ facie case when he has shown that his vessel had a proper light (r). Those facts which can be proved almost exclusively by the defendant he is, in a collision case, usually bound to prove (a).

(iii.) Rules as to Proof of Negligence in Collision Cases.

Rules as to proof.

727. The court follows certain established rules in drawing conclusions as to testimony in collision cases. The certain facts of a case, such as weather, description of vessels, courses, time and place, which are admitted or indisputably proved, are to be ascertained, and the doubtful facts are to be fitted in with them as far as possible (b). Usually, even after large experience, it is difficult in collision actions to draw satisfactory conclusions from testimony as to the damage received by a vessel (c), as regards the speeds of the vessels, and still more as regards the angle of the blow (d). It is a universal rule in collision cases not to attribute perjury, if it is possible to avoid doing so (e). In nautical points the court is assisted by the opinion and advice of nautical assessors (f),

(q) Compare The Annot Lyle (1886), 11 P. D. 114, C. A.; The "City of Peking" (1888), 14 App. Cas. 40, P. C. But where the defence is that the vessel was anchored in such an improper place, and so improperly that she could not in the circumstances be avoided by ordinary care, the plaintiff may have to prove proper anchoring; compare The "Telegraph," Valentine v. Cleugh (1854), 1 Ecc. & Ad. 427, 429. So also the burden from the outset lies on a vessel which runs down a vessel fishing with drift nets and with proper lights up; see The Sisters (1852), Pritchard's Admiralty Digest, 3rd ed., p. 248.

(r) The Indus (1886), 12 P. D. 46, C. A. As to the burden of proof in a collision with a vessel in stays, see The Sea Nymph (1860), Lush. 23.

(a) The John Harley v. The William Tell (1865), 2 Mar. L. C. 290. The burden of proof of good look-out on a vessel on a dark night is on those on board who allege it, and not on those who were not on board; where a vessel which was moored complained that a second vessel was improperly moored and drifted down on her, and the defence was that the second vessel was properly moored in a gale and that there was no negligence, the burden of proof that the second vessel was properly moored lay on those who alleged it (ibid.). Compare The "Swanland" (1855), 2 Ecc. & Ad. 107, where the burden of proof as to his lights was held to lie on the plaintiff, partly because their state was a matter peculiarly within his knowledge; and see title EVIDENCE, Vol. XIII., p. 435.

(b) The "Carron" (1853), 1 Ecc. & Ad. 91, 92.

(c) The "Clarence" (1853), 1 Ecc. & Ad. 206, 216.

(d) The Sargasso, [1912] P. 192, 195.

(e) The "Clarence," supra, at p. 213; Steamship "Gannet" (Owners) v. Steamship "Algoa" (Owners), The "Gannet," [1900] A. C. 238; The Olympic and H.M.S. Hawke, [1913] P. 214, C. A., per KENNEDY, L.J., at p. 258; The "Alice" and The "Princess Alice" (1868), L. R. 2 P. C. 245; The Glannibanta (1876), 1 P. D. 283, C. A. The court does not as a rule pay great attention to evidence of conversations after a collision, devoting its consideration to testimony of the facts rather than of these uncertain colloquies (The "Dundee" (1821), Times, 5th December, per Lord STOWELL), or admissions (The Virgil (1843), 2 Wm. Rob. 201, 203).

(f) See The City of Berlin, [1908] P. 110, C. A. As to particular questions whose duty it is to be guided in matters of nautical experience by their own knowledge (g).

SECT. 3. Negligence Causing Damage.

(iv.) Negligence in Equipment.

Negligence in equipment or manning.

728. The simplest case of negligence on the part of an owner of a vessel causing damage by collision is negligence in constructing or equipping or manning her. Vessels have been held to blame for a collision owing to their not being built or equipped with reasonable care (h). As regards the officers of a ship, certificates are required in some cases for the master, the mates, and the engineers (i). The number of hands required depends on circumstances. There ought to be a sufficient crew on board even in harbour to protect a ship against the ordinary incidents of peril which a competent seaman would foresee (k).

(v.) Negligent Navigation.

(a) In General.

Negligent navigation.

729. Negligence in navigation by those in charge of a vessel is usually that of the master and crew, so that the question of the responsibility of the owner for the negligence has to be considered, as well as the negligence itself.

(b) Responsibility of Owner.

Responsibility for master and crew.

730. The owner (l) of a vessel is liable for the negligent navigation of the master and crew (m) of his vessel when they are his to nautical assessors, see The Beryl (1884), 9 P. D. 137, 142, 143, C. A.; The New Pelton, [1891] P. 258.

(g) The Gazelle (1842), 1 Wm. Rob. 471, 474. As to how far the court should be guided by the nautical assessors, and as to decision on questions of testimony resting with the court, see Steamship "Gannet" (Owners) v. Steamship "Algoa" (Owners), The "Gannet," [1900] A. C. 238; The Beryl, supra, at p. 141; The Aid (1881), 6 P. D. 84 (county court).

(h) A vessel not being safely navigable owing to her improper trim (The Argo (1859), Sw. 462), or not having a proper mast to carry her light (The Hirondelle (1905), 22 T. L. R. 146, C. A.), or having defective steering gear (The Warkworth (1884), 9 P. D. 145, C. A.), though this will be excused if due to latent defect (The Virgo (1876), 3 Asp. M. L. C. 285), an excuse which is difficult of proof (The Merchant Prince, [1892] P. 179, C. A.). A vessel may be to blame for having too light an anchor (The Massachusetts (1842), 1 Wm. Rob. 371), or no mechanical foghorn (The Love Bird (1881), 6 P. D. 80).

(i) M. S. Act, 1894, ss. 92—104.

(k) The Excelsior (1868), L. R. 2 A. & E. 268, 272. But see S.S. Toward (Owners) v. S.S. Turkistan (Owners) (1885), 13 R. (Ct. of Sess.) 342. A vessel on a trial trip need not be officered and manned as on a voyage, but she should have a sufficient crew for the temporary purpose to navigate safely (Clyde Navigation Co. v. Barclay (1876), 1 App. Cas. 790, 794, 800). A rowing barge in the Thames with two hands is properly manned (The Minna (1868), L. R. 2 A. & E. 97). As to when a man is required on a barge in a river, see pp. 494, 495, ante.

(l) Even a foreign owner is thus liable in this country for a collision at sea, though exempted by his own law; see The Leon (1881), 6 P. D. 148.

(m) But not for their obeying without negligence imprudent orders which they were bound to obey; see The Bilbao (1860), Lush. 149 (harbour master's orders); Hodgkinson v. Fernie (1857), 2 C. B. (N. S.) 415 (orders of Government officer); and see note (d), p. 532, post.

servants (n) and are acting within the scope of their authority (o), even when disobeying the Sea Regulations (p), or even, in certain circumstances, when intentionally doing wrongful damage (q).

(c) Nature of Negligence in Navigation.

Negligence in navigation.

731. Negligence in navigation, as regards other vessels, is failure to exercise (r) that attention and vigilance which is due to their security, and which, if so far neglected as to become, however unintentionally, the cause of damage to a vessel, amounts to a breach of duty, giving a right of action (s). Negligence is failure to exercise reasonable care and reasonable skill (t), reasonable care being sometimes more than ordinary care, and reasonable skill being possibly in an emergency less than ordinary skill. Negligence in navigation includes not only failure to exercise reasonable care and reasonable skill in the usual sense, but also failure to exercise reasonable foresight (a) and ordinary nerve (b).

"Reasonable care" and "reasonable skill."

732. "Reasonable care" and "reasonable skill" in this connexion mean as a rule ordinary care and ordinary skill (c); and where the circumstances of the case often occur, it is important to see whether it is or is not usual to do the thing charged to have been neglected, for instance, to have a man in charge of a barge in dock (d). But the degree of care required varies according to circumstances, and more than ordinary care is sometimes required; for instance, there is a duty to take special precautions when using a delicate instrument (e).

(n) Fenton v. City of Dublin Steam Packet Co. (1838), 8 Ad. & El. 835 (charterparty); The Louise (1902), 18 T. L. R. 19; Martin v. Temperley (1843), 4 Q. B. 298 (owner of barge liable for navigation of privileged waterman); Steel v. Lester (1877), 3 C. P. D. 121 (owner liable though master trading independently).

(o) The Druid (1842), 1 Wm. Rob. 391.

(p) Grill v. General Iron Screw Colliery Co. (1868), L. R. 3 C. P. 476, Ex. Ch.; The Seine (1859), Sw. 411.

(q) M'Gee v. Anderson (1895), 22 R. (Ct. of Sess.) 274 (cutting fishing nets to save their own); M'Knight v. Currie (1895), 22 R. (Ct. of Sess.) 607. But not if such damage is a malicious assault, for then it is not within the scope of their employment; see The Druid, supra; The Ida (1860), Lush. 6.

(r) Negligence is not merely a state of mind, but wrong action.

(s) The Dundee (1823), 1 Hag. Adm. 109, 120.

(t) Stoomvaart Maatschappy Nederland v. Peninsular and Oriental Steam Navigation Co. (1880), 5 App. Cas. 876, per Lord BLACKBURN, at p. 891. Negligence is the absence of care according to the circumstances; see Vaughan v. Taff Vale Rail. Co. (1860), 5 H. & N. 679, Ex. Ch., per WILLES, J., at p. 688; Grill v. General Iron Screw Collier Co. (1866), L. R. 1 C. P. 600, 612.

(a) Doward v. Lindsay, The "William Lindsay" (1873), L. R. 5 P. C. 338, 343.

(b) Stoomvaart Maatschappy Nederland v. Peninsular and Oriental Steam Navigation Co., supra, at p. 888 (ordinary care, skill and nerve).

(c) Negligence is thus commonly described as failure to exercise ordinary care and skill.

(d) The Western Belle (1906), 10 Asp. M. L. C. 279; though the fact that the act complained of is usually done is by no means conclusive disproof of negligence; see The Scotia (1890), 6 Asp. M. L. C. 541.

(e) The Turret Court (1900), 69 L. J. (P.) 117 (a master, using steam steering gear, ought to have had the hand gear ready).

SECT. 3. Negligence Causing Damage.

Ordinary skill.

733. Ordinary skill means the skill which would ordinarily be shown by a seaman of competent skill and experience in the circumstances (f). Failure to do the very best thing, or to show extraordinary skill or presence of mind, does not create a right of action (g).

Degree of skill required in sudden difficulty.

734. When one vessel by a wrongful act suddenly puts another in a difficulty, the same amount of skill is not to be expected as under other circumstances (h) ; and in such a case a mistake by the other vessel in the agony of collision is not to be held to have in any way caused it (i). It is not enough in such circumstances to show a commission or omission by the officer in charge of the other vessel, by reason of which the collision actually occurred (k). His conduct is entitled to a favourable consideration (l). For a man may not do the right thing, and may even do the wrong thing, and yet not be guilty of neglect of his duty, which is not absolutely to do right at all events, but only to take reasonable care and use reasonable skill ; and when a man is suddenly and without warning thrown into a critical position, due allowance must be made for this, but not too much (m). So when a sudden change of circumstances takes place, which brings a regulation into operation, though the thing prescribed is not done by the person in charge, yet the regulation can hardly be said to be infringed by him till he knows or ought to have known of the change of circumstances (n). The officer in charge of a vessel placed suddenly in a difficulty by the fault of another vessel must have time —it may be a very short time—for thought (o). When vessels have to manœuvre for one another, and one hails the other to alter her helm, it appears that she cannot complain of the alteration (p) ;

(f) Inman v. Reck, The "City of Antwerp" and the "Friedrich" (1868), L. R. 2 P. C. 25, 34.

(g) Compare Stoomvaart Maatschappy Nederland v. Peninsular and Oriental Steam Navigation Co. (1880), 5 App. Cas. 876, 888 ; The Bywell Castle (1879), 4 P. D. 219, 227.

(h) The Bywell Castle, supra.

(i) The Nor (1874), 2 Asp. M. L. C. 264, 266, P. C.

(k) The Sisters (1876), 1 P. D. 117, 120, C. A. ; The C. M. Palmer, The Larnax (1873), 2 Asp. M. L. C. 94, P. C. (a master of a vessel in a sudden emergency was held not to blame because it did not occur to him to let go his anchor, even supposing it would have averted the collision) ; The Elizabeth, The Adalia (1870), 22 L. T. 74 (a schooner following up river a steamer, which suddenly grounded, was held not to blame for not dropping her anchor, though a proper thing to do).

(l) "Mary" Tug Co. v. British India Steam Navigation Co., The "Meanatchy," [1897] A. C. 351, 357, P. C.

(m) Stoomvaart Maatschappy Nederland v. Peninsular and Oriental Steam Navigation Co., supra, at p. 891.

(n) Ibid., at p. 894.

(o) S.S. "Kwang Tung" (Owners) v. S.S. "Ngapoota" (Owners), The "Ngapoota," [1897] A. C. 391, P. C. ; Hoek van Holland Maatschappij v. Clyde Shipping Co. (1902), 5 F. (Ct. of Sess.) 227 ; The Emmy Haase (1881), 9 P. D. 81.

(p) Compare The James Watt (1844), 2 Wm. Rob. 270, 275 ("the altering ship is not inculpated, because they called upon her so to do") ; Maddox v. Fisher, The Independence (1861), 14 Moo. P. C. C. 103, 109 (blame may be attached to a vessel which wrongly hails another to starboard her helm).

or if the hail is not to alter the helm, it becomes the duty of the hailing vessel, even if not so before, to avoid the other (q).

Collateral negligence immaterial.

735. It is not necessarily negligent to risk doing damage to another vessel intentionally; persons have been held justified in risking injury to one vessel by launching another, in order to avoid the more serious risk to life and property by postponement (r). And the breach of duty must be connected with the damage as cause and effect to afford the right of action; for instance, though a vessel lying at a pontoon is a trespasser, her owners will not be liable for damage done by her to the pontoon owing to another vessel wrongly striking her (s). One should look at the nature of the accident and at what the neglect is, and it must be proved that the actual transgression was to some extent the cause of the accident (t). Even if blame is attributable to an act, one must guard against assuming that it was therefore the cause of the accident (a), and not merely collateral negligence. On the other hand, the defendant is responsible for the ordinary and reasonable consequences of his negligence, both on the navigation of his own vessel and of other vessels (b).

Care and skill afloat and ashore.

736. There is no difference in the rules of the Court of Admiralty and the rules of courts of common law as to what amounts to negligence causing damage by collision (c). Yet the nature of the thing requires that in applying the rules one should look to what the nature of the accident is and to what the neglect is. If it is a case of two ships, they are to be governed by the same rules of law and evidence as if it was a case of two carts in the street; but when one comes to apply this, one must remember that a ship is a thing which cannot be stopped in an instant like a cart, and cannot be moved from one side to the other like a cart; and when one has to look out for miles instead of looking out for yards, the application of the rules becomes very different (d).

SUB-SECT. 2.—Negligence Causing Damage in Exceptional Cases.

Exceptional damage.

737. In addition to the ordinary case of collision between two vessels there are cases of negligence or fault on the part of an owner

(q) The Carolus (1837), 3 Hag. Adm. 343, n.

(r) Ketch Frances (Owners) v. Steamship "Highland Loch" (Owners), [1912] A. C. 312.

(s) The Titan, The Rambler (1906), 10 Asp. M. L. C. 350.

(t) Cayzer v. Carron Co. (1884), 9 App. Cas. 873, 881, 882.

(a) Ibid.

(b) The Gertor (1894), 7 Asp. M. L. C. 472, 473 (defendants, through not taking a tug in a gale, held liable for the cost of subsequent damage done by their vessel); Romney Marsh (Bailiffs) v. Trinity House (1870), L. R. 5 Exch. 204 (affirmed (1872), L. R. 7 Exch. 247, Ex. Ch.); The Port Victoria, [1902] P. 25 (steamship driven to slip cable to avoid collision could recover the loss); The City of Lincoln (1889), 15 P. D. 15, C. A. (defendants liable for grounding of vessel due to loss of charts etc. in a collision caused by them). But compare The Douglas (1882), 7 P. D. 151, 160, C. A. (collision with wreck of vessel sunk by collision and unlighted without fault of owners; no greater liability exists against the owners if vessel was sunk with negligence which was not criminal than if without).

(c) Cayzer v. Carron Co., supra, at p. 882.

(d) Ibid.

SECT. 3. Negligence Causing Damage.

of a vessel or his servants causing damage by the vessel colliding with, or some part of it striking, other property than a vessel, for instance, a pier (e), or a person who is not on board a vessel (f).

Damage to another vessel without collision.

738. There are cases where, by the fault of those in charge of a vessel, damage is done to another vessel without coming into collision with her, for instance by causing a collision between her and a third vessel (g), or compelling her to go out of the fair-way and run aground (h), or negligently dragging down on her so as to compel her to slip her anchor and chain and put to sea to avoid collision (i).

SUB-SECT. 3.—Cases of Negligent Navigation.

(i) In General.

Liability for negligent navigation: division of the subject.

739. The liability of the owner of a vessel for negligent navigation causing damage by collision falls into three divisions, according to whether such negligence has been that of one, two, or more than two vessels. First, considering only such negligence attributable to the owner of one vessel, there is the negligent navigation by his servants to be considered, for which he is liable (k). Secondly, when two vessels are negligent, assuming them to belong, as they ordinarily do, to the plaintiff and the defendant, there are the instances in which the damage by collision has been wholly caused by the negligence of the plaintiff or defendant, and the instances in which it has been partly caused by the negligence of each of them (l). Thirdly, there are the instances in which the damage by collision has been caused by the negligence of more than two vessels (m).

(ii.) Negligence of One Vessel.

Negligence of one vessel only.

740. The simplest case of negligent navigation of a vessel is a breach of the Sea Regulations or local rules of navigation, which have been already set out (a). Obedience to the Sea Regulations, 1910, is ordained by statute (b). The Sea Regulations (c), (e) See p. 547, post; compare The Albert Edward (1875), 44 L. J. (ADM.) 49 (vessel not liable for damage to a mooring dolphin, as it ought to have been stronger). As to damage to oyster beds, compare The Bien, [1911] P. 40; The Swift, [1901] P. 168.

(f) See The Sylph (1867), L. R. 2 A. & E. 24.

(g) The Sisters (1876), 1 P. D. 117, C. A.

(h) The Industrie (1871), L. R. 3 A. & E. 303.

(i) The Port Victoria, [1902] P. 25. As to a steamship damaging craft by her swell, see p. 487, post.

(k) See the text, infra.

(l) See pp. 507 et seq., post.

(m) See p. 516, post.

(a) See pp. 373 et seq., ante.

(b) M. S. Act, 1894, s. 419 (1); see p. 362, ante.

(c) The Beryl (1884), 9 P. D. 137, 138, C. A. (bye-laws duly made by local authority governing the navigation of a river are to be taken as evidence of what it is the duty of vessels to do in the circumstances named therein, and although the mere breach of any of them will not be sufficient reason for holding a ship to blame for a collision, yet if this breach occasions or contributes to the collision, the existence of the bye-law will afford the best reason for holding the vessel which violated it to be guilty of a breach of duty and consequently to blame for the collision). In case and local rules of navigation (d), are evidence of what it is the duty of those in charge of a vessel to do, so that a breach of one of them is primary proof of negligence. But as a rule, the proof of a breach of a regulation does not cast upon the party liable for it the burden of showing that it was not the cause of the collision, but the party alleging that it contributed to the collision must show this (e). Other instances of negligent navigation consist of breaches of the rules of good seamanship (f).

(iii.) Negligence of Two Vessels.

Negligence of two vessels.

741. When two vessels have been in collision and both have been negligent (g), the owner of one vessel is usually plaintiff in the collision action, and the owner of the other vessel defendant, but as there is usually damage to both vessels and a counterclaim by the defendant, as a rule each party is in effect both plaintiff and defendant, and each is seeking to fasten on the other party and rebut from himself the same liability for negligence.

Principles of liability.

742. The principles of liability, which apply in these cases, may be stated as follows :—

When there is fault or negligence attributable to the owners of both vessels—of infringement of regulations for moorings in part of the Solent, a vessel is presumed to be in fault for injury done ; see Solent Navigation Act, 1881 (44 & 45 Vict. c. ccxix.), s. 8. Not knowing a local rule is no excuse for not obeying it (The River Derwent (1889), 6 Asp. M. L. C. 467, 470). There is no warranty implied in a towage contract as to obedience to local rules (The United Service (1883), 8 P. D. 56).

(1) If one party's fault has not even partly caused the damage by collision, then, if he is plaintiff, he can recover in full for the damage to his vessel caused by the other party, and if defendant, he is not liable for the damage to the other vessel (h).

(d) The Raithwaite Hall (1874), 2 Asp. M. L. C. 210.

(e) Cayzer v. Carron Co. (1884), 9 App. Cas. 873, per Lord BLACKBURN, at pp. 882, 883, but see per Lord WATSON, at p. 886 ; and The "Jesmond" and the "Earl of Elgin" (1871), L. R. 4 P. C. 5 (violating the rule to port her helm made the vessel primâ facie responsible for the collision). In case of absence of lights on a vessel in collision at night, the burden lies on her to show that this non-compliance with the regulations was not the cause of the collision ; see The "Fenham" (1870), L. R. 3 P. C. 212, 216; Cayzer v. Carron Co., supra, at p. 882. The burden of proof is on the plaintiff's vessel, though overtaken (The Bassett Hound (1894), 7 Asp. M. L. C. 467, 468, C. A.).

(f) See pp. 483 et seq., ante.

(g) As to the liabilities in cases where the two vessels which are in fault for the damage by collision are one of the two which have been in collision and a third vessel, see The Bernina (2) (1887), 12 P. D. 58, 89, 90, C. A. ; and p. 522, post.

(h) See Cayzer v. Carron Co., supra, per Lord BLACKBURN, at pp. 880, 881 ("Those who are injured by the accident, if they themselves are not parties causing the accident, may recover both in law and admiralty. . . . Now upon that there must always be a question whether or not, if there is neglect shown of any rule, that neglect is the cause of the accident"); Spaight v. Tedcastle (1881), 6 App. Cas. 217, per Lord SELBORNE, L.C., at p. 219 ("Such an omission ought not to be regarded as contributory negligence if it might in the circumstances which actually happened have been unattended with danger but for the defendant's fault, and if it had no proper connection as a cause with the damage which followed as its effect"); The Woodrop-Sims (1815), 2 Dods. 83, 85, approved in the House of Lords, Hay v. Le Neve (1824), 2 Sh. Sc. App. 395. These statements in the above cases and in the text express in usual language the position of a plaintiff or defendant in such circumstances both at common law and admiralty. In this view collateral negligence never "causes" the damage, and the term "contributory" negligence correctly expresses negligence which prevents the plaintiff from recovering in full in an action of collision between two ships, or from recovering at all in other actions of tort. There is, however, a different way of looking at the matter, which brings about the same result but involves a different set of expressions. Collateral negligence in collision cases has sometimes been looked at by high authorities as a "cause" of the damage (since it may usually be said to be a causa sine quâ non), or as having "contributed to" the damage; but then it has still been considered that this collateral negligence, though "causing" or "contributing to" the damage, did not affect the right of the party so as to prevent him from recovering damages in full if plaintiff, or so as to render him liable if defendant; and in this view the negligence which affects the right of the party was naturally described as negligence which "wholly directly causes," or "partly directly causes," or "directly contributes to," the damage, or as "directly contributory" negligence. Compare Tuff v. Warman (1857), 2 C. B. (N. S.) 740, per WILLES, J., who directed the jury in a collision action at common law: "If the plaintiff directly contributed to the accident, you should find for the defendant"; affirmed (1858), 5 C. B. (N. S.) 573, Ex. Ch.; Walton v. London, Brighton, and South Coast Rail. Co. (1866), Har. & Ruth. 424, 429; Radley v. London and North Western Rail. Co. (1876), 1 App. Cas. 754, per Lord PENZANCE, at p. 759 ("Though the plaintiff may have been guilty of negligence, and although that negligence may in fact have contributed to the accident," yet if the defendant could by ordinary care and diligence have avoided the mischief, "the plaintiff's negligence will not excuse him"); The Bernina (2) (1887), 12 P. D. 58, 61, 62, 63, C. A., per Lord ESHER, M.R. ("directly partly cause," and "partly directly cause," and "wholly directly cause"). This latter view and set of expressions appear to be as definite as the former view and set of expressions, but it is clearly desirable that the two sets of expressions should be kept apart, though it might appear that this has not always been the case; and see Radley v. London and North Western Rail. Co., supra, at p. 759. The former view is adopted in the text; and the former set of expressions are accepted as preferable, because they are more usual and shorter and less involved, and because the Maritime Conventions Act, 1911 (1 & 2 Geo. 5, c. 57), s. 1 (1), uses in this connexion the expression "caused" and not "directly caused."

SECT. 3. Negligence Causing Damage.

(2) If the fault of each party has partly caused (i) the damage by collision, both vessels are to blame, and each party is liable to make good the damage of the other party in proportion to the degree in which his vessel was in fault (k).

(i) It is possible that each party may be negligent, and yet that the acts of negligence may be too trivial or indirect to be held to be a cause of the damage, which will then, so far as these parties are concerned, be an inevitable accident, as to which see pp. 535, 536, post.

(k) See Maritime Conventions Act, 1911 (1 & 2 Geo. 5, c. 57), s. 1 (1), and see pp. 517, 518, post; see also Cayzer v. Carron Co. (1884), 9 App. Cas. 873, per Lord BLACKBURN, at p. 881 ("When the cause of the accident is the fault of both, each party being guilty of blame which causes the accident, there is a difference between the rule of admiralty and the rule of common law. . . . The rule of the admiralty is, that if there is blame causing the accident on both sides, they are to divide the loss equally, just as the rule of law is that if there is blame causing the accident on both sides, however small that blame may be on one side, the loss lies where it falls"). The word "equally" no longer applies; see Maritime Conventions Act, 1911 (1 & 2 Geo. 5, c. 57), s. 1 (1). And "the rule of common law" is the rule

(3) If one party's fault has solely caused the damage by collision, then, if he is plaintiff, he cannot recover for the damage to his vessel, and if defendant he is liable for the whole of the damage to the other vessel (l).

Negligence causing damage.

743. The rules of law as to when an act which is in fact wrong is yet not negligent, and as to the necessity of proving that the act was not only negligent but also caused the damage, in order to establish liability, have been already set out (m).

For a long time hitherto the legal doctrine of cause has often been less necessary to consider in collision cases in the Admiralty Court than in cases of torts in courts of common law, owing to a presumption of fault (n) being imposed by statute on a vessel which disobeyed one of the Sea Regulations, thus avoiding inquiry as to whether the act of disobedience in fact caused the damage. Since presumption of fault will soon altogether disappear (o), the legal doctrine of cause will often need more consideration in collision cases.

Whether one or more negligent acts have caused or partly caused certain damage by collision is generally not a question of law but a question of fact (p); that is to say, when the particular events have been ascertained, the conclusion from these particulars, that the act was or was not the cause (q) or part cause of the damage, should be drawn according to the general good sense of ordinary men (r).

which has applied to all torts, other than actions of collision between two ships, since the Judicature Act, 1873 (36 & 37 Vict. c. 66). As to the rule of common law, see, further, The Bernina (2) (1887), 12 P. D. 58, C. A., per LINDLEY, L.J., at p. 89 ("If there has been as much want of reasonable care on A.'s part as on B.'s, or, in other words, if the proximate cause of the injury is the want of reasonable care on both sides, A. cannot sue B").

(l) See Cayzer v. Carron Co. (1884), 9 App. Cas. 873, per Lord BLACKBURN, at p. 881 ("Where the cause of the accident is the fault of one party and one party only, admiralty and common law both agree in saying that that one party who is to blame shall bear the whole of the damage of the other"). Compare The Woodrop-Sims (1815), 2 Dods. 83, 85 (the collision "may have been the fault of the ship which ran the other down; and in this case the innocent party would be entitled to an entire compensation from the other"); approved in the House of Lords in Hay v. Le Neve (1824), 2 Sh. Sc. App. 395.

(m) See pp. 500, 503 et seq, ante.

(n) As to presumption of fault, see pp. 534, 535, post.

(o) See pp. 534, 535, post.

(p) See Cayzer v. Carron Co., supra, per Lord BLACKBURN, at p. 881 ("It is necessary to see that the actual transgression has been in fact the cause of the accident to some extent (it does not matter how much), and that is a matter of proof").

(q) "Cause" in the law of negligence means ordinarily the efficient cause, that is, by what acts of men the event came to pass; though in peculiar cases questions of material cause may arise; compare The West Cock, [1911] P. 208, C. A. "Efficient" cause is a metaphor taken from human action. As to the legal doctrine of cause, see, further, title TORT, Vol. XXVII., p. 471.

(r) See S.S. Hero (Owners) v. Commissioners for Executing the Office of Lord High Admiral of the United Kingdom, [1912] A. C. 300, per Lord LOREBURN, L.C., at p. 304 (the negligence of one vessel "in the ordinary plain common sense of the business" contributed to the damage by collision). And in a court of common law, before the Judicature Act, 1873 (36 & 37 Vict. c. 66), s. 25 (9), the question whether the defendant's negligence had caused damage by collision, or whether the plaintiff's

SECT. 3. Negligence Causing Damage.

744. Cases in which both vessels have been negligent are of two kinds—either both vessels have been simultaneously negligent at or up to the last, or one vessel has been negligent last, and the other vessel's negligence has begun and often finished before it.

Negligence of two vessels.

Simultaneous negligence towards the last.

745. Where both vessels have been simultaneously negligent at or up to the last, the decision as to whether the negligence of each side was a cause of the collision damage is more simple. The usual question then is whether the act of negligence on each side was in itself so substantial (a) and so directly related (b) to the damage by collision as to amount to a cause of it. When both vessels have thus been simultaneously negligent at the last, and when the negligent act of each is substantial and directly related to the collision damage, the principle numbered (2) (c) is applied, each vessel is held to have partly caused the damage, and the judgment is that both are to blame.

Instances of both to blame for simultaneous negligence.

Thus, in the case of a collision with a launch, the owners of the launch have been held to blame for launching before the proper order was given by signal and the owners of the other vessel for approaching negligently (d). Two steamships meeting in a river have been held to blame, when one came up the reach improperly, and the other carelessly starboarded into her (e). So also two sailing vessels, when one failed to keep out of the way and the other to keep her course (f), and when one failed to keep out of the way, and the other ought to have seen her in time and done something to avoid the collision (g); and in fog, when a vessel at anchor was in fault for not ringing her bell, and a steamship was in fault for being under way and going too fast (h). When a steamer carried her anchor improperly projecting at night, and the other vessel, if she had navigated with reasonable care, would have avoided collision, each was held to have partly caused the damage done by the anchor in collision, and both were to blame (i).

Antecedent and subsequent negligence.

746. On the other hand, in a large number of collisions at sea (j) one vessel has been negligent at the last and the other negligence contributed to it, was a question of fact for the jury, where there was evidence to support such a finding.

(a) See The Argo (1900), 9 Asp. M. L. C. 74, C. A.

(b) See The "Fanny M. Carvill" (Owners) v. The "Peru" (Owners), The "Fanny M. Carvill" (1875), 13 App. Cas. 455, n., P. C.

(c) See p. 508, ante.

(d) The United States (1865), 12 L. T. 33, P. C.

(e) The Frankfort, [1910] P. 50, 55, C. A.

(f) The "Agra" and "Elizabeth Jenkins" (1867), L. R. 1 P. C. 501.

(g) The Rosalie (1880), 5 P. D. 245.

(h) The Clutha Boat 147, [1909] P. 36.

(i) The Margaret (1881), 6 P. D. 76, C. A. In similar cases at common law before the Judicature Act, 1873 (36 & 37 Vict. c. 66), s. 25 (9) (which provided in effect that in collision actions in which both vessels should be found in fault, the rules previously in force in the Court of Admiralty, so far as they had been at variance with the common law rules, should prevail), the plaintiff could not recover (Sills v. Brown (1840), 9 C. & P. 601; compare The Scotia (1890), 6 Asp. M. L. C. 541; and The Dunstanborough (1891), [1892] P. 363, n.; in each case a steamer and barge, both moored, were held both to blame for damage done to the barge by the steamer's anchor).

(j) Stoomvaart Maatschappy Nederland v. Peninsular and Oriental Steam Navigation Co. (1880), 5 App. Cas. 876, per Lord WATSON, at p. 903.

vessel's negligence has taken place before that; or, in less precise words, the acts of negligence have been antecedent and subsequent. In these cases the decision as to whether each act was or was not a cause of the collision is more difficult. The question is not simply whether each act was substantial and directly related to the damage by collision, but it must also be considered how far the subsequent act should be treated as connected with or independent of the antecedent act, and the importance of each has to be contrasted in connexion with the result (k).

Burden of proof.

747. As regards burden of proof in cases of antecedent and subsequent negligence, it has been said of the vessel which was antecedently negligent that she must accept the burden of showing that her neglect did not contribute to any collision or damage which may have occurred at the time or subsequently (l).

Cause of damage.

748. In such cases it may be that the damage by collision was caused wholly by the subsequent negligence (m), or that it was caused partly by the antecedent negligence of one vessel and partly by the subsequent negligence of the other, or wholly by the antecedent negligence, the subsequent negligence being then too slight a factor to be reckoned as a cause (n).

The following are instances of these three alternatives. When there was plenty of light in a dock, and a steam tug ran into the stern of a barge there, and it was alleged that the stern of the barge came out and presented an obstacle to the tug and that there was no one on board the barge, it was held that, even if this allegation was true (and if, therefore, there was antecedent negligence of the barge), it had nothing to do with the collision, as the tug could see perfectly well where the barge was, and her subsequent negligence alone caused the collision (o). As an instance of both (k) When there has been antecedent and subsequent negligence, it cannot be established in law that the other party partly caused the damage merely by showing that, if they in some earlier stage of navigation had done something which they ought to have done, a different situation would have resulted; see Spaight v. Tedcastle (1881), 6 App. Cas. 217, per Lord SELBORNE, L.C., at p. 219.

(l) Cayzer v. Carron Co. (1884), 9 App. Cas. 873, per Lord WATSON, at p. 886; The Winstanley, [1896] P. 297, C. A., per Lord ESHER, M.R., at p. 304.

(m) In cases where the subsequent negligence is held to be the cause of the damage, it is not uncommon to refer to Bacon's first maxim of the law, In jure non remota causa, sed proxima, spectatur; see Spaight v. Tedcastle, supra. But this maxim of law is difficult to apply; and its precise meaning is uncertain, because causa proxima is sometimes used to express not the immediate cause (compare Sneesby v. Lancashire and Yorkshire Rail. Co. (1874), L. R. 9 Q. B. 263, per BLACKBURN, J., at p. 267), but the "decisive" cause (compare Pollock, Law of Torts, 9th ed., p. 477).

(n) In cases where the antecedent negligence is held to have caused the damage, it is sometimes referred to as the causa causans or real cause; see Lloyd v. General Iron Screw Collier Co. (1864), 3 H. & C. 284, 291; though in that case an antecedent act, which was an efficient cause in the ordinary sense, was compared with a subsequent natural event, which was not strictly an efficient cause, because it lacked the element of human responsibility. See also Chartered Mercantile Bank of India v. Netherlands India Steam Navigation Co. (1883), 10 Q. B. D. 521, 531.

(o) The Hornet, [1892] P. 361, 365.

SECT. 3. Negligence Causing Damage.

to blame, when a steamer steered across the course of a flotilla of warships contrary to a notice of the Board of Trade, it was held that her negligence in so doing partly caused the collision, but that it was also partly caused by the warship's subsequent negligence in starboarding instead of porting (p). So also a vessel at anchor having no light, and another vessel which ought to have had a better look-out and so have avoided collision with her, were each held to have partly caused the collision (q). When two steamships have been close to each other at night green to green, and one has negligently put her helm hard-a-port, though the other steamship might be negligent afterwards in not reversing soon enough, this subsequent negligence might not have any material effect, so that the damage might be wholly caused by the antecedent negligence (r).

Subsidiary rule: avoidance of damage.

749. Thus, in any case where two vessels have been in collision, both of which have been negligent, whether the acts of negligence are simultaneous or antecedent and subsequent, the liability of the owner of each vessel depends on the principles above stated. A subsidiary (s) rule, however, has been laid down which, though it does not precisely correspond with these principles and is therefore somewhat difficult to apply, is yet recognised both in courts of common law and admiralty to be sometimes of assistance in determining whether a party's negligence has or has not caused or partly caused wrongful damage. It may be stated as follows, as regards its application to collision cases:—

In cases of antecedent and subsequent (t) fault or negligence,

(p) S.S. Hero (Owners) v. Commissioners for Executing the Office of Lord High Admiral of the United Kingdom, [1912] A. C. 300, 304.

(q) Hay v. Le Neve (1824), 2 Sh. Sc. App. 395.

(r) Compare Stoomvaart Maatschappy Nederland v. Peninsular and Oriental Steam Navigation Co. (1880), 5 App. Cas. 876, 886, 888, 889, as to the view taken by the nautical assessors in the Court of Appeal and not differed from by that court.

(s) This subsidiary rule (as regards the application of it to the defendant's escape from liability) is usually considered to have been first definitely formulated in 1809; see Butterfield v. Forrester (1809), 11 East, 60 (where a rider was thrown by a pole put up across a road), per Lord ELLENBOROUGH, C.J., at p. 61: "One person being in fault will not dispense with another's using ordinary care for himself. Two things must concur to support this action, an obstruction in the road by the fault of the defendant and no want of ordinary care to avoid it on the part of the plaintiff." And the first trace of a similar doctrine in a collision between vessels appears to be in Lack v. Seward (1829), 4 C. & P. 106 (an action between the owners of two barges), per Lord TENTERDEN, C.J., at p. 108: "Nor will he" (the defendant) "be liable if the accident would have been avoided but for the negligence of the plaintiff's men in not being on board his barge." Compare Beven, Negligence in Law, 3rd ed., p. 148; title TORT, Vol. XXVII., p. 501.

(t) Compare Spaight v. Tedcastle (1881), 6 App. Cas. 217, where Lord BLACKBURN, at p. 226, referring to this rule, points out that it can only relieve the defendant—and in the same way it will only relieve the plaintiff—in a case of antecedent and subsequent negligence ("To make a defence on this ground it must be shewn that the injured party, or those with whom for this purpose he is identified, might, by proper care, subsequently exerted, have avoided the consequences of the defendant's want of proper care"). So also Carse v. North British Steam Packet Co. (1895), a party by his antecedent fault is not supposed to have even partly caused the damage by collision (a), if the other party afterwards could have avoided the damage by exercise of reasonable care (b) and ordinary skill (c).

22 R. (Ct. of Sess.) 475, per Lord McLAREN, at p. 484. In the case of simultaneous acts of negligence at the last, a rule is sometimes cited to the effect that if each party could by reasonable care have avoided the damage by collision, each is to be taken to have caused it, and each is accordingly liable for his share of the joint damage; see Dublin, Wicklow and Wexford Rail. Co. v. Slattery (1878), 3 App. Cas. 1155, per Lord BLACKBURN, at pp. 1206, 1207, in a dissenting judgment. This rule is not often used in the decision of collision cases, and therefore is not of great importance in this connexion, but similar comments apply to it as to the rule stated in the text.

(a) Or in other words: Notwithstanding his negligence, a party as plaintiff can recover in full for the damage he has sustained by the collision, and as defendant is not liable for the damage sustained by the other party, if etc.

(b) As to "reasonable care" and "reasonable skill," see p. 503, ante.

(c) Compare Butterfield v. Forrester (1809), 11 East, 60; Lack v Seward (1829), 4 C. & P. 106; Bridge v. Grand Junction Rail. Co. (1838), 3 M. & W. 244, approving Butterfield v. Forrester, supra. In Bridge v. Grand Junction Rail. Co., supra, the law is laid down, per PARKE, B., at p. 248: "Although there may have been negligence on the part of the plaintiff, yet, unless he might by the exercise of ordinary care, have avoided the consequences of the defendant's negligence, he is entitled to recover; if by ordinary care he might have avoided them, he is the author of his own wrong." These terms do not appear to be quite unexceptionable, because, no doubt unintentionally, they negative the possibility of any antecedent contributory negligence by the plaintiff which would affect his right; compare also Davies v. Mann (1842), 10 M & W. 546; Dowell v. General Steam Navigation Co. (1855), 5 E. & B. 195, per Lord CAMPBELL, C.J., at p. 206 ("In these cases" [i.e., where the plaintiff's negligence has been remotely connected with the collision] "the question arises whether the defendant, by the exercise of ordinary care and skill, might have avoided the accident, notwithstanding the negligence of the plaintiff, as in the often quoted donkey case, Davies v. Mann [supra]. There, although without the negligence of the plaintiff the accident could not have happened, this negligence is not supposed to have contributed to the accident within the rule upon this subject"). Compare also Tuff v. Warman (1858), 5 C. B. (N. S.) 573, Ex. Ch. (notwithstanding his negligence, the plaintiff could recover in a collision action at common law before the Judicature Act, 1873 (36 & 37 Vict. c. 66), s. 25 (9), "if the defendant might, by the exercise of caution on his part, have avoided the consequences of the neglect or carelessness of the plaintiff"); Walton v. London, Brighton and South Coast Rail. Co. (1866), Har. & Ruth. 424; Radley v. London and North Western Rail. Co. (1876), 1 App. Cas. 754 (where Lord PENZANCE, at p. 759, laid down as a secondary proposition: "Though the plaintiff may have been guilty of negligence, and although that negligence may, in fact, have contributed to the accident, yet if the defendant could in the result, by the exercise of ordinary care and diligence, have avoided the mischief which happened, the plaintiff's negligence will not excuse him." These words are not quite beyond cavil, because they open the door to the argument that where the plaintiff and the defendant could each at the last by proper care have avoided the accident, the plaintiff can recover in full. An argument to this effect appears to have been in fact based on these words in The Vera Cruz (No. 1) (1884), 9 P. D. 88, 92, 93, but it was rejected). Compare also Cayzer v. Carron Co. (1884), 9 App. Cas. 873, per Lord WATSON, at p. 887; The Bernina (2) (1887), 12 P. D. 58, C. A., per Lord ESHER, M.R., at p. 61, proposition (5) ("If, although the plaintiff has himself or by his servants been guilty of negligence, such negligence did not directly partly cause the accident, as if,

SECT. 3. Negligence Causing Damage.

It has been suggested (d) that this (e) rule is not logically precise, but that in the great majority of cases in practice it is quite reasonable, and in certain cases it is a sufficient guide. The rule is not logically precise, because it is not directed to the strict question whether the antecedent or subsequent negligence wholly or in part caused the damage; but the rule substitutes for this question a different negative question as to what after a certain moment would have caused the damage not to happen, and requires one to consider what would have taken place if the party, who was afterwards negligent, had acted in a way in which he did not act (f).

This subsidiary rule, however, is well established (g), and it is sometimes easy to apply (h). On the other hand, there are frequent cases where it is a matter of extreme difficulty to decide under this for example, the plaintiff or his servants having been negligent, the alleged wrong-doers might by reasonable care have avoided the accident, the plaintiff can maintain an action against the defendant"); and see The Bernina (2) (1887), 12 P. D. 58, per Lord ESHER, M.R., at p. 62, proposition (8); compare also The Monte Rosa, [1893] P. 23, 30, 31; H.M.S. Sans Pareil, [1900] P. 267, 283, 287, 288, C. A.; The Etna, [1908] P. 269, 281; The Hero, [1911] P. 128, 144—157, 151, 152, C. A.; affirmed on different grounds, [1912] A. C. 300.

(d) Dublin, Wicklow and Wexford Rail. Co. v. Slattery (1878), 3 App. Cas. 1155, per Lord BLACKBURN, at p. 1207, in a dissenting judgment, referring to BARRY, J.'s, criticism; though that criticism appears to have been somewhat different, see Slattery v. Dublin, Wicklow and Wexford Rail. Co. (1876), 10 I. R. C. L. 256, 266, Ex. Ch. Lord BLACKBURN'S suggestion referred to the rule in so far as it relieved the defendant, but applies to it no less in so far as it assists the plaintiff.

(e) This rule may be supplemented by two corollary rules to be gathered from the cases—namely, (1) a party by his antecedent fault is supposed to have partly caused the damage by collision, if his antecedent fault was such that the other party could not afterwards avoid the damage by exercise of reasonable care and reasonable skill, and if the other party by his subsequent negligence has also partly caused the damage; (2) a party by his antecedent fault is supposed to have solely caused the damage by collision, if his antecedent fault was such that the other party could not afterwards avoid the damage by exercise of reasonable care and reasonable skill, and if the other party has not by subsequent fault partly caused the damage. See Lack v. Seward (1829), 4 C. & P. 106, per Lord TENTERDEN, C.J., at p. 108 ("If the plaintiff's men had put this barge in such a place that persons using ordinary care would run against it, the defendant will not be liable"); The Ovingdean Grange, [1902] P. 208, 214, C. A.; The Cambridge (1902), cited [1911] P. 146, C. A., in the Admiralty Division; The Winstanley, [1896] P. 297, C. A. But the same comments would apply to these rules as to the rule stated in the text on pp. 512, 513, ante.

(f) Another difficulty involved in the rule is that it often cannot be known for certain whether, even if very different steps had been taken, a collision would still not have occurred. And the rule appears sometimes to press unfairly on the party who is afterwards negligent by putting out of sight what has happened before and devoting all the criticism to his conduct.

(g) In a case at common law it was held that the judge's direction to the jury, having regard to its terms, was bad, he having failed to call their attention to the application of the rule; see Radley v. London and North Western Rail. Co. (1876), 1 App. Cas. 754.

(h) The Etna, supra, at p. 281. The reason seems to be that the negative question as to avoidance, though more complicated in idea than the positive question as to the cause, is in fact easier to decide in certain cases, such as Davies v. Mann (1842), 10 M. & W. 546; compare The Monte Rosa, supra.

rule whether or not the negligence of the initial wrong-doer could have been avoided by the other party (i); and in such cases it appears safer to be guided by the above principles.

Instances where rule has or has not been applied.

750. Thus, in some cases a vessel has shown antecedent negligence in steering through a squadron of warships under way, and the warship which has come into collision with her has afterwards been negligent in not keeping out of her way. In the latest of these cases (k) the House of Lords held that the antecedent negligence of the first vessel in ordinary good sense mainly contributed to the accident, though the courts below, applying the subsidiary rule, had held this vessel not to blame for that negligence (l).

A corollary to this rule may be applied in case of a collision of a vessel under way with another at anchor or otherwise moored. If a vessel has been moored by her owner's servants in such a position as to require more than reasonable care and reasonable skill to avoid her on the part of those navigating a second vessel which has collided with her, the owner of the first vessel will be supposed to

(i) The Hero, [1911] P. 128, 151, C. A.

(k) S.S. Hero (Owners) v. Commissioners for Executing the Office of Lord High Admiral of the United Kingdom, [1912] A. C. 300. The Cambridge (1903), C. A., cited in The Hero, supra, at p. 147, was decided in the Court of Appeal in the same way, and apparently for the same reason. On the other hand, in H.M.S. Sans Pareil, [1900] P. 267, the Court of Appeal applied the subsidiary rule, and held the first vessel not to blame for her antecedent negligence; but it is difficult to reconcile this decision with the above cases; compare The Hero, supra, at p. 147. The Etna, [1911] P. 269, 281, a case on similar facts, appears to have been decided on the basis that both vessels were negligent at the last, though it was found that the initial negligence of the Etna could not have been avoided by the exercise of ordinary care and skill by those on the Wear.

(l) So also when a steamship proceeding against the tide negligently failed to wait above a point in the river, and the second steamship was subsequently negligent because, though she saw the wrong position of the first steamship at a sufficient distance, she tried recklessly to run between her and another vessel when there was not space enough, the House of Lords held that the antecedent neglect was not a part of the fault which occasioned the accident, and the second steamship was alone to blame; see Cayzer v. Carron Co. (1884), 9 App. Cas. 873, per Lord BLACKBURN, at p. 884, and Lord FITZGERALD, at p. 889; Lord WATSON, ibid., p. 887, based his judgment on the ground that the consequences of the antecedent neglect of the other vessel could have been avoided by ordinary care on the part of the Margaret. Compare The Winstanley, [1896] P. 297, C. A., where a steamship came into a harbour on the wrong side and had to cross on to her right side, but the second steamship which came into collision with her was held alone to blame, because the second steamship, if handled with proper care, would not have been hampered. See also The Ovingdean Grange, [1902] P. 208, 210, 214, C. A., where similar antecedent neglect took place close to the second steamship, it was held that the first steamship was to blame for throwing on the second steamship the difficulty of using more than ordinary care to avoid collision, though the second steamship was also to blame; and The Monte Rosa, [1893] P. 23 (the anchor of a steamship in a river at daylight improperly projected to the knowledge of a tug, and the tug negligently sheered against it, and there was no time to lower the anchor when she sheered, so that the subsequent negligence was that of the tug; the rule was applied, and it was held that the damage could have been avoided by the exercise of reasonable care on the tug's part, and that she was alone to blame).

SECT. 3. Negligence Causing Damage.

have at least partly caused the accident (a). But the vessel thus wrongly moored is still within the pale of law, and is protected by the general rule that everyone, in the conduct of that which may be harmful if misconducted, is bound to the use of due care and skill (b); and a rash anchorage by one vessel will be immaterial if a collision can be avoided by the other vessel by due care (c).

(iv.) Negligence of more than Two Vessels.

Negligence of more than two vessels.

751. The collision cases where more than two vessels have been negligent have usually been cases involving one or more tugs and tows (d). The general principle is that, where by the fault of three or more vessels damage is caused to one or more of those vessels, to their cargoes or freight, or to any property on board, the liability to make good the damage or loss is in proportion to the degree in which each vessel was in fault (e).

SUB-SECT. 4.—The Rule of Division of Damage or Loss in Proportion to Fault.

Maritime Conventions Act, 1911.

752. The Maritime Conventions Act, 1911 (f) (hereafter in this sub-section referred to as "the Act") applies to cases of damage or loss by collision caused by the fault of two or more vessels to certain descriptions of property and persons (g); and the law as to division of loss in such cases has been very largely altered by the Act. The alterations fall under four heads. The first alteration establishes an entirely fresh basis for the division of loss in

(a) Lack v. Seward (1829), 4 C. & P. 106, 108, per Lord TENTERDEN, C.J., at p. 108: "If the plaintiff's men had put this barge in such a position thatpersons using ordinary care would run against it, the defendant will not be liable" (at common law); compare The Ovingdean Grange, [1902] P. 208, 214, C. A. In The Batavier (1845), 2 Wm. Rob. 407, Dr. LUSHINGTON said: "It is, I apprehend, the bounden duty of the vessel under weigh, whether the vessel at anchor be properly or improperly moored, to avoid if it be possible, with safety to herself, any collision whatever"; but this requires some such qualification, as "by the exercise of reasonable care and reasonable skill," as is shown by the context.

(b) Colchester Corporation v. Brooke (1845), 7 Q. B. 339, 377. In Dalton v. Denton (1857), 1 C. B. (N. S.) 672, where the bowsprit of the defendant's vessel, which was moored at a wharf, projected over the water fronting the plaintiff's adjoining wharf and over a mast which was being worked upon there, and descended on the mast with the ebb tide and broke it, it was held that the projection of the mast imposed no duty on the defendant, and he was not liable. But the circumstances are imperfectly reported, and the damage probably occurred in special circumstances which excused the defendant.

(c) Carse v. North British Steam Packet Co. (1895), 22 R. (Ct. of Sess.) 475.

(d) As to negligence in such cases, and as to vessels in tow, see p. 492, ante, p. 529, post; and compare The Harvest Home, [1905] P. 177, C. A.; The Morgengry and The Blackcock, [1900] P. 1, C. A.; The Englishman and The Australia, [1894] P. 239.

(e) Maritime Conventions Act, 1911 (1 & 2 Geo. 5, c. 57), s. 1 (1).

(f) 1 & 2 Geo. 5, c. 57. This Act is to be construed (ibid., s. 10) as one with the M. S. Acts, 1894—1907, and, therefore, presumably also as one with the M. S. Act, 1911 (1 & 2 Geo. 5, c. 42) (see ibid., s. 2); and see note (a), p. 10, ante.

(g) See p. 508, ante.

collision cases ; the other three alterations affect the division of loss in minor degrees.

First, the Act creates a new rule for division of loss (h), under which the liability of the owner of one vessel in fault to pay damages to the owner of the other vessel in fault may in future be increased or decreased from the half damages, for which he would have been liable before the Act.

Secondly, the Act does away (i) with the special statutory rule in collision cases, by which a vessel which had infringed an article of the Sea Regulations was deemed to be in fault.

Thirdly, the Act affects the kind of damages which the owner of one wrong-doing vessel can claim to share with the owner of the other; thus, claims for loss of life under Lord Campbell's Act (k) or personal injuries will in future be included in the damages divisible (l), though not so before the Act (m); and the Act affects the nature of proceedings in certain matters which may be the subject of division of loss; thus, as will be seen below, claims for loss of life and personal injuries can in future be enforced by action in rem (n), which was not so before the Act.

Fourthly, the Act declares a limit of time against actions of damage or loss by collision to certain property, and actions for damages for loss of life or personal injuries ; and also a limit of time against certain actions to enforce a contribution between the owners of the different vessels in fault (o).

753. In all actions as to collisions etc. (p) begun since the 16th December, 1911 (q), the rule is that where by the fault (r) of two Rule as to division of loss.

(h) Maritime Conventions Act, 1911 (1 & 2 Geo. 5, c. 57), s. 1.

(i) Ibid., s. 4 (1).

(k) Fatal Accidents Act, 1846 (9 & 10 Vict. c. 93).

(l) Maritime Conventions Act, 1911 (1 & 2 Geo. 5, c. 57), s. 3 ; compare ibid., s. 2.

(m) The Circe, [1906] P. 1, 13 ; The General Havelock (1905), 21 T. L. R. 438 ; but compare Boucher v. Clyde Shipping Co., [1904] 2 I. R. 129 (pilot in charge of vessel to blame held entitled to recover half damages for property loss and personal injuries against owners of other vessel to blame).

(n) Maritime Conventions Act, 1911 (1 & 2 Geo. 5, c. 57), s. 5.

(o) Ibid., s. 8. The time may, however, be extended by the court, and this was done in The Cambric (1912), 29 T. L. R. 69.

(p) The Maritime Conventions Act, 1911 (1 & 2 Geo. 5, c. 57), s. 1, which states the rule, is headed, " Provisions as to Collisions, etc." The " etc." may possibly refer to damage or loss to a vessel otherwise than by collision, for instance by running aground.

(q) " This Act shall not apply in any case in which proceedings have been taken before the passing thereof " (ibid., s. 9 (2)). In The Enterprise, [1912] P. 207, it was argued on these words unsuccessfully that the Act did not apply when proceedings were taken after the Act had passed, namely, the 16th December, 1911, but the collision had occurred before this date. As regards actions to which the Act applies, the Judicature Act, 1873 (36 & 37 Vict. c. 66), s. 25 (9), ceases to have effect; see Maritime Conventions Act, 1911 (1 & 2 Geo. 5, c. 57), s. 9 (3).

(r) " Fault " appears to be used rather than " negligence," because it denotes wrong-doing of any kind both in its popular and legal sense, and is therefore the suitable equivalent of a similar word in other languages, this being desirable, since the Act was passed to carry out an international or more vessels (a) damage or loss is caused to one or more of those vessels (b), to their cargoes or freight (c), or to any property on board, the liability to make good the damage or loss is in proportion to the degree in which each vessel was in fault (d); and if, having regard to all the circumstances of the case, it is not possible to establish different degrees of fault, the liability shall be apportioned equally (e).

SECT. 3. Negligence Causing Damage.

No new liabilities.

754. This rule clearly alters liabilities which existed before the Act. But it was desirable for the legislature also to decide whether the new rule should be allowed to create new liabilities, and as to this it appears that the rule is not to be construed as imposing any new liability upon a person from which he was previously exempted by any provision of law (f).

Fault of the vessel.

755. In this rule, as often in statutes relating to the liability of Convention. "Negligence" is a negative word, and is sometimes used in popular language of omissions alone, though in law it includes commissions as well; see Grill v. General Iron Screw Collier Co. (1866), L. R. 1 C. P. 600, per WILLES, J., at p. 612; Blyth v. Birmingham Water Works Co. (1856), 11 Exch. 781, per ALDERSON, B., at p. 784.

(a) "Damage or loss is caused . . . by the fault of two or more vessels." This appears to mean with regard to each vessel, "caused through the navigation of the vessel by the fault of those in charge of her"; compare Currie v. M'Knight, [1897] A. C. 97, per Lord HALSBURY, L.C., at p. 101 ("The phrase that it must be the fault of the ship itself is not a mere figurative expression, but it imports, in my opinion, that the ship against which a maritime lien for damages is claimed is the instrument of mischief, and that, in order to establish the liability of the ship itself to the maritime lien claimed, some act of navigation of the ship itself should either mediately or immediately be the cause of the damage"); and ibid., per Lord WATSON, at pp. 106, 107. See also The Vera Cruz (No. 2) (1884), 9 P. D. 96, 101, C. A. (decided on the Admiralty Court Act, 1861 (24 & 25 Vict. c. 10), s. 7, "damage done by a ship"), per BOWEN, L.J. ("'Damage done by a ship' means done by those in charge of a ship, with the ship as the noxious instrument"). As to the meaning of "vessel," see p. 374, ante.

(b) This is only a figurative way of referring to the damage or loss caused to the persons interested in the vessels, their cargo or freight, or property on board (The Cairnbahn, [1914] P. 25, 31, C. A.). "Damage or loss" caused to one or more of the vessels, clearly includes loss by the sinking of a vessel or damage which has to be repaired. It also includes "salvage or other expenses, consequent on the fault" of the two or more vessels, which are "recoverable at law by way of damages" (Maritime Conventions Act, 1911 (1 & 2 Geo. 5, c. 57), s. 1 (2)). As to such other expenses, see p. 538, post.

(c) "Freight" includes passage money and hire; see Maritime Conventions Act, 1911 (1 & 2 Geo. 5, c. 57), s. 1 (2).

(d) Ibid., s. 1 (1). For examples of allotting liability in proportion to fault, see The Rosalia, [1912] P. 109 (60 per cent. and 40 per cent.); The Sargasso, [1912] P. 192 (two-thirds and one-third); The Barking (1912), Shipping Gazette, 29th April, 1912; The Cairnbahn, [1914] P. 25, C. A. (equal portions); The Bravo (1913), 29 T. L. R. 122 (four-fifths and one-fifth). In this case the more successful party claimed that the costs should be divided in the same proportion, but EVANS, P., declined to lay down any strict rule, and said it would be best, apart from special circumstances, to adhere to the old practice in collision actions that each delinquent vessel, if she came into court either to make an attack or to repel an attack, should bear her own costs.

(e) Maritime Conventions Act, 1911 (1 & 2 Geo. 5, c. 57), s. 1 (1) (a).

(f) Ibid., s. 1 (1) (c).

shipowners (g), the vessel is personified; but the fault of the vessel and the liability arising therefrom seem to mean the fault and the liability (h) of those interested in the vessel (i). It can hardly be doubted that for the purpose of determining liability under this rule the expression "those interested in the vessel," when read into the rule, will include any persons, other than the ordinary owners, who are responsible for the fault of the vessel, because in any case where, by virtue of any charter or demise or for any other reason, the owners are not responsible for the navigation and management of the vessel, references in the Act to "the owners" are to be taken to be references to the charterers or other persons for the time being so responsible (j).

Fault causing damage or loss.

756. For this rule to apply, fault must be established on the part of each vessel of such a nature as to cause the damage or loss (k). But there need not be negligent manœuvring by each vessel for both to be held in fault. For instance, it will be sufficient if the impact is due to one vessel's negligence, and the damage due to improper projection of the other vessel's anchor (l), if its position could not reasonably have been seen beforehand on the damaged vessel (m).

Compulsory pilotage.

757. Nothing in the rule renders any vessel liable for any loss or damage to which her fault has not contributed (n). Where a collision occurs owing to the fault of one vessel and the fault of the compulsory pilot in charge of the other vessel, it may be that the owners of the vessel in charge of the pilot will not be held liable to pay for any damages arising out of the collision, as they are not liable for the fault of the pilot (o); or it may be argued that the rule does not apply inasmuch as there is no fault on the part of their vessel. If it is held that the rule does apply, then, just as the owners of this vessel would have been entitled before the Act to recover half their damages from the other vessel in such a case (a), so it seems

(g) For instance, in the Admiralty Court Act, 1861 (24 & 25 Vict. c. 10), s. 7 (damage done by any ship), and in the M. S. Amendment Act, 1862, s. 29 (now repealed) (the ship shall be deemed to be in fault).

(h) Compare Murray v. Currie (1870), L. R. 6 C. P. 24, per WILLES, J., at p. 27 ("in ascertaining who is liable for the act of a wrong-doer, you must look to the wrong-doer himself or to the first person in the ascending line who is the employer and has control over the work").

(i) The Cairnbahn, [1914] P. 25, 31, C. A.

(j) Maritime Conventions Act, 1911 (1 & 2 Geo. 5, c. 57), s. 9 (4).

(k) Just as before the Act a collision was only held to be the fault of both vessels, if each party was guilty of fault which caused the accident (Cayzer v. Carron Co. (1884), 9 App. Cas. 873, 881), though at that time a vessel might be deemed in fault for an infringement of the Sea Regulations.

(l) The Margaret (1881), 6 P. D. 76, C. A.; compare The Dunstanborough, [1892] P. 363, n.; The Scotia (1890), 6 Asp. M. L. C. 541; The Hornet, [1892] P. 361.

(m) The Monte Rosa, [1893] P. 23, 31.

(n) Maritime Conventions Act, 1911 (1 & 2 Geo. 5, c. 57), s. 1 (1) (b).

(o) This was so before the Act; see The Hector (1883), 8 P. D. 218, 225, C. A.

(a) The Hector, supra, at p. 225.

SECT. 3. Negligence Causing Damage.

to follow that in future they will be entitled to recover any larger (b) or smaller proportion according to the degree in which the other vessel is held in fault.

Division of loss.

758. In working out the division of loss under the rule, all the damages caused to the owner of each vessel which he has to share with the owner of the other vessel have first to be ascertained. These divisible damages include damage or loss caused to his vessel or her cargo or her freight, passage money or hire (c), and also any salvage or other expenses consequent on the fault of his vessel which have been recovered from him at law by way of damages (d). The divisible damages also include damages recovered in respect of loss of life or personal injuries, as an express right to recover contribution in such cases is given by the Act (e).

Debt for balance.

When the divisible damages of the first owner have been thus ascertained, the liability of the second owner to make good his proportion of these first damages is only a provisional liability according to principles hitherto established, and it is not a debt due from him to the first owner (f). The divisible damages of the second owner must also be ascertained. Then the proportion of the first damages due from the second owner has to be set against the proportion of the second damages due from the first owner, and the smaller sum has to be deducted from the larger, and the balance is a debt due from one owner to the other. There is only one liability,

(b) Notwithstanding the provision that the Maritime Conventions Act, 1911 (1 & 2 Geo. 5, c. 57), s. 1, shall not impose any liability upon any person from which he is exempted at the date of the Act; see ibid., s. 1 (1) (c).

(c) Ibid., s. 1 (1), (2).

(d) Ibid., s. 1 (2). It is noticeable that "damages" in ibid. are not confined to damages which could be taken into consideration in the Admiralty Court; compare The Circe, [1906] P. 1, 13. The words "other expenses, consequent upon that fault, recoverable at law by way of damages" may or may not be construed to exclude expenses, consequent upon the fault, which are not legally recoverable as "damages"; for the maxim inclusio unius est exclusio alterius, on the one side, may be set against the principle that the purpose of words of inclusion in a statutory definition is that the thing defined may have a more extended meaning; compare Ex parte Ferguson (1871), L. R. 6 Q. B. 280, 291. Thus if an owner claims a right to include among his divisible damages money paid for compensation under the Workmen's Compensation Act, 1906 (6 Edw. 7, c. 58), or a payment under a similar foreign Act (compare The Circe, supra), he must show that this compensation comes within some head of damage contemplated in the Act. Possibly such compensation may be held to be included, though not aptly, under "damages" recovered against the owners of a vessel where "loss of life" or "personal injuries" are suffered by any person on board etc. (Maritime Conventions Act, 1911 (1 & 2 Geo. 5, c. 57), s. 3 (1)); or it is arguable that the words in ibid., s. 1 (1), "damage or loss to a vessel," are to be taken as covering all expenses to the owner of the vessel thus arising and so include such compensation; see also the proviso to ibid., s. 3 (1). As to cases where by the fault of two vessels a collision is caused between one of them and a third innocent vessel, see p. 522, post.

(e) Maritime Conventions Act, 1911 (1 & 2 Geo. 5, c. 57), s. 3 (1).

(f) So the second owner could not recover this sum from his insurers under the running-down clause (London Steamship Owners' Insurance Co. v. Grampian Steamship Co. (1890), 24 Q. B. D. 663).

and there can be only one payment (g). Thus in the simple case of both vessels to blame, and each being condemned in half damages, the owner who has suffered the greater damages is entitled to receive from the second owner half those damages, less half the damages which the second owner has sustained (h).

Limitation of liability.

759. Either owner can proceed to limit his liability (i), and pay into court the sum due from him in case of such limitation. And in this case the owner of the vessel who is entitled to receive the larger contribution towards his damages, and to whom therefore a balance is due, can prove against the fund for the amount of the balance (k).

More than two vessels in fault.

Tug and tow.

760. Where more than two vessels have been in collision, and they have all been in fault, the liability to make good the damage or loss will be distributed among them in proportion to the degree in which each vessel was in fault (l). Thus, when a tug, tow and third vessel are all in fault for a collision between any two of them, each vessel must be allotted its own proportion of the damages (m). It may be a great disadvantage to one vessel in such a case to allow judgment to go by default in an action by one of the others (n).

Third innocent vessel.

761. Where by the fault of two vessels a collision is caused between one of them and a third innocent vessel, the new rule of (g) London Steamship Owners' Insurance Co. v. Grampian Steamship Co. (1890), 24 Q. B. D. 663, 667.

(h) Stoomvaart Maatschappy Nederland v. Peninsular and Oriental Steam Navigation Co. (1882), 7 App. Cas. 795. The text states what the law was before the Act came into operation. The old law depended on Stoomvaart Maatschappy Nederland v. Peninsular and Oriental Steam Navigation Co., supra, which decided that the result of the Admiralty Court rule of division of loss was only one liability, and not cross liabilities. This decision was based on the proper form of the decree in the Admiralty Court in case of division of loss, and on the Admiralty procedure which brought about the same result as if the whole controversy was dealt with in one proceeding. But under the Act division of loss turns on the new rule, which is not a mere development of British law, but springs from a Convention between nations. It is arguable, therefore, that the whole principle of division of loss is changed, and that individual liabilities are imposed on the owners of the several vessels even as regards one another. It is doubtful for many reasons if this argument can succeed, but if it does, the foundation of the Admiralty Court division of loss for the last thirty years will be taken away.

(i) Under M. S. Act, 1894, s. 503; see Maritime Conventions Act, 1911 (1 & 2 Geo. 5, c. 57), s. 1 (1) (c).

(k) Stoomvaart Maatschappy Nederland v. Peninsular and Oriental Steam Navigation Co., supra.

(l) Maritime Conventions Act, 1911 (1 & 2 Geo. 5, c. 57), s. 1 (1).

(m) Thus avoiding the inequalities before the Act as between the owners of the tug and tow arising from the owners of the tow being usually more substantial shipowners, and therefore being called on to pay the balance of damages due to the owners of the third vessel, and being prevented from recovering contribution from the owners of the tug owing to the rule of no contribution between tortfeasors; compare The Englishman and The Australia, [1894] P. 239; [1895] P. 212; see also The Harvest Home, [1905] P. 177, C. A.

(n) As it was sometimes before the Act; see The Morgengry and The Blackcock, [1900] P. 1.

SECT. 3. Negligence Causing Damage.

division of liability (o) does not directly (p) apply to an action by the owners of the innocent vessel against either or both of the wrong-doing vessels, and the plaintiffs are entitled to judgment against either or both of the wrong-doing vessels for the full amount of their damages (q).

Cargo owner.

762. As regards cargo on one vessel damaged by a collision with another vessel by the fault of both of them, it has not yet been decided whether the cargo owner is entitled to recover in full his damages from the owner of the other vessel in fault (r). Similarly it has not yet been decided whether he is entitled to recover in full against the owner of the vessel carrying his cargo, but any right of recovery against such owner is qualified by the contract of carriage contained, for instance, in the charterparty or bill of lading (s).

Passengers.

763. It has not yet been decided whether the right of a passenger in similar circumstances to recover his passage money (t), and his right of action for damage or loss of luggage (u), against the owner of the other vessel is limited by the Act. As regards a cabin passenger, his right to recover from the owner of the vessel by which he is sailing is qualified by his contract ticket (a).

(o) Maritime Conventions Act, 1911 (1 & 2 Geo. 5, c. 57), s. 1 (1).

(p) As to the application of the new rule as to the division between the owners of the two wrong-doing vessels of the damages so recovered against one of the wrong-doing vessels, see pp. 523, 524, post.

(q) See The Cairnbahn (1912), 29 T. L. R. 60, where in an action by an innocent tow which had been damaged owing to the joint negligence of her tug and a third vessel, both of which were found to blame in equal degrees, judgment was entered against both, and owners of the tow recovered their damages in full against the owners of the third vessel. The same rule existed before the Act; see S.S. Devonshire (Owners) v. Barge Leslie (Owners), [1912] A. C. 634. It appears that, according to art. 4 of the Collision Convention between the contracting states, it was provided that even to innocent third parties a vessel was only to be liable in proportion to the degree in which she was in fault; see Roscoe and Robertson's Maritime Conventions Act, 1911, p. 8. The Maritime Conventions Act, 1911 (1 & 2 Geo. 5, c. 57), was passed to enable this Convention to be carried into effect (see the title of the Act); but in the above respect it appears not to have done so. In The Cairnbahn, supra, the only collision was between the innocent vessel and one of the wrong-doing vessels; but it may be inferred that the same rule would have applied if this collision had been the result of a collision between the two wrong-doing vessels; as to the law on this point before the Act, see The Frankland, [1901] P. 161.

(r) The question whether this is so or not under the Maritime Conventions Act, 1911 (1 & 2 Geo. 5, c. 57), s. 1 (1), was argued in The Umona (1913), 8th December, in the Admiralty Division, in which judgment is as yet reserved. Before the Act, in such an action the cargo owner could only recover half damages (S.S. Tongariro (Owners of Cargo) v. S.S. Drumlanrig (Owners), The Drumlanrig, [1911] A. C. 16), even if both vessels belonged to the same owners (Chartered Mercantile Bank of India v. Netherlands India Steam Navigation Co. (1883), 10 Q. B. D. 521, C. A.).

(s) Maritime Conventions Act, 1911 (1 & 2 Geo. 5, c. 57), s. 1 (1) (c); as to the law on this point before the Act, compare Burness & Sons v. Persian Gulf Steamship Co., The Bushire (1885), 5 Asp. M. L. C. 416.

(t) Maritime Conventions Act, 1911 (1 & 2 Geo. 5, c. 57), s. 1 (1), (2).

(u) Ibid., s. 1 (1), "any property on board."

(a) Ibid., s. 1 (1) (c). The Board of Trade form (No. 729 of the year

Loss of life and personal injuries.

764. Before the Act, when any person on board a vessel suffered loss of life in a collision owing to the fault of that vessel and of any other vessel, an action in personam could be brought under Lord Campbell's Act (b) by the executor for the benefit of the parent, spouse and child of such person against the owners of either vessel, subject to any defences, to recover damages for the injury resulting to them from the death of such person; and in case of personal injuries the person could bring his own action in personam (c). But under the Act such actions may now also be brought in rem (d). In such an action the liability of the owners of each vessel in fault is both joint and several (e), so that the action may be brought against the owners of either (f) or both vessels (g), and full damages can be recovered from the owners of either vessel, but the owners of either vessel can limit their liability (h). If the action is brought against the owners of the vessel on which the person was, they can rely on any defence open to them, such as conditions in a contract or common employment (i).

Right of contribution in such cases.

765. When damages for loss of life or personal injuries have been recovered against the owners of one vessel, they are entitled to recover by way of contribution from the owners of the other vessel the excess by which the damages exceed the proportion in which their own vessel was in fault; and for this purpose of recovery over, the owners of the vessel have the same rights and powers as the original plaintiffs have under the Act (k); so it appears that they could, as if they were the original plaintiffs, bring an action against the owners of the other vessel and thus recover a proper amount of the claim. But these rights give the owners no power to recover against the other owners any amount which could not by reason of any statutory or contractual limitation of, or exemption from liability, or which could not for any other reason 1894), of steerage passenger's contract ticket, which must be given to steerage passengers in certain cases, contains no exception of negligence, and does not admit of any such exception being added (O'Brien v. Oceanic Steam Navigation Co. (1913), 29 T. L. R. 629; affirmed (1914), Times, 10th February, C. A.).

(b) Fatal Accidents Act, 1846 (9 & 10 Vict. c. 93).

(c) If it was shown that the owners of a ship were probably liable to pay damages for fatal or other personal injuries sustained on, in, or about the ship, and that none of the owners resided in the United Kingdom, the ship could be detained until security to abide the event of the action had been given; see Shipowners' Negligence (Remedies) Act, 1905 (5 Edw. 7, c. 10).

(d) An action for loss of life could not be brought in rem before the Act; see The Vera Cruz (No. 2) (1884), 9 P. D. 96, C. A.

(e) Maritime Conventions Act, 1911 (1 & 2 Geo. 5, c. 57), s. 2.

(f) Before the Act an action in respect of the death of an innocent person on board a vessel, owing to a collision for which this vessel and another vessel were in fault, could be brought against the owner of the other vessel, in which full damages could be recovered; see Mills v. Armstrong, The "Bernina" (1888), 13 App. Cas. 1.

(g) Or more vessels, if more than two are concerned.

(h) Maritime Conventions Act, 1911 (1 & 2 Geo. 5, c. 57), s. 2, proviso.

(i) Ibid.; compare Hedley v. Pinkney & Sons Steamship Co., [1894] A. C. 222 (common employment).

(k) Maritime Conventions Act, 1911 (1 & 2 Geo. 5, c. 57), s. 3.

SECT. 3. Negligence Causing Damage.

have been recovered in the first instance as damages by the persons entitled to sue therefor (l). When by the fault of two vessels a collision is caused between one of them and a third innocent vessel, the owner of one of the two vessels in fault, who has been compelled to pay damages in full to the innocent vessel, can recover against the owner of the other vessel in fault a proportion not only of the damage to his own vessel, but also of the damages which he has paid to the owner of the innocent vessel (m), but he cannot recover any proportion of the costs of unsuccessfully disputing his liability to the owner of the innocent vessel (n).

Limitation of time of action.

766. In case of damage or loss caused to a vessel, her cargo or freight, or any property on board, or in case of damages for loss of life or personal injury suffered by any person on board a vessel, owing to a collision caused by the fault of one or more other vessels, as a rule no action is maintainable against the other vessels or their owners, unless proceedings are commenced within two (o) years from the date when the damage or loss or injury was caused (p). In such cases of collision, no action as a rule is maintainable by the owners of one vessel in fault to enforce, against the owners of another vessel in fault, any contribution in respect of an overpaid proportion of any damages for loss of life or personal injuries, unless proceedings are commenced within one year from the date of payment (q). The court has power in certain circumstances to extend the time (r).

Application of Act.

767. The Act applies throughout His Majesty's dominions (s),

(l) Maritime Conventions Act, 1911 (1 & 2 Geo. 5, c. 57), s. 3 (1), proviso.

(m) The Cairnbahn, [1914] P. 25, C. A. As to the law of no contribution between tortfeasors, applying before the Act, see The Avon and Thomas Joliffe, [1891] P. 7; The Stormcock (1885), 5 Asp. M. L. C. 470.

(n) The Cairnbahn (No. 2) (1913), 29 T. L. R. 559; affirmed (1913), 5th December, C. A.

(o) Maritime Conventions Act, 1911 (1 & 2 Geo. 5, c. 57), s. 8; see The Cambric (1912), 29 T. L. R. 69 (application to the court under that provision to extend the time for bringing the action granted).

(p) In cases of loss of life and personal injuries before the Maritime Conventions Act, 1911 (1 & 2 Geo. 5, c. 57), actions for loss of life under Lord Campbell's Act had to be commenced within twelve calendar months after the death of the person; see Fatal Accidents Act, 1846 (9 & 10 Vict. c. 93), s. 3. In The Caliph, [1912] P. 213, it was decided that an action in rem, for damages for loss of life arising out of a collision caused by the fault of defendants' vessel, is now maintainable within two years from the date when the loss of life was caused. As regards proceedings for compensation for injury by accident arising out of a collision, the limitation of time in the Workmen's Compensation Act, 1906 (6 Edw. 7, c. 58), s. 2, is six months; but it is perhaps doubtful whether such compensation is included in the divisible damages; see note (d), p. 520, ante. A workman on board a ship may (Macbeth & Co. v. Chislett, [1910] A. C. 220) bring an action against the shipowners under the Employers' Liability Act, 1880 (43 & 44 Vict. c. 42), under which Act the limit prescribed is six months from the accident causing injury, or twelve months from the death; see ibid., s. 4.

(q) Maritime Conventions Act, 1911 (1 & 2 Geo. 5, c. 57), s. 8.

(r) Ibid., proviso; see The Cambric, supra.

(s) And to territories under his protection, and Cyprus (Maritime Conventions Act, 1911 (1 & 2 Geo. 5, c. 57), s. 9 (1)).

except the self-governing dominions (t). The Act applies in all cases begun on or since the 16th December, 1911, and determined in any court having jurisdiction over such a case, and in whatever waters the damage or loss in question was caused (a). So far as the provisions of the Act are lex fori, they seem to be applicable to all vessels which submit to the jurisdiction of the court, possibly including His Majesty's ships (b).

SECT. 3. Negligence Causing Damage.

SECT. 4.—General Incidence and Extent of Liability.

SUB-SECT. 1.—Parties Liable.

(i.) In General.

General presumption.

768. The person who causes a ship to collide and do damage by any negligent act or omission is liable for the damage caused by that negligent act or omission (c).

Liability of owner.

769. There is a presumption that the owner of the ship is liable for the damage caused by the negligence of those on board the ship, but the presumption may be rebutted by the owner showing that the negligence was not the negligence of his servant or agent, for instance that it was the negligence of a compulsory pilot, or that the act done was not done in the course of the servant's duty (d).

Liability for servants and agents.

770. The liability of the owner as a rule, in admiralty as at common law, rests on his responsibility for the acts of his servants

(t) Namely, Canada, Australia, New Zealand, South Africa, and Newfoundland; see Maritime Conventions Act, 1911 (1 & 2 Geo. 5, c. 57), s. 9 (1). The Act has been sent to the self-governing dominions, and they have been invited to adhere to the Conventions and to pass legislation on the lines of the Act. The Commonwealth of Australia has expressed its intention of adhering to the Conventions.

(a) Ibid., s. 9 (2), (3).

(b) Though the Act, being construed as one with the M. S. Acts, 1894—1907, seems not to apply otherwise to His Majesty's ships; see M. S. Act, 1894, s. 741.

(c) Stort v. Clements (1792), Peake, 144 (pilot, defendant, escaped liability); Nicholson v. Mouncey and Symes (1812), 15 East, 384 (captain of His Majesty's ship held not liable for negligence of lieutenant); Lawson v. Dumlin (1850), 9 C. B. 54 (pilot, defendant, held liable); Smith v. Voss (1857), 2 H. & N. 97 (pilot, defendant, held liable).

(d) Joyce v. Capel (1838), 8 C. &. P. 370 (bargeman is primâ facie a servant of the owners); The Druid (1842), 1 Wm. Rob. 391 (owners held not responsible for violent detention of, and wilful damage to, a vessel by their tug-master); The Ida (1860), Lush. 6 (owners would not be responsible for damage done by a vessel which has been quite unwarrantably cut adrift by the master of their vessel); Hibbs v. Ross (1866), L. R. 1 Q. B. 534 (the registered owner of a ship is primâ facie liable for the negligence of the shipkeeper while the ship is laid up); Frazer v. Cuthbertson (1880), 6 Q. B. D. 93, 98 (a person wrongly registered as managing owner is not necessarily held out as agent of a registered owner of shares in a ship); Smith v. Bailey, [1891] 2 Q. B. 403, C. A. (owner of locomotive held not liable for negligent management by bailee on a highway); Currie v. M'Knight, [1897] A. C. 97, 107 (to render a ship liable to a maritime lien for damage, the ship itself must be the instrument which causes the damage). As to the effect of the Pilotage Act, 1913 (2 & 3 Geo. 5, c, 31), on the liability of a shipowner for negligence of a compulsory pilot, see note (o), p. 529, post.

SECT. 4. General Incidence and Extent of Liability.

and agents, and does not depend on the ownership of the vessel (e); though in some cases the legislature has imposed a liability on the owner of a ship for damage done by it, even though the damage is caused by the negligence of some person who is not the servant or agent of the owner (f).

Liability of master.

771. The master is liable for damage arising from his own negligence or breach of contract made with the owner of cargo shipped on his vessel; but he is not liable for the damage done by an act of the crew or of the pilot, whether done in the course of their duty to the shipowner or not, unless ordered by him (g).

(ii.) In Case of Chartered Ship.

Chartered ship.

772. If a vessel while on charter collides with another vessel and causes damage, the question whether the charterer of the vessel or the owner is liable depends upon whether the person guilty of the negligence which caused the collision is the servant or agent of the charterer or of the owner.

Basis of liability.

This question can only be answered by considering the terms of the agreement made between the parties. Generally, if the charterer pays and appoints the crew, he is liable for their negligence; if the owner pays and appoints them, he is liable (h). The ratio

(e) Hibbs v. Ross (1866), L. R. 1 Q. B. 534; River Wear Commissioners v Adamson (1877), 2 App. Cas. 743, 751 (at common law the owner would not be liable merely because he was the owner or without showing that those navigating the vessel were his servants); Simpson v. Thomson (1877), 3 App. Cas. 279, 293 (the owner of a ship is liable to an action for damage, not because he is the owner, but because he is the master of the captain and crew, whose negligence in the course of their employment occasioned the damage).

(f) Harbours, Docks, and Piers Clauses Act, 1847 (10 & 11 Vict. c. 27), ss. 74, 75; for cases thereon, see Dennis v. Tovell (1872), L. R. 8 Q. B. 10; The Merle (1874), 2 Asp. M. L. C. 402; River Wear Commissioners v. Adamson (1877), 2 App. Cas. 743.

(g) Stort v. Clements (1792), Peake, 144; M'Manus v. Crickett (1800), 1 East, 106; Bowcher v. Noidstrom (1809), 1 Taunt. 568 (master not liable for wilful injury to another ship done by one of his crew without his privity or direction, but by order of the pilot); Aldrich v. Simmons (1816), 1 Stark. 214 (the captain cannot be responsible to the owner for the misconduct of the pilot); Blaikie v. Stembridge (1859), 6 C. B. (N. S.) 894 (a stevedore appointed by the charterer, but paid by and acting under the master's orders, held not to be the servant or agent of the master so as to render him responsible; the liabilities of the master in such cases fully considered); Oakley v. Speedy (1879), 4 Asp. M. L. C. 134 (with a compulsory pilot in charge, a master was held not criminally liable for a breach of the regulations in the absence of proof that he wrongfully interfered with the navigation).

(h) Scott v. Scott (1818), 2 Stark. 438 (semble: owner of barge is not liable for the negligence of servants of another person to whom he has lent it); Fenton v. City of Dublin Steam Packet Co. (1838), 8 Ad. & El. 835 (where the owners kept their own crew on board and were to keep the vessel in good order, they were held liable for the crew's negligence, though the crew were to be paid by the charterer); Dalyell v. Tyrer (1858), E. B. & E. 899 (a passenger who had contracted for a passage with the lessee of a ferry, held entitled to recover from the owners of a tug, hired by the lessee for one day, for injury arising from negligence of the tug's crew); Hodgkinson v. Fernie (1857), 2 C. B. (N. S.) 415 (semble: the owner of a transport hired decidendi in cases in which vessels in the hands of charterers have been held liable in actions in rem is that the charterers are considered as pro hâc vice owners (i).

(iii.) In Case of a Vessel in Tow.

Collision of tug and tow.

773. In case of a collision between a tug and her tow causing damage, a liability arises in favour of the one and against the other, if the collision is due to the other not fulfilling her duties under the contract of towage. In the absence of agreement to the contrary, there is in a contract of towage an implied warranty by the owners of the tug that she is fit for her service (k); and it is also implied that her crew, tackle, and equipment shall be equal to the work to be accomplished in weather and other circumstances reasonably to be expected, and that reasonable skill, care, and energy shall be shown in accomplishing the work (l), and that neither shall negligently create unnecessary risk to the other or increase any risk incidental to the service (m). The tug owners are not responsible if the towing becomes impossible through no fault of theirs (n); nor can they recover compensation from the owners of the tow for damage incurred by the tug owing to dangerous circumstances without misconduct of the tow (o). The owners of the tow are liable for damage arising to the tug from improper orders of the tow, for instance to get connexion (p), if there is no contributory negligence of the tug (q).

Collision with a third vessel.

774. In case of a collision with a third vessel, the owners of the tug and the tow are of course responsible for damage caused by the negligent navigation (r) of their respective vessels. The owners of

by the Government for war is not responsible for damage done to another transport of the same expedition resulting from the master's obedience to the order of the commanding officer); Baumwoll Manufactur von Carl Scheibler v. Furness, [1893] A. C. 8; and as to when a charterparty amounts to a demise of the ship, see, further, pp. 85, 86, ante.

(i) The Lemington (1874), 2 Asp. M. L. C. 475 (chartered vessel held liable in action in rem for collision, as the crew were the servants of the charterers, who were pro hac vice owners); The Tasmania (1888), 13 P. D. 110 (a chartered tug held not liable in action in rem for collision with her tow, as charterers had contracted with the owners of the tow to be free from liability).

(k) The West Cock, [1911] P. 208, 217, C. A.; The Maréchal Suchet, [1911] P. 1, 12; The Undaunted (1886), 11 P. D. 46; but compare Robertson v. Amazon Tug and Lighterage Co. (1881), 4 Asp. M. L. C. 496, C. A. (where a master mariner contracted with a company to take a specific tug and barges to South America, it was held that there was no implied warranty by the company that the tug was reasonably efficient for the purpose).

(l) The Maréchal Suchet, supra; The Robert Dixon (1879), 4 P. D. 121; compare Preston Corporation v. Biornstad, The "Ratata," [1898] A. C. 513 (harbour authority undertook to tow a number of vessels up a tidal river with hired tugs).

(m) The Julia (1861), Lush. 224, P. C., per Lord KINGSDOWN, at p. 231.

(n) The Maréchal Suchet, supra.

(o) The Julia, supra.

(p) Ibid.

(q) See, further, p. 491, ante.

(r) As to negligence causing damage, see pp. 499, 500, ante; and as to the Sea Regulations, pp. 373 et seq., ante.

SECT. 4. General Incidence and Extent of Liability.

the tow are also responsible to third parties for the negligence of the tug, when the relation of master and servant in fact exists between those in charge of the tug and the owners of the tow (s); or when, which appears to amount to the same thing, though the motive power is in the tug, the governing power is in the tow (t). Unless this relation is established, the owners of the tow are not responsible for the negligence of the tug (a). The owners of the tow, therefore, are not liable when the master and crew of the tug are not their servants, but the tug is in the position of an independent contractor (b); nor are they liable even when the tow has been controlling the tug, if the tug acts so suddenly as to prevent the tow from controlling her, unless the sudden action arises out of the previous control (c).

Control of tug by tow.

775. No general rule can be laid down as to when the crew of the tug are the servants of the owners of the tow, but it depends on circumstances (d). In the case of sea-going ships in tow, the whole direction as a rule is in the hands of the persons navigating the tow, to avoid divided command and because the officers of the tow are of a higher class than those on the tug (e); and the master and crew of the tug are there for navigating purposes in the position of servants of the owners of the tow, so that the owners of the tow

(s) The Quickstep (1890), 15 P. D. 196, 199; S.S. Devonshire (Owners) v. Barge Leslie (Owners), [1912] A. C. 634.

(t) Union Steamship Co. v. "Aracan" (Owners), The "American" and The "Syria" (1874), L. R. 6 P. C. 127, 132; Stevens v. Gourley, The Cleadon (1860), 14 Moo. P. C. C. 92, 97.

(a) Before the case of Union Steamship Co. v. "Aracan" (Owners), The "American" and The "Syria," supra, which held that when the tug had the governing power the tow could not be deemed liable for her negligence, it was sometimes considered that the owners of the tow were to be held responsible for the negligence of the tug in all cases (compare The Ticonderoga (1857), Sw. 215); and this seems to have been based on the doctrine that the relation of master and servant necessarily existed between the tug and tow as regards third parties as a matter of law (compare The Sinquasi (1880), 5 P. D. 241, 244), or on views of expediency (compare The Quickstep, supra, at p. 199). This doctrine, in the form of constructive negligence or otherwise, has been pressed in arguments until the present time (compare S.S. Devonshire (Owners) v. Barge Leslie (Owners), supra), reliance being usually placed on some general assertion in judicial decisions that the tow is for some purposes identified with the tug (compare Union Steamship Co. v. "Aracan" (Owners), The "American" and The "Syria," supra, at p. 132), and on the fact that in their steering and for some other purposes of navigation the tug and tow are to be regarded to some extent as one vessel (compare The Seacombe, The Devonshire, [1912] P. 21, 49, C. A.). But The Ticonderoga, supra, and The Sinquasi, supra, in so far as they purported to establish the liability above stated, are no longer law; and doctrines to a similar effect are largely discredited. See also The Englishman and The Australia, [1894] P. 239, where the liability of the tow was founded partly on the doctrine of identification; but the decision in this case is no longer law owing to the Maritime Conventions Act, 1911 (1 & 2 Geo 5, c. 57), s. 1; see pp. 516 et seq., ante.

(b) The Seacombe, The Devonshire, supra, at p. 49.

(c) The Niobe (1888), 13 P. D. 55. The Sinquasi, supra, cannot now be considered an authority to the contrary.

(d) The Quickstep, supra, at p. 200.

(e) The Niobe, supra, at p. 59.

are responsible for their negligence (f). But even in the case of ships at sea the tow is not to blame if the governing power is wholly in the vessel towing (g); and in rivers and inland waters, where a tug is towing a single barge or other like craft, the navigation is often in the hands of the tug, and still more so when towing a group of such craft; so that in such cases the tow is not responsible for the tug's negligence (h).

Compulsory pilot of tow.

776. When the compulsory pilot of the tow is alone in fault for the collision, the owners neither of the tug (i) nor the tow (k) are liable. But though the tow is in charge of a compulsory pilot, the tug cannot on this ground escape liability for her own negligence (l).

Volunteer tug.

777. Although the tug is a volunteer, the owners of the tow will be liable for a collision due to the tug being too weak, if they choose to accept her services (m).

Division of loss.

778. In cases where damage or loss is caused by a collision between a third vessel and a tug or tow by the fault of the third vessel and the tug or tow or both of them, the liability to make good the damage or loss is in proportion to the degree in which each vessel is in fault (n).

(iv.) In Case of Compulsory Pilotage.

When pilotage compulsory.

779. When a collision is occasioned by the fault of a compulsory pilot who is in charge of a ship, the shipowner is not (o) liable

(f) The Seacombe, The Devonshire, [1912] P. 21, 49, C. A.; compare M'Cowan v. Baine, The "Niobe," [1891] A. C. 401, 407; Smith v. St. Lawrence Tow-Boat Co. (1873), L. R. 5 P. C. 308.

(g) Union Steamship Co. v. "Aracan" (Owners), The "American" and The "Syria" (1874), L. R. 6 P. C. 127.

(h) Compare S.S. Devonshire (Owners) v. Barge Leslie (Owners), [1912] A. C. 634; The W. H. No. 1 and The Knight Errant, [1910] P. 199, C. A.; affirmed, [1911] A. C. 30.

(i) The Duke of Sussex (1841), 1 Wm. Rob. 270. As to the effect of the Pilotage Act, 1913 (2 & 3 Geo. 5, c. 31), on the liability of a shipowner for negligence of a compulsory pilot, see note (o), infra.

(k) Marshall v. Moran, The "Ocean Wave" (1870), L. R. 3 P. C. 205.

(l) The Mary (1879), 5 P. D. 14; Spaight v. Tedcastle (1881), 6 App. Cas. 217.

(m) The Belgic (1875), 2 P. D. 57, n., 59, n.

(n) Maritime Conventions Act, 1911 (1 & 2 Geo. 5, c. 57), s. 1 (1); see The Cairnbahn (1912), 29 T. L. R. 60. Before this Act an innocent tow, damaged by collision with a third vessel by the fault of the tug and third vessel, could recover in full against the third vessel (see The Seacombe, The Devonshire, supra), and was not limited to recovering half damages, as in the case of fault of her compulsory pilot (The Hector (1883), 8 P. D. 218, C. A.).

(o) After the 1st January, 1918, by the Pilotage Act, 1913 (2 & 3 Geo. 5, c. 31), s. 15 (1), notwithstanding anything in any public or local Act, the owner or master of a vessel navigating in circumstances in which pilotage is compulsory will be answerable for any loss or damage caused by the vessel or by any fault of the navigation of the vessel in the same manner as he would if pilotage were not compulsory: by ibid., s. 15 (2), the operation of this provision is deferred until the 1st January, 1918, or such earlier date as His Majesty may fix by Order in Council.

SECT. 4. General Incidence and Extent of Liability.

for the damage caused by the collision (p). In such a case the pilot is responsible for the damage done, but if he is a licensed pilot, who has given a proper bond, he is not liable for neglect or want of skill beyond the penalty of the bond and the amount payable on account of pilotage in respect of the voyage in which he was engaged when he became so liable (q).

Pilot's liability.

In order that the owner may escape liability for a collision on the ground that his vessel was in charge of a compulsory pilot he must show that a qualified pilot was in charge of the vessel, that the charge was compulsory, and that the fault which occasioned the collision was that of the pilot. When the shipowner has shown that primâ facie the cause of the collision was the fault of a qualified compulsory pilot, the burden is shifted; and the plaintiff, in order to make out his case, must show that the defendant's servants also were negligent (r).

As to proof of compulsory pilotage.

It is the pilot's duty to navigate the ship, and his duty, therefore, to decide when she shall get under way (s). It is his duty to give the orders to the helm (t), and if in tow of a tug to direct

(p) M. S. Act, 1894, s. 633. This provision is only declaratory of the common law (The Maria (1839), 1 Wm. Rob. 95; The Annapolis (1861), Lush. 295; The Halley (1868), L. R. 2 P. C. 193 (owners of vessel not liable for fault of compulsory pilot by English law, though so liable by law of foreign country); General Steam Navigation Co. v. British and Colonial Steam Navigation Co. (1869), L. R. 4 Exch. 238, Ex. Ch. (owners not liable where pilot was compulsorily employed for the district, though not at the place of collision); The Charlton (1895), 8 Asp. M. L. C. 29, C. A.; The Hector (1883), 8 P. D. 218, 222, C. A. (collision due to fault of first vessel and fault of compulsory pilot on second vessel: owners of second vessel could recover half their damages from the other owners); The Sussex, [1904] P. 236 (failure to stay by and render assistance)). As to the liability of a shipowner under the Pilotage Act, 1913 (2 & 3 Geo. 5, c. 31), s. 13, when that provision comes into force, and as to the repeal of the M. S. Act, 1894, s. 633, thereby, see p. 611, post.

(q) Pilotage Act, 1913 (2 & 3 Geo. 5, c. 31), s. 35; and see p. 605, post; compare Greenock Towing Co. v. Hardie (1901), 4 F. (Ct. of Sess.) 215, 217; Mersey Docks and Harbour Board v. Turner, The "Zeta," [1893] A. C. 468; R. v. Judge of City of London Court, [1892] 1 Q. B. 273, C. A.; The Octavia Stella (1887), 6 Asp. M. L. C. 182. As to a pilotage authority not being liable in respect of any act or default of a pilot, see Pilotage Act, 1913 (2 & 3 Geo. 5, c. 31), s. 19; p. 601, post.

(r) Clyde Navigation Co. v. Barclay (1876), 1 App. Cas. 790; The Indus (1886), 12 P. D. 46, C. A. (owners held liable where pilot's order to helm was in fact not carried out, and the machinery, which was said to be out of order, acted well before and afterwards); The "Velasquez" (1867), L. R. 1 P. C. 494 (if the crew and the pilot combine consciously to put forward a false case, the owners fail to show that the fault was exclusively that of the pilot); The Benmohr (1904), 52 W. R. 686. If neither side calls the pilot as a witness, the court may do so; see The Cardiff, [1909] P. 183.

(s) The Peerless (1860), Lush. 30. It is the pilot's duty to take the assistance of a tug in getting under way if necessary (Prowse v. European and American Steam Shipping Co., The Peerless (1860), 13 Moo. P. C. C. 484). He probably has no power to engage a tug, but he should advise the master to do so (The Julia (1861), Lush. 224, P. C.); and the pilot ought not to get under way without the tug's assistance if it is dangerous to do so (Kennedy v. Steamer Sarmatian (1880), 2 Federal Reporter, 911). But the master is responsible for the efficiency and power of the tug (Marshall v. Moran, The "Ocean Wave" (1870), L. R. 3 P. C. 205).

(t) The Schwalbe (1861), Lush. 239.

the tug's navigation (u). He has to decide whether to comply with the statutory rule of the road or not (v), to determine the rate of speed for a steam vessel (w), and in the case of a sailing vessel to decide what sail is to be set (x), to bring the ship up and to select the place of anchorage (y). He should insist on having control of the ship or decline to act as pilot at all, otherwise he may not escape his liability as a compulsory pilot (z). But the mere fact that there is a qualified compulsory pilot in charge of the ship does not exonerate the master and crew from the proper observance of their own duty. Although the direction of the pilot may be imperative upon them as to the course the vessel is to pursue, the management of the ship itself is still under the control of the master. It is his duty to secure the safe conduct of his vessel by issuing the necessary orders, and it is the duty of the crew to carry these orders into execution (a). The owners must provide the pilot with a competent crew, a competent look-out, and a well-found ship (b). Further, it is the duty of the master to observe the conduct of the pilot, and in the case of palpable incompetency, whether arising from intoxication or ignorance, to interpose his authority (c).

(u) Marshall v. Moran, The "Ocean Wave" (1870), L. R. 3 P. C. 205. But, in the absence of orders from the pilot, it is the duty of those in charge of the tug to keep clear of other ships. "It is not necessary that the pilot should be giving orders perpetually for every movement of the helm of the tug" (The Sinquasi (1880), 5 P. D. 241, 244).

(v) The Argo (1859), Sw. 462.

(w) Moss v. African Steamship Co., The "Calabar" (1868), L. R. 2 P. C. 238.

(x) Hammond v. Rogers, The Christiana (1850), 7 Moo. P. C. C. 160.

(y) Ibid.; compare The George (1845), 2 Wm. Rob. 386; Pollok v. McAlpin, The Lochlibo (1851), 7 Moo. P. C. C. 427. His duty as to anchoring includes the mode and necessary preparations (The Gipsey King (1847), 2 Wm. Rob. 537); paying out of sufficient cable (Wood v. Smith, The "City of Cambridge" (1874), L. R. 5 P. C. 451); and letting go a second anchor if necessary (The "Northampton" (1853), 1 Ecc. & Ad. 152); and if the vessel parts from her anchor, the pilot must manœuvre her into safety again (Wood v. Smith, The "City of Cambridge," supra). When docking he must give the necessary orders to control the ship's course and speed by means of check ropes and warps (The Rigborgs Minde (1883), 8 P. D. 132, C. A.). Similarly, it is his duty to set head sails if necessary to help the ship round (Marshall v. Moran, The "Ocean Wave," supra). On the other hand, the master must send down the top gallant yards on anchoring, and owners have been held liable for his neglect to do so (Hammond v. Rogers, The Christiana, supra).

(z) Greenock Towing Co. v. Hardie (1901), 4 F. (Ct. of Sess.) 215.

(a) The Diana (1862), 1 Wm. Rob. 131.

(b) The Tactician, [1907] P. 244, C. A; The Ape (1914), 30 T. L. R 286. The master must not allow improper lights to be exhibited, notwithstanding the orders of the pilot (The Ripon (1885), 10 P. D. 65). The pilot must be informed of any defect in the vessel which makes her difficult to navigate; see The Livia (1872), 1 Asp. M. L. C. 204 (steering gear); The "Iona" (1867), L. R. 1 P. C. 426 (neglect in look-out); The "Meteor" (1875), 9 I. R. Eq. 567, C. A. (inadequately manned and out of trim); although the vessel need not be in the best of trim, if in ordinary safe trim (The Argo (1859), Sw. 462). See also, as to improper equipment, Mann, Macneal & Co. v. Ellerman Lines (1904), 7 F. (Ct. of Sess.) 213.

(c) The Duke of Manchester (1846), 2 Wm. Rob. 470. But, if a collision occurs through improper interference with the pilot, the owners will be liable; occasions which justify interference are very rare; see The Peerless (1860), Lush. 30, per Dr. LUSHINGTON, at p. 32. It has been said that the

SECT. 4. General Incidence and Extent of Liability.

Vessel acting under orders of harbour or dock master.

(v.) In Case of Ship Acting under Harbour Authority etc.

780. When a collision is caused by those on board a vessel following the orders of a harbour master or dock master, given within the limits of his jurisdiction, the owner of the ship is not liable for the damage caused by the collision (d). The orders of such an official have to be executed with care, and whether the order is properly given or not, the shipowner will be liable in the event of negligence on the part of the master or crew (e). The official giving the negligent order is personally liable for the damage done. The harbour or dock authority is also liable if the harbour master or dock master giving the order gave it within the scope of his authority (a). The fact that the harbour authorities merely levy tolls which are used to maintain their property, and do not trade for profit, makes no difference to their liability (b). The master is responsible for getting under way in bad weather (Marshall v. Moran, The "Ocean Wave" (1870), L. R. 3 P. C. 205), or a thick fog (The Oakfield (1886), 11 P. D. 34). It has been suggested that he is responsible for not remonstrating with a pilot who was navigating a vessel in a very dense fog on the Thames in circumstances in which he ought to have brought up (Girolamo (1834), 3 Hag. Adm. 169); see also The Borussia (1860), Sw. 94. But in more recent cases it has been doubted whether the master should interfere in such a case, it being for the pilot alone to decide when the ship should be brought up, and the place of anchorage; see Pollok v. McAlpin, The Lochlibo (1851), 7 Moo. P. C. C. 427; The North American v. Wild Rose (1865), 14 L. T. 68; see also The George (1845), 2 Wm. Rob. 386; Wood v. Smith, The "City of Cambridge" (1874), L. R. 5 P. C. 451. In The Tactician, [1907] P. 244, owners were held liable where the master failed to press on the attention of the pilot that the lights of a vessel which he was taking for moving must in fact be stationary; compare The Elysia, [1912] P. 152 (the master should remind the pilot, if necessary, as to giving sound signals).

(d) The Bilbao (1860), Lush. 149 (master bound by statute to regulate his vessel according to the directions of the harbour master); The Mystery, [1902] P. 115 (owners held not liable for obedience of their ketch to improper orders of a lock foreman, acting under bye-laws as deputy of the dock master, whose orders those in charge of the ketch were bound by statute to obey); Reney v. Kirkcudbright Magistrates, [1892] A. C. 264 (the person in charge of a vessel is not at liberty to disobey the order of a harbour master because he has an idea that it is a mistake); Taylor v. Burger (1898), 8 Asp. M. L. C. 364, H. L. (though one must not knowingly run into danger by the order of a harbour master, the primary duty is to obey, even if the action on one's own responsibility would amount to negligence); see, further, p. 499, ante.

(e) The Excelsior (1868), L. R. 2 A. & E. 268 (vessel moved to pier by dock master, after improper refusal by master to move her; she there broke adrift in a gale and did damage, owing to insufficiency of crew, and to masts and yards being left standing contrary to dock master's orders: owners held liable); The Belgic (1875), 2 P. D. 57, n. (where a master accepted the offer of a tug from the harbour master, which he was not bound to supply, and the tug proved too weak, causing collision with another vessel, the owners were liable); The Cynthia (1876), 2 P. D. 52 (owners held liable where the damage was caused not solely by the orders of the dock master, but by carelessness in not having a rope out to a buoy).

(a) The Bearn, [1906] P. 48, C. A.; The Rhosina (1885), 10 P. D. 131, C. A. (orders not confined to those given within the water where the Commissioners have authority); "Apollo" (Owners) v. Port Talbot Co., The "Apollo," [1891] A. C. 499 (dock owners liable for vessel grounding on sill owing to wrongful representations of harbour master); Reney v. Kircudbright Magistrates, supra.

(b) Mersey Docks Trustees v. Gibbs (1866), L. R. 1 H. L. 93.

harbour authorities are entitled in certain circumstances to limit their liability (c).

(vi.) In Case of National Ship.

Liability in case of national ship.

781. When one of His Majesty's ships negligently collides with another vessel, causing damage, the person liable is the person whose negligence caused the collision; the legal responsibility attaches to the actual wrong-doer, and the injured party must seek redress not against the parties who may be indirectly involved in the transaction, but from the person who immediately caused the injury (d).

Freedom from arrest.

782. Vessels owned by the Crown or a foreign state are immune from arrest. This immunity is a consequence of the absolute independence of every sovereign authority, and of the international comity which induces every sovereign state to respect the independence and dignity of every other sovereign state; and each declines to exercise, by means of its courts, any of its territorial jurisdiction over the public property which is destined to the public use of the state, or over the property of any ambassador, though such property be within its territory, and therefore, but for the common agreement, would be subject to its jurisdiction (e).

(vii.) In Case of Collision with a Wreck.

Collision with wreck.

783. When damage is done to a vessel by collision with a wreck the liability of the original owner of the wreck for the damage depends on whether he has abandoned it and so ceased to be the owner. If he has abandoned the wreck he absolves himself from responsibility to remove it or protect other vessels from colliding with it. But so long as possession, management and control of the wreck are not abandoned or properly transferred, there remains on the owners an obligation in regard to the protection of other vessels from receiving injury from it. In order to fix the owners of a wreck with liability two things must be shown: first, that in regard to

(c) Merchant Shipping (Liability of Shipowners and Others) Act, 1900 (63 & 64 Vict. c. 32).

(d) The Mentor (1799), 1 Ch. Rob. 179 (an action does not lie against the admiral of a station for the destruction of a vessel, after hostilities have been declared to cease, by one of His Majesty's ships acting under the admiral's general orders; the action must be against the immediate wrong-doer); The Athol (1842), 1 Wm. Rob. 374 (monition refused against the Lords Commissioners of the Admiralty to answer a suit for damage to a vessel by collision with His Majesty's ship); The Volcano (1844), 2 Wm. Rob. 337 (the commander of a Queen's ship condemned in a cause of damage); The Birkenhead (1848), 3 Wm. Rob. 75 (a similar case); H.M.S. Bellerophon (1875), 3 Asp. M. L. C. 58 (no obligation on officer in charge of His Majesty's ships to give notice of her ram, where no reasonable ground for apprehending danger); H.M.S. Sans Pareil, [1900] P. 267, C. A.; S.S. Hero (Owners) v. Commissioners for Executing the Office of Lord High Admiral of the United Kingdom, [1912] A. C. 300.

(e) The Parlement Belge (1880), 5 P. D. 197, C. A. (unarmed packet belonging to foreign sovereign, and carrying mails and merchandise and passengers for hire, released from arrest for collision); The Jassy, [1906] P. 270 (putting in bail by agents of the Government under misapprehension is no waiver).

SECT. 4. General Incidence and Extent of Liability.

the particular matter in respect of which default is alleged, the control is in them, that is to say, has not been abandoned or legitimately transferred; and secondly, that they have in the discharge of their legal duty been guilty of negligence or wilful misconduct (f).

If the wreck is not abandoned either to the harbour authority or otherwise, and the owner himself employs a contractor to mark the position of the wreck and raise it, and the contractor acts negligently in marking or in raising it so as to cause damage, the owner is liable for the damage (g). A harbour authority, which has a right to charge tolls for the use of its harbour, is under an obligation to the owners of vessels using the harbour to keep it free from wrecks which might cause injury to such vessels (h).

SUB-SECT. 2.—Presumption of Fault.

(i.) For Breach of the Sea Regulations.

Presumption of fault.

Breach of Sea Regulations.

784. The provisions of the Merchant Shipping Act, 1894, imposing presumption of fault for breach of the collision regulations, are repealed, except as regards proceedings commenced before the 16th December, 1911 (i); and in no future action can there be any such presumption of fault against a vessel. Since (f) Brown v. Mallett (1848), 5 C. B. 599; White v. Crisp (1854), 10 Exch. 312; The Douglas (1882), 7 P. D. 151, C. A.; S.S. "Utopia" (Owners) v. S.S. "Primula" (Owners and Master), The "Utopia," [1893] A. C. 492, P. C.; The Snark, [1900] P. 105, C. A. As regards the duty to light wrecks, see p. 383. ante. As to the expenses of removal of wreck by local authority, see Arrow Shipping Co. v. Tyne Improvement Commissioners, The "Crystal," [1894] A. C. 508; The Sea Spray, [1907] P. 133; and as to wrecks generally, see pp. 551 et seq., 590 et seq., post.

(g) The Snark, [1900] P. 105, C. A.; compare Penny v. Wimbledon Urban Council, [1899] 2 Q. B. 72, C. A.

(h) Parnaby v. Lancaster Canal Co. (1839), 11 Ad. & El. 223, Ex. Ch.; Dormont v. Furness Rail. Co. (1883), 11 Q. B. D. 496.

(i) Maritime Conventions Act, 1911 (1 & 2 Geo. 5, c. 57), ss. 4 (1), 9 (2). Before the 16th December, 1911, when that Act came into operation, if a collision occurred between two vessels and either of them had infringed a collision regulation made under the powers conferred by the M. S. Act, 1894, that vessel was, subject to certain exceptions, deemed to be in fault under the provisions of the M. S. Act, 1894 (ibid., ss. 418, 419 (4)). Even a venial breach of a regulation was sufficient to cause a ship to be held to blame (Ocean Steamship Co., S.S. "Hebe" (Owners) v. Apcar & Co., S.S. "Arratoon Apcar" (Owners), The "Arratoon Apcar" (1889), 15 App. Cas. 37, P. C.). In exceptional cases a vessel could escape being deemed in fault for not following a regulation, namely, if it was shown that a departure from the regulation was necessary owing to the circumstances of the case (M. S. Act, 1894, s. 419 (4)), or to avoid immediate danger (Sea Regulations, 1910, art. 27), or that the breach, if any, of the regulation could not by any possibility have contributed to the collision (The "Fanny M. Carvill" (Owners) v. The "Peru" (Owners), The "Fanny M. Carvill" (1875), 13 App. Cas. 455, n., P. C.; The Magnet (1875), L. R. 4 A. & E. 417; The Englishman (1877), 3 P. D. 18; China Merchants' Steam Navigation Co. v. Bignold, The "Hochung," The "Lapwing" (1882), 7 App. Cas. 512, P. C.; The "Glamorganshire" (1888), 13 App. Cas. 454, P. C.; Eastern Steamship Co. v. Smith, The "Duke of Buccleuch," [1891] A. C. 310; The Argo (1900), 9 Asp. M. L. C. 74, C. A.). Proof that the breach did not in fact presumption of fault for infringement of a collison regulation has been repealed, the legal consequences of a breach of any of the Sea Regulations, 1910, are the same as they were before 1851, when special statutory consequences were first imposed for such disobedience (k). These legal consequences are the same also as those which have hitherto generally (l) attached to a breach of a local collision regulation. Thus the principles of law with regard to breaches of regulations which were established in decisions upon general or local regulations before 1851, and in most cases upon local regulations made since then, will apply in future to a breach not only of local regulations, but of the Sea Regulations, 1910 (m).

(ii.) For Failure to Stay by and Render Assistance.

Failure to stay by.

785. In every case of collision between two vessels there is a special duty on the master or person in charge of each vessel to stay by the other vessel and render assistance; but in case of breach of this duty there is no longer any such presumption of fault as formerly existed (n).

SUB-SECT. 3.—Inevitable Accident.

Inevitable accident.

786. A collision is said to be the result of an inevitable accident if it could not have been prevented by the exercise of reasonable care and ordinary skill (o).

Burden of proof.

The burden of proof is on those who set up this defence. The cause of the collision may be an inevitable accident, but unless defendants who have primâ facie caused it can prove this, they are contribute to the collision was not sufficient to absolve a vessel from blame (The "Fanny M. Carvill" (Owners) v. The "Peru" (Owners), The "Fanny M. Carvill" (1875), 13 App. Cas. 455, n., P. C.).

(k) The Steam Navigation Act, 1851 (14 & 15 Vict. c. 79), s. 28 (since repealed). This Act came into force on the 31st December, 1851 (ibid., s. 51).

(l) In some few places, e.g., the Mersey, statutory presumption of fault attached until recently even to a breach of the local regulations; see the Mersey Channels Act, 1897 (60 & 61 Vict. c. 21). Such presumption has disappeared, as it depended on the M. S. Act, 1894, s. 419 (4), now repealed as above stated. As to presumption of fault in the Solent, see note (o), p. 481, ante.

(m) But decisions in cases arising between 1851 and 1911, where a statutory presumption of fault has applied, may also be material, e.g., Tuff v. Warman (1857), 2 C. B. (N. S.) 740.

(n) See note (c), p. 371, ante. In any action begun before the 16th December, 1911, if such a person failed to comply with this duty, and no reasonable cause for such failure was shown, the collision was, in the absence of proof to the contrary, to be deemed to have been caused by his wrongful act, neglect or default (M. S. Act, 1894, s. 422 (2); see The Tryst, [1909] P. 333). But in actions begun on or since the 16th December, 1911, no such presumption exists (Maritime Conventions Act, 1911 (1 & 2 Geo. 5, c. 57), s. 4 (2), which came into force on the 16th December, 1911, and repealed the M. S. Act, 1894, s. 422 (2)).

(o) The Virgil (1843), 2 Wm. Rob. 201, 205; The "Marpesia" (1872), L. R. 4 P. C. 212, 220; The Europa (1850), 14 Jur. 627; The Lochlibo (1850), 3 Wm. Rob. 310, 318; The Schwan, The Albano, [1892] P. 419, C. A.; The Thomas Powell v. The Cuba (1866), 14 L. T. 603 (extraordinary skill or extraordinary diligence not expected, but that degree of skill and that degree of diligence which is generally found in persons who discharge their duty).

SECT. 4. General Incidence and Extent of Liability.

liable (p). To prove it they must either show what the cause was, and that the result was not avoidable by reasonable care and skill, or they must show all the causes which could have produced the effect, and that with regard to every one of these causes the result could not have been similarly avoided (q). It is no excuse for a master that he could not prevent the accident when it occurred, if he neglected to use measures of precaution which would have rendered the accident less probable (r). This defence may arise in cases of storm (s), or other extraordinary weather (t) or unusual local circumstances (a), or where a vessel goes ashore (b) or is disabled by prior collision (c), or if a sailing vessel is disabled by loss of her gear (d), or a steamer by failure of her steering gear or machinery (e), or otherwise.

SUB-SECT. 4.—Measure of Damages.

General principles.

787. The amount of reparation due in actions of damage by collision has been differently measured by the maritime law in

(p) The Annot Lyle (1886), 11 P. D. 114, C. A.

(q) The Merchant Prince, [1892] P. 179, C. A., per FRY, L.J., at p. 189; The Calderon (1913), Times, 26th March.

(r) The Virgil (1843), 2 Wm. Rob. 201; The "Marpesia" (1872), L. R. 4 P. C. 212; The Pladda (1876), 2 P. D. 34, 38.

(s) The Pladda, supra, at p. 34 (proper precautions not taken in a storm; cables unchained from anchors, and no look-out on deck); The Woodford, Shipping Gazette (1905), 13th March, C. A. (the steamship was found not to have had sufficient steerage way; also reliance was placed on the fact that the alleged storm was not spoken to by anybody connected with the locality).

(t) The Nador, [1909] P. 300 (inevitable accident; vessel at anchor in dense fog, and her light not seen, and bell not heard by steamship, in time to avoid her); The "Marpesia," supra (sailing vessels in fog; inevitable accident); compare The Rosetta (1888), 6 Asp. M. L. C. 310, as to inability to hear sound in fog not necessarily being negligence. See also The Shannon (1842), 1 Wm. Rob. 463 (collision in Sea Reach due to the darkness of the night).

(a) The Boucau, [1909] P. 163 (accident caused by combination of less water than usual, strong breeze, and freshet, held inevitable); The Polynésien, [1910] P. 28 (abnormal current alleged, but not proved); The "City of Peking" (1888), 14 App. Cas. 40, P. C. (exceptional current ought to have been anticipated; port anchor not ready, and delay with starboard anchor); The Secret (1872), 1 Asp. M. L. C. 318 (harbour entrance found obstructed; proper precautions as regards shortening sail, anchor etc. not taken).

(b) The Thornley (1843), 7 Jur. 659 (vessel ashore could not let go anchor).

(c) The Aimo, The Amelia (1873), 2 Asp. M. L. C. 96, P. C. (inevitable accident; vessel with duty to keep out of the way disabled from doing so by prior collision); compare The Kjobenhavn (1874), 2 Asp. M. L. C. 213, P. C.

(d) The Calcutta (1869), 21 L. T. 768, P. C. (ship partly disabled by carrying away her fore tack, held not to have done all she should).

(e) The Virgo (1876), 3 Asp. M. L. C. 285 (inevitable accident; latent defect in steam steering gear); The European (1885), 10 P. D. 99 (use in river Thames of patent steam steering gear, which had failed a few days before, held evidence of negligence); The Indus (1886), 12 P. D. 46, C. A. (machinery alleged to be out of order, but not so proved, as it worked well before and after); Doward v. Lindsay, The "William Lindsay" (1873), L. R. 5 P. C. 338 (inevitable accident; mooring buoy broke in a storm; anchor let go, but windlass jammed by accident); The Peerless (1860), Lush. 30 (chain catching on windlass held to be a pure accident).

different countries, and even in the same country, for instance our own, at different periods. The principle in this country, subject to varying rules as to the limitation of liability of shipowners, and other exceptions (f), has been to exact full compensation (g). The injured party is entitled to be put, as far as practicable, into the same condition as if the injury had not been suffered. Restitutio in integrum is the leading maxim. He is to have the full value of the property lost (h). But the wrong-doer is only liable for such damages as flow directly and in the usual course of things from the wrongful act (i). The plaintiff is bound to prove that he has sustained the loss which he alleges, and he must supply the means for ascertaining its amount (k).

Nature of indemnity.

788. If the settlement of the indemnification is attended with any difficulty, the party in fault must, in certain circumstances, bear the inconvenience. Incidentally the injured party may derive a greater benefit than mere indemnification, where this arises from the impossibility of otherwise effecting such indemnification without exposing him to some loss or burden; for instance, in case of repairs and supply of new articles, the wrong-doer, unlike the insurer, is not entitled to a deduction of one-third new for old (l).

Damages against foreign state or public authority.

789. General damages are recoverable for loss of use of a vessel, although the owners are a foreign state, or a public authority which is not authorised to use it for profit like a private individual (m).

(f) For instance, the former rule that where two ships were each to blame for the collision the innocent owner of cargo on either could recover half his damages against the other (S.S. Tongariro (Owners of Cargo) v. S.S. Drumlanrig (Owners), The Drumlanrig, [1911] A. C. 16); and the present rule that he can recover from the other owner in proportion to the fault of that owner (Maritime Conventions Act, 1911 (1 & 2 Geo. 5, c. 57), s. 1).

(g) Dundee (1823), 1 Hag. Adm. 109, 120; H.M.S. London (1913), 30 T. L. R. 196.

(h) The Clarence (1850), 3 Wm. Rob. 283, 285; The Clyde (1856), Sw. 23, 24.

(i) The Argentino (1888), 13 P. D. 191, 201, C. A; compare The Gertor (1894), 7 Asp. M. L. C. 472; The Anglo-Algerian Steamship Co., Ltd. v. Houlder Line, Ltd., [1908] 1 K. B. 659. If the defendants' breach of contract or duty is the primary and substantial cause of the damage suffered, the defendants will be responsible for the whole loss though it may have been increased by the wrongful act of a third person, and although that wrongful conduct may have contributed to the loss (De La Bere v. Pearson, Ltd., [1907] 1 K. B. 483; H.M.S. London, supra (damage increased by delay due to strikes)).

(k) The Clarence, supra.

(l) The Gazelle (1844), 2 Wm. Rob. 279, 281; The Egyptian (1864), 2 Mar. L. C. 56, 58; compare title INSURANCE, Vol. XVII., pp. 440 et seq.

(m) The Astrakhan, [1910] P. 172; No. 7 Steam Sand Pump Dredger (Owners) v. S.S. "Greta Holme" (Owners), The "Greta Holme," [1897] A. C. 596; S.S. "Mediana" (Owners) v. Lightship "Comet" (Owners, Master and Crew), The "Mediana," [1900] A. C. 113; Mersey Docks and Harbour Board v. S.S. Marpessa (Owners), [1907] A. C. 241; but compare The Bodlewell, [1907] P. 286 (vessel worked at a loss for the time; damages not allowed, except expenses).

SECT. 4. General Incidence and Extent of Liability.

Burden of proof.

790. When the plaintiff has made a primâ facie case that the damage claimed is occasioned by the collision, the burden of proof then shifts on to the defendant to show that the damage was not so occasioned, for instance by showing that it is to be attributed to another or a concurrent cause for which the plaintiff is responsible. And where the misconduct of the defendant has occasioned the collision, the defendant is bound to give conclusive proof that the damage is not to be attributed to his own default (n).

Duty of injured party to mitigate damage.

791. If the injured party can reasonably mitigate the damage done by the collision, he is bound ordinarily to do so (o).

Damages in case of total loss.

792. If a vessel is totally lost by the collision, the measure of damages varies according to whether she was earning or was about to earn freight or not. If she had no prospect of freight, the shipowner is entitled to the market value of the vessel at the time she was sunk (p), and interest on this until payment (q). If the vessel was earning freight, the owner is entitled to the probable value of the ship at the end of her voyage, and of the freight which she would have earned, subject to proper allowances (r). When a vessel is lost while proceeding in ballast to a loading port under charter, the damages are measured in the same way (s).

How value ascertained.

793. In the absence of a market value for a vessel, the test is what the vessel was fairly worth to her owners from a business point of view (t). The opinion of competent persons, who knew the vessel, is the best evidence of her value. The elements to consider in such a valuation are the original cost of the vessel, her age, her condition, the profits she earned (a), and the market price of similar vessels.

Loss after collision.

794. When a vessel is seriously damaged by collison due to negligent navigation of the defendant's vessel and is subsequently lost on the voyage, there is a presumption against the defendant that she was lost in consequence of the collision (b). The cost of (n) The Egyptian (1864), 2 Mar. L. C. 56, 58.

(o) The Mediana, [1899] P. 127, 137, C. A.
(p) The Clyde (1856), Sw. 23.
(q) The Northumbria (1869), L. R. 3 A. & E. 6, 12; The Kong Magnus, [1891] P. 223. Further claims have been disallowed (The Columbus (1849), 3 Wm. Rob. 158).
(r) The Northumbria, supra.
(s) The Kate, [1899] P. 165; The Racine, [1906] P. 273, C. A.
(t) The Harmonides, [1903] P. 1.
(a) The Iron-Master (1859), Sw. 441.
(b) The Mellona (1847), 3 Wm. Rob. 7; The Pensher (1857), Sw. 211 (reasonable abandonment); The "Blenheim" (1854), 1 Ecc. & Ad. 285 (a case of unreasonable abandonment); The Thuringia (1872), 1 Asp. M. L. C. 283; The Hansa (1887), 6 Asp. M. L. C. 268; The Linda (1857), Sw. 306 (salvage after improper abandonment); The Flying Fish (1865), Brown. & Lush. 436, P. C. (the partial damage became a total loss owing to plaintiffs' negligence; but the defendants were held liable for the partial damage); The City of Lincoln (1889), 15 P. D. 15, C. A. (stranding resulting from collision); The George and Richard (1871), L. R. 3 A. & E. 466 (driving ashore and loss of life due to collision); The Bruxellesville, [1908] P. 312 (subsequent loss not due to collision).

raising a vessel sunk in a harbour or river is recoverable as damages in a collision action if the authority has the power to charge the owners with the cost and if the charges are reasonable (c). In the case of a constructive total loss, if the plaintiff recovers the value of his vessel, the defendant is entitled to the wreck (d).

Vessel damaged but not lost.

795. When the ship is damaged but not lost, the damages recoverable generally consist of salvage or towage, repairs (including dock dues), crew's wages and other expenses of the vessel during repair, and loss of profit.

Salvage expenses incurred by reason of a collision are recoverable from the wrong-doer (e); so also is towage (f).

Cost of repairs.

796. The owner is entitled to a complete repair of all the damage done, though the result may be to render the vessel worth more than she was before the collision (g). The cost of the repairs recoverable is the cost at the nearest convenient port at which the repairs could have been executed (h). He is entitled to recover the cost of the repairs even though he does not actually repair the vessel (i). But he is not entitled to the renewal of rotten parts discovered by the opening up for collision repairs, though such parts might otherwise have lasted for years (j).

Dry docking.

797. Dues paid for dry-docking a vessel for collision repairs are recoverable. Even if her owners take the opportunity to do other work on the vessel when the collision repairs are being done, the whole of the dock dues are recoverable from the wrong-doer, if the amount paid for the hire of the dock is not increased by the owners' work (k). But if there are two collisions and the vessel must have been dry-docked for the injury caused by each, then each wrong-doer will only be liable for a proportion of the dock dues (l).

Detention of ship.

798. The shipowner is also entitled to the expenses of detention of his vessel, and the amount of profit lost (m). Both of these heads of damages depend upon time; and the shipowner is only entitled to (c) The Wallsend, [1907] P. 302; The Harrington (1888), 13 P. D. 48; The Emerald, The Greta Holme, [1896] P. 192, C. A.

(d) The Columbus (1849), 3 Wm. Rob. 158. As to constructive total loss, see also The Empress Eugénie (1860), Lush. 138.

(e) The Pensher (1857), Sw. 211; The Williamina (1878), 3 P. D. 97, 99. And the plaintiff's costs in the action against his vessel by the salvors are usually recoverable (The Legatus (1856), Sw. 168; but see The British Commerce (1884), 9 P. D. 128 (commission on bail not recoverable)).

(f) H.M.S. Inflexible (1857), Sw. 200.

(g) The Pactolus (1856), Sw. 173; The Bernina (1886), 6 Asp. M. L. C. 65.

(h) Beucker v. Aberdeen Steam Trawling and Fishing Co., Ltd., [1910] S. C. 655; The Admiralty v. Aberdeen Steam Trawling and Fishing Co., Ltd., [1910] S. C. 553.

(i) The Endeavour (1890), 6 Asp. M. L. C. 511.

(j) The Princess (1885), 5 Asp. M. L. C. 451.

(k) The Acanthus, [1902] P. 17; Ruabon Steamship Co. v. London Assurance, [1900] A. C. 6; compare The Alfred (1850), 3 Wm. Rob. 232, 239.

(l) The Haversham Grange, [1905] P. 307, C. A.; compare Marine Insurance Co. v. China Transpacific Steamship Co. (1886), 11 App. Cas. 573.

(m) H.M.S. Inflexible, supra.

SECT. 4. General Incidence and Extent of Liability.

such period of time as is shown to have been necessary allowing for reasonable despatch (n).

Expenses of detention.

799. The burden of proving that there has been any loss by detention rests on the plaintiff. Two things are necessary, loss and reasonable proof of the amount (o). The ordinary expenses of a vessel in port are allowed, including master's and crew's wages and maintenance as far as necessary, coals and stores consumed, and other matters: the insurance premium, if the vessel is long in port, is usually subject to a deduction.

Loss of profits.

800. As regards the profits lost by detention, a ship is a thing by the use of which money may be ordinarily earned, and the question is as to what use the shipowner would, but for the collision, have had of his ship, and what profits would have been earned by such use, excluding elements of uncertain or speculative or special character. Where the ship is under a charter which is lost in consequence of the collision, the charterparty is admissible evidence to prove that the ship has been thrown out of employment. But a charter is not essential: other evidence may equally establish the loss of employment. In considering the profits which would have been earned by the employment, where there is a charterparty for the voyage, the difficulty is only to calculate how the voyage if continued would have worked out. Where there is no charterparty but a reasonable certainty of employment, the matter is more at large (p). The usual evidence given is as to the two or three previous voyages of the vessel (q), and sometimes as to a subsequent voyage. A fishing vessel has been allowed damages for loss due to interruption of fishing, as proved by the catches made by other vessels (r); and a whaling vessel which loses her season is as much entitled to recover for her loss of employment as a vessel carrying cargo (s), but loss of fishing in general has been held to be too problematical (t).

Use of another vessel.

801. Where the shipowner substitutes another vessel for the vessel detained he is entitled to be paid for reasonable losses thus incurred, but no compensation will be due for time during which the substituted vessel would have been unemployed (u). Damages may also be recovered for loss of future earnings, where a vessel was already under a profitable charter, on which she was to proceed after completion of her voyage (x). In all cases of loss of (n) The City of Buenos Ayres (1871), 1 Asp. M. L. C. 169; compare The Haversham Grange, [1905] P. 307, C. A. (damage caused by second collision did not cause extra detention, and defendants not liable for that).

(o) The Clarence (1850), 3 Wm. Rob. 283, 286.

(p) The Argentino (1888), 13 P. D. 191, 201, 202, 203, C. A.

(q) Compare The Hebe (1847), 2 Wm. Rob. 530, 536.

(r) The Risoluto (1883), 8 P. D. 109.

(s) The Argentino, supra, at p. 202. So also in case of loss of salvage (Betsy Caines (1826), 2 Hag. Adm. 28).

(t) The Anselma de Larrinaga (1913), 29 T. L. R. 587.

(u) The "City of Peking" (1890), 15 App. Cas. 438, P. C.; The Black Prince (1862), Lush. 568. As to substituted expenses, see The Minnetonka, [1905] P. 206, C. A.; The Tugela (1913), 30 T. L. R. 101 (addition beyond period of hire of substituted vessel allowed).

(x) S.S. "Gracie" (Owners) v. S.S. "Argentino" (Owners), The "Argentino" (1889), 14 App. Cas. 519; The Racine, [1906] P. 273, C. A.; The Empress of Britain (1913), 29 T. L. R. 423.

employment proper deductions must be made from the gross freight which would have been earned, for the expenses which would have been incurred in earning it (a), and the saving of wear and tear to the vessel (b).

Other expenses.

802. It has been held that the shipowner cannot recover any general average contribution due from ship to cargo, where such loss arises from the relation of ship and cargo, and not directly from the collision (c). He can recover expenses which he has had to pay for repatriation of seamen, if the law of the flag puts that burden upon him (d), and also what he has been compelled to pay for the wreck of his vessel being removed (e), and any special expenses which he has properly incurred to mitigate his loss (f).

Cargo owners' loss.

803. Cargo owners who have lost their goods carried in one vessel in consequence of a collision due to the negligent navigation of another vessel are, as a rule (g), entitled to recover from the owners of the other vessel the value of the goods at the place and time and in the state at and in which they ought to have been delivered to the owner. Such value is the market price of the goods, if there is a market there. If not, such value has to be calculated, taking into account among other matters the cost price, the expenses of transit, and the importer's profit (h). As a rule, losses arising from delay of the goods, and due to a fall in the market price, cannot be calculated with such a reasonable degree of certainty as to make them recoverable; but wherever circumstances admit of calculations as to the time of arrival and the probable fluctuations of the market being made with the same degree of reasonable certainty in the case of sea transit as in land transit, damages for loss of market due to late delivery are recoverable (i).

Interest.

804. In the case both of shipowner and cargo owner, interest from the date of collision until payment is allowed on all claims proved, as being a part of the damages (k).

(a) The Gazelle (1844), 2 Wm. Rob. 279, 284.

(b) The Star of India (1876), 1 P. D. 466, 472.

(c) The Marpessa, [1891] P. 403; but see The Minnetonka, [1905] P. 206, 215, C. A.

(d) The Craftsman, [1906] P. 153; compare M. S. Act, 1906 (6 Edw. 7, c. 48), s. 42.

(e) The Wallsend, [1907] P. 302.

(f) Such as extra costs to save delay (The Normandy (1900), 16 T. L. R. 567), and other substituted expenses (The Minnetonka, supra), but not pensions paid by way of gratuity for which he is not legally liable (The Amerika (1913), 30 T. L. R. 218).

(g) Except, for instance, where the vessel on which their cargo was carried is partly to blame for the collision, in which case they could until recently only recover half damages from the other vessel (S.S. Tongariro (Owners of Cargo) v. S.S. Drumlanrig (Owners), The Drumlanrig, [1911] A. C. 16), and can now apparently recover in proportion to the fault of that vessel (Maritime Conventions Act, 1911 (1 & 2 Geo. 5, c. 57), s. 1).

(h) The Notting Hill (1884), 9 P. D. 105, 110, C. A.; compare Rodocanachi v. Milburn (1886), 18 Q. B. D. 67, C. A.; The Activ (1901), 17 T. L. R. 351 (the sound value at port of destination, after deducting proceeds of forced sale).

(i) Dunn v. Bucknall Brothers, Dunn v. Donald Currie & Co., [1902] 2 K. B. 614, 622, 623, C. A.; The Parana (1877), 2 P. D. 118, C. A.

(k) The Crathie, [1897] P. 178. See, further, on the whole subject, Roscoe, Measure of Damages in Actions of Maritime Collisions.

SECT. 5.
Rights and Remedies of Injured Parties.

SECT. 5.—Rights and Remedies of Injured Parties.

SUB-SECT. 1.—Persons Entitled to Recover.

(i.) Owners of Injured Ship.

Shipowner.

805. The beneficial or registered owners of the injured ship may sue for damage done to it (l); and so also may the bailees of a ship (m). The owners of the injured ship may also sue for damage done to the cargo, as they are bailees of it (n). If there is any doubt as to who is entitled to receive the damages, they should be paid into the Admiralty Registry, and the parties rightly claiming them can then establish their right (o). The amount of damages which may be recovered by the owners of the injured ship depends on the degree of fault which attaches to the vessel (p); and it is also limited by the right of shipowners and dock owners to limit their liability under the provisions of the Merchant Shipping Acts (q).

(ii.) Owners of Cargo.

(a) Rights against the Carrying Vessel for Damage by Collision.

Liability of owner of carrying ship.

806. The owners of cargo are entitled to sue the owners of the ship carrying it for breach of contract to carry their cargo safely, or for damage to it caused by negligence. Such an action is ordinarily in personam and not in rem (r), but if the owner of the ship is not domiciled in England or Wales, and damage has been done to any goods carried into England or Wales, the cargo owner has a right to proceed in rem (s). When the damage done to the cargo is not more than £300, the claim can be brought in a county court having admiralty jurisdiction, where it may be enforced by an action against the carrying ship, even though the shipowner is domiciled in England or Wales (t).

If the carrying vessel was only partly in fault for the damage by collision, it has not yet been decided whether the cargo owner is entitled to recover his damages in full against the owner of the vessel, but any such right will be qualified by the contract of carriage (a).

(b) Rights against the Other Vessel for Damage by Collision.

Liability of owner of offending ship.

807. The owners of cargo on a ship have had from ancient times a right to an action of damage by collision against the owner

(l) The Ilos (1856), Sw. 100. As to part owners, see Sedgworth v. Overend (1797), 7 Term Rep. 279; and R. S. C., Ord. 16, r. 11. As to jurisdiction and procedure, see title ADMIRALTY, Vol. I., pp. 60 et seq. As to sub-charterers claiming loss of difference of freight, see The Okehampton, [1913] P. 173.

(m) The Minna (1868), L. R. 2 A. & E. 97.

(n) The Winkfield, [1902] P. 42, C. A.

(o) The Ilos, supra; The Minna, supra.

(p) Maritime Conventions Act, 1911 (1 & 2 Geo. 5, c. 57), s. 1 (1).

(q) As to limitation of liability, see pp. 612 et seq., post.

(r) Compare The Victoria (1887), 12 P. D. 105.

(s) Admiralty Court Act, 1861 (24 & 25 Vict. c. 10), ss. 6, 35; see The Cap Blanco, [1913] P. 130.

(t) County Courts Admiralty Jurisdiction Act, 1868 (31 & 32 Vict. c. 71), s. 3; County Courts Admiralty Jurisdiction Amendment Act, 1869 (32 & 33 Vict. c. 51), ss. 2 (1), (2), 3; The Alina (1880), 5 Ex. D. 227; The Rona (1882), 7 P. D. 247; see title ADMIRALTY, Vol. I., pp. 126 et seq.

(a) See p. 522, ante.

of another vessel which has come into collision with her. They can proceed in rem or in personam, and can recover full damages if the other vessel was solely in fault (b).

If the other vessel was only partly in fault for the damage by collision, it has not yet been decided whether they can recover damages in full from the owner of the other vessel (c).

(iii.) Crews on Vessels.

Master and crew.

808. The master and crew of a vessel, who lose their effects by reason of a collision due to the negligence of some of them, cannot recover the value from the owners of their own vessel, because of the doctrine of common employment (d). If the collision is due to the fault of both vessels, they can apparently, although they are wrong-doers, just like their own wrong-doing owner, recover from the owner of the other vessel, if his vessel was more in fault than their own; and the amount of damages which they can recover will, apparently, depend on the amount by which the proportion of the other vessel's fault exceeds the proportion of their own vessel's fault (e). If the other vessel is alone to blame, they can recover the full value even though both colliding ships belong to the same owners (f). If their vessel was not to blame, but the collision is the fault of two or more other vessels, the Maritime Conventions Act applies, and it has yet to be decided whether they are entitled to recover from the owners of each of the other vessels in full, or only in proportion to the degree in which each vessel was in fault (g).

(iv.) Personal Sufferers and their Representatives.

Personal injuries to passengers.

809. Passengers can, by the common law, sue the owners of the vessel carrying them for personal injuries arising from a collision caused by negligence of those for whom the owners were responsible; and since 1846, under Lord Campbell's Act (h), the personal representatives of an innocent person on board a vessel, whose death was caused by a collision due to the fault of another vessel, may sue the owner of the other vessel in personam to recover damages (i). But in both cases the rights of action may depend on the terms of

(b) The Milan (1861), Lush. 388, 397.

(c) See p. 522, ante.

(d) Priestley v. Fowler (1837), 3 M. & W. 1; Hedley v. Pinkney & Sons Steamship Co., [1894] A. C. 222.

(e) Maritime Conventions Act, 1911 (1 & 2 Geo. 5, c. 57), s. 1 (1), "or to any property on board."

(f) The Petrel, [1893] P. 320.

(g) Maritime Conventions Act, 1911 (1 & 2 Geo. 5, c. 57), s. 1 (1); see pp. 517, 518, ante.

(h) Fatal Accidents Act, 1846 (9 & 10 Vict. c. 93). Under this Act an action could be brought on behalf of an unborn child; see The George and Richard (1871), L. R. 3 A. & E. 466.

(i) Even if the vessel which carried him was also in fault; see Mills v. Armstrong, The "Bernina" (1888), 13 App. Cas. 1. And since the Maritime Conventions Act, 1911 (1 & 2 Geo. 5, c. 57), s. 5, the action can be brought in rem, though this was not so before; see Seaward v. "Vera Cruz" (1884), 10 App. Cas. 59.

SECT. 5. Rights and Remedies of Injured Parties.

their contract ticket (j). The difficulty in the way of the crew (k), or crew's personal representatives (l), enforcing similar rights was usually the defence of common employment.

Admiralty Court Act, 1861.

810. Under the Admiralty Court Act, 1861 (m), and possibly by the old maritime law, a person who suffered personal injuries by a collision of the vessel on which he was with another vessel, the other vessel being in fault and being the noxious instrument of the injury, was held entitled to recover damages by action in rem against the other vessel (n), and he could have recovered damages by action in personam against her owners; but injury caused by shock at the sight of another vessel coming into collision with the vessel carrying him was not "damage done by a ship," and could not be the subject of an action in rem (o).

Workmen's Compensation Act, 1906.

811. Under the Workmen's Compensation Act, 1906 (p), a master or seaman (q) of a ship in collision who is injured by accident arising out of and in the course of his employment, and his dependants, where death results from the injury (r), have a right to compensation from his employer, and can in certain circumstances detain a foreign ship until security is given for such compensation (s).

Shipowners' Negligence (Remedies) Act, 1905.

812. Under the Shipowners' Negligence (Remedies) Act, 1905 (t), the right to detain a foreign ship until security was given was further extended to cases of personal injuries, including fatal injuries, caused by the ship or sustained on, in, or about the ship in any port or harbour in the United Kingdom, by the neglect or default of the shipowner or his employees or any defect in the ship.

(j) See pp. 328, 337, ante.

(k) Priestley v. Fowler (1837), 3 M. & W. 1.

(l) Hedley v. Pinkney & Sons Steamship Co., [1894] A. C. 222.

(m) 24 & 25 Vict. c. 10, ss. 7, 35.

(n) The "Beta" (1869), L. R. 2 P. C. 447 (mate of vessel personally injured by collision); compare The Sylph (1867), L. R. 2 A. & E. 24 (diver injured by paddle wheel of steamer); but The "Beta," supra, was dissented from in Smith v. Brown (1871), L. R. 6 Q. B. 729. Before 1911 personal injuries by falling through a hatchway only covered by a tarpaulin were not "damage done by a ship" within the Admiralty Court Act, 1861 (24 & 25 Vict. c. 10), s. 7 (The Theta, [1894] P. 280); but it seems that under the Maritime Conventions Act, 1911 (1 & 2 Geo. 5, c. 57), s. 5, personal injuries of this kind may be the subject of an action in rem; see p. 517, ante.

(o) The Rigel, [1912] P. 99.

(p) 6 Edw. 7, c. 58.

(q) Ibid., ss. 7, 13; and see title MASTER AND SERVANT, Vol. XX., pp. 157 et seq.; Parker v. Ship Black Rock (Owners) (1914), 30 T. L. R. 271, C. A. A workman on the ship, who is not a seaman, may have a right in case of collision to recover damages from his employer under the Employers' Liability Act, 1880 (43 & 44 Vict. c. 42); see Macbeth & Co v. Chislett, [1910] A. C. 220.

(r) Workmen's Compensation Act, 1906 (6 Edw. 7, c. 58), Sched. I.

(s) Ibid., s. 11. As to the employer's right of indemnity under ibid., s. 6, from the person legally liable for the injury, see The Annie, [1909] P. 176; and Cory & Sons, Ltd. v. France, Fenwick & Co., Ltd., [1911] 1 K. B. 114, C. A.

(t) 5 Edw. 7, c. 10, s. 1.

SECT. 5. Rights and Remedies of Injured Persons.

813. By the Maritime Conventions Act, 1911 (a), the Admiralty Court's statutory jurisdiction in respect of damage (b), and the limited county court admiralty jurisdiction in respect of damage (c), include damages for loss of life or personal injuries, and accordingly proceedings in respect thereof may be brought in rem or in personam.

Maritime Conventions Act, 1911.

SUB-SECT. 2.—Rights in Rem.

(i.) Maritime Lien.

814. A maritime lien springs into existence at once against a ship and her freight for damage by collision done by that ship caused by negligence of the servants either of the owners or of those in whom the control of the ship is, with the consent of the owners, vested, within the scope of their employment (d), and may be carried into effect, when opportunity offers, by a legal proceeding known as an action in rem (e).

When maritime lien arises.

The object is the satisfaction of the claim of the injured party out of the property seized; and if the owners do not appear the action only enforces the lien on the res, but if they do appear the action is a means of enforcing against them the complete claim of the plaintiffs (f).

Object of lien.

The proceeding in rem must be commenced within two years from the date when the damage or loss or injury was caused (g).

The maritime lien against the freight may be enforced by arrest of the cargo to make the owners pay the amount into court (h).

To what lien attaches.

The maritime lien applies against any vessel doing damage on the high seas (i); and whether the collision was on the high seas or in the body of a county (k).

(a) 1 & 2 Geo. 5, c. 57, s. 5.

(b) See Admiralty Court Act, 1840 (3 & 4 Vict. c. 65), s. 6 (jurisdiction to decide all claims or demands in the nature of damage received by any ship); Admiralty Court Act, 1861 (24 & 25 Vict. c. 10), s. 7 (jurisdiction over any claim for damage done by any ship).

(c) See County Courts Admiralty Jurisdiction Act, 1868 (31 & 32 Vict. c. 71), s. 3 (jurisdiction as to any claim for damage by collision); County Courts Admiralty Jurisdiction Amendment Act, 1869 (32 & 33 Vict. c. 51), s. 4 (jurisdiction extended to all claims for damage to ships, whether by collision or otherwise).

(d) See p. 618, post.

(e) As to the form of writ, see title ADMIRALTY, Vol. I., p. 80; and, as to county courts having admiralty jurisdiction, see ibid., pp. 127 et seq.

(f) The Dictator, [1892] P. 304, 313, 320; The Gemma, [1899] P. 285, C. A.

(g) Maritime Conventions Act, 1911 (1 & 2 Geo. 5, c. 57), s. 8. Before this Act statutes limiting the time for actions were held not to apply to an action on a maritime lien for damage; compare The Burns, [1907] P. 137, C. A.; The Longford (1889), 14 P. D. 34, C. A.; title ADMIRALTY, Vol. I., p. 72. But the right of action might be then, and possibly may be still, lost for want of reasonable diligence; compare The Kong Magnus, [1891] P. 223; The Charles Amelia (1868), L. R. 2 A. & E. 330; The Europa (1863), Brown. & Lush, 89, P. C.

(h) The Flora (1866), L. R. 1 A. & E. 45; The Roecliff (1869), L. R. 2 A. & E. 363, 364; and, as to freight, compare The Orpheus (1871), L. R. 3 A. & E. 308; The Leo (1862), Lush. 444; The Victor (1860), Lush. 72.

(i) The Sarah (1862), Lush. 549 (vessel without masts or sails and usually propelled by a pole).

(k) The Veritas, [1901] P. 304, 311.

SECT. 5. Rights and Remedies of Injured Persons.

(ii.) Statutory Powers of Arrest.

Owners of goods.

815. A statutory jurisdiction is given to the Admiralty Court to arrest a ship in certain circumstances for damage done to cargo (l); and a somewhat similar jurisdiction is given to county courts having admiralty jurisdiction in case of damage to cargo, or tort in respect of goods carried, where the claim is under £300 (m); and such actions may arise out of a collision (n).

Injury by foreign ship.

816. Whenever any injury has in any part of the world been caused to any property of His Majesty's subjects by any foreign ship, for instance by collision (o), if the ship is found in a port or river of the United Kingdom or within three miles of the coast, a judge of any court of record may, on certain evidence being given, order her to be detained until security has been given to abide the event of the action, or otherwise (p).

SUB-SECT. 3.—Rights in Personam.

Rights in personam.

817. In any case of collision the jurisdiction conferred by the Admiralty Court Act, 1861 (q), on the High Court of Admiralty, and now vested in the Admiralty Division, over any claim for damage done by any ship, may be exercised in personam (r).

SECT. 6.—Collision as Affecting Salvage.

Assistance after collision.

818. The owners, master and crew of a vessel which is to blame, or partly to blame, for a collision with another, cannot recover salvage for assistance rendered to her after the collision, on the principle that no man shall profit by his own wrong (s). When two vessels have been in collision and are in danger from one another, and one of them is towed away from the other, salvage may be payable by both (t).

Damage received during salvage.

819. When a vessel is injured by collision without fault, while rendering salvage services, it is proper to ascertain the amount of the damages sustained and to award this as part of the salvage remuneration, but where this cannot be ascertained, the salvage award must be assessed on a liberal scale taking the damages sustained into

(l) See title ADMIRALTY, Vol. I., p. 73; but the Admiralty Court Act, 1861 (24 & 25 Vict. c. 10), s. 6, confers no maritime lien (Dapueto v. Wyllie & Co., The "Pieve Superiore" (1874), L. R. 5 P. C. 482); see, further, The Cap Blanco, [1913] P. 130.

(m) County Courts Admiralty Jurisdiction Act, 1868 (31 & 32 Vict. c. 71), s. 3 (3); County Courts Admiralty Jurisdiction Amendment Act, 1869 (32 & 33 Vict. c. 51), ss. 2 (2), 3.

(n) As to limits of this jurisdiction, see title ADMIRALTY, Vol. I., p. 128.

(o) Compare The Griefswald (1859), Sw. 430.

(p) M. S. Act, 1894, s. 688; compare The Bilbao (1860), Lush. 149; The Franconia (1877), 2 P. D. 163, 173. As to the rights of action against, and powers of arrest of, a ship at the suit of personal sufferers and their representatives, see pp. 543, 544, ante.

(q) 24 & 25 Vict. c. 10.

(r) Ibid., ss. 7, 35; and see title ADMIRALTY, Vol. I., pp. 61, 105.

(s) See p. 563, post.

(t) The Vandyck (1881), 7 P. D. 42; The Emilie Galline, [1903] P. 106; The Port Caledonia and The Anna, [1903] P. 184.

account (u). If the salving vessel negligently collides with and injures the vessel which she is salving, her owners do not necessarily forfeit their right to a salvage award, but they have to pay for the damage done by the collision (a).

If the vessel being salved is sunk by collision with the salving vessel through negligence of the salvors, the owners of the salving vessel are liable for the damage caused, as the master was acting within the scope of his authority in attempting to salve (b).

The salvage expenses of a vessel damaged by collision through the negligence of another vessel, though ordinarily recoverable from the owners of the wrong-doing vessel (c), cannot be recovered if the salvage is chargeable to improper abandonment (d).

SECT. 7.—Collision with a Pier etc.

Collision with harbour, dock or pier.

820. The former High Court of Admiralty had, and therefore the present Admiralty Division of the High Court has, jurisdiction over a claim for damage done by a ship by striking a pier or the like (e); and this also applies as regards damage to a ship by striking a pier (f). A county court having admiralty jurisdiction has no such jurisdiction over such a claim for damage by a ship to a pier (g), though it has such jurisdiction over a claim for damage to a ship by striking a pier (h).

(u) S.S. Baku Standard (Master and Owners) v. Angèle (Master and Owners), [1901] A. C. 549, P. C.; The Sunniside (1883), 8 P. D. 137; The Mud Hopper (No. 4) (1879), 4 Asp. M. L. C. 103; and see p. 579, post.

(a) The C. S. Butler, The Baltic (1874), L. R. 4 A. & E. 178; The Cheerful (1885), 11 P. D. 3 (collision by vessel attempting salvage, though avoidable by greater care and skill, held not negligence by salvor); The Dwina, [1892] P. 58 (salvage award diminished for collision).

(b) The Thetis (1869), L. R. 2 A. & E. 365.

(c) And a probable but discretionary outlay for towage, if there had been no collision, cannot be deducted from the salvage expenses; see H.M.S. Inflexible (1857), Sw. 200.

(d) The Linda (1857), Sw. 306. As to intervention in the salvage action by the wrong-doer, see The Diana (1874), 2 Asp. M. L. C. 366. As to whether costs in the salvage action are recoverable from the wrong-doer, see The British Commerce (1884), 9 P. D. 128; The Legatus (1856), Sw. 168.

(e) The Uhla (1867), 3 Mar. L. C. 148 (damage to breakwater); compare The Excelsior (1868), L. R. 2 A. & E. 268; The Swift, [1901] P. 168 (damage to oyster beds). As to the liability under the Harbours, Docks and Piers Clauses Act, 1847 (10 & 11 Vict. c. 27), see p. 644, post.

(f) See, semble, Mersey Docks and Harbour Board v. Turner, The "Zeta," [1893] A. C. 468.

(g) The Normandy, [1904] P. 187; or to a floating gas buoy (The Upcerne, [1912] P. 160).

(h) Mersey Docks and Harbour Board v. Turner, The "Zeta," supra; and see title ADMIRALTY, Vol. I., p. 128.

Part XII.—Wreck.

SECT. 1. Definitions.

SECT. 1.—Definitions.

821. Wreck may be defined as property cast ashore within the ebb and flow of the tide after shipwreck (a). The property must be a ship or her cargo or a portion thereof (b).

"Wreck." In the Merchant Shipping Act, 1894, the term "wreck" is not defined, except as including jetsam, flotsam, lagan, and derelict found in or on the shores of the sea or any tidal waters (c), the intention evidently being to bring under one term the rights which pertained to the land and those that belonged to the admiral. The term "wreck" also includes all fishing boats, all their small boats, their rigging, gear, and other appurtenances, nets, lines, buoys, floats, and other fishing implements (d).

"Tidal waters." By "tidal waters" is meant any part of the sea, and any part of a river within the ebb and flow of the tide at ordinary spring tides, and not being a harbour (e).

"Jetsam." "Jetsam" means goods which are cast into the sea to lighten a ship in danger of sinking, and afterwards notwithstanding the ship perishes (f).

"Flotsam." "Flotsam" means goods floating on the sea from a ship which has sunk or otherwise perished (f).

(a) Wreccum maris significat illa bona quæ naufragio ad terram appelluntur (Constable's (Sir Henry) Case (1601), 5 Co. Rep. 106). By the Statute of Westminster I., 1275 (3 Edw. 1, c. 4), which has been repealed by the Statute Law Revision Act, 1863 (26 & 27 Vict. c. 125), but is declaratory of the common law, it was agreed that where a man, a dog, or a cat escape quick out of the ship, that such ship, nor barge, or anything within them, shall not be adjudged wreck; see also stat. (1713) 13 Anne, c. 21, which has been repealed by the Merchant Shipping Repeal Act, 1854 (17 & 18 Vict. c. 120), s. 4. The reference in these statutes to the escape of a live being from the ship is not to be construed literally, but as meaning that if the property could be identified by its owner it was not wreck (Hamilton v. Davis (1771), 5 Burr. 2732; Brac., Rolls ed., Vol. II., p. 271); but see charter of Henry III., granting that if a man escape alive it shall not be wreck, and if an animal escape alive or be found in the ship, then if claimed in three months the owners shall have the goods and chattels found in the ship (Charter Rolls, 1236, 20 Hen. 3, m. 4; and also Patent Rolls for the reign of Edward I. and Edward II. Strictly speaking, wreck of the sea at common law was confined to property cast ashore after shipwreck, the ownership of which could not be ascertained; but the term has for a long time been used to include wreck at common law and property declared by the Statute of Westminster I., 1275 (3 Edw. 1, c. 4), not to be wreck, and it is so used in the M. S. Act, 1894, ss. 518—522.

(b) Palmer v. Rouse (1858), 3 H. & N. 505 (timber which had drifted from its moorings); Cargo ex Schiller (1877), 2 P. D. 145, C. A.; The Gas Float Whitton No. 2, [1896] P. 42, C. A.

(c) M. S. Act, 1894, s. 510. As to the meaning of "wreck" in ibid., s. 158, see The Olympic, [1913] P. 92, C. A.

(d) Sea Fisheries Act, 1883 (46 & 47 Vict. c. 22), s. 10, Sched. I., art. 25; see, generally, title FISHERIES, Vol. XIV., pp. 625 et seq.

(e) M. S. Act, 1894, s. 742.

(f) Constable's (Sir Henry) Case, supra. A contemporary report of this case in Lansdowne, M.S., 1088, fol. 69, gives POPHAM, C.J.'s

SECT. 1. Definitions.

"Lagan" means goods heavier than water cast into the sea to lighten a ship in danger of sinking which afterwards perishes, and cast out with the intention of being recovered, and therefore having attached to them some floating object by which they may subsequently be located (g). "Lagan."

When wreck.

Jetsam, flotsam, and lagan are not wreck, though included in that term as used in the Merchant Shipping Act, 1894, so long as they remain in or upon the sea, but if any of them be cast up on the shore, then they are wreck (g).

"Derelict."

"Derelict" is when a ship or cargo is abandoned and deserted at sea by those who were in charge of it, without any intention of returning to it or any hope of recovering it (h).

SECT. 2.—Receivers of Wreck.

Appointment.

822. The Board of Trade has the general superintendence throughout the United Kingdom of all matters relating to wreck. With the consent of the Treasury, the Board appoints the receivers of wreck from amongst the officers of customs, coastguard, or inland revenue (i).

Remuneration.

The only remuneration to which a receiver of wreck is entitled are the expenses properly incurred by him in the performance of his duties, and such fees as the Board of Trade directs (k). A receiver, in addition to all other rights and remedies for the recovery of his expenses and fees, has the same rights and remedies as a salvor has in respect of salvage due to him (l).

Disputes.

Disputes as to the amount of a receiver's fees and expenses must be determined by the Board of Trade (m).

SECT. 3—Vessels in Distress.

Duties of receiver.

823. A receiver of wreck, on learning that a British or foreign vessel is wrecked, stranded, or in distress at any place on or near judgment as follows: "Et quant a ceo il dit que jetsam est ou in le perill de tempest les mariners ject parcell del biens hors del nief descaper le daunger par lighteninge del nief. Et cy longe come ceo est sur le meere ceo est jetsam et nemy wrecke. Floatsam est ou nief est tout ousterment swallowe par le meere et sinke al bottome et parcell del biens floate sur le ewe, et ceo nes wrecke tanque ject sur le terre, comment que soit inter le ebb et flood: et si soit ject issint que ceo touche le térre, si lewe amesna ceo arere et touts fois floatsam. Lagan est ceo que sinke et remaine al bottome . . . Et FENNER, J. dit que lagan est mort corps in le meere et tout ceo que est circa luy. Mes COOKE, J. dit que fuit appell lagan a ligando, scilicet quant chose sinke al bottome del meere, et est un boy tie al ceo pur que poit estre trove."

(g) Constable's (Sir Henry) Case (1601), 5 Co. Rep. 106; R. v. Two Casks of Tallow (1837), 3 Hag. Adm. 294, 298; The Pauline (1845), 2 Wm. Rob. 353.

(h) For the meaning of "derelict," see also p. 549, post.

(i) M. S. Act, 1894, s. 566. In special cases the Board can make appointments from outside these classes (ibid.).

(k) Ibid., s. 567. The fees must not exceed the amount specified in ibid., Sched. XX. (ibid., s. 567 (1)). As to the application of fees, see ibid., s. 567 (4); Merchant Shipping (Mercantile Marine Fund) Act, 1898 (61 & 62 Vict. c. 44), s. 1.

(l) M. S. Act, 1894, s. 567 (2); see pp. 579 et seq., post.

(m) M. S. Act, 1894, s. 567 (3).

SECT. 3. Vessels in Distress.

the coast or any tidal water within the limits of the United Kingdom, must forthwith proceed there, and take command of all persons present, and assign such duties and give such directions to each person as he thinks fit for the preservation of the vessel, the lives of the persons belonging to her, and of her cargo and apparel. He must not, however, interfere between the master and crew of the vessel unless requested by the master to do so (n).

Examination.

824. Besides the duty of attending at the scene of a wreck, the receiver must, when any ship is or has been in distress on the coast of the United Kingdom, as soon as conveniently may be examine on oath any person belonging to the ship, or any other person who may be able to give any account thereof or of her cargo or stores, for the purpose of ascertaining such facts relating to the accident as he may think necessary (o). The examination must be taken down in writing, and a copy must be sent to the Board of Trade and the secretary of Lloyd's (p).

Powers.

To enable him to carry out his duties of saving life and property he may require any person to assist him, and may require the master, or other person in charge, of any vessel near at hand to give such aid with his men or vessel as may be in his power. He may demand the use of any wagon, cart, or horses that may be near at hand (q).

The receiver, and persons assisting him, may, on certain conditions as to damage, pass over any land near the salvage operations and deposit thereon any salved property without being guilty of trespass (r). Any damage sustained by the owner of the land is a charge on the salved property, and can be recovered as salvage (s).

Plundering, or obstructing salvage.

In the event of any person plundering or creating disorder or obstructing the salvage operations, the receiver may cause such offender to be arrested, and he may use force and call upon all His Majesty's subjects to assist him in doing so (t).

Rioting.

If owing to rioting damage is done to the stranded vessel or her cargo or apparel, the owner is compensated (a) under the provisions of the Riot (Damages) Act, 1886 (b).

Persons authorised to act as receivers.

825. When a receiver is not present at the salvage operations, the following persons, in succession in the order named, may do

(n) M. S. Act, 1894, s. 511. As to the meaning of "on or near the coasts," see The Fulham, [1898] P. 206, 213.

(o) M. S. Act, 1894, s. 517. For this examination on oath the receiver has all the powers of a Board of Trade inspector, for which see ibid., s. 729. He can charge a fee of £1 for the first deposition and £1 for the subsequent depositions (ibid., s. 567, Sched. XX.). These depositions are not admissible in evidence in a collision action, though deponent has died before the trial (The Henry Coxon (1878), 3 P. D. 156); and see title EVIDENCE, Vol. XIII., pp. 465 et seq.

(p) M. S. Act, 1894, s. 517 (2).

(q) Failure without reasonable cause to comply with his requests, renders a person liable to a fine not exceeding £100 (ibid., s. 512).

(r) Ibid., s. 513.

(s) Ibid., s. 513 (2). As to salvage generally, see pp. 557 et seq., post.

(t) M. S. Act, 1894, s. 514.

(a) Ibid., s. 515.

(b) 49 & 50 Vict. c. 38.

anything authorised to be done by a receiver, namely: chief officer of customs (c), principal officer of coastguard, chief officer of inland revenue, sheriff, justice of the peace, commissioned officer on full pay in the navy, commissioned officer on full pay in the army (d). These persons, when acting as deputy for the receiver, are not entitled to any fees payable to receivers, but may have a claim for salvage (e).

SECT. 4.—Dealing with Wreck.

SUB-SECT. 1.—Duties of Finders of Wreck.

Duties of finders of wreck.

826. A person who finds or takes possession of any wreck within the limits of the United Kingdom, or any wreck found outside those limits and brought within them, must, if he is the owner, give notice to the receiver of wreck for the district of the fact and a description of the marks by which the wreck may be recognised (f). If he is not the owner, he must deliver such wreck to the receiver, unless he is a salvor, in which case he may deliver it to the owner (g).

Penalty for withholding wreck from receiver.

827. Any person, whether the owner or not, who secretes or keeps possession of or refuses to deliver to the receiver any cargo or article belonging to or separated from a vessel which is wrecked, stranded or in distress in the United Kingdom, which is washed ashore or otherwise lost or taken from the vessel, is liable to a fine not exceeding £100 (h). A person who fails without reasonable cause to comply with the duties of finders set out above is liable to a similar fine, and in addition, if he is not the owner, to forfeit any claim for salvage, and to pay to the owner of the wreck if it is claimed, or if unclaimed to the person entitled to the same, double the value thereof (i).

SUB-SECT. 2.—Duties of Receiver.

Receiver's duties regarding wreck.

828. In the event of cargo or articles being washed ashore or lost or taken from a vessel in distress on or near the coasts or in any tidal water within the limits of the United Kingdom, the receiver should demand the property from any person, whether the owner or not, who secretes it or keeps possession of it, and on his refusal to deliver it up the receiver may take it by force (k).

(c) This includes the collector, superintendent, principal coast officer, or other chief officer of customs (M. S. Act, 1894, s. 742).

(d) Ibid., s. 516 (1).

(e) Ibid., s. 516 (2); see The Wear Packet (1855), 2 Ecc. & Ad. 256.

(f) M. S. Act, 1894, s. 518 (a); M. S. Act, 1906, s. 72.

(g) M. S. Act, 1894, s. 518 (b); The Zeta (1875), L. R. 4 A. & E. 460. These provisions as to wreck only apply to criminal and improper detention whereby it is sought to practise a fraud upon the Crown or the owner; see also The Liffey (1887), 58 L. T. 351, where the finder took possession bonâ fide believing the property to be his own.

(h) M. S. Act, 1894, s. 519.

(i) Ibid., s. 518. It is "a reasonable cause" for salvors to continue in possession that they do so in order to perform necessary salvage operations for the safety of the property (The Glynoeron (1905), 21 T. L. R. 648). A receiver of wreck also has powers in connexion with the licensing of marine store dealers, as to which see title TRADE AND TRADE UNIONS, Vol. XXVII., p. 543.

(k) M. S. Act, 1894, s. 519 (2), (3).

SECT. 4. Dealing with Wreck.

When the receiver has taken possession of any wreck, he must within forty-eight hours cause to be posted up in the custom-house nearest to the place where the wreck was found or seized by him a description thereof and of any marks by which it is distinguished. If he thinks it is worth more than £20, he must send a similar description to Lloyd's, to be posted there for inspection (l). Within the same time he must send a similar description of the wrecked property to any subject who may have proved his title to unclaimed wreck in respect of the place where such property was found (m).

Power to sell wreck.

At any time the receiver may sell wreck which in his opinion is not worth more than £5, or is so damaged or of so perishable a nature that it cannot with advantage be kept, or is not of sufficient value to pay for warehousing. The proceeds of such sale, after deducting expenses, are held by the receiver for the same purposes and subject to the same claims, rights, and liabilities as if the wreck had remained unsold (n).

SUB-SECT. 3.—Claims of Owners to Wreck.

Owner's claim to wreck.

829. Within one year of the wreck passing into the possession of the receiver of wreck the owner thereof is entitled, on proof of his ownership to the satisfaction of the receiver, to have the wreck or the proceeds of any sale thereof delivered to him immediately he has paid the salvage fees and expenses due in respect of such wreck (o).

Foreign ship.

If the wreck formed part of a foreign ship or of her cargo, the consul-general of the country to which the ship or in case of cargo to which the owners of the cargo may have belonged, or any consular officer of that country authorised in that behalf by any treaty or arrangement with that country, is, in the absence of the owner and of the master or other agent of the owner, deemed to be the agent of the owner so far as relates to the custody and disposal of the wreck (p).

SUB-SECT. 4.—Dealing with Unclaimed Wreck.

Right of Crown to unclaimed wreck.

830. All unclaimed wreck found in His Majesty's dominions belongs to the Crown as part of the prerogative, except when it is found in places where the Crown has granted the right to wreck to other persons (q). His Majesty is also entitled to all wreck found within the limits of his Duchy of Lancaster when the right thereto has not been granted to a subject (r). The same rule applies to the Duke of Cornwall in respect of that Duchy (s). Besides the

(l) M. S. Act, 1894, s. 520.
(m) Ibid., s. 524 (2). If the wreck is claimed in right of the Duchy of Cornwall, notice is sent to the Receiver-General of the Duchy (ibid., s. 525 (2) (b)).
(n) Ibid., s. 522.
(o) Ibid., ss. 521 (1), 525.
(p) Ibid., s. 521 (2).
(q) Ibid., s. 523 ; Statute de Prerogativa Regis, stat. (temp. incert.) c. 13 ; see also title CONSTITUTIONAL LAW, Vol. VII., pp. 210 et seq.
(r) M. S. Act, 1894, s. 525 (2) (a).
(s) Ibid., s. 525 (2) (b).

prerogative rights of the Crown to wreck, the Board of Trade may purchase for His Majesty any rights to wreck in the possession of a subject, and for this purpose the provisions of the Lands Clauses Acts relating to the purchase of lands by agreement apply (t).

Purchase from subject for Crown.

831. A subject (a) who is entitled for his own use to unclaimed wreck found in any place within the district of a receiver must deliver to the receiver a statement of his title and an address to which notices may be sent (b).

Title to unclaimed wreck

832. In cases where the receiver is satisfied with the title, he must, on taking possession of any wreck found at any place to which the statement of title refers, within forty-eight hours send to the address delivered to him a description of the wreck and of any marks by which it is distinguished (c). At the expiration of the year from the time when the unclaimed wreck came into his hands, he must, if it belongs to a subject, deliver it to him after payment of all expenses, costs, fees, and salvage. When it does not belong to a subject, the receiver must sell it, and (after deducting the expenses incurred and paying salvors such amount of salvage as the Board of Trade may in such case or by any general rules determine) pay the proceeds for the benefit of the Crown as follows: if claimed in respect of the Duchy of Lancaster or Duchy of Cornwall, to the Receiver-General of the Duchy; if not so claimed, to His Majesty (d).

Disposal of wreck by receiver.

In the case of a dispute as to a title to unclaimed wreck, it may be determined in the same way as if it were a dispute as to salvage to be determined summarily (e). If either party is unwilling to have the matter determined in this summary way or is dissatisfied with the determination, he may within three months after the expiration of a year from the time when the wreck came into the receiver's hands, or from the date of the decision, take any proceedings in any court having jurisdiction in the matter for establishing his title (f).

Disputes.

On due delivery of the wreck or payment of the proceeds, the receiver is discharged from all liability in respect thereof, but such delivery does not prejudice or affect any question which may be raised by third parties concerning the right or title to the wreck, or to the soil of the place on which the wreck was found (g).

Receiver's liability discharged by delivery.

(t) M. S. Act, 1894, s. 528. For the Lands Clauses Acts, see title COMPULSORY PURCHASE OF LAND AND COMPENSATION, Vol. VI., pp. 12 et seq.

(a) This includes any admiral, vice-admiral, lord of a manor, heritable proprietor duly infeft, or any other person (M. S. Act, 1894, s. 524).

(b) Ibid., s. 524. After the passing of the M. S. Act, 1854, the Board of Trade caused inquiries to be made as to the title of persons claiming a right to wreck, and in many cases admitted the titles proved at such inquiry. These admissions of title to unclaimed wreck are not considered by the Board of Trade to be binding in all cases on the Crown, though acted upon for over fifty years.

(c) M. S. Act, 1894, s. 524 (2).

(d) Ibid., ss. 525, 676 (g). Foreign goods when wrecked are liable to customs duties (ibid., s. 569).

(e) Ibid., ss. 526 (1), 547, 548.

(f) Ibid., ss. 526 (2), 549.

(g) Ibid., s. 527. For the law relating to the title to the soil, see titles

SECT. 5. Removal of Wreck.

SECT. 5.—Removal of Wreck.

SUB-SECT. 1.—Authorities Empowered to Remove Wreck.

Harbour or conservancy authority.

833. The authority empowered to remove wrecks which are or may become in its opinion an obstruction or danger to navigation or to the lifeboat service (h) is in the case of a vessel (i) sunk, stranded or abandoned in any harbour (k) or tidal water (l) under the control of a harbour or conservancy authority (m), or in or near any approach thereto, such harbour or conservancy authority (n).

General lighthouse authority.

When a vessel is wrecked in any fair-way (o), or on the seashore, or on or near any rock, shoal, or bank in the British Islands or any of the adjacent seas or islands, and there is not any harbour or conservancy authority having jurisdiction in regard thereto, then the authority to deal with the wreck, if in its opinion such wreck is or is likely to become an obstruction or danger to navigation or the lifeboat service, is the general lighthouse authority for the locality (p).

Disputes.

If a question arises between the harbour or conservancy authority and the general lighthouse authority as to their respective powers for the removal of wrecks, that question may be referred to the Board of Trade, and the decision of the Board is final (q).

SUB-SECT. 2.—Extent of Powers.

Powers of authorities.

834. The empowered authorities have, in addition to any other

BOUNDARIES, FENCES, AND PARTY WALLS, Vol. III., p. 118; WATERS AND WATERCOURSES.

(h) "Lifeboat service" means the saving, or attempted saving, of vessels, or of life or property on board vessels, wrecked or aground or sunk, or in danger of being wrecked or getting aground or sinking (M. S. Act, 1894, s. 742).

(i) "Vessel" on this page and on pp. 555, 556, post, is used as including every article or thing, or collection of things, being or forming part of the tackle, equipment, cargo, stores, or ballast of the vessel (ibid., s. 532).

(k) "Harbour" includes harbours properly so called, whether natural or artificial, estuaries, navigable rivers, piers, jetties, and other works in or at which ships can obtain shelter, or ship or unship goods or passengers (ibid., s. 742).

(l) "Tidal water" means any part of the sea, and any part of a river within the ebb and flow of the tide at ordinary spring tides, and not being a harbour (ibid.).

(m) "Harbour authority" includes all persons or bodies of persons, corporate or unincorporate, being proprietors of or entrusted with the duty or invested with the power of constructing, improving, managing, regulating, maintaining, or lighting a harbour. "Conservancy authority" includes all persons or bodies of persons, corporate or unincorporate, entrusted with the duty or invested with the power of conserving, maintaining, or improving the navigation of a tidal water (ibid.).

(n) Ibid., s. 530. For powers of a harbour authority under the Harbours, Docks, and Piers Clauses Act, 1847 (10 & 11 Vict. c. 27), to remove wrecks, see p. 642, post. As to removal of wrecks in the Mersey, see Mersey Docks and Harbour Board Act, 1912 (2 & 3 Geo. 5, c. xii.).

(o) For meaning of "fair-way," see p. 406, ante.

(p) M. S. Act, 1894, s. 531. As to the general lighthouse authority, see pp. 627, 628, post.

(q) M. S. Act, 1894, s. 533.

SECT. 5. Removal of Wreck.

powers for a like object, power to take possession of, raise, remove, or destroy, the whole or any part of a vessel, and to light and buoy her until raised, removed, or destroyed. Such authorities may sell, in such manner as they think fit, any wreck raised or removed, and any property recovered under these powers, provided they give seven days' notice of the sale in a local newspaper. If the property is perishable or likely to deteriorate they can sell at once. The owner of any property offered for sale has the option of taking delivery on payment of the fair market value, ascertained by agreement between the owners and the authority, or, failing that, by some person named for the purpose by the Board of Trade (r). Out of the proceeds of any sale, or of the amount paid by the owners, the authority may reimburse itself for the expenses incurred by it in relation to the wreck, but it must hold the surplus in trust for the persons entitled thereto (s). Expenses incurred by a general lighthouse authority, and not reimbursed out of the proceeds of the wreck, are paid out of the General Lighthouse Fund (t).

Expenses.

835. When the owners, though in possession, have transferred the management and control of a wreck to a wreck-raising authority, neither are they nor is the wreck liable for any collision which may happen through insufficient lighting and buoying (a), but the authority may be liable for their own negligence (b).

Insufficient lighting and buoying.

(r) M. S. Act, 1894, ss. 530, 534.

(s) Ibid., s. 530. As to what may be included in the expenses, see The Harrington (1888), 13 P. D. 48.

(t) M. S. Act, 1894, s. 531 (2); Merchant Shipping (Mercantile Marine Fund) Act, 1898 (61 & 62 Vict. c. 44), s. 1 (1) (b), (c); see pp. 632 et seq., post. Under the M. S. Act, 1894, a wreck-raising authority has no power to recover from the owner the expenses incurred, but may have a personal remedy against the owner under a special Act for such expenses (The Ettrick (1881), 6 P. D. 127, C. A.). It will depend on the terms of the special Act whether the owner who is liable is the owner at the time of the wreck or at the time when the expenses were incurred. When the power to recover personally is by incorporation in the special Act of the Harbours, Docks, and Piers Clauses Act, 1847 (10 & 11 Vict. c. 27), s. 56, an owner who has abandoned the vessel as a derelict before the expenses were incurred is not liable (Arrow Shipping Co. v. Tyne Improvement Commissioners, The Crystal, [1894] A. C. 508). As to the meaning of "owner" in the Thames Conservancy Act, 1894 (57 & 58 Vict. c. clxxxvii.), see The Wallsend, [1907] P. 302. When there is a personal remedy against the owner under a special Act the authority can allocate the proceeds of wreck to the expenses incurred under the M. S. Act, 1894, and sue the owner for the balance (Arrow Shipping Co. v. Tyne Improvement Commissioners, The Crystal, supra). Where under a local Act the authority has power to recover from the owner, it cannot charge the owners of cargo on the wreck with the expense of removing or dispersing the wreck (Vivian v. Mersey Docks Board (1869), L. R. 5 C. P. 19).

(a) S.S. Utopia (Owners) v. S.S. Primula (Owners and Master), The Utopia, [1893] A. C. 492, P. C.; The Douglas (1882), 7 P. D. 151, C. A.; Brown v. Mallett (1848), 5 C. B. 599; White v. Crisp (1854), 10 Exch. 312; see pp. 533, 534, ante.

(b) Dormont v. Furness Rail. Co. (1883), 11 Q. B. D. 496; Mersey Docks Trustees v. Gibbs (1866), 11 H. L. Cas. 686; L. R. 1 H. L. 93; Gilbert v. Trinity House Corporation (1886), 17 Q. B. D. 795.

SECT. 6.
Offences in Respect of Wreck.

SECT. 6.—Offences in Respect of Wreck.

Selling wreck in foreign port.

836. It is a felony (c) to take into any foreign port and sell any wreck, or any vessel, stranded, derelict, or otherwise in distress, found on or near the coasts of the United Kingdom or any tidal water within the limits of the United Kingdom, or any part of the cargo or apparel or anything belonging thereto (d). It would seem that wreck taken possession of outside the limits of the United Kingdom may be taken to a foreign port, provided it has not been brought within the above limits (e).

Boarding wreck.

Unless a person is, or acts by the command of, the receiver of wreck, or a person lawfully acting as such, he may not go on board or endeavour to board any vessel which is wrecked, stranded, or in distress, without the leave of the master. If he does he is liable to a fine and to be repelled by force (f).

Obstructing salvage operations.

A person who impedes or hinders, or endeavours in any way to impede or hinder, the saving of any vessel stranded or in danger of being stranded or otherwise in distress, or of any part of the cargo or apparel thereof, or of any wreck, or who secretes any wreck or defaces or obliterates any marks thereon, or who wrongfully carries away or removes any part of such vessel or her cargo or apparel or any wreck, is liable to a fine in addition to any other punishment to which he may be liable (g).

Wrongful possession of wreck.

837. When a receiver suspects or receives information that any wreck is secreted or in the possession of some person who is not the owner, or is being improperly dealt with, he can obtain a search warrant from a justice of the peace to search any house, place, or vessel and detain any wreck found. If the warrant was obtained on information given and a seizure follows, the informer is entitled by way of salvage to such sum not exceeding £5 as the receiver may allow (h).

(c) Penalty, not less than three years' penal servitude and not exceeding five years (M. S. Act, 1894, s. 535); and as to alternative sentences, see title CRIMINAL LAW AND PROCEDURE, Vol. IX., p. 410.

(d) M. S. Act, 1894, s. 535. For definition of the terms "wreck," "derelict," "tidal water," "limits of the United Kingdom," see pp. 548, 549, note (l), 554, ante.

(e) Compare M. S. Act, 1906, s. 72; M. S. Act, 1894, s. 518.

(f) Penalty, not exceeding £50 (ibid., s. 536 (1)). "Master" includes every person except a pilot having command or charge of a ship (ibid., s. 742).

(g) Ibid., s. 536 (2). Penalty, not exceeding £50; the other penalties presumably are those imposed by ibid., s. 518, namely, for failure to deliver to the receiver, penalty not exceeding £100, and if the captain be not the owner, forfeiture of salvage and liability to pay double the value of the property, and by ibid., s. 519, namely, for secreting, keeping possession of, or refusing to deliver to the receiver on demand, a penalty not exceeding £100; as to the application of this part of the Act, see also The Zeta (1875), L. R. 4 A. & E. 460; The Liffey (1887), 6 Asp. M. L. C. 255. As to marine store dealers, see title TRADE AND TRADE UNIONS, Vol. XXVII., p. 543; as to stealing from a wreck, see title CRIMINAL LAW AND PROCEDURE, Vol. IX., p. 640.

(h) M. S. Act, 1894, s. 537.

Part XIII.—Salvage.

SECT. 1.—Nature of Salvage.

SECT. 1. Nature of Salvage.

Meaning of "salvage."

838. The term "salvage" may signify either the service rendered by a salvor or the reward payable to him for his service (a). It is applicable to military salvage, or the rescue of property in time of war (b), as well as to civil salvage, which is the present subject. Civil salvage relates to the service of saving property or life in danger at sea and the compensation payable in respect of such service.

Description of salvage service.

839. Salvage service in the present sense is that service which saves or contributes to the ultimate safety of a vessel, her apparel, cargo, or wreck, or to the lives of persons belonging to a vessel when in danger at sea, or in tidal waters, or on the shore of the sea or tidal waters, provided that such service is rendered voluntarily and not in the performance of any legal or official duty or merely in the interests of self-preservation (c). The person who renders such service, the salvor, becomes entitled to remuneration termed "salvage reward."

How rendered.

840. Salvage services may be rendered in many different ways. They include (d) towing (e), piloting (f), navigating (g), or standing by (h) a vessel in danger; landing (i) or transhipping (k) cargo or persons belonging to such vessel; floating a stranded vessel (l); raising a sunken vessel (m) or cargo (n); saving a derelict (o) or wreck (p); setting in motion (q), fetching (r), or bringing (s) assistance to a vessel in danger; giving advice or information in order to

(a) It is also applied to the salved property in matters relating to insurance. There is no common law right to salvage; see Falcke v. Scottish Imperial Insurance Co. (1886), 34 Ch. D. 234, C. A., at pp. 248, 249 etc., and pp. 570 et seq., post.

(b) See title PRIZE LAW AND JURISDICTION, Vol. XXIII., p. 293.

(c) See Kennedy, Civil Salvage, 2nd ed., p. 2; and The Gas Float Whitton No. 2, [1896] P. 42, C. A., per Lord ESHER, M.R., at p. 49, citing various definitions.

(d) See Pritchard's Admiralty Digest, 3rd ed., pp. 1920—2123.

(e) The Ellora (1862), Lush. 550; The Madras, [1898] P. 90.

(f) The Anders Knape (1879), 4 P. D. 213.

(g) Newman v. Walters (1804), 3 Bos. & P. 612; Le Jonet (1872), L. R. 3 A. & E. 556.

(h) The Undaunted (1860), Lush. 90, 92.

(i) The Favourite (1844), 2 Wm. Rob. 255.

(k) The Columbia (1838), 3 Hag. Adm. 428; The Erato (1888), 13 P. D. 163.

(l) The Inchmaree, [1899] P. 111; The Cayo Bonito, [1904] P. 310.

(m) The Catherine (1848), 6 Notes of Cases, Supp., xliii.

(n) The Cadiz and The Boyne (1876), 3 Asp. M. L. C. 332.

(o) The Janet Court, [1897] P. 59.

(p) The Samuel (1851), 15 Jur. 407.

(q) The Marguerite Molinos, [1903] P. 160; The Cayo Bonito, supra (launchers of a lifeboat).

(r) The Sarah (1878), 3 P. D. 39.

(s) The Undaunted, supra.

SECT. 1. Nature of Salvage.

save a vessel from a local danger (a); supplying officers or crew (b) or tackle (c) to a vessel in need of them; rescuing persons who have had to take to the boats (d); removing a vessel from a danger, such as a vessel or wreck which has fouled her (e), an icefloe (f), or an impending collision (g); putting out a fire on board (h); saving property or life from a vessel on fire (i); removing a vessel or cargo from a position in which it is in imminent danger of catching fire (k); protecting or rescuing a vessel, her cargo, or persons on board from pirates or plunderers (l); recovering and restoring a captured ship (m).

The right to salvage reward.

841. The right of the salvor to salvage reward does not depend on contract (n). It may, but does not necessarily, arise out of contract. A salvage service rendered to property so circumstanced that a prudent owner of the property would accept the service creates of itself a title to salvage reward (o); and the fact that an express contract for the performance of salvage services has been entered into by the salvor, who has failed to carry it out, does not preclude him from obtaining salvage reward, if the service rendered by him contributed to some extent to the ultimate safety of the property in danger (p).

Danger and success essential.

To maintain a claim for salvage reward it is not sufficient that services in the nature of salvage services have been rendered. It is necessary to show that the property in danger, or some part of it, has been ultimately saved, whether that result has been achieved with the aid of the salvage service or by other means (q); for if no part of the property in danger is ultimately saved, no salvage

(a) The Eliza (1862), Lush. 536; The Strathnaver (1875), 1 App. Cas. 58, 62, 63, P. C.; but see The Vrouw Margaretha (1801), 4 Ch. Rob. 103, per Lord STOWELL, at p. 104, and The Little Joe (1860), Lush. 88, per Dr. LUSHINGTON, at p. 89, where it was doubted whether this service was a salvage service.

(b) The Skibladner (1877), 3 P. D. 24.

(c) The Prince of Wales (1848), 6 Notes of Cases, 39.

(d) The Cairo (1874), L. R. 4 A. & E. 184.

(e) The Vandyck (1881), 7 P. D. 42; affirmed (1882), 5 Asp. M. L. C. 17, C. A.; compare The Emilie Galline, [1903] P. 106.

(f) The Swan (1839), 1 Wm. Rob. 68.

(g) The Saratoga (1839), Lush. 318.

(h) The City of Newcastle (1894), 7 Asp. M. L. C. 546.

(i) The Eastern Monarch (1860), Lush. 81.

(k) The Tees, The Pentucket (1862), Lush. 505.

(l) Calypso (1828), 2 Hag. Adm. 209; The Erato (1888), 13 P. D. 163.

(m) The Henry (1810), Edw. 192.

(n) Five Steel Barges (1890), 15 P. D. 142, per HANNEN, P., at p. 146; Cargo ex Port Victor, [1901] P. 243, 247, 249, C. A.

(o) The Vandyck (1881), 7 P. D. 42; affirmed (1882), 5 Asp. M. L. C. 17, C. A.; The Liffey (1887), 6 Asp. M. L. C. 255 (services rendered to a vessel which the salvor believed to be his own); The Auguste Legembre, [1902] P. 123 (services declined by master of salved vessel); and see The Emilie Galline, [1903] P. 106; The Port Caledonia and The Anna, [1903] P. 184.

(p) The Hestia, [1895] P. 193. For precedent of a salvage agreement approved by Lloyd's committee, see Encyclopædia of Forms and Precedents, Vol. XIV., p. 167.

(q) Cargo ex Sarpedon (1877), 3 P. D. 28; The Renpor (1883), 8 P. D. 115, C. A.; The Annie (1886), 12 P. D. 50, 51; The Elton, [1891] P. 265, 269; Cargo ex Port Victor, supra, at pp. 243, 255, 256, C. A.

reward is recoverable. There may be special circumstances in which the master or other person in charge of the property in danger is justified in binding the owner to pay for assistance independently of the ultimate safety of the property (a); but such an agreement is not a salvage agreement (b).

SECT. 2.—Subjects of Salvage.

SUB-SECT. 1.—Maritime Property.

Property subject of salvage service.

842. No property, other than maritime property, can be the subject of a salvage service (c).

"Maritime property" consists of a vessel (d), her apparel, cargo, or wreck. "Cargo" includes all merchandise on board the salved vessel (e). It does not include, so far as regards the liability to arrest and contribution to salvage reward, the personal effects of the master or crew (f), or the clothes or personal effects of passengers, whether on the person or taken on board by them for their daily use (g), or, it would seem, ship's provisions (h).

"Maritime property."

"Cargo."

"Wreck" was originally limited to parts of a vessel or cargo which were stranded. It is now the subject of statutory definition (i), and for the purposes of salvage it may be treated as including, besides derelict, any fragment which previously formed part of a vessel, her apparel, or cargo, whether aground or afloat (k).

"Wreck."

"Derelict" is property, whether vessel or cargo (l), abandoned at sea by those in charge of it without hope on their part of recovering or intention of returning to it (m). A vessel is not derelict which is only left temporarily by her master and crew with the intention of

"Derelict."

(a) S.S. Wellfield (Owners) v. Adamson and Short, The Alfred (1884), 5 Asp. M. L. C. 214; compare The Prinz Heinrich (1888), 13 P. D. 31; The Edenmore, [1893] P. 79; The Strathgarry, [1895] P. 264. As to the effect of such an agreement upon an award, see p. 575, post.

(b) The Hestia, [1895] P. 193, 199; and see p. 570, post; title CONTRACT, Vol. VII., p. 464.

(c) The Gas Float Whitton No. 2, [1895] P. 301; [1896] P. 42, C. A.; [1897] A. C. 337; see also Palmer v. Rouse (1858), 3 H. & N. 505; Raft of Timber (1844), 2 Wm. Rob. 251; M. S. Act, 1894, s. 546.

(d) As to what is included in the words "vessel" and "ship," see pp. 14, 374, ante.

(e) As to whether "cargo" should include goods in tow, see The Gas Float Whitton No. 2, [1897] A. C. 337, 345.

(f) See Beawes, Lex Mercatoria, 6th ed. (Chitty), Vol. I., p. 242.

(g) The Willem III. (1871), L. R. 3 A. & E. 487.

(h) Compare Brown v. Stapyleton (1827), 4 Bing. 119.

(i) M. S. Act, 1894, s. 510; and see p. 548, ante.

(k) A raft of timber (Nicholson v. Chapman (1793), 2 Hy. Bl. 254) is not wreck, nor are planks of timber moored in a river which have broken adrift (Palmer v. Rouse, supra), nor a gas buoy which has become adrift (The Gas Float Whitton No. 2, supra), neither having formed part of a vessel, her apparel, or cargo.

(l) R. v. Property Derelict (1825), 1 Hag. Adm. 383; The Coromandel (1857), Sw. 205; R. v. Forty-nine Casks of Brandy (1836), 3 Hag. Adm. 257, 270; The Samuel (1851), 15 Jur. 407, 410; Boiler ex Elephant (1891), 64 L. T. 543.

(m) The Aquila (1798), 1 Ch. Rob. 37, 40; The Gertrude (1861), 30 L. J. (P. M. & A.) 130, 131; Cossman v. West, Cossman v. British America Assurance Co. (1887), 13 App. Cas. 160, 180, 181, P. C. For a form of notice to underwriters of abandonment of ship or cargo, see Encyclopædia of Forms and Precedents, Vol. XIV., p. 164.

SECT. 2. Subjects of Salvage.

returning to her (a), even though the management of the vessel may have passed into the hands of salvors (b). On the other hand, a vessel deserted by her master and crew with the intention of abandoning her does not cease to be derelict because they subsequently change their intention and try to recover her (c). Whenever the question arises as to whether a vessel is derelict or not, the test to be applied is the intention and expectation of the master and crew at the time of quitting her, and, in the absence of direct evidence, that is determined by consideration of all the circumstances of the case (d).

"Freight."

"Freight" in the course of being earned by the carriage of the cargo, that is, freight at risk, is the subject of salvage if it is earned by means of salvage service (e). Where the freight at risk consists of money payable for the carriage of passengers, and the ship is lost and the passengers are carried to their destination by the salving vessel, it is conceived that the owner of the vessel lost would be liable to the salvor of the lives and the freight thus earned for salvage reward (f). But no salvage reward is payable where the passengers' contract of carriage excludes liability to forward them to their destination, and in such a case the master must base his claim on the ground that in transhipping them he is acting as their agent and not on behalf of his employers (g).

Exemption of British and foreign Government vessels.

843. British and foreign Government vessels, whether warships or not, and Government stores on board of them or on board a private ship, and private goods on board warships of a foreign Government which has for public purposes undertaken the care of them (h), are alike exempt from claims for salvage reward, no salvage action in rem being maintainable against them (i). It is open to question

(a) The Aquila (1798), 1 Ch. Rob. 37; The Lepanto, [1892] P. 122.

(b) Cossman v. West, Cossman v. British America Assurance Co. (1887), 13 App. Cas. 160, P. C.; The Lepanto, supra.

(c) The Sarah Bell (1845), 4 Notes of Cases, 144, 146.

(d) See, for example, The John and Jane (1802), 4 Ch. Rob. 216; The Cosmopolitan (1848), 6 Notes of Cases, Suppl. xvii., xx—xxvii.; The Pickwick (1852), 16 Jur. 669, 670; The Zeta (1875), L. R. 4 A. & E. 460.

(e) See p. 588, post.

(f) Compare The Medina (1876), 1 P. D. 275; affirmed, 2 P. D. 5, C. A., where, however, there was an agreement for the payment of salvage reward; and see Kennedy, Civil Salvage, 2nd ed., pp. 68, 69.

(g) The Mariposa, [1896] P. 273.

(h) The Constitution (1879), 4 P. D. 39.

(i) See The Prinz Frederik (1820), 2 Dods. 451; The Constitution, supra; The Parlement Belge (1880), 5 P. D. 197, C. A., reviewing earlier cases; Young v. Steamship Scotia (1903), 9 Asp. M. L. C. 485, P. C. (passenger ferry-boat belonging to a colonial Government). The Admiralty usually appears and submits to the judgment of the court in the case of claims for salvage of stores belonging to the Government (Marquis of Huntly (1835), 3 Hag. Adm. 246, 247; Cargo ex Venus (1866), L. R. 1 A. & E. 50, where Government stores arrested were released by consent). Aliter, where by the terms of the contract of carriage the stores are carried at the risk of the shipowner or charterer (Cargo ex Port Victor, [1901] P. 243, C. A.). In The Simla (1906), unreported, cited in Kennedy, Civil Salvage, 2nd ed., p. 70, n., counsel on behalf of the Admiralty stated that the practice of the Government for a considerable time had been to submit salvage claims to arbitration, at the same time reserving its rights and privileges.

whether a vessel hired by the Government as a transport is exempt from arrest in a salvage action, though such vessels have been arrested without objection to the jurisdiction (j).

SUB-SECT. 2.—Life.

Statutory duty.

844. A statutory duty is imposed upon the master or other person in charge of a vessel to render assistance, so far as he can do so without serious danger to his vessel, her crew or passengers, to every person, including the subject of a foreign enemy, who is found at sea in danger of being lost (k); compliance with this duty does not affect the right of the master or any other person to salvage reward (l).

Right to reward.

845. The right to salvage reward for the preservation of life (m) on board a vessel depends upon statute (n). In regard to British vessels, the saving of life is thereby made an independent ground for salvage reward wherever the services have been rendered. In the case of foreign vessels it is dependent upon the service having taken place wholly or partly within British waters (o), or from a vessel belonging to a state in regard to which an Order in Council has been made (p).

Claims for life salvage.

846. The claim for salvage of life against the owner of the vessel from which life was saved takes priority over all other salvage claims (q). But no claim for salvage reward for the saving of life can be sustained, in the absence of special agreement (r), unless some property—ship, cargo, or freight—has been preserved (s), though it matters not whether the preservation has been due to any salvage service (t). The person against whom alone the salvor of life can recover salvage reward is the owner of property saved or a person who has some interest in property which has been saved (u), and the extent of the liability of such person to pay salvage reward for the

(j) Lord Nelson (1809), Edw. 79; Marquis of Huntly (1835), 3 Hag. Adm. 246.

(k) Maritime Conventions Act, 1911 (1 & 2 Geo. 5, c. 57), s. 6 (1).

(l) Ibid., s. 6 (2).

(m) Including the lives of passengers (The Fusilier (1865), Brown. & Lush. 341; on appeal, 3 Moo. P. C. C. (N. S.) 51).

(n) M. S. Act, 1894, s. 544, consolidating the provisions of the M. S. Act, 1854 (17 & 18 Vict. c. 104), ss. 458, 459; the Admiralty Court Act, 1861 (24 & 25 Vict. c. 10), s. 9; and the Merchant Shipping Amendment Act, 1862 (25 & 26 Vict. c. 63), s. 59.

(o) As to services performed wholly or partly within British waters, see The Pacific, [1898] P. 170; Jörgensen v. Neptune Steam Fishing Co. (1902), 4 F. (Ct. of Sess.) 992; see also The Willem III. (1871), L. R. 3 A. & E. 487 (decided under the Admiralty Court Act, 1861 (24 & 25 Vict. c. 10), s. 9).

(p) It has been applied only to Prussian ships; see Order in Council, 7th April, 1864 (Stat. R. & O. Rev., Vol. VIII., Merchant Shipping, p. 300).

(q) M. S. Act, 1894, s. 544 (2). In The Cairo (1874), L. R. 4 A. & E. 184, salvage reward was obtained against a vessel for the rescue of her crew, who, after collision, but without orders, took to the boats.

(r) Cargo ex Sarpedon (1877), 3 P. D. 28, 34.

(s) The Renpor (1883), 8 P. D. 115, 117, C. A.; see also The Annie (1886), 12 P. D. 50, 51, per HANNEN, P.

(t) Cargo ex Schiller (1877), 2 P. D. 145, C. A.

(u) Five Steel Barges (1890), 15 P. D. 142, 146; Cargo ex Port Victor, [1901] P. 243, 246, C. A.

SECT. 2. Subjects of Salvage.

saving of life is limited to the value of his property or interest salved (a).

SECT. 3.—Conditions of a Salvage Service.

Danger to property or life.

847. The essence of a salvage service is that it is a service rendered to property or life in danger. The requisite degree of danger is a real and appreciable danger. It must not be merely fanciful, but it need not be immediate or absolute (b). It is sufficient if at the time of the service the situation of the subject of the service is such as to cause reasonable apprehension on the part of the person in charge of it (c). The burden of proving the presence of danger rests upon those who claim as salvors (d).

Wrongful signals of distress.

848. The danger may arise from the condition of the salved vessel (e), or of her crew (f), from her position, or from the master's want of skill or his ignorance of the locality (g). The conduct of those on board the salved ship in giving signals of distress or in accepting help may be evidence of the presence of danger (h). Where signals of distress are wrongfully used, compensation is recoverable for any labour undertaken, or risk or loss incurred, by reason of persons accepting and acting upon the signals (i). And persons who are induced by ambiguous signals to proceed to the assistance of a vessel which is in fact damaged or in danger are entitled to claim as salvors (k).

Towing damaged vessel.

Where the claim is for service rendered in towing a damaged vessel, which is the most common form of salvage service, danger will be readily implied (l); but the damaged condition of the vessel must be such as to affect her safety or to increase the risk or difficulty of the towage (m).

Voluntary service.

849. The salvor's service must be voluntary. If it is rendered under contractual obligation, in pursuance of official duty, or solely

(a) Cargo ex Schiller (1877), 2 P. D. 145, C. A.

(b) The Charlotte (1848), 3 Wm. Rob. 68, per Dr. LUSHINGTON, at p. 71; approved in The "Strathnaver" (1875), 1 App. Cas. 58, 65, P. C.; and see The Phantom (1866), L. R. 1 A. & E. 58, per Dr. LUSHINGTON, at p. 60; The Calyx (1910), 27 T. L. R. 166; compare The Sea Salvage (1912), Times, 8th December. The dictum of BRETT, L.J., in Akerblom v. Price (1881), 7 Q. B. D. 129, C. A., at p. 135, that "it is essential that the ship should be in imminent danger of being lost," may be explained as referring only to the case before him, a salvage claim by a pilot, to which special considerations apply; see p. 567, post. For an extreme case, see The "Batavier" (1853), 1 Ecc. & Ad. 169.

(c) See the cases cited in note (b), supra.

(d) The Wilhelmine (1842), 1 Notes of Cases, 376, 378; and see The Calyx, supra.

(e) The Ella Constance (1864), 33 L. J. (P. M. & A.) 189, 191 (want of fuel).

(f) The Aglaia (1888), 13 P. D. 160 (crew suffering from frost-bite).

(g) The Eugenie (1844), 3 Notes of Cases, 430, 431.

(h) The Bomarsund (1860), Lush. 77.

(i) M. S. Act, 1894, s. 434, as to which see The Elswick Park, [1904] P. 76; and see p. 481, ante.

(k) The Mary (1843), 1 Wm. Rob. 448, 452, 453; The Racer (1874), 2 Asp. M. L. C. 217; The Aglaia, supra.

(l) The "Batavier," supra; The Ellora (1862), Lush. 550.

(m) The "Kingalock" (1854), 1 Ecc. & Ad. 263, 266; and see The Canova (1866), L. R. 1 A. & E. 54.

SECT. 3. Conditions of a Salvage Service.

in the interest of self-preservation, it is not a salvage service (n). Hence the owner, master, crew, and pilot of the salved vessel, or of a tug towing the salved vessel under a contract of towage, the ship's agent, Government officials acting within the scope of their duties, and passengers on board the salved vessel cannot ordinarily (o) claim as salvors for services rendered by them. So, also, insurers who incur expenses which come within the suing and labouring clause of the policy (p) and persons who are employed under contract with third parties to do work in saving property may be disqualified from obtaining salvage reward for their services (q).

Collisions.

850. Compliance with the statutory duty to render assistance to persons in danger at sea does not affect the right of persons rendering such assistance to salvage reward (r), and the statutory obligation on those on board a vessel which has been in collision with another vessel to stand by the other vessel and afford assistance if required (s) does not prevent the assistance so given from ranking as a voluntary service, unless the collision or the consequent damage was caused by the fault of those on board the salving vessel (t), in which case neither the owners nor the crew of the vessel in fault for the collision are entitled to salvage reward for services rendered necessary by the collision (u).

Success.

851. To obtain salvage reward the salvor, as a general rule, must show that his service has been successful. Salvage reward is given for benefits actually conferred, not for a service attempted to be rendered (a). The claimant need not, however, prove that his service alone would have produced the ultimate safety of the subject of the service. It is sufficient for him to show that he materially

(n) Neptune (1824), 1 Hag. Adm. 227, per Lord STOWELL, at p. 236; Cargo ex Schiller (1877), 2 P. D. 145, C. A., per BRETT, L.J., at p. 149; Clan Steam Trawling Co. v. Aberdeen Steam Trawling and Fishing Co., [1908] S. C. 651; and see p. 566, post.

(o) As to the circumstances under which these classes of persons will be treated as salvors, see p. 566, post.

(p) Crouan v. Stanier, [1904] 1 K. B. 87.

(q) The Solway Prince, [1896] P. 120 (where the claimants were persons who had entered into such a contract with the insurers of the vessel); The Pinna (1912), Times, 28th November (persons contracting with canal company). Lifeboatmen employed to render services in saving life may be in this position; see p. 570, post.

(r) Maritime Conventions Act, 1911 (1 & 2 Geo. 5, c. 57), s. 6 (2).

(s) M. S. Act, 1894, s. 422; see pp. 371, 537, ante.

(t) The Hannibal, The Queen (1867), L. R. 2 A. & E. 53. The fact that there is a duty on a ship in collision to stand by whether she was to blame or not may be taken into account in considering whether any salvage reward should be given to her (The Beta, The Peter Graham (1884), 5 Asp. M. L. C. 276, C. A.).

(u) Cargo ex Capella (1867), L. R. 1 A. & E. 356; The Glengaber (1872), L. R. 3 A. & E. 534. This rule applies equally whether the vessel was wholly or partly to blame (ibid.). The Ettrick (1881), 6 P. D. 127, C. A. (owner of ship in fault cannot claim salvage contribution from his cargo); The Duc d'Aumale (No. 2), [1904] P. 60 (tug and tow in fault for collision of tow with third vessel. Neither owners, master, nor crew of tug could claim salvage from tow).

(a) The Zephyrus (1842), 1 Wm. Rob. 329, 330; The "E. U." (1853), 1 Ecc. & Ad. 63, 65; and see The Killeena (1881), 6 P. D. 193, 198; The Camellia (1883), 9 P. D. 27, 29; The City of Chester (1884), 9 P. D. 182, 202, C. A.; The Dart (1899), 8 Asp. M. L. C. 481, 482, 483.

SECT. 3. Conditions of a Salvage Service.

contributed to its ultimate safety (b), and where there is a doubt whether a service has contributed to the ultimate safety, the court inclines to the view that the service has so contributed (c). But if at the termination of the service the subject of the service has been left in a position not less dangerous than that in which it was at the commencement of the service, no salvage reward is recoverable, however meritorious and hazardous the service may have been, and though the property or lives in danger may have been ultimately preserved (d).

Exception.

852. There is one exception to the general rule that a service to be a salvage service must be successful. Where a service has been rendered at the request of the master or other person in charge of a vessel in danger under circumstances from which a promise to pay for the service can be implied, salvage reward is payable for such service if the vessel is ultimately saved, although the service did not contribute to its ultimate safety (e). And where, after such service has begun, and while those who have undertaken it are ready to complete it, the master of the vessel in danger discontinues the service, the service will be rewarded although no material benefit has been derived from it (f). The court may also give some compensation for the loss suffered by reason of the act of the master in preventing the completion of the service (g). The reward given in such cases is strictly a salvage reward. It is not assessed on the basis of a contract for work and labour; and, in the absence of express agreement to the contrary, it is contingent, like all other rewards for salvage proper, on the preservation of the property in danger or some part of it (h).

SECT. 4.—Salvors.

SUB-SECT. 1.—General Rule.

Persons entitled to salvage.

853. The general rule is that all those, and only those, who render personal (i) and voluntary (k) services in the performance of a salvage service are entitled to salvage reward. To this rule, however, there are certain exceptions.

(b) The Jonge Bastiaan (1804), 5 Ch. Rob. 322; The Atlas (1862), Lush. 518, P. C.; The Camellia (1883), 9 P. D. 27; The Hestia, [1895] P. 193; The August Korff, [1903] P. 166.

(c) The "E. U." (1853), 1 Ecc. & Ad. 63; The "Santipore" (1854), 1 Ecc. & Ad. 231.

(d) The Cheerful (1885), 11 P. D. 3; The Benlarig (1888), 14 P. D. 3; The Lepanto, [1892] P. 122; The Dart (1899), 8 Asp. M. L. C. 481.

(e) The Undaunted (1860), Lush. 90; and see The Helvetia (1894), 8 Asp. M. L. C. 264, n.; The Cambrian (1897), 8 Asp. M. L. C. 263; The Dart, supra, at pp. 482, 483, explaining the decision in The Melpomene (1873), L. R. 4 A. & E. 129, on the same grounds.

(f) The Maude (1876), 3 Asp. M. L. C. 338; The Maasdam (1893), 7 Asp. M. L. C. 400.

(g) See pp. 585, 586, post.

(h) See p. 558, ante.

(i) The Charlotte (1848), 3 Wm. Rob. 68, per Dr. LUSHINGTON, at p. 72. Thus a coastguard officer merely sending off sailors to a vessel in danger (Vine (1825), 2 Hag. Adm. 1), or a person who merely hires labourers to assist in unloading a stranded vessel (The Watt (1843), 2 Wm. Rob. 70), is not a salvor; and see H.M.S. Thetis (1833), 3 Hag. Adm. 14, 41, 42, 61.

(k) See pp. 566, 570, post.

SUB-SECT. 2.—Personal Service.

Associates of salvors.

854. The rule of personal service does not extend to the associates of the actual salvors or to the owners of the salving vessel. Members of the crew of a vessel (l) (not being a vessel engaged in public service (a)) who remain on board during the performance of salvage services by other members of the crew, taking no part, but willing, if called upon, to take a part in the services, are entitled to a share in the salvage reward (b). The owner, also, of the salving vessel, though he has taken no personal part in the salvage services, can claim salvage reward if his interests were or might have been to some extent adversely affected by the use of his vessel or the employment of his servants in the salvage services (c). The charterer may stand in the position of the owner of the salving vessel in this respect; whether he does so or not depends upon the terms of the charterparty. If the charterparty amounts to a demise of the vessel (d), or contains express provision entitling the charterer to salvage reward, he is entitled to share as charterer in the reward (e); otherwise he is not (f).

Owner.

Charterer.

Disqualifications from claiming salvage.

855. The owner, charterer, and crew of the salving vessel may, however, be disqualified from claiming salvage reward. The owner or the charterer, as the case may be, of the salving vessel is not entitled to claim salvage reward against the salved vessel if he is also the owner of the salved vessel, or the charterer of it where the charterparty amounts to a demise (g); though he can still claim against the cargo on board the salved vessel (h), unless by the terms of his

(l) This exception only applies to those who properly constitute the crew (The Coriolanus (1890), 15 P. D. 103 (cattlemen); The Minneapolis, [1902] P. 30 (horsemen)). But it includes the non-navigating members of the crew, such as the doctor, stewardesses, bakers and other persons of a like description; see The Spree, [1893] P. 147; The Dunottar Castle, [1902] W. N. 70; The Minneapolis, supra.

(a) H.M.S. Thetis (1833), 3 Hag. Adm. 14, 61; The Emma (1850), 3 Wm. Rob. 151; and see Banda and Kirwee Booty (1866), L. R. 1 A. & E. 109, 135, 250; The Nile (1875), L. R. 4 A. & E. 449.

(b) "It has been the rule of this court, from time immemorial, to allow persons who remain on board a salving ship to be considered as co-salvors, although the court has repeatedly made distinction in favour of those persons who actually have incurred the difficulty and peril of the salvage enterprise" (The Sarah Jane (1843), 2 Wm. Rob. 110, per Dr. LUSHINGTON, at p. 115); see p. 583, post, as to the apportionment of reward to these persons.

(c) Vine (1825), 2 Hag. Adm. 1; The "Norden" (1853), 1 Ecc. & Ad. 185; The Two Friends (1844), 2 Wm. Rob. 349. Where the salving vessel is a steamship, and is herself the principal instrument in effecting the service (as is now generally the case), the owner receives the largest share in the reward; see p. 582, post.

(d) See as to this, p. 85, ante.

(e) The Maria Jane (1850), 14 Jur. 857, 858; The Collier (1866), L. R. 1 A. & E. 83, 85.

(f) The Waterloo (1820), 2 Dods. 433; The Scout (1872), L. R. 3 A. & E. 512.

(g) The Maria Jane, supra; The Collier, supra.

(h) The Miranda (1872), L. R. 3 A. & E. 561; Cargo ex Laertes (1887), 12 P. D. 187; The August Korff, [1903] P. 166.

SECT. 4. Salvors.

contract of carriage of the cargo on the salved vessel he is liable for loss or injury to it, and the salvage service was rendered necessary to save it from loss or injury (i). If, however, only some of part owners of the salving vessel are interested in the salved vessel, the others are entitled to claim salvage reward (k). The inability of the owner or charterer of the salving vessel to claim salvage reward, whether against the ship or against the cargo, in such circumstances, does not affect the right to salvage reward of the master or the crew of the salving vessel (l).

If the salvage services were rendered necessary by the faulty navigation of the salving vessel, neither the owner nor the crew can obtain salvage reward (m); and in that case no distinction is made between those who were and those who were not responsible for the faulty navigation (n). But where a vessel has been injured by collision with another vessel, caused by the fault of the latter vessel, and is salved by a third vessel, the owner as well as the crew of the salving vessel may be entitled to claim as salvors, although the owner is also interested in the vessel at fault for the collision (o).

Special custom and agreement.

Where by the custom of a particular trade, or with regard to vessels of a particular port, or by special agreement, the salving and salved vessels are bound to give mutual protection (p), no salvage reward is recoverable.

SUB-SECT. 3.—Voluntary Service.

Services must be voluntary.

856. The general rule that services in order to give a right to salvage reward must be voluntary (q) has the effect under ordinary circumstances of excluding from any share in a salvage reward the crew, pilot, agent, and passengers of the salved vessel, the owner,

(i) The Glenfruin (1885), 10 P. D. 103.

(k) The Caroline (1861), Lush. 334; and see The Glenfruin, supra.

(l) The "Sappho" (1871), L. R. 3 P. C. 690; and see The Glenfruin, supra. But claims by seamen against a salved vessel which belongs to the owner of their own vessel are not looked upon favourably unless the services rendered by them were of a serious nature (The Agamemnon (1883), 5 Asp. M. L. C. 92).

(m) Cargo ex Capella (1867), L. R. 1 A. & E. 356; and see The Altair, [1897] P. 105; The Harvest Home, [1904] P. 409.

(n) The Duc D'Aumale (No. 2), [1904] P. 60.

(o) The Glengaber (1872), 1 Asp. M. L. C. 401. As to whether this decision is reconcilable with The Glenfruin, supra, see The Duc D'Aumale (No. 2), supra.

(p) The Swan (1839), 1 Wm. Rob. 68, 70. This defence succeeded in Zephyr (1827), 2 Hag. Adm. 43 (Honduras trade); The Harriot (1842), 1 Wm. Rob. 439 (South Sea whaling trade); and The Maria Jane (1850), 14 Jur. 857 (African trade). It failed in The Waterloo (1820), 2 Dods. 433 (vessels of the East India Company), and The Swan (1839), 1 Wm. Rob. 68 (northern whaling fisheries). In The "Africa" (1854), 1 Ecc. & Ad. 299, Dr. LUSHINGTON doubted whether such a custom could prevail with regard to services rendered by a steamship. Strict proof of the custom or agreement will be required (The Waterloo, supra, at p. 436; and see title CUSTOM AND USAGES, Vol. X., p. 271). In the absence of proof of custom or special agreement, there may still be a connexion "between two ships, which though it would not bar a claim for salvage might affect the quantum" (The Collier (1866), L. R. 1 A. & E. 83, 86; see also The Trelawney (1802), 4 Ch. Rob. 223, 227, 228).

(q) See p. 564, ante.

SECT. 4. Salvors.

master, and crew of the tug towing her, and public servants; but there are circumstances in which each of these classes of persons can obtain salvage reward.

Crew.

The crew of the salved vessel may claim as salvors if, prior to the performance of their services, their contracts of service have been terminated (r). Termination of the contract of service may take place through discharge of the seamen by the master (s), or abandonment (t) or hostile capture (a) of the vessel.

Pilots.

857. There must be special circumstances of danger attending the performance of the pilot's duties (b) in order to justify a claim by him as a salvor (c). They may exist at the beginning of the pilotage service (d) or they may supervene afterwards (e). Whenever they occur they must be of such a character as to make it unjust that the pilot should be paid otherwise than by a salvage reward (f). The burden of showing that pilotage services were converted into salvage services rests strongly on the pilot (g). Where, however, a pilot is called upon in any emergency to perform services outside his duties as pilot, such as rendering assistance to a vessel outside his pilotage district, or doing work other than pilotage, he is entitled to be treated as an ordinary salvor (h).

Ship's agents.

858. A ship's agent who renders services in assisting to save the vessel or her cargo may, in spite of his contractual obligation, obtain salvage reward (i). The admission of such claim is based on

(r) The Sappho (1871), L. R. 3 P. C. 690, per Lord STOWELL, at p. 694.

(s) The Warrior (1862), Lush. 476. The discharge will be valid even though improperly given by the master, provided that there is no fraud on the part of the crew in accepting it (ibid., at p. 482).

(t) The abandonment must be final, bonâ fide, and ordered by the master in consequence of danger (The Florence (1852), 16 Jur. 572; The Le Jonet (1872), L. R. 4 A. & E. 556).

(a) The Two Friends (1799), 1 Ch. Rob. 271, 278; The Governor Raffles (1815), 2 Dods. 14, 17, 18 (where Lord STOWELL expressed the view that, while hostile capture did, mutiny did not discharge the contract of service). See the doubts expressed in The Florence, supra, and Beale v. Thompson (1803), 3 Bos. & P. 405, 430.

(b) The Pilotage Act, 1913 (2 & 3 Geo. 5, c. 31), s. 50, re-enacting M. S. Act, 1894, s. 592, imposes a penalty upon any pilot who demands or receives, and upon any master who offers him, any other rate for pilotage than the fixed rate. In many districts the local pilotage authorities have issued bye-laws affecting salvage claims by locally licensed pilots. In some cases there has been special legislation: see, for the Humber, stat. (1832) 2 & 3 Will. 4, c. cv., s. 33; for the Mersey, the Mersey Dock Acts Consolidation Act, 1858 (21 & 22 Vict. c. xcii.), s. 163, and Mersey Docks Act, 1881 (44 & 45 Vict. c. xlix.), s. 19; and for the Bristol Channel, Bristol Channel Pilotage Act, 1861 (24 & 25 Vict. c. ccxxxvi.), ss. 36, 37.

(c) The "Rosehaugh" (1854), 1 Ecc. & Ad. 267; The Æolus (1873), L. R. 4 A. & E. 29, 31; The Monarch (1886), 12 P. D. 5; The Aglaia (1888), 13 P. D. 160. See also p. 604, post, and for the general principles affecting claims by pilots, The Joseph Harvey (1799), 1 Ch. Rob. 306; Akerblom v. Price (1881), 7 Q. B. D. 129, C. A.

(d) The Jonge Andries (1857), Sw. 226; affirmed (1857), Sw. 303, P. C.

(e) Newman v. Walters (1804), 3 Bos. & P. 612, 616.

(f) Akerblom v. Price, supra.

(g) The Æolus, supra, at p. 31.

(h) The Hebe (1844), 2 Wm. Rob. 246.

(i) Happy Return (1828), 2 Hag. Adm. 198; The Favourite (1844), 2

SECT. 4. Salvors.

public policy (k). His claim may, it seems, be entertained even where he has incurred no personal risk and has made no extraordinary exertion (l).

Passengers.

859. A passenger who remains on board a vessel in danger, being bound by a moral duty as well as by the interest of self-preservation to work for the safety of the vessel, is not entitled to claim as a salvor, unless he elects to remain on board and render assistance where he has the means of leaving, or unless he renders some special service, such as taking command of the vessel (m).

Tug.

860. The position of a tug under a contract to tow the salved vessel as regards salvage is very similar to that of the pilot of the salved vessel (n), in that circumstances existing at the beginning of the towage service or supervening afterwards may convert a towage into a salvage service. If at the time when the towage contract was entered into material facts affecting the danger of the tow or the danger or the difficulty of the towage service, such as make it unjust to expect the towage service to be undertaken at a towage rate, were not disclosed to the owner of the tug or his representative making the contract, the towage contract is disregarded and the service is treated as a salvage service (o). If, also, during the towage the tow becomes in danger, through no fault of the tug, and the tug then renders services, in the nature of salvage services, such as could not reasonably be held to be within the intention of the towage contract, by means of which the ship is brought into a place of safety, the towage contract is superseded by the right to salvage reward (p); but a slight departure from the way in which the towage contract was to be performed does not convert towage services into salvage services, and the strictest proof of the circumstances which lead to such a claim is required (q). In no case

Wm. Rob. 255; Purissima Concepcion (1849), 3 Wm. Rob. 181; Cargo ex Honor (1866), L R. 1 A. & E. 87; The Kate B. Jones, [1892] P. 366. In The Watt (1843), 2 Wm. Rob. 70, The Lively (1848), 3 Wm. Rob. 64, and The Crusader, [1907] P. 15, 196, C. A., the claim was rejected.

(k) Purissima Concepcion, supra, per Dr. LUSHINGTON.

(l) See Happy Return (1828), 2 Hag. Adm. 198; Purissima Concepcion, supra; Cargo ex Honor, supra.

(m) Newman v. Walters (1804), 3 Bos. & P. 612 (taking command of a vessel on the rocks); Branston (1826), 2 Hag. Adm. 3, n.; The Vrede (1861), Lush. 322; and see Towle v. The Great Eastern (1861), 2 Mar. L. C. 148 (devising and rigging temporary steering gear); The Merrimac (1868), 18 L. T. 92 (soldiers on troopships by organised efforts prevent ships from sinking).

(n) The Saratoga (1861), Lush. 318, 321.

(o) Akerblom v. Price (1881), 7 Q. B. D. 129, 132, C. A.; and compare The "Kingalock" (1854), Ecc. & Ad. 263; The Canova (1866), L. R. 1 A. & E. 54.

(p) See The Minnehaha (1861), Lush. 335, P. C.; The Annapolis (1861), Lush. 355, P. C.; The White Star (1866), L. R. 1 A. & E. 68; Five Steel Barges (1890), 15 P. D. 142; The Liverpool. [1893] P. 154; The Westburn (1896), 8 Asp. M. L. C. 130; The Emilie Galline, [1903] P. 106; The Aboukir (1905), 21 T. L. R. 200; The Glenmorven, [1913] P. 141 (towage contract expressly stating "no claim to be made for salvage" superseded); and see The Liverpool, supra, per GORELL BARNES, J., at p. 160, for a statement of the proposition to be found in the cases.

(q) The Galatea (1858), Sw. 349; The Minnehaha, supra, at p. 348; The Liverpool, supra, at p. 164; The Maréchal Suchet, [1911] P. 1.

where the danger of the tow has been created or materially contributed to by the misconduct or negligence or lack of reasonable skill or reasonable equipments on the part of the tug will the owner or crew of the tug be entitled to salvage reward (r), even though the tow has been guilty of contributory negligence (s).

Officers and men of Royal Navy.

861. Officers and men of the Royal Navy, though bound, as public servants, to perform active services for the protection of British ships, their cargo, and the lives on board (t), may be required to perform services which are not within the ordinary scope of their duties. In such cases they are entitled to salvage reward for their personal services (a) upon the same basis as other salvors (b); but no claim can be made in respect of any loss, damage, or risk caused to His Majesty's ship in rendering the service, or for any loss or expense sustained by His Majesty by reason of the service (c).

Public officers.

862. Magistrates and other persons holding a public office or appointment can only obtain salvage reward in respect of services clearly outside the scope of their official duties (d).

Coastguards.

863. Officers and men of the Coastguard Service have placed on them the duty of watching and protecting shipwrecked property, for which services they receive fixed remuneration (e). If, however, they

(r) The Minnehaha (1861), Lush. 335, 348, P. C.; The Undaunted (1886), 54 L. T. 542; The Robert Dixon (1879), 4 P. D. 121; affirmed, 5 P. D. 54, C. A.; The Altair, [1897] P. 105; The Duc D'Aumale (No. 2), [1904] P. 60; The Harvest Home, [1904] P. 409.

(s) The Altair, supra; The Adam W. Spies (1901), 70 L. J. (P.) 25; The Duc d'Aumale (No. 2), supra.

(t) The Charlotte Wylie (1846), 2 Wm. Rob. 495, per Dr. LUSHINGTON, at p. 497: "It is, I apprehend, notorious that it forms part of the instructions of every one of His Majesty's vessels that they shall render assistance to British vessels in distress." The quelling of a mutiny on board a merchant ship has been held to be within the scope of their duty (Francis and Eliza (1816), 2 Dods. 115). As to a vessel belonging to the Bombay Marine (Indian Marine) being regarded as a King's ship, see The Dalhousie (1875), 1 P. D. 271, n.; Cargo ex Woosung (1876), 1 P. D. 260, C. A.; and see the Indian Marine Service Act, 1884 (47 & 48 Vict. c. 38).

(a) Cargo ex Ulysses (1888), 13 P. D. 205; and see Louisa (1813), 1 Dods. 317; The Iodine (1844), 3 Notes of Cases, 140 (where the importance of the service as justifying such salvage claim is emphasised); The Alma (1861), Lush. 378, 381). By the M. S. Act, 1894, s. 557, the written consent of the Admiralty to the claim is required. As to the right of action in personam in the case of salvage services by one of His Majesty's ships, and the procedure in the case of salvage services by such ship abroad, see M. S. Act, 1894, ss. 557—564.

(b) The Wilsons (1841), 1 Wm. Rob. 172; The Domira (1913), 29 T. L. R. 557.

(c) M. S. Act, 1894, s. 557. This provision was held to apply to a vessel of the Bombay Marine (The Dalhousie, supra), but not to apply to a vessel belonging to Ramsgate Harbour and vested in the Board of Trade (The Cybele (1877), 2 P. D. 224; affirmed (1878), 3 P. D. 8; but see, as to this case, Young v. Steamship Scotia (1903), 9 Asp. M. L. C. 485, 488, P. C.).

(d) The Aquila (1798), 1 Ch. Rob. 37, per Sir W. SCOTT, at pp. 46—49 (dismissing the claim of a magistrate); Purissima Concepcion (1849), 3 Wm. Rob. 181, 184.

(e) M. S. Act, 1894, ss. 567, 568. And see the Board of Trade

SECT. 4. Salvors.

render services of the nature of salvage services beyond the scope of their official duties, they are entitled (f) to be treated as ordinary salvors in respect of those services (g).

Receivers of wreck.

864. A receiver of wreck can claim as salvor in respect of services rendered by him only where his services were outside his prescribed duties (h). But a substitute of a receiver of wreck is not deprived by reason of acting for him of any right to salvage reward (i).

Lifeboat crews.

865. The members of lifeboat crews are paid for services rendered in saving life by the Royal National Lifeboat Institution (k). But if when they reach a vessel in distress their services are required for the salvage of property alone, they are entitled to rank as salvors in respect of such services, being treated as having borrowed the lifeboat for the services (l). In that case lifeboatmen who merely assist in launching the lifeboat may be entitled to reward (m).

SECT. 5.—Agreements as to Salvage.

SUB-SECT. 1.—Salvage Agreement.

Salvage agreements.

866. A salvage agreement is an agreement which fixes the amount to be paid to the salvor for his services, but leaves untouched all the other conditions necessary to support a salvage award, one of which is the preservation of some part at least of the property in peril (n).

Form of agreement.

The agreement need not be in writing (o), but it must be clearly proved (p). It must state the services to be performed and the reward for them (q). An agreement merely to refer to arbitration does not oust the jurisdiction of the court (r). The agreement when

Proof.

Instructions in respect of wreck and salvage and the Admiralty Coastguard Instructions.

(f) As to the written consent of the Admiralty prior to a final adjudication upon their claims, see M. S. Act, 1894, s. 557.

(g) Charlotta (1831), 2 Hag. Adm. 361; London Merchant (1837), 3 Hag. Adm. 394; Silver Bullion (1854), 2 Ecc. & Ad. 70. See also Pritchard's Admiralty Digest, 3rd ed. (1887), Vol. II., p. 1920.

(h) M. S. Act, 1894, s. 567. For his duties with regard to vessels in distress, see ibid., ss. 511, 512, and the Board of Trade Instructions, and for his fees, M. S. Act, 1894, s. 567.

(i) Ibid., s. 516 (2).

(k) See the Regulations of the Institution.

(l) The Auguste Legembre, [1902] P. 123; The Cayo Bonito, [1904] P. 310. The burden of showing that their position has changed from that of salvors of life to that of salvors of property rests on the lifeboatmen (The Marguerite Molinos, [1903] P. 160 (where the claim failed)).

(m) The Cayo Bonito, supra.

(n) Kennedy, Civil Salvage, 2nd ed., p. 42; The Hestia, [1895] P. 193, 199. For precedent of a salvage agreement approved by the Committee of Lloyd's, see Encyclopædia of Forms and Precedents, Vol. XIV., p. 167.

(o) The Graces (1844), 2 Wm. Rob. 294; The Arthur (1862), 6 L. T. 556, 558; The Cumbrian (1887), 6 Asp. M. L. C. 151.

(p) The Graces, supra, at p. 297.

(q) The William Lushington (1850), 7 Notes of Cases, 361, 363.

(r) Purissima Concepcion (1849), 3 Wm. Rob. 181; and see The City of Calcutta (1898), 8 Asp. M. L. C. 442, C. A.

duly proved is primâ facie binding, and the burden of proof lies upon the party trying to set it aside (s).

SECT. 5. Agreements as to Salvage.

867. A salvage agreement is set aside if it has been obtained by fraud (t), or by misstatement or non-disclosure, whether intentional or not (a), of a material fact, affecting, or not unlikely to affect, the danger of the property, or the risk, difficulty, or duration of the salvage service (b); and salvors are not held bound by an agreement where supervening circumstances, without the fault of either party, render the performance of the agreed service impossible, or where the service actually rendered was of a wholly different character from the agreed service (c).

Fraud or misrepresentation.

Non-performance of agreement.

It may be set aside also, as being inequitable, where the reward fixed by it is exorbitant (d) or inadequate (e). Where exorbitancy is the ground of a claim to set aside the agreement, the existence of circumstances showing that the master of the salved vessel was virtually compelled to enter into the agreement, though by no means essential (f), is an important factor in obtaining the avoidance of the agreement (g). The court does not, however, set aside an agreement merely because it would have awarded a rather larger or smaller sum than that fixed by the agreement, or because, in the events that happened, the services were more or less dangerous, difficult, or lengthened than was anticipated by either party at the time of the making of the agreement (h).

Exorbitancy or inadequacy.

A settlement made after services have been performed is not binding on the salvor if the reward to be paid is very inadequate, and either the salvor is an ignorant person who did

(s) The Helen and George (1858), Sw. 368, 369; The Medina (1876), 2 P. D. 5, 7, C. A.; Akerblom v. Price (1881), 7 Q. B. D. 129, 132, 133, C. A.

(t) The Henry (1851), 15 Jur. 183; The Helen and George, supra, at p. 369. For examples, see The Crus. V. (1862), Lush. 583 (bribe to agents of salved vessel); The Generous (1868), L. R. 2 A. & E. 57 (bribe to master of salving vessel); The Kolpino (1904), 73 L. J. (P.) 29, 30 (bribe to master of salved vessel). As to an agreement for salvage of ship and not cargo, see The Westminster (1841), 1 Wm. Rob. 229, 235.

(a) The "Kingalock" (1854), 1 Ecc. & Ad. 263, 265; The Canova (1866), L. R. 1 A. & E. 54.

(b) The "Kingalock," supra. For instances of concealment of facts held in the circumstances to be immaterial, see The Henry, supra (value of salved cargo); The Jonge Andries (1857), Sw. 226, 303, P. C.; The Canova, supra (illness of some of salved crew). As to the first case, see Kennedy, Civil Salvage, 2nd ed., pp. 228—231.

(c) The Westbourne (1889), 14 P. D. 132, C. A.; and see The Hestia, [1895] P. 193.

(d) The Henry, supra; The Theodore (1858), Sw. 351; Cargo ex Woosung (1876), 1 P. D. 260, 270, C. A.; Akerblom v. Price, supra; The Strathgarry, [1895] P. 264, 270. In The Crusader, [1907] P. 15, 196, C. A., the agreement was set aside though it was the deliberate choice of the master of the salved ship.

(e) The Phantom (1866), L. R. 1 A. & E. 58; and see The Henry, supra.

(f) The True Blue (1843), 2 Wm. Rob. 176, 179; Akerblom v. Price, supra, at pp. 132, 133; but see Cargo ex Woosung, supra, at pp. 263, 264; compare also The Rialto, [1891] P. 175, 178, 179.

(g) Silver Bullion (1854), 2 Ecc. & Ad. 70.

(h) The Medina, supra; The Mark Lane (1890), 15 P. D. 135; The Rialto,

SECT. 5. Agreements as to Salvage.

not appreciate the value of his services (i) or the circumstances in which the settlement was made are not satisfactorily explained (k).

Cancellation of agreement.

868. The agreement may be cancelled by mutual consent (l), evidenced by express agreement between the parties (m) or by conduct from which such consent will be inferred (n). The burden of proof of cancellation lies upon the party setting it up (o).

SUB-SECT. 2.—Persons Bound by a Salvage Agreement.

Owner of salved vessel.

869. The owner of the salved ship is generally bound by a salvage agreement entered into by the master (p), the latter having an implied authority to bind his owner for all that is reasonably necessary for the successful navigation of the ship (q). But the shipowner is not bound by it where he was easily accessible and gave no authority to the master to enter into it (r), or where in the circumstances the agreement was not reasonably necessary (s), or where the terms of the agreement show that it is not for the benefit of the shipowner (t). The implied authority to bind the owner is limited to the master or other person properly acting in command of the ship. To support a salvage agreement made by any other person strict proof of agency is required (a).

Owner and crew of salved vessel.

The owner (b) of the salving vessel, at least where he is not accessible and the master has no means of communicating with [1891] P. 175; The Altair, [1897] P. 175; The Port Caledonia and The Anna, [1903] P. 184.

(i) The True Blue (1843), 2 Wm. Rob. 176, 180; The Cato (1866), 35 L. J. (ADM.) 116, 117; The Waverley (1871), L. R. 3 A. & E. 369; The Strathgarry, [1895] P. 264, 271. For precedent of a clause in a salvage agreement with reference to objections to amount of remuneration, see Encyclopædia of Forms and Precedents, Vol. XIV., p 171.

(k) The Macgregor Laird, [1867] W. N. 308.

(l) The Repulse (1845), 2 Wm. Rob. 396, 397.

(m) The "Africa" (1854), 1 Ecc. & Ad. 299.

(n) The Samuel (1851), 15 Jur. 407.

(o) The Betsey (1843), 2 Wm. Rob. 167, 172.

(p) The Henry (1851), 15 Jur. 183; The "Africa," supra; The Waverley (1871), L. R. 3 A. & E. 369.

(q) Anderson v. Ocean Steamship Co. (1884), 10 App. Cas. 107, 116; Beldon v. Campbell (1851), 6 Exch. 886; and see p. 66, ante.

(r) The Elise (1859), Sw. 436, 440; see also Beldon v. Campbell, supra.

(s) The Mariposa, [1896] P. 273; The Renpor (1883), 8 P. D. 115, 118, C. A.

(t) As, for example, an agreement to save lives without property (The Mariposa, supra, at p. 280; and see The Kilmaho (1900), 16 T. L. R. 155, C. A. (agreement to pay where no liability)). As to the master's power to bind his owner to submit the amount of reward to arbitration, see The City of Calcutta (1898), 8 Asp. M. L. C. 442, C. A.

(a) In The Crus. V. (1862), Lush. 583, the master of a ship in distress on a foreign coast and ignorant of the language was held to be entitled to delegate his authority to make a salvage agreement to the vice-consul of the flag to which the ship belonged.

(b) The Britain (1839), 1 Wm. Rob. 40, 43; The "Africa," supra, at p. 300. As to the master's power to bind his owner to submit the amount to arbitration, see The City of Calcutta, supra.

him (c), and the crew (d) are bound by a salvage agreement made by the master (e) with regard to future services (f). They are not bound by an agreement made by him after services have been performed in respect of which a right to salvage reward has arisen (f). The owner of the salving vessel has the same limited power to bind the master and crew by a salvage agreement, that is to say, he can bind them by agreement as to future, but not as to past, services (g). If a salvage agreement is entered into by the master affecting both past and future services, that part of it which relates to the past services will be set aside and the rest will be given effect to if it is otherwise valid (h).

SECT. 5. Agreements as to Salvage.

The owner of cargo on board the salved vessel is not bound by a salvage agreement made by the master, and it is open to him to dispute the reasonableness of the reward fixed by it (i).

Owners of cargo.

Where salvage services are performed by a number of different salvors or sets of salvors, one of them has no authority to bind the others by a salvage agreement (k).

Different salvors.

SUB-SECT. 3.—Agreements for Apportionment.

870. An agreement between salvors as to the apportionment of the salvage reward amongst themselves, whether made before (l) or after (m) the services have begun, is binding upon them, if it has been made fairly and honestly (n); and the court does not set aside such an agreement merely because it would not have made the same apportionment (o). At the same time the court is careful to protect seamen from improvident arrangements (p), and sets aside such agreements whenever they are shown to be inequitable (q).

Binding nature.

A seaman is prevented by statute (r) from abandoning by any Abandonment of claim.

(c) The Elise (1859), Sw. 436, 440.

(d) See The Elise, supra; The Macgregor Laird, [1867] W. N. 308; The Nasmyth (1885), 10 P. D. 41; and The Inchmaree, [1899] P. 111, explaining The Britain (1839), 1 Wm. Rob. 40, and The Sarah Jane (1843), 2 Wm. Rob. 110, where the crew were held not to be so bound.

(e) The master of a King's ship ought not to make an agreement (Cargo ex Woosung (1876), 1 P. D. 260, C. A.).

(f) The Inchmaree, supra; and see The Margery, [1902] P. 157; The Friesland, [1904] P. 345.

(g) The Inchmaree, supra.

(h) Anderson v. Ocean Steamship Co. (1884), 10 App. Cas. 107, 117.

(i) The Friesland, supra. Where both salving and salved vessels are insured in associations under the articles of which salvage reward is to be mutually settled by committees of the associations, the arrangement does not bind the master and crew (The Margery, supra).

(k) The Charlotte (1848), 3 Wm. Rob. 8, 74.

(l) The James Armstrong (1875), 3 Asp. M. L. C. 46; The Sunniside (1883), 8 P. D. 137; The Wilhelm Tell, [1892] P. 337.

(m) The Afrika (1880), 5 P. D. 192.

(n) The Enchantress (1860), Lush. 93; The Afrika, supra, at p. 196.

(o) The Afrika, supra.

(p) The Wilhelm Tell, supra, at p. 348.

(q) The Beulah (1842), 1 Wm. Rob. 477; The Louisa (1843), 2 Wm. Rob. 22.

(r) M. S. Act, 1894, s. 156 (1), (2); see p. 54, ante. The corresponding provision, M. S. Act, 1854 (17 & 18 Vict. c. 104), s. 182, was held agreement any right he may have or obtain in the nature of salvage, whether such agreement is made before or after the performance of the salvage service (s), though this does not affect a stipulation (t) by a seaman belonging to a ship which, by the terms of the agreement, is to be employed on salvage service, with regard to the salvage remuneration to be paid to him (a); such an agreement, if it is equitable and honestly made, will be binding upon him (b), but will be required to be strictly proved (c). There is also statutory prohibition against assignment or sale of salvage reward payable to a seaman or apprentice prior to the accrual of it (d).

SECT. 5. Agreements as to Salvage.

Particular usages as to division.

An agreement for the division of salvage rewards may be implied from the usage of a particular locality or occupation (e). Such an agreement will be upheld only if it is equitable (e).

SECT. 6.—Salvage Reward.

SUB-SECT. 1.—General Principles.

Amount of reward.

871. The amount of the salvage reward (f), in the absence of special contract, is limited to the value of the property or the interest in property salved (g). Subject to that limitation, the amount of the reward, unless it is fixed by agreement (h), is in the not to affect equitable agreements by seamen for the apportionment of salvage reward (The Wilhelm Tell, [1892] P. 337); nor did it apply where a settlement had been effected by a solicitor employed by seamen to negotiate with the owners for division of the salvage (The Afrika (1880), 5 P. D. 152). An agreement between owner and crew that before division of the salvage reward the owner shall be entitled to deduct from the amount of the reward the cost of repairing damage sustained by the salved vessel in the service is void as being inconsistent with the statutory provision (The Saltburn (1894), 7 Asp. M. L. C. 474; and see The Wilhelm Tell, supra).

(s) The Rosario (1876), 2 P. D. 41, 45.

(t) Neither the stipulation nor the agreement need be in writing (The Pride of Canada (1863), Brown. & Lush. 208).

(a) M. S. Act, 1894, s. 156 (2). As to the corresponding provision, M. S. Amendment Act, 1862, s. 18, see The Ganges (1869), L. R. 2 A. & E. 370. A vessel is not within the exception merely because its articles contain a provision regulating the division of salvage rewards (The Wilhelm Tell, supra (trawler)).

(b) The Ganges, supra.

(c) The Pride of Canada, supra.

(d) M. S. Act, 1894, s. 212; see p. 54, ante.

(e) The Enchantress (1860), Lush. 93, 97. A custom on the east coast that boatmen and a tug should share the reward equally is not inequitable (The Sandsend (1903), Shipping Gazette, 22nd May, cited in Kennedy, Civil Salvage, 2nd ed., p. 262). A custom excluding from a share in the reward those in the fishing trade who receive wages is inequitable (The John (1846), Pritchard's Admiralty Digest (1887), 3rd ed., Vol. II., p. 1890). And see The Sarah (1878), 3 P. D. 39, where a custom was alleged to exist at Liverpool fixing the percentage of the reward due to the master and crew of a tug.

(f) A salvor's claim survives in favour of his personal representative (Marquis of Huntly (1835), 3 Hag. Adm. 246; The Anna Helena (1883), 5 Asp. M. L. C. 142).

(g) Cargo ex Schiller (1877), 2 P. D. 145, C. A.

(h) As to agreements, see p. 570, ante.

discretion of the court (i). As a general rule, where the owner of the salved property appears the court will not award the salvor more than a moiety of the value of the salved property, whether such property be derelict (k) or not (l).

Assessment by court.

872. The court, in assessing the reward, endeavours to combine liberality to the salvor with justice to the owner of the salved property (m). It regards not merely the work done in the performance of the salvage service, but the general interests of navigation and commerce (n). Thus it looks with favour on salvage services rendered by steamships on account of their efficiency as instruments of salvage (o), and more particularly on such services when rendered by steamships built and maintained for salvage services (p); and services rendered to passenger vessels (a) and by foreigners to British vessels (b) are liberally treated. On the other hand, as one of the main reasons why salvage remuneration is high is that unless the vessel in danger is saved no remuneration is payable at all, salvors who have acted under an agreement which entitled them to such remuneration independently of success are not rewarded on the liberal scale applicable to other salvors (c).

SUB-SECT. 2.—Circumstances Affecting the Reward.

Circumstances affecting reward.

873. Apart from the general considerations above stated, there are certain circumstances which, when present, always affect the amount of the reward fixed by the court (d). Upon the degree in

(i) Ewell Grove (1835), 3 Hag. Adm. 209, 221; The Cuba (1860), Lush. 14, 15; The City of Chester (1884), 9 P. D. 182, 187, C. A. For a list of salvage rewards, see Pritchard's Admiralty Digest (1887), 3rd ed., Vol. II., pp. 1920—2118; and Kennedy, Civil Salvage, 2nd ed., p. 264. The M. S. Act, 1894, s. 544, prescribes the payment of a "reasonable amount of salvage."

(k) For examples of awards in cases of derelict exceeding a moiety, see The Rasche (1873), L. R. 4 A. & E. 127; Boiler ex Elephant (1891), 64 L. T. 543 (but in this case judgment was allowed to go by default, and there were charges which reduced the sum ultimately received by the salvors to £37 2*s*. 3*d*.); The Louisa, [1906] P. 145 (where the whole of the net proceeds of sale of ship and cargo were awarded).

(l) But see The Erato (1888), 13 P. D. 163. In The Mercator (1910), 26 T. L. R. 450, where the owners appeared, but did not put in a defence, the whole value was awarded.

(m) H.M.S. Thetis (1833), 3 Hag. Adm. 14, 62.

(n) The William Beckford (1801), 3 Ch. Rob. 355, per Lord STOWELL, at p. 356; Industry (1835), 3 Hag. Adm. 203, per Sir J. NICHOLL, at p. 204; The City of Chester, supra, per LINDLEY, L.J., at p. 203.

(o) The Ella Constance (1864), 33 L. J. (P. M. & A.) 189, 193.

(p) See, for example, The Glengyle, [1898] P. 97, C. A.; affirmed, [1898] A. C. 519 (award of £19,000 on a salved value of £76,596).

(a) Ardincaple (1834), 3 Hag. Adm. 151, 153; The Werra (1886), 12 P. D. 52, 55.

(b) Salacia (1829), 2 Hag. Adm. 262, 270.

(c) The Lepanto, [1892] P. 122; The Kate B. Jones, [1892] P. 366; The Edenmore, [1893] P. 79.

(d) The Charlotte (1848), 3 Wm. Rob. 68, 71, per Dr. LUSHINGTON, "the many and diverse ingredients of a salvage service." There is divergence of judicial opinion as to the relative importance of these circumstances. Chief importance was attached in The William Beckford, supra, per Lord STOWELL, at p. 356 to the risk to salvors; London which these circumstances or any of them are present the amount of the reward largely depends.

SECT. 6. Salvage Reward.

Danger to life.

874. The first consideration is the existence of danger to life, whether on board the salving or the salved vessel, arising either from the position from which the salved property has been rescued or from the performance of the salvage service (e). Salvage reward for the saving of human life is payable by the shipowner in priority to all other claims for salvage reward (f).

Danger to property.

875. The degree of danger from which property has been salved has a great influence upon the amount of the reward (g). Danger may arise from manifold conditions, such as the character and condition of the salved vessel and her cargo, the number, capacity, and condition of the crew, the nature of the locality, the master's knowledge of it, the season of the year, the state and prospect of the weather, the absence of other means of salvage. The greatest danger generally attaches to derelict property. In some cases of derelict (h) as much as a moiety or thereabouts (i), and in a few cases of exceptional character more than a moiety, of the value of the salved property has been awarded (k), and the award is rarely less than one-third of the salved value, unless the salved value is very large (l).

Value of property salved.

876. The value of the salved property is an important consideration in the assessment of reward (m); but it will not raise the reward out of due proportion to the services rendered (n). If the value is large, the amount of the reward is usually a smaller proportion to the value than if the value is small (o). As, however,

Merchant (1837), 3 Hag. Adm. 394, per Sir J. NICHOLL, at p. 395, to the risk to salved property; The Werra (1886), 12 P. D. 52, per HANNEN, J., at p. 53, to the value of salved property; The City of Chester (1884), 9 P. D. 182, C. A., per LINDLEY, L.J., at p. 202, to (1) the risk to salvors and salved property; (2) the value of salved property.

(e) The Thomas Fielden (1862), 32 L. J. (P. M. & A.) 61, 62.

(f) M. S. Act, 1894, s. 544 (2).

(g) As to separate awards where ship, cargo and freight have been exposed to different degrees of danger, see The Velox, [1906] P. 263 (cargo of herrings).

(h) The former practice was to award a moiety; see The Blenden-Hall (1814), 1 Dods. 414, 421; Effort (1834), 3 Hag. Adm. 165, 167. But now the fact of the salved property being derelict is merely an ingredient to be considered in assessing the reward; see Papayanni v. Hocquard, The "True Blue" (1866), L. R. 1 P. C. 250, 256; The Anna Helena (1883), 5 Asp. M. L. C. 142; The Janet Court, [1897] P. 59, 62, 63 (three special elements usually present in the case of a derelict are high degree of danger to property salved, special difficulty of approaching and aiding her, necessity of supplying part of salvor's crew to work her).

(i) See The Livietta (1883), 8 P. D. 24; The Janet Court, supra.

(k) See note (k), p. 575, ante.

(l) See, for example, The "Amérique" (1874), L. R. 6 P. C. 468 (£18,000 on a value of £190,000).

(m) The "Amérique," supra, at p. 475; The City of Chester, supra, at p. 202.

(n) The "Amérique," supra, at p. 475; The Glengyle, [1898] P. 97, 103, C. A.

(o) The "Amérique," supra; The City of Chester, supra.

the small value of salved property often renders it impossible to give adequate reward (p), when the value is large a liberal reward is generally given in order to encourage the performance of salvage services (q).

Care, skill and knowledge.

877. The salvor is required to show the reasonable degree of care, skill, and knowledge to be expected from a person in his position (r); and if, through the absence of it, the owner of the salved property suffers loss, the reward is less than it otherwise would be (s). Where, however, there are any mitigating circumstances, such as a sudden emergency, allowance may be made for them in measuring the degree of care, skill, and knowledge required, and the fact that resulting damage arose in rendering assistance which was invited by the salvor may be taken into consideration (t).

Misconduct.

878. Misconduct on the part of salvors diminishes the reward and may cause forfeiture of all claim to reward (a). The burden of proof of misconduct lies upon those who allege it, and strict proof of it is required (b). The misconduct need not, in order to affect the reward, have occasioned actual damage (c). The mere demand of an extravagant reward may be such misconduct as to reduce the reward (d).

Negligence.

879. Where actual loss or damage results from want of the requisite care, skill, or knowledge, or from misconduct, the reward, if it is not reduced by the amount of such loss or damage (e), will be diminished by an amount proportionate to the degree of negligence, unskilfulness, ignorance, or misconduct proved (f).

Value of salving property.

880. The value of the property employed in the salvage service is an important element in the assessment of the reward (g). It is

(p) See The Erato (1888), 13 P. D. 163.
(q) The Earl of Eglinton (1855), Sw. 7, 8.
(r) The Lockwoods (1845), 9 Jur. 1017, 1018.
(s) See The "Rosalie" (1853), 1 Ecc. & Ad. 185 (damage caused by ignorance); The Perla (1857), Sw. 230 (bringing a derelict into an unsafe harbour); The Magdalen (1861), 31 L. J. (P. M. & A.) 22; The Dwina, [1892] P. 58 (collision between salved and salving vessels). In the last case the full amount of damage was deducted.
(t) The C. S. Butler, The Baltic (1874), 2 Asp. M. L. C. 237, 238, 239.
(a) The Magdalen, supra; The Atlas (1862), Lush. 518, P. C.; see also for instances Dantzic Packet (1837), 3 Hag. Adm. 383, and The Martha (1859), Sw. 489 (interfering with additional salvors); The Yan-Yean (1883), 8 P. D. 147 (refusing to take the master of the vessel on board of her and to accept a tug's services); The Capella, [1892] P. 70 (improperly retaining possession of ship and cargo). In The Pinnas (1888), 6 Asp. M. L. C. 313 (improperly refusing to surrender possession of the salved property), the salvors were deprived of costs.
(b) The Atlas, supra, at p. 529.
(c) The Glory (1849), 13 Jur. 991; The Marie (1882), 7 P. D. 203, 205.
(d) The George Gordon (1884), 9 P. D. 46 (salvors ordered to pay costs of excessive bail).
(e) See, for example, The C. S. Butler, The Baltic, supra; The Dwina, supra.
(f) The Cape Packet (1848), 3 Wm. Rob. 122, 125; The Perla, supra, at p. 231.
(g) The City of Chester (1884), 9 P. D. 182, C. A.; The Werra (1885), 12 P. D. 52, 54.

SECT. 6. Salvage Reward.

not, however, the measure or limit of the reward (h). Where the value is small it has little influence. The value of the cargo on board affects the reward only in so far as it increases the risks and responsibilities of the owner of the salving vessel.

Risk to salving property.

881. Intimately connected with the value of the salving property and its influence on the reward is the risk to which the salving property is exposed by the performance of the salvage service; and this is an important consideration (i).

Apart from the actual danger to the salving property, there are certain risks and responsibilities incurred by the salvor which are considered in the assessment of the reward. They include the risk of forfeiture of a policy of insurance, contractual liability to the owners of cargo on board the salving vessel through deviation to save property (k), and the responsibility involved in the use of passenger and mail steamships for salvage service (l).

Where any serious risk or responsibility is found to have been involved in the performance of the salvage service special consideration is shown to the claim of the master of the salving vessel as well as to that of the owner (m).

Length of salvage operations.

882. The length of the salvage operations is not in general a very important element for consideration, unless the services are dangerous or involve protracted exertion (n); though the additional loss or expense incurred by salvors by reason of the duration of their services is taken into consideration in the assessment of the reward (o).

Labour involved.

The labour involved in the salvage service is an important element only so far as it is accompanied by the exercise of skill, or by danger, or responsibility (p).

Loss or expense of salvor.

883. In addition to his reward the salvor is ordinarily entitled to recover a reasonable sum in respect of loss or expense resulting to him from the performance of the salvage service (q). But the claim for loss or expense is not allowed to be proved, and is not considered, with any degree of exactness (r). The court is content to obtain a general idea of the claim, and allows a reasonable sum, (h) The Fusilier (1865), Brown. & Lush. 341, 350.

(i) The City of Chester (1884), 9 P. D. 182, C. A.; The Werra (1886), 12 P. D. 52.

(k) Carmichael v. Brodie, The "Sir Ralph Abercrombie" (1867), L. R. 1 P. C. 454; Scaramanga v. Stamp (1880), 5 C. P. D. 295, C. A.; The Farnley Hall (1881), 4 Asp. M. L. C. 499, C. A.; The Edenmore, [1893] P. 79. Deviation to save life does not involve risk to insurance or liability to owners of cargo; see Scaramanga v. Stamp, supra.

(l) The Martin Luther (1857), Sw. 287, 289. For an instance of penalties incurred by salvors in respect of the carriage of mails, see The Silesia (1880), 5 P. D. 177.

(m) See p. 583, post.

(n) The Thomas Fielden (1862), 32 L. J. (P. M. & A.) 61, 62; The Strathgarry, [1895] P. 264, 270.

(o) See the text, infra.

(p) Hence the seaman ordinarily receives less than the officer.

(q) "Salvage" includes "all expenses properly incurred by the salvor in the performance of the salvage services" (M. S. Act, 1894, s. 510).

(r) The Pinnas (1888), 6 Asp. M. L. C. 313, per HANNEN, P., at p. 315.

if any, in respect of it (s). The allowance varies according to the importance of the salvage service and the value of the salved property (t). It may be given in the form of a separate award, but the common practice is to include it in the general award (u). The losses and expenses recoverable in this manner include expenses reasonably incurred in bringing the salved property into a place of safety (v), and expenses, such as the cost of repairing damage (w), loss by detention during repairs (x), depreciation in value of the salving vessel (a), penalties under contract (b), and loss of profits (c), caused by the performance of the salvage service (d). If the damage which necessitated repairs occurred during the salvage service, the inference is that the damage resulted directly from the service, and the burden of proof lies upon those who dispute it (e).

SUB-SECT. 3.—Recovery of Salvage Reward.

Rights in rem.

884. The courts exercising admiralty jurisdiction have jurisdiction in matters relating to salvage (f). The machinery of these courts gives the salvor effective means of recovering the reward due to him. Not only has the salvor a possessory lien on the salved property, which will be recognised in a court of common law (g), but also he has in Admiralty, independently of possession, a maritime lien on the salved property. The maritime lien accrues immediately upon the performance of the salvage services, and includes the salved vessel, her cargo, and freight where freight has been

(s) See the judgments in The Sunniside (1883), 8 P. D. 137; Bird v. Gibb, The "De Bay" (1883), 8 App. Cas. 559, P. C.; The City of Chester (1884), 9 P. D. 182, C. A.

(t) See, e.g., The Erato (1888), 13 P. D. 163; S.S. Baku Standard (Master and Owners) v. S.S. Angèle (Master and Owners), [1901] A. C. 549.

(u) As to where it is desirable that the former course should be adopted, see Kennedy, Civil Salvage, 2nd ed., p. 160.

(v) The Le Jonet (1872), L. R. 3 A. & E. 556 (hire of men to pump); and see The Pinnas (1888), 6 Asp. M. L. C. 313, 314.

(w) The James Armstrong (1875), 3 Asp. M. L. C. 46; The Sunniside, supra; Bird v. Gibb, The "De Bay," supra; S.S. Baku Standard (Master and Owners) v. S.S. Angèle (Master and Owners), supra; The Fairport, [1912] P. 168.

(x) See cases in note (w), supra.

(a) Bird v. Gibb, The "De Bay," supra.

(b) The Silesia (1880), 5 P. D. 177.

(c) Fishing vessels:—Salacia (1829), 2 Hag. Adm. 262, 270; The Sunniside, supra; The Fairport, supra: other vessels:—Bird v. Gibb, The "De Bay," supra; The Edenmore, [1893] P. 79; The Bremen (1906), 10 Asp. M. L. C. 229, n.).

(d) No interest is allowed (Bird v. Gibb, The "De Bay," supra).

(e) The Thomas Blyth (1860), Lush. 16; S.S. Baku Standard (Master and Owners) v. S.S. Angèle (Master and Owners), supra.

(f) See the M. S. Act, 1894, s. 565. The principle of salvage was unknown to the common law (Falcke v. Scottish Imperial Insurance Co. (1886), 34 Ch. D. 234, 248, 249), and the salvor had no means of enforcing his reward at common law; see Atkinson v. Woodhall (1862), 1 H. & C. 170. The common law courts would only entertain an action for salvage reward where the salvor could prove a contract of employment for reward, express or implied (see Newman v. Walters (1804), 3 Bos. & P. 612; and compare Lipson v. Harrison (1853), 2 W. R. 10, 11), and in such case he could only recover a quantum meruit for work and labour. See, further, on this subject, title ADMIRALTY, Vol. I., pp. 73 et seq., 127, 139, 140.

(g) Hartfort v. Jones (1698), 1 Ld. Raym. 393.

SECT. 6. Salvage Reward.

saved (h). It has priority over all liens previously attaching to the salved property, and will be postponed only to a lien for subsequent damage or salvage (i). It is unaffected by any change in the ownership or possession of the salved property, and the benefit of it can be lost only by the laches of the salvor himself (k). By virtue of this lien the salvor may proceed in the Court of Admiralty against the salved property itself and procure the arrest and, if necessary, the sale of it to satisfy his claim (l). The remedy in rem is so complete that any attempt on the salvor's part to retain exclusive possession of the salved property, except where the property is derelict (m), or he can show that otherwise he would lose the security for his reward (n), or that he is justified by special circumstances (o), may be visited by the court with a diminution of the reward (p), or the loss of the costs of his action (q), or, in an extreme case, the forfeiture of all title to reward (r). In the case of derelict property the first salvor in possession has ordinarily an exclusive right to possession until his claim has been satisfied (s), but he may prejudice and even forfeit his claim if he insists on retaining possession and in the circumstances of the case the court is of opinion that he has no right to do so (t).

Rights in personam.

885. In addition to the right of action in rem the salvor also possesses in admiralty (a) a right of action in personam (b) against (h) The Westminster (1841), 1 Wm. Rob. 229; The Charlotte Wylie (1846), 2 Wm. Rob. 495.

(i) The Veritas, [1901] P. 304. As to whether it takes priority of wages earned subsequently, see The Sabina (1842), 7 Jur. 182; The Edina (1855), 4 W. R. 91; see also pp. 622, 623, post.

(k) The Royal Arch (1857), Sw. 269, 285.

(l) The Cella (1888), 13 P. D. 82, 86, C. A. As to the nature of the proceeding in rem, see The Parlement Belge (1880), 5 P. D. 197, 217, 218, C. A.; title ADMIRALTY, Vol. I., p. 61.

(m) Cossman v. West, Cossman v. British America Assurance Co. (1887), 13 App. Cas. 160, 181, P. C.; and compare The Gertrude (1861), 30 L. J. (P. M. & A.) 130.

(n) The Glasgow Packet (1844), 2 Wm. Rob. 306, 312, 313.

(o) The "Orbona" (1853), 1 Ecc. & Ad. 161, 165; The Pinnas (1888), 6 Asp. M. L. C. 313; The Elise, [1899] W. N. 54.

(p) The Glasgow Packet, supra.

(q) The Pinnas, supra.

(r) The Barefoot (1850), 14 Jur. 841; The Champion (1863), Brown. & Lush. 69; The Capella, [1892] P. 70.

(s) Cossman v. West, Cossman v. British America Assurance Co., supra.

(t) The "Lady Worsley" (1855), 2 Ecc. & Ad. 253, 255. The M. S. Act, 1894, ss. 511, 554, provides for the delivery up of a vessel, her cargo, or apparel to the receiver of wreck and for the substitution for the lien of a written agreement binding the salved property. For form of bond to secure salvage remuneration when property is in hands of a Receiver of Wreck, see Encyclopædia of Forms and Precedents, Vol. XIV., p. 172.

(a) Jurisdiction in personam was given to the county courts by the County Courts Admiralty Jurisdiction Amendment Act, 1869 (32 & 33 Vict. c. 51), s. 3.

(b) The Two Friends (1799), 1 Ch. Rob. 271, 277; Cargo ex Schiller (1877), 2 P. D. 145, 149, C. A.; Five Steel Barges (1890), 15 P. D. 142, 146; The Elton, [1891] P. 265; Cargo ex Port Victor, [1901] P. 243, C. A. By the M. S. Act, 1894, ss. 544–546, reward for salvage of life or property in cases under that Act is payable by the owners of the vessel, cargo, apparel, or wreck.

the owners of the salved property, though, in the absence of special contract (c), only where property (d) or an interest in property (e) has been saved to the person sued and to the extent of such property or interest (f).

Success essential to maintenance of action.

886. Whether the remedy pursued by the salvor be in rem or in personam, it is a cardinal principle that the preservation of some part at least of the property to which the services have been rendered, that is ship, cargo, or freight, is essential to the maintenance of the action (g), unless by special agreement salvage reward is to be paid independently of the ultimate safety of the property in danger (h), and that the amount of reward which the salvor can recover cannot, apart from special contract, exceed the value of the property or the interest in property saved (i).

As a general rule, an action in respect of salvage services must be commenced within two years from the date when the salvage services were rendered (j).

SUB-SECT. 4.—Appeals.

Grounds of appeal.

887. If the reward fixed by the court is made the subject of appeal, whether on the ground of excess or inadequacy, as a general rule it will be disturbed only where it is shown that the court below has erred in principle or has misapprehended the facts (k). But an award may be altered on appeal on the ground of exorbitancy or inadequacy if it is clearly shown to be so greatly in excess as to be unjust to the owners of the salved property or so inadequate as to be unfair to the salvors (l). If an unsuccessful appeal to the Court

(c) Cargo ex Sarpedon (1877), 3 P. D. 28, 34; The Prinz Heinrich (1887), 13 P. D. 31, 34.

(d) Cargo ex Sarpedon, supra, at p. 34; The Renpor (1883), 8 P. D. 115, 117, C. A.; The Elton, [1891] P. 265, 269; Cargo ex Port Victor, [1901] P. 243, 255, 256, C. A.

(e) Five Steel Barges (1890), 15 P. D. 142, 146; Cargo ex Port Victor, supra, at pp. 249, 255.

(f) Cargo ex Schiller (1877), 2 P. D. 145, 157, C. A.

(g) Cargo ex Sarpedon, supra; The Renpor, supra, at p. 118.

(h) S.S. Wellfield (Owners) v. Adamson and Short, The Alfred (1884), 5 Asp. M. L. C. 214; compare also The Prinz Heinrich, supra; The Edenmore, [1893] P. 79; The Strathgarry, [1895] P. 264.

(i) Cargo ex Schiller, supra.

(j) See Maritime Conventions Act, 1911 (1 & 2 Geo. 5, c. 57), s. 8, as to limitation of actions.

(k) The Star of Persia (1889), 6 Asp. M. L. C. 220, 221, C. A.; and see, for example, The "Amérique" (1874), L. R. 6 P. C. 468; Bird v. Gibb, The "De Bay" (1883), 8 App. Cas. 559, P. C.; The Accomac, [1891] P. 349, C. A.; The Port Hunter, [1910] P. 343, C. A.

(l) The Clarisse (1856), Sw. 129, 134, P. C., approved in Arnold v. Cowie, The "Glenduror" (1871), L. R. 3 P. C. 589; The Amérique (1874), L. R. 6 P. C. 468; The Thomas Allen (1886), 6 Asp. M. L. C. 99, P. C.; see also the judgments in The Lancaster (1883), 9 P. D. 14, C. A.; The Star of Persia, supra; The Accomac, supra; The Glengyle, [1898] P. 97, C. A.; affirmed, [1898] A. C. 519; The Port Hunter, supra, to substantially the same effect. Inadequacy is as good an objection to an award as exorbitancy (The "Chetah" (1868), L. R. 2 P. C. 205, 210, 211). For examples of successful and unsuccessful appeals against awards, see Kennedy, Civil Salvage, 2nd ed., pp. 164—167.

SECT. 6. Salvage Reward.

of Appeal be followed by an appeal to the House of Lords, the case must be very exceptional to induce the House of Lords to interfere (m).

House of Lords.

Award by Court of Appeal.

Where a salvage action has been wrongly dismissed, the Court of Appeal, reversing that decision, may, if the facts are before it, itself award the amount of salvage reward (n).

SECT. 7.—Apportionment.

SUB-SECT. 1.—By the Court.

Who may obtain apportionment.

888. The apportionment of a salvage reward by the Admiralty Court (o) may be obtained (p) by an action for distribution of salvage or by application by any person interested in an award in the course of the salvage action or promptly after its conclusion (q).

When apportionment not made.

The court does not make an apportionment where there is a valid and binding agreement for division of the salvage, or where a sufficient tender has been made (r).

SUB-SECT. 2.—To the Owners of Salving Vessels.

Apportionment to owners.

889. Where the principal means of effecting the salvage service has been the salving vessel, her owners receive the largest share of the salvage reward; and their share is even larger where the salving vessel and her cargo were valuable and were exposed to great risk by the performance of the services. The salving vessel is most frequently a steamship, and in such cases the steam power is generally the main instrument of the salvage service (s). Where the salvage service has been effected chiefly by the services of the crew, and the salving vessel and her cargo have not been exposed to any serious risk, the crew are entitled to the larger share in the reward (t). In cases where the salving vessel is the chief instrument in effecting the salvage, the share of the owners in a salvage reward is now generally approximate to three-quarters (a), but there is no rule of practice on the point. The apportionment depends upon the particular circumstances of each case (b); and there are many examples of variation in apportionment to owners (c). Special favour is always shown to the owners of fishing vessels on account of the interruption of their occupation and the high rate of wages paid to their crews (d).

(m) The Glenqyle, [1898] A. C. 519, 520.

(n) The Minnehaha (1861), Lush. 335, P. C.

(o) Apportionment is not a proper subject for an action at law (Atkinson v. Woodhall (1862), 1 H. & C. 170).

(p) M. S. Act, 1894, ss. 555, 556.

(q) Reasonable time will be allowed to a seaman (The Spirit of the Age (1857), Sw. 286, 287).

(r) The Enchantress (1860), Lush. 93, 95. As to these agreements, see p. 573, ante.

(s) The Enchantress, supra, at p. 96.

(t) Jane (1831), 2 Hag. Adm. 338, 343; The Nicolina (1843), 2 Wm. Rob. 175.

(a) Before 1870 one-half was the most given, from 1870—1883 it was usually two-thirds, and since 1883 it has been usually three-quarters.

(b) The Gipsy Queen, [1895] P. 176, 177, C. A.

(c) See Kennedy, Civil Salvage, 2nd ed., pp. 172 et seq.

(d) Albion (1837), 3 Hag. Adm. 254, 256; The Louisa (1843), 2 Wm. Rob. 22, 25, 26, 27.

SECT. 7.
Apportionment.

SUB-SECT. 3.—To the Master, Crew, and Passengers.

Master.

890. The master of the salving ship usually receives a special apportionment by reason of the special responsibility which he undertakes in the performance of a salvage service (e). The share given to him varies according to the degree of responsibility cast upon him. It has often been from one-half to one-third of the balance of the award after deducting the sum apportioned to the owners. In cases of salvage by steamships it is frequently one-third of the balance (f). There is, however, no rule of practice governing his share (g).

Officers and crew.

891. Officers and crew generally share in the sum awarded to them collectively according to their ratings, subject to an exception in favour of navigating officers with ratings lower than that of engineers, who are allowed to rank for the purpose of salvage as of the same ratings as engineers (h). Special rewards are given to officers or members of the crew who have rendered special services (i).

Associates of salvors.

892. The shares of the associates (k) of the actual salvors depend upon the amount of additional labour and danger imposed upon them through the services of the actual salvors (l).

Passengers.

The amount of the reward of passengers who become entitled to salvage reward depends upon the nature and circumstances of the services (m).

(e) The Martin Luther (1857), Sw. 287, 289, 290; The Charles (1872), L. R. 3 A. & E. 536, 538.

(f) See Kennedy, Civil Salvage, 2nd ed., p. 175; Williams and Bruce, Admiralty Practice, 3rd ed., p. 169, note (a).

(g) The Gipsy Queen, [1895] P. 176, 177, C. A.

(h) The Birnam (1907), 10 Asp. M. L. C. 462. The crew includes "runners," or men engaged for a single "run," who may share on the basis of the rating of the persons whose posts they are filling (The Persia, [1902] W. N. 210; but see The Rasche (1873), L. R. 4 A. & E. 127, where they were treated as A.B.'s), and apprentices, with regard to whom there is no special scale of reward (Hope (1838), 3 Hag. Adm. 423 (shares of seamen of lowest rank); The Beulah (1842), 1 Wm. Rob. 477 (one-half of A.B.'s shares); The George Dean (1857), Sw. 290 (two-thirds of A.B.'s shares); The Rasche, supra (A.B.'s shares); The Punta Lara (1910), 26 T. L. R. 268 (O.S.'s shares); The "Valkyrie," [1910] W. N. 138 (A.B.'s shares). For form of receipt by officers and crew for salvage awarded, see Encyclopædia of Forms and Precedents, Vol. XIV., p. 173.

(i) See, for example, The Golondrina (1867), L. R. 1 A. & E. 334; The Rasche, supra; The Skibladner (1877), 3 P. D. 24; The Santiago (1900), 9 Asp. M. L. C. 147; The Minneapolis, [1902] P. 30.

(k) As to who are included in this term, see p. 565, ante.

(l) The non-navigating members of the crew were given in The Spree, [1893] P. 147, one-half shares, according to their ratings; in The Dunottar Castle, [1902] W. N. 70, and The Minneapolis, supra, one-third shares, according to their actual rating. In The Punta Lara, supra, the master's wife, rated as stewardess at one shilling per month, was refused any share.

(m) See Hope, supra (shares of A.B.'s); The Perla (1857), Sw. 230 (foreign master and seaman passengers on salving vessel given A.B.'s shares, the master taking a double share). For very special services, see Newman v. Walters (1804), 3 Bos. & P. 612 (£400); Towle v. The

SECT. 7. Apportionment.

SUB-SECT. 4.—To Officers and Men of the Royal Navy and Other Services.

Royal Navy.

893. Officers and men of the Royal Navy can obtain an apportionment from the court. If an apportionment is not made by the court, the distribution of salvage is regulated by the naval prize proclamation in force at the time (n).

Coastguards and crews of revenue cruisers.

Similarly, officers and men of the Coastguard Service and of revenue cruisers may either obtain an apportionment by the court or rely on the rules laid down by the Admiralty for the distribution of salvage among them (o).

Lifeboat crews.

Lifeboat crews who become entitled to rank as salvors may obtain an apportionment from the court.

SUB-SECT. 5.—To Independent Salvors.

Independent salvors.

894. Where persons who perform salvage services are independent salvors, as distinguished from members of a crew or others who act in association, the apportionment to them is determined by consideration of the risk, labour, skill, responsibility, and value of their respective services (p).

SUB-SECT. 6.—To Separate Sets of Salvors.

Separate sets of salvors.

895. Where salvage services have been performed by several independent sets of salvors, if their services have been contemporaneous their shares of a salvage award are determined by the principles applicable to the assessment of the whole award (q). Accordingly a set of salvors who save both life and property usually receive a higher apportionment than a set of salvors who have salved property only (r).

First salvors favoured.

896. Where the services have not been contemporaneous, but subsequently to the inception of the services another set of salvors, with the consent of the first set, have joined in the services or have succeeded the first set, who, after rendering some assistance, have been compelled by circumstances, through no fault of their own, to abandon the services, special favour is usually shown to the first set of salvors. The object of so doing is to encourage promptitude in the rendering of salvage services and willingness to accept additional assistance where such assistance is advisable (s).

When salvage not awarded to second set of salvors.

If a second set of salvors dispossess the original salvors against the will of the latter and while they are willing to continue their services, the second set of salvors are entitled to no reward unless they can prove that there was no reasonable probability that the services of the Great Eastern (1861), 2 Mar. L. C. 148, United States District Court of Admiralty (£3,000).

(n) Mary Ann (1823), 1 Hag. Adm. 158, 161.

(o) See the Board of Trade Instructions to Receivers of Wreck and other Officers and the Admiralty Coastguard Instructions.

(p) See, for example, Nicholaas Witzen (1837), 3 Hag. Adm. 369.

(q) Where a tender is made and the circumstances are within the knowledge of the salved vessel, independent salvors may require the defendant to apportion the sum tendered (The Burnock (1914), 30 T. L. R. 274).

(r) The Clarisse (1856), Sw. 129, P. C.; The Anna Helena (1883), 5 Asp. M. L. C. 142.

(s) The "Santipore" (1854), 1 Ecc. & Ad. 231; The "E. U." (1853), 1 Ecc. & Ad. 63.

first salvors would have met with success (t); in default of such proof the whole reward is given to the first salvors (u). If, however, the second set of salvors in dispossessing the first set acted under an honest and not unreasonable, though mistaken, belief that their interference was necessary, they may receive some reward, and in that case the original salvors are entitled to the same reward which they would have been awarded if they had completed the salvage service (a).

When awarded.

So also if the services of the original salvors have been intermittent, and during an interval in the performance of them a second set of salvors have intervened against their wishes and rendered beneficial services, the second set of salvors receive reward, though if the interference of the second salvors is accompanied by the exercise of force the reward is very much reduced (b).

897. If the property in danger was not derelict and was in charge of the owner or the master or other representative of the owner, and such person accepted the services of salvors, a second set of salvors intervening receive no reward (c); but original salvors have no right to insist upon the continuance of their services or to refuse additional assistance in defiance of the wishes of the owner of the property in danger or his representative or of the interests of the property.

Second set of salvors intervening.

Unless the property in danger is strictly derelict, the salvors are bound to submit to the orders of the owner of the property or his representative (d). If they fail to do so the reward is diminished or perhaps forfeited altogether (e). Even in the case of derelict property where the salvor has a vested interest and a right of exclusive possession (f), the first salvors may not refuse further assistance if the interests of the property demand it (g). If they are dispossessed or superseded by the orders of the owner of the property in peril or his representative while they are able and willing to complete the salvage service, they receive a liberal reward (h), and the court is not very careful to inquire whether the dispossession

Salvor subject to orders of owner.

(t) The burden of proof is on the second set of salvors (Eugene (1834), 3 Hag. Adm. 156, 160).

(u) The Fleece (1850), 3 Wm. Rob. 278, 280, and The Samuel (1851), 15 Jur. 407, 409, 410, approving The Blenden-Hall (1814), 1 Dods. 414; and see The Pickwick (1852), 16 Jur. 669.

(a) Maria (1809), Edw. 175; Charlotta (1831), 2 Hag. Adm. 361.

(b) The Clarisse (1856), Sw. 129, P. C.

(c) The Glasgow Packet (1844), 2 Wm. Rob. 306, 313; The Fleece, supra, at p. 281; The Barefoot (1850), 14 Jur. 841, 842; The Samuel, supra, at p. 410.

(d) The Champion (1863), Brown. & Lush. 69, 71. For a case where refusal to allow intervention of the master of the salved ship was held to be justified, see The Elise, [1899] W. N. 54.

(e) The Dantzic Packet (1837), 3 Hag. Adm. 383 (forcibly excluding assistance); The Glasgow Packet, supra (insisting on continuing services dispensed with); and see The Capella, [1892] P. 70.

(f) Cossman v. West, Cossman v. British America Assurance Co. (1887), 13 App. Cas. 160, 181, P. C.

(g) The Cambria (1848), Pritchard's Admiralty Digest (1887), 3rd ed., Vol. II., p. 1822.

(h) The Maude (1876), 3 Asp. M. L. C. 338.

SECT. 7. Apportionment.

or supersession was necessary and proper (i). If the intervention of the second salvors was necessary for the safety of the property, the first salvors are liberally rewarded for any beneficial services rendered by them (k).

Misconduct of salvors.

898. The misconduct of one set of salvors does not affect the right of another set to obtain reward, unless they were involved in the misconduct (l).

SECT. 8.—Contribution.

SUB-SECT. 1.—General Principles.

Liability to contribute.

899. Every interest benefited by the salvage services, generally ship, freight, and cargo, except the wearing apparel and personal effects of the crew and passengers on board the salved vessel (m) and bottomry and respondentia bonds (n), contributes to the salvage reward (o). Each part of the salved property contributes rateably according to its value, without regard to the degree of risk from which or difficulty with which that part has been salved as compared with the rest of the salved property (p); though where the various interests in the salved property have been exposed to different degrees of risk the court in its discretion may make a separate award in respect of each portion of the salved property (q). The liability to contribute is not limited to the legal ownership of the salved property. It falls also upon persons who have merely an interest in the salved property and whose interest has been saved by means of the salvage service (r).

As between cargo owner and shipowner.

900. Where the salved cargo has not been benefited by the salvage services, as happens where the freight exceeds the value of the salved cargo (s), or where the services were rendered necessary by an actionable fault on the part of the shipowner or his servants (t), the cargo owner is entitled to require the shipowner to discharge the whole burden of the salvage reward; and in either of such cases if the cargo owner has had to pay the shipowner for

(i) The Maasdam (1893), 7 Asp. M. L. C. 400, 401.

(k) The Pickwick (1852), 16 Jur. 669; The Magdalen (1861), 31 L. J. (P. M. & A.) 22.

(l) The Neptune (1841), 1 Wm. Rob. 297; Kirby v. "Scindia" (Owners), The "Scindia" (1866), L. R. 1 P. C. 241.

(m) The Willem III. (1871), L. R. 3 A. & E. 487.

(n) Park, Marine Insurance, pp. 897—899.

(o) The Fleece (1850), 3 Wm. Rob. 278, 282; The Fusilier (1865), Brown. & Lush. 341, 352, P. C.

(p) The Jonge Bastiaan (1804), 5 Ch. Rob. 322; The Longford (1881), 6 P. D. 60 (specie); and see Marvin, Wreck and Salvage, art. 162.

(q) The Velox, [1906] P. 263.

(r) Five Steel Barges (1890), 15 P. D. 142; Cargo ex Port Victor, [1901] P. 243, C. A.

(s) Cox v. May (1815), 4 M. & S. 152.

(t) The Ettrick (1881), 6 P. D. 127, C. A.; and see Strang, Steel & Co. v. Scott (A.) & Co. (1889), 14 App. Cas. 601, 608, P. C. As to whether the shipowner has a right of indemnity from the cargo owner where the service was necessitated by fault in the cargo, see Carver, Carriage by Sea, 4th ed., arts. 277—280.

SECT. 8. Contribution.

salvage he may recover back the amount so paid (a). In all other cases the cargo owner is equally liable with the shipowner for payment of the reward, and if the latter pays the cargo owner's share he is entitled to recover it from the cargo owner.

Liability proportioned.

901. Each interest is liable only for its proportionate share of the salvage reward (b), unless the salvors and the master of the salved vessel have entered into a binding salvage agreement fixing the amount of the reward, in which case the shipowner is liable for the whole of the reward due under the agreement (c).

Life salvage.

902. For salvage reward for the saving of life, ship, freight, and cargo contribute rateably, so far as they have been preserved (d), whether life has been saved by the persons who salved the other interests or by independent salvors, or without any other salvage service having been performed (e). If the vessel is saved but the cargo is lost, the shipowner is alone liable for payment of salvage reward. Conversely, if the vessel is lost, but lives and cargo are saved, and no freight is payable, salvage reward is payable wholly by the cargo owner (f).

When value of salved property is assessed.

903. The value of the salved property, in the absence of agreement, is generally assessed at the port of arrest (g). The proper principle, however, seems to be to assess it at the time and place when and where the salvage services ended (h).

SUB-SECT. 2.—Values of Ship, Cargo, and Freight.

Value of ship.

Deductions allowed on valuation of ship.

904. The value of the ship is her value in her condition as salved to her owner as distinguished from her market value (i). In assessing it deduction may be made for charges and expenses which have been incurred by the owners in connexion with the ship subsequently

(a) The Princess Royal (1870), L. R. 3 A. & E. 41.

(b) The Raisby (1885), 10 P. D. 114; The Mary Pleasants (1857), Sw. 224; and see The Elton, [1891] P. 265. In practice the shipowner frequently pays the whole reward in the first instance, protecting himself by security from the cargo owner or relying on his lien on the cargo while it remains in his possession for the cargo owner's proportion (Hingston v. Wendt (1876), 1 Q. B. D. 367; The Prinz Heinrich (1888), 13 P. D. 31, 34).

(c) Both in rem and in personam (The Cumbrian (1887), 6 Asp. M. L. C. 151; The Prinz Heinrich, supra).

(d) M. S. Act, 1894, ss. 544—546.

(e) See p. 561, ante.

(f) Cargo ex Sarpedon (1877), 3 P. D. 28.

(g) The Norma (1860), Lush. 124, 127; see Carver, Carriage by Sea, 4th ed., arts. 351, 352. In assessing the value allowance is made for any salvage reward ordered by another court to be paid to other salvors out of the proceeds of the salved property (The Antilope (1873), L. R. 4 A. & E. 33).

(h) The George Dean (1857), Sw. 290; The Stella (1867), L. R. 1 A. & E. 340; The Georg, [1894] P. 330; The Germania, [1904] P. 131. The value may be agreed or an affidavit of value filed on an application for release (see title ADMIRALTY, Vol. I., p. 88), and, if the plaintiff considers the value therein stated to be incorrect a commission of appraisement may be ordered (ibid., p. 89). Failing these methods the court will form an estimate at the hearing (The Werra (1886), 12 P. D. 52).

(i) The Hohenzollern, [1906] P. 339.

SECT. 8. Contribution.

to the inception of the salvor's interest and were beneficial to that interest (k).

Deductions allowed on valuation of cargo.

905. In assessing the value of cargo an allowance may be made for reasonable and proper expenses of the discharge, storage, and sale of the cargo (l), but not for prepaid freight (m), primage (n), insurance (o), or a gratuity to the master of the carrying vessel (p).

Freight at risk.

906. Freight which was at risk at the time of the salvage service may be included in the value of the cargo or assessed separately. If the cargo owner has paid salvage reward in respect of both cargo and freight at risk assessed together and has not paid the freight, he can deduct from the freight when it is payable to the shipowner the amount which he has paid in respect of salvage of freight. If he has paid the freight, he can recover the amount which he has paid in respect of salvage of freight from the shipowner (q).

Salvage service ending at port other than port of destination.

907. Where the salvage service ends at a place which is not the port of destination and where there is no market for the cargo, and the cargo is carried on to its destination and sold there, the value may be assessed by allowing a pro ratâ freight to the place where the salvage service ended and deducting from the proceeds of sale a percentage of freight and other charges in respect of the voyage from the latter place to the port of destination (r). Where under similar circumstances the cargo has not been carried on from the place where the service ended, its value may be assessed at the nearest convenient market, deducting the estimated cost of carriage to that point and the expenses reasonably incident to its sale there (s).

Salvage service ending at port of destination.

908. Where the salvage service continues until the salved vessel reaches the port of destination, the whole net freight unpaid and at risk when the salvage service commenced, and preserved to the shipowner by the service, contributes to the salvage reward (t). Where the salvage service ends at a place other than the port of destination, and the cargo is not carried on to its destination, the following rules govern contribution :—If the cargo owner has prevented the shipowner from carrying it on, the whole

(k) The Selina (1842), 2 Notes of Cases, 18 (crew's wages after service began and bottomry bond taken up by salvors) ; The Watt (1843), 2 Wm. Rob. 70 (unloading cargo after vessel beached and taking her round to a port). Deduction was refused in The Selina, supra, in respect of crew's wages before salvage service ; and in The Fleece (1850), 3 Wm. Rob. 278, in respect of costs of prosecuting wreckers who took forcible possession of ship.

(l) Custom-house charges, weighing, brokerage, and commission (The Peace (1856), Sw. 115, 116).

(m) The Charlotte Wylie (1846), 2 Wm. Rob. 495, 497 ; The Fleece, supra, at p. 282.

(n) The Fleece, supra.

(o) Ibid.

(p) The Peace, supra.

(q) The Charlotte Wylie, supra, at p. 497 ; The Fleece, supra, at p. 282 ; and see The Westminster (1841), 1 Wm. Rob. 229, 233.

(r) The George Dean (1857), Sw. 290, 291.

(s) See Kennedy, Civil Salvage, 2nd ed., pp. 216, 217.

(t) It may be valued separately or with the cargo.

freight is earned and therefore contributes (a). If the cargo owner, having a choice, elects to take delivery of the cargo where it is (b), the whole (c) or a pro ratâ freight (d), according to the express or implied agreement on delivery (e), is due to the shipowner and has to be brought into contribution. If the failure to carry the cargo on is not due to the intervention or election of the cargo owner, no freight is due, and therefore there is no freight to contribute.

Where the cargo is carried on to the port of destination from the place where the salvage service ended, the contributory value of the freight is the estimated proportion of the freight in respect of the voyage up to the point where the service ended (f), less an allowance in respect of the shipowner's expenses incurred in the further transit (g).

Derelict.

909. In the case of a derelict, if the vessel is not taken by the salvors to her port of destination, and her owners have taken no steps to carry the cargo on, the cargo owner is entitled to delivery of the cargo without payment of any freight (h), and in that case there is no freight to contribute. Recovery of the derelict by the shipowner at the port of discharge, after the cargo owner has exercised his right of treating the abandonment of the ship as a determination of the contract of carriage, does not revive the contract of carriage, and no freight is due from the cargo owner (i).

Finality of award.

910. An award once made is generally final. If after an award has been made it is found that a miscalculation has been made as to the values, the court has power to reopen and readjust its award (k), but the power is exercised with great caution (l).

(a) The Cargo ex Galam (1863), 33 L. J. (P. M. & A.) 97, P. C.

(b) Hunter v. Prinsep (1808), 10 East, 378; Vlierboom v. Chapman (1844), 13 M. & W. 230; Hopper v. Burness (1876), 1 C. P. D. 137; Metcalfe v. Britannia Ironworks Co. (1877), 2 Q. B. D. 423, C. A.

(c) Christy v. Row (1808), 1 Taunt. 300.

(d) The Soblomsten (1866), L. R. 1 A. & E. 293; Mitchell v. Darthez (1836), 2 Bing. (N. C.) 555.

(e) See Carver, Carriage by Sea, 4th ed., arts. 557, 559.

(f) The Norma (1860), Lush. 124. This is a departure from the common law doctrine that freight is not apportionable; compare The Dorothy Foster (1805), 6 Ch. Rob. 88.

(g) The Norma, supra, at p. 127; The James Armstrong (1875), 3 Asp. M. L. C. 46, 49.

(h) The Kathleen (1874), L. R. 4 A. & E. 269; The Cito (1881), 7 P. D. 5, C. A. If the cargo owner has applied for delivery at the port of refuge and offered bail for its value, and by order of the court the ship has been taken to the port of destination, there is no pro ratâ freight due in respect of carriage to the port of refuge, and the cargo owner is not liable for the expenses either of carriage thence to the port of destination or of delivery there; see Kennedy, Civil Salvage, 2nd ed., p. 222, citing The Argonaut (1884), unreported.

(i) The Arno (1895), 8 Asp. M. L. C. 5, C. A.

(k) The James Armstrong (1875), L. R. 4 A. & E. 380 (where the cargo owner contributed upon the value of the cargo without deducting freight due on delivery and the freight was assessed too low). For a form of clause in a salvage agreement with reference to objections to the amount of remuneration, see Encyclopædia of Forms and Precedents, Vol. XIV., p. 171.

(l) The Georg, [1894] P. 330 (readjustment claimed on ground of selling price of salved property proving lower than assessed value refused).

Part XIV.—Shipping Casualties.

SECT. 1. Reports of Accidents and Loss of Ship.

SECT. 1.—Reports of Accidents and Loss of Ship.

Duty to report casualties.

911. The owner or master of a British steamship, or of a foreign steamship carrying passengers between places in the United Kingdom, has a duty imposed by statute (a), and enforceable by penalty (b), to report to the Board of Trade by letter the occurrence of any accident causing serious injury to any person, or material injury to any portion of the ship, within twenty-four hours of the happening of such accident or damage, or as soon as possible thereafter. The letter must be signed by the owner or master, and, in addition to a report of the details of the accident or damage, must state the probable occasion (c) thereof, the name of the ship, her official number, the port to which she belongs, and the place where she is at the time when the report is made.

Form of report.

Loss of ship.

912. The managing owner (d) or, in the event of there being no managing owner, the ship's husband of any British ship, when he has reason to apprehend that the ship has been wholly lost, has a statutory duty (e), the neglect of which is punishable by fine (f), to give notice to the Board of Trade in writing of the loss and the probable occasion (g) thereof. This notice must state the name of the ship, her official number, and the port to which she belongs.

Floating derelicts.

913. The master or other person for the time being in command of any British ship is bound by statute (h) to give notice of any floating derelict vessel of the existence of which he may become aware to the Lloyd's agent at his next place of arrival. If there be no Lloyd's agent there, he must notify the secretary of Lloyd's, London, and a penalty is attached to the neglect of either of these obligations (i). The society of Lloyd's must publish any information thus received, and also communicate it to the Board of Trade (k).

(a) M. S. Act, 1894, s. 425.

(b) Ibid., s. 425 (2). The Boiler Explosions Act, 1882 (45 & 46 Vict. c. 22), and the Boiler Explosions Act, 1890 (53 & 54 Vict. c. 35), apply to British ships (ibid., s. 2); the same notice must by ibid., s. 3, be given of explosions as of other casualties under the M. S. Act, 1894, s. 425, but notice under the latter provision alone is sufficient; see, further, title FACTORIES AND SHOPS, Vol. XIV., pp. 474, 475.

(c) The word "occasion" is used both in the M. S. Act, 1894, and in the M. S. Act, 1854, s. 326, from which the provision in the later Act is drawn. It would seem to be employed in the sense of "cause," and not in that of "time," for the time would naturally be the first detail mentioned in the report.

(d) "Managing owner" is not defined in the M. S. Act, 1894, and is a commercial and not a legal expression; see Frazer v. Cuthbertson (1880), 6 Q. B. D. 93, per BOWEN, J., at p. 98; compare M. S. Act, 1894, s. 59.

(e) Ibid., s. 426.

(f) Ibid., s. 426 (2).

(g) Compare note (c), supra.

(h) Derelict Vessels (Report) Act, 1896 (59 & 60 Vict. c. 12), s. 2.

(i) Ibid., ss. 2, 3.

(k) Ibid., s. 4.

SECT. 2.—Inquiries and Investigations.

SECT. 2. Inquiries and Investigations.

914. For the purpose of holding inquiries and investigations into shipping casualties, a "shipping casualty" is deemed to have occurred when any ship is lost, abandoned, or materially injured, or causes loss or material damage to any other ship, or loss of life ensues by reason of a casualty on board a ship, or a ship has been stranded or damaged and any witness is found in the United Kingdom, provided either such event occurs on or near the coasts (l) of the United Kingdom or occurs elsewhere and a witness is found in the United Kingdom, or when any British ship (m) is lost or supposed to have been lost and any evidence is obtainable in the United Kingdom as to the circumstances under which she proceeded to sea or was last heard of (n).

What is meant by "shipping casualty."

915. There are five classes of inquiry or investigation which may be held into the causes of such casualties, namely:—(1) preliminary inquiries (o); (2) formal investigations (p); (3) inquiries in case of loss of life from a fishing vessel's boat (q); (4) inquiries by colonial courts (r); and (5) inquiries by naval courts (s).

Classes of inquiries.

916. In the case of a shipping casualty occurring on or near the coasts of the United Kingdom a preliminary inquiry may be held by the inspecting officer of the coastguard or chief officer of the customs (t) residing at or near the place at which the casualty occurs (u). Where the casualty occurs elsewhere, such an inquiry may be held by the inspecting officer of the coastguard or chief officer of customs residing at or near any place at which the witnesses with respect to the casualty arrive, or are found, or can be conveniently examined (v). In any case a preliminary inquiry respecting a shipping casualty may be held by any person appointed for the purpose by the Board of Trade (a).

Preliminary inquiries.

Preliminary inquiries are in practice usually conducted by a Receiver of Wreck, who possesses for this purpose the same powers as inspectors of the Board of Trade (b), namely:—to board or inspect any ship or any part thereof (c); to enter or inspect any premises (d); to require, by summons, the attendance of any witnesses he thinks fit to call before him (e); to enforce the (l) Semble, within the territorial limit; see The Fulham, [1898] P. 206, per BARNES, J., at pp. 213, 214.

(m) Compare M. S. Act, 1894, ss. 1, 2, 72.
(n) Ibid., s. 464.
(o) Ibid., s. 465.
(p) Ibid., s. 466.
(q) Ibid., s. 468; see title FISHERIES, Vol. XIV., p. 633.
(r) M. S. Act, 1894, s. 478.
(s) Ibid., s. 480.
(t) Compare ibid., s. 742, for definition.
(u) Ibid., s. 465 (1) (a).
(v) Ibid., s. 465 (1) (b).
(a) Ibid., s. 465 (1) (c).
(b) Compare ibid., ss. 517, 729; and see pp. 649 et seq., post.
(c) M. S. Act, 1894, s. 729 (1) (a).
(d) Ibid., s. 729 (1) (b).
(e) Ibid., s. 729 (1) (c). Including witnesses for the defence (R. v.

SECT. 2. Inquiries and Investigations.

production of books, papers, or documents (f); and to administer oaths, or, instead, to require witnesses examined by him to sign a declaration of the truth of their statements (g).

When formal investigations to be held.

917. Formal investigations must be held by a court of summary jurisdiction when any of the persons authorised to make preliminary inquiries decide, either with or without such preliminary inquiry, that a formal investigation should be held, and in any case when directed by the Board of Trade (h).

Formal investigations.

918. Formal investigations are held by a wreck commissioner (i) or by a court of summary jurisdiction (k), assisted in either case by one or more assessors possessing nautical, engineering, or other special skill, appointed according to regulations made with regard thereto (l) from a list approved for that purpose by a Secretary of State (m). Where it appears probable that the certificate of an officer may have to be dealt with as a result of the investigation, not less than two assessors having experience of the merchant service must be called to the assistance of the court (n). Such a court of investigation, or a naval court, has power to cancel or suspend the certificate of a master, mate, or engineer wherever the court finds that loss or abandonment of or serious damage to any ship or loss of life has been caused by his wrongful act or default, provided that, in the case of courts of summary jurisdiction, at least one of the assessors concurs in the finding of the court (o).

Collingridge (1864), 34 L. J. (Q. B.) 9), the expense of witnesses so summoned to be borne by the public (M. S. Act, 1894, s. 729 (2)).

(f) Ibid., s. 729 (1) (d).

(g) Ibid., s. 729 (1) (e); and compare R. v. Tomlinson (1866), L. R. 1 C. C. R. 49 (false swearing in inquiry is indictable perjury). As a matter of practice the receivers of wreck usually take depositions on oath and send them to the Board of Trade and to Lloyd's, and the public have a right to bespeak copies of such depositions; see p. 550, ante.

(h) M. S. Act, 1894, s. 466 (1). The court may proceed with an inquiry into the conduct of a captain although the Board of Trade has indicated an intention not to prefer a charge against him, but where formal intimation is given that the Board will not prefer a charge, no charge can be made on the suggestion of the court (Ex parte Minto (1877), 35 L. T. 808).

(i) M. S. Act, 1894, s. 466 (2). Wreck commissioners are appointed under ibid., s. 477.

(k) Ibid., s. 466 (1).

(l) Ibid., s. 466 (3).

(m) Ibid., s. 467.

(n) Ibid., s. 466 (4).

(o) Ibid., s. 470 (1) (a). The court cannot suspend certificates where there has only been a stranding without material damage (Ex parte Story (1878), 3 Q. B. D. 166). It is necessary that there should be evidence showing that the certificated officer or engineer has by his conduct caused or contributed to the casualty (The Arizona (1880), 5 P. D. 123). The words "wrongful act or default" do not include "an error of judgment at a moment of great difficulty and danger" (The Famenoth (1882), 7 P. D. 207, per HANNEN, P., at p. 215; see also Watson v. Board of Trade (Sc.) (1884), 22 Sc. L. R. 22), but do include cases where the master has had time to consider his actions (The Golden Sea (1882), 7 P. D. 194), or where the master has surrendered his judgment "to the influence of unreasonable panic" (Brown v. Board of Trade (1890), 28 Sc. L. R. 401).

As regards the summoning of witnesses and other powers connected with the hearing, the courts of formal investigation have all the powers of courts of summary jurisdiction acting in exercise of their ordinary jurisdiction (p). Where a formal investigation is held at a place where a stipendiary magistrate is a member of the local marine board, the investigation must be held before that magistrate (q).

Inquiries in British possessions.

919. In any British possession the legislature may authorise a court to hold inquiries as to shipping casualties in all cases where a casualty occurs to a British ship, on or near the coasts of the British possession, or in the course of a voyage to a port within that British possession (r), or where a casualty occurs to a British ship registered in the British possession wheresoever occurring (a), or where competent witnesses, members of the crew of a British ship to which a casualty has occurred, are found in the British possession (b). No inquiry, however, can be held into a matter which has been the subject of an investigation or inquiry and has been reported on by a competent court in any part of the King's dominions, or in respect of which the certificate of a master, mate, or engineer has been suspended by a naval court (c), or with reference to which an inquiry has already been commenced in the United Kingdom (d).

Jurisdiction of colonial courts.

Such colonial courts have the same jurisdiction over the matter in question as if it had occurred within their ordinary jurisdiction, subject to all provisions, restrictions, and conditions which would in that case have been applicable (e), and they have the same power of dealing with the certificates of officers as courts holding similar inquiries or investigations in the United Kingdom (f).

Inquiry by naval officers.

920. A naval officer in command of a King's ship on any foreign station, or, in the absence of such an officer, any consular officer, may hold a court of inquiry upon receipt of a complaint from the captain or any officer or member of the crew of a British ship (g), or, in the interest either of the owner of a British ship or of the owner of the cargo therein, whenever he thinks fit (h), and also in cases of wreck, abandonment, or loss of any British ship in the vicinity of the station, or on the arrival at the station of any part of the crew of a British ship which has been wrecked, abandoned, or lost abroad (i).

(p) M. S. Act, 1894, s. 466 (10). As to costs, compare The British Standard, Shipping Gazette (1912), 7th February (power over costs must be judicially exercised; no power to inflict fine nomine expensarum).
(q) M. S. Act, 1894, s. 476 (1).
(r) Ibid., s. 478 (1) (a).
(a) Ibid., s. 478 (1) (b).
(b) Ibid., s. 478 (1) (c).
(c) Ibid., s. 478 (3).
(d) Ibid., s. 478 (4).
(e) Ibid., s. 478 (2).
(f) Ibid., s. 478 (5).
(g) Ibid., s. 480 (i.).
(h) Ibid., s. 480 (ii.).
(i) Ibid., s. 480 (iii.).

SECT. 2. Inquiries and Investigations.

921. The procedure in shipping investigations is governed by the Shipping Casualties and Appeals and Re-hearings Rules, 1907 (k), a copy of which must be kept at every custom-house and mercantile marine office in the United Kingdom, and be there open to public inspection (l).

Procedure.

The owner, the master, and any certificated officer, or any other person upon whom a notice of investigation has been served, has a right to appear at the hearing, and any other person who obtains the leave of the judge may appear; all persons so appearing become parties to the proceedings (m). The witnesses produced by the Board of Trade may be cross-examined by any of the parties (n), and, after the hearing of such evidence is concluded, the Board of Trade must state in open court the questions upon which the opinion of the court is desired (o), after which the parties are entitled to address the court and to adduce evidence (p). The Board of Trade has the right of final reply (q).

Judge's report.

922. In every case, at the conclusion, the judge must report to the Board of Trade (r). In his report he may supplement his decision with reasons not stated at the time judgment was delivered (s). Where the certificate of an officer is cancelled or suspended, the court must give judgment in open court (a), and the Board of Trade must, on the application of any party to the proceedings, give him a copy of the report made to the Board (b).

Judgment.

Rehearing and appeals.

923. The Board of Trade may order the case to be generally or in part reheard; and must do so if new and important evidence, which could not be produced at the investigation or inquiry, has been discovered, or if for any other reason there has in the opinion of the Board been ground for suspecting that a miscarriage of justice has occurred (c).

The Board of Trade may order the case to be reheard by the original court or authority, by the wreck commissioner (d), or in England by the High Court (e), in Ireland by the High Court, and in Scotland by the Senior Lord Ordinary, or any other judge of the Court of Session appointed for that purpose by the Lord President of that court (f). Where a decision relates to the cancelling or suspension of the certificate of a master, mate or engineer, and application for a rehearing has not been made or (k) See Stat. R. & O. Rev., 1907, p. 702.

(l) Shipping Casualties and Appeals and Re-hearings Rules, 1907, r. 31.
(m) Ibid., r. 5.
(n) Ibid., r. 10.
(o) Ibid., r. 11.
(p) Ibid., r. 12.
(q) Ibid., r. 13.
(r) Ibid., r. 17.
(s) The Kestrel (1881), 6 P. D. 182.
(a) Shipping Casualties and Appeals and Re-hearings Rules, 1907, r. 15.
(b) Ibid., r. 18.
(c) M. S. Act, 1894, s. 475 (1).
(d) Ibid., s. 475 (2).
(e) Ibid., and compare R. S. C. (Merchant Shipping), 1894, r. 1.
(f) M. S. Act, 1894, s. 475 (2).

has been refused, an appeal lies to the Probate, Divorce and Admiralty Division of the High Court if the decision is given in England or by a naval court, to either division of the Court of Session if the decision is given in Scotland, and to the High Court if given in Ireland (g).

Any party appealing, other than the Board of Trade, must give such security for the costs of the appeal as the judge from whose decision the appeal is brought may direct (h).

Procedure.

924. On an appeal or rehearing the court, which must be assisted by not less than two assessors selected from the Elder Brethren of the Trinity House, or from the list kept by the Secretary of State (i), may order any person other than the parties served with the notice of appeal to be added as a party for the purposes of the appeal (k); but any party to the proceedings may object to the appearance of any other party as unnecessary (l). The court has full powers to receive further evidence either vivâ voce, by deposition, or by affidavit, and may give special leave to adduce evidence as to matters which have occurred since the date of the decision under appeal (m), but no evidence on questions of nautical knowledge or skill will be allowed, since it is the duty of the assessors to supply the court with such knowledge (n). The court has power to deal with the costs of the appeal as it may think just (o). On the conclusion of an appeal the court must send to the Board of Trade a report of the case (p).

(g) M. S. Act, 1894, s. 475 (3). If the Board of Trade refuses to grant a rehearing where it ought to be granted, the proper remedy is mandamus, and not an appeal under this provision (The Ida (1886), 11 P. D. 37). As to an appeal under this provision, see The Carlisle, [1906] P. 301.

(h) Shipping Casualties and Appeals and Re-hearings Rules, 1907, r. 20 (c).

(i) Ibid., r. 20 (e).

(k) Ibid., r. 20 (f).

(l) Ibid.

(m) Ibid., r. 20 (h). Where it is desired to adduce fresh evidence on appeal, application for leave so to do should be made before the hearing (The Famenoth (1882), 7 P. D. 207).

(n) The Kestrel (1881), 6 P. D. 182, 189.

(o) Shipping Casualties and Appeals and Re-hearings Rules, 1907, r. 20 (1). An unsuccessful appellant is usually mulcted in the whole of the costs, and in the case of a successful appeal against the suspension of a certificate at the instance of the Board of Trade the Board will be ordered to pay the costs of the appellant (The Famenoth, supra), unless he has been guilty of such misconduct as rendered an inquiry reasonable (The Arizona (1880), 5 P. D. 123; and compare The British Standard (1912), Shipping Gazette, 7th February). Where the Board failed to advise the court below whether a master's certificate should be dealt with, and the certificate was in fact suspended, the Board was ordered to pay the costs of the master who appealed successfully against the suspension (The Carlisle, supra, at p. 315). Where a decision suspending a certificate was affirmed but the court recommended that the Board of Trade should shorten the time of suspension, the parties were left to bear their own costs of the appeal (The Kestrel, supra); and where, before the right of appeal had been extended to owners, the court was compelled to dismiss the appeal of the owners, but was of opinion that the appeal should upon the merits have succeeded, the appeal was dismissed without costs (The Golden Sea (1882), 7 P. D. 194).

(p) Shipping Casualties and Appeals and Re-hearings Rules, 1907, r. 20 (k).

Part XV.—Pilotage.

SECT. 1.

SECT. 1.—The Pilotage Act, 1913.

The Pilotage Act, 1913.

Purpose and effect of Act.

925. On the 1st April, 1913, the Pilotage Act, 1913 (q), came into operation (a). It provides machinery for the complete reorganisation and revision of pilotage in each district, and it also at the same time consolidates and amends the general law (b). It is the intention of the Act to substitute for the great mass of confused and frequently inconsistent legislation, both general and local: (1) a general pilotage Act applying to the United Kingdom and the Isle of Man (c); (2) a Pilotage Order applying to the particular district; (3) bye-laws of the local pilotage authority. Certain provisions of the Merchant Shipping Acts are repealed (d), but any enactments, orders, charters, customs etc. affecting any pilotage district in particular are to remain in force until provision is made for their repeal by a Pilotage Order (e). The Act must be construed as one with the Merchant Shipping Acts, 1894—1907 (f).

SECT. 2.—Revision of Pilotage Organisation.

Revision of pilotage organisation.

926. With a view to making pilotage law easily accessible, and rendering its administration as far as possible uniform, the Board of Trade must prepare Pilotage Orders applying to the particular districts (g). Existing bye-laws must at the same time be revised, and the Board of Trade may recommend bye-laws to be made where none exist at present, or the substitution of new bye-laws for those already in existence (h). For the purpose of preparing Pilotage Orders and revising the bye-laws, the Board of Trade may hold local inquiries (i) by means of Commissioners

(q) 2 & 3 Geo. 5, c. 31; in this part of the title sometimes referred to as "the Act."

(a) Ibid., s. 59 (except s. 15, abolishing the defence of compulsory pilotage; see p. 611, post). Prior to this Act the law of pilotage was contained partly in general Acts and partly in local Acts, provisions, or orders applying to each locality. The M. S. Act, 1894, Part X., was the general Act dealing with pilotage. It re-enacted in many particulars the M. S. Act, 1854, and certain intermediate statutes, but owing to its provisions reference had also to be made to other repealed statutes to ascertain the law (M. S. Act, 1894, s. 574).

(b) Pilotage Act, 1913 (2 & 3 Geo. 5, c. 31), ss. 1—6.

(c) Ibid., s. 61.

(d) The repealed provisions are the M. S. Act, 1894, ss. 572—632, Sched. XXI.; M. S. (Exemption from Pilotage) Act, 1897; M. S. Act, 1906, s. 73. Any Orders in Council etc., or any person or body elected or constituted under these repealed statutes, continue as if made or constituted under the Pilotage Act, 1913 (2 & 3 Geo. 5, c. 31) (ibid., s. 60).

(e) Pilotage Act, 1913 (2 & 3 Geo. 5, c. 31), s. 59.

(f) Ibid., s. 62.

(g) Ibid., s. 1.

(h) Ibid., s. 2. If the pilots are not represented on the pilotage authority they must be consulted (ibid., s. 6).

(i) Notice of the time and place of the inquiry must be published in such a way as the Board of Trade thinks fit. Any person holding an inquiry has power to require the attendance of witnesses, and also to require the production of any books or documents (ibid., s. 5).

appointed by the Board (k). A pilotage authority may submit a scheme for the purpose of the reorganisation of pilotage, and if the Board of Trade is satisfied that the scheme is adequate for the purpose, no inquiry need be held (l). If a pilotage authority fail to submit bye-laws in accordance with the recommendations of the Board of Trade, the latter may treat the bye-laws recommended by it as if they were submitted by the pilotage authority (m).

SECT. 2. Revision of Pilotage Organisation.

SECT. 3.—Pilotage Orders.

927. A Pilotage Order for any particular district may be made by the Board of Trade, either for the purpose of revising pilotage organisation, or on the application in writing of any person interested in the operation or administration of the pilotage laws in that district (n).

When to be made.

928. A Pilotage Order may provide for (o):—(1) the establishment of new or the abolition of existing pilotage authorities; (2) the creation of pilotage committees and the delegation of any of the powers of the pilotage authority to the committee (p); (3) the alteration in the constitution of a pilotage authority, including provision for the representation thereon, or upon the pilotage committee, of pilots (q), shipowners (r), and harbour or dock authorities (s); (4) the incorporation of a pilotage authority; (5) the separation of accounts where the pilotage authority has other powers and duties besides those of pilotage authority (t); (6) bye-laws to be made by the pilotage authority providing for the issue by them of deep sea certificates (a); (7) the establishment of new, or the abolition or alteration of existing pilotage districts (b); (8) the definition of the limits of a pilotage district, distinguishing where necessary between that portion of the district where pilotage is compulsory and that portion where it is not compulsory.

Pilotage authorities and districts.

(k) Pilotage Act, 1913 (2 & 3 Geo. 5, c. 31), s. 3. The appointment of Commissioners is not to take effect beyond the 1st January, 1917, or, if the Treasury approves, for a period not exceeding five years beyond that date (ibid.). The limit on expenditure under the Act is £6,000 in any one year (ibid., s. 56). The Board of Trade Arbitrations, etc. Act, 1874 (37 & 38 Vict. c. 40), applies to the Pilotage Act, 1913 (2 & 3 Geo. 5, c. 31), s. 57.

(l) Pilotage Act, 1913 (2 & 3 Geo. 5, c. 31), s. 4.

(m) Ibid., s. 2.

(n) Ibid., s. 7 (4).

(o) Ibid., s. 7.

(p) Pilotage committees may include persons not members of the authority (ibid., s. 7 (1) (d)).

(q) Pilots in any district where there are more than six have a statutory right to be represented on either the pilotage authority or the pilotage committee (ibid., s. 7 (2)).

(r) Where provision has been made for the representation of pilots, shipowners are also entitled to be represented (ibid.).

(s) Any dock or harbour authority, having jurisdiction within a pilotage district, is entitled to be represented on the pilotage authority if represented at the date of the passing of the Act (ibid., s. 7 (3)).

(t) Many pilotage authorities are also harbour authorities.

(a) See p. 601, post.

(b) Provision may be made for compensation being paid to pilots in consequence of any loss occasioned by the alteration or abolition of any pilotage district (Pilotage Act, 1913 (2 & 3 Geo. 5, c. 31), s. 7 (1) (k)).

SECT. 3. Pilotage Orders.

Compulsory pilotage.

929. A Pilotage Order may provide that:—

(1) pilotage shall be compulsory in any district where it is now not compulsory, but in such a case the liability of a shipowner or master, for damage done by the negligent navigation of his ship, shall be the same as if pilotage was not compulsory (c);

(2) pilotage shall not be compulsory in any district where now it is compulsory, but only in connexion with any rearrangement of the district (d).

Local Acts.

930. A Pilotage Order may provide for the repeal of any Act other than the Pilotage Act, or of any order, charter, custom, bye-law, regulation, or provision, so far as it relates to pilotage (e); but until such Pilotage Order is made, any enactment, order, charter etc. affecting any pilotage district in particular remains in force (f).

Confirmation of Pilotage Orders.

931. A Pilotage Order, if it is made for the purpose of re-organising pilotage, or if, for whatever purpose it is made, a petition is presented to Parliament against it by persons interested in the administration of pilotage in the district to which the Pilotage Order relates, requires confirmation by Parliament (g). A Pilotage Order requiring confirmation by Parliament may be submitted to Parliament by the Board of Trade, and if the Bill confirming such order is petitioned against the same procedure as in the case of private Bills is followed. Any Act confirming a Pilotage Order may be repealed, altered, or amended by a subsequent Pilotage Order (h). A Pilotage Order which does not require confirmation by Parliament takes effect as if enacted in the Pilotage Act (i).

SECT. 4.—Pilotage Authorities and Districts.

SUB-SECT. 1.—In General.

"Pilotage authority."

932. The expression "pilotage authority" formerly included all bodies and persons authorised to appoint and license pilots, or to exercise any jurisdiction in respect of pilotage (k). All pilotage

(c) Pilotage Act, 1913 (2 & 3 Geo. 5, c. 31), ss. 7 (1) (h), 14. As to compulsory pilotage generally, see pp. 609 et seq., post.

(d) Subject also to provision being made for compensation to pilots for any loss or damage (Pilotage Act, 1913 (2 & 3 Geo. 5, c. 31), s. 7 (1) (h)).

(e) Ibid., s. 7 (1) (j). Any provision so repealed may be partly or wholly re-enacted in the Pilotage Order, so far as it is not inconsistent with the Pilotage Act (ibid.).

(f) Ibid., s. 59.

(g) Ibid., s. 7 (5). A Pilotage Order for the London district of the Trinity House was confirmed by the Pilotage Order (London) Confirmation Act, 1913 (3 & 4 Geo. 5, c. clxv.).

(h) Pilotage Act, 1913 (2 & 3 Geo. 5, c. 31), Sched. I.; see title PARLIAMENT, Vol. XXI., pp. 727 et seq.

(i) Pilotage Act, 1913 (2 & 3 Geo. 5, c. 31), s. 7 (6). The Board of Trade may make rules relating to the application for Pilotage Orders and the publication of notices. A notice stating the object proposed to be effected by the Order must be published once at least in two successive weeks in the month immediately succeeding the date of the application. If the pilotage authority is not itself the applicant for the Order, the Order must be referred to it, and the Board of Trade must consider any objections, whether made by it or by any persons appearing to the Board of Trade to be interested. The making of the Order is primâ facie evidence that all the requirements of the Act in respect of proceedings to be taken have been complied with (ibid., Sched. I.).

(k) M. S. Act, 1894, s. 573. Although the Board of Trade may in authorities in existence at the date of the passing of the Pilotage Act are to continue until some other provision is made by a Pilotage Order. The expression "pilotage authority" will then mean the authority as established and constituted by such Pilotage Order. Similarly, the expression "pilotage district" will mean the district as established and defined by the Pilotage Order (l).

In future the establishment of new pilotage authorities and districts, the alteration in the constitution of the authority or in the limits of the district, will be effected by means of a Pilotage Order (m).

SUB-SECT. 2.—The Trinity House.

Trinity House.

933. The Trinity House (n) is the pilotage authority for the London district and also for a number of ports called outports (o). Pilotage at the outports is controlled by the Trinity House by means of sub-commissioners at present appointed by it (p). In future the appointment of sub-commissioners and the manner in and conditions under which they are to exercise the duties of the Trinity House as pilotage authority are to be provided for by a Pilotage Order (q).

SECT. 5.—Powers and Duties of Pilotage Authorities.

SUB-SECT. 1.—Bye-laws.

Purposes for which bye-laws may be made.

934. Pilotage authorities may by bye-law provide for the following matters (r) :—

(1) The qualifications to be required of persons applying for licences.

(2) The method of examination for a licence, the term for which it is in force, and the conditions under which it will be renewed.

(3) The method of examination and the qualifications required for a pilotage certificate, and the conditions under which it will be renewed.

(4) The limitation on the number of pilots.

(5) The good government of pilots and apprentices, and the punishment of offences by fines (s).

certain cases exercise the powers of a pilotage authority, it no longer appears to come within the definition of a pilotage authority.

(l) Pilotage Act, 1913 (2 & 3 Geo. 5, c. 31), s. 8. For list of existing pilotage authorities and limits of the pilotage districts, see Digby and Cole, Pilotage, pp. 69—85.

(m) See pp. 597, 598, ante.

(n) For the meaning of the Trinity House, see M. S. Act, 1894, s. 742.

(o) "Outports" means those ports which are now under the jurisdiction of sub-commissioners, or may hereafter be declared to be outports (Pilotage Act, 1913 (2 & 3 Geo. 5, c. 31), s. 52).

(p) Sub-commissioners are apparently not a pilotage authority; see M. S. Act, 1894, s. 617.

(q) Pilotage Act, 1913 (2 & 3 Geo. 5, c. 31), s. 52. Although both the Trinity Houses of Hull and Newcastle-upon-Tyne at the present time appoint sub-commissioners for certain ports, there is no power under the Act to make provision for this as in the case of the Trinity House.

(r) Ibid., s. 17.

(s) These bye-laws may be made to apply to masters and mates holding pilotage certificates (ibid., s. 17 (1) (o)).

SECT. 5. Powers and Duties of Pilotage Authorities.

(6) The system to be adopted with regard to the supply and employment of pilots (t).

(7) The approval, licensing, and working of pilot boats, and establishment of pilot boat companies.

(8) The basis, scale, and amount of pilotage rates.

(9) The pooling of the earnings of the pilots if it appears to the authority to be generally desired by them.

(10) The deduction from the pilots' earnings of sums to meet administrative expenses.

(11) Bonds being given by pilots not exceeding £100 for the purpose of the provisions of the Pilotage Act, 1913 (u), limiting their liability.

(12) The establishment of pilots' benefit funds, and the deduction from pilots' earnings of contributions thereto.

(13) The granting of deep sea certificates if so authorised by a Pilotage Order.

(14) The contribution to be required of shipowners, whose masters or mates hold pilotage certificates, towards the pilot fund or account of the pilotage district.

Objections to bye-laws.

935. Where at any port either a majority of the pilots or not less than six persons being masters, owners, or insurers of ships using the port, or any dock or harbour authority, object to any bye-law in force or desire any new bye-law, the Board of Trade has power to revoke or alter the bye-law, or to call upon the pilotage authority to submit a new bye-law (a).

Board of Trade must confirm bye-laws.

936. Bye-laws do not take effect until they are confirmed by the Board of Trade, and prior to their being submitted for confirmation must be published as the Board of Trade directs (b).

SUB-SECT. 2.—Licences.

Pilots' licences.

937. Every pilotage authority has power to grant licences to pilots who have fulfilled the conditions laid down in the bye-laws (c). The licence is to be in the form approved by the Board of Trade (d), and is subject to periodical renewal (e). Every licensed pilot, when acting as a pilot, must be furnished with his licence (f), and on request must produce it to his employer (g). A pilotage authority

(t) For example, the conditions under which special pilots may be appropriated to particular ships, frequently called "choice pilotage."

(u) 2 & 3 Geo. 5, c. 31.

(a) Ibid., s. 18.

(b) Ibid., s. 17.

(c) Ibid., s. 16. Such fees as may be fixed by bye-law are payable by pilots on examination or on the grant or renewal of a licence (ibid., s. 29). For the special power of the Trinity House to make provisions as to "exempt pilots," see ibid., s. 54.

(d) Ibid., s. 20.

(e) Ibid., s. 17 (1) (a).

(f) Ibid., s. 33. The pilotage authority must also furnish the pilot with copies of the Pilotage Act, Pilotage Order and bye-laws, which must be produced on request to the employer (ibid., s. 33).

(g) Ibid., s. 36. A master is not obliged to take the services of a pilot who fails to produce his licence (Hammond v. Blake (1830), 10 B. & C. 424).

may require a pilot to produce his licence to it, and on the death of a pilot the person into whose hands the licence comes must transmit it without delay to the pilotage authority (h). Pilotage authorities may also in certain circumstances (i) issue certificates to persons certifying that they are competent to act as pilots for the deep sea outside the districts of other pilotage authorities (k).

Revocation or suspension of licences.

938. A pilotage authority may revoke or suspend a licence for any offence under the Act, or breach of bye-laws, or for any neglect, incompetence, or misconduct affecting the holder's capability as a pilot (l). Where pilots are directly represented upon the pilotage committee, that committee has the same powers as the pilotage authority with regard to the revocation and suspension of licences, unless and until a Pilotage Order is made regulating the relations between the pilotage authority and the committee (m).

Grant of licence implies no liability.

939. The grant of a licence by a pilotage authority does not impose any liability upon the authority for any loss or damage occasioned by the default of the pilot (n).

SUB-SECT. 3.—Pilotage Certificates.

Pilotage certificates.

940. On the application of a master or mate of any ship, the pilotage authority may grant him a pilotage certificate, provided that he is a British subject, if after examination the authority is satisfied that his local knowledge, skill, and experience are such that he is capable of piloting his ship within the district of the authority (o). The pilotage authority may by bye-law restrict the grant of the pilotage certificate to masters or mates who hold at least a mate's certificate of competency (p).

May extend to more than one ship.

941. A pilotage certificate may be granted so as to extend to more than one ship, provided that the ships to which it extends are of substantially the same class and belong to the same owner (q). It is

(h) Pilotage Act, 1913 (2 & 3 Geo. 5, c. 31), s. 20. If the licence is revoked or suspended it must be delivered up to the pilotage authority (ibid.).

(i) Ibid., ss. 7 (1) (i.), 17 (1) (n).

(k) As to effect of these licences, see p. 604, post.

(l) Pilotage Act, 1913 (2 & 3 Geo. 5, c. 31), s. 26.

(m) Ibid.

(n) Ibid., s. 19; and see Shaw, Savill and Albion Co. v. Timaru Harbour Board (1890), 15 App. Cas. 429, P. C. Where, however, pilotage authorities elect, as in some cases, to pay the pilots a fixed wage and treat them in other respects in a manner closely analogous to servants, it is doubtful to what extent, if any, they are liable for the acts and defaults of a pilot; compare The Bearn, [1906] P. 48, C. A.

(o) Pilotage Act, 1913 (2 & 3 Geo. 5, c. 31), s. 23 (1). The applicant must be a bonâ fide master or mate of a ship (ibid.).

(p) Ibid. For provisions as to certificate of competency, see p. 38, ante. Reference to a certificate of competency under the M. S. Act, 1894, Part II., includes reference to a certificate of competency granted by a foreign Government and approved by the Board of Trade (Pilotage Act, 1913 (2 & 3 Geo. 5, c. 31), s. 25).

(q) The expression "substantially the same class" has not been defined. Ships which are under the management of the same person as manager, in the form approved by the Board of Trade (r), and may not be in force for more than a year, but may be renewed if the holder has made not less than a specified number of visits to the port in respect of which the certificate is granted, or if he has passed a fresh examination (s).

SECT. 5. Powers and Duties of Pilotage Authorities.

Must be in approved form.

In force for one year but renewable.

Transfer of master or mate to another ship.

942. If a master or mate is transferred to another ship belonging to the same owner his certificate may be altered so as to cover the ship to which he is transferred, provided that the latter is of substantially the same class as the former. If a master or mate is transferred to another ship belonging to a different owner his certificate may be altered so as to relate to the ship to which he is transferred, provided that the latter is not of substantially greater draught or tonnage than the former (t).

Alien master or mate.

943. If an alien master or mate is master or mate of a ship which is of substantially the same class and trading regularly between the same ports as did a foreign ship which was exempt from compulsory pilotage on the 1st June, 1906, or which was at that date being piloted by a master or mate holding a pilotage certificate, he may apply to the Board of Trade, and if satisfied of the above circumstances the Board may authorise him to apply to the pilotage authority for a pilotage certificate. The same provisions as to the grant and renewal of a pilotage certificate will then apply as in the case of a British subject. The Admiralty may, however, on the ground of public safety, exclude by order the application of these provisions to any pilotage district, and thereupon the certificates already granted cease to have effect (a). Any alien master or mate who holds a pilotage certificate granted before the 1st June, 1906, is entitled to have the same renewed as if he were a British subject (b).

Revocation or suspension.

944. A pilotage authority may suspend or revoke a pilotage certificate for any offence under the Pilotage Act or breach of bye-laws, or for any neglect, incompetence or misconduct affecting the holder's capability as a pilot (c).

managing owner, demisee or time charterer for this purpose are ships belonging to the same owner (Pilotage Act, 1913 (2 & 3 Geo. 5, c. 31), s. 23 (6); compare The Bristol City, [1902] P. 10).

(r) The name of the person to whom granted, the name or names of the ships, their draught and the district in respect of which it is granted, and the date on which it was granted must appear on the certificate (Pilotage Act, 1913 (2 & 3 Geo. 5, c. 31), s. 23 (2)).

(s) Ibid., ss. 17 (1) (m), 23 (3).

(t) Ibid., s. 23 (5). Such fees are payable on examination, or on the grant, renewal or alteration of a pilotage certificate as may be fixed by bye-law (ibid., s. 29).

(a) Ibid., s. 24 (2). By an order dated the 25th March, 1913, the Admiralty vetoed the grant of pilotage certificates to aliens in—(i.) the London pilotage district; (ii.) the Harwich pilotage district; (iii.) so much of the Humber pilotage district as lies to the north of Grimsby (London Gazette, 28th March, 1913). For the limits of these districts, see Digby and Cole, Pilotage, pp. 70, 73, 74.

(b) Pilotage Act, 1913 (2 & 3 Geo. 5, c. 31), s. 24 (1). The M. S. Act, 1906, s. 73, which is repealed, for the first time prohibited the grant of pilotage certificates to aliens in all districts, but did not affect the renewal of certificates granted before the 1st June, 1906.

(c) Pilotage Act, 1913 (2 & 3 Geo. 5, c. 31), s. 26.

SECT. 5. Powers and Duties of Pilotage Authorities.

SUB-SECT. 4.—Receipts and Expenditure.

945. A pilotage authority may by bye-law provide for the deduction from any sums received by pilots of the sums necessary to meet the administrative expenses of the authority, and also of the contributions required toward any fund established for the benefit of pilots, their widows or children (d). All receipts of a pilotage authority in its capacity as such must be paid into a separate fund called the pilot fund or account (e); but when a pilotage authority is by statute entitled to receive money in the name of pilotage and apply it to some other purpose, a Pilotage Order may provide for the apportionment of the money so received between that purpose and the pilot fund (f). Provisions for expenses and contributions. Pilot fund.

After providing for the administrative expenses of the authority, the balance of the pilot fund must, unless the bye-laws otherwise provide, be applied for the benefit of the pilots.

SUB-SECT. 5.—Pilotage Rates or Dues.

946. The amount and basis of rates payable in respect of the services of a pilot, their collection (g) and distribution (h), are provided for by bye-laws (i). A pilot may not demand or receive, and a master may not offer or pay, rates either greater or less than those laid down by bye-law (k). A pilot taken beyond the point for which he was engaged, without his consent or through necessity, is entitled to maintenance and 10*s.* 6*d.* per day in addition to the pilotage dues (l). When a boat or ship with a licensed pilot on board leads another ship, in circumstances which make it impossible for the pilot to board the latter, the full pilotage dues are payable (m). Pilotage dues.

947. The owner or master of any ship for which the services of a qualified pilot are obtained is liable for the pilotage dues Who is liable for.

(d) Pilotage Act, 1913 (2 & 3 Geo. 5, c. 31), s. 17 (1) (h). The account of this fund must be kept separate, and moneys received for the benefit of, or credited to, this fund must not be used for any other purpose (ibid., s. 21 (3)). This fund may be established by the pilotage authority either alone or in conjunction with any other pilotage authority, and provision for its administration etc. is to be laid down by bye-law (ibid., s. 17 (1) (j)).

(e) Ibid., s. 21. The Trinity House may maintain a single pilot fund for all its districts (ibid., s. 53). A pilotage authority can, under a bye-law, require the owner, whose master or mate holds a pilotage certificate, to contribute towards the pilot fund. This contribution is not to exceed such proportion of the pilotage dues which would have been payable if the master or mate had not held a pilotage certificate, as may be fixed by the Board of Trade (ibid., s. 17 (1) (p)).

(f) Ibid., s. 58.

(g) For special provisions as to the collection of pilotage dues in the Port of London, see ibid., s. 55.

(h) If desired by the pilots, pilotage dues may be pooled (ibid., s. 17 (1) (g)).

(i) Ibid., s. 17 (1) (f).

(k) Ibid., s. 50.

(l) The 10*s.* 6*d.* is recoverable in the same manner as pilotage dues (ibid., s. 34); this alters the law as laid down in Morteo v. Julian (1879), 4 C. P. D. 216.

(m) Pilotage Act, 1913 (2 & 3 Geo. 5, c. 31), s. 51.

SECT. 5. Powers and Duties of Pilotage Authorities.

so incurred. As regards pilotage inwards, such consignees or agents as have paid, or made themselves liable to pay, any other charge on account of the ship in the port of her arrival or discharge, and as regards outward pilotage such consignees or agents as have paid, or made themselves liable to pay, any other charge on account of the ship in the port of departure, are also liable (n). Pilotage dues may be recovered by proceedings under the Summary Jurisdiction Acts (o), provided that a demand in writing has first been delivered (p).

SUB-SECT. 6.—Returns.

Returns by pilotage authorities.

948. All pilotage authorities must deliver annually to the Board of Trade, (1) a statement of their accounts; (2) a statement showing the average gross and net earnings of the pilots; (3) the account of the pilots' benefit fund, with particulars of the investments, if any (q). All pilotage authorities must deliver triennially, or, if directed, at shorter intervals, returns giving such particulars as may be prescribed by the Board of Trade. These returns must be laid before Parliament (r).

SECT. 6.—Pilots.

SUB-SECT. 1.—Rights and Obligations.

Rights and obligations.

949. A pilot (s) licensed for a district is entitled to supersede any other pilot not so licensed (t), but a deep sea certificate gives a pilot no right to supersede any other person (u). When the master of a ship has accepted or is under the obligation of accepting the services of a pilot, he must give the latter facilities for getting on board (a), and must, if the pilot so desires, declare the draught, length and beam of the ship (b).

Salvage.

Where a pilot renders services which, owing to their nature or the condition of the ship, are more than ordinary pilotage services, he may be entitled to salvage (c).

(n) Pilotage Act, 1913 (2 & 3 Geo. 5, c. 31), s. 49. The agents and consignees, if made liable, have a lien upon any money received by them on account of the ship or belonging to the owner (ibid.).

(o) M. S. Act, 1894, s. 681. As to summary procedure generally, see title MAGISTRATES, Vol. XIX., pp. 589 et seq.

(p) Pilotage Act, 1913 (2 & 3 Geo. 5, c. 31), s. 49 (1).

(q) Ibid., s. 22 (2). Any pilotage authority failing to deliver these statements or returns may be suspended by an Order in Council, and the Board of Trade may appoint some person to carry on the duties of the pilotage authority during the period of such suspension.

(r) Ibid., s. 22 (1). The pilotage authority must allow any person appointed by the Board of Trade to inspect any books or documents relating to the statements or returns required (ibid., s. 22 (3)).

(s) A pilot is any person not belonging to a ship who has the conduct thereof (M. S. Act, 1894, s. 742).

(t) Pilotage Act, 1913 (2 & 3 Geo. 5, c. 31), s. 30 (1). The master must, however, pay the pilot so superseded a proportionate sum for his services (ibid., s. 30 (2)).

(u) Ibid., s. 7 (1) (i.).

(a) Ibid., s. 44.

(b) Ibid., s. 31.

(c) The Santiago (1900), 9 Asp. M. L. C. 147; Akerblom v. Price (1881), 7 Q. B. D. 129; and see p. 567, ante.

Where a pilot has given a bond his liability is limited to the amount of the bond, together with the amount payable to him for pilotage (d).

Limitation of liability.

A pilot is entitled to compensation under the provisions of the Workmen's Compensation Act, 1906 (e), but only when piloting a ship registered in the United Kingdom, or any other British ship the owner or manager of which resides or has his principal place of business in the United Kingdom (f).

Workmen's Compensation Act.

SUB-SECT. 2.—Unqualified Person Acting as Pilot.

950. In any pilotage district no person not licensed for the district may attempt to act as pilot of a ship after a licensed pilot has offered his services, nor may a master knowingly employ such person (g). The fact that any person other than the master, or a member of the crew, is on the bridge or in some other position from which the ship is navigated, is primâ facie evidence that that person is acting as pilot of the ship (h).

Unqualified person may not act as pilot.

951. Persons other than licensed pilots may, where the bye-laws so provide, be employed to move a ship within a harbour for the purpose of changing her moorings or of taking her into or out of dock (i).

Moving ship in harbour.

SECT. 7.—Pilot Boats, Flags, and Signals.

952. All boats and ships in the pilotage service of any district must be approved and licensed by the pilotage authority (k) of the district, and the pilotage authority has power to appoint and remove the masters of such boats (l). The master of a pilot boat must see that his boat possesses all the distinguishing characteristics of a

Regulations.

(d) Pilotage Act, 1913 (2 & 3 Geo. 5, c. 31), s. 35 (1). The court may determine the amount of the pilot's liability and distribute the amount rateably among the claimants (ibid., s. 35 (3)). This alters the law as laid down in Deering & Sons v. Targett, [1913] 1 K. B. 129. It is probable that a pilot can claim to limit his liability by way of defence or counterclaim, and without an admission of liability, in a manner analogous to that of a shipowner ; see p. 616, post.

(e) 6 Edw. 7, c. 58.

(f) This applies to a qualified as well as an unqualified pilot ; see note (s), p. 604, ante ; Workmen's Compensation Act, 1906 (6 Edw. 7, c. 58), s. 7 ; and title MASTER AND SERVANT, Vol. XX., p. 158.

(g) Pilotage Act, 1913 (2 & 3 Geo. 5, c. 31), s. 30 (3), (4). As to the duty of a master to display a pilot signal if he has an unlicensed person acting as pilot, see p. 606, post.

(h) Pilotage Act, 1913 (2 & 3 Geo. 5, c. 31), s. 30 (5). The person need not necessarily be on board the ship piloted (ibid.).

(i) Ibid., s. 32. A bye-law must be made in all cases where, at the date of the passing of the Act, there was a class of persons, other than licensed pilots, in practice employed to do this work (ibid.).

(k) A Pilotage Order may not diminish the powers of a pilotage authority with regard to pilot boats (ibid., s. 40), and a pilotage authority which owns or hires pilot boats may keep a separate account in respect of such boats (ibid., s. 21 (4)). Bye-laws may provide for the approval, licensing, and working of pilot boats and establishment of pilot boat companies (ibid., s. 17 (1) (d)).

(l) Ibid., s. 38.

SECT. 7. Pilot Boats, Flags, and Signals.

pilot boat, and is bound under a penalty to see that the same are in good repair and properly displayed (m).

Pilot flags.

953. It is the duty of a master of a ship to display a pilot flag (n) when he has on board a pilot licensed for the district or when he or his mate holds a pilotage certificate for that district (o).

Pilot signals.

954. It is the duty of a master of a ship navigating in circumstances in which pilotage is compulsory, or if he has on board a pilot not licensed for that district, whether pilotage is compulsory or not, to display a pilot signal (p). The signal must be kept flying until a licensed pilot comes on board (q).

SECT. 8.—Offences.

SUB-SECT. 1.—Offences by Pilots.

Offences by pilots.

955. A pilot commits an offence if he:—

(1) Keeps, or is interested in keeping, any public-house or place of public entertainment, or in selling any wine, spirituous liquors, tobacco or tea (r);

(2) is concerned in any corrupt practices relating to ships, their

(m) Pilotage Act, 1913 (2 & 3 Geo. 5, c. 31), s. 39 (2). The characteristics are:—(i.) On her stern the name of her owner and of her port painted in white letters at least one inch broad and three inches long, and on each bow the number of her licence; (ii.) in all other parts a black colour painted or tarred, or such other colour or colours as the pilotage authority may direct; (iii) when afloat a large flag, called the pilot flag, the upper horizontal half white, and the lower horizontal half red, placed at the masthead, or on a sprit or staff, or in some equally conspicuous situation (ibid, s. 39 (1)). As regards lights to be carried by pilot vessels, see the Sea Regulations, 1897, art. 8; and pp. 392 et seq., ante.

(n) For description of pilot flag, see note (m), supra.

(o) Pilotage Act, 1913 (2 & 3 Geo. 5, c. 31), s. 41. It is an offence to display a pilot flag, or a flag so nearly resembling a pilot flag as to be likely to deceive, when no licensed pilot or master or mate holding a pilotage certificate is on board (ibid., s. 42).

(p) Rules as to pilot signals are to be made by Order in Council (ibid., s. 45). The following, displayed either separately or together, are the existing pilot signals which remain in force (ibid., s. 60):—

In the daytime—

(i.) a Union Jack, hoisted at the fore, having round it a white border one-fifth of the breadth of the flag;

(ii.) the International Code Pilotage Signal, indicated by P. T.;

(iii.) the International Code Flag S., with or without the Code Pennant over it;

(iv.) the distant signal, consisting of a cone point upwards, having above it two balls or shapes resembling balls;

At night—

(i.) the pyrotechnic blue light displayed every fifteen minutes:

(ii.) a bright white light, flashed or shown at short or frequent intervals just above the bulwarks, for about a minute at a time.

It is an offence for any master to display, or permit any person under his authority to display, a pilot signal for any other purpose than that of summoning a pilot, or to display any other signal for a pilot (ibid., s. 45 (3)). For power to use private signals duly registered, see M. S. Act, 1894, s. 733.

(q) Pilotage Act, 1913 (2 & 3 Geo. 5, c. 31), s. 43.

(r) Ibid., s. 48. It is immaterial whether the offence committed is within or outside of the district for which the pilot is licensed; it extends to anyone aiding or abetting the commission of the offence. Penalty, a fine not exceeding £100 in addition to liability for damages (ibid.).

tackle, furniture, cargoes, crews, or passengers, or to persons in distress at sea or by shipwreck, or to their moneys, goods, or chattels (s);

(3) lends his licence (s);

(4) acts as pilot while suspended, or when in a state of intoxication (s);

(5) employs, or causes to be employed, on board any ship of which he has charge, anything beyond what is necessary for the service of that ship with intent to enhance the expenses of pilotage for his own gain, or for the gain of any other person (s);

(6) refuses or wilfully delays, without reasonable cause, to take charge of any ship within the limits of his licence upon signal being made by the ship, or upon being required to do so by the master, owner, agent or consignee of the ship, or by any officer of his own pilotage authority, or by any chief officer of customs and excise; or refuses, when requested by the master, to conduct the ship in his charge into any port or place into which he is qualified to conduct her, except on the ground of danger to the ship (s);

(7) cuts or slips, or causes to be cut or slipped, unnecessarily any cable belonging to a ship (s);

(8) leaves a ship of which he has charge without the consent of the master before the service for which he was hired is performed (s);

(9) fails to produce his licence to his employer (t) or to the pilotage authority on request (u);

(10) demands or receives improper pilotage dues (a);

(11) fails to produce the pilotage provisions on request (b);

(12) commits a breach of the bye-laws (c);

(13) by wilful breach or neglect of duty or by reason of drunkenness endangers a ship, or the limbs, or lives, of any person on board (d).

SUB-SECT. 2.—Offences by Masters.

956. A master of a ship commits an offence if he:— Offences by masters.

(1) Fails to have his ship under proper pilotage (e);

(2) knowingly employs or continues to employ an unlicensed pilot after a licensed pilot has offered his services (f);

(s) See note (r), p. 606, ante.

(t) Pilotage Act, 1913 (2 & 3 Geo. 5, c. 31), s. 36. Penalty, a fine not exceeding £10 (ibid.).

(u) Ibid., s. 20. Penalty, a fine not exceeding £10 (ibid.); see Henry v. Newcastle Trinity House (1858), 8 E. & B. 723.

(a) Pilotage Act, 1913 (2 & 3 Geo. 5, c. 31), s. 50. Penalty, a fine not exceeding £10 (ibid.).

(b) Ibid., s. 33. Penalty, a fine not exceeding £5 (ibid.).

(c) Ibid., s. 17 (1) (e). Penalty, a fine not exceeding £20 (ibid.). This applies also to apprentices (ibid.).

(d) Ibid., s. 46. This offence is declared to be a misdemeanour, for punishment of which see M. S. Act, 1894, s. 680.

(e) Where pilotage is compulsory the ship must be under the pilotage of a licensed pilot or a master or mate holding a pilotage certificate. Penalty, a fine not exceeding double the amount of the pilotage dues (Pilotage Act, 1913 (2 & 3 Geo. 5, c. 31), s. 11 (2)).

(f) Ibid., s. 30 (4). Penalty, a fine not exceeding £50. In the case of outward bound ships the burden is upon the master of showing that he has taken all reasonable steps to obtain a licensed pilot (ibid.).

SECT. 8. Offences.

(3) fails to give the particulars of his ship on being requested by the pilot (g);

(4) fails in certain circumstances to display (h), or improperly displays, a pilot flag (i);

(5) fails in certain circumstances to display (k), or improperly displays, a pilot signal (l);

(6) without reasonable cause takes a pilot out of his district (m);

(7) fails to give the pilot facilities for getting on board (n);

(8) offers or pays improper pilotage dues (o);

(9) commits a breach of the bye-laws (p).

SUB-SECT. 3.—Offences by Other Persons.

Offences by other persons.

957. Any person commits an offence if he:—

(1) Fails to comply with the summons of a person holding a local inquiry, or impedes such person in the execution of his duty (q);

(2) by a fraudulent use of a licence, or by any other means, represents himself as a licensed pilot when not so in fact (r);

(3) obtains or endeavours to obtain charge of a ship by the wilful misrepresentation of circumstances upon which the safety of the ship may depend (s);

(4) pilots or attempts to pilot a ship, after a licensed pilot has offered his services (t).

SUB-SECT. 4.—Further Penalties.

Suspension or revocation of certificate.

958. In addition to the fines for various offences already mentioned, offences under the Pilotage Act, 1913 (a), are punishable, in the case of pilots and masters or mates holding pilotage certificates, by the suspension or revocation of the licence or certificate (b).

SECT. 9.—Appeals.

Appeals.

959. An appeal lies to the Board of Trade from the decision of the pilotage authority, where the pilotage authority has (c) refused to examine a candidate for a licence or a pilotage certificate, or has conducted such examination unfairly, or has

(g) Pilotage Act, 1913 (2 & 3 Geo. 5, c. 31), s. 31. Penalty, a fine not exceeding £50 (ibid.).

(h) Ibid., s. 41. Penalty, a fine not exceeding £50 (ibid.).

(i) Ibid., s. 42. Penalty, a fine not exceeding £50 (ibid.).

(k) Ibid., s. 43. Penalty, a fine not exceeding £20 (ibid.).

(l) Ibid., s. 45. Penalty, a fine not exceeding £20 (ibid.).

(m) Ibid., s. 34 (1). Penalty, a fine not exceeding £20 (ibid.).

(n) Ibid., s. 44. Penalty, a fine not exceeding double the amount of the pilotage dues (ibid.).

(o) Ibid., s. 50. Penalty, a fine not exceeding £10 (ibid.).

(p) Bye-laws applying to pilots may, with the necessary modifications, be made to apply to masters and mates holding pilotage certificates (ibid., s. 17 (1) (o)).

(q) Ibid., s. 5 (4). Penalty, a fine not exceeding £5, and in addition £1 for every day the offence continues (ibid.).

(r) Ibid., s. 37. Penalty, a fine not exceeding £20 (ibid.).

(s) Ibid., s. 47. Penalty, a fine not exceeding £100 in addition to any liability for damages (ibid.).

(t) Ibid., s. 30 (3). Penalty, a fine not exceeding £50 (ibid.); see p. 605, ante.

(a) 2 & 3 Geo. 5, c. 31.

(b) Ibid., s. 26.

(c) Ibid., s. 27.

imposed illegal conditions on the granting of a licence or certificate; or has refused to renew a pilotage certificate, or revoked or suspended such certificate; or has improperly exercised or failed to perform any of its powers or duties under the Act.

The Board of Trade may make such order as it thinks fit, and if the pilotage authority fails to give effect to such order the Board of Trade may itself exercise the powers of a pilotage authority for this purpose.

A pilot may appeal from the decision of the pilotage authority to a judge of county courts, metropolitan police magistrate, or stipendiary magistrate, having jurisdiction within the port for which the pilot is licensed, where the pilotage authority has (d) suspended or revoked his licence or, having obtained possession of it, failed to return it; or has imposed a fine exceeding £2 (e).

The judge or magistrate may confirm or reverse the decision of the pilotage authority or may make such order as seems to him just. His decision is final unless he, or the High Court (f), gives special leave to appeal to the High Court on a question of law or of mixed law and fact (g).

SECT. 10.—Compulsory Pilotage.

SUB-SECT. 1.—Obligation under Compulsory Pilotage.

Compulsory pilotage.

960. Every ship which is navigating (h) within a compulsory

(d) On the hearing of the appeal the judge or magistrate must sit with an assessor of nautical and pilotage experience, and either party to the appeal may object to any person proposed to be summoned as an assessor on personal or professional grounds. In Scotland pilotage appeals are heard by the sheriff having jurisdiction at the port where the original decision is given, aided by an assessor qualified and selected as in England; and in Ireland a judge of county courts is construed to include a chairman of quarter sessions and a recorder, whilst the expressions "magistrate" and "stipendiary magistrate" are deemed to refer to magistrates appointed under the Constabulary (Ireland) Act, 1836 (6 & 7 Will. 4, c. 13) (Pilotage Act, 1913 (2 & 3 Geo. 5, c. 31), s. 28 (1)—(3), (7), (8)).

(e) There is no appeal given under the Act where fines are imposed on masters or mates holding pilotage certificates; but see M. S. Act, 1894, ss. 680—682.

(f) In Scotland the Court of Session (Pilotage Act, 1913 (2 & 3 Geo. 5, c. 31), s. 28 (7)). The decision of the High Court is final (ibid., s. 28 (4)).

(g) Ibid., s. 28 (4). Appeals in England are governed, as regards the county courts, by the County Court Rules, dated the 14th July, 1903; as regards magistrates, by a body of rules entitled "Rules dated the 14th March, 1890, made by the Secretary of State for the hearing by stipendiary magistrates and Metropolitan police magistrates of appeals" (ibid., s. 28 (6)); in Scotland by an Act of Sederunt to regulate procedure under the M. S. (Pilotage) Act, 1889 (52 & 53 Vict. c. 68), dated the 13th March, 1890 (Pilotage Act, 1913 (2 & 3 Geo. 5, c. 31), s. 28 (7)); and in Ireland by Rules and Forms dated the 2nd May, 1890 (ibid., s. 28 (8) (c)). The existing rules remain applicable (ibid., s. 60). As to extension of time for appeal, see R. v. Lewis, [1906] 2 K. B. 307.

(h) Navigating may include moving within a harbour (Pilotage Act, 1913 (2 & 3 Geo. 5, c. 31), s. 32), but in all districts pilotage is not compulsory within any dock, lock, or closed work (ibid.).

SECT. 10. Compulsory Pilotage.

pilotage district, and every ship carrying passengers (i) navigating within a pilotage district whether compulsory or not, for the purpose of entering, leaving, or making use (k) of a port within that district must, unless she comes under the category of an excepted ship, be under the pilotage of a licensed pilot or of a bonâ fide master or mate of that ship holding a pilotage certificate for the district (l).

Compulsory pilotage districts.

961. "Compulsory pilotage districts" means those districts, or parts of districts, where a charge for pilotage is imposed whether a pilot is taken or not (m), or where the employment of a pilot is enforced by a penalty (n).

Subject to any alteration which may be made by a Pilotage Order, and unless and until such alteration is made, all those districts or parts of districts which were compulsory at the time of the passing of the Act remain compulsory, and all non-compulsory districts remain non-compulsory (o). All existing exemptions within compulsory districts are, however, abolished (p), except those taking effect under any enactment, order, charter, custom, bye-law, or regulation applying to any pilotage district in particular; these remain in force until provision is made by a Pilotage Order for superseding them (q).

SUB-SECT. 2.—Excepted Ships.

Excepted ships.

962. The following ships, or classes of ships, come within the expression "excepted ships," and are exempt in all pilotage districts from the obligation above stated:—(1) His Majesty's ships, yachts, fishing vessels (r); (2) ferry boats plying within the limits of a

(i) The word "passengers" in this context involves the principle of an agreement to carry with the privity of the owner and the payment of a fare. A vessel having on board a person who messes with the captain and assists in the work of the ship, but who does not pay for his passage, is not carrying a passenger (The Hanna (1866), L. R. 1 A. & E. 283); neither is a vessel which usually carries passengers not engaged on a passenger voyage, but having on board relatives of the captain without the knowledge of the owners (The "Lion" (1869), L. R. 2 P. C. 525). A vessel carrying distressed seamen is not thereby rendered a passenger vessel for pilotage purposes (The Clymene, [1897] P. 295, 300); and see p. 331, ante.

(k) Calling for the purpose only of landing or taking on board a pilot does not come within the expression "entering, leaving, or making use of a port" (Pilotage Act, 1913 (2 & 3 Geo. 5, c. 31), s. 13).

(l) Ibid., s. 11 (1); see p. 601, ante.

(m) The Maria (1839), 1 Wm. Rob. 95.

(n) The Ruby (1890), 15 P. D. 139.

(o) Pilotage Act, 1913 (2 & 3 Geo. 5, c. 31), s. 10. Until a Pilotage Order is made for a particular district it will still be necessary, in order to ascertain whether pilotage is compulsory or not within that district, to refer to the local Acts, charters, Orders in Council etc. applying to that district. For a summary of these, see Marsden, Collisions at Sea, 6th ed., pp. 247—264. In some districts it is still by no means clear whether pilotage is in fact compulsory or not.

(p) Pilotage Act, 1913 (2 & 3 Geo. 5, c. 31), s. 10.

(q) Ibid., s. 59.

(r) Fishing vessels are not defined, but compare the definition of fishing boats in the M. S. Act, 1894, s. 370; see title FISHERIES, Vol. XIV., p. 628.

harbour authority; (3) ships under 50 tons gross register; (4) ships trading coastwise (s), home-trade ships (t), and ships whose ordinary course of navigation does not extend beyond the harbour limits, when not carrying passengers, and if provision for their exemption has been made by bye-law (a); (5) tugs, dredgers, sludge vessels and barges, belonging to, or hired by a dock, harbour, river, or local authority, and employed under the statutory powers of that authority (b); (6) ships moving within a harbour for the purpose of changing moorings, or being taken into or out of dock, if provision for their exemption has been made by bye-law (c).

SUB-SECT. 3.—Shipowner's Liability.

Shipowner's liability.

963. After the 1st January, 1918, or such earlier date as may be fixed by Order in Council, the liability of the owner or master of the ship for damage caused by her, or by any fault in her navigation, is to be the same in a district where pilotage is compulsory as it now is in a district where pilotage is not compulsory; in other words, the fact of the ship being under compulsory pilotage will not relieve the owner or master of any liability for loss or damage occasioned by her wrongful navigation (d).

(s) A ship engaged on a voyage between two ports in the United Kingdom is not deemed to be trading coastwise if she habitually trades to or from a port outside the British Islands (Pilotage Act, 1913 (2 & 3 Geo. 5, c. 31), s. 11 (5); compare The Agricola, 1843), 2 Wm. Rob. 10; The Winestead, [1895] P. 170; The Glanystwyth, [1899] P. 118).

(t) For definition of "home-trade ships," see M. S. Act, 1894, s. 742; but a ship engaged on a voyage between ports within the home-trade limits is not deemed to be a home-trade ship if she habitually trades to or from a port outside those limits (Pilotage Act, 1913 (2 & 3 Geo. 5, c. 31), s. 11 (5)).

(a) The bye-law may limit the exemption to vessels under a certain gross tonnage; but if it exempts from compulsory pilotage vessels which, at the 7th March, 1913, were in practice subject to compulsory pilotage, it requires confirmation by Parliament (ibid., s. 11 (4)).

(b) A bye-law may, however, provide that these vessels shall be subject to compulsory pilotage, if in practice so subject at the 7th March, 1913 (ibid., s. 12).

(c) Ibid., s. 32. As to unqualified persons moving ships, and circumstances in which a bye-law must be made, see p. 605, ante.

(d) Pilotage Act, 1913 (2 & 3 Geo. 5, c. 31), s. 15. On the date on which this provision comes into force the M. S. Act, 1894, s. 633, is repealed, as also in effect will be that part of the Harbours, Docks and Piers Clauses Act, 1847 (10 & 11 Vict. c. 27), s. 74, which deals with damage done while the vessel is under compulsory pilotage. As to the liability of a master or owner in districts which are made compulsory by Pilotage Order and which previously were not compulsory, see p. 598, ante. For the existing law as to the liability of the owner and master under compulsory pilotage, see p. 531, ante; Marsden, Collisions at Sea, 6th ed., p. 216; as to the present relations between master and pilot under compulsory pilotage, see The Elysia, [1912] P. 152; The Tactician, [1907] P. 244, C. A.; The Ape (1914), 30 T. L. R. 286.

Part XVI.—Limitation of Liability of Owners and Others.

SECT. 1. Persons in whose Favour the Limitations Apply.

SECT. 1.—Persons in whose Favour the Limitations Apply.

Persons to whom principle applies.

964. The liability of shipowners (a), charterers by demise (b), builders and other parties interested in the building of a ship in British dominions (c), owners of docks and canals, and harbour and conservancy authorities (d), to pay damages (e) is in certain circumstances limited by statute (f). The right to limitation of liability extends both to foreign and British owners (g), and to equitable as well as registered owners (h), but the ship in respect of which a limitation of liability is sought must, if British, be

(a) M. S. Act, 1894, s. 503 (1). For definition of "ship," see The Mudlark, [1911] P. 116, in which a sea-going hopper barge without means of propulsion was held to be a "ship" in respect of which liability might be limited; see also p. 14, ante. As to the total immunity from liability conferred by statute in certain cases, see M. S. Act, 1894, s. 502.

(b) M. S. Act, 1906, s. 71. This provision accords with the decision in Jackson (Sir John), Ltd. v. S.S. Blanche (Owners), [1908] A. C. 126.

(c) M. S. Acts, 1898, s. 1; 1906, ss. 70, 85.

(d) M. S. Act, 1900, s. 2. "Harbour authority" and "conservancy authority" are, for the purpose of this provision, as defined in M. S. Act, 1894, s. 742.

(e) The statutes do not relieve the persons limiting their liability from any obligation other than an obligation to pay damages, and do not when the statutory amount has been paid put them in the position of innocent parties (The Ettrick (1881), 6 P. D. 127, C. A. (expenses of wreck-raising)). Nor are such persons exempted from a liability to pay costs (The Empusa (1879), 5 P. D. 6), or to pay interest on the amount of their liability from the time of the collision until the time of payment into court (The Amalia (1864), 34 L. J. (P. M. & A.) 21; Straker v. Hartland (1864), 2 Hem. & M. 570; The Northumbria (1869), L. R. 3 A. & E. 6; Smith v. Kirby (1875), 1 Q. B. D. 131; The Crathie, [1897] P. 178; see also African Steam Ship Co. v. Swanzy and Kennedy (1856), 2 K. & J. 660). As between part owners both losses and costs may be brought into account (M. S. Act, 1894, s. 505). Shipowners may contract themselves out of the benefit of the limitation Acts (Clarke v. Dunraven (Earl), The "Satanita," [1897] A. C. 59).

(f) The statute by which limitation was first permitted was stat. (1733) 7 Geo. 2, c. 15. Subsequent statutes dealing with the subject were stat. (1786) 26 Geo. 3, c. 86; stat. (1813) 53 Geo. 3, c. 159; and the M. S. Acts, 1854 and 1862. The statutes at present in force are the M. S. Acts, 1894, 1898, 1900, 1906, and these extend to the whole of His Majesty's dominions (M. S. Act, 1894, s. 509). The principle of limitation has been described as an abridgment, for political reasons, of full indemnity, the natural right of justice (per Dr. LUSHINGTON in The Amalia (1863), Brown. & Lush. 151), the political object in view being the encouragement of shipping by the protection of the shipowner against the wrongdoing of the master (The Northumbria (1869), L. R. 3 A. & E. 6). As to how far limitation Acts are retrospective in character, see The Langdale (1907), 76 L. J. (ADM.) 154; as to pilots, see Pilotage Act, 1913 (2 & 3 Geo. 5, c. 31), s. 35; and pp. 604, 605, ante.

(g) M. S. Act, 1894, s. 503. It appears that a ship will be deemed to be foreign if registered abroad, even though she is in fact the property of British owners (The Brinio (1891), 90 L. T. Jo. 249).

(h) The Spirit of the Ocean (1865), Brown. & Lush. 336.

registered, unless it is either exempt from registration or is British built and has never passed into foreign ownership (i). A shipowner is not debarred from limiting his liability by the fact that he is carrying under contract (k).

SECT. 1. Persons in whose Favour the Limitations Apply.

SECT. 2.—Losses in Respect of which the Limitations Apply.

Losses to which principle applies.

965. The losses in respect of which the liability of the owner or charterer is limited are, firstly, loss of life or personal injury caused to any person, and damage or loss caused to any goods, merchandise or other things whatsoever on board their own ship (l); secondly, loss of life or personal injury caused to persons carried on another vessel (m), or loss or damage caused to another vessel or any goods, merchandise or other things whatsoever on board another vessel, by the improper navigation of their own ship (n); and, thirdly, loss or damage caused to property or rights of any kind, whether on land or water, fixed or movable, by the improper navigation of their own ship (o).

The losses in respect of which the liability of dock and canal owners and harbour and conservancy authorities is limited are any loss or damage caused to any goods, merchandise or other things whatsoever on board any vessel or vessels (p).

To entitle any of these persons or bodies to limited liability the losses must have occurred without their actual fault or privity (q).

(i) This is the combined effect of M. S. Acts, 1894, ss. 1, 2, 72, 508; 1898, s. 1; 1906, ss. 70, 85. Unregistered ships could formerly not limit (The Andalusian (1878), 3 P. D. 182). As to what ships are exempt from registration, see p. 16, ante.

(k) The Normandy (1870), L. R. 3 A. & E. 152; London and South Western Rail. Co. v. James (1872), 8 Ch. App. 241; compare Doolan v. Midland Rail. Co. (1877), 2 App. Cas. 792.

(l) M. S. Act, 1894, s. 503 (1). These words cover passengers' luggage (The Stella, [1900] P. 161). The loss must take place "on board the ship," and there can therefore be no limitation in respect of loss of goods after they have been transhipped (The Bernina (1886), 12 P. D. 36). Proof that a person was a passenger may be given by production of a "passenger list" (M. S. Act, 1894, s. 507; see pp. 344, 345, ante).

(m) For definition of "vessel," see M. S. Act, 1894, s. 742; and p. 14, ante.

(n) M. S. Act, 1894, s. 503 (1). It is not necessary that the loss should be caused by the master or by a member of the crew, providing the loss is caused, while the vessel is being navigated, by the negligence of some person for whom the owner is responsible (The Warkworth (1884), 9 P. D. 145, C. A.).

(o) M. S. Act, 1900, s. 2.

(p) Ibid.

(q) An owner is not entitled to limit his liability in respect of loss caused by his own negligence when in charge of his own ship (see M. S. Act, 1894, s. 508: Wilson v. Dickson (1818), 2 B. & Ald. 2; The Volant (1842), 1 Wm. Rob. 383), but he will not be held guilty of "fault or privity" merely because he was on board (The Obey (1866), L. R. 1 A. & E. 102). The fault or privity of an owner does not preclude his co-owners from limiting the liability (The Spirit of the Ocean (1865), Brown. & Lush. 336; The Obey, supra; The Cricket, The Endeavour (1882), 5 Asp. M. L. C. 53). Owners will not be entitled to limit where they have sent a ship to sea in an unseaworthy condition, but a ship will not be deemed unseaworthy merely

SECT. 3. Statutory Limits of Liability.

SECT. 3.—Statutory Limits of Liability.

Statutory limits of liability.

966. Shipowners and charterers entitled to limit their liability cannot be made liable in damages beyond the following amounts, namely, £15 per ton, of their ship's tonnage where there is loss of life or personal injury, whether accompanied by other losses or not; and £8 per ton in respect of loss or damage to vessels, goods, merchandise or other things, or to property or rights of any kind, whether accompanied by loss of life or personal injury or not (r). The court sees that a shipowner is not made liable to pay any sum in excess of these amounts out of any moneys over which the court has control (s).

Dock and canal owners and harbour and conservancy authorities.

967. Dock and canal owners and harbour and conservancy authorities entitled to limited liability cannot be made liable in respect of losses with regard to which their liability is limited for more than £8 per ton of the tonnage of the largest registered British ship which, at the time of such loss or damage occurring, is, or within the period of five years previous thereto has been, within the area over which they perform any duty or exercise any power (t).

because loss has been caused by the misuse of proper gear by the crew (The Diamond, [1906] P. 282). An owner is not precluded from limiting by reason of the fault or privity of his agent. Nor must the paid agent of a company be taken to be an owner merely because he is registered as managing owner (The Yarmouth, [1909] P. 293); as to the intention of the words "fault or privity," see also The Warkworth (1883), 9 P. D. 20, 21. Loss caused by fault or privity may be insured against by the person entitled but for such fault or privity to limit his liability (M. S. Act, 1894, s. 506).

(r) Ibid., s. 503 (1); M. S. Act, 1900, s. 1. As to the distribution of the fund where the life claims exceed £7 per ton, see title ADMIRALTY, Vol. I., p. 111. In such cases the life claims must be assessed as though the liability was unlimited (Glaholm v. Barker (1866), L. R. 2 Eq. 598), and rank pari passu with the claims for goods in respect of the balance which is not covered by the £7 per ton against the £8 per ton (The Victoria (1888), 13 P. D. 125).

(s) Leycester v. Logan (1857), 3 K. & J. 446 (one claimant not allowed to recover in full against the proceeds of the sale of a ship about to be made by the Admiralty Court although judgment had been recovered against him); The Kauss (1904), 20 T. L. R. 326. In Jenkins v. Great Central Rail. Co. (1912), Shipping Gazette, 13th January, C. A., a cargo owner had succeeded in respect of loss of cargo consequent on collision against the shipowner in the court of first instance. The whole amount due under the judgment was paid into court as a condition of stay pending appeal. Notice of appeal was given, but subsequently the shipowner, having after the judgment obtained a limitation decree and paid into court the full amount for which he was liable under the M. S. Acts, asked leave to withdraw his appeal, claimed to have the money he had paid in returned to him, and sought an order that the cargo owner should satisfy his claim from the limitation fund. The Court of Appeal held that the shipowner was entitled to the payment out and order he sought.

(t) M. S. Act, 1900, s. 2. A ship is not deemed to have been within the area over which a harbour or a conservancy authority performs any duty or exercises any powers, by reason only that it has been built or fitted out within such area, or that it has taken shelter within, or passed through, such area on a voyage between two places both situate outside that area, or that it has loaded or unloaded mails or passengers within that area (ibid.).

Trinity House pilot.

968. A Trinity House pilot who has executed a bond cannot be made liable for neglect or want of skill beyond the penalty of the bond and the amount payable to him on account of pilotage in respect of the voyage in which he was engaged when he became liable (a).

Distinct losses.

969. The amounts limited are payable in respect of losses occurring on each distinct occasion (b).

Tonnage.

970. For the purposes of limitation of liability the tonnage of a steamship is her registered tonnage with the addition of any engine-room space deducted for the purpose of ascertaining that tonnage, and that of a sailing ship is her registered tonnage; any space occupied by seamen or apprentices and appropriated to their use which is certified in accordance with the regulations must not be included in such tonnage (c).

Where a foreign ship has been or can be measured according to British law, her tonnage ascertained by that measurement is deemed to be her tonnage for limitation purposes (d).

Where a foreign ship has not been and cannot be measured according to British law the court may direct either the surveyor-general of ships in the United Kingdom, or the chief measuring officer of any British possession abroad, to give a certificate stating what in his opinion would have been the tonnage of the ship if measured according to British law, and the tonnage so stated

(a) M. S. Act, 1894, s. 620. The party who sued first was formerly entitled to priority, but under the Pilotage Act, 1913 (2 & 3 Geo. 5, c. 31), s. 35, the court may distribute the amount rateably; see p. 605, ante.

(b) M. S. Acts, 1894, s. 503 (3); 1900, s. 3. The limitation under the M. S. Act, 1900, applies whether liability arises at common law or under any general or private Act, and notwithstanding anything contained in such Act (ibid., s. 3). In considering whether two losses occur on the same or on distinct occasions the test to be applied is whether both are the result of the same act of want of seamanship (The Creadon (1886), 5 Asp. M. L. C. 585; The Schwan, The Albano, [1892] P. 419, C. A.; The Rajah (1872), L. R. 3 A. & E. 539).

(c) M. S. Acts, 1894, s. 503 (2); 1906, s. 69; 1907, s. 1. By these Acts the doubt which formerly existed as to the deduction of navigation spaces for limitation purposes has now been removed, and such spaces may clearly be excluded; see The Umbilo, [1891] P. 118; The Pilgrim, [1895] P. 117. As to the deductions to be made in the case of ships with double bottoms, see The Zanzibar, [1892] P. 233. Unless the register is shown to be incorrect (see The Recepta (1889), 14 P. D. 131; The Franconia (1878), 3 P. D. 164, C. A.), the tonnage of the vessel is considered to be the tonnage appearing in the register at the time of the collision; see The John McIntyre (1881), 6 P. D. 200; The Dione (1885), 5 Asp. M. L. C. 347. As to measurement and certificates of tonnage, see p. 19, ante.

(d) M. S. Act, 1894, s. 503 (2) (b). The spaces shown by the certificates of registry of countries adopting the British system of measuring (see M. S. Act, 1894, s. 84) are now deemed to be certified for the purposes of limitation (see M. S. Act, 1906, s. 55), and the difficulty with regard to the certification of deductions in the case of foreign ships is now removed (see The Franconia, supra: The Cathay (1900), 9 Asp. M. L. C. 100; The Cordilleras, [1904] P. 90; S.S. "Olga" (Owners) v. S.S. "Anglia" (Owners) (1905), 42 Sc. L. R. 439).

SECT. 3. Statutory Limits of Liability.

in the certificate is deemed to be her tonnage for limitation purposes (e).

SECT. 4.—Procedure.

Procedure.

971. Limitation proceedings are begun by application to the proper court of the person or body entitled to limit liability (f). Liability must have been alleged to have been incurred by such person or body (g), but it is unnecessary that such person or body should before commencing limitation proceedings (h) admit liability. It seems, however, that liability must be admitted before a decree can be obtained (i).

The court so applied to may determine the amount of the owner's liability, and, if there is more than one claimant, may distribute that amount rateably among the several claimants (k). The court may stay proceedings in any other court, and usually does so (l), unless it considers the case one which ought to go before a jury (m).

The court may proceed in such manner and subject to such regulations as it thinks just as to making persons interested parties to the proceedings, and as to the exclusion of any claimants who do not come in within a certain time, and as to requiring security from the owner, and as to the payment of costs (n).

(e) M. S. Act, 1894, s. 503 (2) (c).

(f) Ibid., s. 504; M. S. Act, 1900, s. 2 (3). As to the jurisdiction of the Admiralty Division generally, see title ADMIRALTY, Vol. I., p. 73; and as to procedure in limitation cases, ibid., pp. 108 et seq.

(g) M. S. Acts, 1894, s. 504; 1900, s. 2 (3).

(h) The Amalia (1863), Brown. & Lush. 151; The Sisters (1875), 2 Asp. M. L. C. 589. In both these cases there was a question of releasing a ship under arrest; Williams and Bruce, Admiralty Practice, 3rd ed., p. 380, n.; see also The Karo (1887), 13 P. D. 24.

(i) Hill v. Andus (1855), 1 K. & J. 263. In The Clutha (1876), 45 L. J. (P.) 108, and Wahlberg v. Young (1876), 45 L. J. (Q. B.) 783, although a limitation decree was sought before liability was admitted, the decree was not made until an admission of liability had in fact been made.

(k) As to the methods of distribution adopted by the court, see title ADMIRALTY, Vol. I., p. 110.

(l) Leycester v. Logan (1857), 3 K. & J. 446. The proceedings must be directed to the recovery of losses in respect of which liability may be limited (London and South Western Rail. Co. v. James (1872), 8 Ch. App. 241).

(m) As in the case of actions under the Fatal Accidents Act, 1846 (9 & 10 Vict. c. 93); see Roche v. London and South Western Rail. Co., [1899] 2 Q. B. 502, C. A.; The Nereid (1889), 14 P. D. 78. The court has, however, stayed such actions; see London and South Western Rail. Co. v. James, supra; see also, as to the staying of actions by the court, The Clutha, supra; The Alne Holme (first action) (1882), 4 Asp. M. L. C. 593; Milburn v. London and South Western Rail. Co. (1870), L. R. 6 Exch. 4; The Expert (1877), 3 Asp. M. L. C. 381.

(n) Thus the court decides whether a party is debarred from claiming on the fund by reason of an order for discontinuance (The "Kronprinz" (Owners of Cargo) v. The "Kronprinz" (Owners), The "Ardandhu" (1887), 12 App. Cas. 256). A cargo owner is not prevented from proving the value of the ship in a limitation action by the findings in a collision action to which he was no party (Van Eijck (C. A.) and Zoon v. Somerville, [1906] A. C. 489). The persons limiting their liability must bear the costs of necessary issues arising in regard to the distribution of the fund (The Empusa (1879), 5 P. D. 6; African Steam Ship Co. v. Swanzy and Kennedy

Collisions.

972. Where each of two ships is to blame for a collision the owner of either may limit his liability in respect of any balance which he may have to pay (o).

Claims settled out of court.

973. A shipowner limiting his liability is entitled to have claims settled out of court taken into consideration in the distribution of the fund (p).

Part XVII.—Liens on Ship, Freight, and Cargo.

SECT. 1.—Nature and Extent of Maritime Liens.

Nature and extent.

974. A maritime lien is a claim or privilege upon a maritime res (a) in respect of service done to or injury caused by it (b). Such lien does not include or require possession of the res, for it is a claim or privilege on the res to be carried into effect by legal process (c). A maritime lien travels with the res into whosesoever possession it may come. It is inchoate from the moment the claim or privilege attaches, and when called into effect by the legal process of a proceeding in rem relates back to the period when it first attached (d).

Extent of judgment in rem.

975. When a judgment in rem is pronounced in favour of a maritime lien, it binds all the world to the extent that it enables the holder of the maritime lien to follow the res into whosesoever possession it may come, irrespective of the personal liability of such person (e). It is not necessary that the lien should be a maritime lien by the law of England. It is sufficient if it is pronounced to be a maritime lien by the judgment in rem of a foreign court of competent jurisdiction (f).

Need not be a maritime lien by law of England.

(1856), 2 K. & J. 660; The Rijnstroom (1899), 8 Asp. M. L. C. 538). The period may be shorter than that allowed for bringing loss of life claims under the Fatal Accidents Act, 1846 (9 & 10 Vict. c. 93), even although there may have been loss of life (The Alma, [1913] P. 55).

(o) Stoomvaart Maatschappy Nederland v. Peninsular and Oriental Steam Navigation Co. (1882), 7 App. Cas. 795; see also The Hector (1883), 8 P. D. 218, C. A.; and see pp. 522, 523, ante.

(p) Rankine v. Raschen (1877), 4 R. (Ct. of Sess.) 725; The Foscolino (1885), 5 Asp. M. L. C. 420. For form of agreement to settle out of court and to distribute funds among persons entitled, see Encyclopædia of Forms and Precedents, Vol. XIV., p. 86.

(a) Currie v. M'Knight, [1897] A. C. 97; and see title ADMIRALTY, Vol. I., p. 61. The admiralty law as to maritime liens is the same in England and Scotland. There can be no maritime lien upon a thing which is not a ship or her apparel or cargo (Wells v. Gas Float Whitton No. 2 (Owners), [1897] A. C. 337), or when the res is a King's ship or is owned by a foreign state (The Constitution (1879), 4 P. D. 39; The Parlement Belge (1880), 5 P. D. 197, C. A.).

(b) The Ripon City, [1897] P. 226.

(c) Harmer v. Bell, The Bold Buccleugh (1851), 7 Moo. P. C. C. 267.

(d) Ibid., at p. 284; Hamilton v. Baker, The "Sara" (1889), 14 App. Cas. 209, per Lord HALSBURY, L.C., at p. 216.

(e) As to enforcement of liens, see pp. 625 et seq., post.

(f) Minna Craig Steamship Co. v. Chartered Mercantile Bank of India,

SECT. 1.

Nature and Extent of Maritime Liens.

Liens recognised by English law.

976. The maritime liens recognised by English law are those in respect of bottomry and respondentia bonds (g), salvage, seamen's wages (h), wages, disbursements and liabilities of the master, damage (i), life salvage (j), fees and expenses of a receiver of wreck (k), damage sustained by the owner or occupier of lands used to facilitate the rendering of assistance to a wreck (l), and costs of a local authority incurred in the burial of carcases washed or thrown over from a vessel (m).

When lien arises.

977. The maritime lien for damage done by a ship arises when damage is done by the ship (n) to another ship or property (o), whether on the high seas or in the body of a county (p), through some wrongful act of navigation of the ship from want of skill or negligence of the persons by whom she is navigated, being at the time of the damage (q) her owners or the servants of her owners, or having the possession and control of her by their authority (r). Thus charterers who have the control, or any persons who are allowed to have possession, of a ship for the purpose of using or employing her in the ordinary manner are deemed to have authority to subject her to maritime liens, and so to make her liable for their negligence (s);

London and China, [1897] 1 Q. B. 460, C. A. By German law, non-delivery of goods specified in a bill of lading entitles the holder thereof to a maritime lien on the ship.

(g) See p. 70, ante.

(h) As to whether a pilot can be regarded as a seaman for this purpose, see title ADMIRALTY, Vol. I., p. 69; and compare Abbott on Merchant Shipping, 14th ed., p. 1012. A ship's husband is not a seaman, and has no lien for his wages even when earned on the ship (The Ruby (No. 2), [1898] P. 59).

(i) There is no such lien for towage or necessaries (Westrup v. Great Yarmouth Steam Carrying Co. (1889), 43 Ch. D. 241; Northcote v. The Heinrich Björn (Owners), The Heinrich Björn (1886), 11 App. Cas. 270).

(j) M. S. Act, 1894, s. 544; The Fusilier (1865), Brown. & Lush. 341, P. C.; Cargo ex Schiller (1877), 2 P. D. 145, C. A.; and see p. 561, ante.

(k) M. S. Act, 1894, s. 567.

(l) Ibid., s. 513 (2).

(m) Diseases of Animals Act, 1894 (57 & 58 Vict. c. 57), s. 46; The Suevic, [1908] P. 292 ("carcases" includes frozen carcases being part of a ship's cargo).

(n) The damage must be done by the ship, so, when the crew cut the moorings of another ship whereby she was damaged, their owner was not responsible because the damage was not done mediately or immediately by the ship (Currie v. M'Knight, [1897] A. C. 97, approving Harmer v. Bell, The Bold Buccleugh (1851), 7 Moo. P. C. C. 267). The lien cannot be enforced against the property of a foreign sovereign state destined to its public use (The Jassy, [1906] P. 270).

(o) The Merle (1874), 2 Asp. M. L. C. 402 (damage to pier) Mersey Docks and Harbour Board v. Turner, The "Zeta," [1893] A. C. 468 (pier head); River Wear Commissioners v. Adamson (1877), 2 App. Cas. 743 (ship not liable when damage caused by vis major after crew obliged to abandon her); and see title ADMIRALTY, Vol. I., p. 72.

(p) The Veritas (1901), 9 Asp. M. L. C. 237.

(q) The Parlement Belge (1880), 5 P. D. 197, 218, C. A.; S.S. "Utopia" (Owners) v. S.S. "Primula" (Owners and Master), The "Utopia," [1893] A. C. 492, P. C.

(r) The Ripon City, [1897] P. 226, 245; and see pp. 527, 547, ante.

(s) The Ripon City, supra, at p. 244; The Tasmania (1888), 13 P. D.

but the presumption is not absolute, and may be rebutted by showing that the person navigating the ship did not derive any authority from the owners, or that the injured party is precluded by the terms of a contract from recovering against them (t).

When the person in charge or possession of the ship has no such authority, express or implied, no lien arises; thus there is no lien for wilful damage by the master, or for his wilful acts (a), or for an act of a person in possession of the ship done in asserting a right claimed by him not as a servant or on behalf of the owner (b).

To what property lien attaches.

978. The moment the damage is done by the ship the lien attaches to her hull, tackle, apparel, furniture, and freight (c). It does not originate in possession and it follows the ship into whosesoever possession it may pass (d), and continues even after the ship is wrecked, and may be enforced against the wreckage (e).

Salvage.

979. The maritime lien for salvage is created by the rendering of salvage services to a maritime res or saving of life from a ship (f). The lien attaches to the ship (g), freight, and cargo severally, but not jointly, and each is liable to contribute towards the salvage in proportion to its value, but cannot, except in cases of express agreement, be made liable for the salvage due from the other (h).

110, 118; The Ticonderoga (1857), Sw. 215 (damage done by ship when in possession and under full control of charterers); The Ruby Queen (1861), Lush. 266; The Lemington (1874), 2 Asp. M. L. C. 475 (damage done by yacht in hands of yacht agents for sale).

(t) The Tasmania (1888), 13 P. D. 110, 118; see p. 528, ante.

(a) The Druid (1842), 1 Wm. Rob. 391; The Ida (1860), Lush. 6.

(b) Yeo v. Tatem, The "Orient" (1871), L. R. 3 P. C. 696 (agent for sale claiming a right over foreshore); compare Morgan v. Castlegate Steamship Co., The "Castlegate," [1893] A. C. 38, 52; The "Halley" (1868), L. R. 2 P. C. 193; The Orient (1869), 3 Mar. L. C. 321; The Lemington (1874), 2 Asp. M. L. C. 475.

(c) The Mary Ann (1865), L. R. 1 A. & E. 8, 11; The Roecliff (1869), L. R. 2 A. & E. 363; The Alexander (1812), 1 Dods. 278 (sails and rigging); Dundee (1823), 1 Hag. Adm. 109 (fishing gear); The Victor (1860), Lush. 72; The Leo (1862), Lush. 444 (freight); title ADMIRALTY, Vol. I., p. 61.

(d) Dean v. Richards, The "Europa" (1863), 2 Moo. P. C. C. (N. S.) 1; The Mellona (1848), 3 Wm. Rob. 16.

(e) Neptune (1824), 1 Hag. Adm. 227; Harmer v. Bell, The Bold Buccleugh (1851), 7 Moo. P. C. C. 267; The Annie (1886), 12 P. D. 50.

(f) See title ADMIRALTY, Vol. I., p. 74; The Fusilier (1865), Brown. & Lush. 341, P. C.; Cargo ex Schiller (1877), 2 P. D. 145, C. A.; M. S. Act, 1894, s. 544. The maritime res in case of salvage must be a ship or part of a ship or her apparel or cargo (Wells v. Gas Float Whitton No. 2 (Owners), [1897] A. C. 337), but does not include ships or property of the King or of a foreign state, even though carried in a private vessel or private property on board a foreign warship which for public purposes is taking care of it (The Constitution (1897), 4 P. D. 39; The Parlement Belge (1880), 5 P. D. 197, C. A.; Marquis of Huntly (1835), 3 Hag. Adm. 246; The Bertie (1886), 6 Asp. M. L. C. 26; The Nile (1875), L. R. 4 A. & E. 449), or wearing apparel of the passengers, master and crew, and effects for their daily use (The Willem III. (1871), L. R. 3 A. & E. 487, 490).

(g) The lien cannot be enforced if the ship belongs to the Crown (Young v. S.S. "Scotia," [1903] A. C. 501, P. C.); and see pp. 560, 561, ante.

(h) The Westminster (1841), 1 Wm. Rob. 229; The Pyrénnée (1863), Brown. & Lush. 189; The Mary Pleasants (1857), Sw. 224; The Raisby (1885), 10 P. D. 114; The Prinz Heinrich (1888), 6 Asp. M. L. C. 273; The Cumbrian (1887), 6 Asp. M. L. C. 151.

SECT. 1. Nature and Extent of Maritime Liens.

Wages.

980. The maritime lien for the wages of the master and seamen (i) attaches to the ship and freight and every part thereof (k), provided the wages have been earned on board the ship (l). It does not affect the right to the lien that the master and crew were engaged by some person who had no right to engage them, so long as they have earned the wages on the ship (m). This lien is not dependent on the earning of freight (n), but if it does not attach to the ship it cannot attach to the freight, for a lien on freight is consequential to the lien on the ship (o).

Disbursements and liabilities.

981. Disbursements and liabilities properly made or incurred by a master on account of a ship give him a maritime lien on the ship, which may be enforced in the same way as his lien for wages (p), but the only disbursements and liabilities which can create this lien are those made by the master by virtue of his general authority and in the ordinary course of his employment, and for which he can pledge his owners' credit (q).

Bottomry and respondentia.

982. As soon as a bottomry or respondentia bond (r) is executed a maritime lien attaches to the property hypothecated, and continues to attach until the total destruction of the property (s).

(i) For definition of "master" and "seamen," see M. S. Act, 1894, s. 742; and p. 14, ante. "Wages" includes subsistence money, viaticum, compensation for wrongful dismissal, money allowance instead of food, a bonus to master to stop by ship and bring her home (The Madonna D'Idra (1811), 1 Dods. 37, 40; The Sydney Cove (1815), 2 Dods. 11, 13; Phillips v. Highland Rail. Co., The "Ferret" (1883), 8 App. Cas. 329, P. C.; The Tergeste (1902), 9 Asp. M. L. C. 356; The Elmville (No. 2), [1904] P. 422).

(k) Neptune (1824), 1 Hag. Adm. 227, 238.

(l) See title ADMIRALTY, Vol. I., p. 69; The Sydney Cove, supra; Margaret (1855), 3 Hag. Adm. 238; The Reliance (1843), 2 Wm. Rob. 119, 122; Morgan v. Castlegate Steamship Co., The "Castlegate," [1893] A. C. 38, 52.

(m) The Edwin (1864), Brown. & Lush. 281 (master appointed by person fraudulently in possession); Phillips v. Highland Rail. Co., The "Ferret," supra (seamen earning wages under person attempting to steal ship).

(n) M. S. Act, 1894, s. 157.

(o) Morgan v. Castlegate Steamship Co., The "Castlegate," supra; The Orienta, [1895] P. 49, C. A.

(p) See title ADMIRALTY, Vol. I., p. 69; M. S. Act, 1894, s. 167; Hamilton v. Baker, The "Sara" (1889), 14 App. Cas. 209; Morgan v. Castlegate Steamship Co., The "Castlegate," supra. The costs of a master in unsuccessfully defending an action on a dishonoured bill drawn by him on his owners for coals supplied are not liabilities properly incurred unless the defence was reasonably necessary in the interest of the ship (The Elmville (No. 2), supra).

(q) The Ripon City, [1897] P. 226. It is not necessary that the master should have been appointed by the real owners; it is sufficient if he was appointed by persons whom the owners have allowed to have possession and control of the ship (Morgan v. Castlegate Steamship Co., The "Castlegate," supra; The Orienta, [1895] P. 49, C. A.; The Turgot (1886), 11 P. D. 21; The Cairo, Watson and Parker v. Gregory (1908), 11 Asp. M. L. C. 161; and see p. 64, ante, as to power of master to bind ship and cargo.

(r) See title ADMIRALTY, Vol. I., p. 65; pp. 241 et seq., ante.

(s) Thomson v. Royal Exchange Assurance Co. (1813), 1 M. & S. 30; Stephens v. Broomfield, The "Great Pacific" (1869), L. R. 2 P. C. 516; Cargo ex Sultan (1859), Sw. 504, 510.

SECT. 2.—Statutory Rights in Rem.

SECT 2. Statutory Rights in Rem.

983. A statutory lien attaches when a ship is arrested in an admiralty action in rem (t), or in a cause of towage (a), mortgage (b), ownership (c), possession (d), building, equipping, or repairing any ship, if the ship or proceeds are under arrest of the court at the time the cause is instituted (e); for necessaries supplied to any foreign ship, or to any ship elsewhere than in the port to which she belongs, unless the owner is domiciled in England or Wales (f); and for damage to cargo imported into England or Wales, unless the owner is domiciled in England or Wales (g). Statutory lien.

A statutory lien is of no avail against any subsisting charge on the ship, nor against a bonâ fide purchaser for value (h).

SECT. 3.—Possessory Liens.

984. In the case of shipping a possessory lien is the right of a person in whose possession a ship or her appurtenances is or are to retain possession thereof until payment or discharge of some debt or obligation due to that person in respect thereof. Such a right belongs to one who repairs, alters, or otherwise bestows labour or skill upon a ship if he is in possession (i). There is no power to realise the security, even though expenses must be incurred in keeping it (k). Possessory lien.

SECT. 4.—Ranking of Liens.

985. Maritime liens arising ex contractu or quasi ex contractu (l), Priority of liens.

(t) The Cella (1888), 13 P. D. 82, C. A.; title ADMIRALTY, Vol. I., p. 68.

(a) Admiralty Court Act, 1840 (3 & 4 Vict. c. 65), s. 6; Northcote v. The Henrich Björn (Owners) (1886), 6 Asp. M. L. C. 1, H. L.; Westrup v. Great Yarmouth Steam Carrying Co. (1889), 6 Asp. M. L. C. 443.

(b) Admiralty Court Act, 1840 (3 & 4 Vict. c. 65), s. 3; Admiralty Court Act, 1861 (24 & 25 Vict. c. 10), s. 11; see p. 23, ante.

(c) Admiralty Court Act, 1840 (3 & 4 Vict. c. 65), s. 4; Admiralty Court Act, 1861 (24 & 25 Vict. c. 10), s. 8.

(d) Admiralty Court Act, 1840 (3 & 4 Vict. c. 65), s. 4.

(e) Admiralty Court Act, 1861 (24 & 25 Vict. c. 10), s. 4.

(f) Admiralty Court Act, 1840 (3 & 4 Vict. c. 65), s. 6; Admiralty Court Act, 1861 (24 & 25 Vict. c. 10), s. 5. The fact that the necessaries man has given credit in an account furnished to his principals does not injure his right (Foong Tai & Co. v. Buchheister & Co., [1908] A. C. 458, P. C.).

(g) Admiralty Court Act, 1861 (24 & 25 Vict. c. 10), s. 6; Dapueto v. Wyllie, The "Pieve Superiore" (1874), L. R. 5 P. C. 482; The Dannebrog (1874), L. R. 4 A. & E. 386.

(h) Dapeuto v. Wyllie, The "Pieve Superiore," supra; The Aneroid (1877), 2 P. D. 189.

(i) Franklin v. Hosier (1821), 4 B. & Ald. 341; Williams v. Allsup (1861), 10 C. B. (N. S.) 417. As to what may amount to possession, see The Scio (1867), L. R. 1 A. & E. 353; Re Westlake, Ex parte Willoughby (1881), 16 Ch. D. 604. It is not necessary in the case of repairs done under contract that they should be completed before the right to retain possession accrues (The Tergeste, [1903] P. 26). By usage of trade in the Thames a shipwright has no lien except by express agreement or when he only deals for ready money (Raitt v. Mitchell (1815), 4 Camp. 146; Watkinson v. Bernadiston (1726), 2 P. Wms. 367).

(k) Somes v. British Empire Shipping Co. (1860), 8 H. L. Cas. 338; Thames Iron Works Co. v. Patent Derrick Co. (1860), 1 John. & H. 93.

(l) The Gazelle (1844), 3 Notes of Cases, 75, 79.

SECT. 4. Ranking of Liens.

such as wages, bottomry and salvage, are equal and co-ordinate, but are payable in the inverse order of their attachment on the res, whilst liens ex delicto, such as damage, are payable in the order of their attachment (m), and have generally priority over liens ex contractu (n).

The lien for damage has priority over wages whether earned before or after the collision (o); to a prior bottomry bond, but not to a subsequent bottomry bond when the bond is given by a stranger who has advanced money for repairs to the extent of the increased value of the vessel (p); to prior salvage (q), but not to subsequent salvage, because such services have preserved the property for the claimants in respect of damage (r).

Several actions arising from one cause.

986. When there are several damage actions arising out of the same collision the maritime liens thereby created are satisfied in the order in which the judgments are obtained. A plaintiff who obtains judgment can enforce his lien to the exclusion of another who institutes his action after the judgment is delivered (s), but he is only entitled to his damages rateably with another who institutes his action before the judgment is pronounced (t).

Salvage.

987. The lien for salvage ranks before all other liens which attached before the service was rendered, because the salvage service has saved the property for the benefit of the persons interested (a). Thus it has priority over the lien for wages earned before the service (b), or for damage done before the service (c), but is postponed to subsequent liens (d). Where there are competing salvage claims the rule is that life salvage when payable by the owners of

(m) The Hope (1873), 1 Asp. M. L. C. 563; The Rhadamanthe (1813), 1 Dods. 201 (bonds given at different dates but upon one advertisement paid pro ratâ); The Exeter (1799), 1 Ch. Rob. 173. As to priority between several loans on bottomry, see p. 246, ante.

(n) The Benares (1850), 7 Notes of Cases, Supplement, l., liv.; The Chieftain (1863), Brown. & Lush. 104; The Veritas, [1901] P. 304.

(o) The Duna (1861), 1 Mar. L. C. 159; The Linda Flor (1857), Sw. 309; The Elin (1883), 8 P. D. 39, 129, C. A.; The Chimæra (1852), cited 8 P. D. 131. This rule applies even to the crews of foreign ships claiming for wages earned subsequently to the collision. It is not based on the rule as to priority of liens ex delicto, but on the admiralty equitable doctrine that it is unjust to the owners of the injured ship to allow the fund to be diminished by the payment of wages when the crew have a remedy in personam, which the owners of the injured ship may not have. There seems to be no authority that the rule will be enforced in the case of a bankrupt owner; see The Linda Flor, supra, per Dr. LUSHINGTON, at p. 310.

(p) The Aline (1839), 1 Wm. Rob. 111, 118; Harmer v. Bell, The Bold Buccleugh (1850), 7 Moo. P. C. C. 267, 285.

(q) The Veritas, supra.

(r) Cargo ex Galam (1863), Brown. & Lush. 167, 181, P. C.; A.-G. v. Norstedt (1816), 3 Price, 97; The Sea Spray (1907), 10 Asp. M. L. C. 462 (expenses of wreck-raising authority).

(s) Bernard v. Hyne, The Saracen (1847), 6 Moo. P. C. C. 56.

(t) The Clara (1855), Sw. 1; but compare The Africano, [1894] P. 141.

(a) Cargo ex Galam, supra, at p. 181; A.-G. v. Norstedt, supra; The Veritas, supra; see also p. 580, ante.

(b) The Sabina (1842), 7 Jur. 182.

(c) The Georg (1894), 7 Asp. M. L. C. 476; The Elin, supra.

(d) The Selina (1842), 2 Notes of Cases, 18; The Veritas, supra.

SECT. 4. Ranking of Liens.

the vessel has priority over all other claims for salvage, and the claims for salvage of property take priority in the inverse order of attachment (e).

Bottomry.

988. The liens for bottomry take precedence in the inverse order of their dates of execution (f), and a bottomry bond takes precedence over a master's lien for wages and disbursements earned before the date of the bond (g), claims for necessaries (h), a mortgage made during the voyage upon which the bond was executed (i), prior salvage (k), and to a certain extent over prior damage (l). It is postponed to the master's lien for wages and disbursements when incurred subsequent to the date of the bond (m), to seamen's wages, subsistence money, and viaticum (n), whenever incurred, to subsequent damage (o), to light and dock dues at the port of destination (p), and to subsequent salvage (q).

Master's lien for wages and disbursements.

989. The master's lien for wages and disbursements has priority over a bottomry bond given before the wages were earned, unless the master is personally liable on the bond (r), to salvage rendered before the wages were earned (s), to a shipwright's possessory lien to the extent that the master's lien originated before the shipwright took possession (t), and to a mortgage, unless the master has guaranteed payment thereof (a). But the master's lien is postponed to the seamen's lien for wages (b), to a bottomry bond given after the wages earned (c), to subsequent salvage (d), to

(e) M. S. Act, 1894, s. 544; The Veritas, [1901] P. 304.

(f) The Rhadamanthe (1813), 1 Dods. 201; Eliza (1833), 3 Hag. Adm. 87; The Sydney Cove (1815), 2 Dods. 11; Betsey (1813), 1 Dods. 289.

(g) The Hope (1873), 1 Asp. M. L. C. 563.

(h) The William F. Safford (1860), Lush. 69. Even though the claim has been pronounced for before the bond was put in suit.

(i) The Royal Arch (1857), Sw. 269; The Helgoland (1859), Sw. 491.

(k) The Selina (1842), 2 Notes of Cases, 18.

(l) See p. 622, ante.

(m) The Hope, supra, at p. 567.

(n) The Union (1860), Lush. 128; The Madonna D'Idra (1811), 1 Dods. 37, 40; Hersey (1837), 3 Hag. Adm. 404; The Dowthorpe (1843), 2 Wm. Rob. 73.

(o) The Aline (1839), 1 Wm. Rob. 111.

(p) The St. Lawrence (1880), 5 P. D. 250.

(q) The William F. Safford, supra.

(r) The Hope, supra, at p. 567; The Salacia (1862), Lush. 545. But not when he is sole owner (The William (1858), Sw. 346; The Daring (1868), L. R. 2 A. & E. 260).

(s) The Selina, supra.

(t) The Gustaf (1862), Lush. 506; The Immacolata Concezione (1883), 9 P. D. 37; The Tergeste, [1903] P. 26.

(a) The Bangor Castle (1896), 8 Asp. M. L. C. 156; The Feronia (1868), L. R. 2 A. & E. 65; The Red Rose (1868), L. R. 2 A. & E. 80; The Tagus, [1903] P. 44. The master of a foreign ship has priority in this country for all his wages and disbursements, though by the lex loci his rights were limited to the debts incurred on the last voyage; he is also entitled in respect of wages as a seaman whilst acting as super-cargo, and for disbursements made to crew on account of wages.

(b) The Salacia, supra; because they have a right of action against the master.

(c) The Hope, supra.

(d) The Selina, supra.

SECT. 4. Ranking of Liens.

damage (e), and to the claim of a material man, and a solicitor's lien for costs when the master is part owner and ordered the repairs or gave the instructions (f).

Seamen's lien for wages.

990. The seamen's lien for wages takes priority over the master's lien for wages and disbursements (g), to a bottomry bond whenever given (h), to the claim of a mortgagee, to towage and light dues (i), and to a shipwright's possessory lien to the extent of the wages earned up to the time the vessel is put into the hands of the shipwright (j). The seamen's lien is postponed to a damage lien (k), to salvage rendered after the wages earned (l), to a shipwright's lien from the time he had possession (m), and to dock dues (n).

Necessaries.

991. The statutory lien for necessaries takes priority over a bottomry bond when the necessaries consist in the payment of dock dues at the port of discharge, and to a master's lien for wages and disbursements when supplied by the order of a master who is part owner of the ship (o), but it is postponed to a mortgage and to the solicitor's costs in defending an action brought against the ship before the necessaries were supplied (p). Where there are several claims for necessaries they rank equally and are paid pro ratâ, provided the holder of the lien is not guilty of laches in prosecuting his claim, because when a ship is sold the court holds the property not only for the first plaintiff, but for all creditors of the same class who assert their claims before an unconditional decree is pronounced (q).

Possessory lien.

992. Possessory liens take priority over all claims arising after the ship is taken into possession, but are postponed to those liens which were created before that time, as the holder of the lien is presumed to have taken the ship into his possession with the

(e) The Linda Flor (1857), Sw. 309 ; The Panthea (1871), 1 Asp. M. L. C. 133 ; The Elin (1883), 8 P. D. 39, 129, C. A.

(f) The Jenny Lind (1872), L. R. 3 A. & E. 529 ; The Heinrich (1872), L. R. 3 A. & E. 505, 510 ; The Queen (No. 2) (1869), 19 L. T. 706; The Louisa (1848), 3 Wm. Rob. 99.

(g) The Salacia (1862), Lush. 545.

(h) The Union (1860), Lush. 128 ; The Madonna D'Idra (1811), 1 Dods. 37, 40 ; The William F. Safford (1860), Lush. 69.

(i) Prince George (1837), 3 Hag. Adm. 376 ; The Andalina (1886), 12 P. D. 1.

(j) The Tergeste, [1903] P. 26 ; The Immacolata Concezione (1883), 9 P. D. 37 ; The Gustaf (1862), Lush. 506.

(k) The Linda Flor, supra ; The Elin, supra.

(l) The Sabina (1842), 7 Jur. 182.

(m) See The Linda Flor, supra ; The Elin, supra.

(n) The Emilie Millon, [1905] 2 K. B. 817, C. A. (a dock company which is authorised to detain a ship until the rates are paid can do so notwithstanding that there are maritime liens on the ship before she entered the dock).

(o) The St. Lawrence (1880), 5 P. D. 250 ; The Jenny Lind, supra. As to merger of claim for necessaries in a bottomry bond, see The Elpis (1872), L. R. 4 A. & E. 1.

(p) The Heinrich, supra ; The Soblomsten (1866), L. R. 1 A. & E. 293.

(q) The Africano, [1894] P. 141.

obligations then on it (r); but where the holder of the lien has by his services increased the value of the property the court will give him priority over prior liens to the extent of the increased value of the ship (s).

Solicitor's lien for costs.

993. The solicitor's lien (t) for costs takes priority over necessaries supplied after the inception of the lien (a), and to the master's claim for wages when he is part owner and has instructed the solicitor (b). It is postponed to the expense of sending home a shipwrecked foreign crew incurred by a foreign consul (c).

SECT. 5.—Enforcement of Liens.

SUB-SECT. 1.—Maritime Liens.

How enforced.

994. Maritime liens are enforced by a proceeding in rem (d), followed by the arrest, and if necessary by the sale, of the ship (e). To enforce such a lien the Admiralty Court will seize the ship and forcibly dispossess those who claim to detain her or her apparel. If she is in the possession of the holder of a possessory lien, still the court will seize her and will sell her, but out of the proceeds the various claimants will be satisfied according to priority, the holder of the possessory lien retaining such rights of priority as he had while in possession (f).

Not transferable.

995. As a general rule maritime liens other than the lien for bottomry are not transferable (g), but the Admiralty Court has in some cases allowed persons who have, with the sanction of the court (h), paid off claims against a ship to have the same advantages as to priorities as the person had whose claim they have satisfied (i).

(r) The Gustaf (1862), Lush. 506 (salvage); The Immacolata Concezione (1883), 9 P. D. 37 (wages); The Tergeste, [1903] P. 26 (wages).

(s) The Aline (1839), 1 Wm. Rob. 111, 118; Harmer v. Bell, The Bold Buccleugh (1851), 7 Moo. P. C. C. 267.

(t) This lien is given by the Solicitors Act, 1860 (23 & 24 Vict. c. 127), s. 28; see title SOLICITORS, p. 824, post. As to duties of the Admiralty Court in making charging orders under this Act, see The Birnam Wood, [1907] P. 1, C. A.

(a) The Soblomsten (1866), L. R. 1 A. & E. 293.

(b) The Heinrich (1872), L. R. 3 A. & E. 505.

(c) The Livietta (1883), 8 P. D. 209, 213. Such expenses rank equal to wages (The "Constancia" (1866), 15 W. R. 183).

(d) See title ADMIRALTY, Vol. I., p. 61.

(e) Harmer v. Bell, The Bold Buccleugh, supra. A master who becomes personally liable for necessaries may proceed in rem (The Marco Polo (1871), 1 Asp. M. L. C. 54).

(f) The Gustaf, supra; The Harmonie (1841), 1 Wm. Rob. 178; The Immacolata Concezione, supra (sailmakers who gave up the sails which they held under a lien for repairs protected); Orelia (1833), 3 Hag. Adm. 75, 83; Hersey (1837), 3 Hag. Adm. 404, 407; The Westmoreland (1845), 4 Notes of Cases, 173, 174. Once the court has its hands on the ship or proceeds, it will not part therewith until justice has been done to all parties (The Kalamazoo (1851), 15 Jur. 885).

(g) The Rebecca (1804), 5 Ch. Rob. 102, 104; The Catherine (1847), 3 Wm. Rob. 1; Young v. Kitchin (1878), 3 Ex. D. 127.

(h) In The Cornelia Henrietta (1866), L. R. 1 A. & E. 51, Dr. LUSHINGTON laid down the rule that such payments must not be made without the sanction of the court, and it was followed in The St. Lawrence (1880), 5 P. D. 250; see title ADMIRALTY, Vol. I., p. 67.

(i) Kammerhevie Rosenkrants (1822), 1 Hag. Adm. 62 (bottomry bond-

SECT. 5. Enforcement of Liens.

SUB-SECT. 2.—Statutory Rights in Rem.

How enforced.

996. Statutory liens which owe their inception to a proceeding in rem and arrest of the ship are enforced by sale of the ship, subject to the same conditions as apply to the satisfaction of maritime liens (j).

SUB-SECT. 3.—Possessory Liens.

How satisfied.

997. The holder of a possessory lien cannot enforce it by sale, but can only continue to hold the property until his claims are paid, even though to do so entails expense (k); but should he be dispossessed by the Admiralty Court, then out of the proceeds of the ship he will be paid his claim according to the rules as to priorities (l).

SECT. 6.—Extinction of Liens.

Extinction of liens.

998. Liens arising from collision between two vessels or in respect of salvage services are lost, unless proceedings are commenced within two years from the date when such liens attached; but any court having jurisdiction to deal with such proceedings may extend the time to such extent and on such conditions as it thinks fit, and will, if satisfied that there has not during such period been any reasonable opportunity of arresting the defendant vessel within the jurisdiction of the court or within the territorial waters of the country to which the plaintiff's ship belongs, or in which the plaintiff resides or has his principal place of business, extend any such period to an extent sufficient to give such reasonable opportunity (m). Maritime liens other than those for collisions or salvage are not limited to any time for enforcement, but travel with the ship into whosesoever

holder paying wages of foreign ship to save detention); compare The William F. Safford (1860), Lush. 69; The Fair Haven (1866), L. R. 1 A. & E. 67; The Bridgwater (1877), 3 Asp. M. L. C. 506; The Lyons (1887), 6 Asp. M. L. C. 199. A necessaries man who paid wages without consent of the court had his claim postponed to maritime lien and mortgages (The Janet Wilson (1857), 6 W. R. 329 (wages paid by shipowner); The Louisa (1848), 3 Wm. Rob. 99). Persons who advance money to salvors have no lien on the award. Wages and salvage cannot be assigned before accrual except in case of ships employed in salvage service or by an agreement pronounced equitable by the court; see M. S. Act, 1894, ss. 156, 163; The Wilhelm Tell, [1892] P. 337; The Saltburn (1894), 7 Asp. M. L. C. 474.

(j) The Cella (1888), 13 P. D. 82; The Skipwith (1864), 10 Jur. (N. S.) 445. The powers of the Admiralty Court Acts, 1840 (3 & 4 Vict. c. 65) and 1861 (24 Vict. c. 10), will not be exercised to enforce a claim for necessaries when these are merely items in a general mercantile account between shipowner and agent (The Comtesse de Frègeville (1861), Lush. 329; El Salto (1908), 25 T. L. R. 99). As to sale, see title ADMIRALTY, Vol. I., pp. 92, 123.

(k) Mulliner v. Florence (1878), 3 Q. B. D. 484, C. A.; Somes v. British Empire Shipping Co. (1860), 8 H. L. Cas. 338.

(l) Orelia (1833), 3 Hag. Adm. 75, 83; Hersey (1837), 3 Hag. Adm. 404, 407; The Westmoreland (1845), 4 Notes of Cases, 173, 174; The Tergeste (1902), 9 Asp. M. L. C. 356.

(m) Maritime Conventions Act, 1911 (1 & 2 Geo. 5, c. 57), s. 8; The Cambric (1912), 29 T. L. R. 69; see p. 526, ante.

possession it may come (n), but may be lost through lack of reasonable diligence in enforcing them (o).

SECT. 6. Extinction of Liens.

A maritime or statutory lien is extinguished by payment, by giving bail in an action instituted to enforce the lien where bail can be demanded (p), and by the sale of the ship by a court of competent authority (q).

Maritime lien.

Possessory liens are extinguished by payment, by yielding up possession, or by arrest of the ship by a court of competent authority (r).

Possessory lien.

Part XVIII.—Lighthouses.

SECT. 1.—Lighthouse Authorities.

999. The general superintendence and management of all lighthouses (s), buoys and beacons (t), throughout England and Wales and the Channel Islands and the adjacent seas and islands and at Gibraltar (with certain special restrictions as regards the islands of Guernsey and Jersey (a)), are vested in the Corporation of the Trinity House (b). In Scotland and the adjacent seas and islands

Trinity House.

Commissioners of Northern Lighthouses.

(n) Harmer v. Bell, The Bold Buccleugh (1851), 7 Moo. P. C. C. 267; The Charles Amelia (1868), L. R. 2 A. & E. 330; The Kong Magnus, [1891] P. 223.

(o) In case of the lien for damage reasonable diligence means the doing of that which, having regard to all the circumstances, including considerations of expense and difficulty, could be reasonably required (The Europa (1863), Brown. & Lush. 89, 93, P. C.; The Saracen (1846), 2 Wm. Rob. 451, 453; The Europa, supra (collision in 1850; ship arrested in 1863); The Kong Magnus, supra (collision in 1878; ship arrested in 1889, though she had been forty-seven times to British ports)). In a case of disbursements incurred in April, 1880, for which the master instituted his suit in November, 1882, it was held that there had been no want of reasonable diligence on his part (The Fairport (1882), 8 P. D. 48). In case of bottomry this lien must be pursued with active diligence and enforced within a reasonable time (The Rebecca (1804), 5 Ch. Rob. 102; The Jacob (1802), 4 Ch. Rob. 245; The Royal Arch (1857), Sw. 269).

(p) The Christiansborg (1885), 10 P. D. 141, C. A; The Reinbeck (1889), 6 Asp. M. L. C. 366, C. A. (where defendants in a foreign court voluntarily put in bail, it was held that the plaintiff, though he had omitted to demand bail in the foreign action, might still resort to British courts). As to costs of bail demanded in an excessive amount, see The Princesse Marie José (1913), 29 T. L. R. 678.

(q) As to effect of a sale of a ship by a competent tribunal, see p. 625, ante.

(r) The Scio (1867), L. R. 1 A. & E. 353; Re Westlake, Ex parte Willoughby (1881), 16 Ch. D. 604; and p. 621, ante.

(s) "Lighthouse" includes, in addition to the ordinary meaning of the word, any floating and other light exhibited for the guidance of ships, and also any sirens and any other description of fog signals, and also any addition to a lighthouse of any improved light, or any siren, or any description of fog signal (M. S. Act, 1894, s. 742); any such additional light, siren or signal may be treated as a separate lighthouse (ibid., s. 642).

(t) "Buoys and beacons" include all other marks and signs of the sea (ibid., s. 742).

(a) As to the consents required in the Channel Islands, see ibid., s. 669.

(b) Ibid., s. 634 (1) (a). "The Trinity House" means the master, wardens and assistants of the guild, fraternity, or brotherhood of the most glorious and undivided Trinity and of St. Clement in the parish of Deptford Strond, in the county of Kent (ibid., s. 742). The corporation is generally referred to as the Trinity House.

SECT. 1. Lighthouse Authorities.

and in the Isle of Man the corresponding general authority is vested in the Commissioners of Northern Lighthouses (c), and in Ireland and the adjacent seas and islands in the Commissioners of Irish Lights (d).

Commissioners of Irish Lights.

Local lighthouse authorities.

In addition to these general authorities there are persons and bodies enjoying certain rights and powers as "local lighthouse authorities" (e).

Liability for negligence.

1000. Lighthouse authorities are not constituted servants of the Crown so as to exempt them from liability to an action for negligence in the performance of their duties (f).

Exemptions.

1001. The premises, property and funds, as well as the instruments and writings of the general authorities, are exempt from all rates, taxes and duties, and all vessels belonging to or used by the general authorities are exempt from rates, dues, or tolls for the use of piers, docks, ports or harbours (g). None of these exemptions, however, apply to the lighthouses or other property of, or under the control or management of, local lighthouse authorities (h).

SECT. 2.—Construction of Lighthouses.

Powers of general lighthouse authorities.

1002. The general authorities have power (i) to erect or place, add to, alter or remove any lighthouse, with all requisite works, roads or appurtenances, or to vary the character of any lighthouse or the mode of exhibiting lights therein; or to erect, place, or alter or remove any buoy or beacon. They may also purchase necessary

(c) M. S. Act, 1894, s. 634 (1) (b). The persons holding the following offices are ex-officio Commissioners and form a body corporate: the Lord Advocate and the Solicitor-General for Scotland, the lords provosts of Edinburgh, Glasgow and Aberdeen, the provosts of Inverness and Campbeltown, the eldest bailies of Edinburgh and Glasgow, and the sheriffs of certain counties. In addition, the Commissioners may elect the provost or chief magistrate of any royal or parliamentary burgh, on, or near, any part of the coasts of Scotland, and the sheriff of any county abutting on those coasts, to be a member of their body (ibid., s. 668).

(d) Ibid., s. 634 (1) (c). "The Commissioners of Irish Lights" are the body incorporated by that name by the Dublin Port Act, 1867 (30 & 31 Vict. c. lxxxi.) (M. S. Act, 1894, s. 742).

(e) See M. S. Act, 1894, ss. 652—657. These rights and powers are preserved by ibid., s. 634 (1).

(f) Romney Marsh (Lords Bailiff-Jurats) v. Trinity House Corporation (1872), L. R. 7 Exch. 247 (corporation liable for negligence of their pilot cutter); Mersey Docks Trustees v. Gibbs (1866), L. R. 1 H. L. 93; Gilbert v. Trinity House Corporation (1886), 17 Q. B. D. 795 (corporation liable for person licensed by them neglecting to remove an injured beacon). As to the general exemption of public officers, see title PUBLIC AUTHORITIES AND PUBLIC OFFICERS, Vol. XXIII., pp. 312 et seq., and as to their statutory protection, see ibid., pp. 338 et seq.

(g) M. S. Act, 1894, ss. 731, 732.

(h) Mersey Docks and Harbour Board v. Llaneilian Overseers (1884), 14 Q. B. D. 770, C. A.; and compare Mersey Docks v. Cameron, Jones v. Mersey Docks (1865), 11 H. L. Cas. 443.

(i) M. S. Act, 1894, s. 638. As to the prevention of false lights, see ibid., s. 667; and compare title CRIMINAL LAW AND PROCEDURE, Vol. IX., p. 560.

land (k), or sell any land belonging to them (l). The exercise of the powers of the Commissioners of Northern Lighthouses and of Irish Lights is, however, restricted by provisions necessitating the submission of a scheme and a report thereon by the Trinity House to the Board of Trade (m).

SECT. 2. Construction of Lighthouses.

The Trinity House has also, subject to the sanction of the Board of Trade, power to direct both bodies of Commissioners as to the erection, continuance, or alteration of lighthouse works, buoys or beacons, or as to the manner in which lights should be exhibited (n) within the areas controlled by the respective bodies of Commissioners.

Powers of Trinity House.

1003. Local lighthouse authorities (an expression including for this purpose all persons authorised by special Act of Parliament to construct harbours, piers and docks) have no power to erect lighthouses or beacons or to lay down buoys within the areas of their authority, or to effect any alterations in the existing lighthouses, beacons, or buoys within their authority except with the sanction in writing of the general lighthouse authority for the district (o), and are bound to comply with the directions of the general authority for the district in all the above-mentioned matters (p).

Powers of local lighthouse authorities.

SECT. 3.—Light Dues.

1004. Light dues are payable in respect of all ships (q), excepting ships belonging to His Majesty (r), ships belonging to foreign Governments, sailing ships (not being pleasure yachts) of less than one hundred tons, and all ships (not being pleasure yachts) of less than twenty tons; ships (s) (other than tugs or pleasure yachts) when navigated wholly and bonâ fide in ballast, on which no freight is earned and without any passenger; ships putting in for bunker

What ships liable for light dues.

(k) M. S. Act, 1894, s. 639 (1); see title COMPULSORY PURCHASE OF LAND AND COMPENSATION, Vol. VI., p. 175.

(l) M. S. Act, 1894, s. 639 (2).

(m) Ibid., s. 640 (1).

(n) Ibid., s. 641. The Commissioners concerned must be given an opportunity for making representations to the Board (ibid., s. 641 (3)).

(o) Harbours, Docks and Piers Clauses Act, 1847 (10 & 11 Vict. c. 27), s. 78.

(p) Ibid., ss. 77, 78; see further, p. 645, post.

(q) M. S. Act, 1894, s. 643.

(r) Ibid. As to the meaning and possible extension of this term, see Trinity House (Master, Wardens and Assistants) v. Clark (1815), 4 M. & S. 288 (transport on charter demised to Crown exempt from dues); but compare The Nile (1875), L. R. 4 A. & E. 449 (transport under charter where no transfer of ownership allowed to prove salvage); Hamilton v. Stow (1822), 5 B. & Ald. 649 (packet hired by Postmaster-General although earning freight exempt from dues); Smithett v. Blythe (1830), 1 B. & Ad. 509 (packet belonging to Crown exempt from dues); and compare The Cybele (1878), 3 P. D. 8, C. A. (salvage); The Bertie (1886), 6 Asp. M. L. C. 26 (salvage), following The Nile, supra, and Symons v. Baker, [1905] 2 K. B. 723 (pilotage dues), and M. S. Act, 1906, s. 80.

(s) The word used in the M. S. Act, 1898, Sched. II., is "vessel," but it is submitted that no wider meaning attaches than that possessed by the term "ship," since by the principal Act (see note (q), supra) only ships are made liable to light dues.

SECT. 3. Light Dues.

coals, stores or provisions for their own use on board; ships (t) for the time being employed in sea fishing or in sea fishing service, exclusive of ships (t) used for catching fish otherwise than for profit; ships putting in from stress of weather, or for the purpose of repairing, or because of damage, provided they do not discharge or load cargo other than cargo discharged with a view to such repairs, and afterwards reshipped; yachts and pleasure boats of under five tons registered shipping tonnage (u). Ships making voyages entirely performed in waters in respect of which no lighthouse, buoy, or beacon is maintained by a general lighthouse authority at the expense of the General Lighthouse Fund are exempt in respect of that voyage, and yachts which are laid up during the whole of any year ending the 31st March are exempt in respect of that particular year (v).

Temporary exemptions.

Duties of general lighthouse authorities.

1005. The general lighthouse authorities must furnish copies of tables of light dues, and of the regulations in force respecting them, to the Commissioners of Customs in London, and to all the chief officers of customs where light dues are collected by virtue of their respective authorities; and these tables and regulations must be posted up by the Commissioners and customs officers in their respective custom-houses (a).

How dues are calculated.

The amounts are calculated (b) upon the tonnage of the ship and regulated either by the character of the voyage made or by means of periodical payments (c), and for this purpose a ship's tonnage is her register tonnage (d) with the addition of any space occupied by deck cargo (e), and in the case of an unregistered vessel is reckoned in accordance with the Thames measurement adopted by Lloyd's Register (f).

How recovered.

1006. Light dues may be recovered in England as a civil debt, in manner provided by the Summary Jurisdiction Acts (g), of the owner

(t) See note (s), p. 629, ante.

(u) M. S. Act, 1898, Sched. II.

(v) Order in Council dated the 24th July, 1901 (Stat. R. & O. Rev., Vol. VIII., Merchant Shipping, p. 303).

(a) M. S. Act, 1894, s. 647. An appointment by any one of the general lighthouse authorities to collect light dues on behalf of that authority at any specified port carries with it the power to collect similar dues on behalf of the other general lighthouse authorities payable at that port (ibid., s. 648). A receipt for light dues must be given by the person appointed to collect them to every person paying them (ibid., s. 651), and a ship may be detained at any port where light dues are payable until such receipt is produced to the proper customs officer. The amount payable as light dues to the general lighthouse authorities is determined according to the M. S. Act, 1898, Sched. II.

(b) Ibid., s. 5 (2); and compare the Order in Council dated the 24th July, 1901.

(c) M. S. Act, 1898, s. 5 (1); as to yachts, see p. 660, post.

(d) M. S. Act, 1894, ss. 77, 78, 79, 80, 81 and 84, and Sched. II.

(e) Ibid., s. 85.

(f) M. S. Act, 1898, Sched. II., r. 8 (a). The Thames rule referred to is :—From the length (foreside of stem to afterside of stern-post on deck) deduct the breadth, multiply this result by the breadth, and that product by half the breadth, and divide by ninety-four.

(g) See title MAGISTRATES, Vol. XIX., pp. 589 et seq.

or master (h) of the ship or of any consignee or agent thereof who may have paid or made himself liable to pay any other charge on account of the ship in the port of her arrival or discharge (i). Such consignee or agent, who has been thus made liable for the payment of light dues, may retain out of moneys received on account of the ship or owner the amount paid as light dues and reasonable expenses incurred in the payment (j). Where, however, a ship has been sold by order of the court to satisfy judgments against her, a seaman's claim for wages will have priority over an agent's claim for light dues in the distribution of the proceeds (k).

Distraint.

In addition to the remedy by summary prosecution the light-house authority or authorised collector of light dues appointed thereby may, in the case of failure by the owner or master to pay light dues on demand, enter the ship and distrain anything belonging to or on board the ship and detain that distress until the light dues are paid (l), and if there be no payment within three days after distress, the authority or collector may, during the continuance of non-payment, cause an appraisement and sale to be made of the distress, and retain so much of the proceeds as may be necessary to pay the light dues and to repay reasonable expenses incurred (m); and, by a magistrate's order, may extend the distress and sale to the ship itself (n).

Local light dues.

Local light dues may be recovered by local lighthouse authorities in the same ways and by the same procedure as above detailed (o).

Colonial light dues.

1007. Colonial light dues (p) are collected in the United Kingdom as far as possible, in the same manner as light dues levied under the Merchant Shipping Acts (q).

In each British possession they are collected by persons appointed by the governor for that purpose, and the means and manner of their collection, where not otherwise specially directed by the legislature of the possession, are the same as those for the British Isles (r). The funds thus collected are paid over to the Pay-master-General in accordance with directions issued by the Board of Trade (s), and are carried to the General Lighthouse Fund (t).

(h) M. S. Act, 1894, ss. 649 (1) (a), 680, 681.
(i) Ibid., ss. 649 (1) (b), 680.
(j) Ibid., s. 649 (2).
(k) The Andalina (1886), 12 P. D. 1.
(l) M. S. Act, 1894, s. 650 (1).
(m) Ibid., s. 650 (2).
(n) Ibid., s. 693; but compare The Westmoreland (1845), 2 Wm. Rob. 394 (magistrate cannot levy distress upon vessel already under arrest of the Court of Admiralty at the suit of seamen for their wages: it is submitted that the same would apply to a suit for light dues).
(o) That is to say, light dues, specially fixed by Order in Council in respect of local lights by virtue of the M. S. Act, 1894, s. 655.
(p) The colonial legislatures may signify their assent to the collection of light dues by Act or Ordinance duly passed or by address to the Crown; and, where such assent has been obtained, the amount to be paid in respect of any lighthouse, buoy, or beacon placed on or near the coasts of a British possession may be fixed by Order in Council (ibid., s. 670).
(q) Ibid., s. 671.
(r) Ibid., s. 671 (2).
(s) Ibid., s. 672.
(t) M. S. Act, 1898, s. 2. Accounts of all colonial light dues received

SECT. 4. Inspection and Control of Local Light-houses.

SECT. 4.—Inspection and Control of Local Lighthouses.

Inspection and control.

1008. The general lighthouse authorities must inspect all the lighthouses, buoys and beacons within their respective areas (u), and communicate the results of their inspections to each local lighthouse authority, and make reports of these results to the Board of Trade (a); the local authorities and their officers must furnish all such returns, explanations or information concerning the lighthouses, buoys and beacons under their management as the general authority requires (b).

Powers of general lighthouse authority.

1009. A general lighthouse authority may, with the sanction of the Board of Trade, and after giving due notice, issue directions to a local lighthouse authority within the area as to laying down buoys, or as to the removal or discontinuance or variation in character of any lighthouse, buoy, or beacon, or as to the mode of exhibiting lights therein (c), and no alteration in lighthouses, buoys, or beacons excepting buoys and beacons for temporary purposes can be made by a local lighthouse authority without the sanction of the general authority (d); if a local authority, having power to comply with such a direction, fails to do so, the general authority may apply for an Order in Council, transferring to itself any powers possessed by the local authority with respect to the object in question, including the power of levying dues (e). A general lighthouse authority may also, with the consent of the Board of Trade, accept the surrender by a local authority of any lighthouse, buoy or beacon held by the local authority, or purchase any such object from the local authority, where, as the case may be, the local authority thinks fit to surrender or sell the object (f).

SECT. 5.—Expenses: General Lighthouse Fund.

Expenses.

1010. The Mercantile Marine Fund was abolished on the 1st April, 1899, and the Exchequer now receives all sums theretofore paid to the fund (g), with the exception of all light dues, or other sums received by, or accruing to, any of the general light-under the provisions of the M. S. Act, 1894, and of sums expended upon the objects in respect of which such dues are received, must be kept as directed by the Board of Trade, audited as enjoined by Order in Council, and annually laid before Parliament (ibid., s. 675). By Order in Council of the 13th May, 1875 (Stat. R. & O. Rev., Vol. VIII., Merchant Shipping, p. 302), these accounts are to be audited by the Comptroller and Auditor-General vice the Board of Trade; compare M. S. Act, 1894, s. 745 (1) (a). As to the General Lighthouse Fund, see p. 633, post.

(u) M. S. Act, 1894, s. 652 (1).
(a) Ibid., s. 652 (4). The reports must be laid before Parliament (ibid.).
(b) Ibid, s. 652 (2), (3).
(c) Ibid., s. 653 (1).
(d) Ibid., s. 653 (2).
(e) Ibid., s. 653.
(f) Ibid., s. 654. Special provision is made for the payment of the purchase-money in such cases out of what is now known as the General Lighthouse Fund (M. S. Act, 1898, s. 1).
(g) M. S. Act, 1898, s. 1 (1) (a).

house authorities under the provisions above noticed (h), and must provide money for all expenses charged on and payable out of the Mercantile Marine Fund, excepting expenses incurred by general lighthouse authorities in the works and services of lighthouses, buoys and beacons, or in the execution of works for the purpose of permanently reducing the expense of those works and services or in the removal of wreck (i).

General Lighthouse Fund.

1011. Light dues, and other sums accruing to the general lighthouse authorities, constitute a fund known as the General Lighthouse Fund, which bears the expenses thus excepted from direct parliamentary provision, and to this fund colonial light dues and correlative burdens, such as the construction and maintenance of colonial lights, are transferred (k).

Establishment.

1012. The establishments of the several general lighthouse authorities, in so far as they pertain to the services of lighthouses, buoys and beacons, are fixed by Order in Council (l), as well as the annual sums to be paid out of the General Lighthouse Fund (m) in respect of these establishments (l); if it appears that any part of the establishments of the general lighthouse authorities is maintained for any other purpose than their duties as such authorities, an Order in Council may be made fixing the portion of establishment expenses which is to be borne by the General Lighthouse Fund (n). No increase of any such establishment may be made without the consent of the Board of Trade (o); and for administrative purposes the General Lighthouse Fund is entirely under the control of the Board of Trade (p). With the sanction of the Board a general lighthouse authority may grant superannuation allowances or compensation, on the same scale as that in force respecting persons in the public civil service, to persons whose salaries are paid out of the General Lighthouse Fund, on their discharge or retirement (q).

Extraordinary expenses.

1013. For extraordinary expenses connected with lighthouses, buoys or beacons, such as construction, repair etc., the Treasury may, upon the application of the Board of Trade, advance sums which become a charge upon the General Lighthouse Fund (r), or (h) M. S. Act, 1898, s. 1 (1) (a). The dues are those payable under the M. S. Act, 1894, ss. 634—675; see ibid., s. 676 (i); M. S. Act, 1898, s. 1 (1) (a).

(i) M. S. Act, 1898, s. 1 (1) (b).

(k) Ibid., s. 2 (3); and see ibid., s. 7, Sched. III., for definitions of expressions "colonial lights" and "Basses Lights Fund" used in the Act.

(l) M. S. Act, 1894, s. 659 (1), and the following Orders in Council: 16th February, 1903 (office establishment); 20th May, 1903 (engineering establishment); 16th March, 1892 (Commissioners of Northern Lighthouses); 20th March, 1905 (Commissioners of Irish Lights); and compare M. S. Act, 1894, s. 745.

(m) Compare ibid., s. 659 (1); M. S. Act, 1898, s. 1 (1) (c).

(n) M. S. Act, 1894, s. 659 (2); and compare M. S. Act, 1898, s. 1 (1) (c).

(o) M. S. Act, 1894, s. 659 (3).

(p) Ibid., ss. 660, 664; and compare M. S. Act, 1898, s. 1 (1) (c).

(q) M. S. Act, 1894, s. 665; and compare M. S. Act, 1898, s. 1 (1) (c).

(r) M. S. Act, 1894, s. 661; and compare M. S. Act, 1898, ss. 1 (1) (c), and ibid., s. 2 (colonial lights).

SECT. 5. Expenses: General Lighthouse Fund.

the Board of Trade may mortgage the General Lighthouse Fund, and payments payable thereto, in such manner as the Board thinks fit (s); and the Public Works Loan Commissioners may advance money upon mortgage of the fund, and payments payable thereto, without further security (t); and the existence of such a charge or mortgage will not prevent any lawful reduction of dues or payments payable to the fund, if the reduction is assented to by the Treasury or the Public Works Loan Commissioners, as the case may be (u).

Part XIX.—Harbours, Docks, and Piers.

SECT. 1.—Definitions.

"Harbour."

1014. Throughout this Part the term "harbour" means a harbour, dock or pier, and the works connected therewith, the construction or improvement of which is authorised by an Act of Parliament with which is incorporated the Harbours, Docks and Piers Clauses Act, 1847 (a).

"Harbour authority."

The term "harbour authority" means the persons who by such special Act are authorised to construct the harbour, dock or pier, or otherwise carry into effect the purposes of such Act (a).

"Harbour master."

The term "harbour master" means, with reference respectively to any such harbour, dock or pier, the master appointed by virtue of such Act, and includes his assistants (a).

SECT. 2.—Collection and Recovery of Rates.

SUB-SECT. 1.—Liability.

Harbour rate.

1015. Unless otherwise provided by statute, the harbour authority cannot take any rate for the use of the harbour until it is completed and fit for the reception of vessels, and a certificate to that effect has been given by the authority specified by the statute creating the

(s) See note (r), p. 633, ante.

(t) M. S. Act, 1894, ss. 662, 663; and compare M. S. Act, 1898, s. 1 (1) (c), ibid., s. 2 (colonial lights), and Public Works Loans Act, 1897 (60 & 61 Vict. c. 51), s. 11.

(u) M. S. Act, 1894, ss. 661, 663; and compare M. S. Act, 1898, s. 1 (1) (c).

(a) 10 & 11 Vict. c. 27, s. 2. Harbours, docks, and piers are frequently constructed, maintained, and managed under provisional orders confirmed by Parliament made under the powers of the General Pier and Harbour Act, 1861 (24 & 25 Vict. c. 45), and the General Pier and Harbour Act, 1861, Amendment Act, 1862 (25 & 26 Vict. c. 19). In provisional orders made after 1862 the provisions of the Harbours, Docks and Piers Clauses Act, 1847 (10 & 11 Vict. c. 27), are included, unless specially exempted (General Pier and Harbour Act, 1861, Amendment Act, 1862 (25 & 26 Vict. c. 19), s. 19). As to the construction of the provisions so included, see Hedges v. London and St. Katharine Docks Co. (1885), 16 Q. B. D. 597; as to the right of the Crown to "resume" a port or harbour, or limit its boundaries, see title CONSTITUTIONAL LAW, Vol. VI., pp. 459 et seq.; as to construction, maintenance, and conservancy of harbours, and as to dockyard ports which are not included in the above definition, see title WATERS AND WATERCOURSES. The Port of London is governed by the Port of London Act, 1908 (8 Edw. 7, c. 68); see titles METROPOLIS, Vol. XX., pp. 410 et seq.; WATERS AND WATERCOURSES.

harbour authority (b), and a table of the rates has been duly published (c).

On payment of the rates the harbour is free to anybody to ship and unship goods and to embark and land passengers (d).

Tonnage rate.

1016. The tonnage rate payable on British ships for the use of the harbour is ascertained from the certified tonnage in the register of such ships, and the tonnage of all other ships is ascertained according to the rules in force for measuring British ships (e). If the harbour authority has power to levy rates upon a tonnage ascertained by a different system of measurement to that of the Merchant Shipping Act, 1894, it may, with the consent of the Board of Trade, levy those rates upon the registered tonnage of ships as determined under that Act (f).

How ascertained.

The tonnage rate on goods is ascertained, in the case of goods to be unshipped, from the account which the master has to deliver to the collector of rates of the kinds, weights, and description of all goods intended to be unshipped; and in the case of goods to be shipped, from the similar account which the shipper has to give (g). If the collector of rates is not satisfied with such accounts he may have the goods weighed (h).

Rate list.

A list of the rates for the time being payable to the authority must be exhibited on boards in front of the principal office of business of the authority, and on some conspicuous part of the quays of the harbour, dock or pier, and no rate is payable during

(b) Under the Harbours, Docks and Piers Clauses Act, 1847 (10 & 11 Vict. c. 27), ss. 25, 26, that authority is the chairman of quarter sessions; compare Queenborough Corporation v. Smeed, Dean & Co., Ltd. (1904), 20 T. L. R. 279.

(c) Harbours, Docks and Piers Clauses Act, 1847 (10 & 11 Vict. c. 27), s. 47.

(d) Ibid., s. 33. This provision does not entitle persons to have their own tug in the docks for the purpose of moving their vessels to different parts of the docks as required (Great Central Rail. Co. v. North-Eastern Steam Fishing Co. (1906), 22 T. L. R. 520). If a vessel is prevented from entering the harbour owing to the negligent act of another vessel whereby the dock gates have to be closed for several days, she has no remedy against the harbour authority or the owners of the negligent vessel (Anglo-Algerian Steamship Co., Ltd. v. Houlder Line, Ltd., [1908] 1 K. B. 659). In the case of harbours constructed under the provisions of the General Pier and Harbour Act, 1861 (24 & 25 Vict. c. 45), the passengers must have an unobstructed ingress, passage and egress into, along, through and out of the harbour (General Pier and Harbour Act, 1861, Amendment Act, 1862 (25 & 26 Vict. c. 19), s. 13).

(e) Harbours, Docks and Piers Clauses Act, 1847 (10 & 11 Vict. c. 27), s. 27; see p. 19, ante. It seems from the M. S. Act, 1894, s. 84, that in the case of ships of certain foreign countries the tonnage appearing in their registers or other national papers must be accepted by the harbour authority as primâ facie evidence of their tonnage. Such countries are: Austria-Hungary, Belgium, Denmark, France, Germany, Greece, Hayti, Italy, Japan, the Netherlands, Norway, Russia and Finland, Spain, Sweden, and the United States; see Stat. R. & O. Rev., Vol. VIII., Merchant Shipping, pp. 1 et seq.; Stat. R. & O., 1904, pp. 551 et seq.; 1906, p. 396; The Franconia (1878), 3 P. D. 164, C. A. A foreign register is not conclusive evidence of tonnage; and see note (d), p. 19, ante.

(f) M. S. Act, 1894, s. 87.

(g) Harbours, Docks and Piers Clauses Act, 1847 (10 & 11 Vict. c. 27), ss. 37, 39.

(h) Ibid., s. 40; see p. 639, post.

SECT. 2. Collection and Recovery of Rates.

any time when this list is not so exhibited, nor unless specified in such list (i).

Exemptions.

1017. The following vessels, goods, and persons are exempt from the rates or duties and from the regulation and control of the authority: (1) vessels belonging to or employed in the service of His Majesty or any member of the Royal Family, or in the service of the Customs, Excise, or Trinity House, or the Commissioners of Northern Lights, when not conveying goods for hire (k); (2) packet boats or Post Office packet boats as defined under the Acts relating to the Post Office (l); (3) vessels being under seizure of the officers of revenue; (4) officers or persons employed in the service of the Admiralty, Ordnance, Customs, Excise or Post Office and their baggage; (5) Post Office bags of letters carried in any vessel (m); (6) goods under seizure of the officers of revenue and Naval Victualling Ordnance Stores or other stores or goods for the service of or being the property of His Majesty (n); (7) troops landed upon, delivered or disembarked from any quay and their baggage (o); (8) vessels belonging to or used by any general lighthouse authority or the Board of Trade, even when carrying goods for hire (p). But the above exemptions must be read with the Shipping Dues Exemption Act, 1867 (q), which abolishes the exemption then existing on account of (1) a ship being registered or belonging to any particular place or trading between any particular places; (2) a ship or goods being the property of or consigned by or to any particular person; (3) any goods being destined to be sold in a particular place; (4) a

(i) Harbours, Docks and Piers Clauses Act, 1847 (10 & 11 Vict. c. 27), s. 47. In the event of the list being destroyed or obliterated, the rates are payable during such time only as is reasonably necessary for the restoration or reparation of the list (ibid.). The following expressions in local Acts have been judicially considered: "trading inwards," "trading outwards," and "arriving in ballast" in a schedule of rates (Mersey Docks and Harbour Board v. Henderson Brothers (1888), 13 App. Cas. 595; De Garteig v. Mersey Docks and Harbour Board (1877), 37 L. T. 411); "carried out of the port," "shipped for exportation" (Muller v. Baldwin (1874), L. R. 9 Q. B. 457; Stockton and Darlington Rail. Co. v. Barrett (1844), 11 Cl. & Fin. 590, H. L.); "grain brought into the harbour for sale" (Cotton v. Vogan & Co., [1896] A. C. 457); "imported into" (Wilson v. Robertson (1855), 4 E. & B. 923); "goods landed" (Harvey v. Lyme Regis Corporation (1869), L. R. 4 Exch. 260); "metals" (Casher v. Holmes (1831), 2 B. & Ad. 592); "by package or weight" (Jones v. Phillips (1851), 7 Exch. 85); "timber shipped or unshipped" (Clyde Navigation Trustees v. Laird (1883), 8 App. Cas. 658); "goods imported from parts beyond the seas" (Mersey Docks and Harbour Board v. Twigge and Butters (1898), 3 Com. Cas. 176); "goods imported for transhipment only" (Anglo-American Oil Co., Ltd. v. Port of London Authority, [1914] 1 K. B. 14; British Oil and Cake Mills, Ltd. v. Port of London Authority, [1914] 1 K. B. 5.

(k) Harbours, Docks and Piers Clauses Act, 1847 (10 & 11 Vict. c. 27), s. 28.

(l) Ibid.; compare Trinity House (Masters, etc.) v. Clark (1815), 4 M. & S. 288 (hired transports).

(m) Harbours, Docks and Piers Clauses Act, 1847 (10 & 11 Vict. c. 27), s. 28.

(n) Ibid.; compare Weymouth Corporation v. Nugent (1865), 6 B. & S. 22 (stone for Government works).

(o) Harbours, Docks and Piers Clauses Act, 1847 (10 & 11 Vict. c. 27), s. 28.

(p) M. S. Act, 1894, s. 732.

(q) 30 & 31 Vict. c. 15, s. 4.

ship or goods being sent to or from or anchoring or mooring at or being laden or unladen at any particular place in a port or in the neighbourhood of the port, except where such ship derives from the expenditure of the class of dues in question no benefit, or less benefit than ships at another place in the same port; (5) goods being the product of or being destined for use at any particular manufactory, place, or district or any particular class of manufacture, provided the exemption was not granted as compensation for injury caused to the grantor by works authorised by an Act of Parliament. The Shipping Dues Exemption Act, 1867 (r), does not apply to ships and goods which belong to or are in the service of His Majesty or any corporation having the superintendence and management of lighthouses. Vessels which, after paying the rates and leaving the harbour, are obliged to put back from stress of weather or other sufficient cause are not thereby subject to the payment of further rates (s).

Foreign ships.

1018. Foreign ships and goods are only liable to the same tonnage rates and duties as British ships and goods (t).

Composition for rates.

1019. An authority may agree with any owner or master of a vessel engaged in transporting passengers, or with any other persons using the harbour for business or pleasure, for the payment of a fixed sum, payable in advance, as a composition by the year or other shorter period for the rates payable by or in respect of passengers and their baggage, or by such other persons, but preference in this respect must not be given to any particular person (a).

SUB-SECT. 2.—Duties of Master of a Vessel.

Duties of master of a vessel.

1020. When within the limits of the harbour the master of a vessel must, on demand, produce to the collector of rates his vessel's certificate of registry (b). Within twenty-four hours of his arrival he must, if his vessel is liable to pay rates, report her arrival to the harbour master (c), and if the vessel has any goods to be unshipped in the harbour, he must within twelve hours of arrival deliver to the collector of rates the name of the consignee or other person to whom the goods are to be delivered. If the whole of the (r) 30 & 31 Vict. c. 15, s. 11.

(s) Harbours, Docks and Piers Clauses Act, 1847 (10 & 11 Vict. c. 27), s. 29.

(t) All differential dues were abolished by the Harbours and Passing Tolls, etc. Act, 1861 (24 & 25 Vict. c. 47), s. 10; Customs Consolidation Act, 1876 (39 & 40 Vict. c. 36), s. 140 (as to foreign ships engaged in the coasting trade). Differential dues include all dues, rates or taxes levied on foreign ships, or on goods carried in foreign ships, which are not levied under like circumstances on British ships or goods carried on British ships, or any excess of dues, rates or taxes levied on foreign ships or goods carried in foreign ships over dues or taxes levied under like circumstances on British ships or goods carried in British ships (Harbours and Passing Tolls, etc. Act, 1861 (24 & 25 Vict. c. 47), s. 2).

(a) Harbours, Docks and Piers Clauses Act, 1847 (10 & 11 Vict. c. 27), s. 32; see also Shipping Dues Exemption Act, 1867 (30 & 31 Vict. c. 15), ss. 3, 4.

(b) Harbours, Docks and Piers Clauses Act, 1847 (10 & 11 Vict. c. 27), s. 36.

(c) Ibid., s. 35.

SECT. 2. Collection and Recovery of Rates.

cargo is to be unshipped, he must deliver to the collector a copy of the bill of lading or manifest of the cargo, or if part only is to be unshipped, then the best account in writing in his power of the kinds, weights, and quantities of such goods, and if required by the collector he must give him twelve hours' notice of the time at which the cargo or goods are intended to be unshipped (d).

SUB-SECT. 3.—Duties of Owner of Goods.

Duties of owner of goods.

1021. Before any person may ship goods on a vessel in the harbour, he must give to the collector of rates a true account, signed by him, of the kinds, quantities, and weights of such goods (e). The rates due in respect of the goods must also be paid before shipment (f).

SUB-SECT. 4.—Enforcement.

How enforced.

1022. No particular time is assigned for the payment of the tonnage rates on vessels, but if the master, whose duty it is to pay the rates (g), neglects or refuses to do so, the collector of rates may board the vessel and demand the rates, and on non-payment may arrest the vessel and her tackle, apparel and furniture, or any part thereof, and detain the same until the rates are paid. If they are not paid within seven days of such arrest, the collector may have the goods appraised and sold, and out of the proceeds satisfy the unpaid rates and the expenses incurred, rendering the overplus, if any, to the master on demand (h).

When rates on goods payable.

1023. The rates on goods to be unshipped in the harbour must be paid before their removal from the premises of the harbour authority, and before the expiration of two months next after they were unshipped. Rates on goods to be shipped must be paid before shipment (i).

Distraint.

In the event of the non-payment of the rates for goods, the collector has power to distrain and arrest the goods, and if they have been removed from the limits of the harbour he may arrest any other goods belonging to the person liable for the rates that he may find within the limits of the harbour or the premises of the harbour authority. The collector may sell goods distrained for non-payment of rates, and must out of the proceeds pay the (d) Harbours, Docks and Piers Clauses Act, 1847 (10 & 11 Vict. c. 27), s. 37. If the master fails to deliver any of the above particulars or the notice, if required, or gives any false particulars or notice, he is liable to a penalty not exceeding £10 (ibid., s. 38).

(e) If he ships the goods without giving this account, or gives a false account thereof, he is liable to a penalty not exceeding £10 (ibid., s. 39).

(f) An owner who evades payment of rates is liable to pay three times the amount thereof (ibid., ss. 42, 43). The term "owner" includes consignor, consignee, shipper, or agent for sale or custody of goods, as well as the owner thereof (ibid., s. 3); but it does not include a vendor of coals who delivers them on board a vessel (Ribble Navigation Co. v. Hargreaves (1856), 17 C. B. 385).

(g) If the master evades payment he is liable to pay three times the amount of the rates (Harbours, Docks and Piers Clauses Act, 1847 (10 & 11 Vict. c. 27), ss. 43, 46).

(h) Ibid., s. 44.

(i) Ibid., s. 42. As to the responsibility of the master for rates on goods, see also London Corporation v. Hunt (1681), 3 Lev. 37, Ex. Ch.; Vinkestone v. Ebden (1698), 1 Salk. 248.

rates to the harbour authority, and any duties payable to the Crown in respect of such goods (j). Instead of seizing the goods the harbour authority may recover the rates by action in any court having competent jurisdiction (k). Besides the power of arrest given to the collector of rates, the collector or proper officer of customs for the district may, with the consent of the Commissioners of Customs, withhold the vessel's clearance until the master produces the certificate of the collector of rates that the rates due on the vessel, and on any goods exported or imported on her, have been paid, or that sufficient security has been given for their payment and of any expenses arising from their non-payment (l).

Withholding vessel's clearance.

SUB-SECT. 5.—Disputes.

1024. If any difference arise between the collector of rates and the master of any vessel or the owner of any goods concerning the weight or quantity of any goods in respect of which rates are payable, the collector may cause the goods to be weighed or measured, and if necessary may detain the vessel for this purpose (m). If the weight or quantity is greater than is shown in the manifest, bill of lading or account delivered to the collector, the expenses incurred must be paid to the harbour authority, and may be recovered in the same way as rates are recovered, but if the weight and quantity be less than is shown in those documents, the harbour authority must pay the expenses incurred by such weighing and measuring and by the detention of the vessel for that purpose (n). When a dispute arises as to the amount of the rates due, or the charges occasioned by any distress or arrestment, the person making the distress or arrest may detain the goods until the amount of the rates and charges are ascertained by a justice of the peace, who is empowered to do this and to award costs, which, if not paid on demand, may be levied by a distress warrant issued by that justice (o).

Disputes.

SECT. 3.—Management of Vessels in Harbours.

SUB-SECT. 1.—Requirements for Vessels Entering and Remaining in Harbour.

1025. Before entering the harbour the master must cause his vessel to be dismantled as directed by the harbour master (p), and Duties of master.

(j) Harbours, Docks and Piers Clauses Act, 1847 (10 & 11 Vict. c. 27), s. 45. Comparing this provision with ibid., s. 44, it seems that the collector may not deduct the expenses of sale from the proceeds.

(k) Ibid., s. 45.

(l) Ibid., s. 48.

(m) Ibid., s. 40. The Port of London Authority has the sole right of weighing and measuring goods shipped or unshipped in the Surrey Commercial Dock, but has not the sole right of providing weighing machines (Port of London Authority v. Cairn Line of Steamers, Ltd., [1913] 1 K. B. 497).

(n) Harbours, Docks and Piers Clauses Act, 1847 (10 & 11 Vict. c. 27), s. 41.

(o) Ibid., s. 46. Where by its private Act a harbour authority is authorised to detain a ship until the rates are paid, it can do so notwithstanding that there are maritime liens on the ship before she enters the dock (The Emilie Millon, [1905] 2 K. B. 817, C. A.).

(p) Harbours, Docks and Piers Clauses Act, 1847 (10 & 11 Vict. c. 27), s. 59; penalty not exceeding £10 (ibid.); see The Excelsior (1868), L. R. 2 A. & E. 268 (master held liable for neglecting to do this).

SECT. 3. Management of Vessels in Harbours.

must cause her sails to be lowered or furled (q). When entering the harbour, and whilst within it, the master must obey all the bye-laws of the harbour authority (r), and must regulate his vessel according to the directions given by the harbour master in conformity with any Act of Parliament (s). When within the harbour and when required by the harbour master, the vessel must have substantial ropes affixed to her moorings (t). Vessels may only lie or be moored in the harbour with the permission of the harbour master (a), for it is the harbour master's duty to appoint the place and method of mooring of vessels (b).

Accidents.

If in the course of obeying the lawful directions of the harbour master an accident is caused, the master and owner of the vessel are not liable unless there was negligence on the part of those on board the vessel (c); and a master is not justified in disobeying the orders of a harbour master, except in the last resort when the danger of following such orders is obvious (d).

SUB-SECT. 2.—Powers of Harbour Master.

Powers of harbour master.

1026. Subject to any bye-laws made by the harbour authority to regulate the powers of the harbour master (e), he may give directions for regulating the time at which, and the manner in

(q) Harbours, Docks and Piers Clauses Act, 1847 (10 & 11 Vict. c. 27), s. 60 (penalty not exceeding £10).

(r) Ibid., s. 83; penalty not exceeding £5 (ibid., s. 84). For form of bye-laws of harbour authority as to speed in harbour, see Encyclopædia of Forms and Precedents, Vol. VI., p. 326.

(s) Harbours, Docks and Piers Clauses Act, 1847 (10 & 11 Vict. c. 27), s. 53; penalty not exceeding £20 (ibid.). The master must obey, even though obedience to such orders, if the ship alone were considered, would be injudicious; see The Excelsior (1868), L. R. 2 A. & E. 268; Taylor v. Burger (1898), 8 Asp. M. L. C. 364, H. L.

(t) Harbours, Docks and Piers Clauses Act, 1847 (10 & 11 Vict. c. 27), s. 61; penalty not exceeding £10 (ibid.).

(a) Ibid., s. 63; penalty not exceeding £5, and 20*s.* for every hour that the vessel remains after a reasonable time for her removal (ibid.). Ibid., s. 63, overrides and extinguishes all local and private rights of mooring (Gardner v. Whitford (1858), 4 C. B. (N. S.) 665).

(b) East London Harbour Board v. Caledonia Landing, Shipping and Salvage Co., Ltd., East London Harbour Board v. Colonial Fisheries Co., Ltd., [1908] A. C. 271, P. C. A coal hulk permanently moored is not engaged in navigation, and a right to moor permanently in a harbour cannot be claimed as a right of navigation (Denaby and Cadeby Main Collieries, Ltd. v. Anson, [1911] 1 K. B. 171, C. A. (where the control of the Admiralty over dockyard ports was discussed)).

(c) The Bilbao (1860), Lush. 149; The Cynthia (1876), 2 P. D. 52; The Belgic (1875), 2 P. D. 57, n.

(d) Reney v. Kirkcudbright Magistrates, [1892] A. C. 264; The Excelsior, supra.

(e) Harbours, Docks and Piers Clauses Act, 1847 (10 & 11 Vict. c. 27), s. 83. With respect to all acts authorised or required to be done by the "harbour master," that term includes his assistants (ibid., s. 2). For powers of a harbour master under Explosives Acts, see title EXPLOSIVES, Vol. XIV., p. 384; and for his powers under the Petroleum Acts, see title PUBLIC HEALTH AND LOCAL ADMINISTRATION, Vol. XXIII., pp. 571, 572. Within the jurisdiction of a harbour authority that authority alone has power to grant licences under the Petroleum Acts (Petroleum Act, 1871 (34 & 35 Vict. c. 105), s. 8 (8)).

which, a vessel shall enter, lie in, and go out of the harbour and its prescribed limits; its position and mooring, and any unmooring and removing whilst there, and the position in which it shall take in or discharge cargo, passengers, or ballast (f); the quantity of ballast a vessel shall have on board of her (g); the manner in which a vessel entering the harbour shall be dismantled (h); the removing of unserviceable vessels and other obstructions to the harbour, and keeping the harbour clear (i).

He may give permission to a vessel to lie in the entrance to the harbour, or in the prescribed limits. If a vessel anchors without such permission and fails to move when ordered, the harbour master may remove her (k). If the master of a vessel fails to obey the verbal directions of the harbour master, the latter may serve a notice of his directions on the master of the vessel, who, if he then fails to regulate his vessel accordingly, becomes liable to a penalty not exceeding £20 (l).

Disobedience of harbour master's directions.

If the harbour master's directions as to mooring, unmooring, placing, or removing a vessel are not obeyed, the harbour master may cause the vessel to be moored, unmoored, placed, or removed as he thinks fit; and for that purpose may cast off, unloose, or cut her moorings; but if there is no person on board the vessel to protect her, he must put a sufficient number of men on board for that purpose, and any expenses incurred by so doing must be paid to the harbour authority by the master of the vessel (m).

Repairing or cleansing harbour.

1027. Whenever it is necessary for repairing, scouring, or cleansing the harbour, the harbour master must give notice in writing to the master of any vessel which is required to be removed therefrom; and if the master refuses to move his vessel or cannot be found, the harbour master may remove her at the expense of her owner or master, but before he exercises this power he must give three days' notice of such repair and necessity of removal to the collector and comptroller of customs for the district, and cause a like notice

(f) Harbours, Docks and Piers Clauses Act, 1847 (10 & 11 Vict. c. 27), ss. 52, 53. As to mooring, the harbour master may, by notice, require substantial hawsers etc. to be used (ibid., s. 61). He has a discretion as to where a vessel is to be moored, which he must exercise for the welfare of all the vessels which enter the harbour (The Excelsior (1868), L. R. 2 A. & E. 268).

(g) Including the dead-weight in the hold while delivering cargo (Harbours, Docks and Piers Clauses Act, 1847 (10 & 11 Vict. c. 27), s. 52).

(h) Ibid., ss. 52, 59.

(i) Ibid., s. 52.

(k) Ibid., s. 63. The harbour master must use due care that the place where the vessel is to lie is a safe one (The Rhosina (1885), 10 P. D. 24, 131, C. A.; The Apollo (Owners) v. Port Talbot Co., [1891] A. C. 499). Whenever the harbour master, or his assistants, remove a vessel, he must see that she is properly removed (East London Harbour Board v. Caledonia Landing, Shipping and Salvage Co., Ltd., East London Harbour Board v. Colonial Fisheries, Co., Ltd., [1908] A. C. 271, P. C.). As to the liability of a harbour master for negligence, see pp. 647, 648, post; title NEGLIGENCE, Vol. XXI., p. 365.

(l) Harbours, Docks and Piers Clauses Act, 1847 (10 & 11 Vict. c. 72), s. 53.

(m) Ibid., ss. 58, 62. It is the duty of the master of a vessel to keep a sufficient crew on board to protect her against ordinary perils (The Excelsior, supra).

SECT. 3. Management of Vessels in Harbours.

to be affixed on some conspicuous part of the custom-house and the office of the harbour authority (n).

Goods left on quay.

1028. If goods be left on the quays, or approaches thereto, for a longer time than is allowed by the bye-laws of the harbour authority, the harbour master may remove them to the premises of the harbour authority; and if the expenses of such removal are not paid within seven days, he may sell the goods, and out of the proceeds pay such expenses, rendering the overplus, if any, to the owner on demand (a).

Removal of obstructions.

1029. The harbour master may remove any wreck or other obstruction to the harbour or its approaches, and also any timber which impedes the navigation. The expense of removing these obstructions to navigation must be paid by the owner, and the harbour master may detain such obstructions, and, on non-payment of the expenses, may sell them, and out of the proceeds pay such expenses, rendering the overplus, if any, to the owner (b). The harbour master may cause any vessel which is laid by or neglected as unfit for sea service to be removed from the harbour, and the expense of so doing may be recovered by summary complaint before a justice of the peace, who, in default of payment, may issue a distress warrant against the vessel and her apparel (c).

Wrongful exercise of powers.

1030. If the harbour master without reasonable cause, or in an unreasonable or unfair manner, exercises any of the powers and authorities vested in him, he is liable to a penalty (d); and if he acts negligently he may render the harbour authority liable for any damage resulting thereby (e).

SUB-SECT. 3.—Discharge of Cargo.

Discharge of cargo.

1031. Vessels discharging cargo must do so as soon as con(n) Harbours, Docks and Piers Clauses Act, 1847 (10 & 11 Vict. c. 27), ss. 64, 65.

(a) Ibid., s. 68.

(b) Ibid., s. 56. The executors of the owner of a sunk vessel were held not liable for the expenses of removal in the case of Wilson v. Carter (1863), 7 L. T. 676. In Arrow Shipping Co. v. Tyne Improvement Commissioners, The Crystal, [1894] A. C. 508, it was decided that the Harbours, Docks and Piers Clauses Act, 1847 (10 & 11 Vict. c. 27), s. 56 created a debt in respect of which an action may be maintained against the person who is the owner not at the time when the obstruction occurs, but at the time when the expense of removal is incurred. As to the effect of corresponding provisions in other Acts, see Howard Smith v. Wilson, [1896] A. C. 579, P. C.; Jones v. Mersey Docks and Harbour Board (1913), 18 Com. Cas. 163; The Wallsend, [1907] P. 302. A harbour authority has also similar powers under the M. S. Act, 1894, ss. 530, 534; see p. 554, ante.

(c) Harbours, Docks and Piers Clauses Act, 1847 (10 & 11 Vict. c. 27), s. 57. When the special Act of the harbour authority authorises the expenses to be recovered in a court of summary jurisdiction, the High Court has no jurisdiction (Barraclough v. Brown, [1897] A. C. 615). As to the power of a harbour authority to charge for use of wreck-raising apparatus, see The Harrington (1888), 13 P. D. 48; Steam Sand Pump Dredger (Owners) v. S.S. "Greta Holme" (Owners), The "Greta Holme," [1897] A. C. 596; Mersey Docks and Harbour Board v. S.S. Marpessa (Owners), [1907] A. C. 241.

(d) Not exceeding £5 (Harbours, Docks and Piers Clauses Act, 1847 (10 & 11 Vict. c. 27), s. 54).

(e) Reney v. Kirkcudbright Magistrates, [1892] A. C. 264; The Rhosina (1885), 10 P. D. 24, 131, C. A.; The Bearn, [1906] P. 48, C. A.

veniently may be after entering the harbour, and after discharging must be removed to the part of the harbour set apart for light vessels (f). Wharfingers and lessees of the harbour authority must not give undue preference or show partiality in loading or unloading cargo at the wharves of the harbour authority (g). Except with the consent of the harbour authority, cargo must not remain on the wharves or in the approaches thereto for a longer time than is allowed by the bye-laws of the harbour authority (h).

Combustible cargo.

If any tar, pitch, resin, spirituous liquor, turpentine, oil, or other combustible thing is on the quays or works connected with the harbour or on the deck of a vessel in the harbour, the owner or person in charge of them must remove it to a place of safety within two hours after notice from the harbour master (i), and if it is to remain on the quays or works of the harbour or on the deck of the vessel during the night (k), must see that they are guarded by a sufficient number of persons during the night, otherwise the harbour authority may do so at his expense.

Meters and weighers.

1032. When the harbour authority has power to appoint and has appointed meters and weighers, they only may be employed to measure and weigh cargo (l).

SECT. 4.—Provisions for Safety of Harbour.

SUB-SECT. 1.—Protection of Works from Fire etc.

Combustible matter.

1033. No one may boil or heat pitch, tar, resin, turpentine, oil, or other combustible matter except at such places and in such manner as the harbour authority shall especially appoint for the purpose (m).

Fires and lights.

The harbour authority may make bye-laws for regulating the use of fires and lights within the harbour (n), but no one may have a fire, lighted candle or lamp in any vessel without the permission of the harbour authority (o).

Guns and gunpowder.

All guns must be unloaded when within the harbour. Unless (f) Harbours, Docks and Piers Clauses Act, 1847 (10 & 11 Vict. c. 27), s. 66.

(g) Ibid., s. 67. For special "customs of ports" relating to discharge of cargoes, see title CUSTOM AND USAGES, Vol. X., pp. 290 et seq.

(h) Harbours, Docks and Piers Clauses Act, 1847 (10 & 11 Vict. c. 46), s. 68.

(i) Ibid., s. 69; penalty 40*s.* an hour after the two hours (ibid.).

(k) Ibid., s. 70; see, further, the text, infra.

(l) Harbours, Docks and Piers Clauses Act, 1847 (10 & 11 Vict. c. 27), s. 82; but they have no exclusive right to provide weighing machines (Port of London Authority v. Cairn Line of Steamers, Ltd., [1913] 1 K. B. 497. The harbour authority may exempt persons from the obligation to employ such meters (Whiting v. Carpenter (1871), 24 L. T. 576). Where under a charterparty goods are to be taken from alongside at charterer's expense, and such goods have to be measured, the shipowner is liable for the expense if the metage takes place on board, and the charterer if it is performed ashore (Woodham v. Peterson (1871), 25 L. T. 26). The harbour authority has power by bye-laws to regulate the duties and conduct of weighers and meters employed by them (Harbours, Docks and Piers Clauses Act, 1847 (10 & 11 Vict. c. 27), s. 83).

(m) Ibid., s. 71 (1); see, further, the text, supra.

(n) Harbours, Docks and Piers Clauses Act, 1847 (10 & 11 Vict. c. 27), s. 83.

(o) Ibid., s. 71 (2), (3).

SECT. 4. Provisions for Safety of Harbour.

the harbour authority otherwise permits, gunpowder must not be brought into or be allowed to remain in the harbour (p).

Throwing earth etc. into the harbour.

1034. Ballast, earth, ashes, stones, and other things may not be thrown or put into the harbour, except for the lawful purpose of recovering land lost or severed by the overflowing or washing of a navigable river, or for protecting land from further loss by the action of such river (q).

SUB-SECT. 2.—Liability of Owner and Wrongdoer for Damage.

Liability of owner for damage.

1035. The owner of a vessel or float of timber is answerable for any damage done thereby, or by any person employed about the same, to the harbour or the quays or works connected therewith, but the liability so imposed does not apply if the vessel is in charge of a compulsory pilot (a). The master or person in charge of a vessel or float of timber is also liable to make good any such damage when caused by his wilful act or negligence (a).

Recovery of damage.

The remedy of the harbour authority for damage done by a vessel or float of timber to its property is to detain it until security is given for the damage sustained (b). When the amount claimed as damages does not exceed £50, it may be recovered before two justices, who have power to distrain and, if necessary, to sell the property causing the damage, in order to satisfy the amount of the damages and costs awarded by them to be paid (c).

Recovery of damage by owner from third party.

When the owner of a vessel or float of timber has had to satisfy damage caused by the wilful act or neglect of the person in charge, and when the owner of a vessel or goods in any other case has been compelled to pay any penalty or costs by reason of the act or omission of any other person, such owner may recover from the delinquent the amount he has had to pay, and any costs of proceedings to enforce the recovery of such amount (d).

(p) Harbours, Docks and Piers Clauses Act, 1847 (10 & 11 Vict. c. 27), s. 71 (4), (5).

(q) Ibid., s. 73.

(a) Ibid., s. 74; see also p. 611, ante. The owners of the vessel are not liable if the damage is caused by the vessel at a time when the master and crew had been compelled to escape and had no control whatever over it (River Wear Commissioners v. Adamson (1877), 2 App. Cas. 743), nor are they liable to another vessel which is prevented from entering the harbour through the negligence of the vessel in damaging the dock gates (Anglo-Algerian Steamship Co., Ltd. v. Houlder Line, Ltd., [1908] 1 K. B. 659), nor, in the absence of negligence, for damages arising from circumstances which together amount to force majeure (The Boucau, [1909] P. 163). Quære whether the owner is liable in the case of inevitable accident; see Dennis v. Tovell (1872), L. R. 8 Q. B. 10; River Wear Commissioners v. Adamson, supra, at p. 770.

(b) Harbours, Docks and Piers Clauses Act, 1847 (10 & 11 Vict. c. 27), s. 74. The authority has also a maritime lien and may proceed in rem in the Admiralty Court to recover the damage (The Merle (1874), 2 Asp. M. L. C. 402; Romney Marsh (Lords Bailiff-Jurats) v. Trinity House Corporation (1872), L. R. 7 Exch. 247, Ex. Ch.).

(c) Harbours, Docks and Piers Clauses Act, 1847 (10 & 11 Vict. c. 27), s. 75.

(d) Ibid., s. 76. When the amount of the damage or penalty does not exceed £50 it may be recovered before the justices (ibid.).

SECT. 5.—Buoys, Lights, Beacons etc.

SECT. 5. Buoys, Lights, Beacons etc.

1036. It is the duty of the harbour authority to lay down buoys for the guidance of vessels, in such situations within the limits of the harbour and of such character as the Trinity House from time to time directs (e).

Buoys.

With the sanction in writing of the Trinity House, light-houses, beacons, and sea marks may be erected, and when so erected these may not be altered without the like sanction, and every such light, beacon, and sea mark must be of such power and description, and must be from time to time discontinued or altered, as the Trinity House directs (f).

Lights, beacons, and sea marks.

1037. Unless exempted by the special Act of Parliament, the harbour authority must provide and maintain a lifeboat and such rocket apparatus as the Board of Trade approves, with all necessary tackle, and a competent crew and proper persons for the effectual working thereof, for the assistance and succour of vessels in distress, and station the same at such place as the Board of Trade approves (g). The authority must also provide and maintain a self-registering tide gauge and barometer, and keep a daily record of the working and results thereof, and a daily account of the wind and weather. The account of the daily working of the tide gauge and barometer, and the daily state of the wind and weather, must be sent each month to the Board of Trade (h).

Lifeboat and rocket apparatus.

Tide gauge and barometer.

Weather report.

SECT. 6.—Power to Make Bye-laws.

1038. The harbour authority may make bye-laws (i) (1) for regulating the use of the harbour, the exercise of the powers vested in the harbour master, the admission of vessels into or near the harbour and their removal therefrom, and their good order and government whilst within the harbour, the shipping and unshipping, landing, warehousing, stowing, depositing and removing of all goods within the limits of the harbour and the premises of the harbour authority, with the consent of the Commissioner of Customs, the hours during Matters for which bye-laws may be made.

(e) Harbours, Docks and Piers Clauses Act, 1847 (10 & 11 Vict. c. 27), s. 77.

(f) Ibid., s. 78; see p. 629, ante. For form of bye-laws as to signals for harbours, see Encyclopædia of Forms and Precedents, Vol. VI., p. 627.

(g) Harbours, Docks and Piers Clauses Act, 1847 (10 & 11 Vict. c. 27), s. 16; Harbours Transfer Act, 1862 (25 & 26 Vict. c. 69), s. 5. The penalty is not exceeding £2 for every twenty-four hours during which the lifeboat or rocket apparatus are not provided, maintained or stationed as required etc. (Harbours, Docks and Piers Clauses Act, 1847 (10 & 11 Vict. c. 27), s. 17).

(h) Ibid., s. 18; Harbours Transfer Act, 1862 (25 & 26 Vict. c. 69), s. 5. The penalty is not exceeding £2 for every twenty-four hours during which the tide gauge and barometer are not provided or maintained, or account of wind and weather kept, and not exceeding £10 for failing to send monthly account to Board of Trade (Harbours, Docks and Piers Clauses Act, 1847 (10 & 11 Vict. c. 27), s. 19).

(i) Bye-laws made under the Harbours, Docks and Piers Clauses Act, 1847 (10 & 11 Vict. c. 27), must not be repugnant to the laws in force in the locality, and must be reduced into writing and sealed with the common seal of the harbour authority if incorporated, and if not, by the signatures of the persons composing the authority or of any two of them (Harbours, Docks and Piers Clauses Act, 1847 (10 & 11 Vict. c. 27), s. 83).

SECT. 6. Power to Make Bye-laws.

which the gates or entrances or outlets of the harbour shall be open, the duties and conduct of all persons other than officers of customs employed in the harbour and the premises of the harbour authority; the use of fires and lights within the harbour or premises belonging thereto or within any vessel in the harbour; the use of cranes, weighing machines, weights and measures belonging to the harbour authority and the duties and conduct of all weighers and meters employed by them; and of the porters and carriers employed on the premises of the harbour authority; (2) for preventing damage or injury to vessels or goods within the harbour or on the premises of the harbour authority; and (3) for fixing the rates to be paid to porters and carriers for carrying any goods, articles, or things from or to the premises of the authority (k).

Emigration.

A harbour authority having control of any docks or basins at any port from which emigrant ships are despatched may, with the approval of a Secretary of State, make bye-laws for specifying the docks, basins, or other places at which persons arriving by sea at the port for the purpose of emigration or actually emigrating therefrom shall be landed and embarked; for regulating the mode of their landing and embarkation; for the storing and safe custody of their luggage; for licensing porters to carry their luggage or otherwise attend upon them; and for admitting persons to and excluding persons from access to the docks and basins (l).

Confirmation.

1039. The bye-laws, except such as relate solely to the harbour authority or its officers and servants, have no force until confirmed by the proper authority (m). They cannot be confirmed until one month's notice has been given in a local newspaper and a copy of the proposed bye-laws has been kept at the principal office of the harbour authority for public inspection (n).

Copies.

A copy of the bye-laws must be placed on boards and put up in some conspicuous part of the office of the harbour authority, and on (k) Harbours, Docks and Piers Clauses Act, 1847 (10 & 11 Vict. c. 27), s. 83. These powers do not include powers to prohibit persons dealing in marine stores (Chamberlain v. Conway (1888), 53 J. P. 214), or acting as "lumpers" on board vessels without the permission of the harbour authority (Dick v. Badart (1883), 10 Q. B. D. 387). When by the custom of the port the authority discharges the cargo, the charterer is not liable for demurrage caused by delay on the part of the authority (Weir & Co. v. Richardson (1897), 3 Com. Cas. 20; The Kingsland, [1911] P. 17). As to powers of harbour authority to make bye-laws as to explosives, see title EXPLOSIVES, Vol. XIV., p. 384; and as to petroleum, see title PUBLIC HEALTH AND LOCAL ADMINISTRATION, Vol. XXIII., p. 572.

(l) These bye-laws must be published in the London Gazette, and an offender against the bye-laws may be detained until he can be brought before a justice of the peace, who may try the case in a summary manner (M. S. Act, 1894, s. 362).

(m) Harbours, Docks and Piers Clauses Act, 1847 (10 & 11 Vict. c. 27), s. 85. Except where the special Act prescribes a different mode of confirmation, they must be confirmed by a judge of the High Court, or by the justices in quarter sessions. Regulations made as to the berthing of ships etc., and not confirmed as bye-laws, bind nobody, except so far as they agree to be bound by them (London Association of Shipowners and Brokers v. London and India Docks Joint Committee, [1892] 3 Ch. 242, C. A.

(n) Harbours, Docks and Piers Clauses Act, 1847 (10 & 11 Vict. c. 27), ss. 86, 87.

SECT. 6. Power to Make Bye-laws.

some conspicuous part of the harbour, and a copy must be supplied to anyone free of charge (o).

When duly made, confirmed, and published (p), they are binding on all parties and are sufficient to justify all persons acting under them (q), and may be enforced by fines (r).

Binding nature.

The bye-laws may be repealed or altered at any time (s), and their existence and due making is proved in all cases of prosecution by producing a written or printed copy authenticated by the signature of the person whose duty it is to confirm the bye-law, or, when confirmation is not required, by the common seal of the harbour authority if incorporated, or, if not incorporated, under the hands of the members of the authority.

Proof.

SECT. 7.—Liabilities of Harbour Authorities.

Liabilities of harbour authorities.

1040. A harbour authority which takes tolls for the use of a harbour is under the obligation to use reasonable care to see that the harbour is in a fit condition for a vessel to resort thereto, and cannot delegate its duty in this respect to persons not its servants, so as to absolve itself from the consequences of the negligence of such persons (t).

Depth of water.

When the harbour authority holds out that there is a certain depth of water at a part of the harbour over which vessels may be obliged to pass, e.g., a dock sill, it must use reasonable care to provide that the approaches to that part are sufficient, under normal conditions, to enable a vessel to pass over it (u).

Acts of servants.

1041. A harbour authority is also liable for any damage that may arise from the acts and directions of its servants when acting within the scope of their duty, for when a vessel is within the jurisdiction of a harbour authority by law empowered to give orders, such orders must be obeyed unless it is obvious that in following

(o) Harbours, Docks and Piers Clauses Act, 1847 (10 & 11 Vict. c. 27), s. 88.

(p) Publication is proved by evidence that the board containing a copy of the bye-laws is standing on some conspicuous part of the harbour (ibid., s. 90).

(q) Ibid., s. 89.

(r) Not exceeding £5 for each breach of a bye-law (ibid., s. 84).

(s) Ibid., s. 83.

(t) Mersey Docks Trustees v. Gibbs (1866), L. R. 1 H. L. 93; Parnaby v. Lancaster Canal Co. (1839), 11 Ad. & El. 223, Ex. Ch. The same principles apply to an executive government which owns docks for the use of which dues are payable (R. v. Williams (1884), 9 App. Cas. 418, P. C.; The Bearn, [1906] P. 48, C. A.). It is no defence that the bad state of the harbour could not be detected, when the harbour authority has neglected their duty by delegating the duty of sounding the harbour to local pilots not the servants of that authority; see The Moorcock (1889), 14 P. D. 64, C. A. (wharfinger inviting vessel to use an unsafe berth); The Burlington (1895), 8 Asp. M. L. C. 38, C. A. (berthing vessel at unsafe berth in the channel of the harbour). The harbour and its machinery must be reasonably safe for persons doing business on board vessels in the harbour (Smith v. London and St. Katharine Docks Co. (1868), L. R. 3 C. P. 326). See also title NEGLIGENCE, Vol. XXI., p. 365.

(u) Bede Steamship Co. v. River Wear Commissioners, [1907] 1 K. B. 310, C. A. (allowing silt to accumulate at entrance to a dock, over the sill of which they advertised a certain de th of water).

SECT. 7. Liabilities of Harbour Authorities.

them there is danger, in which case they may be disregarded (a). Such authority, however, is not liable for the acts of its servant when not acting as its servant but in another capacity, even though such servant be licensed by the authority so to act (b), or where the authority's servant acts on misrepresentations made to the authority by the shipowner's servants (c).

Liability for neglect.

Whenever a harbour authority undertakes for reward to perform services to a vessel coming to its harbour, it is liable for any breach of agreement to perform such services (d) or for any neglect on its part to exercise reasonable care and skill in the performance of such services (e), and when it undertakes a duty, although imposed on it by statute, towards a vessel in its jurisdiction, it is liable for the consequences of any neglect of that duty (f).

Limitation of action.

1042. Whenever the harbour authority or its servants do any act in pursuance of any Act of Parliament or of any public duty or authority, or omits or neglects their duties, and it is desired to take action against it, the action must be commenced within six months after the act, neglect, or default complained of; and if the harbour authority obtains a judgment in its favour it is entitled to costs to be taxed as between solicitor and client (g).

Limitation of liability.

1043. Where damage is done without the actual fault or privity of the harbour authority, it may limit its liability to an amount not exceeding £8 for each ton of the tonnage of the largest registered British ship which within the previous five years has been within the harbour (h).

(a) The Cynthia (1876), 2 P. D. 52; The Bilbao (1860), Lush. 149; The Belgic (1875), 2 P. D. 57, n.; The Rhosina (1885), 10 P. D. 131, C. A. (harbour master ordering anchor to be dropped upon which vessel grounded); Reney v. Kirkcudbright Magistrates, [1892] A. C. 264 (ordering vessel to a place where she grounded and suffered damage); "Apollo" (Owners) v. Port Talbot Co., The "Apollo," [1891] A. C. 499 (informing master that he might safely ground his vessel in a dock entrance and permitting him to use it for that purpose); East London Harbour Board v. Caledonia Landing, Shipping and Salvage Co., Ltd., East London Harbour Board v. Colonial Fisheries Co., Ltd. [1908] A. C. 271, P. C. (removing vessel and negligently remooring her); The Bien, [1911] P. 40 (mooring vessel on an oyster bed); see also title MASTER AND SERVANT, Vol. XX., p. 262.

(b) Shaw, Savill and Albion Co. v. Timaru Harbour Board (1890), 15 App. Cas. 429, P. C. (not liable for deputy harbour master licensed as a pilot by harbour authority when acting as a duly qualified pilot).

(c) Lloyd v. Iron (1865), 4 F. & F. 1011. It is the duty of the master of a vessel to bring to the notice of the dock master any peculiarity as to the draught and build of his vessel.

(d) South Wales and Liverpool Steamship Co. v. Nevill's Dock and Rail. Co., Nevill's Dock and Rail. Co. v. Maatschappij S.S. Bestevaer Rotterdam (1913), 18 Com. Cas. 124.

(e) Preston Corporation v. Biornstad, The "Ratata," [1898] A. C. 513 (lightening and towing a vessel to their docks).

(f) S.S. "Utopia" (Owners) v. S.S. "Primula" (Owners and Master), The "Utopia," [1893] A. C. 492, P. C.; The Douglas (1882), 7 P. D. 151, C. A. (undertaking to light and buoy a sunken wreck).

(g) Public Authorities Protection Act, 1893 (56 & 57 Vict. c. 61), s. 1; The Ydun, [1899] P. 236, C. A. (the corporation of Preston as harbour authority); The Johannesburg, [1907] P. 65 (the Tyne Improvement Commissioners as owners of a staith erected under statutory powers); see also title PUBLIC AUTHORITIES AND PUBLIC OFFICERS, Vol. XXIII., pp. 299 et seq.

(h) M. S. (Liability of Shipowners and Others) Act, 1900, s. 2; and see p. 614, ante.

Part XX.—Marine Authorities.

SECT. 1.—The Board of Trade and Other Authorities.

SECT. 1. The Board of Trade and Other Authorities.

Board of Trade.

1044. The general authority for the superintendence of all matters relating to merchant shipping and seamen is the Board of Trade (a). This department is also authorised to carry into execution the provisions of the Merchant Shipping Acts and all other Acts in force relating to merchant shipping and seamen, except where otherwise provided by those Acts, and except in so far as those Acts relate to revenue (b). In addition to the general authorisation the control of certain matters is specifically vested by statute in the Board. Thus the superintendence and extension of local marine boards (c), and the establishment and control of mercantile marine offices (d), is placed directly in the hands of the Board; the superintendence of all matters relating to wreck, including the appointment of receivers of wreck, subject to the approval of the Treasury, is likewise with the Board (e); and the ultimate authority in the two important matters of pilotage (f) and lighthouse (g) control is also vested in the Board.

Certificates and inquiries.

1045. The Board of Trade may suspend or cancel the certificate of any master, mate, or engineer, if it is shown that he has been convicted of any offence (h). The Board may also, if, either on the report of a local marine board or otherwise, it has reason to believe that any master, mate, or certificated engineer is from incompetency or misconduct unfit to discharge his duties, or that in case of collision he has failed to stand by or to give the necessary information (i), order an inquiry to be held (k). The Board may entrust this inquiry either to a person appointed for the purpose or to a local marine board (l) or to a court of summary jurisdiction (m).

Enforcement of authority.

1046. The Board of Trade may enforce its authority by taking any legal proceedings under the Merchant Shipping Acts in the name of any of its officers (n), and the officers of the Board

(a) M. S. Act, 1894, s. 713; see title CONSTITUTIONAL LAW, Vol. VII., p. 102.
(b) M. S. Act, 1894, s. 713.
(c) M. S. Act, 1894, ss. 244, 245; see pp. 652 et seq., post.
(d) M. S. Act, 1894, s. 246; see pp. 655 et seq., post.
(e) M. S. Act, 1894, s. 566; see p. 549, ante.
(f) M. S. Act, 1894, ss. 575, 585, 600, 603; now repealed and re-enacted by the Pilotage Act, 1913 (2 & 3 Geo. 5, c. 31); and see pp. 596 et seq., ante.
(g) M. S. Act, 1894, ss. 635, 636, 640, 660; and see pp. 629 et seq., ante.
(h) M. S. Act, 1894, s. 469. The offence must probably be one punishable by fine or imprisonment; see Board of Trade v. Leith Local Marine Board (1896), 24 R. (Ct. of Sess.) 177.
(i) M. S. Act, 1894, s. 422.
(k) Ibid., s. 471 (1).
(l) Ibid., s. 471 (2). For disciplinary powers of local marine boards, see p. 653, post.
(m) M. S. Act, 1894, s. 471 (2).
(n) Ibid., s. 717.

SECT. 1.
The Board of Trade and Other Authorities.

have the same powers as the other marine authorities for enforcing compliance with their demands (o).

Surveyors and Inspectors.

1047. The Board of Trade may, in addition to officers appointed for particular purposes under specific statutory provisions, appoint two classes of officers, surveyors (p) and inspectors (q), in the following manner:—The Board may at such ports as it thinks fit appoint any person, either generally or for a special purpose or special occasion, to be a surveyor of ships for the purposes of the Merchant Shipping Acts, and to act either as a ship (r) surveyor or an engineer surveyor, or as both (s). It may also appoint a surveyor-general of ships for the United Kingdom and such other principal officers in connexion with the survey of ships as it thinks fit (t), and it has unlimited powers as to the appointment (u), removal, remuneration, and regulation of the duties of its surveyors (v).

Appointment of surveyors.

Appointment of inspectors.

The Board may at any time appoint inspectors to report upon the nature and causes of any accident or damage caused to or by a ship; or whether the provisions of the Merchant Shipping Acts or any regulations thereunder have been complied with, or whether the hull and machinery of any steamship are sufficient and in good condition (w). For the purpose of carrying these powers into effect the Board has power to detain British ships provisionally for the purpose of being surveyed (a) and to appoint detaining officers, to whom its powers of provisional detention may be delegated (b) in addition to all the ordinary powers of a Board of Trade inspector. These ordinary powers are (c):—

Powers of inspectors.

(1) To go on board any ship and to inspect the same or any part of the machinery, boats, equipment, or any articles to which the provisions of the Merchant Shipping Acts apply, provided that he does not inflict upon such ship any unnecessary detention or delay;

(2) To enter and inspect any premises which it appears to him to be requisite to enter for the purpose of the report which he is directed to make;

(o) M. S. Act, 1894, s. 723 (1).
(p) Ibid., s. 724.
(q) Ibid., s. 728.
(r) Ibid., s. 724 (1).
(s) Ibid.; and compare M. S. Act, 1906, s. 75 (1).
(t) M. S. Act, 1894, s. 724 (2); for the duty of the surveyor-general in measuring ships, see ibid., s. 503 (2) (c).
(u) Ibid., s. 724 (2); M. S. Act, 1906, s. 75 (4).
(v) M. S. Act, 1894, s. 724 (3), (5); and compare ibid., ss. 713 (general control), 271 (survey of passenger ships), 289 (surveyors of emigrant ships). "Instructions" are issued by the Board from time to time under these powers; and the proper tribunal of appeal from the action of a surveyor under these instructions is the court of survey for the port or district; compare ibid., s. 275; Denny and Brothers v. Board of Trade (1880), 17 Sc. L. R. 694; and p. 662, post.
(w) M. S. Act, 1894, s. 728.
(a) Ibid., s. 459 (1) (a).
(b) Ibid., s. 459 (2).
(c) Ibid., s. 729 (1).

(3) By summons under his hand to require the attendance of all persons he thinks fit to call and examine for the purposes of his report, and to require answers to such inquiries as he thinks fit to make (d);

(4) To require and enforce the production of all books, papers, or documents necessary for his report;

(5) To administer oaths to persons called before him, or instead to require every person examined by him to make and subscribe a declaration of truth of the statements made in his examination (d).

Penalties.

1048. The penalty for refusing to attend as a witness, after having been required in due form to do so by a Board of Trade inspector or any person having the powers of such an inspector, and after receiving tender of any expenses therefor properly due, or refusing or neglecting to answer, give a return, produce a document in possession, or make or subscribe a declaration so duly required, is a fine not exceeding £10 (e); and wilful obstruction of an inspector or of any person having the powers of an inspector in the performance of his duty not only subjects the delinquent to a liability to a fine of the like amount, but also to personal seizure and detention by the inspecting officer, or anyone whom he can call to his aid, until such time as the offender can be conveniently brought before a competent tribunal (f).

Authorities under control of Board of Trade.

1049. Other marine authorities not directly under the Board of Trade, but subject to the general authority of the Board, are the consular officers and officers of customs abroad (g) and the various registration authorities for ships in the United Kingdom, British possessions, and elsewhere (h). In any place outside His Majesty's dominions, where His Majesty has jurisdiction, and where there is no British consular officer, anything which by the Merchant Shipping Acts is authorised to be done by, to, or before a British consular officer may be done in that place before any such officer as His Majesty in Council may direct (i).

(d) R. v. Collingridge (1864), 34 L. J. (Q. B.) 9. The expense of witnesses so summoned is to be borne by the public (M. S. Act, 1894, s. 729 (2)), and it is a proper course for the court, before granting summonses, to inquire who the witnesses are and the nature of their evidence, and to prevent witnesses being vexatiously summoned. The expenses are allowed on the same scale as those allowed to a witness attending on subpœna before a court of record, or, in Scotland, attending on citation the Court of Justiciary (ibid.). In case of dispute as to amount, reference should be made, by means of a signed request by the inspector, to the Admiralty Registrar in England (ibid.; R. S. C. (Merchant Shipping), 1894, r. 1), to one of the masters or registrars of the High Court in Ireland, or to the King's and Lord Treasurer's Remembrancer in Scotland, to ascertain and certify the proper amount of such expenses (M. S. Act, 1894, s. 729 (2)). False swearing under such summons is indictable as perjury (R. v. Tomlinson (1866), L. R. 1 C. C. R. 49).

(e) M. S. Act, 1894, s. 729 (3).

(f) Ibid., s. 730.

(g) Ibid., s. 714.

(h) Ibid., ss. 63, 251; and see pp. 657 et seq., post.

(i) M. S. Act, 1894, s. 737; and see Order in Council dated the 26th November, 1897 (Stat. R. & O. Rev., Vol. VIII., Merchant Shipping,

SECT. 1.
The Board of Trade and Other Authorities.

Reports to Board of Trade.

Powers to enforce mercantile laws.

1050. All consular officers (k) and officers of customs abroad, in common with local marine boards (l) and superintendents (m) of mercantile marine offices (n), must furnish to the Board of Trade such returns or reports on any matter relating to British merchant shipping or seamen as the Board may require (o). In order to enforce compliance with any laws for the time being in force relating to merchant seamen or navigation, any officer of the Board of Trade, any commissioned officer of any of His Majesty's ships on full pay, any British consular officer (k), the Registrar-General of Shipping and Seamen (p) or his assistant, any chief officer of customs in any place in His Majesty's dominions, or any superintendent (q), may (1) require the owner, master, or any of the crew of any British ship to produce any official log-books or other documents relating to the crew or any member thereof in their possession or control; (2) require any such master to produce a list of all persons on board his ship, and take copies of the official log-books or other documents; (3) muster the crew of any such ship; and (4) summon the master to appear and give any explanation concerning the ship or her crew or the official log-books or documents produced or required (r). Anyone refusing to comply without reasonable cause with such orders or requirements duly made by such officers, or impeding a muster so properly called, or knowingly misleading or deceiving any such officer in regard to the matters above mentioned, is liable to a fine not exceeding £20 (s).

SECT. 2.—Local Marine Boards.

Local marine boards.

1051. The Board of Trade has power to establish local marine boards wherever it appears necessary, and has general authority over such boards and the duty of superintendence of their working.

p. 311) (Deputy Commissioner or Resident appointed to act in Gilbert and Ellice and in Solomon Islands); Order in Council dated the 20th May, 1903 (Stat. R. & O. Rev., Vol. VIII., Merchant Shipping, p. 312) (acting Resident Deputy Commissioner appointed in the New Hebrides); Order in Council dated the 11th August, 1902 (Stat. R. & O. Rev., Vol. V., Foreign Jurisdiction, p. 77) (such officer of the Protectorate as the Commissioner may appoint in Uganda); Order in Council dated the 12th March, 1903 (Stat. R. & O. Rev., Vol. V., Foreign Jurisdiction, p. 188) (such officer of the Protectorate as the Consul-General may appoint in Somaliland).

(k) The expression "consular officer" includes consul-general, consul, vice-consul, consular agent, and any person for the time authorised to discharge the duties of consul-general, consul, or vice-consul (Interpretation Act, 1889 (52 & 53 Vict. c. 63), s. 12 (20)).

(l) See the text, infra.

(m) The expression "superintendent," so far as respects a British possession, includes any shipping master or other officer discharging in that possession the duties of a superintendent (M. S. Act, 1894, s. 742; and M. S. Act, 1906, s. 49 (1) (b) (i.)).

(n) See pp. 655 et seq., post.

(o) M. S. Act, 1894, s. 714.

(p) Ibid., s. 251 (2); and see p. 657, post.

(q) "Chief officer of customs" includes the collector, superintendent, principal coast officer, or other chief officer of customs at each port (M. S. Act, 1894, s. 742).

(r) M. S. Act, 1894, s. 723 (1). As to mustering a crew, compare ibid., s. 459, and amendment thereof in M. S. Act, 1897, s. 1 (1) (power to muster crew in case of undermanning given to "detaining officer").

(s) M. S. Act, 1894, s. 723 (2).

SECT. 2. Local Marine Boards.

These boards exist for the purpose of carrying into effect such of the provisions of the Merchant Shipping Acts as relate to their powers and duties (t), the chief of which are :—

Powers and duties.

(1) To appoint examiners and conduct examinations of persons desirous of obtaining certificates of competency as masters or mates, under the rules (a) laid down by the Board of Trade (b) ;

(2) To appoint and control medical inspectors of seamen (c), and where and when so required by the Board of Trade, to appoint medical inspectors of ships to inspect the medicines, medical stores, and anti-scorbutics with which a ship is required by the Merchant Shipping Acts to be provided (d) ;

(3) To hold inquiry into the conduct of certificated officers at the instance of the Board of Trade, and in the manner provided by the Merchant Shipping Acts, and to report thereon to the Board of Trade (e) ;

(4) To nominate a list of persons of nautical or engineering experience, from amongst whom competent assessors may be drawn to assist the respective local courts of survey (f).

Constitution of local marine boards.

1052. Local marine boards are composed of three elements :—

(1) Ex-officio members, the mayor or provost of the town to which the port belongs and the stipendiary magistrate, or, where there are more than one, such of the mayors, provosts, and stipendiary magistrates as the Board of Trade appoints (g).

(2) A selected element, comprising four members appointed by the Board of Trade from among persons residing or carrying on business at the port or within a radius of seven miles (h).

(3) An elective element, composed of six members elected by the registered owners of foreign-going ships and home trade passenger ships registered at the port (i).

(t) M. S. Acts, 1894, ss. 244 (1), 713; 1906, s. 74 (2). Local marine boards exist at Bristol, Cardiff, Hull, Liverpool, London, Newcastle, North Shields, Plymouth, South Shields and Sunderland in England ; at Aberdeen, Dundee, Glasgow, Greenock and Leith in Scotland ; and at Belfast, Cork and Dublin in Ireland.

(a) These rules may be obtained from the King's Printer in pamphlet form.

(b) M. S. Act, 1894 s. 94 ; and see p. 38, ante.

(c) M. S. Act, 1894, s. 204 (2).

(d) Ibid., s. 202 (1).

(e) Ibid., s. 471 ; and see pp. 590 et seq., ante.

(f) M. S. Act, 1894, s. 487 (3); and see title COURTS, Vol. IX., pp. 107 et seq.

(g) M. S. Act, 1894, Sched. VII. (1) (a).

(h) Ibid., Sched. VII. (1) (b).

(i) Ibid., Sched. VII. (1) (c). Elections are held on the 25th January every third year commencing from 1896, and the newly-elected board supersedes the existing board one month after the elections (ibid., Sched. VII. (2)). Casual vacancies between the elections must be filled up within a month of the vacancy occurring, and the newly-elected member remains a member until the next triennial election (ibid., Sched. VII. (4)). The conduct of the elections is in the hands of the mayor or provost (ibid., Sched. VII. (5)), and any question in dispute as to an election is to be referred to the Board of Trade (ibid., Sched. VII. (6)). The electors consist of a body comprising every registered owner of not less than 250 tons of shipping in the foreign-going and home trade passenger ships registered at the port, each of whom is entitled to one vote for each member for every

SECT. 2. Local Marine Boards.

Conduct of proceedings.

1053. A local marine board may regulate the mode in which its meetings are to be held and its business is to be conducted, including the fixing of a quorum, not being less than three (k); and minutes of its proceedings must be kept in the manner, if any, prescribed by the Board of Trade (l).

Proceedings not prejudiced by constitutional irregularity.

No acts or proceedings of a local marine board are vitiated or prejudiced by reason of any irregularity in the election of any of the members, or of any error in the list of voters, or of any irregularity in revising the list, or by reason of any person not duly qualified acting on the board, or of any vacancy thereon (a).

Control of Board of Trade.

1054. The Board of Trade exercises control over local marine boards in respect to the following points:—all minutes, books and documents used or kept by any local board, or by any servant of the local board, are open to the inspection of the Board of Trade and its officers, and the local board must further make all such returns and reports as the Board of Trade requires (b). In the case of failure on the part of a local board to meet, or to continue to perform its duties, the Board of Trade may either take over the duties of the local board until the next triennial election of the local board, or may direct that a new and special appointment and election shall take place immediately (c). Further, wherever it appears to the Board of Trade that any appointments

250 tons owned by him, save that his votes for any one member may not exceed ten (M. S. Act, 1894, Sched. VII. (7)). Provision is made for the due interpretation of the rule of qualification (ibid., Sched. VII. (8)), and the chief officer of customs in the port has the duty of preparing annually in December a list of the electors, together with the number of votes to which each is entitled, and of printing and posting the list for a period of two weeks after Christmas (ibid., Sched. VII. (9)). A court, nominated by the mayor or provost of the port, composed of two justices (ibid., Sched. VII. (10)) must be held at the custom-house or at some convenient place near by between the 8th and 15th of January in every third year after 1896 to revise the list of electors (ibid., Sched. VII. (11)) and to decide finally upon all claims and objections properly preferred (ibid., Sched. VII. (13), (14)). Objections may only be made by persons named in the list, and upon satisfactory proof of claim or objection the court has power to insert or erase the name of the person whose claim is in issue (ibid., Sched. VII. (13)). The revisors must sign the list when duly revised (ibid., Sched. VII. (15)), and the list then becomes the register of voters for the port for the three years next succeeding the revision (ibid., Sched. VII. (16)). Every voter applying for a copy of the register to the mayor or provost, as the case may be, is entitled thereto (ibid., Sched. VII. (17)), and the Board of Trade must allow and pay all expenses properly incurred in the election and duly certified by the revisors (ibid., Sched. VII. (19)). Elected members of the local board must be drawn from the electoral body, and any member ceasing after election to retain the quantity of tonnage which constitutes a voting qualification thereupon ceases to be a member (ibid., Sched. VII. (21)). The same rules apply to shipowning corporations, who may appoint an individual to vote on their behalf, and to act as a member, if duly elected, by right of the qualification thereby conferred (ibid., Sched. VII. (22)).

(k) Ibid., s. 244 (3).
(l) Ibid.
(a) Ibid., s. 244 (5).
(b) Ibid., s. 245 (1).
(c) Ibid., s. 245 (2).

to or arrangements made by the local board are inadequate to the wants of the port, or otherwise unsatisfactory, the Board may alter or rectify the same so as to harmonise with the intention of the Merchant Shipping Acts or to meet existing needs (d).

SECT. 3.—Mercantile Marine Offices.

Mercantile marine office where local marine board.

1055. At every port in the United Kingdom where there is a local marine board, and at such other ports as the Board of Trade may determine, a mercantile marine office must be established and maintained (e). At the ports where a local marine board exists the requisite buildings and property to constitute a mercantile marine office must be procured by the board, and, subject to the following qualifications, the board controls and regulates the business of the mercantile marine office, including all expenses and the receipt and payment of money thereat (f). All superintendents (g), deputies, clerks and servants in mercantile marine offices must be appointed and may be removed by the Board of Trade (h). In the Port of London the Board of Trade may appoint any superintendent of, or other person connected with, a sailors' home to be a superintendent, with any necessary deputies, clerks or servants, and may appoint an office in any such home to be a mercantile marine office (i).

Where no local marine board.

1056. In ports where no local marine board exists the Board of Trade may either procure the buildings and other requisites to establish a mercantile marine office, and thereupon establish such an office, or may, with the consent of the Commissioners of Customs, direct that the business of a mercantile marine office shall be conducted at the custom-house, whereupon the custom-house becomes a mercantile marine office for the purposes

(d) M. S. Act, 1894, s. 245 (3).
(e) Ibid., s. 246 (1).
(f) Ibid., s. 246 (2) (b).
(g) For the definition, see ibid., s. 742. Any superintendent or other employee of a mercantile marine office, who demands or receives any direct or indirect remuneration, outside the official remuneration, for the performance of any act forming part of his duty, is liable to a fine not exceeding £20, and is also subject to immediate dismissal (ibid., s. 250). Furthermore, any person employed by or under a local marine board is within the scope of the Larceny Act, 1861 (24 & 25 Vict. c. 96), s. 68, relating to embezzlement (M. S. Act, 1894, s. 248 (1)), and will be held guilty of embezzlement if he fraudulently applies or disposes of any chattel, money, or valuable security received by him whilst so employed, for, or on account of any public board or department, to any use or purpose other than that for which it was paid to him (ibid., s. 248 (2) (a)), or if he fraudulently withholds any part of such sum contrary to instructions received for the due performance of his office (ibid., s. 248 (2) (b)). The Larceny Act, 1861 (24 & 25 Vict. c. 96), s. 71, also applies as to the manner of charging embezzlement in this connexion under the M. S. Act, 1894 (ibid., s. 248 (4)), and for an indictment in this regard it is sufficient to charge any such chattel etc. as the property of the local board by whom the employee was appointed, or of the department on whose account it was received (ibid., s. 248 (3)).
(h) M. S. Act, 1906, ss. 74 (1), 85, Sched. II.
(i) M. S. Act, 1894, s. 246 (2) (d).

SECT. 3. Mercantile Marine Offices.

appointed, and any officer of customs appointed by the Board of Trade to carry out those purposes becomes a superintendent or deputy within the meaning of the Merchant Shipping Acts (k).

Duties of superintendents.

1057. The duties of a superintendent of a mercantile marine office are:—

(1) To afford facilities for engaging seamen by keeping a register of their names and characters (l), including especially a list of the seamen who, to the best of his belief, have deserted or failed to join their ships after signing the usual agreement. He must on request show this list to the master of any ship, and is not liable in respect of any entry in it made in good faith (m);

(2) To superintend and facilitate the engagement and discharge of seamen (n), that is, for example, to provide proper forms for ship's articles of agreement (o), to be present at the signing by each seaman of agreements with respect to foreign-going ships (p), to grant certificates to masters of foreign-going ships on the due execution of their agreements with seamen, or on the fulfilment of the provisions respecting running agreements (q), and generally to assist the masters of ships in making and attesting the necessary entries and alterations in their agreements with their crews (r);

(3) To provide such means as may be necessary to secure the presence on board ship of seamen who have signed proper agreements (s);

(4) To facilitate, by the supply of the necessary forms and information, or by any other means in their power, the making of apprenticeships to the sea service (a);

(5) To perform various other duties relating to seamen, apprentices, and merchant ships imposed upon him by the Acts relating to merchant shipping (b).

Deputy superintendent.

1058. All acts required by statute to be performed by, to, or before a superintendent have the same effect if done by, to, or before a duly appointed deputy (c). The Board of Trade may dispense with the statutory requirement as to the transaction of (k) M. S. Act, 1894, s. 246 (3) (b).

(l) Ibid., s. 247 (1).
(m) Ibid., s. 230.
(n) Ibid., s. 247 (1).
(o) Compare ibid., s. 114.
(p) Ibid., s. 115 (1).
(q) Ibid., s. 118 (1).
(r) Ibid., s. 122.
(s) Ibid., s. 247 (1).
(a) Ibid., s. 247 (1); and compare ibid., ss. 105, 394—397; see p. 41, ante.
(b) M. S. Act, 1894, s. 247 (1). For example, to demand and to receive, within forty-eight hours of her arrival, the official log-book of every foreign-going ship (see ibid., s. 742) which concludes her voyage at the port over which he has authority; to issue seamen's money orders, for the purpose of giving facilities for the remittal of wages and other money of seamen and apprentices to their relatives and others (ibid., s. 145 (1)). For the duties as regards fishing boats and their crews and apprentices, see title FISHERIES, Vol. XIV., pp. 630 et seq.
(c) M. S. Act, 1894, s. 247 (2).

any matters which should be performed either in a mercantile marine office or before a superintendent; and thereupon such matters, if otherwise duly transacted, will be as valid as if performed in accordance with statutory requirements (d).

SECT. 3. Mercantile Marine Offices.

SECT. 4.—Registration Authorities.

Registrar-General of Shipping and Seamen.

1059. It is the duty of the Board of Trade to maintain in the Port of London an office called the General Register and Record Office of Seamen (e), and the Board has power to appoint, and if necessary remove, a "Registrar-General of Shipping and Seamen," together with a competent staff of clerks and assistants (f). This officer must, by means of the documents transmitted to him and by the employment of all other means in his power, keep a register of all persons who serve in ships subject to the Merchant Shipping Acts (g).

Lists of crew.

1060. The Registrar-General receives the lists of the crew, which must be made out, signed, and delivered to a port superintendent by the masters of foreign-going ships (h) whose crews are discharged in the United Kingdom within forty-eight hours after their arrival at their final port of destination, or upon the discharge of the crew, whichever first happens, and of all home-trade ships (h), on, or within twenty-one days after the 30th June and the 31st December in each year (i). The lists must state and contain :—

Contents.

(1) The number and date of the ship's register and her registered tonnage; (2) the length and general nature of the voyage or employment; (3) the names, ages, and places of birth of the master, crew, and apprentices; their ratings; their last ships or other employments, and the dates and places of their joining the ship; (4) the names of any of the crew who have ceased to belong to the ship, with the dates, places, and circumstances of their leaving; (5) the names of any of the crew who have been maimed or hurt, with the time, place, and circumstances of the casualty; (6) the wages due at the time of death to any of the crew who have died; (7) the property (k) of any of the crew who has died, the manner in which such property has been dealt with, and the money for which any part of it has been sold; (8) any marriage which has taken place on board, with the date and the names and ages of the parties (l).

Delivery compulsory.

1061. The delivery of such list is compulsory (m), and in the

(d) M. S. Act, 1894, s. 249.
(e) Ibid., s. 251 (1).
(f) Ibid., s. 251 (2).
(g) Ibid., s. 252.
(h) For definition of "foreign-going ship," see ibid., s. 742.
(i) Ibid., s. 253 (1).
(k) As to what is included in such "property," see ibid., ss. 172, 173; M. S. Act, 1906, s. 28 (6).
(l) M. S. Act, 1894, s. 253 (1).
(m) The penalty for failure to deliver or transmit a list of the crew as above described without reasonable cause is a fine not exceeding £5, leviable upon the master of a foreign-going ship, or upon the master or owner of a home-trade ship (ibid., s. 253 (3)).

SECT. 4. Registration Authorities.

absence of a certificate of delivery, which the superintendent must give on receipt of it, a ship may be detained (a), and the officer of customs cannot clear inwards any foreign-going ship (b).

Births and deaths.

1062. It is the duty of every master of a British ship, registered or unregistered, to record in his log-book the occurrence of every birth and death happening on board his ship as soon as possible after the event (c), and upon his next arrival at a port in the United Kingdom, or on such other occasion as the Board of Trade may direct, to transmit a return of the facts so recorded to the Registrar-General of Shipping and Seamen (d), or, in such cases as the Board may direct, to the superintendent or chief officer of customs of the port (e), or, if elsewhere than in a British possession, to the British consular officer at the port (e), to be by him in turn transmitted to the Registrar-General (e). This duty is likewise imposed upon the master of any foreign ship carrying passengers to or from any port of the United Kingdom, if that port is either the ship's port of departure or port of destination (f).

Transfer of ownership or change of employment.

1063. In the case of a transfer of ownership or change of employment of a ship the outgoing owner or master must, if the ship is in the United Kingdom within one month, if elsewhere within six months, transmit to the superintendent of the port to which the ship belonged a list of the crew made up to the date when such return, by reason of such transfer or change, ceased to be required of him (g). Similarly, if a ship is lost or abandoned, the master or owner must transmit to the superintendent at her port of registry, as soon as possible, a list of her crew at the date of her loss or abandonment (h).

Ship lost or abandoned.

Mercantile documents.

1064. All documents delivered or transmitted to port superintendents and officers of customs under the Merchant Shipping Acts must be in turn transmitted by them to the Registrar-General of Shipping and Seamen as soon as their practical utility at the place where they come into the hands of the supervising officer is exhausted (i). The Registrar-General then records and preserves them, and they are open to public inspection (k).

Agreements with crew and apprenticeship indentures.

1065. Upon the arrival of any British ship, not being a passenger ship, at either a port in a British possession, or elsewhere, at (a) As to enforcing detention, see M. S. Act, 1894, s. 692.

(b) Ibid., s. 253 (2).
(c) Ibid., s. 254 (1).
(d) Ibid., s. 254 (2).
(e) Ibid., s. 254 (3). The maximum penalty is £5 (ibid., s. 254 (5)).
(f) Ibid., s. 339. See title REGISTRATION OF BIRTHS, MARRIAGES, AND DEATHS, Vol. XXIV., pp. 457 et seq.
(g) M. S. Act, 1894, s. 255 (1).
(h) Ibid., s. 255 (2). The maximum penalty is £10 (ibid., s. 255 (3)).
(i) Ibid., s. 256 (1).
(k) Ibid. A fee may be charged if fixed by the Board of Trade (ibid.). The documents so recorded are public records within the meaning of the Public Record Offices Acts, 1838 (1 & 2 Vict. c. 94) and 1877 (40 & 41 Vict. c. 55); as to their admissibility in evidence, mode of proof thereof, and exemption from stamp duty, see M. S. Act, 1894, ss. 694, 695, 719, 721.

which there is a British consular officer, for a stay of over forty-eight hours, it is the duty of the master, within forty-eight hours of arrival, to deposit with the chief officer of customs or consular officer, as the case may be, the agreement with the crew and all indentures and assignments of apprenticeships (l). The officer retains these documents during the ship's stay and makes any necessary indorsements thereon (m). He must return them to the master within a reasonable time before his departure, certifying the date of delivery and return (m), and, where it appears that any forms have been neglected or law trangressed, he must indorse the agreement to that effect and transmit to the Registrar-General a copy of his indorsement, together with the best information he can procure concerning the alleged neglect or transgression (n). Any master who is removed or suspended, or for any reason quits the ship during a voyage, must deliver to his successor the various documents relating to the navigation of the ship and to the crew (o). His successor has a corresponding duty to enter at once in the official log-book (p) a list of the documents delivered (q).

Part XXI.—Pleasure Yachts.

SECT. 1.—Exemptions and Special Provisions under Statute.

Exemption from registration.

1066. Ships not exceeding fifteen tons burden (a), which are only used on the rivers or coasts of the United Kingdom, or of some British possession where the managing owner resides, need not be registered (b).

Employment of officers and crew.

1067. The owners, masters and crews of pleasure yachts are not subject to the statutory provisions relating to the employment and competency of the officers and crew (c).

(l) M. S. Act, 1894, s. 257 (1). For omission of this duty the master is not only liable to a fine of £20, but in proceedings to recover the fine the burden lies upon him of proving, either that he obtained the necessary certificate, or that it was not practicable for him to obtain it (ibid., s. 257 (4)). Compare as to production of indentures, ibid., s. 109, and of certificates of agreement, ibid., s. 118.

(m) Ibid., s. 257 (2).

(n) Ibid., s. 257 (3).

(o) Ibid., s. 258. Penalty not exceeding £100 (ibid.).

(p) Compare ibid., ss. 239, 240.

(q) Ibid., s. 258.

(a) This means net register tonnage (The Brunel, [1900] P. 24, C. A.). For form of charter of sailing yacht, see Encyclopædia of Forms and Precedents, Vol. XIV., p. 90.

(b) M. S. Act, 1894, s. 3 (1). As to registration generally, see p. 16, ante. Yachts used for sea fishing must be registered as fishing boats; see title FISHERIES, Vol. XIV., pp. 628 et seq.

(c) The provisions from which pleasure yachts are exempt are those in the M. S. Act, 1894, Part II., relating to certificates of competency of officers; the record of indentures of apprenticeship; the entry of particulars respecting apprentices; the engagement of the crew through unlicensed persons; agreements with the crew (except those relating to the engagement of seamen abroad); the compulsory discharge and payment

SECT. 1. Exemptions and Special Provisions under Statute.

Light dues.

1068. Pleasure yachts are subject to an annual payment per ton, in place of payments per voyage, for light dues; and only yachts and pleasure boats of under five tons are exempted (d). Yachts laid up during the whole of any year ending the 31st March are exempt from light dues in respect of such year (e). Sailing yachts above five tons register tonnage, which are not registered in the British Isles and come into the territorial waters solely with the object of taking part in yacht-racing, may be exempted if holding a certificate in a form approved by the Board of Trade (f).

Death on board.

1069. The statutory provision requiring the Board of Trade superintendent to inquire into the cause of a death happening on any foreign-going British ship does not apply to pleasure yachts (g).

Marking.

1070. The Board of Trade may exempt pleasure yachts belonging to privileged clubs from the provisions requiring every registered British ship to have her name marked on each bow, and her name and port of registry on her stern, and scale of feet denoting her draught of water on stem and stern post (h), and from the provisions of the Customs Consolidation Act, 1876 (i), requiring name and port to be painted on every boat belonging to such ship (j).

Compulsory pilotage.

Yachts are exempted in all pilotage districts from compulsory pilotage (k).

Ensigns.

1071. The Lords of the Admiralty may grant to the members of certain yacht clubs the privilege of wearing on their yachts a special ensign (l). In the case of the Royal Yacht Squadron, this is the white ensign as worn in His Majesty's navy; in the case of the other privileged clubs, it is either the blue ensign of His Majesty's of wages before a superintendent; the accommodation for seamen; fines; delivery of documents to consular or customs officers abroad; and official log-books (M. S. Act, 1894, s. 262).

(d) This was fixed at 1*s*. per ton by the Merchant Shipping (Mercantile Marine Fund) Act, 1898 (61 & 62 Vict. c. 44), Sched. II., reduced by 12½ per cent. by Order in Council dated the 10th August, 1903 (Stat. R. & O. Rev., Vol. VIII., Merchant Shipping, p. 305), and by a further 17½ per cent. for three years by Order in Council dated the 21st December, 1908 (Stat. R. & O., 1908, p. 549).

(e) Order in Council dated the 24th July, 1901 (Stat. R. & O. Rev., Vol. VIII., Merchant Shipping, p. 303).

(f) Order in Council dated the 4th July, 1908 (Stat. R. & O. 1908, p. 647).

(g) M. S. Act, 1894, s. 690 (3) (c).

(h) Yachts are exempted from external markings by virtue of a Board of Trade Circular (No. 1487) issued in December, 1909. This circular (which is an instruction to surveyors) contains a list of seventy-one clubs the yachts belonging to the members of which are so exempted. Other yacht clubs may make application for exemption to the Assistant Secretary, Marine Department, Board of Trade.

(i) 39 & 40 Vict. c. 36, s. 175.

(j) The practice is that instead of having the name on the stern, as in the case of an ordinary ship's boats, those belonging to a yacht have the burgee of the owner's club painted on each bow.

(k) Pilotage Act, 1913 (2 & 3 Geo. 5, c. 31), s. 11 (3); see p. 610, ante.

(l) A warrant signed by two of the Lords of the Admiralty and the Secretary of the Admiralty is issued to the club defining the particular flag (colour and device) in each case. The warrant states that this flag may be worn on vessels belonging to members of such yacht club being natural-born or naturalised British subjects, subject to the following fleet, with or without a device, or the red ensign with the distinctive marks of the club on the fly thereof (m). The privilege is in each case granted by individual warrant (n), and a vessel in order to be eligible to wear such ensign must be registered, must belong to a British subject, and must not, at the time, be lent on hire or otherwise to any person not being a member of the club or not being a British subject.

SECT. 1. Exemptions and Special Provisions under Statute.

SECT. 2.—Privileges Accorded to Yachts Carrying Special Flag.

1072. Yacht owners who possess Admiralty warrants are generally allowed the privilege of mooring to Government buoys, when these are not actually required at the time for the King's service. Mooring.

Owners in possession of Admiralty warrants are also allowed the privilege of taking wines, spirits, and tobacco out of bond to use on board during foreign voyages, and to lodge these commodities in the custom-house warehouses, free of duty, between foreign voyages. Wines, spirits and tobacco.

Yacht owners can also carry their personal furniture between places in the United Kingdom without the necessity of a coasting licence (o). Coasting licence.

Most foreign Governments grant exemptions from tonnage dues to yachts belonging to the privileged clubs. Foreign tonnage dues.

SECT. 3.—Measure of Liability in Case of Collision.

1073. The limitation of owner's liability in respect of damages caused by his ship in case of collision (p) does not apply where the owner is in command of his vessel (as is common in the case of small yachts), and is party or privy to the collision (q). Where a yacht, sailing under the rules of a club providing that she shall pay all damages, sinks another yacht in a race, the statutory limitation of liability is excluded by the implied contract (r). Liability in case of collision.

conditions, namely: "1. Every vessel belonging to the —— Club in order to be eligible to wear the Ensign authorised by this warrant, shall have been registered as a British vessel in accordance with the Merchant Shipping Act, 1894. 2. The Ensign shall not, without Our authority in writing, be worn on board any vessel belonging to the —— Club, while such vessel is lent on hire or otherwise, to any person not being a member of the Club, or who, being a member of the Club, is not a natural-born or naturalized British subject"; see Admiralty Letter dated the 25th July, 1913. In foreign ports the yacht's Admiralty warrant must, on demand, be shown to the port authorities or British consul (ibid.). Yachts in Turkish waters are recommended to fly the red ensign, otherwise they are treated as men-of-war and compelled to obtain an Imperial irade before being allowed to pass the Dardanelles (Admiralty Letter dated the 29th May, 1903).

(m) In the case of the Royal Cork Yacht Club (the oldest yacht club in the world), the device is not on the fly, but is a golden harp on a green ground in the centre of the Union Jack. As to flags generally, see M. S. Act, 1894, ss. 73, 74, 75.

(n) A separate warrant is required for each club to which the member belongs; yachts held in partnership are not eligible unless all the owners are members of the club. The owner has to apply, through the secretary of his club, on a form setting out full particulars as to name of yacht, registered tonnage, length, breadth, rig and port of registry.

(o) See, generally, title REVENUE, Vol. XXIV., p. 590.

(p) As to limitation of liability generally, see pp. 612 et seq., ante.

(q) The Diamond, [1906] P. 282 ("without his actual fault or privity").

(r) Clarke v. Dunraven (Earl), The "Satanita," [1897] A. C. 59. For a form of rules of a yacht club, see Encyclopædia of Forms and Precedents, Vol. III., p. 755.

PART XXII. Naval and Marine Courts.

Part XXII.—Naval and Marine Courts.

Naval courts.

1074. The constitution and jurisdiction of naval courts and courts of survey have been considered elsewhere (a). It should be added that the provisions of the Merchant Shipping Act, 1894 (b), with regard to naval courts on the high seas and abroad (c) apply to all sea-going ships registered in the United Kingdom (d), and to all ships registered in a British possession, when those ships are out of the jurisdiction of their respective Governments, and where they apply to a ship, they are deemed to apply to the owners, master, and crew of that ship (e). Anyone who wilfully and without due cause prevents and obstructs the making of any complaint to an officer empowered to summon a naval court (f), or the conduct of any hearing or investigation by such court, is liable to a fine not exceeding £50, or to imprisonment, with or without hard labour, for any period not exceeding twelve weeks (g).

Courts of survey.

1075. A court of survey (h) must hear every case in open court. The judge and each assessor may survey the ship or have it surveyed by some competent person or persons, and have the powers of a Board of Trade inspector in that respect (i); they have also large powers of inspection and detention, and must report to the Board of Trade. The owner and master of the ship and their representatives may attend at any inspection and survey (k). In difficult cases the matter may be referred by the Board of Trade to a scientific expert, who will have the same powers as a judge of the court of survey (l). The procedure of a court of survey is controlled by rules made by the Lord Chancellor (m).

(a) See title COURTS, Vol. IX., pp. 107 et seq.
(b) 57 & 58 Vict. c. 60, ss. 480—486.
(c) See title COURTS, Vol. IX., p. 108; and p. 591, ante.
(d) There is an exception, save in the case of Scotland, of fishing boats exclusively employed in fishing on the coasts of the United Kingdom (M. S. Act, 1894, s. 486).
(e) Ibid., s. 486.
(f) See title COURTS, Vol. IX., p. 108.
(g) M. S. Act, 1894, s. 485.
(h) See title COURTS, Vol. IX., p. 107.
(i) See p. 650, ante.
(k) M. S. Act, 1894, s. 488.
(l) Ibid., s. 490.
(m) Ibid., s. 489. The rules in force are dated the 29th September, 1876; see Stat. R. & O. Rev., Vol. VIII., Merchant Shipping, p. 230.

APPENDIX.

Table of Collision Regulations, 1840—1910.

[Note.—Hitherto it has been difficult to trace back one of the articles in the regulations, owing to the absence of any table showing the names of the different regulations which have been introduced, and what the regulations are or where they may be found, and the years during which they have been in force. And an additional difficulty has been that the law reports, especially of the older cases, have referred to articles of regulations in force at the time without giving the exact name of the regulations or the date at which they came in force. To remedy these difficulties the following table has been prepared, which will be of assistance in tracing the history of the regulations now in force, and in verifying the particular regulations in which any article referred to in the older law reports was contained.—Eds.]

Authority.	In Force.	Statement or Summary of Regulations.	Where Found.
The Trinity House.	30th October, 1840. (These regulations were gradually superseded, partly by stat. (1846) 9 & 10 Vict. c. 100; partly again by the Steam Navigation Act, 1851 (14 & 15 Vict. c. 79), and the Merchant Shipping Act, 1854 (17 & 18 Vict. c. 104); and finally, apparently, by the Sea Regulations, 1863.)	The Trinity House Regulations, 1840. Recognised rules. Sailing vessels:— Wind free gives way to close-hauled. Vessel on larboard tack shall bear up for vessel on starboard tack. Both free and meeting, each must port. Steam vessels, considered in the light of vessels with fair wind, give way to sailing vessels on either tack. New rules (adopted by steam vessels in H.M.'s service.) When steam vessels must cross so near by continuing their courses that there would be risk of collision, each shall port so as to pass on the larboard side. Steam vessel, passing another in a narrow channel, must leave the vessel she is passing on the larboard hand.	1 Wm. Rob. 488. Pritchard's Admiralty Digest (hereafter in this Table cited as Pritchard), 1st ed. (1847), p. 134, n.; and cases thereon in 3rd ed. (1886), title Collision, p. 271, n.; 2nd ed. (1865), title Damage, pp. 163, 164, 192, 241. Abbott's Law of Merchant Ships, etc. (hereafter in this Table cited as Abbott), 11th ed. (1867), p. 605, and some cases thereon, pp. 605, 606. Marsden's Collisions at Sea (hereafter in this Table cited as Marsden), 3rd ed. (1891), p. 535; and cases thereon, p. 339, and 4th ed. (1897), p. 365.

TABLE OF COLLISION REGULATIONS—continued.

Authority.	In Force.	Statement or Summary of Regulations.	Where Found.
Sea Fisheries Act, 1843 (6 & 7 Vict. c. 79), s. 1, and Sched., arts. I., L., LI., LIII., LIV.; see amending Act, stat. (1855) 18 & 19 Vict. c. 101.	22nd August, 1843, till 1st February, 1869, as regards British subjects (the Sea Fisheries Act, 1843 (6 & 7 Vict. c. 79), was repealed by the Sea Fisheries Act, 1868 (31 & 32 Vict. c. 45), s. 71, which came into force on 1st February, 1869; see below in this Table). In 1877 the Sea Fisheries Act, 1843 (6 & 7 Vict. c. 79), was revived, as regards French fishing boats, as if the Act had not been repealed, and as regards French fishing boats the regulations in the next column appear to be still in force (compare Stuart Moore's History and Law of Fisheries, 1903, pp. 194, 195), the convention scheduled to the Sea Fisheries Act, 1868 (31 & 32 Vict. c. 45), not having come into force. Compare Fisheries (Oyster, Crab, and Lobster) Act, 1877 (40 & 41 Vict. c. 42), s. 15).	British and French Fishermen's Regulations, 1843 (as they may be called). Day signals. To distinguish drift net fishing boats from trawl boats, vanes 8 inches high and 2 feet broad were to be carried at the masthead, and their colours were to be— For British trawl boats, red; drift boats, white and red. For French trawl boats, blue; drift boats, white and blue. Lights. To distinguish boats fishing with drift nets, there were to be hoisted on one of their masts from sunset to sunrise during all the time their nets should be in the sea, two lights one over the other, 3 feet apart.	As regards this Act, see Stuart Moore's History and Law of Fisheries, 1903; and Maude and Pollock's Law of Merchant Shipping (hereafter in this Table referred to as Maude and Pollock), 4th ed. (1881), Vol. II., notes on pp. cclxxix, cclxxxix. An action of damage by collision did not lie for breach of these regulations, as all transgressions were to be submitted to the jurisdiction provided by the Act (Marshall v. Nicholls (1852), 18 Q. B. 882).

TABLE OF COLLISION REGULATIONS—continued.

Authority.	In Force.	Statement or Summary of Regulations.	Where Found.
Stat. (1846) 9 & 10 Vict. c. 100, preamble, ss. 9, 36.	1st January, 1847. (Till 31st December, 1851; see Steam Navigation Act, 1851 (14 & 15 Vict. c. 79), s. 1.)	Every steam vessel meeting or passing any other steam vessel shall pass as far as may be safe on the port side of such other vessel. Every steam vessel navigating any river or narrow channel shall keep as far as practicable to that side of the fairway or mid-channel of such river or channel which lies on the starboard side of such vessel, due regard being had to the tide and to the position of each vessel in such tide.	For cases thereon, see Pritchard, 3rd. ed. (1886), title Collision, p. 271, note 399; and 2nd ed. (1865), title Damage, p. 164
Admiralty Regulations as to lights, 1848 (made under stat. (1846) 9 & 10 Vict. c. 100, see ss. 10, 11, 12, 13, and 36; but it is a question whether s. 11 was complied with).	11th July, 1848. (Till 1st May, 1852, when revoked by Admiralty Regulations of that date.)	Lights shall be exhibited by all steam vessels, except in the river Thames, above Yantlett Creek, between sunset and sunrise :— When under weigh : bright white light at the foremast head, visible at least five miles in a clear dark night, and the lantern to be so constructed as to show a uniform and unbroken light over an arc of the horizon of twenty points of the compass, from right ahead to two points abaft the beam on each side ; green light on starboard side, and red light on port side, visible at least two miles in a clear dark night, and the lanterns so constructed as to show a uniform and unbroken light over an arc of ten points from right ahead to two points abaft the beam on their respective sides. The side lights to be fitted with inboard screens (placed in a fore and aft line with the inner edge of the side lights) at least 3 feet long, to prevent them from being seen across the bow. [Illustrative diagrams, and instructions as to fixing the lights, which in fact amounted to rules of navigation, were furnished by the Admiralty. The words referring to the fourth position shown in the diagrams were to the following effect, "4th situation : Here a green light only will be visible to each, the screens preventing the red lights being seen. They are, therefore, passing to starboard and will starboard their helms with confidence." See The Rob Roy (1849), 7 Notes of Cases, 280, 285.] When at anchor : a common bright light.	London Gazette, 11th July, 1848.
Steam Navigation Act, 1851 (14 & 15 Vict. c. 79), ss. 27, 48, 51.	31st December, 1851. (Till 1st May, 1855; see Merchant Shipping Repeal Act, 1854 (17 & 18 Vict. c. 120), s. 3, Schedule.)	Whenever any vessel proceeding in one direction meets a vessel proceeding in another direction, and the master or other person having charge of either such vessel perceives that if both vessels continue their respective courses they will pass so near as to involve any risk of collision, he shall put the helm of his vessel to port, so as to pass on the port side of the other vessel, due regard being had to the tide and to the position of each vessel with respect to the dangers of the channel, and as regards sailing vessels, to the keeping of each vessel under command ;	For cases thereon, see Pritchard, 2nd ed. (1865), title Damage, p. 165; 3rd ed. (1886), p. 271, note 401.

TABLE OF COLLISION REGULATIONS—continued.

Authority.	In Force.	Statement or Summary of Regulations.	Where Found.
		And the master of any steam vessel navigating any river or narrow channel shall keep as far as is practicable to that side of the fairway or midchannel which lies on the starboard side of such vessel.
Admiralty Notice respecting lights, 1852 (made under the Steam Navigation Act, 1851 (14 & 15 Vict. c. 79), s. 26).	1st August, 1852. (Till 1st October, 1858; see Admiralty Notice, 1858. Not annulled by M. S. Repeal Act, 1854 (17 & 18 Vict. c. 120); compare The Mangerton (1856), Sw. 120.)	Steam vessels. All British sea-going steam vessels (whether propelled by paddles or screws) shall, within all seas, gulfs, channels, straits, bays, creeks, roads, roadsteads, harbours, havens, ports and rivers, and under all circumstances, between sunset and sunrise, exhibit :— When under steam : [The same lights prescribed in practically the same words as in 1848]. When at anchor : a common bright light. Sailing vessels. All sailing vessels, when under sail, or being towed, approaching or being approached by any other vessel, shall show, between sunset and sunrise, a bright light, in such a position as can be best seen by such vessel or vessels, and in sufficient time to avoid collision. All sailing vessels at anchor in roadsteads or fairways shall exhibit, between sunset and sunrise, a constant bright light at the masthead, except within harbours or other places where regulations for other lights for ships are legally established. The lantern to be used when at anchor, both by steam vessels and sailing vessels, is to be so constructed as to show a clear good light all round the horizon.	London Gazette, 4th May, 1852; Sw. Appendix, p. i. For cases thereon, see Pritchard, 2nd ed. (1865), title Damage, pp. 147—149; 3rd ed. (1886), p. 249, note 281.
M. S. Act, 1854 (17 & 18 Vict. c. 104), ss. 3, 4, 296, 297.	1st May, 1855. (Till 1st June, 1863; see M. S. Act Amendment Act, 1862 (25 & 26 Vict. c. 63), s. 2, Schedule.)	Whenever any ship, whether a steam or sailing ship, meets another ship, whether a steam or sailing ship, so that if both were to continue their courses they would pass so near as to involve any risk of a collision, the helms of both ships shall be put to port so as to pass on the port side of each other. And this rule shall be obeyed by all steam ships and by all sailing ships, whether on the port or starboard tack and whether close-hauled or not, unless the circumstances of the case are such as to render a departure from the rule necessary in order to avoid immediate danger, and subject also to the proviso that due regard shall be had to the dangers of navigation, and as regards sailing ships on the starboard tack close-hauled, to the keeping such ships under command. Every steamship, when navigating any narrow channel, shall, whenever it is safe and practicable, keep to that side of the fairway or midchannel which lies on the starboard side of such ship.	For construction, and cases thereon, see Pritchard, 2nd ed. (1865), title Damage, pp. 165—168, and 192—194; and 3rd ed. (1886), p. 271, note 403, and pp. 273—275; Abbott, 11th ed. (1867), pp. 606—610.

TABLE OF COLLISION REGULATIONS—continued.

Authority.	In Force.	Statement or Summary of Regulations.	Where Found.
Admiralty Notice respecting lights and fog signals, 24th February, 1858. (Made under the M. S. Act, 1854 (17 & 18 Vict. c. 104), s. 295. As to the Admiralty Regulation, 26th October, 1858, exempting fishing vessels from the above notice, see The Olivia (1862), Lush. 497).	1st October, 1858. (Till 1st June, 1863; see M. S. Act Amendment Act, 1862 (25 & 26 Vict. c. 63), s. 2, Schedule.)	Steam vessels. All sea-going steam vessels, when under steam, shall, between sunset and sunrise, exhibit [the same lights prescribed in practically the same words as in 1848 and 1852]. Steam vessels under sail only are not to carry their masthead lights. Fog signals. All sea-going steam vessels, whether propelled by paddles or screws, when their steam is up, and when under way, shall in all cases of fog use as a fog signal a steam whistle, placed before the funnel at not less than 8 feet from the deck, which shall be sounded once at least every five minutes; but when the steam is not up, they shall use a fog horn or bell, as ordered for sailing ships. Sailing vessels. All sea-going sailing vessels when under way, or being towed, shall, between sunset and sunrise, exhibit a green light on the starboard side and a red light on the port side etc. [in practically the same words as the Admiralty Regulations, 1848, for steam vessels]. The coloured lights shall be fixed when ever practicable. When the coloured lights cannot be fixed (as in the case of small vessels in bad weather), they shall be kept on deck between sunset and sunrise, and on their proper sides of the vessel, ready for instant exhibition, and shall be exhibited in such a manner as can be best seen on the approach of, or to, any other vessel or vessels, in sufficient time to avoid collision, and so that the green light shall not be seen on the port side, nor the red light on the starboard side. Fog signals. All sea-going sailing vessels, when under way, shall, in all cases of fog, use when on the starboard tack a fog horn, and when on the port tack shall ring a bell. These signals shall be sounded once at least every five minutes. Pilot vessels. Sailing pilot vessels are to carry only a white light at the masthead, and are to exhibit a flare-up light every fifteen minutes, in accordance with Trinity House Regulation. Vessels at anchor. All sea-going vessels when at anchor in roadsteads or fairways shall, between sunset and sunrise, exhibit where it can best be seen, but at a height not exceeding 20 feet above the hull, a white light in a globular	Sw. Appendix, p. vi.; Pritchard, 2nd ed. (1865), title Damage, pp. 150—151; and cases thereon, pp. 151—153; and as to fishing vessels, p. 199.

TABLE OF COLLISION REGULATIONS—continued.

Authority.	In Force.	Statement or Summary of Regulations	Where Found.
		lantern of 8 inches in diameter, and so constructed as to show a clear, uniform, and unbroken light all round the horizon, at a distance of at least 1 mile.
Regulations for Preventing Collisions at Sea (scheduled to Order in Council, 9th January, 1863; and made under M.S. Act Amendment Act, 1862 (25 & 26 Vict. c. 63), see ss. 25—28, 57, 58, 61).	1st June, 1863, as regards British ships, and in certain cases foreign ships (Orders in Council, 3rd January, 1863, and later). (Till 1st September, 1880, as regards British ships and in some cases foreign ships (except art 9, which continued in force till 1st September, 1884); see Orders in Council, 14th August, 1879, and 11th August, 1884, in Stat. R. & O. Rev., Merchant Shipping, Vol. VIII., pp. 246, 257.)	The Sea Regulations, 1863, arts. 1—20.	London Gazette, 13th January, 1863. Lush. Appendix, pp. 1 and lxxii; Brown. & Lush., p. 482. Pritchard, 2nd ed. (1865), p. ccxxviii; 3rd ed. (1886), p. 2522. And cases thereon, 2nd ed., title Damage; 3rd ed., title Collision, Parts IV.—VIII. Holt (ADM.), 1867, p. 7, and cases therein. Marsden, 1st ed. (1880), pp. 247 et seq.; 4th ed. (1897), pp. 416 et seq.
Order in Council, 30th July, 1868 (made under M.S. Act Amendment Act, 1862 (25 & 26 Vict. c. 63), as above).	30th July, 1868. (Till 1st September, 1880; see above.)	Additional Regulations, 1868 (as they may be called). Explaining arts. 11 and 13 of the Sea Regulations, 1863, which prescribed that sailing ships, meeting end on or nearly end on, should both port, and that ships under steam in the same case should do the like. The explanations are in practically the same terms as the explanatory paragraph in art. 18 of the Sea Regulations, 1910 (Stat. R. & O., 1910, p. 457).	London Gazette, 4th August, 1868. Maude and Pollock, 4th ed. (1881), Vol. II., p. 44.
The Sea Fisheries Act, 1868 (31 & 32 Vict. c. 45), ss. 6, 20, Sched. I., arts. XII., XIII. & XIV. of	1st February, 1869. (Till 15th May, 1884, as regards British subjects.) (This Act, and the articles of the Convention as en-	Sea Fisheries Act Regulations, 1868 (as they may be called). As to all sea-fishing boats within the exclusive fishery limits of the British Islands, and as to British sea fishing boats outside of these limits. Lights. Boats fishing with drift nets shall carry on one of their masts between sunset and sunrise	As regards this Act, see above under the Sea Fisheries Act, 1843 (6 & 7 Vict. c. 79), in this Table, and the authorities there referred to.

TABLE OF COLLISION REGULATIONS—continued.

Authority.	In Force.	Statement or Summary of Regulations.	Where Found.
the Convention.	acted therein, came into force on 1st February, 1869; but the Convention did not then and apparently has not yet come into force; see the Board of Trade Notices in London Gazette of 22nd January, and 9th February, 1869. Arts. XII., XIII. and XIV. and other parts of the Act were repealed by the Sea Fisheries Act, 1883 (46 & 47 Vict. c. 22), s. 30 (2); see especially s. 30 (2) (b), which came into force on 15th May, 1884; see Notice in London Gazette, 28th March, 1884).	during all the time their nets shall be in the sea :— Two lights one over the other, 3 feet apart. A boat obliged to anchor between sunset and sunrise on grounds where drift net fishing is going on shall hoist so that they shall be seen from a distance :— Two lights placed horizontally about 3 feet apart.
Regulations for Preventing Collisions at Sea (scheduled to Order in Council, 14th August, 1879; and made under M. S. Act Amendment Act, 1862 (25 & 26 Vict. c. 63), as above; compare M. S. Act, 1873 (36 & 37 Vict. c. 85), s. 17).	1st September, 1880, as regards British ships and in certain cases foreign ships (Order in Council, 14th August, 1879); except art. 10, which was suspended from time to time and never came into force (Order in Council, 11th August, 1884). (Till 1st September, 1884, as regards British ships; see Order in Council, 11th August, 1884.)	The Sea Regulations, 1880, arts. 1—26.	4 P. D. 241. Stat. R. & O. Rev., Vol. VIII., Merchant Shipping, pp. 246 et seq. Marsden, 2nd ed. (1885), p. 471. Pritchard, 3rd ed. (1886), p. 2519, and title Collision, Parts IV.—VIII.

TABLE OF COLLISION REGULATIONS—continued.

Authority.	In Force.	Statement or Summary of Regulations.	Where Found.
Regulations for Preventing Collisions at Sea (scheduled to Order in Council, 11th August, 1884; and made under M.S. Act Amendment Act, 1862 (25 & 26 Vict. c. 63), as above).	1st September, 1884, as regards British ships (Order in Council, 11th August, 1884); and afterwards as regards the ships of several foreign countries by later Orders in Council. (Till 1st July, 1897, as regards British ships (Order in Council, 27th November, 1896); except art. 10, which, with modifications, continued in force till 1st May, 1906, when it was annulled as regards British ships (Order in Council, 4th April, 1906).)	The Sea Regulations, 1884, arts. 1—27. Art. 10 of these Regulations as to open boats, fishing-vessels etc., was modified by the Fishing-Vessels Lights Regulations, 1885, and the Sailing Trawlers Lights Regulations 1885, and the Fishing-Vessels Fog Signals Regulations, 1905, below. Other articles of these Regulations were modified by the Steam Pilot Vessels Lights Regulations, 1892, and Vessels Side Lights Regulations, 1893.	9 P. D. 247. Stat. R. & O. Rev., Vol. VIII., Merchant Shipping, p. 257. Marsden, 3rd ed. (1891), and 4th ed. (1897). Pritchard, 3rd ed. (1886), Appendix, p. 2512, and Addendum, Collision, p. 2352, Parts IV.—VIII.
Order in Council, 30th December, 1884 (made under M.S. Act Amendment Act, 1862 (25 & 26 Vict. c. 63)).	1st January, 1885. (Till 1st May, 1906; see Orders in Council, 30th December, 1884, and 4th April, 1906.)	Fishing-Vessels Lights Regulations, 1885 (as they may be called). The Sea Regulations, 1884 (arts. 3, 6, and 10) shall be modified and added to as regards British fishing vessels and boats in the sea off the coast of Europe lying north of Cape Finisterre. Steam vessels of 20 tons gross register or upwards: sailing vessels of 20 tons net register or upwards:— Engaged in trawling but not having their trawls in the water, when under way between sunset and sunrise, shall show the lights required for steamships and sailing vessels respectively under the Sea Regulations, 1884, arts. 3 and 6. Engaged in trawling and having their trawls in the water, and not being stationary in consequence of their gear getting fast to a rock or other obstruction, shall between sunset and sunrise show the lights required above, or the following lights:— Steam vessels, two lanterns:— (1) On or in front of the foremast head and in the same position as a steamship's white light, a lantern so constructed etc.	Stat. R. & O. Rev., Vol. VIII., Merchant Shipping, p. 264.

TABLE OF COLLISION REGULATIONS—continued.

Authority.	In Force.	Statement or Summary of Regulations.	Where Found.
		as to show an uniform and unbroken white light over an arc of horizon of four points of the compass from right ahead to two points on either bow; and uniform and unbroken green and red lights over ten points of the compass from two points abaft the starboard and port bows to four points abaft the beam on the starboard and port sides. (2) A white light in a globular lantern of not less than 8 inches diameter so constructed as to show a clear, uniform and unbroken light all round the horizon. Sailing vessels, two lanterns :— (1) On or in front of the foremast head a lantern having a green light on the starboard, and a red light on the port side, so constructed etc. that the red and green do not converge and so as to show each of these lights over an arc of horizon of twelve points of the compass, from right ahead to four points abaft the beam on the starboard and port sides. (2) A white light in a globular lantern (the same as for steam vessels). The second lantern of steam and sailing vessels was required to be carried not less than 6 and not more than 12 feet vertically below the other lantern. The red and green lights in the first lantern were required to be visible not less than two miles on a dark night with a clear atmosphere.
Order in Council, 24th June, 1885 (made under M. S. Act Amendment Act, 1862 (25 & 26 Vict. c. 63)).	24th June, 1885. (Till 1st May, 1906; see Order in Council, 4th April, 1906.)	Sailing Trawlers Lights Regulations, 1885 (as they may be called). Further modifying and adding to the Sea Regulations, 1884 (arts. 6 and 10), as regards British sailing fishing vessels and boats of whatever tonnage when in the sea off the coast of Europe, north of Cape Finisterre. Sailing vessels, engaged in trawling and having their trawls in the water, and not being stationary in consequence of their gear getting fast to a rock or other obstruction, if they do not show the lights required by art. 6 of the Sea Regulations, 1884, or the lights required by the Fishing Vessels Lights Regulations, 1885, shall show :— (1) A white light in a globular lantern (the same as in the Fishing Vessels Lights Regulations, 1885). (2) Also a sufficient supply of red pyrotechnic lights, each burning for at least thirty seconds, and visible for the same distance under the same conditions as the white light.	Stat. R. & O. Rev., Vol. VIII., Merchant Shipping, p. 269.

TABLE OF COLLISION REGULATIONS—continued.

Authority.	In Force.	Statement or Summary of Regulations.	Where Found.
Order in Council, 18th August, 1892 (made under M. S. Act Amendment Act, 1862 (25 & 26 Vict. c. 63)).	18th August, 1892. (Till 13th October, 1910; see Orders in Council, 7th July, 1897, and 13th October, 1910.)	Steam Pilot Vessels Lights Regulations, 1892 (as they may be called). Further modifying the Sea Regulations, 1884, by adding to art. 9 the following provisions: A steam pilot vessel, exclusively employed for the service of pilots licensed or certified by any pilotage authority or the committee of any pilotage district in the United Kingdom, when engaged on her station on pilotage duty and in British waters and not at anchor etc. (in the same terms as the fourth paragraph of art. 8 of the Sea Regulations, 1910). When engaged on her station on pilotage duty and in British waters and at anchor etc. (in the same terms as the fifth paragraph of the said art. 8). When not engaged on her station on pilotage duty, she shall carry the same lights as other steam vessels.	Stat. R. & O. Rev., Vol. VIII., Merchant Shipping, p. 273.
Order in Council, 30th January, 1893 (made under M. S. Act Amendment Act, 1862 (25 & 26 Vict. c. 63)).	30th January, 1893. (Till 1st July, 1897, when Order in Council, 27th November, 1896, annulled the Sea Regulations, 1884, except art. 10.)	Vessels Side Lights Regulations, 1893 (as they may be called). Further modifying the Sea Regulations, 1884, and explaining arts. 3 and 15, by adding to art. 3 the following provisions:— (e) To ensure that the red and green side lights shall show an uniform light from right ahead of the ship to two points abaft the beam on the port and starboard sides respectively, and shall not show across the bow of the ship itself, the said lights must be fixed and the screens fitted so that the rays from the red and green lights shall cross the line of the ship's keel projected ahead of the ship at a reasonable distance ahead of the ship. With regard to all vessels whose lights are inspected by the officers of the Board of Trade, the red or green side light will not be deemed to be fixed and fitted in accordance with the regulations, unless it is so fixed and screened that a line drawn from the outside edge of the wick to the foremost end of the inboard screen of such light shall make an angle of four degrees, or as near thereto as may be practicable, with a line drawn parallel with the keel of the ship from the outside edge of the wick.	London Gazette, 3rd February, 1893
Regulations for Preventing Collisions at Sea (scheduled to Order in Council, 27th No-	1st July, 1897, as regards British ships (Order in Council, 27th November, 1896); and afterwards as regards the	The Sea Regulations, 1897, arts. 1—31.	[1896] P. 307. Stat. R. & O. Rev., Vol. VIII., Merchant Shipping p. 275. Marsden, 6th ed. (1910), and 5th ed. (1904). Stuart Moore's Rules

TABLE OF COLLISION REGULATIONS—continued.

Authority.	In Force.	Statement or Summary of Regulations.	Where Found.
vember, 1896; and made under M. S. Act, 1894 (57 & 58 Vict. c. 60), see ss. 418, 419, 424, 434, 741).	ships of most foreign countries by later Orders in Council; except art. 9, which did not come into force till 1st May, 1906 (Order in Council, 4th April, 1906). (Till 13th October, 1910, as regards British ships and the ships of such foreign countries; see Order in Council, 13th October, 1910.)		of the Road at Sea, 3rd ed. (1900).
Order in Council, 23rd October, 1905 (made under M. S. Act, 1894, ss. 418, etc.).	7th August, 1905 (Order in Council, 23rd October, 1905). (Till 1st May, 1906; see Order in Council, 4th April, 1906.)	Fishing Vessels Fog Signals Regulations, 1905 (as they may be called). Amending art. 10 of the Sea Regulations, 1884, by substituting the following provisions for paragraph (g) of that article. In fog, mist, falling snow or heavy rainstorms, drift-net vessels attached to their nets, and vessels when trawling, dredging or fishing with any kind of drag net, and vessels line-fishing with their lines out, shall, if of 20 tons gross tonnage or upwards, respectively:— At intervals of not more than one minute make a blast:— If steam vessels, with the whistle or syren, and if sailing vessels, with the foghorn, each blast to be followed by ringing the bell. Fishing vessels and boats of less than 20 tons gross tonnage shall not be obliged to give the above signals; but if they do not, they shall make some other efficient sound signal at intervals of not more than one minute.	Stat. R. & O., 1905, p. 211.
Order in Council, 4th April, 1906 (made under M.S.	1st May, 1906, as regards the British ships and boats mentioned in	Fishing-Vessels and Fishing-boats Regulations, 1906 (as they may be called). These Regulations were styled "Art. 9," and the article was to be read as if it had formed one of the Sea Regulations, 1897.	Stat. R. & O., 1906, p. 400.

TABLE OF COLLISION REGULATIONS—continued.

Authority.	In Force.	Statement or Summary of Regulations.	Where Found.
Act, 1894, see ss. 418, etc.).	the article (Order in Council, 4th April, 1906). (Till 13th October, 1910; see Order in Council, 13th October, 1910.)	This article is the same as art. 9 of the Sea Regulations, 1910.
Regulations for Preventing Collisions at Sea (scheduled to Order in Council, 13th October, 1910; and made under M.S. Act, 1894, see ss. 418, 419, 424, 434, 741.)	13th October, 1910.	The Sea Regulations, 1910, arts. 1—31.	Stat. R. & O., 1910, p. 457; and see pp. 374—499, ante.

SHIP'S PAPERS.

See SHIPPING AND NAVIGATION.

SHIPWRECK.

See ADMIRALTY; CRIMINAL LAW AND PROCEDURE; INSURANCE; SHIPPING AND NAVIGATION.

SHOEBLACKS.

See STREET AND AERIAL TRAFFIC.

SHOOTING.

See CRIMINAL LAW AND PROCEDURE; GAME; WATERS AND WATERCOURSES.

SHOP ASSISTANTS.

See FACTORIES AND SHOPS.

SHOP CLUBS.

See CLUBS.

SHORE.

See BOUNDARIES, FENCES, AND PARTY WALLS; CONSTITUTIONAL LAW; WATERS AND WATERCOURSES.

SHOWS.

See THEATRES AND OTHER PLACES OF ENTERTAINMENT.

SIDESMEN.

See ECCLESIASTICAL LAW.

SIDINGS.

See CARRIERS; RAILWAYS AND CANALS; RATES AND RATING.

SIGN MANUAL.

See Constitutional Law.

SIGNATURE.

See Contract; Deeds and Other Instruments; Guarantee; Sale of Goods; Wills.

SILVER.

See Constitutional Law.

SIMONY.

See Ecclesiastical Law.

SINKING FUND.

See Local Government; Revenue.

SITE VALUE.

See Revenue.

SITTING AND PEW RENTS.

See Ecclesiastical Law.

SITTINGS.

See Time.

SKIMMED MILK.

See Food and Drugs.

SKY SIGNS.

See Highways, Streets, and Bridges; Public Health and Local Administration.

SLANDER.

See CRIMINAL LAW AND PROCEDURE; LIBEL AND SLANDER.

SLANDER OF GOODS.

See TRADE AND TRADE UNIONS.

SLANDER OF TITLE.

See TORT.

SLANDER OF WOMEN.

See LIBEL AND SLANDER.

SLATE CLUBS.

See BANKRUPTCY AND INSOLVENCY; FRIENDLY SOCIETIES.

SLAUGHTER-HOUSES.

See ANIMALS; PUBLIC HEALTH AND LOCAL ADMINISTRATION.

SLAVE TRADE.

See ADMIRALTY; CRIMINAL LAW AND PROCEDURE; TRADE AND TRADE UNIONS.

SMALL DWELLINGS.

See SMALL HOLDINGS AND SMALL DWELLINGS.

SMALL HOLDINGS AND SMALL DWELLINGS.

PAGE

PART I. SMALL HOLDINGS - - - - - - - - - 670

SECT. 1. DEFINITION OF A SMALL HOLDING - - - - 670

SECT. 2. AUTHORITIES FOR THE PROVISION OF SMALL HOLDINGS 670

Sub-sect. 1. The Board of Agriculture and Fisheries - - 670
Sub-sect. 2. The Small Holdings Commissioners - - - 672
Sub-sect. 3. County Councils - - - - - - 673
Sub-sect. 4. Small Holdings and Allotments Committees - 676

SECT. 3. SCHEMES - - - - - - - - - - 677

Sub-sect. 1. Preparation - - - - - - - 677
Sub-sect. 2. Procedure - - - - - - - 677
Sub-sect. 3. Enforcement - - - - - - - 678

SECT. 4. ACQUISITION OF LAND FOR SMALL HOLDINGS - - 678

Sub-sect. 1. By Agreement - - - - - - 678
Sub-sect. 2. Compulsorily - - - - - - - 680

(i.) Purchase - - - - - - - - - 680
(ii.) Hiring - - - - - - - - - 682
(iii.) Provisions Relating to Compulsory Purchase and Compulsory Hiring - - - - - 684

SECT. 5. DEALINGS WITH LAND - - - - - - - 686

Sub-sect. 1. Adaptation for Small Holdings - - - 686
Sub-sect. 2. Sale - - - - - - - - - 687
Sub-sect. 3. Letting - - - - - - - - 690
Sub-sect. 4. Registration of Title - - - - - 691

SECT. 6. MISCELLANEOUS POWERS OF COUNTY COUNCILS - - 691

SECT. 7. FINANCE - - - - - - - - - - 693

PART II. SMALL DWELLINGS - - - - - - - - 695

SECT. 1. POWER OF LOCAL AUTHORITIES TO MAKE ADVANCES - 695

SECT. 2. REPAYMENT OF ADVANCES AND SECURITY THEREFOR - 696

SECT. 3. CONDITIONS IMPOSED WHILE ADVANCE IS OUTSTANDING 697

SECT. 4. REMEDIES FOR BREACH OF CONDITION - - - - 698

Sub-sect. 1. Possession - - - - - - - 698
Sub-sect. 2. Sale - - - - - - - - - 700

SECT. 5. FINANCE - - - - - - - - - - 700

Sub-sect. 1. In General - - - - - - - 700
Sub-sect. 2. In the Metropolis - - - - - - 702

For Agriculture - - - - See title AGRICULTURE.
Allotments - - - - ,, ALLOTMENTS.
Compulsory Purchase - - ,, COMPULSORY PURCHASE OF LAND AND COMPENSATION.

For Local Government - - - See title LOCAL GOVERNMENT.
Open Spaces - - - - ,, COMMONS AND RIGHTS OF COMMON; OPEN SPACES AND RECREATION GROUNDS.
Public Health - - - ,, PUBLIC HEALTH AND LOCAL ADMINISTRATION.
Water Supply to Small Houses ,, WATER SUPPLY.

Part I.—Small Holdings.

SECT. 1.

SECT. 1.—Definition of a Small Holding.

Definition of a Small Holding.

Definition.

1076. The expression "small holding" means an agricultural holding which exceeds one acre, and either does not exceed fifty acres, or, if exceeding fifty acres, is at the date of sale or letting of an annual value, for the purpose of income tax, not exceeding £50 (a).

SECT. 2.—Authorities for the Provision of Small Holdings.

SUB-SECT. 1.—The Board of Agriculture and Fisheries.

Powers and duties of the Board.

1077. The Board of Agriculture and Fisheries, hereinafter frequently referred to as the Board (b), may appoint two or more persons possessed of a knowledge of agriculture to act as Small Holdings Commissioners, hereinafter frequently referred to as the Commissioners, together with such other officers as it may, with the consent of the Treasury, determine (c), and must (1) ascertain, through inquiries made under their direction by the Commissioners, the demand in the various counties for small holdings, and the facilities for meeting it (d), and (2) regulate the proceedings of

(a) Small Holdings and Allotments Act, 1908 (8 Edw. 7, c. 36), s. 61 (1). This Act, which consolidates the law on the subject, repeals the Allotments Acts, 1887 (50 & 51 Vict. c. 48) and 1890 (53 & 54 Vict. c. 65), the Small Holdings Act, 1892 (55 & 56 Vict. c. 3) (except so far as it relates to Scotland), and the Small Holdings and Allotments Act, 1907 (7 Edw. 7, c. 54); besides the Local Government Act, 1894 (56 & 57 Vict. c. 73), s. 6 (3), (4), and the Land Transfer Act, 1897 (60 & 61 Vict. c. 65), s. 19 (see Small Holdings and Allotments Act, 1908 (8 Edw. 7, c. 36), s. 61, Sched. III.). For the provisions of these earlier Acts with respect to allotments, see title ALLOTMENTS, Vol. I., pp. 331 et seq. The Small Holdings and Allotments Act, 1908 (8 Edw. 7, c. 36), and the Small Holdings Act, 1910 (10 Edw. 7 & 1 Geo. 5, c. 34), as to which see p. 692, post, may be cited together as the Small Holdings and Allotments Acts, 1908 and 1910 (Small Holdings Act, 1910 (10 Edw. 7 & 1 Geo. 5, c. 34), s. 3). For the meaning of "agricultural holding," see title AGRICULTURE, Vol. I., p. 239; and for the method of assessing the annual value of land for income tax purposes, see title INCOME TAX, Vol. XVI., pp. 619 et seq. Small holdings are in certain cases exempt from undeveloped land duty; see Finance (1909-10) Act, 1910 (10 Edw. 7, c. 8), s. 18; title REVENUE, Vol. XXIV., p. 566.

(b) For the constitution of the Board, see titles AGRICULTURE, Vol. I., p. 297; CONSTITUTIONAL LAW, Vol. VII., p. 104. As to its jurisdiction as a judicial body, see title COURTS, Vol. IX., pp. 222, 223.

(c) Small Holdings and Allotments Act, 1908 (8 Edw. 7, c. 36), s. 2 (1). The appointment of the Commissioners was originally provided for by the now repealed Small Holdings and Allotments Act, 1907 (7 Edw. 7, c. 54), s. 1; see note (a), supra.

(d) Small Holdings and Allotments Act, 1908 (8 Edw. 7, c. 36), s. 3; and see p. 672, post.

SECT. 2. Authorities for the Provision of Small Holdings.

county councils, and, where these decline or neglect to act, of the Commissioners, with respect to the preparation and application of schemes for the provision of such holdings (e).

The Board must make an annual report to Parliament of its proceedings and those of the Commissioners, and also of the proceedings of the several councils under its control (f).

Powers in relation to Public Health Acts.

1078. For the purpose of local inquiries, notices of which must be given and published in accordance with the directions of the Board, the Board, and the Commissioners and their officers, have the same powers as are possessed by the Local Government Board and its inspectors under the Public Health Acts (g).

Exercise of powers.

1079. The Board may, to demonstrate the feasibility of establishing small holdings in any locality, exercise all the powers conferred on county councils with respect to the provision of such holdings (h), except such as relate to borrowing (i) and the compulsory acquisition of land (k); and its expenses in such cases may be defrayed out of, and its receipts be paid into, the Small Holdings Account (l). Where the Board thus exercises the powers of a county council, it may appoint such advisory and managing committees, and confer or impose on them such powers and duties, as it thinks fit; and may, with the consent of the Treasury, pay all reasonable travelling and out-of-pocket expenses of the members of such committees out of the Small Holdings Account (m).

Compensation.

1080. Subject to regulations to be approved by the Treasury, the Board may repay, or undertake to repay, out of the Small Holdings Account, any compensation paid by a county council to a tenant who has to quit land in consequence of its being required for small holdings, and any costs necessarily and reasonably incurred by the council in relation to a claim for such compensation (n); and the whole or any part of the expenses incurred by a council with respect to the acquisition and adaptation of land for small holdings, except (e) See, e.g., Small Holdings and Allotments Act, 1908 (8 Edw. 7, c. 36), ss. 4, 6; pp. 677, 678, post.

(f) Small Holdings and Allotments Act, 1908 (8 Edw. 7, c. 36), s. 59. As to reports by county councils to the Board, see p. 675, post.

(g) Small Holdings and Allotments Act, 1908 (8 Edw. 7, c. 36), s. 57 (1), (2). As to these powers, see Public Health Act, 1875 (38 & 39 Vict. c. 55), ss. 293—296; title PUBLIC HEALTH AND LOCAL ADMINISTRATION, Vol. XXIII., pp. 374 et seq. For a list of the Public Health Acts, see ibid., p. 361, note (a).

(h) Small Holdings and Allotments Act, 1908 (8 Edw. 7, c. 36), s. 20. For the powers of county councils, see p. 673, post.

(i) Small Holdings and Allotments Act, 1908 (8 Edw. 7, c. 36), ss. 52, 53; see pp. 693 et seq., post.

(k) Small Holdings and Allotments Act, 1908 (7 Edw. 7, c. 36), ss. 38—48; see pp. 680 et seq., post.

(l) Small Holdings and Allotments Act, 1908 (8 Edw. 7, c. 36), s. 20. The Small Holdings Account was opened with the Bank of England under the repealed Small Holdings and Allotments Act, 1907 (7 Edw. 7, c. 54), and provision was made for its continuance by the Small Holdings and Allotments Act, 1908 (8 Edw. 7, c. 36), s. 51 (1); see p. 693, post.

(m) Small Holdings and Allotments Act, 1908 (8 Edw. 7, c. 36), s. 22. As to the Small Holdings Account, see note (l), supra.

(n) Small Holdings Act, 1910 (10 Edw. 7 & 1 Geo. 5, c. 34), s. 1 (2). As to such compensation, see p. 692, post.

SECT. 2. Authorities for the Provision of Small Holdings.

any purchase-money, compensation, or rent payable in respect of such land (o).

Transfer of land to county councils.

1081. Any land acquired by the Commissioners is vested in the Board, which may, however, at any time transfer such land to the county council at whose expense it was acquired, and must do so on payment of all sums due from the council in connexion therewith, and on proof, to the satisfaction of the Board, that the council is willing to exercise and perform its duties with regard to it (p).

SUB-SECT. 2.—The Small Holdings Commissioners.

Duties of the Small Holdings Commissioners.

1082. The Small Holdings Commissioners are the officers of the Board, by whom they are appointed, and act entirely under its direction (q).

It is their duty, when required by the Board, to hold an inquiry in any specified county, and to report to the Board with regard to the extent to which there is a demand in it for small holdings and the practicability of satisfying it (r). They must for this purpose confer with county councils, who must supply them with such information and render them such assistance as they may reasonably require, and co-operate with such other authorities, associations, and persons as they think best qualified to assist them (s). When reporting the information acquired by them through their inquiry in any county, the Commissioners must state whether it is in their opinion desirable that a scheme for the provision of small holdings therein should be made, and indicate the nature of the proposals which they consider it desirable to embody in such scheme (t).

Powers of Commissioners to prepare scheme.

1083. In the event of the default within a prescribed time of a county council to prepare a draft scheme, the Commissioners may do so if directed by the Board (a). When directed by order of the (o) Small Holdings and Allotments Act, 1908 (8 Edw. 7, c. 36), s. 21. As this power of repayment extends to vendor's and lessor's costs payable by county councils, the Board by Circular Letters dated the 22nd September, 1909, 30th September, 1911, and 23rd September, 1913, made recommendations as to the manner in which accounts should be presented to them. As to the acquisition and adaptation of land, see pp. 678, 686, post; as to the payment of loss arising from the carrying out of a scheme, see p. 678, post.

(p) Small Holdings and Allotments Act, 1908 (8 Edw. 7, c. 36), s. 55.

(q) Ibid., ss. 2 (1), 3 (1), 4 (2), 57 (1). Anything required or authorised to be done by or to the Commissioners may be done by or to any of them, and any document purporting to be signed by a Commissioner may be received in evidence without proof of his appointment or handwriting (ibid., s. 56).

(r) Ibid., s. 3 (1). For the powers of the Commissioners for the purpose of inquiries, see p. 671, ante.

(s) Small Holdings and Allotments Act, 1908 (8 Edw. 7, c. 36), s. 3 (2), (3). Where the Commissioners in the course of their inquiry receive any information of the existence of a demand for allotments, they must communicate the information to the councils of the county, borough, urban district, or parish concerned (ibid., s. 3 (4)); as to allotments, see, generally, title ALLOTMENTS, Vol. I., pp. 331 et seq.

(t) Small Holdings and Allotments Act, 1908 (8 Edw. 7, c. 36), s. 3 (3).

(a) Ibid., s. 4 (2). As to schemes, see p. 677, post.

SECT. 2. Authorities for the Provision of Small Holdings.

Board, they may also carry into effect any approved scheme (b); and where they thus act in default of a county council, the Commissioners may appoint such advisory and managing committees, and confer or impose on them such powers and duties, as they think fit (c).

The expenses incurred by the Commissioners in the preparation or carrying out of a scheme in default of a county council are repayable by such defaulting county council, on demand, to the Board, out of the county fund, and are recoverable as a debt due to the Crown (d). Such sums as the Board certifies to have been received by the Commissioners in respect of any land acquired must be paid to the council (d).

Expenses of scheme.

1084. Where the Commissioners are acting in default of a county council in a case where a notice to treat for the compulsory acquisition of land is withdrawn, all compensation payable to any person in respect of his interest in such land must be paid out of the Small Holdings Account (e). When land has been hired compulsorily by the Commissioners acting in default of a county council (f), questions respecting the right of the landlord to resume possession of his land, and all questions referred to arbitration relating to orders authorising the compulsory acquisition of land by them, must be determined by an arbitrator (g) appointed by the Lord Chief Justice of England (h).

Arbitration.

SUB-SECT. 3.—County Councils.

1085. A county council, if of opinion that there is sufficient demand in its county to justify their provision (i), may provide small holdings for persons who desire to buy or lease and will themselves cultivate them (k), and may prepare and send to the Board of Agriculture and Fisheries one or more draft schemes for the purpose (l). A county council may also, however, be required

Power of county council to provide small holdings.

(b) Small Holdings and Allotments Act, 1908 (8 Edw. 7, c. 36), s. 6 (2); see p. 678, post.

(c) Small Holdings and Allotments Act, 1908 (8 Edw. 7, c. 36), s. 22. As to the powers of the Commissioners when enforcing a scheme in default of a council, see, further, p. 678, post.

(d) Small Holdings and Allotments Act, 1908 (8 Edw. 7, c. 36), ss. 4 (2), 6 (2).

(e) Ibid., s. 39 (8); and compare p. 671, ante. As to compulsory acquisition of land for small holdings, see p. 680, post; as to the Small Holdings Account, see p. 693, post.

(f) See p. 684, post.

(g) As to arbitration, see, further, p. 684, post.

(h) Small Holdings and Allotments Act, 1908 (8 Edw. 7, c. 36), ss. 46 (2), 58 (2).

(i) As to the repayment of a portion of the expenses incurred in ascertaining the demand, see Treasury Minutes of the 19th October, 1908, and 21st August, 1912, and the Circular Letters of the Board of Agriculture and Fisheries of the 20th November, 1908, 22nd September, 1900, and 21st October, 1912.

(k) Small Holdings and Allotments Act, 1908 (8 Edw. 7, c. 36), s. 1. By ibid., s. 7 (1), the land acquired by the council may be without as well as within its county. The term "person" includes both men and women (Interpretation Act, 1889 (52 & 53 Vict. c. 63), s. 1 (1)).

(l) Small Holdings and Allotments Act, 1908 (8 Edw. 7, c. 36), s. 4 (3).

SECT. 2. Authorities for the Provision of Small Holdings.

by the Board to provide small holdings, where the Board is satisfied, on consideration of a report of the Small Holdings Commissioners, that their provision is desirable and feasible (m).

Duty to furnish Commissioners with information.

1086. Where the Commissioners are directed by the Board to hold an inquiry with respect to the provision of small holdings in any county, the county council must furnish them with such information, and render them such assistance, as they may reasonably require, and may make representations to them respecting the land available and the demand for holdings (n).

On receiving the report of the Commissioners from the Board, the county council must prepare one or more draft schemes to give effect to it (o), and, after a scheme has been settled and confirmed by the Board, must carry it into effect within the prescribed time (p).

Power to acquire land for holdings.

1087. A county council may take on lease or purchase by agreement, or, if unable to do so, compulsorily, land either within or without its county for providing small holdings (q), and before selling or letting it may adapt such land for the purpose (r). It may either sell or let the holdings thus acquired (s), and must keep a list of those sold or let by it, and a map or plan showing the size, boundaries, and situation of such holdings (t).

Advances on sale of small holding.

1088. Where the tenant of a small holding has agreed with his landlord for its purchase, the council of the county in which it, or any part of it, is situate, if satisfied that the title is good (u), that the sale is made in good faith, and that the price is reasonable, may advance to the tenant an amount not exceeding four-fifths of the purchase-money, on the security of the holding (v).

Delegation of powers.

1089. A county council may delegate (a) to the council of any

(m) Small Holdings and Allotments Act, 1908 (8 Edw. 7, c. 36), ss. 1, 3—6.

(n) Ibid., s. 3 (2), (3). The Act contains no provision for enforcing this duty.

(o) Ibid., s. 4 (1).

(p) Ibid., s. 6 (1). As to the obligation of a council to carry out a scheme if no time limit is fixed, compare Bradley v. Greenwich Board of Works (1878), 3 Q. B. D. 384, 388; as to the liability of a council which makes default in preparing or carrying out a scheme, see p. 673, ante.

(q) Small Holdings and Allotments Act, 1908 (8 Edw. 7, c. 36), s. 7 (1), (2). Land acquired compulsorily may be used only for leasing (ibid., s. 7 (2)). As to compulsory acquisition of land, see p. 680, post.

(r) Small Holdings and Allotments Act, 1908 (8 Edw. 7, c. 36), s. 8 (1); and see p. 680, post.

(s) Small Holdings and Allotments Act, 1908 (8 Edw. 7, c. 36), s. 9 (1); and see ibid., s. 7 (2), note (q), supra; see, further, pp. 687 et seq., 690 et seq., post.

(t) Small Holdings and Allotments Act, 1908 (8 Edw. 7, c. 36), s. 14.

(u) On such a sale the council does not guarantee the title of the holding; otherwise the provisions of ibid., ss. 11, 12, apply to ibid., s. 19 (2); see p. 687, post.

(v) Small Holdings and Allotments Act, 1908 (8 Edw. 7, c. 36), s. 19 (1), (3).

(a) "Delegation, as the word is generally used, does not imply a parting with powers by the person who grants the delegation, but points rather to the conferring of an authority to do things which otherwise that perso borough or urban district in the county any of its powers for the acquisition, adaptation, and management of small holdings for the borough or district, and the borough or district council may undertake to pay the whole or any part of the loss, if any, incurred in connexion with such small holdings; and any sum so payable must be defrayed as part of the general expenses of the borough or district council in the execution of the Public Health Acts (b).

Co-operative societies.

1090. County councils may promote the formation or extension of and assist co-operative societies established for the provision of small holdings or allotments, whether in relation to the purchase of requisites, the sale of produce, credit banking, or insurance; and may also employ as their agents any society having as its object, or one of its objects, the promotion of co-operation in connexion with the cultivation of small holdings (c). For the purpose of assisting a co-operative society, a county council may, with the consent of and subject to regulations made by the Local Government Board, make grants or advances to, or guarantee advances made to, the society, upon such terms and conditions as to interest and repayment, and on such security, as the council thinks fit (d).

Reports by county councils.

1091. Every county council must, before such date in every year as the Board of Agriculture and Fisheries may determine, send a report of its proceedings during the preceding year to the Board (e).

Restriction on expenditure of councils.

1092. A county council may not take any proceedings relating to small holdings whereby the annual charge (f) for the time being on the county fund, including the annual payments in respect of loans raised for the purpose of small holdings, is likely to be raised above in any one year the amount produced by a rate of a penny in the pound (g). Where such charge at any time equals, or nearly equals, would have to do himself" (Huth v. Clarke (1890), 25 Q. B. D. 391, per WILLS, J., at p. 395).

(b) Small Holdings and Allotments Act, 1908 (8 Edw. 7, c. 36), s. 18; compare Public Health Act, 1875 (38 & 39 Vict. c. 55), ss. 207, 209, 210; and see title PUBLIC HEALTH AND LOCAL ADMINISTRATION, Vol. XXIII., p. 380. As to the duty of the council to appoint a small holdings and allotments committee, see p. 676, post.

(c) Small Holdings and Allotments Act, 1908 (8 Edw. 7, c. 36), s. 49 (1), (4). As to the power of letting to a co-operative society, see title INDUSTRIAL, PROVIDENT AND SIMILAR SOCIETIES, Vol. XVII., p. 7. As to the meaning of a "co-operative society," see ibid., p. 3.

(d) Small Holdings and Allotments Act, 1908 (8 Edw. 7, c. 36), s. 4 (2).

(e) Ibid., s. 59; see, further, p. 671, ante. For form of report, see Board's Circular Letters of the 20th February, 1909, and 13th December, 1913.

(f) "Charge" means the net charge on the county fund calculated in accordance with regulations made by the Local Government Board, after taking into account all receipts from or on account of small holdings or otherwise under the provisions of the Act relating to small holdings (Small Holdings and Allotments Act, 1908 (8 Edw. 7, c. 36), s. 17 (2)). As to finance, see, further, p. 693, post.

(g) As to the assessment of the rate, see title RATES AND RATING, Vol. XXIV., pp. 69 et seq.

SECT. 2. Authorities for the Provision of Small Holdings.

that amount, no further land may be purchased for small holdings until the charge has been decreased so as to admit of the further purchase without the charge exceeding such amount (h).

SUB-SECT. 4.—Small Holdings and Allotments Committees.

Constitution.

1093. It is the duty of every county council to establish a small holdings and allotments committee, which must consist either wholly or partly of members of the council, who must constitute a majority thereof (i).

All matters relating to the exercise and performance by the council of its powers and duties with respect to small holdings, except the power of raising a rate or borrowing money, must be referred to the committee, and the council, before exercising any such powers must, unless the matter is in its opinion urgent, receive and consider the report of the committee with respect to the matter in question. The council may also delegate (j) to the committee, with or without restrictions or conditions, any of its powers with regard to small holdings, except the power of raising a rate or borrowing money (k).

Delegation of powers to sub-committees.

1094. A small holdings and allotments committee may delegate any of its powers to sub-committees consisting either wholly or partly of members of the committee. In appointing any such sub-committee to which is committed the powers of management of small holdings the small holdings and allotments committee must consider the advisability of including amongst its members members of the council of the borough, urban district, or parish, in which the holdings are situate and for which they are provided, and other persons acquainted with the needs and circumstances of the area for which the sub-committee act (l).

Accounts.

1095. The accounts of any receipts or payments of money with respect to small holdings entrusted by the county council to the small holdings and allotments committee, or any of its sub-committees, are accounts of the county council, and must be made up and audited accordingly (m).

(h) Small Holdings and Allotments Act, 1908 (8 Edw. 7, c. 36), s. 17 (1).
(i) Ibid., s. 50 (1).
(j) As to the meaning of "delegate," see note (a), p. 674, ante.
(k) Small Holdings and Allotments Act, 1908 (8 Edw. 7, c. 36), s. 50 (1).
(l) Ibid., s. 50 (2).
(m) Ibid., s. 50 (3). These provisions apply to the council of a county borough in like manner as to a county council so far as the section relates to small holdings, but not so far as it relates to allotments. The council of a county borough may, however, appoint its small holdings committee, if duly qualified, to be allotment managers under ibid., Part II. (ibid., s. 50 (4)). As to the duties of this committee in connexion with allotments, see title ALLOTMENTS, Vol. I., p. 342: the Small Holdings and Allotments Act, 1908 (8 Edw. 7, c. 36), s. 50 (1)—(3), correspond to the repealed Small Holdings and Allotments Act, 1907 (7 Edw. 7, c. 54), s. 36 (1)—(3). As to the auditing of the accounts of county councils, see title LOCAL GOVERNMENT, Vol. XIX., pp. 363, 364.

SECT. 3.—Schemes.

SUB-SECT. 1.—Preparation.

Preparation of scheme by county council.

1096. Where, after considering the report of the Small Holdings Commissioners (n), the Board of Agriculture and Fisheries considers it desirable that a scheme should be made, it must forward the report, with such modifications and reservations as it thinks desirable, to the county council, and thereupon it is the duty of the council to prepare one or more schemes to give effect thereto. In preparing the drafts the council must have regard to any proposals of the Commissioners indicated in their report (o). If the county council declines to undertake this duty or fails to prepare within six months, or within such extended time as is permitted by the Board, one or more draft schemes, the Board may direct the Commissioners to prepare a scheme (p).

A county council may, however, without receiving any such report as aforesaid from the Board, itself prepare and send to the Board one or more draft schemes for providing small holdings for its county.

Contents of scheme

1097. A draft scheme may specify—(1) the localities in which land is to be acquired for small holdings; (2) the approximate quantity of land to be acquired, and the number, nature, and size of the small holdings to be provided in each locality; (3) whether, and to what extent, grazing and other similar rights, to be defined in the scheme, should be attached to the small holdings, and, if so, the approximate quantity of land, or extent and nature of the rights, to be acquired for the purpose; and (4) the time within which the scheme, or any part thereof, is to be carried into effect. The scheme may also contain such incidental, consequential, or supplementary provisions, including provisions for the subsequent variation of the scheme, as may be necessary (q).

Commissioners' report.

1098. Where the Commissioners report, or the county councils concerned are of opinion, that a scheme should be made affecting two or more counties, the scheme may be prepared by the councils jointly, and may provide for joint action being taken by them (r).

SUB-SECT. 2.—Procedure.

Publication of draft scheme.

1099. A copy of any draft scheme prepared by a county council must be sent to the Board, and if prepared by the Commissioners must also be sent to any county council concerned, and must be published and advertised, with any modifications proposed to be made by the Board, in such manner as the Board thinks best

(n) See p. 672, ante.

(o) Small Holdings and Allotments Act, 1908 (8 Edw. 7, c. 36), s. 4 (1), The wording of the Act is " shall have regard " ; compare as to this Julius v. Oxford (Lord Bishop) (1880), 5 App. Cas. 214; and see title STATUTES, Vol. XXVII., p. 170.

(p) Small Holdings and Allotments Act, 1908 (8 Edw. 7, c. 36), s. 4 (2); see p. 672, ante.

(q) Small Holdings and Allotments Act, 1908 (8 Edw. 7, c. 36), s. 4 (3), (4).

(r) Ibid., s. 4 (5).

SECT. 3. Schemes.

adapted for informing the persons affected and for ensuring publicity; notice must be given of the time within and the manner in which objections are to be sent to the Board (s).

Public local inquiry.

1100. After consideration of the draft scheme and any objections duly made thereto, the Board may in any case, and must, if the county council objects to the scheme, or, where the scheme was made by a council, to any modifications therein proposed by the Board, hold a public local inquiry, at which the county council, and such other persons as the person holding the inquiry may allow, may appear and be heard (t).

The Board may then, after considering the report of the person by whom any inquiry is held, settle and confirm the scheme, either with or without modifications, or may annul it (u).

SUB-SECT. 3.—Enforcement.

Duty of county council to carry scheme into effect.

1101. A county council must carry into effect the obligations imposed on it by a scheme within the time specified therein, or such further time as may be allowed by the Board, and may for that purpose exercise any of its statutory powers relating to small holdings (a). On default by a county council the Board must, by order, direct the Commissioners to take such steps as are necessary for carrying the scheme into effect, and for that purpose the Commissioners will have all the powers of a county council from the time that such order is made (b).

An order made by the Board directing the Commissioners to carry a scheme into effect must be laid before both Houses of Parliament as soon as may be after it is made (c).

Board may pay loss resulting from schemes in certain cases.

1102. If it appears to the Board that the carrying out of a scheme has resulted, or is likely to result, in a loss, it may, with the consent of the Treasury, pay or undertake to pay the whole or any part of such loss out of the Small Holdings Account (d).

SECT. 4.—Acquisition of Land for Small Holdings.

SUB-SECT. 1.—By Agreement.

Purchase of land by agreement.

1103. The purchase of land (e) by agreement for the provision of (s) Small Holdings and Allotments Act, 1908 (8 Edw. 7, c. 36), s. 5 (1).

(t) Ibid., s. 5 (2).
(u) Ibid., s. 5 (3).
(a) Ibid., s. 6 (1).
(b) Ibid., s. 6 (2). As to the payment of the Commissioners' expenses, see p. 673, ante; as to the powers of the Commissioners when acting in default of a council, see, further, p. 672, ante.
(c) Small Holdings and Allotments Act, 1908 (8 Edw. 7, c. 36), s. 6 (3).
(d) Ibid., s. 6 (4). As to the Small Holdings Account, see note (l), p. 671, ante.
(e) "Land" includes "any right or easement in or over land" (Small Holdings and Allotments Act, 1908 (8 Edw. 7, c. 36), s. 61 (2)). Under its power of acquiring land a council may acquire land for the purpose of attaching to small holdings rights of grazing and other similar rights, and may acquire for that purpose stints and other alienable common rights of grazing. Any rights created or acquired by the council are attached to the small holdings in such manner and subject to such small holdings by a county council is governed by statute (f); land may be acquired from the Duchy of Lancaster for the purpose of small holdings in the same manner as by a local sanitary authority for its purposes (g).

Powers of limited owners to lease.

1104. Any person having power to lease land for agricultural purposes for a limited term, whether subject to any conditions or not, may, subject to the like consent and conditions, if any, lease land to a council for the purpose of small holdings for a term not exceeding thirty-five years, either with or without the right of renewal for not less than fourteen nor more than thirty-five years, at such rent as, in default of agreement, may be determined by a valuer appointed by the Board, but otherwise on the same terms and conditions as the original lease. The term of renewal must be specified in a notice to be delivered to the landlord not more than two years or less than one year before the expiration of the tenancy; and if on such notice being given the landlord proves to the satisfaction of the Board that any land included in a tenancy is required for the amenity or convenience of any dwelling-house, such land must be excluded from the renewed tenancy (h).

Powers of leasing particular lands.

Similar powers of leasing may be exercised, in the case of— (1) Crown lands, by the Commissioners of Woods and Forests (i); (2) land forming part of the Duchy of Lancaster, by the Chancellor and Council by deed under the seal of the Duchy, in the name of His Majesty, his heirs and successors (k); (3) land forming part of the Duchy of Cornwall, by the Duke of Cornwall or other persons empowered to dispose of such land (l); and (4) glebe or other land belonging to an ecclesiastical benefice (m) by the incumbent, with the consent of, and upon such terms and conditions and in such manner as may be approved by, the Ecclesiastical Commissioners (n).

Powers of tenant for life under Settled Lands Acts.

1105. Where a person having the powers of a tenant for life within the meaning of the Settled Lands Acts (o), sells, exchanges, or leases any settled land to a county council for the purposes of small holdings, the consideration for the sale, exchange, or lease regulations as the council deems expedient; and where any right of grazing, sheepwalk, or other similar right is attached to land acquired by a county council, the council may in like manner attach any share of such right to any small holding (Small Holdings and Allotments Act, 1908 (8 Edw. 7, c. 36), s. 42). As to the purchase of land generally, see title SALE OF LAND, Vol. XXV., pp. 289 et seq.

(f) See title COMPULSORY PURCHASE OF LAND AND COMPENSATION, Vol. VI., pp. 168 et seq.

(g) Small Holdings and Allotments Act, 1908 (8 Edw. 7, c. 36), s. 38; Public Health Act, 1875 (38 & 39 Vict. c. 18), s. 178; see title CONSTITUTIONAL LAW, Vol. VII., p. 221; see also ibid., pp. 234, note (o), 235, note (a), 254, note (b).

(h) Small Holdings and Allotments Act, 1908 (8 Edw. 7, c. 36), ss. 40, 44 (1); see also title LANDLORD AND TENANT, Vol. XVIII., pp. 358 et seq.

(i) See also title CONSTITUTIONAL LAW, Vol. VII., pp. 191, 192.

(k) See ibid., p. 234.

(l) See ibid., pp. 253, 254.

(m) Compare the Glebe Lands Act, 1888 (51 & 52 Vict. c. 20); and see title ECCLESIASTICAL LAW, Vol. XI., pp. 760 et seq.

(n) Small Holdings and Allotments Act, 1908 (8 Edw. 7, c. 36), s. 40 (2), (3).

(o) See title SETTLEMENTS, Vol. XXV., p. 624.

SECT. 4. Acquisition of Land for Small Holdings.

must be the best that can reasonably be obtained (p); and the land may be granted in perpetuity at a fee farm or other rent secured by condition of re-entry or otherwise (q).

Compensation payable to county councils.

1106. A county council which has hired land by agreement for small holdings is entitled to be paid compensation, subject to any agreement to the contrary, at the determination of the tenancy on quitting the land in respect of the same improvements and in the same manner as tenants of market gardens and agricultural holdings (r).

SUB-SECT. 2.—Compulsorily.

(i.) Purchase.

Purchase of land under compulsory powers.

1107. Where a council proposes to purchase land (s) compulsorily (t) it may submit to the Board of Agriculture and Fisheries an order putting in force the provisions of the Lands Clauses Acts (u) as respects the land specified therein (x).

The order.

The order must be in such form (y), and contain such provisions for carrying it into effect, and for protecting the council and the persons interested in the land, as the Board may prescribe (a), and must, subject to the necessary adaptations, incorporate certain statutory provisions as to compulsory acquisition of land (b), but

(p) Compare Agricultural Holdings Act, 1908 (8 Edw. 7, c. 28), s. 36; Housing of the Working Classes Act, 1890 (53 & 54 Vict. c. 70), s. 74.

(q) Small Holdings and Allotments Act, 1908 (8 Edw. 7, c. 36), s. 40 (4), (5); see title SETTLEMENTS, Vol. XXV., pp. 653 et seq.

(r) See Small Holdings and Allotments Act, 1908 (8 Edw. 7, c. 36), s. 47 (2), Sched. II., Parts I., II.; and title AGRICULTURE, Vol. I., pp. 260, note (c), 269, 270. To the improvements there enumerated drainage must be added.

(s) See note (e), p. 678, ante.

(t) Land can only be acquired compulsorily if the county council is unable to acquire by agreement, and on reasonable terms, suitable land for the purpose of providing small holdings for persons who desire to have small holdings (Small Holdings and Allotments Act, 1908 (8 Edw. 7, c. 36), s. 7 (2). As to compulsory purchase generally, see title COMPULSORY PURCHASE OF LAND AND COMPENSATION, Vol. VI., pp. 5, 10, note (n), 50, note (l), 168 et seq. For the powers of councils, including parish councils, to acquire land for allotments and common pasture, see title ALLOTMENTS, Vol. I., pp. 341 et seq.; and see also Small Holdings and Allotments Act, 1908 (8 Edw. 7, c. 36), s. 39 (7).

(u) See title COMPULSORY PURCHASE OF LAND AND COMPENSATION, Vol. VI., pp. 12 et seq.

(x) Small Holdings and Allotments Act, 1908 (8 Edw. 7, c. 36), s. 39, Sched. I., Part I. (1).

(y) See the Small Holdings and Allotments (Compulsory Purchase) Regulations, 1908; Small Holdings and Allotments (Compulsory Purchase) Regulation, 1908 (No. 2) (Stat. R. & O., 1908, Allotments, England, pp. 27, 30).

(a) Small Holdings and Allotments Act, 1908 (8 Edw. 7, c. 36), s. 39, Sched. I., Part I. (1).

(b) I.e., the Lands Clauses Acts (see title COMPULSORY PURCHASE OF LAND AND COMPENSATION, Vol. VI., pp. 12 et seq.; and, see, generally ibid., pp. 1 et seq.) and the Railways Clauses Consolidation Act, 1845 (8 & 9 Vict. c. 20), ss. 77—85 (see title COMPULSORY PURCHASE OF LAND AND COMPENSATION, Vol. VI., pp. 50 et seq.; RAILWAYS AND CANALS, Vol. XXIII., pp. 685, 686). In construing any enactment incorporated with the order the Small Holdings and Allotments Act, 1908 (8 Edw. 7, c. 36), is deemed to be the special Act and the council the promoters of the undertaking subject to the modification that any dispute with respect to compensation will be determined by a single arbitrator appointed by the Board, who will be deemed to be an arbitrator within the meaning of the Lands Clauses Acts (c), the provisions of which respecting arbitration will apply accordingly (d).

Publication and confirmation of order.

1108. The council must publish the order in such manner and give such notice, both in the locality in which the land proposed to be acquired is situated, and also to owners (e), lessees, and occupiers of such land, as the Board may prescribe (f).

If no objection is presented to the council by a person interested in the land within the prescribed period, or if every such objection is withdrawn, the Board must confirm the order without further inquiry. If, however, an objection is presented and is not withdrawn, the Board must forthwith cause to be held, in the locality in which the land is proposed to be acquired, a public inquiry, at which the council and all persons interested in the land, and such other persons as the person holding the inquiry thinks fit to allow, may appear and be heard, and, before confirming the order, the Board must consider the report of the person holding the inquiry and all objections made thereat (g).

Duties of arbitrator as to compensation.

1109. The arbitrator must, so far as is practicable, act on his own knowledge and experience in assessing compensation (h). Persons authorised to appear must be heard, by themselves or their agents, and witnesses must be heard; but counsel or expert witnesses are not to be heard without the express direction of the Board (i). The Board may, with the concurrence of the Lord Chancellor, make rules for fixing a scale of costs to apply to an arbitration, and the arbitrator may, notwithstanding anything in the Lands Clauses Acts (j), determine the amount of costs, and may also (ibid., Part I. (7)); see title COMPULSORY PURCHASE OF LAND AND COMPENSATION, Vol. VI., pp. 49 et seq.

(c) See note (b), p. 680, ante.

(d) Small Holdings and Allotments Act, 1908 (8 Edw. 7, c. 36), Sched. I., Part I. (1).

(e) See title COMPULSORY PURCHASE OF LAND AND COMPENSATION, Vol. VI., p. 15; the expression "owners" includes legal and equitable mortgagees; see Martin v. London, Chatham and Dover Rail. Co. (1866), 1 Ch. App. 501. Compare the definition of "landlord" in the Small Holdings and Allotments Act, 1908 (8 Edw. 7, c. 36), s. 61 (1), as being the person entitled to receive the rent of the land (compulsorily hired from him) from the council.

(f) Ibid., Sched. I., Part I. (2).

(g) Ibid., Sched. I., Part I. (3), (4). The Board may confirm any order for the compulsory purchase or the compulsory hiring of land either with or without modification. An order is of no effect until confirmed, but on confirmation it is final, and the confirmation is conclusive evidence that the order was duly made (Small Holdings and Allotments Act, 1908 (8 Edw. 7, c. 36), s. 39 (3)). The effect of this provision is that an order for the compulsory acquisition of land has, after confirmation, the effect of an Act of Parliament, and certiorari will therefore not be granted to bring up and quash such an order (Ex parte Ringer (1909), 73 J. P. 436).

(h) See, further, p. 685, post.

(i) Small Holdings and Allotments Act, 1908 (8 Edw. 7, c. 36), Sched. I., Part I. (5). As to the duty of the arbitrator, see Carlisle's (Earl) Executrix v. Northumberland County Council (1911), 75 J. P. 539.

(j) See Lands Clauses Act, 1845 (8 & 9 Vict. c. 18), s. 34; title

SECT. 4. Acquisition of Land for Small Holdings.

disallow as costs in the arbitration the costs of any unnecessary witness and any other costs unnecessarily caused or incurred (k).

Glebe land.

1110. Where the land is glebe or other land belonging to an ecclesiastical benefice, the order must provide that sums agreed upon or awarded for the purchase of land, or to be paid by way of compensation for the damage to be sustained by the owner by reason of severance or other injury affecting the land, must not be paid as directed by the Lands Clauses Acts, but shall be paid to the Ecclesiastical Commissioners, to be applied as money paid to them upon a sale under the Ecclesiastical Leasing Acts (l) of land belonging to a benefice (m).

(ii.) Hiring.

Hiring of land under compulsory powers.

1111. A county council may submit to the Board an order for the compulsory hiring of the land (n) specified therein for a period not less than fourteen (o) nor more than thirty-five years (o), and the provisions with respect to an order for compulsory purchase, as above stated, will, with certain modifications (p), apply to such order as if the term "hiring" were substituted for the term "purchase" (o).

The order.

The order must incorporate only such of the statutory provisions relating to compulsory acquisition of land incorporated in orders for compulsory purchase (q) as may, subject to the prescribed adaptations, appear to the Board necessary or expedient for the purpose (r).

Necessary terms:

The terms and conditions of the hiring, other than the rent, must be determined in the order, and must in particular provide:—

cultivation;

(1) For the insertion in the lease of covenants by the council to cultivate the land in a proper manner (s), and to pay to the landlord at the determination of the tenancy on the council quitting the lands compensation for any depreciation thereof through any failure by the council, or any person deriving title under it, to observe such covenants, or by reason of any user thereof by it or any such person, and, unless otherwise agreed, to keep the buildings and premises demised in repair.

pasture;

(2) That no pasture shall be broken up unless the Board is satisfied that it can be broken up without depreciating the value of the land, or that the circumstances are such that small holdings cannot otherwise be successfully cultivated; and

COMPULSORY PURCHASE OF LAND AND COMPENSATION, Vol. VI., pp. 83, 84. As to the Lands Clauses Acts, see ibid., p. 12.

(k) Small Holdings and Allotments Act, 1908 (8 Edw. 7, c. 36), Sched. I., Part I. (6).

(l) See title ECCLESIASTICAL LAW, Vol. XI., pp. 760 et seq.

(m) Small Holdings and Allotments Act, 1908 (8 Edw. 7, c. 36), Sched. I., Part I. (8); compare ibid., s. 48, as to glebe land hired by a council; and see p. 679, ante.

(n) See note (e), p. 678, ante.

(o) Small Holdings and Allotments Act, 1908 (8 Edw. 7, c. 36), s. 39 (2); see Small Holdings and Allotments (Compulsory Hiring) Regulations, 1908 (Stat. R. & O., 1908, p. 17).

(p) See the text infra.

(q) See note (b), p. 680, ante.

(r) Small Holdings and Allotments Act, 1908 (8 Edw. 7, c. 36), Sched. I., Part II. (1). For form of order and notice of order for compulsory hiring, see Encyclopædia of Forms and Precedents, Vol. XVI., pp. 71 et seq.

(s) As to the effect of such covenants, see Agricultural Holdings Act, 1908 (8 Edw. 7, c. 28), s. 26; title AGRICULTURE, Vol. I., pp. 243, 250.

(3) That, without the consent of the landlord, no right shall be conferred on the council to fell or cut timber or trees, or to take, sell or carry away any minerals, gravel, sand, or clay, except so far as may be necessary or convenient for the erection of buildings on the land or otherwise adapting it for small holdings, and except upon payment of compensation for minerals, gravel, sand, or clay so used (t). timber and minerals.

1112. In default of agreement the Board must appoint a single valuer to determine by valuation the amount of the rent to be paid by the council for the land compulsorily hired (u), the amount of any other compensation to be paid by the council to any person entitled thereto in respect of the land or any interest therein, or in respect of improvements executed on the land or otherwise, and, where part only of a holding held for an unexpired term is hired, the rent to be paid during the remainder of that term (x). Rent.

The valuer may require assistance, information, and explanation from any person interested in any valuation, and the production of or access to all such books, accounts, vouchers, and other documents relating to the land to be compulsorily hired as he may reasonably require for the purposes of valuation, and such expenses as are certified by him to have been properly incurred in furnishing such assistance, information, and explanations, or otherwise, in relation to the valuation, will be paid by the council (y). Method of valuation.

In default of agreement, any questions as to the amount due by the council for depreciation on the determination of the tenancy must be determined by arbitration (z).

(t) Small Holdings and Allotments Act, 1908 (8 Edw. 7, c. 36), Sched. I., Part II. (2).

(u) In fixing the rent the valuer must take into consideration any rent at which the land has been let; the annual value at which it is assessed for purposes of income tax or rating; any loss caused to the owner by severance; the terms and conditions of the hiring, including the reservation of sporting or fishing rights; and all other circumstances connected with the land. He must not, however, make an allowance in respect of any use to which the land might otherwise be put by the owner during the term of hiring, being a use in respect of which the owner is entitled to resume possession of the land (ibid., Sched. I., Part II. (4)). For the "uses" referred to, see ibid., s. 46 (1); and p. 684, post.

(x) Small Holdings and Allotments Act, 1908 (8 Edw. 7, c. 36), Sched. II., Part II. (3). Any compensation awarded to a tenant in respect of any depreciation of the value to him of the residue of his holding caused by the withdrawal from the holding of the hired land must, as far as possible, be provided for by taking such compensation into account in fixing the rent to be paid for the residue of the holding during the remainder of the term for which it is held by the tenant (ibid., Sched. I., Part II. (3)). Where the land hired is in the occupation of a tenant he may, by notice in writing served on the council before the determination of his tenancy, require that any claim by him against the council which, under the Agricultural Holdings Act, 1908 (8 Edw. 7, c. 28), might be referred to arbitration thereunder, shall be so referred, and in such case those claims shall be determined by arbitration under that Act, and not by arbitration under the Small Holdings and Allotments Act, 1908 (8 Edw. 7, c. 36); see title AGRICULTURE, Vol. I., pp. 258 et seq.

(y) Small Holdings and Allotments Act, 1908 (8 Edw. 7, c. 36), Sched. I., Part II. (6).

(z) Ibid., s. 58 (1), Sched. I., Part II. (7). Unless otherwise expressly provided, all questions which are referred to arbitration under the Act

SECT. 4. Acquisition of Land for Small Holdings.

1113. The regulations with respect to the renewal of leases of land hired by agreement by a county council for the provision of small holdings apply also to leases of lands compulsorily hired by the council for that purpose (a).

Renewal of leases of land compulsorily hired.

1114. Where the land authorised to be compulsorily hired by an order is subject to a mortgage, any lease made in pursuance of the order by the mortgagor or mortgagee in possession has the like effect as if it were a lease authorised by the Conveyancing and Law of Property Act, 1881 (b), s. 18 (c).

Lands subject to mortgage.

Power of landlord to resume possession of land compulsorily hired.

1115. Where land, or any part thereof, which has been hired compulsorily by a council is at any time during the tenancy shown to the satisfaction of the Board of Agriculture and Fisheries to be required by the landlord for building, mining, or other industrial purposes, or for roads (d) necessary therefor, the landlord may resume possession of such land or part thereof upon giving twelve months' previous notice in writing to the council of his intention to do so. If a part only of the land is resumed, the rent payable by the council must, as from the date of resumption, be reduced by such sum as, in default of agreement, may be determined by valuation by a valuer appointed by the Board (e).

Compensation for improvements on land compulsorily hired.

1116. In the case of land hired compulsorily compensation will be payable in respect of the same improvements as in the case of land hired by agreement (f), but the amount of the compensation payable to the council will be such sum as fairly represents the increase, if any, in the value to the landlord and his successors in title of the holding due to those improvements (g).

(iii.) Provisions Relating to Compulsory Purchase and Compulsory Hiring.

Restrictions as to price for acquisition of land.

1117. A county council may not acquire land for small holdings save at such price or rent that, in the opinion of the council, all expenses incurred in relation thereto will be recouped out of the purchase-money for the land sold by it, or, in the case of land let, out of the rent; and the council must fix the purchase-money or rent at such reasonable amount as will, in its opinion, guard it against loss (h). Any expenses incurred in the enfranchisement of any land acquired, or in the purchase or redemption of land tax, or must be determined by a single arbitrator in accordance with the Agricultural Holdings Act, 1908 (8 Edw. 7, c. 28) (Small Holdings and Allotments Act, 1908 (8 Edw. 7, c. 36), s. 58 (1)).

(a) See ibid., s. 45 (6), and p. 679, ante.

(b) 44 & 45 Vict. c. 41.

(c) Small Holdings and Allotments Act, 1908 (8 Edw. 7, c. 36), s. 39 (6); see titles LANDLORD AND TENANT, Vol. XVIII., pp. 356 et seq.; MORTGAGE, Vol. XXI., pp. 163 et seq.

(d) As to road making, see Agricultural Holdings Act, 1908 (8 Edw. 7, c. 28), s. 23 (viii.).

(e) Small Holdings and Allotments Act, 1908 (8 Edw. 7, c. 36), s. 46 (1); as to hiring compulsorily by the Commissioners acting in default of a county council, see p. 673, ante.

(f) See p. 680, ante.

(g) Small Holdings and Allotments Act, 1908 (8 Edw. 7, c. 36), s. 47 (2).

(h) Ibid., s. 7 (3).

any quit-rent, chief rent, tithe or other rentcharge, or other perpetual sum issuing out of the land so acquired, are deemed to have been incurred in the purchase of the land (i).

In determining the amount of any disputed compensation (k) under an order for the compulsory acquisition of land no additional allowance is to be made on account of the purchase or hiring being compulsory (l).

Compensation where notice to treat withdrawn.

1118. If after the determination of the amount of compensation to be paid to any person in respect of his interest in the land to be compulsorily acquired, including, in the case of land hired compulsorily, the rent, it appears to the council that the land cannot be let for small holdings at such a rent as will secure the council from loss, it may, at any time within six weeks after such determination, withdraw by notice in writing any notice to treat served on such person, or on any other person interested in the land. In such case any person on whom such notice of withdrawal has been served must be compensated by the council for any loss or expenses sustained or incurred by reason or in consequence of the notice to treat and of the notice of withdrawal. The amount of such compensation must, in default of agreement, be determined by arbitration (m), and, where the notice of withdrawal is given by the Small Holdings Commissioners acting in default of the council (n), is to be paid out of the Small Holdings Account (o).

Land exempt from compulsory acquisition.

1119. No holding of fifty acres or less in extent, nor any part thereof, may be authorised by an order to be acquired compulsorily (p), nor land which at the date of the order forms part of the home farm attached to and usually occupied with a mansion-house, or is otherwise required for the amenity or convenience of any dwelling-house; or which is the property of any local authority or has been acquired by any corporation or company for the purposes of a railway, dock, canal, water or other public undertaking; or which is the site of an ancient monument or other object of archæological interest (q).

Considerations affecting compulsory acquisition of land.

1120. A council in making, and the Board in confirming, an order for the compulsory acquisition of land must have regard to the

(i) Small Holdings and Allotments Act, 1908 (8 Edw. 7, c. 36), s. 61 (3).

(k) As to the principles upon which compensation is assessed in such cases, see Re Lucas and Chesterfield Gas and Water Board, [1909] 1 K. B. 16, C. A., per FLETCHER MOULTON, L.J., at p. 29; and see title COMPULSORY PURCHASE OF LAND AND COMPENSATION, Vol. VI., pp. 31 et seq.

(l) Small Holdings and Allotments Act, 1908 (8 Edw. 7, c. 36), s. 39 (5).

(m) Compare ibid., s. 58 (1); p. 683, ante.

(n) See p. 680, ante.

(o) Ibid., s. 39 (8).

(p) Ibid., s. 41 (3). In fixing the rents to be charged regard must be had to the fact that a shorter term of years will be allowed for repayment of loans in respect of decoration and other repairs of a temporary nature than for structural repairs or new work; see Circular Letter of the Board of Agriculture and Fisheries of the 10th October, 1912.

(q) Small Holdings and Allotments Act, 1908 (8 Edw. 7, c. 36), s. 41 (1); see, further, title OPEN SPACES AND RECREATION GROUNDS, Vol. XXI., p. 580.

SECT. 4. Acquisition of Land for Small Holdings.

extent of land held or occupied in the locality by any owner or tenant, and to the convenience of other property belonging to or occupied by the same owner or tenant, and must, so far as practicable, avoid taking an undue or inconvenient quantity of land from any one owner or tenant. For that purpose it must, where part only of a holding is taken, take into consideration the size and character of the existing agricultural buildings not proposed to be taken, which are used in connexion with the holding, and the quantity and nature of the land available for occupation therewith, and must, so far as practicable, avoid displacing any considerable number of agricultural labourers or others employed on or about the land (r).

Order may provide for continuance and creation of easements.

1121. An order for the compulsory sale or hiring of land may provide for the continuance of existing and the creation of new easements (s) over the land authorised to be acquired, and every order must, if so required by the owner of the land, provide for the creation of such new easements as are reasonably necessary to secure the continued use and enjoyment by him and his tenants of all means of access, drainage, water supply, and other similar conveniences theretofore used and enjoyed by them over such land. A new easement created by or in pursuance of the order over land hired by a council must not, however, continue beyond the determination of the hiring (t).

SECT. 5.—Dealings with Land.

SUB-SECT. 1.—Adaptation for Small Holdings.

Adaptation before sale and letting.

1122. A county council may, before sale or letting, adapt (u) for small holdings any land acquired by it for that purpose, by dividing and fencing it, making occupation roads, and executing any other works, such as works for the provision of drainage or water supply, which can, in the opinion of the council, be more economically and efficiently executed for the land as a whole. The council may also, as part of the agreement for the sale or letting of a small holding, adapt the land by erecting thereon such buildings, or making such adaptation of existing buildings (a), as in the opinion of the council are required for the due occupation of the holding and cannot be made by the purchaser or tenant (b).

(r) Small Holdings and Allotments Act, 1908 (8 Edw. 7, c. 36), s. 41 (6). As to the compensation payable to displaced agricultural labourers, see p. 692, post.

(s) Compare Small Holdings and Allotments Act, 1908 (8 Edw. 7, c. 36), s. 61 (2), by which the expression "land" includes any right or easement in or over land; see note (e), p. 678, ante. As to easements generally, see title EASEMENTS AND PROFITS À PRENDRE, Vol. XI., pp. 233 et seq.

(t) Small Holdings and Allotments Act, 1908 (8 Edw. 7, c. 36), s. 39 (4).

(u) As to compensation to a council for improvements necessary for adapting land for small holdings, see ibid., s. 47 (2); and p. 671, ante.

(a) As to restrictions with respect to dwelling-houses, see ibid., s. 12 (1) (d)—(g); p. 688, post.

(b) Small Holdings and Allotments Act, 1908 (8 Edw. 7, c. 36), s. 8. As to buildings and equipment, see Circular Letters of the Board of Agriculture and Fisheries dated the 17th July and 23rd September, 1913, and forms issued therewith.

Apportionment of expenses.

The total cost of the acquisition and adaptation of the land must be apportioned by the council amongst the several holdings in such manner as seems just, and must include every expense incurred by it in relation to the land, inclusive of any allowance to any officers of the council for work done in relation thereto (c).

SUB-SECT. 2.—Sale.

Conditions of sale.

1123. A county council must offer the small holdings for sale (d) to persons who desire to buy and will themselves cultivate them (e), in accordance with rules made by the council and confirmed by the Board of Agriculture and Fisheries. The rules must in particular prescribe the manner in which holdings are to be sold or offered for sale, the notice to be given of the offer for sale, and the terms and conditions on or subject to which small holdings are to be sold by the county council; and must provide against any small holding being sold to a person who is unable to cultivate it properly, and otherwise for securing the proper cultivation of a holding (f).

A county council has power to sell one or more small holdings to a number of persons working on a co-operative system approved by the council (g).

Completion and payment of purchase-money.

1124. A purchaser must complete the purchase within such time, not less than one month after the agreement for the purchase, as is fixed by the rules, and on completion must pay not less than one-fifth of the purchase-money, which, in the case of each small holding sold by a county council, must include the costs of registration of title (h), but must not include any expense incurred by the purchaser for legal or other advice or assistance (i). A portion representing not more than one-fourth of the purchase-money may, if the council thinks fit, be secured by a perpetual rentcharge (j). Any residue must be secured by a charge in favour of the council, to be repaid by half-yearly instalments of principal, with such interest and within such time, not exceeding fifty years from the date of sale, as may be agreed upon, or may, if the purchaser so requires, be repaid with such interest and within such term as aforesaid by a terminable

(c) Small Holdings and Allotments Act, 1908 (8 Edw. 7, c. 36), s. 9 (1).

(d) The power of acquiring land for small holdings compulsorily only extends to cases where it is to be let on lease (Small Holdings and Allotments Act, 1908 (8 Edw. 7, c. 36), s. 7 (2)); it seems, therefore, that land compulsorily acquired cannot be sold to tenants of the holdings.

(e) Ibid., ss. 1, 7 (1). As to the meaning of "will themselves cultivate the holdings," see Circular Letter of the Board dated the 26th May, 1908.

(f) Small Holdings and Allotments Act, 1908 (8 Edw. 7, c. 36), ss. 9 (1), 10. Model Rules were issued by the Board on the 6th March, 1908. For rules of a county council as to the acquisition of small holdings, see Encyclopædia of Forms and Precedents, Vol. XVI., pp. 42 et seq. As to the conditions subject to which small holdings must be sold, see p. 688, post.

(g) Small Holdings and Allotments Act, 1908 (8 Edw. 7, c. 36), s. 9 (2).

(h) I.e., by the small holder; compare ibid., s. 13 (2); p. 691, post.

(i) Small Holdings and Allotments Act, 1908 (8 Edw. 7, c. 36), s. 11 (1), (2), (3).

(j) The rentcharge is redeemable in the manner provided by the Conveyancing and Law of Property Act, 1881 (44 & 45 Vict. c. 41), s. 45 (Small Holdings and Allotments Act, 1908 (8 Edw. 7, c. 36), s. 11 (4)); see title RENTCHARGES AND ANNUITIES, Vol. XXIV., p. 512.

SECT. 5. Dealings with Land.

annuity payable by equal half-yearly instalments, and the interest for the time being unpaid may at any time be discharged and the annuity may at any time be redeemed in accordance with tables fixed by the county council (k).

A council may agree to postpone for a term not exceeding five years the time for payment of all or any part of an instalment, either of principal or of a terminable annuity, in consideration of expenditure by the purchaser which, in the opinion of the council, increases the value of the holding; but the council must do so on such terms as will, in its opinion, prevent it from incurring any loss (l).

Sale subject to right of way.

1125. A small holding may be sold subject to such rights of way or other rights for the benefit of other small holdings as the county council considers necessary or expedient (m).

Conditions affecting holdings sold by council.

1126. Any small holding sold by a county council must for a term of twenty years from the date of the sale, and so long thereafter as any part of the purchase-money remains unpaid, be held subject to the following conditions:—

(1) any periodical payments due in respect of the purchase-money must be duly made;

(2) the holding is not to be divided, subdivided, assigned, let, or sublet without the consent of the council (n);

(3) the holding must be cultivated by the owner or occupier, and must not be used for any purpose other than agriculture (o);

(4) not more than one dwelling-house must be erected on the holding, unless, in the opinion of the council, the relaxation of this condition will be for the benefit of that or adjacent small holdings, and the council must not authorise more than one dwelling-house to be erected for occupation with any one small holding;

(5) any dwelling-house so erected must comply with such requirements as the county council may impose for securing healthiness and freedom from overcrowding;

(6) no dwelling-house or building on the holding may be used for the sale of intoxicating liquors;

(7) no dwelling-house shall be erected without the consent of the county council on any holding on which, in their opinion, a dwelling-house ought not to be erected.

If any of these conditions is broken, the council may, after giving the owner an opportunity of remedying the breach, if capable of remedy, cause the holding to be sold (p).

(k) Small Holdings and Allotments Act, 1908 (8 Edw. 7, c. 36), s. 11 (4), (5). For forms, see Encyclopædia of Forms and Precedents, Vol. I., pp. 487, 488.

(l) Small Holdings and Allotments Act, 1908 (8 Edw. 7, c. 36), s. 11 (6). For a form of agreement, see Encyclopædia of Forms and Precedents, Vol. I., pp. 484, 485.

(m) Small Holdings and Allotments Act, 1908 (8 Edw. 7, c. 36), s. 11 (7).

(n) As to subdivision on the death of the owner, see p. 689, post.

(o) "Agriculture" includes horticulture and the use of land for any purposes of husbandry, inclusive of the keeping or breeding of live stock, poultry or bees, and the growth of fruit, vegetables, and the like (Small Holdings and Allotments Act, 1908 (8 Edw. 7, c. 36), s. 61 (1)).

(p) Ibid., s. 12 (1), (2); as to the right of purchase if land is diverted

Death of owner of small holding.

1127. If the holding, while subject to the foregoing conditions, would on the decease of the owner become subdivided by reason of any devise, bequest, intestacy, or otherwise, the council may require it to be sold within twelve months of such decease to some one person, and if default is made in so selling it, the council may itself cause it to be sold (q).

Power of county council to require holding to be sold to them in certain cases.

1128. Where a county council, either on breach of any condition or on the decease of an owner, has power as aforesaid to cause or require a small holding to be sold, it may, in the event of its requiring it for the purposes of small holdings, by notice in writing require the holding to be sold to the council at such price as, in default of agreement, may be determined by arbitration (r), and thereupon the council, after such date as may be specified by the notice, and on production to the registrar of the Land Registry of evidence of service of the notice (s) and of the payment of the sum so agreed or determined, or of the tender of such payment, is registered as the proprietor of the land in place of the registered proprietor, and such registration operates as a registration on a transfer for valuable consideration (t) under the Land Transfer Acts, 1875 and 1897 (u).

Conditions governing sale of small holdings.

1129. Any sale by a council under the foregoing conditions may be made either subject to, or wholly or partly free from, the charge in respect of purchase-money, and in either case the regulations aforesaid with respect to the purchase-money (a) apply as if the sale were a first sale of the holding. The proceeds of the sale must be applied in discharge of any unpaid purchase-money or redemption of any rentcharge or terminable annuity which is not to continue a charge on the holding, and, subject as aforesaid, must be paid to the person appearing to the council to be entitled to receive the same (b). A council may, however, in special circumstances, to be recorded in its minutes, sell or consent to the sale of a small holding free from all or any of the foregoing conditions, and may give such consent on such terms as it thinks fit (c).

from agriculture after restrictive conditions have ceased to attach to a holding, see Small Holdings and Allotments Act, 1908 (8 Edw. 7, c. 36), s. 15; p. 690, post; compare Conveyancing and Law of Property Act, 1881 (44 & 45 Vict. c. 41), s. 41.

(q) Small Holdings and Allotments Act, 1908 (8 Edw. 7, c. 36), s. 12 (3).

(r) Compare ibid., s. 58 (1).

(s) A notice for these purposes is sufficiently served if sent by registered post addressed to the owner, or the personal representative of the deceased owner, at his registered address, or at his last known place of abode (ibid., s. 12 (4)).

(t) Ibid., s. 12 (4). This provision does not apply where a small holding has been let by a county council (ibid.).

(u) 38 & 39 Vict. c. 87; 60 & 61 Vict. c. 65; see titles REAL PROPERTY AND CHATTELS REAL, Vol. XXIV., pp. 308 et seq.; SALE OF LAND, Vol. XXV., pp. 432 et seq.

(a) See Small Holdings and Allotments Act, 1908 (8 Edw. 7, c. 36), s. 11; and p. 687, ante.

(b) Small Holdings and Allotments Act, 1908 (8 Edw. 7, c. 36), s. 12 (6).

(c) Ibid., s. 12 (7).

SECT. 5. Dealings with Land.

User for purposes other than agriculture.

1130. If at any time after the restrictive conditions aforesaid have ceased to attach to a small holding the owner thereof desires to use it for purposes other than agriculture (d), he must before so doing, whether the holding is situate within a town or built upon or not, offer it for sale, first to the county council from which it was purchased, and secondly to the person or persons, if any, then entitled to the lands from which such holding was originally severed (e).

SUB-SECT. 3.—Letting.

Letting of small holdings.

1131. The letting of small holdings is governed by the same rules and regulations as their sale (f), and a small holding let by a county council is held subject to the conditions aforesaid under which it would be held if it were sold, except so far as those conditions relate to the purchase-money, and with the following modifications:—

(1) The provisions empowering a county council on breach of a condition or the decease of an owner to require a small holding to be sold to the council (g) do not apply where a small holding has been let by a council (h), and if any condition or any term of the letting is broken, the council may, after giving the tenant an opportunity of remedying the breach, if it is capable of remedy, determine the tenancy (i);

(2) A county council may, with the consent of the Board of Agriculture and Fisheries, let one or more small holdings to any association formed for the purposes of creating or promoting the creation of small holdings, and so constituted that the division of profits among the members of the association is prohibited or restricted (k);

(3) Any tenant to whom a small holding has been let by a county council has as against the council the same rights with respect to compensation for improvements as he would have had if the holding had been a market garden (l); and

(4) A tenant of any small holding may before the expiration of his tenancy remove any fruit and other trees planted or acquired by him for which he has no claim for compensation, and may remove any hothouse, shed, greenhouse, fowlhouse, or pigsty built or acquired by him for which he has no claim for compensation (m).

(d) See note (o), p. 688, ante.

(e) Small Holdings and Allotments Act, 1908 (8 Edw. 7, c. 36), s. 15. The Lands Clauses Consolidation Act, 1845 (8 & 9 Vict. c. 18), ss. 127—130 (see title COMPULSORY PURCHASE OF LAND AND COMPENSATION, Vol. VI., pp. 26 et seq.), will apply as if the owner of the small holding were the promoter of the undertaking and the holding were superfluous lands within the meaning of those provisions (ibid.).

(f) See Small Holdings and Allotments Act, 1908 (8 Edw. 7, c. 36), ss. 9—12.

(g) Ibid., s. 12 (2)—(4).

(h) Ibid., s. 12 (4).

(i) Ibid., s. 12 (8); compare Conveyancing and Law of Property Act, 1881 (44 & 45 Vict. c. 41), s. 14; title LANDLORD AND TENANT, Vol. XVIII., pp. 539 et seq.

(k) Small Holdings and Allotments Act, 1908 (8 Edw. 7, c. 36), s. 9 (2) (b).

(l) Ibid., s. 47 (1); as to improvements prohibited by the council, see ibid.; and see title AGRICULTURE, Vol. I., pp. 269, 270.

(m) Small Holdings and Allotments Act, 1908 (8 Edw. 7, c. 36), s. 47 (4).

SUB-SECT. 4.—Registration of Title.

SECT. 5. Dealings with Land.

1132. Where a county council has purchased land it must apply to be registered as proprietor thereof under the Land Transfer Acts, 1875 and 1897 (n), and may be registered as proprietor of the land with any title authorised by those Acts (o). Registration of county council.

1133. When, after having been so registered, a county council transfers any such land to a purchaser of a small holding, the purchaser must be registered as proprietor thereof with an absolute title, subject only to the incumbrances authorised to be created on such transfer (p); the remedy of any person claiming by title paramount to the county council in respect either of title or incumbrances will be in damages only, which may be recoverable as against the county council (q). Registration of purchaser.

SECT. 6.—Miscellaneous Powers of County Councils.

1134. A county council must, if practicable, sell or let as small holdings any land acquired by it for the purpose in accordance with the foregoing provisions, but if it is of opinion that any such land is not needed, or is unsuitable for small holdings, or cannot be sold or let under such provisions, or that some more suitable land is available, it may sell or let such land otherwise than under those provisions, or exchange it for other land more suitable. The council may pay or receive money for equality of exchange, and may erect such buildings or execute such works as will enable the land to be sold or let without loss. The statutory provisions relating to the right of pre-emption of superfluous land (r) apply upon any sale before any such buildings or works are erected or executed on the land proposed to be sold (s). The Letting of unsold and superfluous land.

(n) 38 & 39 Vict. c. 87; 60 & 61 Vict. c. 65; see titles REAL PROPERTY AND CHATTELS REAL, Vol. XXIV., pp. 308 et seq.; SALE OF LAND, Vol. XXV., pp. 432 et seq. Rules under the Land Transfer Acts, 1875 (38 & 39 Vict. c. 87) and 1897 (60 & 61 Vict. c. 65), may adapt these Acts to the registration of small holdings with such modifications as appear to be required; and, on the application and at the expense of a county council, may provide, by the appointment of local agents or otherwise, for carrying this provision into effect (Small Holdings and Allotments Act, 1908 (8 Edw. 7, c. 36), s. 13 (3)). The Land Registry (Small Holdings) Rules, issued on the 9th August, 1892 (Stat. R. & O. Rev., Vol. VII., Land (Registration), England, p. 23), have not been altered, and therefore remain in force in virtue of the Small Holdings and Allotments Act, 1908 (8 Edw. 7, c. 36), s. 62 (a), which, while repealing, inter alia, the Small Holdings Act, 1892 (55 & 56 Vict. c. 31), under which these rules were made, enacts that nothing shall affect any order, scheme, and rules etc. made under any of the enactments repealed.

(o) Small Holdings and Allotments Act, 1908 (8 Edw. 7, c. 36), s. 13 (1). As to the titles which may be registered, see title REAL PROPERTY AND CHATTELS REAL, Vol. XXIV., pp. 308 et seq.

(p) I.e., under the Small Holdings and Allotments Act, 1908 (8 Edw. 7, c. 36); see p. 687, ante.

(q) Small Holdings and Allotments Act, 1908 (8 Edw. 7, c. 36), s. 13 (2). As to damages generally, see title DAMAGES, Vol. X., pp. 301 et seq.

(r) Lands Clauses Consolidation Act, 1845 (8 & 9 Vict. c. 18), ss. 128—132; see title COMPULSORY PURCHASE OF LAND AND COMPENSATION, Vol. VI., pp. 26 et seq.

(s) "Save as aforesaid, the provisions of the Lands Clauses Consolidation

SECT. 6. Miscellaneous Powers of Councils.

council may also temporarily let or manage a holding for such time and in such manner as it thinks expedient while any lease or sale thereof is pending (t).

Compensation for loss of employment by labourers.

1135. Where a labourer (u) who has been regularly employed on land (a) acquired by a county council for small holdings proves to the satisfaction of the council that the effect of the acquisition was to deprive him of his employment, and that there was no employment of an equally beneficial character available to him in the same locality, the council may pay (b) to him proper compensation for his loss of employment, or for his expenses in moving to another locality, and any sum so paid must be treated as part of the expenses of the acquisition of the land (c).

Compensation to tenants for disturbance.

1136. Where a tenant is given notice to quit in order that the land may be used for small holdings, he may, upon quitting, recover from the council compensation for the loss and expense directly attributable to the quitting which he incurs upon or in connexion with the sale or removal of his household goods, implements of husbandry, produce, or farm stock on or used in connexion with the land, but he must give the council a reasonable opportunity of making a valuation thereof, and must claim within three months after quitting. Any difference must, in default of agreement, be settled by arbitration (d).

Interchange of land for small holdings and allotments.

1137. A county council may sell or let to a borough, urban district, or parish council for the purposes of allotments (e), any land acquired by it for small holdings, and a borough, urban district, or parish council may sell (f) or let to the county council for the purpose of small holdings any land acquired by it for allotments,

Act, 1845, with respect to the sale of superfluous lands shall not apply" (Small Holdings and Allotments Act, 1908 (8 Edw. 7, c. 36), s. 16 (3)). For forms of agreement for sale, see Encyclopædia of Forms and Precedents, Vol. XVI., p. 51; and for forms of transfer, see ibid., Vol. I., pp. 485, 488.

(t) Small Holdings and Allotments Act, 1908 (8 Edw. 7, c. 36), s. 16.

(u) Compare the expression "labouring population" in ibid., s. 23, relating to allotments, which appears to be used with regard to urban labourers only.

(a) By ibid., s. 61 (2), "land" includes any right or easement over it.

(b) Compare Local Government Act, 1888 (51 & 52 Vict. c. 41), s. 120; and, as to unreasonable disturbance of a tenant, Agricultural Holdings Act, 1908 (8 Edw. 7, c. 28), s. 11.

(c) Small Holdings and Allotments Act, 1908 (8 Edw. 7, c. 36), s. 43.

(d) Small Holdings Act, 1910 (7 Edw. 7 & 1 Geo. 5, c. 34), s. 1; and see Circular Letter of the Board of Agriculture and Fisheries of the 23rd September, 1913, and forms of claim issued therewith. As to the repayment out of the Small Holdings Account of sums paid by a council under this enactment, see p. 671, ante. As regards the compensation payable to an outgoing tenant, see Re Evans and Glamorgan County Council Arbitration (1912), 76 J. P. 468, where it was held that loss incurred on the compulsory sale of household goods, stock etc. and the cost of refreshments supplied at such sale could be allowed as reasonable expenses, but that the valuation fee for valuing stock before the sale and the cost of preparing the agreement with the county council were unavoidable expenses of the sale and ought to be disallowed.

(e) See title ALLOTMENTS, Vol. I., p. 341.

(f) Compare Local Government Act, 1894 (56 & 57 Vict. c. 73), s. 8 (2), as but the provisions of the Lands Clauses Acts (g) with respect to the sale of superfluous land do not apply on any such sale (h).

SECT. 7.—Finance.

Small Holdings Account.

1138. All moneys from time to time provided by Parliament towards defraying the costs and expenses of the Board of Agriculture and Fisheries in connexion with small holdings, and all sums received by the Board and directed by statute to be so paid into the account, must be paid into the Small Holdings Account (i); and the costs and expenses of the Board directed to be so paid must be paid by it out of the money standing to the Small Holdings Account (j).

Audit.

Accounts of the receipts and expenditure of the Small Holdings Account must be made up at the end of every financial year, in such form and with such particulars as may be directed by the Treasury, and must be audited by the Comptroller and Auditor-General as public accounts in accordance with such regulations as the Treasury may make, and must be laid before Parliament, together with his report thereon; and payments out of and into, and all other matters relating to, that account, and to the money standing to the credit thereof, must be paid and regulated in such manner as the Treasury direct (k).

Borrowing powers and expenses.

1139. A county council may borrow money (l) for the purposes of small holdings, and for the purpose of making grants or advances to co-operative societies, except that any money so borrowed must, notwithstanding anything in the provisions regulating the borrowing (m), be repaid within such period, not exceeding eighty years where the purpose for which the money is borrowed is the purchase of land, and fifty years in any other case, as the county council, with the consent of the Local Government Board, determines in each case (n).

to the powers of a parish council, with consent of the parish meeting, with respect to the sale and lease of land and buildings.

(g) See title COMPULSORY PURCHASE OF LAND AND COMPENSATION, Vol. VI., p. 12.

(h) Small Holdings and Allotments Act, 1908 (8 Edw. 7, c. 36), s. 45; see also Circular Letter of the Board of Agriculture and Fisheries of the 23rd September, 1913.

(i) See note (l), p. 671, ante.

(j) Small Holdings and Allotments Act 1908 (8 Edw. 7, c. 36), s. 51 (1), (3).

(k) Ibid., s. 51 (4), (5).

(l) "In accordance with the Local Government Act, 1888" (51 & 52 Vict. c. 41), i.e., by ibid., s. 69; see title LOCAL GOVERNMENT, Vol. XIX., p. 361; if the council of a county borough, it borrows "in accordance with the Public Health Acts," i.e., Public Health Act, 1875 (38 & 39 Vict. c. 55), ss. 233, 234; see title PUBLIC HEALTH AND LOCAL ADMINISTRATION, Vol. XXIII., pp. 382 et seq.

(m) See note (l), supra.

(n) Small Holdings and Allotments Act, 1908 (8 Edw. 7, c. 36), s. 52 (1). Money so borrowed must not (ibid.) be reckoned as part of the total debt of a county for the purpose of the Local Government Act, 1888 (51 & 52 Vict. c. 41), s. 69 (2). As to loans for equipment or adaptation, see Circular Letters of the Board of Agriculture and Fisheries of the 22nd May, 1911, 10th October, 1912, 17th July and 23rd September, 1913.

SECT. 7. Finance.

Loans by Public Works Loan Commissioners.

1140. The Public Works Loan Commissioners may (o) lend any money which may be borrowed by a county council for the purposes aforesaid; the loan must be made at the minimum rate (p) allowed for the time being for loans out of the local loans fund, and the period for which a loan is made may, if the Local Government Board makes a recommendation to that effect, exceed the period allowed by statute (q), but must not exceed that recommended by the Local Government Board, nor, where the purpose of the loan is the purchase of land, eighty years, or in any other case fifty years (r).

Interest.

1141. As between loans for different periods, the longer duration of the loan must not be taken as a reason for fixing a higher rate of interest (r).

Application of capital money by county councils.

1142. Any capital money received by a county council in payment or discharge of purchase-money for land sold by them, or in repayment of an advance made by them, must be applied, with the sanction of the Local Government Board, either in repayment of debt or for any other purpose for which capital money may be applied (s).

Expenses of county borough council.

1143. The expenses incurred by the council of a county borough with respect to small holdings must be defrayed out of the borough fund or borough rate, and any money borrowed by such a council must be borrowed on the security of the borough fund or borough rate (t).

County councils to keep separate accounts of receipts and expenditure.

1144. Separate accounts must be kept of the receipts and expenditure of a county council with respect to small holdings, and any such receipts are applicable to the purposes of such holdings, but not for any other purpose except with the consent of the Local Government Board (u).

(o) See title MONEY AND MONEY-LENDING, Vol. XXI., pp. 58 et seq.

(p) This rate was fixed at 3½ per cent. by a Treasury Minute of the 6th September, 1907.

(q) I.e., under the Public Works Loans Act, 1875 (38 & 39 Vict. c. 89), and amending Acts; see title MONEY AND MONEY-LENDING, Vol. XXI., p. 58, note (a). The period is fifty years; see ibid., p. 60.

(r) Small Holdings and Allotments Act, 1908 (8 Edw. 7, c. 36), s. 52 (2). As to variations in the period for repayment of loans for adaptation, see the Circular Letters mentioned in note (n), p. 693, ante.

(s) Small Holdings and Allotments Act, 1908 (8 Edw. 7, c. 36), s. 52 (3).

(t) Ibid., s. 52 (4); and see title LOCAL GOVERNMENT, Vol. XIX., pp. 317, 319. Compare Public Health Act, 1875 (38 & 39 Vict. c. 55), s. 235, empowering local authorities to borrow on security of sewage land and other property, to pay out of rates levied by them the interest on moneys borrowed by them in pursuance of this provision; see title PUBLIC HEALTH AND LOCAL ADMINISTRATION, Vol. XXIII., pp. 383, note (t), 386. The council of a county borough borrows "in accordance with the Public Health Acts"; see note (l), p. 693, ante. As to the borough fund and borough rate, see title LOCAL GOVERNMENT, Vol. XIX., pp. 319 et seq.

(u) Small Holdings and Allotments Act, 1908 (8 Edw. 7, c. 36), s. 54 (1).

Part II.—Small Dwellings.

SECT. 1.—Power of Local Authorities to make Advances.

SECT. 1. Power of Local Authorities to make Advances.

1145. County councils, councils of county boroughs, and on passing the necessary resolutions councils of urban districts not being county boroughs, and of rural districts (in this part of this title referred to as the local authority) have power to advance money for the purpose of enabling any resident in their respective areas to acquire the ownership (v) of the house in which he resides; in the case of the councils of districts containing a population according to the last census for the time being of not less than 10,000, the consent of the county council to the resolution is necessary (w).

Authorities having power to make advances.

The council of an urban or rural district becomes the local authority for the purposes of the Small Dwellings Acquisition Act, 1899 (a), by passing a resolution to act under that Act, and thereupon all the powers, rights, and liabilities of the county council in respect of advances already made by it for the purpose of the ownership of any house in the district vest in the council of the urban or rural district, subject to the payment by that council to the county council of the outstanding principal and interest of any such advance (b).

1146. Before making an advance in respect of a house the local authority (c) must be satisfied that the applicant is resident or intends to reside in the house (d), and is not already the proprietor of a house to which the statutory conditions apply (e); that the value of the ownership (f) is sufficient (g), and the title one

Conditions governing advances.

(v) "Ownership" means such interest or combination of interest in a house as, together with the interest of the purchaser of the ownership, constitutes either a fee simple in possession or a leasehold interest in possession of at least sixty years unexpired at the date of the purchase; and where the ownership of a house is acquired by means of an advance, the purchaser thereof, or, in the case of devolution or transfer, the person in whom the interest of the purchaser is for the time being vested, is the proprietor of the house (Small Dwellings Acquisition Act, 1899 (62 & 63 Vict. c. 44), s. 10 (2), (3)).

(w) Ibid., ss. 1 (1), 9 (1). If the council of any district is dissatisfied with any refusal or failure of the county council to give its consent, it may appeal to the Local Government Board, and the Board may, if it thinks fit, give its consent, which when given has the same effect as that of the county council (ibid., s. 9 (1)). As to the power of a county council to make an advance to a co-operative society for the purpose of erecting or improving working-class dwellings, see title INDUSTRIAL, PROVIDENT, AND SIMILAR SOCIETIES, Vol. XVII., p. 6.

(a) 62 & 63 Vict. c. 44.

(b) Small Dwellings Acquisition Act, 1899 (62 & 63 Vict. c. 44), s. 9 (2).

(c) See the text, supra.

(d) See pp. 697, 698, post.

(e) See Small Dwellings Acquisition Act, 1899 (62 & 63 Vict. c. 44), s. 10, and the text, infra.

(f) For definition of "ownership," see note (v), supra.

(g) See p. 696, post.

SECT. 1. Power of Local Authorities to make Advances.

which an ordinary mortgagee would be willing to accept; that the house is in good sanitary condition and good repair, and that the repayment of the advance is secured by an instrument vesting the ownership, including any interest already held by the purchaser, in the local authority subject to the right of redemption by the applicant, and that such instrument contains nothing inconsistent with the provisions of the statute (h).

Amount of advance authorised.

1147. An advance may be made either to a resident in any house within the area of the local authority (i), or to an applicant who intends to reside in a house as if he were resident, if he undertakes to begin his residence therein within such period, not exceeding six months from the date of the advance, as the local authority may fix, and in that case the statutory condition requiring residence is suspended during that period (k).

An advance must not exceed £240, or, in the case of a fee simple or leasehold of not less than ninety-nine years unexpired at the date of the purchase, £300, nor may it exceed four-fifths of what is, in the opinion of the authority, the market value of the ownership (l).

No advance may be made for the acquisition of the ownership (l) of the house where, in the opinion of the local authority, the market value of the house exceeds £400 (m).

Local authority to keep list of advances open to inspection.

1148. A local authority must keep at its office a book containing a list of advances made by it; the book must be open to inspection during office hours free of charge, and there must be entered therein with regard to each advance a description of the house in respect of which the advance is made, the amount advanced, the amount for the time being repaid, the name of the proprietor for the time being of the house, and such other particulars as the local authority may think fit (n).

SECT. 2.—Repayment of Advances and Security Therefor.

Period of repayment and interest payable.

1149. Every advance must be repaid within such period, not exceeding thirty years from the date of the advance, as may be agreed upon, with interest not exceeding 10*s.* above the rate at which the local authority can at the time borrow from the Public Works Loan Commissioners the money for the advance (o).

The repayment may be made either by equal instalments of principal or by an annuity of principal and interest combined, and all payments on account of principal or interest must be made

(h) Small Dwellings Acquisition Act, 1899 (62 & 63 Vict. c. 44), s. 2. For forms of agreements and mortgages, see Encyclopædia of Forms and Precedents, Vol. I., pp. 492, 493, 495.

(i) Small Dwellings Acquisition Act, 1899 (62 & 63 Vict. c. 44), s. 1 (1). A person is not deemed to be resident in a house unless he is both the occupier of and resident in that house (ibid., s. 10 (1)).

(k) Ibid., s. 7 (1).

(l) See note (v), p. 695, ante.

(m) Small Dwellings Acquisition Act, 1899 (62 & 63 Vict. c. 44), s. 1 (1).

(n) Ibid., s. 8.

(o) Ibid., s. 1 (2), (3). As to loans by the Public Works Loan Commissioners, see title MONEY AND MONEY-LENDING, Vol. XXI., pp. 58 et seq.

either weekly or at any periods not exceeding a half-year, as may be agreed (p).

SECT. 2. Repayment of Advances and Security Therefor.

The proprietor of a house in respect of which an advance has been made may also, at any of the usual quarter days, after one month's written notice, and on paying all sums due on account of interest, repay to the local authority the whole of the outstanding principal of the advance, or any part thereof being £10 or a multiple of £10; and where the mode of repayment is by an annuity of principal and interest combined, the amount so outstanding, and the amount by which the annuity will be reduced where a part of the advance is paid off, is determined by a table annexed to the instrument securing the repayment of the advance (a).

Personal liability and powers of proprietor.

1150. Where the ownership of a house has been acquired by means of an advance, the person who is the proprietor is personally liable for the repayment of any sum due in respect of the advance, until he ceases to be proprietor by reason of a transfer made under the statute (b); but the proprietor may, with the permission of the local authority, at any time transfer his interest in the house, provided that such transfer is made subject to the statutory conditions (c).

SECT. 3.—Conditions Imposed while Advance is Outstanding.

Conditions affecting house subject to advance.

1151. Where the ownership (d) of a house has been acquired by means of an advance, the house is, until such advance with interest has been fully paid, or the local authority has taken possession or ordered a sale (e), held subject to the following conditions:—

(1) Every sum for the time being due in respect of principal or interest of the advance must be punctually paid;

(2) The proprietor of the house must reside therein (f);

(3) The house must be kept insured against fire to the satisfaction of the local authority, and the receipts for the premiums produced when required by it;

(4) The house must be kept in good sanitary condition and repair;

(5) The house must not be used for the sale of intoxicating liquors, or in such manner as to be a nuisance to adjacent houses (g); and

(p) Small Dwellings Acquisition Act, 1899 (62 & 63 Vict. c. 44), s. 1 (4), (5).

(a) Ibid., s. 1 (5).

(b) Ibid., s. 4 (1).

(c) Ibid., s. 3 (2). The permission of the local authority must not be unreasonably withheld (ibid.). As to the effect of permission to assign being unreasonably withheld, compare title LANDLORD AND TENANT, Vol. XVIII., pp. 579 et seq. The permission of the local authority is not required in the case of any charge made by the proprietor on his interest, so far as the charge does not affect any rights or powers of the local authority (ibid., s. 4 (2)).

(d) See note (v), p. 695, ante.

(e) See p. 698, post.

(f) As to the exemptions from this provision, see p. 698, post. As to non-compliance with this requirement, see ibid.

(g) As to user of property constituting a nuisance, see, generally, title NUISANCE, Vol. XXI., pp. 513 et seq.

SECT. 3. Conditions Imposed while Advance is Outstanding.

(6) The local authority must have power to enter the house by any person authorised by the authority in writing for the purpose, at all reasonable times, for the purpose of ascertaining whether the statutory conditions are complied with (h).

Conditions of non-residence; subletting; absence on official duties; death.

1152. A local authority may allow a proprietor to permit, by letting or otherwise, a house to be occupied as a furnished house by some other person during a period not exceeding four months in the whole in any twelve months, or during absence from the house in the performance of any duty arising from or incidental to any office, service, or employment held or undertaken by him, and the condition requiring residence will be suspended while the permission continues (i).

Where the proprietor of a house subject to statutory conditions dies, the condition requiring residence is suspended until the expiration of twelve months from the death, or any earlier date at which the personal representatives transfer the ownership or interest of the proprietor in the course of administration. Where the proprietor of any such house becomes bankrupt, or his estate is administered in bankruptcy under the provisions for the administration of the estates of persons dying insolvent (k), and in either case an arrangement is made with the trustee in bankruptcy, the condition as to residence will, if the local authority thinks fit, be suspended during the continuance of the arrangement (l).

SECT. 4.—Remedies for Breach of Conditions.

SUB-SECT. 1.—Possession.

Default in complying with statutory conditions as to residence.

1153. Where default is made in complying with the statutory condition as to residence (m), the local authority may take possession of the house, and where default is made in complying with any of the other statutory conditions (m), whether the statutory condition as to residence has or has not been complied with, the local authority may either take possession of the house or order the sale thereof without taking possession (n).

Proprietor may avoid consequences of breach in certain cases.

1154. In the case of the breach of any condition other than that of the punctual payment of the principal and interest of the advance, the authority must, previously to taking possession or ordering a sale, by notice in writing delivered at the house and addressed to the proprietor, call on him to comply with the condition, and must not take possession or order a sale, as the case may be, if within fourteen days after the delivery of the notice he gives an undertaking in (h) Small Dwellings Acquisition Act, 1899 (62 & 63 Vict. c. 44), s. 3 (1).

(i) Ibid., s. 7 (2).
(k) I.e., under the Bankruptcy Act, 1883 (46 & 47 Vict. c. 52), s. 125; see title BANKRUPTCY AND INSOLVENCY, Vol. II., pp. 93 et seq.
(l) Small Dwellings Acquisition Act, 1899 (62 & 63 Vict. c. 44), s. 7 (3). As to postponing the time when residence must begin, under ibid., s. 7 (1), see p. 696, ante.
(m) See p. 697, ante.
(n) Small Dwellings Acquisition Act, 1899 (62 & 63 Vict. c. 44), s. 3 (3).

writing to the authority to comply therewith and does comply therewith within two months after the delivery of such notice (o).

SECT. 4. Remedies for Breach of Conditions.

Bankruptcy.

1155. In the case of the bankruptcy of the proprietor of the house, or in the case of a deceased proprietor's estate being administered in bankruptcy (p), the local authority may either take possession of the house or order the sale of the house without taking possession, and must do so unless some arrangement to the contrary is made with the trustee in bankruptcy (q).

Recovery of possession and disposal of house.

1156. Where a local authority takes possession of a house, all the estate, right, interest, and claim of the proprietor in or to the house vests in and becomes the property of the local authority, which may either retain it under its own management or sell or otherwise dispose of it as it thinks expedient (r).

Method of recovery of possession.

Where the local authority is entitled to take possession of a house, possession may be recovered, whatever may be the value of the house, by or on behalf of the local authority either under the County Courts Act, 1888 (a), or under the Small Tenements Recovery Act, 1838 (b), as in the cases therein provided for, and in either case may be recovered as if the local authority was the landlord and the proprietor the tenant of the house (c).

Compensation to proprietor.

1157. On taking possession the local authority must pay to the proprietor either such sum as may be agreed upon, or a sum equal to the value of the interest in the house, after deducting therefrom the amount of the advance then remaining unpaid and any sum due for interest; and such value, in the absence of a sale and in default of agreement, must be settled by a county court judge as arbitrator, or, if the Lord Chancellor so authorises, by a single arbitrator appointed by the county court judge, and the Arbitration Act, 1889 (d), applies to any such arbitration (e). If the sum so payable to the proprietor is not paid within three months after taking possession, it carries interest at the rate of 3 per cent. per annum from the date of taking possession (f).

All the costs of or incidental to the taking possession, sale, or other disposal of the house, including the costs of the arbitration, if any, incurred by the local authority before the amount payable to the proprietor has been settled either by agreement or arbitration, (o) Small Dwellings Acquisition Act, 1899 (62 & 63 Vict. c. 44), s. 3 (4).

(p) I.e., under the Bankruptcy Act, 1883 (46 & 47 Vict. c. 52), s. 125; see title BANKRUPTCY AND INSOLVENCY, Vol. II., pp. 93 et seq.

(q) Small Dwellings Acquisition Act, 1899 (62 & 63 Vict. c. 44), s. 3 (5). As to the suspension of the condition of residence in such a case, see p. 698, ante.

(r) Small Dwellings Acquisition Act, 1899 (62 & 63 Vict. c. 44), s. 5 (1).

(a) 51 & 52 Vict. c. 43, ss. 138—145; see title COUNTY COURTS, Vol. VIII., p. 685.

(b) 1 & 2 Vict. c. 74.

(c) Small Dwellings Acquisition Act, 1899 (62 & 63 Vict. c. 44), s. 5 (5); see also title LANDLORD AND TENANT, Vol. XVIII., pp. 558 et seq.

(d) 52 & 53 Vict. c. 49; see title ARBITRATION, Vol. I., pp. 455 et seq.

(e) Small Dwellings Acquisition Act, 1899 (62 & 63 Vict. c. 44), s. 5 (2).

(f) Ibid., s. 5 (3).

SECT. 4. Remedies for Breach of Conditions.

must be deducted from the amount otherwise payable to the proprietor (g).

SUB-SECT. 2.—Sale.

Procedure as to ordering sale.

1158. Where a local authority orders the sale of a house without taking possession, it must cause it to be put up for sale by auction, and out of the proceeds of the sale retain any sum due to it on account of the interest or principal of the advance, and all costs, charges, and expenses properly incurred by it in or about the sale of the house, and pay over any balance to the proprietor (h). If, however, the authority is unable at the auction to sell the house for such a sum as will allow of the payment out of the proceeds of sale of the interest and principal of the advance due to it and the costs, charges, and expenses aforesaid, the local authority may take possession (i) of the house, without being liable to pay any sum to the proprietor (k).

SECT. 5.—Finance.

SUB-SECT. 1.—In General.

Expenses of local authority.

1159. All expenses of a local authority with respect to advances for the acquisition of small dwellings are paid, in the case of a county, out of the county rate (l); in the case of a county borough, out of the borough fund or borough rate (m); and in the case of an urban (a) or rural district, out of any fund or rate applicable to the general purposes (b) of the Public Health Acts (c); but no sum may be raised in any urban or rural district the council of which has, by passing the necessary resolution, become a statutory local authority (d), on account of the expenses of a county council in connexion with advances for the acquisition of small dwellings (e).

Limits of expenditure.

1160. If in any local financial year the expenses payable by a council, and not reimbursed by the receipts in connexion with advances for the acquisition of small dwellings, exceed in a county a sum equal to one halfpenny, and in a county borough or urban or rural district a sum equal to one penny, in the pound upon the rateable value of the county, county borough, or district, deducting in the case of a county the rateable value of any urban or rural district therein, the council of which has become a statutory local authority (d), no further advance may be made by that council until the expiration of five years after the end of that financial (g) Small Dwellings Acquisition Act, 1899 (62 & 63 Vict. c. 44), s. 5 (4).

(h) Ibid., s. 6 (1).
(i) See p. 699, ante.
(k) Small Dwellings Acquisition Act, 1899 (62 & 63 Vict. c. 44), s. 6.
(l) As to the county rate, see title LOCAL GOVERNMENT, Vol. XIX., pp. 359 et seq.
(m) As to the borough fund rate, see ibid., pp. 319 et seq.
(a) See ibid., pp. 280 et seq.
(b) See ibid., pp. 335 et seq.
(c) See title PUBLIC HEALTH AND LOCAL ADMINISTRATION, Vol. XXIII., p. 361, note (a); see also ibid., pp. 380 et seq.
(d) See p. 695, ante.
(e) Small Dwellings Acquisition Act, 1899 (62 & 63 Vict. c. 44), s. 9 (3).

year, or, if these expenses at that date exceed one halfpenny or one penny in the pound, as the case may be, on the rateable value for the time being, until they fall below that sum (f).

Borrowing powers of local authority.

1161. For the purposes of the Small Dwellings Acquisition Act, 1899 (g), a county council may borrow in the same way as it may borrow for the purposes of the Local Government Act, 1888 (h), the council of a county borough may borrow in the same way as for the purchase of land (i), and an urban or rural district council which has become a statutory local authority (k) may borrow as for the purposes of the Public Health Acts; and the provisions of the applied enactments (l) apply accordingly with the necessary modifications (m).

The money borrowed is not (n), however, in the case of a county council reckoned as part of the total debt of a council for the purposes of the statutory limitation upon borrowing (o), nor in the case of an urban or rural district council as part of their debt for the purpose of the limitation on borrowing under the Public Health Act, 1875 (p).

The Public Works Loan Commissioners may, in manner provided by the Public Works Loans Act, 1875 (q), lend any money which may be borrowed by a local authority (r)

Capital money may be applied in repayment of debt etc.

1162. Any capital money received or retained by a local authority in payment or discharge of any advance, or in respect of the sale or other disposal of any house taken possession of by them, must be applied, with the sanction of the Local Government Board, either

(f) Small Dwellings Acquisition Act, 1899 (62 & 63 Vict. c. 44), s. 9 (4).

(g) 62 & 63 Vict. c. 44.

(h) 51 & 52 Vict. c. 41; see title LOCAL GOVERNMENT, Vol. XIX., pp. 361, 362.

(i) I.e., under the Municipal Corporations Act, 1882 (45 & 46 Vict. c. 50), s. 106; see title LOCAL GOVERNMENT, Vol. XIX., pp. 317, 318.

(k) See p. 695, ante.

(l) I.e., in the case of a county council, the Local Government Act, 1888 (51 & 52 Vict. c. 41); in the case of a county borough council, the Municipal Corporations Act, 1882 (45 & 46 Vict. c. 50); and in the case of an urban or rural district council, the Public Health Acts (see title PUBLIC HEALTH AND LOCAL ADMINISTRATION, Vol. XXIII., p. 361, note (a)).

(m) Small Dwellings Acquisition Act, 1899 (62 & 63 Vict. c. 44), s. 9 (5); see titles LOCAL GOVERNMENT, Vol. XIX., pp. 282, 383 (urban district), 337 (rural district); PUBLIC HEALTH AND LOCAL ADMINISTRATION, Vol. XXIII., pp. 382 et seq.

(n) Small Dwellings Acquisition Act, 1899 (62 & 63 Vict. c. 44), s. 9 (6).

(o) I.e., under the Local Government Act, 1888 (51 & 52 Vict. c. 41), s. 69 (2), requiring a provisional order of the Local Government Board confirmed by Parliament to enable a county council to borrow where its debt, after deducting any sinking fund, exceeds or, with the proposed loan, will exceed, one-tenth of the annual rateable value of the county, according to the assessment for the county rates.

(p) 38 & 39 Vict. c. 55, s. 234 (2); see title PUBLIC HEALTH AND LOCAL ADMINISTRATION, Vol. XXIII., pp. 383 et seq.

(q) 38 & 39 Vict. c. 89.

(r) Small Dwellings Acquisition Act, 1899 (62 & 63 Vict. c. 44), s. 9 (7); see title MONEY AND MONEY-LENDING, Vol. XXI., pp. 58 et seq.

SECT. 5 Finance.

in repayment of debt or for any other purpose to which capital money may be applied (s).

Accounts.

1163. Every local authority must keep separate accounts of its receipts and expenditure (t).

SUB-SECT. 2.—In the Metropolis.

Special provisions relating to London.

1164. In the County of London any sanitary authority (a) has the same powers as an urban district council, and the expenses of such authority are paid out of the general rate; it may borrow (b) in the same manner as for the purposes of the Metropolis Management Acts, 1855—1893 (c), which apply with the necessary modifications (d).

(s) Small Dwellings Acquisition Act, 1899 (62 & 63 Vict. c. 44), s. 9 (8).
(t) Ibid., s. 9 (9).
(a) See title METROPOLIS, Vol. XX., p. 408.
(b) London County Council (General Powers) Act, 1893 (56 & 57 Vict. c. ccxxi.).
(c) Metropolis Management Act, 1855 (18 & 19 Vict. c. 120); Metropolis Management Amendment Acts, 1856 (19 & 20 Vict. c. 112), 1858 (21 & 22 Vict. c. 104), and 1862 (25 & 26 Vict. c. 102); Metropolis Management and Building Acts Amendment Act, 1878 (41 & 42 Vict. c. 32), Part I.; Metropolis Management Amendment Act, 1885 (48 & 49 Vict. c. 33); Metropolis Management (Battersea and Westminster) Act, 1887 (50 & 51 Vict. c. 17); Metropolis Management Act, 1862, Amendment Act, 1890 (53 & 54 Vict. c. 54); Metropolis Management Amendment Act, 1890 (53 & 54 Vict. c. 66); Metropolis Management (Plumstead and Hackney) Act, 1893 (56 & 57 Vict. c. 55).
(d) Small Dwellings Acquisition Act, 1899 (62 & 63 Vict. c. 44), s. 9 (10); see title METROPOLIS, Vol. XX., pp. 444 et seq.

SMALLPOX.

See MEDICINE AND PHARMACY; PUBLIC HEALTH AND LOCAL ADMINISTRATION.

SMOKE.

See NUISANCE; PUBLIC HEALTH AND LOCAL ADMINISTRATION; RAILWAYS AND CANALS.

SMOKING.

See INFANTS AND CHILDREN.

SMOKING COMPARTMENTS.

See Railways and Canals.

SMUGGLING.

See Criminal Law and Procedure.

SNOW.

See Highways, Streets, and Bridges; Nuisance.

SNUFF.

See Revenue.

SOCAGE.

See Infants and Children; Real Property and Chattels Real.

SOCIETIES.

See Building Societies; Clubs; Friendly Societies; Industrial, Provident, and Similar Societies; Literary and Scientific Institutions; Loan Societies; Trade and Trade Unions.

SODOMY.

See Criminal Law and Procedure.

SOLD NOTE.

See Sale of Goods; Stock Exchange.

SOLDIERS.

See Royal Forces.

SOLE CORPORATION.

See Corporations; Ecclesiastical Law.

SOLEMN FORM.

See Executors and Administrators.

SOLEMNISATION OF MARRIAGE.

See Ecclesiastical Law; Husband and Wife.

SOLICITOR-GENERAL.

See Barristers; Constitutional Law.

SOLICITORS.

PAGE

PART I. THE LAW SOCIETY - - - - - - - - 707

PART II. ADMISSION AND REGISTRATION - - - - 710

SECT. 1. CONDITIONS OF ADMISSION - - - - - - 710
SECT. 2. SERVICE UNDER ARTICLES - - - - - - 710
SECT. 3. EXAMINATIONS - - - - - - - - - 716
SECT. 4. ADMISSION - - - - - - - - - - 719
SECT. 5. PRACTISING CERTIFICATE - - - - - - 720
SECT. 6. COLONIAL SOLICITORS - - - - - - - 722

PART III. RIGHTS AND PRIVILEGES OF SOLICITORS - - 722

SECT. 1. RIGHT TO PRACTISE - - - - - - - 722
SECT. 2. RIGHT OF AUDIENCE - - - - - - - 723
SECT. 3. PRIVILEGES - - - - - - - - - 726

PART IV. SOLICITOR AND CLIENT - - - - - - - 728

SECT. 1. RETAINER - - - - - - - - - - 728
Sub-sect. 1. What Constitutes a Retainer - - - - 728
Sub-sect. 2. Duration of Retainer - - - - - 737
Sub-sect. 3. Ownership of Documents - - - - 740

SECT. 2. AUTHORITY OF SOLICITOR TO BIND HIS CLIENT - - 741
Sub-sect. 1. In General - - - - - - - 741
Sub-sect. 2. Contentious Business - - - - - 741
Sub-sect. 3. Non-contentious Business - - - - 744

SECT. 3. TRANSACTIONS BETWEEN SOLICITOR AND CLIENT - - 746
Sub-sect. 1. In General - - - - - - - 746
Sub-sect. 2. Gifts - - - - - - - - - 747
Sub-sect. 3. Purchases and Sales - - - - - 748
Sub-sect. 4. Mortgages - - - - - - - 751
Sub-sect. 5. Wills - - - - - - - - - 752
Sub-sect. 6. Solicitor as Trustee - - - - - 752

SECT. 4. OBLIGATIONS OF SOLICITOR TOWARDS HIS CLIENT - - 753
Sub-sect. 1. Possession of Legal Skill and Knowledge - 753
Sub-sect. 2. Personal Attention and Protection of Client's Interests - - - - - - - - 758
Sub-sect. 3. Liability for Acts of Partners - - - - 758

PART V. REMUNERATION OF SOLICITORS: COSTS - - - 760

SECT. 1. AMOUNT FIXED BY LAW - - - - - - 760
Sub-sect. 1. In General - - - - - - - 760
Sub-sect. 2. Non-contentious Business - - - - 760
Sub-sect. 3. Contentious Business - - - - - 767

PAGE

PART V. REMUNERATION OF SOLICITORS: COSTS—continued.

SECT. 2. SPECIAL AGREEMENTS FIXING AMOUNT - - - - 770
Sub-sect. 1. In General - - - - - - - - 770
Sub-sect. 2. Under the Attorneys and Solicitors Act, 1870 - 771
Sub-sect. 3. Under the Solicitors Remuneration Act, 1881 - 773

SECT. 3. DELIVERY OF A BILL OF COSTS - - - - - 774

SECT. 4. TAXATION OF COSTS - - - - - - - - 780
Sub-sect. 1. Jurisdiction of the Court - - - - 780
Sub-sect. 2. The Making of the Order - - - - 784
Sub-sect. 3. The Conduct of the Taxation - - - - 793
Sub-sect. 4. Review of Taxation - - - - - 795

SECT. 5. WHAT COSTS ALLOWED ON TAXATION - - - - 797
Sub-sect. 1. In General - - - - - - - 797
Sub-sect. 2. Costs as between Solicitor and Client - - 797
Sub-sect. 3. Costs as between Party and Party - - - 799
Sub-sect. 4. Costs Regulated by Statute - - - - 807
Sub-sect. 5. Costs of Taxation - - - - - - 807

SECT. 6. INTEREST ON COSTS - - - - - - - - 809

SECT. 7. SECURITY FOR COSTS - - - - - - - - 811

SECT. 8. SOLICITOR'S REMEDIES FOR COSTS- - - - - 812
Sub-sect. 1. Action - - - - - - - - - 812
Sub-sect. 2. Proceedings in Bankruptcy - - - - 813
Sub-sect. 3. Proceedings on Allocatur - - - - 813

SECT. 9. LIEN - - - - - - - - - - - - 814
Sub-sect. 1. Kinds of Lien - - - - - - 814
Sub-sect. 2. Retaining Lien - - - - - - 814
Sub-sect. 3. Common Law Lien on Property or Funds Recovered - - - - - - - 820
Sub-sect. 4. Statutory Lien and Charging Orders - - 823

PART VI. LIABILITIES OF SOLICITORS AS OFFICERS OF THE HIGH COURT - - - - - - - - - 828

SECT. 1. IN GENERAL - - - - - - - - - - 828

SECT. 2. LIABILITY UPON UNDERTAKINGS GIVEN AS A SOLICITOR 830

SECT. 3. LIABILITY TO PAY COSTS - - - - - - - 832

SECT. 4. LIABILITY TO THIRD PERSONS - - - - - 835

SECT 5. LIABILITY TO CLIENT - - - - - - - 837
Sub-sect. 1. To Pay over Money Received - - - - 837
Sub-sect. 2. To Deliver up Papers - - - - - 840

PART VII. PARTNERSHIPS BETWEEN SOLICITORS - - - 842

SECT. 1. IN GENERAL - - - - - - - - - 842

SECT. 2. PROFITS OF OFFICES AND PREMIUMS - - - - 842

SECT. 3. GOODWILL - - - - - - - - - - 843

PART VIII. LONDON AGENTS - - - - - - - - 844

SECT. 1. SCOPE OF COUNTRY CERTIFICATE - - - - - 844

SECT. 2. RELATIONS BETWEEN LONDON AGENT AND COUNTRY SOLICITOR'S CLIENT - - - - - - - - 844

SECT. 3. RELATIONS BETWEEN LONDON AGENT AND COUNTRY SOLICITOR - - - - - - - - - - 846

SECT. 4. RELATIONS BETWEEN LONDON AGENT AND OPPOSITE PARTIES - - - - - - - - - - 847

	PAGE
PART IX. DISCIPLINE	848
SECT. 1. GROUNDS FOR STRIKING SOLICITOR OFF THE ROLLS	848
SECT. 2. PROCEDURE	852
SECT. 3. APPEAL	855
PART X. UNQUALIFIED PERSONS	855
PART XI. COMMISSIONERS FOR OATHS	857
PART XII. PERPETUAL COMMISSIONERS	859

For Agency	See title	AGENCY.
Arbitrations	,,	ARBITRATION.
Attorney-General	,,	BARRISTERS; CONSTITUTIONAL LAW.
Barristers	,,	BARRISTERS.
Champerty	,,	ACTION.
Deeds, Preparation of	,,	BILLS OF SALE; BONDS; DEEDS AND OTHER INSTRUMENTS; FAMILY ARRANGEMENTS; LANDLORD AND TENANT; MORTGAGE; PARTNERSHIP; REAL PROPERTY AND CHATTELS REAL; SALE OF LAND; SETTLEMENTS.
Maintenance	,,	ACTION.
Notaries	,,	NOTARIES.
Pleadings	,,	PLEADING; PRACTICE AND PROCEDURE.
Practice and Procedure	,,	ACTION; ADMIRALTY; BANKRUPTCY AND INSOLVENCY; CORONERS; COUNTY COURTS; COURTS; CRIMINAL LAW AND PROCEDURE; CROWN PRACTICE; DISCOVERY, INSPECTION, AND INTERROGATORIES; ECCLESIASTICAL LAW; EVIDENCE; EXECUTION; EXECUTORS AND ADMINISTRATORS; INJUNCTION; INTERPLEADER; JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS; LIMITATION OF ACTIONS; MAGISTRATES; MAYOR'S COURT, LONDON; PLEADING; PRACTICE AND PROCEDURE; SET-OFF AND COUNTERCLAIM.
Solicitor-General	,,	BARRISTERS; CONSTITUTIONAL LAW.
Title, Investigation of	,,	SALE OF LAND.
Wills, Preparation of	,,	WILLS.

Part I.—The Law Society.

PART I. The Law Society.

Charter of incorporation.

1165. The Law Society (a), in its present form (b), was incorporated by Royal Charter in 1845, and further provisions for its

(a) The original name of the society was "The Society of Attorneys, Solicitors, Proctors, and others not being Barristers, practising in the Courts of Law and Equity of the United Kingdom" (Charter of 1845, clause 1), The society afterwards came to be known as the Incorporated Law Society (see Solicitors Act, 1860 (23 & 24 Vict. c. 127), s. 1), and its present name was substituted by the Charter of 1903. Many provincial law societies have also been formed: they possess certain rights of representation on the council of the Law Society and on various statutory committees; see pp. 709, 710, post.

(b) For the history of the Law Society, and of the societies which preceded it, see Handbook of the Law Society, pp. 1 et seq. For the Inns of Court constitution were made by supplemental charters in 1872, 1903, and 1909 (c). By the Charter of 1845 the Law Society was made a body corporate with a common seal (d) and perpetual succession (e), and was empowered to acquire, hold, and sell land to a limited extent (f).

PART I. The Law Society.

No limit is placed by the charter upon the number of members (g), and all solicitors of the Supreme Court (h), who have at any time taken out a practising certificate, including those who have voluntarily retired from practice (not being barristers (i)), are eligible for membership (k).

Government.

1166. The Law Society is governed by a President, Vice-President, and Council (l), which consists at present of fifty members (m). Of these forty are ordinary members, elected by the members of the society (n), and ten are extraordinary members, nominated by the various provincial law societies (o). Ordinary members of the Council hold office for four years, ten members retiring each year (p), and are eligible for re-election (q), with the exception of not more than three of the retiring members, who are ineligible for a period not exceeding a year (r). Extraordinary members of the Council are appointed for three years, and are eligible for reappointment (s). The President and Vice-President are elected by the members of the Society from the members of the Council (t), and hold office for one year (a). Ordinary members of the Council (b) and extraordinary members, who have served on the and Chancery, see title BARRISTERS, Vol. II., pp. 358 et seq.; Smith v. Kerr, [1902] 1 Ch. 774, C. A.

(c) For the charters, see the Handbook of the Law Society, 1905, pp. 32 et seq.

(d) Charter of 1845, clauses 1, 2.

(e) Ibid., clause 3.

(f) Ibid., clauses 3, 4.

(g) Ibid., clause 7.

(h) By the Judicature Act, 1873 (36 & 37 Vict. c. 66), s. 87, all persons admitted as solicitors, attorneys, or proctors of, or by law empowered to practise in, any court the jurisdiction of which is by that Act transferred to the High Court or to the Court of Appeal, and all persons who from time to time, if the Act had not passed, would have been entitled to be admitted as such, are to be called in future solicitors of the Supreme Court.

(i) As to solicitors becoming barristers, see title BARRISTERS, Vol. II., p. 364, note (d).

(k) Charter of 1845, clause 1. Irish and Scotch solicitors and writers to the signet are also eligible for membership (ibid.). For the bye-laws relating to members, see Bye-laws 2 et seq.

(l) Charter of 1845, clause 8. For the bye-laws relating to the Council, see Bye-laws 39 et seq.

(m) Charter of 1845; Charter of 1872; Bye-law 39.

(n) Ibid.

(o) Charter of 1872; Bye-law 47; General Regulations 31 et seq.

(p) Charter of 1845, clause 13; Bye-law 40.

(q) Bye-law 40.

(r) Charter of 1909.

(s) Charter of 1872; Charter of 1903.

(t) Charter of 1845, clause 8. They must be solicitors practising in England (ibid.).

(a) For the bye-laws relating to the election of President and Vice-President, see Bye-laws 54 et seq.

(b) Charter of 1845, clause 8; Bye-law 54.

Council for not less than four years (c), are eligible for the office of President or Vice-President; but both offices are not to be filled in the same year by members, whether ordinary or extraordinary, of the Council holding country certificates only (d).

General meetings.

A general meeting of the members of the Society must be held once a year for the purpose of electing the President, Vice-President, and the Council (e). A special general meeting may be called at any time by the Council (f), and must be called on a written requisition signed by twenty or more members, otherwise any ten of the requisitioners may call the meeting themselves (g). The general meeting is empowered by the charter to make bye-laws for the regulation and good government of the Society, and for carrying out the purposes for which the Society was founded (h).

Management.

1167. Subject to the provisions of the charter and of the bye-laws for the time being in force, the management of the Society's affairs is vested in the hands of the Council (i). The Council is empowered to appoint a secretary, a librarian, and such other officers, clerks, and servants as it may think fit, and to prescribe their respective duties (k). The Council may appoint committees (l); and various committees have been appointed (m), including an Examination Committee, which has been constituted for the purpose of conducting the examination of persons desiring to become solicitors (n). In addition to the ordinary committees appointed by the Council, there is a statutory committee of not less than three and not more than seven members of the Council appointed by the Master of the Rolls for disciplinary purposes (o).

Duties of Law Society.

1168. The duties of the Registrar of Solicitors (p) and the powers and duties of the Clerk of the Petty Bag Office (q) in relation to the roll of solicitors and to solicitors (r) are exercised by the Law Society.

The Law Society is entitled to be represented on the following committees, namely:—the Rule Committee of the Supreme (c) Charter of 1909.

(d) Ibid.
(e) Charter of 1845, clause 13. For the bye-laws relating to general meetings, see Bye-laws 13 et seq.
(f) Charter of 1845, clause 13. For the bye-laws relating to special general meetings, see Bye-laws 18 et seq.
(g) Bye-laws 19 et seq.
(h) Charter of 1845, clause 12. Bye-laws have been made by the Society, and are printed in the Handbook of the Law Society, pp. 47 et seq. General regulations have also been made by the Council in pursuance of the bye-laws, and are printed ibid., pp. 60 et seq.
(i) Charter of 1845, clause 11; Bye-law 50.
(k) Charter of 1845, clause 11; Bye-laws 66 et seq.
(l) Bye-law 50.
(m) See Handbook of the Law Society.
(n) See Regulation of the 3rd March, 1905.
(o) Solicitors Act, 1888 (51 & 52 Vict. c. 65), s. 12; see pp. 848 et seq., post.
(p) Solicitors Act, 1843 (6 & 7 Vict. c. 73), s. 21; see pp. 713, 721, post.
(q) As to the powers and duties not transferred to the Law Society, see title CONSTITUTIONAL LAW, Vol. VII., pp. 11, 12.
(r) Solicitors Act, 1888 (51 & 52 Vict. c. 65), s. 5; see pp. 713, 719, 721, 851, post.

PART I. The Law Society.

Court, by two practising solicitors appointed by the Lord Chancellor, one of whom is to be a member of the Council and the other a member of the Law Society and also of a provincial law society (s); the Rule Committee under the Solicitors Remuneration Act, 1881 (t), by the president for the time being of the Law Society, and also by the president of a provincial law society selected by the Lord Chancellor (u); the Advisory Committee on the Rules under the Land Transfer Act, 1897 (v), by one person chosen by the Council of the Law Society (w); and the Inspection Committee of Trustee Savings Banks, by one member appointed by the Council (x). The Law Society is also represented on the governing bodies of various universities, and on the Incorporated Council of Law Reporting of England and Wales.

Part II.—Admission and Registration.

SECT 1.—Conditions of Admission.

Qualification.

1169. No person is entitled to be admitted and enrolled as a solicitor unless (1) he is a British subject of the male sex (a); (2) he is of full age (b); (3) he has been articled to a practising solicitor in England or Wales for the requisite period, or is exempted from serving under articles (c); and (4) he has passed the requisite examinations or is exempted therefrom (d).

The solicitors to the Treasury, Customs, Excise, Post Office, Stamp Duties, or any other branch of His Majesty's Revenue, the Solicitor to the City of London, the Assistant Solicitor to the Admiralty, and the Solicitor to the Board of Ordnance are not required to be admitted as solicitors (e), and these offices are frequently held by barristers (f).

SECT. 2.—Service under Articles.

How far service necessary.

1170. Service under articles (g) is a necessary preliminary to admission as a solicitor in the case of all persons except (1) barristers

(s) Judicature (Rule Committee) Act, 1909 (9 Edw. 7, c. 11), s. 1 (1).
(t) 44 & 45 Vict. c. 44.
(u) Ibid., s. 2.
(v) 60 & 61 Vict. c. 65.
(w) Ibid., s. 22 (2).
(x) In pursuance of the scheme framed under the Savings Banks Act, 1891 (54 & 55 Vict. c. 21), s. 2 (2).
(a) Bebb v. Law Society, [1913] W N. 355, C. A.
(b) Ex parte Cragg (1838), 6 Dowl. 256; Ex parte Evans (1838), 2 Jur. 47; Ex parte Steele (1864), 10 Jur. (N. S.) 1254. As to the age on entering articles, see p. 712, post.
(c) See pp. 711 et seq., post.
(d) See pp. 716 et seq., post.
(e) Solicitors Act, 1843 (6 & 7 Vict. c. 73), s. 47; Solicitors Act, 1860 (23 & 24 Vict. c. 127), s. 33; Solicitors Act, 1874 (37 & 38 Vict. c. 68), s. 12; and title CONSTITUTIONAL LAW, Vol. VII., p. 77. As to the Solicitor-General and the Solicitor-General for the County Palatine of Durham, see title CONSTITUTIONAL LAW, Vol. VII., pp. 71 et seq., 76, 77.
(f) See title BARRISTERS, Vol. II., p. 383.
(g) An articled clerk is an "apprentice" for the purpose of acquiring a settlement within a parish (St. Pancras Parish v. Clapham Parish (1860), called to the Bar in England for not less than five years who have caused themselves to be disbarred with a view to becoming solicitors and who have obtained a certificate of fitness signed by two Benchers of their Inn (h); (2) certain colonial solicitors (i).

Period of service.

1171. Where service under articles is necessary, the period of service required is, as a general rule, five years (k). The period of service is, however, reduced to three years in the case of (1) certain graduates (l); (2) barristers-at-law (m), who must first be disbarred (n); (3) advocates (o) and other legal practitioners (p) in Scotland; (4) persons who have served for ten years as bonâ fide clerks to a solicitor, and have been bonâ fide engaged during that period in the transaction and performance of their duties under the superintendence of such solicitor (q). Service for four years only (r) is required from persons who, before being articled, have passed certain examinations specified in the regulations made from time

2 E. & E. 742); compare Re Bush and Prideaux, Ex parte Prideaux (1838), 3 My. & Cr. 327; see title MASTER AND SERVANT, Vol. XX., p. 71, note (l).

(h) Solicitors Act, 1877 (40 & 41 Vict. c. 25), s. 12; as to Benchers, see title BARRISTERS, Vol. II., p. 361. As to the necessity of passing the final examination, see pp. 718, 719, post.

(i) See p. 722, post.

(k) Solicitors Act, 1843 (6 & 7 Vict. c. 73), s. 3.

(l) Namely, persons who have taken the degree of Bachelor of Arts or Bachelor of Laws in the Universities of Oxford, Cambridge, Dublin, Durham, or London (Solicitors Act, 1860 (23 & 24 Vict. c. 127), s. 2), or in the Victoria University of Manchester (Victoria University Act, 1888 (51 & 52 Vict. c. 45), or in the Universities of Wales (University of Wales Act, 1902 (2 Edw. 7, c. 14), s. 1), Liverpool (University of Liverpool Act, 1904 (4 Edw. 7, c. 11), s. 1), Leeds (Leeds University Act, 1904 (4 Edw. 7, c. 12), s. 1), or Bristol (University of Bristol Act, 1909 (9 Edw. 7, c. 42), s. 9), or the degree of Bachelor of Arts, Master of Arts, Bachelor of Laws, or Doctor of Laws in any of the Universities of Scotland (Solicitors Act, 1860 (23 & 24 Vict. c. 127), s. 2) (none of such degrees being honorary). The Royal University of Ireland, which was included in the list of exemptions, was abolished by an order of the Lord Lieutenant, under the Irish Universities Act, 1908 (8 Edw. 7, c. 38), ss. 2, 20, and two new universities have been established under the Act, namely, the National University of Ireland and the Queen's University of Belfast, but the Act does not confer upon their graduates the privilege of three years articles under the Solicitors Act, 1860 (23 & 24 Vict. c. 127), s. 2.

(m) Solicitors Act, 1843 (6 & 7 Vict. c. 73), s. 3. As to the position of a barrister of five years' standing, see p. 710, ante.

(n) Ex parte Bateman (1845), 6 Q. B. 853; see title BARRISTERS, Vol. II., pp. 361, 362.

(o) Attorneys and Solicitors Act (1860) Amendment Act, 1872 (35 & 36 Vict. c. 81).

(p) Namely, writers to the signet, solicitors in the Supreme Courts, and procurators before the Sheriffs' Courts (Solicitors Act, 1860 (23 & 24 Vict. c. 127), s. 15).

(q) Solicitors Act, 1860 (23 & 24 Vict. c. 127), s. 4; Re Milliken (1870), 18 W. R. 809. Students who have before entering into articles attended for one year the curriculum of study at the Law Society approved by the Council, and have passed an examination therein to the satisfaction of the Council, may be admitted after four years' service under articles (Judges' Order of the 16th June, 1913).

(r) Service under articles for four years in the mistaken belief that a particular examination which the clerk has passed confers exemption from five years' service, cannot be recognised (Ex parte Jones (an Articled Clerk) (1870), 22 L. T. 300).

SECT. 2. Service under Articles.

to time by the Master of the Rolls, with the concurrence of the Lord Chancellor and the Lord Chief Justice, or, in case of difference, of one of them (s).

Articles.

1172. A person desiring to be articled must be of sufficient age to study his profession (t). The articles must be in writing (a), and are almost invariably entered into by deed (b). Where the clerk is under age his father or guardian also enters into them, covenanting that the clerk shall faithfully, honestly, and diligently serve the master during the term of the articles. The master on his side covenants to teach the clerk, and at the end of the articles, if the clerk shall have well and faithfully served his articles, to use his best endeavours to cause and procure the clerk to be admitted a solicitor of the Supreme Court. It is usual to pay a premium to the solicitor, the amount being a matter of negotiation. In the the absence of agreement (c), there is no right to repayment of any portion of the premium, in the event of either the master (d) or the clerk (e) dying before the expiration of the term. A covenant, therefore, providing for these contingencies is frequently inserted,

(s) Solicitors Act, 1860 (23 & 24 Vict. c. 127), s. 5; Solicitors Act, 1877 (40 & 41 Vict. c. 25), s. 13; as amended by the Judicature Act, 1881 (44 & 45 Vict. c. 68), s. 24. The examinations at present recognised are:—(i.) the First Public Examination before Moderators at Oxford, the Previous Examination at Cambridge, the Arts Examination for the second year at Durham, or the Responsions Examination at St. David's College, Lampeter; (ii.) the Matriculation or Entrance Examination (First Division) of the Universities of London or Birmingham; (iii.) the Examination (First Division) of the Joint Matriculation Board of the Victoria University of Manchester, and the Universities of Liverpool, Leeds, and Sheffield; (iv.) the Entrance Examination (Honours) at the University of Dublin (Judges' Order of the 8th February, 1905); (v.) the Preliminary Examination in Jurisprudence at Oxford (Judges' Order of the 21st February, 1907); (vi.) the Responsions Examination at Oxford (Judges' Order of the 25th May, 1906); (vii.) the Senior School Examination (Honours Division) of the University of London (Judges' Order of the 28th July, 1910). Latin must be one of the subjects taken, and all the subjects required to be taken by a candidate must be taken at one examination (ibid.).

(t) Re Donne (1794), 3 Swan. 96, n. As to age on admission, see p. 710, ante.

(a) Solicitors Act, 1843 (6 & 7 Vict. c. 73), s. 3.

(b) For forms of articles of clerkship, see Encyclopædia of Forms and Precedents, Vol. II., pp. 76 et seq. The stamp duty on the articles must be paid before their execution (Stamp Act, 1891 (54 & 55 Vict. c. 39), ss. 26, 27). The duty is £80 (ibid., Sched. I., title "Articles of Clerkship"); and see title REVENUE, Vol. XXIV., pp. 700 et seq. The articles may contain a covenant restricting the clerk from practising subsequently in competition with his master (Howard v. Woodward (1864), 10 Jur. (N. S.) 1123; May v. O'Neill (1875), 44 L. J. (CH.) 660; Hayne v. Burchell (1890), 7 T. L. R. 116, C. A.; Woodbridge & Sons v. Bellamy, [1911] 1 Ch. 326, C. A.; compare Capes v. Hutton (1826), 2 Russ. 357. As to restraint of trade generally, see titles CONTRACT, Vol. VII., p. 332; MASTER AND SERVANT, Vol. XX., pp. 88 et seq.; TRADE AND TRADE UNIONS, Vol. XXVII., pp. 548 et seq.

(c) As to return of premium in the case of the solicitor's bankruptcy or misconduct, see pp. 713, 714, post.

(d) Ferns v. Carr (1885), 28 Ch. D. 409; but see Hirst v. Tolson (1850), 2 Mac. & G. 134, disapproved in Whincup v. Hughes (1871), L. R. 6 C. P. 78; see title EXECUTORS AND ADMINISTRATORS Vol. XIV., p. 305.

(e) Re Thompson (1848), 1 Exch. 864. The clerk is not entitled to a return of premium when he leaves his master to enter another profession (Craven v. Stubbins (1864), 10 Jur. (N. S.) 1189).

SECT. 2. Service under Articles.

making the amount repayable depend upon the length of time during which the service continues (f). It is prudent to insert a provision authorising the master to dismiss the clerk for misconduct during the articles, and any such provision is valid in law (g).

Registration of articles.

The articles must be registered within six months of their date with the Law Society (h), whose duty it is to enter them under their date in a register book (i), which is open to inspection during office hours without fee (k). The duty of registering the articles rests on the master, even where the clerk is of full age (l). Articles not registered within six months of their date may be registered subsequently; but in that case, unless the Master of the Rolls otherwise directs, the period of service will date from registration and not from the commencement of the articles (m).

Number of articled clerks.

1173. No solicitor may take more than two articled clerks at the same time (n). Where two or more solicitors practise in partnership, each may have two clerks articled to him at the same time, but the premium must not be received on account of the partnership (o). A clerk may, however, be bound to a firm; but where this is done the binding will be regarded as being to each member of the firm, and the clerk so bound will count as one of the two clerks which each member is entitled to take (p).

Qualifications of master.

1174. The master must be a solicitor practising on his own account, and service after the master has ceased to practise, or whilst he is employed as clerk to another solicitor, cannot be counted (q). In the event of the master becoming bankrupt, the clerk may apply to the court to discharge his articles or to assign them to another solicitor on such terms as the court may direct (r). The order of adjudication also operates as a discharge of the articles if either the master or the clerk gives notice to the trustee in bankruptcy to that effect (s). The trustee in bankruptcy may, upon the demand of the clerk or of some person on his behalf, repay out of the bankrupt's estate for the use of the clerk a Bankruptcy of master.

(f) See Encyclopædia of Forms and Precedents, Vol. II., p. 78.

(g) Westwick v. Theodor (1875), L. R. 10 Q. B. 224; see Learoyd v. Brooke, [1891] 1 Q. B. 431.

(h) As Registrar of Solicitors (Solicitors Act, 1888 (51 & 52 Vict. c. 65), s. 5); see p. 709, ante.

(i) The fee for making the entry is 5*s*. (Solicitors Act, 1888 (51 & 52 Vict. c. 65), s. 7).

(k) Ibid.

(l) Dufaur v. Sigel (1853), 22 L. J. (CH.) 678, C. A.

(m) Solicitors Act, 1888 (51 & 52 Vict. c. 65), s. 8. As to registration of a copy where the original has been destroyed, see Ex parte Briggs (1843), 1 Dow. & L. 94.

(n) Solicitors Act, 1843 (6 & 7 Vict. c. 73), s. 4.

(o) Re Harper, Ex parte Bayley (1829), 9 B. & C. 691; see, however, pp. 842, 843, post.

(p) Re Holland (1872), L. R. 7 Q. B. 297.

(q) Solicitors Act, 1843 (6 & 7 Vict. c. 73), s. 4.

(r) Ibid., s. 5. This remedy is also available where the master is imprisoned for debt for twenty-one days (ibid.); see Debtors Act, 1869 (32 & 33 Vict. c. 62), s. 4, under which a debtor is not liable to be imprisoned merely on making default in payment of a sum of money; title BANKRUPTCY AND INSOLVENCY, Vol. II., pp. 337, 338.

(s) Bankruptcy Act, 1883 (46 & 47 Vict. c. 52), s. 41 (1).

SECT. 2. Service under Articles.

reasonable portion of the premium, if any, which may have been paid to the bankrupt (a), or, instead of repaying the premium, he may transfer the articles to another solicitor (b). If the master omits to take out his annual certificate (c), a clerk articled to him, who has otherwise become entitled by service to be admitted a solicitor, is not thereby prevented or disqualified from being admitted (d). If the solicitor to whom the clerk was bound is struck off the rolls after the termination of the articles, this fact will not prevent the clerk from being admitted, provided there is no other legal impediment to his admission (e).

Master failing to take out certificate.

Master struck off the rolls.

Master dying or ceasing to practise: discharge of clerk.

If the master dies or ceases to practise before the expiration of the term, or if by consent of the parties the articles are cancelled, or the clerk is otherwise legally discharged therefrom, the clerk may be bound to another solicitor for the remainder of his term, and may be admitted on making a proper and satisfactory affidavit of the facts (f).

Where service not continuous.

1175. Where the service has not been continuously with one master, but there has, in fact, been bonâ fide service with one or more solicitors for the necessary qualifying period subsequently to the execution of the original articles, the clerk, on obtaining the necessary certificates of service (g), may be admitted as a solicitor if the Master of the Rolls is satisfied that the irregularity of the service was occasioned by accident, mistake, or some other sufficient cause, and that the actual service was substantially equivalent to a regular service (h). Applications to the Master of the Rolls for this purpose should not be made until the ultimate term making up the full period of service is ended (i).

Employment exclusive.

1176. Service under articles, if duly registered, counts from the date when they were actually executed (k). The service must be continuous (l), and the clerk must be actually employed upon his master's proper business (m).

(a) The trustee's discretion as to the amount to be repaid is subject to an appeal to the court (Bankruptcy Act, 1883 (46 & 47 Vict. c. 52), s. 41 (1)).

(b) Ibid., s. 41 (2).

(c) See pp. 721, 722, post.

(d) Solicitors (Clerks) Act, 1844 (7 & 8 Vict. c. 86), s. 4.

(e) Solicitors Act, 1843 (6 & 7 Vict. c. 73), s. 28.

(f) Ibid., s. 13; see Ex parte Wallis (1862), 2 B. & S. 416; Ex parte Johnson (1838), 2 Jur. 966; Ex parte Tomkins (1837), 6 Dowl. 3; Ex parte Lee (1860), 8 W. R. 541; Ex parte Adams (1876), 4 Ch. D. 39; Ex parte Adams (1875), L. R. 10 Q. B. 227; Ex parte Williamson (1876), 4 Ch. D. 581. As to the effect of an interval between the death of the master and the assignment of articles, see Re O'Brien (1839), 1 I. Eq. R. 480; and compare Ex parte Harrison (1875), 44 L. J. (Q. B.) 103.

(g) See p. 718, post.

(h) Solicitors Act, 1877 (40 & 41 Vict. c. 25), s. 15; Judicature Act, 1881 (44 & 45 Vict. c. 68), s. 24.

(i) Ex parte Keddle (1865), 4 B. & S. 993; Ex parte Trenchard (1874), L. R. 9 Q. B. 406.

(k) Ex parte Angel (1840), 4 Jur. 656. As to the exact date when the period of service expires, see Re Ellis (1862), 5 L. T. 686; as to the effect of registration out of time, see p. 713, ante.

(l) Ex parte Matthews (1830), 1 B. & Ad. 160; Ex parte Marshall (1874), 22 W. R. 754; Ex parte Digby (1876), 45 L. J. (CH.) 692; Ex parte Moses (1873), L. R. 9 Q. B. 1; Ex parte Fereday (1877), 46 L. J. (CH.) 504.

(m) Solicitors Act, 1843 (6 & 7 Vict. c. 73), s. 12.

SECT. 2. Service under Articles.

Articled clerks bound for four (n) or five (o) years respectively may, however, with the permission of their masters, serve one year out of their term with a practising barrister, and in addition thereto, or instead thereof, a like period with the London agent of their master. A clerk bound for three years only may serve one year with his master's London agent (p), but not with a practising barrister (q).

With these exceptions, the clerk during the term of his articles is forbidden to hold any office or engage in any other employment whatsoever (r) without the consent of his master and the sanction of the Master of the Rolls or one of the judges of the High Court (s). The master's consent must be in writing, and the judge's sanction must be evidenced by an order (t). Notice in writing of the application for the judge's sanction must be given to the Law Society not less than fourteen days before it is made, and the notice must state the names and addresses of the applicant and of his master, the nature of the employment, and the time it is expected to occupy (a). The judge, as a condition of making such order, may impose such terms and conditions as he may think fit (b).

Proof of service.

1177. Every clerk before being admitted must, together with his master, give proof that his service under articles has been in accordance with the regulations. This is done by answers to prescribed questions (c), or, if he has been engaged in some other employment, by proof that he has obtained the requisite consent of his master and order of the judge, and has duly complied with any terms and conditions imposed by the order (d).

Dismissal or breach of contract by master.

1178. If the master dismisses the clerk for insufficient cause, or commits a gross breach of his contract to teach or give proper instruction, application may, it seems, be made to the court to

(n) Solicitors Act, 1860 (23 & 24 Vict. c. 127), s. 6.

(o) Solicitors Act, 1843 (6 & 7 Vict. c. 73), s. 6; Re an Articled Clerk (1871), 25 L. T. 161.

(p) Solicitors Act, 1860 (23 & 24 Vict. c. 127), ss. 2—4, 15.

(q) Ex parte Earle (1853), Bail Ct. Cas. 180.

(r) See the text, supra.

(s) Attorneys and Solicitors Act, 1874 (37 & 38 Vict. c. 68), s. 4.

(t) Ibid.

(a) Ibid.

(b) Ibid., s. 5. The court acts with great caution and strictness in making such an order as that above alluded to, and will not make the order unless the employment is similar to that which the clerk would be engaged in were he exclusively doing the work of his master; such employments as assistant town clerk or assistant solicitor to a local authority where the master was town clerk or principal solicitor would in all probability be held to be such as could properly be authorised. The object of these provisions was to mitigate the hardships which were found to arise under the old law. For decisions under the earlier statutes, see Re Taylor (1825), 4 B. & C. 341, 344; Re Peppercorn (1866), L. R. 1 C. P. 473; Re Greville (1873), L. R. 9 C. P. 13; Ex parte Joyce (1877), 4 Ch. D. 596; Re Mills (1862), 33 L. J. (Q. B.) 191, n.

(c) See Regulations dated the 3rd March, 1905.

(d) Solicitors Act, 1860 (23 & 24 Vict. c. 127), s. 10; Attorneys and Solicitors Act, 1874 (37 & 38 Vict. c. 68), s. 4.

SECT. 2. Service under Articles.

discharge the articles upon such terms as to return of a proportion of the premium as to the court may seem meet (e).

SECT. 3.—Examinations.

Examinations.

1179. Every person desiring to be admitted as a solicitor of the Supreme Court of Judicature in England must, unless he is exempted therefrom (f), pass three examinations, which are held under the management of the Law Society, namely, the "preliminary," the "intermediate," and the "final" (g).

Preliminary examination.

1180. The preliminary examination (h) is held in the months of February, May, July, and October at the Hall of the Law Society, Chancery Lane, London, by examiners appointed by the Society (i); and the examination may also be held locally by two local solicitors, at certain towns, as appointed by the Examination Committee (j).

On passing the examination the candidate becomes entitled to receive a certificate which must be produced to the Law Society before or at the time when his articles are produced for registration (k).

Exemptions.

The following are exempt from the necessity of passing the preliminary examination:—(1) certain graduates (l); (2) persons

(e) Ex parte Lewis (1844), 8 Jur. 539; Ex parte Hancock (1842), 2 Dowl. (N. S.) 54; Ex parte Darbell (1838), 6 Dowl. 505; Ex parte Prankerd (1819), 3 B. & Ald. 257; Ex parte Cartley (1842), 12 L. J. (Q. B.) 98; Ex parte —— (1844), 8 Jur. 848. As to what is sufficient supervision by the master, see Ex parte Duncan (1864), 5 B. & S. 341.

(f) See the text, infra, and pp. 717 et seq., post.

(g) Solicitors Act, 1877 (40 & 41 Vict. c. 25), s. 6.

(h) The subjects of the preliminary examination are as follows:—(i.) writing from dictation; (ii.) writing a short English composition; (iii.) arithmetic; (iv.) algebra and geometry as treated in Euclid, books 1 to 4; (v.) geography of Europe and history of England; (vi.) Latin —elementary; and (vii.) two languages selected by the candidate from the following, namely, Latin, Greek (ancient), French, German, Spanish, and Italian. A candidate is not obliged to take up algebra and geometry, but if he does he need only take up one language.

(i) Law Society's Regulations, 1905, rr. 4, 6.

(j) Ibid., r. 7. The following is the list of towns at which examinations may be held, namely:—Birmingham, Bristol, Cambridge, Cardiff, Carlisle, Carmarthen, Chester, Durham, Exeter, Lancaster, Leeds, Lincoln, Liverpool, Manchester, Newcastle-on-Tyne, Oxford, Plymouth, Salisbury, Shrewsbury, Swansea, Worcester and York (ibid.). Candidates for examination must give to the Secretary of the Law Society thirty days' written notice of their desire to be examined, stating the language in which they desire to be examined, the town in which they wish to be examined, their ages, residences, and places or modes of education (ibid., r. 9).

(k) Ibid., r. 28. As to registration of articles, see p. 713, ante.

(l) Namely:—Bachelors of Arts or Bachelors of Laws of the Universities of Oxford, Cambridge, Dublin, Durham, London (Solicitors Act, 1877 (40 & 41 Vict. c. 25), s. 10), the National University of Ireland and the Queen's University of Belfast (Irish Universities Act, 1908 (8 Edw. 7, c. 38), ss. 5, 12); Victoria University of Manchester (Victoria University Act, 1888 (51 & 52 Vict. c. 45), s. 1), University of Wales (University of Wales Act, 1902 (2 Edw. 7, c. 14), s. 1), University of Liverpool (University of Liverpool Act, 1904 (4 Edw. 7, c. 11), s. 1), and University of Leeds (Leeds University Act, 1904 (4 Edw. 7, c. 12), s. 1); Bachelors of Arts, Masters of Arts, Bachelors of Law or Doctors of Law in any of the who have been called as barristers in England (m); (3) persons who have passed certain examinations specified by statute (n) or by judge's order (o); (4) persons who have received exemption under an order made by the Lord Chief Justice of England or the Master of the Rolls (p).

Intermediate examination.

1181. The intermediate examination is held in the months of January, March or April, June and October or November at the Hall of the Law Society, Chancery Lane, London (q). The subjects for examination are such elementary works on the laws of England as the Examination Committee may from time to time appoint (r), and elementary questions on trust accounts and book-keeping (s).

Exemptions

The following persons are exempt from the necessity of passing the law portion of the intermediate examination, namely:—(1) barristers of not less than five years' standing who have Universities of Scotland (such degrees not being merely honorary) (Solicitors Act, 1877 (40 & 41 Vict. c. 25), s. 10).

(m) Ibid.

(n) Ibid. These examinations are:—the First Public Examination before Moderators at Oxford; the Previous Examination at Cambridge; Examination in Arts for the second year at Durham; the Oxford Local Examination; the Cambridge Non-Gremial Examination; the Examination of the Oxford and Cambridge Schools Examination Board; the Dublin or London Matriculation; the College of Preceptors Examination (First Class).

(o) These examinations are:—the Matriculation or Entrance Examination, and the School-leaving Examination (Senior Certificate) of the University of Birmingham; the Examination for the Senior Certificate of the Central Welsh Board; the Responsions Examination at St. David's College, Lampeter; and the Local Examination of the University of Durham (Senior Pass Certificate or Junior Certificate with at least Second-Class Honours (Judges' Order of the 8th February, 1905); the Responsions Examination at Oxford (Judges' Order of the 25th May, 1906); the School Certificate Examination of the Oxford and Cambridge Schools Examination Board (Judges' Order of the 3rd August, 1906); the Matriculation Examination of the Joint Board of the Universities of Manchester, Liverpool, Leeds, and Sheffield, and the Preliminary Examination in Jurisprudence at Oxford (Judges' Order of the 21st February, 1907); the Senior School Certificate of the Joint Board of the Universities of Manchester, Liverpool, Leeds, and Sheffield, and the Senior School Examination of the University of London (Judges' Order of the 28th July, 1910); the Matriculation Examination of the Universities of Bristol and Wales, and the Junior School Examination of the University of London (Judges' Order of the 25th April, 1911). The above orders are conditional that Latin must be one of the subjects taken, and all the subjects required to be taken by a candidate must be taken at one examination.

(p) Solicitors Act, 1877 (40 & 41 Vict. c. 25), s. 11. Such orders are only to be made in special circumstances (ibid.), and are now rarely made.

(q) Law Society's Regulations, 1905, rr. 12, 13. Candidates must notify the secretary of the society at least thirty days before the date fixed of their desire to be examined (ibid.). With this notice the articles of clerkship (duly stamped), and answers to questions as to due service and conduct, must be left (ibid., r. 17). There is a fee of £6, with an additional £2 if he has not previously passed the preliminary examination, payable on sitting for the intermediate examination (Judges' Order, 1904). Successful candidates are divided into "first class" and "pass" lists (ibid., r. 19).

(r) Ibid., r. 14. The books chosen for the law portion of the examination are, generally, the four volumes of Stephen's Commentaries on the Laws of England.

(s) Application should be made to the Law Society for the latest particulars.

SECT. 3. Examinations.

procured themselves to be disbarred with a view to becoming solicitors, and have obtained from two of the Benchers of the Inn to which they belong a certificate of their being fit and proper persons to practise as solicitors (t); (2) certain colonial solicitors (a); (3) persons holding certain certificates (b).

Persons claiming to be entitled to exemption from the necessity of passing the law portion of the intermediate examination must produce to the Secretary of the Law Society, or to such other officer of that Society as the Council may direct, a testamur, certificate, judge's order, or other satisfactory evidence showing their right thereto (c).

If the Law Society refuses to grant a certificate of having passed the intermediate examination, an appeal from such decision lies within a month to the Master of the Rolls (d). No appeal lies to the King's Bench Division from a refusal by the Council to admit for examination (e).

Final examination.

1182. The final examination is held in the months of January, March or April, June, and October or November at the Hall of the Law Society, Chancery Lane, London (f).

The subjects for the final examination are (1) the law of real and personal property and the practice of conveyancing; (2) equity; (3) common law and bankruptcy; and (4) probate, divorce, and admiralty law; ecclesiastical and criminal law; and proceedings before justices of the peace (g). Forty-two days' notice before the date of the examination must be given to the Secretary of the Law Society, and at the same time candidates must leave with the Secretary their articles, a certificate of having passed the intermediate examination, and the answers to questions as to due service and conduct as prescribed by the Society (h). At the final examination candidates may also, on giving notice of their intention, compete for honours (i).

Exemptions.

The final examination must be passed by all persons desirous of (t) Solicitors Act, 1877 (40 & 41 Vict. c. 25), s. 12. They may be exempted from the whole examination (ibid.).

(a) See p. 722, post.

(b) Namely, a certificate of having, before or after entering into articles, passed the examination required for the degree of Bachelor of Civil Law or Bachelor of Laws of the Universities of Oxford, Cambridge, London, Victoria University of Manchester, Dublin, Durham, Wales, Birmingham, Liverpool, Leeds, or Sheffield; or a certificate of having, before entering into articles, taken honours in the Final Honour School of Jurisprudence at Oxford, or in the Law Tripos at Cambridge (Law Society's Regulations, 5th November, 1909).

(c) Law Society's Regulations, 1905, r. 27.

(d) Solicitors Act, 1877 (40 & 41 Vict. c. 25), s. 9.

(e) Re James (1885), 33 W. R. 654.

(f) Law Society's Regulations, 1905, rr. 20, 21.

(g) Ibid., r. 22.

(h) Ibid., r. 23. The fee payable on giving notice for the final examination is £10, and for entry for honours £1. In the event of non-success or non-appearance by the candidate at the final examination for which he has given notice, on renewing his notice only half the above fee (namely, £5) is payable, but candidates who were exempt from passing the intermediate pay an additional £5 on giving notice for the final examination.

(i) Ibid., r. 7. The examination for honours is a separate examination, held after the final examination (ibid., r. 2). At the honours examination honorary distinctions and prizes are awarded if in the opinion of the Examination Committee the candidates are deserving of such.

being admitted as solicitors, with the following exceptions, namely:— (1) barristers, who, having been practising solicitors, have caused their names to be struck off the roll for the purpose of being called to the Bar, and having practised at the Bar desire to be readmitted on the roll of solicitors (j); and (2) certain colonial solicitors (k). SECT. 3. Examinations.

1183. If the Law Society refuses to grant a certificate of having passed the final examination, an appeal from such decision lies within a month to the Master of the Rolls (l). Appeal.

SECT. 4.—Admission.

1184. Application for admission as a solicitor is made to the Master of the Rolls (m), six weeks' notice at least being given to the Secretary of the Law Society of intention to seek admission. The notice must set forth the name and place of abode of the applicant and of the person or persons with whom he has served his articles, and must be in writing signed by the applicant (n). After the expiration of the period of notice the Master of the Rolls, upon production of the Law Society's certificate that the applicant has passed a final examination, may, by writing under his hand, admit the applicant to be a solicitor (o). Application.

1185. Three weeks before the day of the month named in notices for admission the Law Society must affix in its hall in a conspicuous place an alphabetical list of names of candidates for admission (a). Any person wishing to object to such admission must by writing under his hand give notice thereof to the Law Society, and must send therewith an affidavit setting forth the facts relied upon in support of such objection, and it is the Society's duty to bring such objection to the notice of the Master of the Rolls (b), who thereupon appoints a time for hearing the objection (c) and subsequently hears the same, the applicant, the objector, and the Society being heard personally or by counsel or solicitor (d). If the result of the hearing is that admission is refused, the Master of the Rolls so directs and his order must be filed with the Law Society (e). Screening of notices.

(j) Rules made by the Master of the Rolls, 1889 (under the Solicitors Act, 1888 (51 & 52 Vict. c. 65)), Part IV., rr. 1—4. Such persons desiring readmission must petition the Master of the Rolls on an affidavit of the facts. Six weeks' notice of intention to apply must be given to the Law Society and a copy of the petition sent to the Society.

(k) See p. 722, post.

(l) Solicitors Act, 1877 (40 & 41 Vict. c. 25), s. 9.

(m) Solicitors Act, 1888 (51 & 52 Vict. c. 65), s. 10. As to exemption from this requirement as to admission, see p. 710, ante.

(n) Rules made by the Master of the Rolls, 1889, Part III., r. 1.

(o) Ibid., r. 3. The stamp duty payable upon admission is £25 (Stamp Act, 1891 (54 & 55 Vict. c. 39), Sched. I., title "Admission"), and the fee to the Law Society is £5 (Solicitors Act, 1888 (51 & 52 Vict. c. 65), s. 11). As to change of name, see title NAME AND ARMS, CHANGE OF, Vol. XXI., p. 351; and as to the appointment of a solicitor as a notary, see title NOTARIES, Vol. XXI., pp. 495 et seq.

(a) Rules made by the Master of the Rolls, 1887, Part III, r. 2.

(b) Ibid., r. 4.

(c) Ibid., r. 5.

(d) Ibid., r. 6.

(e) Ibid., r. 7.

SECT. 4. Admission. Readmission.

1186. Any solicitor who has been struck off the rolls at his own request (f) is readmitted as a matter of course if there is no opposition by the Law Society (g).

SECT. 5.—Practising Certificate.

Necessity for certificate.

1187. A solicitor must, as a condition of being at liberty to practise, take out an annual certificate (h), and he cannot maintain an action for the recovery of his costs or disbursements in respect of any work done without a certificate (i), though if he has done the work and has in fact been paid, the money paid cannot be recovered back (k). Similarly, the successful party to any litigation cannot recover any costs or disbursements from the opposite party, if the solicitor acting for him was uncertificated (l), though the actual steps taken by the solicitor on his client's behalf are not invalid (a).

A solicitor to a public department who is by statute authorised to act in that capacity is exempt from the liability to take out an annual certificate (b).

Application for certificate.

1188. To obtain a certificate a declaration must be made by the applicant as to the fact and date of his admission, and as to the situation of his place or places of business (c). If the declaration is not true in any particular the applicant renders himself liable to a penalty of £50, and becomes incapable of maintaining an action for recovery of any fee, reward, or disbursement on account of or in relation to any proceeding done or taken by him in his capacity as a solicitor (d).

(f) As to striking off the rolls, see pp. 848 et seq., post.

(g) Ex parte Clarke (1819), 2 B. & Ald. 314; Ex parte Calland (1818), 2 B. & Ald. 315, n; Re Walshe (1876), 10 I. R. C. L. 165; see Re Pyke (1865), 11 Jur. (N. S.) 504, 860.

(h) Solicitors Act, 1843 (6 & 7 Vict. c. 73), s. 21. A solicitor having a certificate may act as a house agent without taking out a licence; see title REVENUE, Vol. XXIV., pp. 659, 660.

(i) Solicitors Act, 1843 (6 & 7 Vict. c. 73), s. 26; Attorneys and Solicitors Act, 1874 (37 & 38 Vict. c. 68), s. 12; Stamp Act, 1891 (54 & 55 Vict. c. 39), s. 43 (1); see also titles AGENCY, Vol. I., p. 151; COUNTY COURTS, Vol. VIII., p. 584. Such items will not be allowed on taxation, even though the petition for taxation contained a submission to pay (Re Sweeting, [1898] 1 Ch. 268, overruling Re Jones (1869), L. R. 9 Eq. 63; and see Re Hope (1872), 7 Ch. App. 766; —— v. Sexton (1832), 1 Dowl. 180). It is immaterial that the omission to take out a certificate was due to inadvertence and was subsequently remedied (Kent v. Ward (1894), 70 L. T. 612, C. A.; Browne v. Barber, [1913] 2 K. B. 523, C. A.).

(k) Fullalove v. Parker (1862), 12 C. B. (N. S.) 246. But the solicitor cannot retain his costs and disbursements out of moneys of the client in his hands (Browne v. Barber, supra).

(l) Fowler v. Monmouthshire Canal Co. (1879), 4 Q. B. D. 334, overruling Reeder v. Bloom (1825), 3 Bing. 9. The same principle applies, though the uncertificated solicitor really acting used the name of a certificated solicitor (Irvin v. Sanger (1888), 58 L. J. (Q. B.) 64).

(a) Sparling v. Brereton (1866), L. R. 2 Eq. 64.

(b) Stamp Act, 1891 (54 & 55 Vict. c. 39), s. 43 (2); see p. 710, ante; title CONSTITUTIONAL LAW, Vol. VII., p. 77.

(c) Solicitors Act, 1843 (6 & 7 Vict. c. 73), s. 23; Solicitors Act, 1860 (23 & 24 Vict. c. 127), s. 19. For the form of declaration, see Solicitors Act, 1877 (40 & 41 Vict. c. 25), Sched. I., Form (B).

(d) Stamp Act, 1891 (54 & 55 Vict. c. 39), s. 43 (1).

SECT. 5. Practising Certificate.

Issue of certificate.

1189. Practising certificates are of two kinds, London certificates and country certificates (e). They are issued by the Law Society as Registrar of Solicitors (f). They are stamped by the Commissioners of Inland Revenue at Somerset House, London (g). Particulars of all certificates stamped between the 15th November in each year and the following 2nd January are supplied by the Commissioners of Inland Revenue to the Law Society (h). Certificates stamped on or after the 15th November and before the 16th December are dated the 16th November, and take effect from that day; if stamped afterwards, they take effect on the day on which they are stamped (i). Any certificate stamped after the 1st January in any year must be produced to the Law Society for registration within a month of the payment of the duty; any certificate not so produced is only evidence of qualification to practise as from the date of its production, unless an order to the contrary is made by the Master of the Rolls or a judge (k). The Law List, being a list of solicitors published by the authority of the Commissioners of Inland Revenue, is primâ facie evidence that every solicitor whose name appears therein for the current year (l) is entitled to practise (m). A solicitor whose name does not appear in the list must prove his right to practise by producing an extract from the roll certified under the hand of the Secretary of the Law Society (n).

Renewal.

1190. If a solicitor who has obtained a practising certificate neglects for twelve months after its expiration to renew it (o), or if he is an undischarged bankrupt (p), the Law Society may, on application

(e) As to this distinction, see p. 844, post.

(f) Solicitors Act, 1843 (6 & 7 Vict. c. 73), s. 21. For the form of certificate, see Solicitors Act, 1877 (40 & 41 Vict. c. 25), Sched. I., Form (A). A fee of 5*s*. is payable to the Law Society (Solicitors Act, 1860 (23 & 24 Vict. c. 127), s. 20).

(g) Solicitors Act, 1860 (23 & 24 Vict. c. 127), s. 18. The stamp duty upon such certificate is, for solicitors practising in London for the first three years from the date of being admitted, enrolled, or beginning to carry on business, £4 10*s*., and thereafter £9, and if not practising within ten miles of the General Post Office, London, £3 for the first three years, and £6 thereafter (Stamp Act, 1891 (54 & 55 Vict. c. 39), s. 43 (3)), Sched. I., title "Certificate"). As to London agents of solicitors taking out country certificates, see pp. 844 et seq., post.

(h) Solicitors Act, 1860 (23 & 24 Vict. c. 127), s. 21.

(i) Ibid., s. 22.

(k) Ibid., s. 21; compare Re Smith (1863), 33 Beav. 248.

(l) R. v. Wenham (1866), 10 Cox, C. C. 222. A misstatement in the Law List as to the date of admission of a solicitor whose name appears therein is not a libel (Raven v. Stevens & Sons (1886), 3 T. L. R. 67).

(m) Solicitors Act, 1860 (23 & 24 Vict. c. 127), s. 22.

(n) Ibid.; the stamped certificate is accepted in practice.

(o) Solicitors Act, 1888 (51 & 52 Vict. c. 65), s. 16. Six weeks' notice of intention to make the application must be given to the Law Society, unless such notice is dispensed with by the Law Society, or by the Master of the Rolls (ibid.). For instances of applications for renewal, see Re Elton (1868), 37 L. J. (CH.) 482; Ex parte Gray (1847), 12 Jur. 119. No action will lie against the Law Society for refusing to issue the certificate without proof of malice (Newson v. Law Society (1912), 57 Sol. Jo. 80, C. A., where the solicitor applied after the expiration of the period during which he was suspended from practice by order of the court).

(p) Solicitors Act, 1906 (6 Edw. 7, c. 24), s. 1, applying the Solicitors Act, 1888 (51 & 52 Vict. c. 65), s. 16. The Law Society is empowered to inspect without fee the file of proceedings in bankruptcy relating to any being made for a renewal, refuse to renew it. An appeal lies to the Master of the Rolls against any such refusal (q). Any such appeal must be brought by petition, supported by affidavit of the facts; copies of the petition and affidavit must be served upon the Law Society two days after they have been lodged at the Central Office (r).

SECT. 5. Practising Certificate.

SECT. 6.—Colonial Solicitors.

Colonial solicitors.

1191. A solicitor of a superior court in a British possession named from time to time by Order in Council (s), who has been in practice before such court for not less than three years, may, on giving notice and proof of his qualifications, be admitted a solicitor of the Supreme Court on payment of the prescribed amount for stamp duty and fees (t). The Order in Council may, and in practice does, enable the solicitor to be admitted without examination and without service under articles. No colonial solicitor can be admitted to practise in England if he has already been admitted to practise in any other part of the United Kingdom, so long as he remains a solicitor there (u).

Part III.—Rights and Privileges of Solicitors.

SECT. 1.—Right to Practise.

In what courts.

1192. All persons admitted as solicitors are entitled on taking out an annual certificate and paying the proper duty upon their solicitor against whom bankruptcy proceedings have been taken and to be supplied with office copies on payment of the usual charge.

(q) Solicitors Act, 1888 (51 & 52 Vict. c. 65), s. 16.

(r) Rules made by the Master of the Rolls, 1889.

(s) The regulations respecting the admission of solicitors in the British possession in question must secure that such solicitors possess proper qualifications and competency, and English solicitors must be given equally favourable terms of admission there (Colonial Solicitors Act, 1900 (63 & 64 Vict. c. 14), s. 1), and Orders in Council applying the Act to particular colonies or dependencies have been made as follows, namely:—New South Wales, 26th September, 1901; Ceylon, Straits Settlements, Queensland, Hong Kong and Natal, 4th November, 1901; South Australia, 4th November, 1901; Barbados, 24th April, 1902; Tasmania, 12th March, 1903; New Zealand, 7th March, 1904; Jamaica, 16th May, 1904; Madras, 24th October, 1904; Bombay, 27th March, 1905; Bengal, 7th August, 1905; Victoria, 7th August, 1905; Transvaal, 16th February, 1906; Cape of Good Hope, 26th March, 1907; see Stat. R. & O. Rev., Vol. XI., Solicitors, Colonies, pp. 9 et seq.

(t) Colonial Solicitors Act, 1900 (63 & 64 Vict. c. 14), s. 1. The Order in Council states that the admission of the applicant must be stamped with the stamp required to be impressed on the admission of English solicitors, i.e., £25, and must be impressed with such further stamp as shall, together with the amount of stamps paid on articles of clerkship and admission in the colony (such amount being certified by a judge of the colony, in the form prescribed by the Order), be equal in amount to the sum payable on articles in England, i.e., £80. The fee to the Law Society is £5.

(u) Colonial Solicitors Act, 1900 (63 & 64 Vict. c. 14), s. 6.

SECT. 1. Right to Practise.

certificate (a) to practise (1) in the High Court of Justice, the Court of Appeal, and the House of Lords (b); (2) in the Privy Council, on signing a declaration without fee (c); (3) in all ecclesiastical courts, and before all persons having authority in matters ecclesiastical, and in all matters relating to applications to obtain notarial faculties (d); (4) in any inferior court (including county courts and courts sitting in bankruptcy), on signing the roll of the particular court in which they propose to exercise such right (e). In the case of a county court no fee is payable (f). In the Mayor's Court, London, in additition to signing the roll, the solicitor must pay a fee of 5*s*. before practising; otherwise it is doubtful whether, in the event of success in the suit, he will be entitled to recover his costs against the losing party (g).

The right to practise in inferior courts may be enforced by mandamus (h) and, in the case of a county court, perhaps, by application to the High Court by motion supported by an affidavit of the facts, whereupon a summons may issue to the county court judge requiring him to show cause why the solicitor should not be permitted to practise in the county court in question (i).

SECT. 2.—Right of Audience.

1193. Solicitors have the right of audience (k) in the following cases, namely:—

(1) Before the Appeal Committee of the House of Lords, from which counsel are excluded (l); House of Lords.

(2) In bankruptcy matters in the High Court, including the examination and representation of witnesses before the registrar (m), High Court.

(a) See pp. 720, 721, ante.

(b) Judicature Act, 1873 (36 & 37 Vict. c. 66), s. 87. As to these courts, see title COURTS, Vol. IX., pp. 22, 23, 52 et seq., 62 et seq.

(c) Order in Council of the 31st March, 1870, r. 2; see title COURTS, Vol. IX., pp. 27 et seq.

(d) Solicitors Act, 1877 (40 & 41 Vict. c. 25), s. 17; see titles ECCLESIASTICAL LAW, Vol. XI., pp. 499 et seq.; NOTARIES, Vol. XXI., pp. 494 et seq.

(e) Solicitors Act, 1843 (6 & 7 Vict. c. 73), s. 27.

(f) County Court Rules, Ord. 54, r. 7.

(g) Glyn and Jackson's Mayor's Court Practice, 3rd ed., p. 4; see, generally, title MAYOR'S COURT, LONDON, Vol. XX., pp. 283 et seq.

(h) Re Hope (1872), 7 Ch. App. 766; R. v. London Corporation (1847), 13 Q. B. 1. As to mandamus generally, see title CROWN PRACTICE, Vol. X., pp. 77 et seq.

(i) County Courts Act, 1888 (51 & 52 Vict. c. 43), s. 131; see R. v. Greenwich County Court Registrar (1885), 15 Q. B. D. 54, C. A.

(k) Compare title BARRISTERS, Vol. II., pp. 370 et seq. In matters of urgency a solicitor may be heard in the absence of counsel; see Marsh v. Joseph, [1897] 1 Ch. 213, C. A., per KEKEWICH, J., at p. 230; Doxford & Sons, Ltd. v. Sea Shipping Co. (1897), 14 T. L. R. 111; and compare Butterworth v. Butterworth and Queenan (1913), 57 Sol. Jo. 266.

(l) Directions for Agents in House of Lords, No. 20. As to the Appeal Committee, see title PARLIAMENT, Vol. XXI., p. 642; as to its functions, see ibid., pp. 644, note (q), 647.

(m) Bankruptcy Act, 1883 (46 & 47 Vict. c. 52), s. 151; Re Greys Brewery Co. (1883), 25 Ch. D. 400; and see title BANKRUPTCY AND INSOLVENCY, Vol. II., p. 141, note (t).

SECT. 2. Right of Audience.

and also appeals in bankruptcy to the divisional courts from county courts, having and exercising jurisdiction in bankruptcy (n): their right of audience is, however, limited to the High Court, and does not extend to the Court of Appeal (o);

(3) In chambers in the High Court: their right of audience may be exercised personally or by any of their clerks (p) before the masters, taxing masters, and registrars of the Supreme Court (q), and also before the judge sitting in chambers (r);

(4) Before the official referees of the High Court (s);

Palatine courts.

(5) In chambers in the Court of Chancery of the County Palatine of Durham (t);

(6) In chambers in the Palatine Court of Lancaster (u);

County court.

(7) In all county courts, including under that denomination the City of London Court (a): the solicitor desiring to appear and conduct the case in court must be the solicitor acting generally in the action or matter; his managing clerk, although he is a duly qualified solicitor and has had the general management of the proceedings in the action for the client, is not entitled to address the court without the leave of the judge (b);

Other courts etc.

(8) Before ecclesiastical courts in certain cases (c);

(9) At quarter sessions, where barristers do not attend (d);

(10) At petty sessions: in proceedings for summary conviction before justices of the peace both prosecution and defence may be represented by a solicitor acting as advocate (e), but in preliminary (n) Re Barnett, Ex parte Reynolds (1885), 15 Q. B. D. 169, C. A.

(o) Re Elderton, Ex parte Russell, [1887] W. N. 21, C. A.; see title BARRISTERS, Vol. II., p. 372.

(p) Re Bethlehem and Bridewell Hospitals (1885), 30 Ch. D. 541; and see title PRACTICE AND PROCEDURE, Vol. XXIII., pp. 126 et seq.

(q) R. S. C., Ord. 56, r. 7.

(r) See R. S. C., Ord. 55, r. 1A; Ord. 65, r. 27 (16).

(s) There is no provision made for this right either by statute or rule of court, but as it is not specifically excluded it is submitted that it exists. As to the official referees, see title COURTS, Vol. IX., p. 66.

(t) Information furnished by the registrar; as to this court, see title COURTS, Vol. IX., pp. 125, 126.

(u) Information furnished by the registrar; as to this court, see title COURTS, Vol. IX., pp. 120 et seq.

(a) County Courts Act, 1888 (51 & 52 Vict. c. 43), ss. 72, 185; see title COUNTY COURTS, Vol. VIII., p. 412.

(b) County Courts Act, 1888 (51 & 52 Vict. c. 43), s. 72; R. v. Oxfordshire County Court Judge, [1894] 2 Q. B. 440; and see title COUNTY COURTS, Vol. VIII., p. 525, note (q).

(c) Public Worship Regulation Act, 1874 (37 & 38 Vict. c. 85), s. 11. As to Ecclesiastical Courts, see title ECCLESIASTICAL LAW, Vol. XI., pp. 499 et seq.

(d) Bott's Case (1889), 24 L. J. N. C. 28; and see titles BARRISTERS, Vol. II., p. 374; MAGISTRATES, Vol., XIX., p. 641.

(e) Summary Jurisdiction Act, 1848 (11 & 12 Vict. c. 43), ss. 10, 11; R. v. Griffiths and Williams (1886), 16 Cox, C. C. 46; see title MAGISTRATES, Vol. XIX., pp. 591, 596. Magistrates have no power to act upon a resolution passed by them prohibiting a solicitor who has been ordered to leave the court for making objectionable remarks from appearing before them until the remarks were withdrawn, and they are bound to hear him in any case in which he is professionally engaged (R. v. Cork County Justices (1913), 48 L. J. 389). As to the disability of a solicitor inquiries before magistrates, otherwise than in summary conviction cases, the prisoner has no right to be represented by an advocate at all (f), although as a matter of courtesy it is the invariable rule to hear either barrister or solicitor as the accused may wish (g);

(11) In the Mayor's Court, London, the right of audience being limited to matters collateral heard in chambers and to the hearing of judgment summonses (h);

(12) In the Worcester Court of Pleas (i);

(13) Before the Registrar of the Land Registry (j);

(14) In arbitrations under the Workmen's Compensation Act, 1906 (k);

(15) Before revising barristers (l);

(16) Before the statutory committee of the Law Society (m);

(17) Before the Escheat Commissioners (n);

(18). Before the Railway and Canal Commissioners (o); and

(19) Before the Commissioners of Income Tax and House Duties (p).

Parliamentary commission.

1194. Solicitors are sometimes allowed to examine and cross-examine witnesses at an inquiry held under a parliamentary commission, but it does not appear that they have any right to do so (q).

to practise before justices of a particular county of which he or his partner is assigned to the commission of the peace, see title MAGISTRATES, Vol. XIX., pp. 550, 551; and compare title INTOXICATING LIQUORS, Vol. XVIII., p. 54.

(f) Cox v. Coleridge (1822), 1 B. & C. 37, 49; R. v. Borron (1820), 3 B. & Ald. 432, 439.

(g) See, generally, title MAGISTRATES, Vol. XIX., pp. 559 et seq., 565 et seq.

(h) Glyn and Jackson's Mayor's Court Practice, 3rd ed., p. 4; see, generally, title MAYOR'S COURT, LONDON, Vol. XX., pp. 283 et seq.

(i) 29 L. J. 17; see title COURTS, Vol. IX., pp. 212, 213.

(j) Land Transfer Rules, 1903, r. 337 (Stat. R. & O. Rev., Vol. XII., Land (Registration), England, pp. 38, 39). As to the judicial functions of the registrar, see ibid.; title REAL PROPERTY AND CHATTELS REAL, Vol. XXIV., p. 316.

(k) 6 Edw. 7, c. 58; see Workmen's Compensation Rules, 1907, r. 33 (1) (Stat. R. & O., 1907, p. 53); see title MASTER AND SERVANT, Vol. XX., pp. 209 et seq., 222.

(l) See title ELECTIONS, Vol XII., pp. 219 et seq.

(m) Rules made by the Master of the Rolls, 1889, Part I., r. 5; see p. 852, post; title BARRISTERS, Vol. II., p. 375; compare title MEDICINE AND PHARMACY, Vol. XX., pp. 323, 363.

(n) Escheat Procedure Rules, 1889, r. 6 (Stat. R. & O. Rev., Vol. IV., Escheat, England, p. 1); see title CROWN PRACTICE, Vol. X., pp. 35 et seq.

(o) Railway and Canal Traffic Act, 1888 (51 & 52 Vict. c. 25), s. 50.

(p) See Finance Act, 1898 (61 & 62 Vict. c. 10), s. 16, repealing the Taxes Management Act, 1880 (43 & 44 Vict. c. 19), s. 57 (9); see titles INCOME TAX, Vol. XVI., p. 681; INHABITED HOUSE DUTY, Vol. XVII., p. 189. As to solicitors appearing before coroners, see title CORONERS, Vol. VIII., p. 258; and before courts-martial, see title ROYAL FORCES, Vol. XXV., pp. 13, 46.

(q) See Belfast Riots Commission Case (1886), 21 L. J. N. C. 556, per DAY, J.

SECT. 3. Privileges.

SECT. 3.—Privileges.

Disclosure.

1195. A solicitor (r) cannot be compelled, without the permission of his client, to disclose any confidential communications, whether verbal or in writing, which pass either directly or indirectly between his client and himself in his professional capacity in the course of his legitimate representation of the client (s). This privilege is the privilege of the client, and cannot be set up by the solicitor for his own benefit and against the client's interest (t).

Defamation.

1196. A solicitor acting as advocate is not liable to an action for libel or slander in respect of words written or spoken by him in the course of a judicial inquiry, however improper or even malicious his behaviour may have been, such words being absolutely privileged on grounds of public policy (u).

Exemptions from public offices.

1197. A duly qualified and practising solicitor is exempt from the necessity of performing any personal service which would interfere with his duties as an officer of the court (v). He is, therefore, not bound to take office under a municipal corporation (w), or to act as overseer of a parish (x), as a churchwarden (y), or as rent collector by manorial custom (a); nor is he bound to serve on a jury (b), or coroner's jury (c).

Freedom from arrest.

1198. A solicitor whilst engaged in his professional duties in going to or coming from the place of trial on behalf of a client is privileged from arrest on civil but not on criminal process (d).

(r) Compare title BARRISTERS, Vol. II., p. 389.

(s) For full statements of the law relating to legal professional privilege, see titles DISCOVERY, INSPECTION, AND INTERROGATORIES, Vol. XI., pp. 72 et seq.; EVIDENCE, Vol. XIII., pp. 571, 572, 581. As to the client's right to restrain his solicitor from making improper use of or disclosing information obtained by him in his professional capacity, see p. 735, post; title INJUNCTION, Vol. XVII., pp. 254, 255. As to the privilege of solicitors when acting as agents for parties to election petitions, see title ELECTIONS, Vol. XII., pp. 467, 468. A solicitor cannot refuse to disclose the address of a ward of court; see title INFANTS AND CHILDREN, Vol. XVII., p. 147.

(t) Minet v. Morgan (1873), 8 Ch. App. 361; Lawrence v. Campbell (1859), 4 Drew. 485, 490; Greenough v. Gaskell (1833), 1 My. & K. 98.

(u) Munster v. Lamb (1883), 11 Q. B. D. 588, 599; see title LIBEL AND SLANDER, Vol. XVIII., p. 678.

(v) Gerard's Case (1777), 2 Wm. Bl. 1123, and cases there cited. As to a solicitor as justice of the peace, see title MAGISTRATES, Vol. XIX., pp. 550, 551.

(w) Norwich Corporation v. Berry (1767), 1 Wm. Bl. 636.

(x) Ex parte Jefferies (1829), 6 Bing. 195.

(y) 2 Roll. Abr. 272.

(a) Stone's Case (1669), 1 Vent. 16.

(b) Juries Act, 1825 (6 Geo. 4, c. 50), s. 2; Juries Act, 1870 (33 & 34 Vict. c. 77), s. 9, and Schedule. The exemption extends to solicitors' managing clerks (ibid.); and see title JURIES, Vol. XVIII., p. 231.

(c) Re Dutton, [1892] 1 Q. B. 486.

(d) Re Freston (1883), 11 Q. B. D. 545, C. A.; Re Douglas (1842), 3 Q. B. 825. See, further, titles CONTEMPT OF COURT, ATTACHMENT, AND COMMITTAL, Vol. VII., p. 294; EVIDENCE, Vol. XIII., pp. 585, note (o), 586, note (q); SHERIFFS AND BAILIFFS, Vol. XXV., pp. 818, 819; PARLIAMENT, Vol. XXI., p. 781. This privilege does not extend to the solicitor's clerk

Appointments confined to solicitors.

1199. A solicitor is eligible for appointment to the following offices:—(1) master of the Supreme Court (Chancery Division), who must have practised for at least ten years before appointment (e); (2) first-class clerk in the Chancery registrar's office, who must have been admitted a solicitor or have served not less than five years under articles (f); (3) registrar or deputy-registrar of a county court, who must be a solicitor of at least five years' standing (g); (4) clerk to a stipendiary magistrate, who must be in actual practice (h); (5) registrar in the Salford Hundred Court (i); (6) commissioner for oaths, who must have been in continuous practice for not less than six years except where special circumstances are shown (k).

Appointments open to solicitors.

1200. Certain offices may be held by duly qualified solicitors, but barristers and other fit and proper persons are also eligible for appointment (l). These offices are:—(1) master of the Supreme Court (King's Bench Division), who, if a solicitor, must be of five years' standing (m); (2) official referee, who, if a solicitor, must be of ten years' standing (n); (3) chief clerk in the metropolitan police courts (o); (4) clerk of assize, who, if a solicitor, must have been in actual practice for three years (p); (5) clerk to justices (q), including borough justices (r); (6) clerk of the peace for a county (s), or for a borough (t); (7) clerk to the guardians of a union or rural district authority (u); (8) clerk to a vestry (v); (9) perpetual commissioner (w); (10) director of public

(Phillips v. Pound (1852), 7 Exch. 881). As to the privilege of a solicitor to be sued in the High Court, see Day v. Ward (1886), 17 Q. B. D. 703.

(e) Court of Chancery Act, 1852 (15 & 16 Vict. c. 80), ss. 17, 20; see title COURTS, Vol. IX., p. 68.

(f) Court of Chancery Act, 1841 (5 Vict. c. 5), ss. 41, 42.

(g) County Courts Act, 1888 (51 & 52 Vict. c. 43), ss. 25, 31, 32. As to his disqualification from practising in a county court, see title COUNTY COURTS, Vol. VIII., p. 423.

(h) Stipendiary Magistrates Act, 1863 (26 & 27 Vict. c. 97), s. 6; compare title MAGISTRATES, Vol. XIX., pp. 547, 612, 616, 617.

(i) Salford Hundred Court of Record Act, 1868 (31 & 32 Vict. c. cxxx.), s. 22.

(k) Commissioners for Oaths Act, 1889 (52 & 53 Vict. c. 10), s. 1 (1); R. S. C., Ord. 38, rr. 16, 17; Northumberland (Duke) v. Todd (1878), 7 Ch. D. 777. As to the holder of the commission being entitled to act under it so long as he continues to practise as a solicitor, see Ward v. Gamgee (1891), 40 W. R. 39; Shrapnell v. Gamgee (1891), 8 T. L. R. 9.

(l) Compare title BARRISTERS, Vol. II., pp. 381 et seq.

(m) Judicature (Officers) Act, 1879 (42 & 43 Vict. c. 78), s. 10; see title COURTS, Vol. IX., p. 67.

(n) See title COURTS, Vol. IX., p. 66.

(o) Metropolitan Police Courts Acts, 1839 (2 & 3 Vict. c. 71), s. 5; 1840 (3 & 4 Vict. c. 84), s. 7.

(p) Clerks of Assize, etc. Act, 1869 (32 & 33 Vict. c. 89), s. 3.

(q) Justices Clerks Act, 1877 (40 & 41 Vict. c. 43), s. 7 (2).

(r) Municipal Corporations Act, 1882 (45 & 46 Vict. c. 50), s. 159 (1), (2).

(s) Local Government Act, 1888 (51 & 52 Vict. c. 41), s. 83.

(t) Municipal Corporations Act, 1882 (45 & 46 Vict. c. 50), s. 124.

(u) Local Government Act, 1894 (56 & 57 Vict. c. 73), ss. 20—24; and see as to unqualified persons appearing before justices, the Poor Law Amendment Act, 1844 (7 & 8 Vict. c. 101), s. 68.

(v) Vestries Act, 1850 (13 & 14 Vict. c. 57), s. 6.

(w) Judicature Act, 1881 (44 & 45 Vict. c. 68), s. 26.

SECT. 3. Privileges.

prosecutions, who, if a solicitor, must be of ten years' standing (x); (11) assistant director of public prosecutions, who, if a solicitor, must be of seven years' standing (y); (12) taxing master (z); (13) district registrar of the Supreme Court, who, if a solicitor, must be of not less than five years' standing (a); (14) judge of inferior courts of record and his deputy or assessor (b); (15) registrar or assistant or deputy registrar in the Admiralty Division, who, if a solicitor, must be of ten years' standing (c); (16) examiner in the Admiralty Division (d); (17) registrar in the Probate and Divorce Division (e); (18) assistant registrar under the Land Transfer Act, 1875 (f), who, if a solicitor, must be of five years' standing (g); (19) district registrar under the Land Transfer Act, 1875 (f), who, if a solicitor, must be of ten years' standing, and assistant district registrar, who must be of five years' standing (h); (20) registrar or deputy-registrar of the Yorkshire District Land Registry, who, if a solicitor, must be of seven years' standing and in actual practice at the time of his appointment (i); (21) registrar or official receiver in bankruptcy (k); (22) town clerk of a borough (l); (23) under-sheriff (m); (24) deputy coroner in a borough (n).

Part IV.—Solicitor and Client.

SECT. 1.—Retainer.

SUB-SECT. 1.—What Constitutes a Retainer.

Principles governing retainer.

1201. The contract between a solicitor and his client arises when the client gives the solictor a retainer to act on his behalf, the rights

(x) Prosecution of Offences Act, 1879 (42 & 43 Vict. c. 22), s. 2.
(y) Ibid., s. 4.
(z) Judicature (Officers) Act, 1879 (42 & 43 Vict. c. 78), s. 11, Sched. II. No particular qualification is prescribed; see title COURTS, Vol. IX., p. 68.
(a) Judicature Acts, 1873 (36 & 37 Vict. c. 66), s. 60; 1875 (38 & 39 Vict. c. 77), s. 13; 1881 (44 & 45 Vict. c. 68), s. 22.
(b) Small Debts Act, 1845 (8 & 9 Vict. c. 127), ss. 9, 12; Borough and Local Courts of Record Act, 1872 (35 & 36 Vict. c. 86), s. 12.
(c) Admiralty Court Act, 1861 (24 & 25 Vict. c. 10), s. 27.
(d) Ibid., s. 28.
(e) Court of Probate Act, 1858 (21 & 22 Vict. c. 95), s. 20.
(f) 38 & 39 Vict. c. 87.
(g) Ibid., s. 106.
(h) Ibid., s. 119.
(i) Yorkshire Registries Act, 1884 (47 & 48 Vict. c. 54), s. 37 (1), (3).
(k) If he is a solicitor, he is prohibited from acting either directly or indirectly by himself, his clerk, or partner in any proceeding in bankruptcy or in any prosecution of a debtor by order of the court (Bankruptcy Act, 1883 (46 & 47 Vict. c. 52), s. 116 (2)).
(l) Municipal Corporations Act, 1882 (45 & 46 Vict. c. 50), ss. 17, 18.
(m) Sheriffs Act, 1887 (50 & 51 Vict. c. 55), s. 27 (1).
(n) Municipal Corporations Act, 1882 (45 & 46 Vict. c. 50), s. 172. As to the qualifications of a coroner, see title CORONERS, Vol. VIII., pp. 218, 219, 226. As to a coroner practising as a solicitor, see Coroners Act, 1887 (50 & 51 Vict. c. 71), s. 10.

and liabilities of the parties depending partly upon the terms of the retainer and partly upon the various statutory provisions dealing with the relations of solicitors and their clients inter se (o). By the giving and acceptance of the retainer the solicitor acquires his authority to act for and bind the client, and the client becomes bound both personally as between himself and his solicitor and as between his solicitor and third parties.

Form of retainer.

1202. A retainer need not be in writing (p), unless the business to which it relates cannot be performed within the period of one year from its date (q). It is, however, highly desirable for the sake of both solicitor and client that the retainer should be reduced into writing, so that its terms may be perfectly clear and beyond dispute (r). This is particularly the case where the original retainer has been revoked by writing, and a new retainer has been subsequently given (s); or where the solicitor commences legal proceedings on his client's behalf (t), since if the solicitor's authority is disputed he must prove it strictly (a). If, therefore, there is no evidence of retainer except the statement of the solicitor, which is contradicted by the client, the court will treat the solicitor as having acted without authority from the client (b). Where there is no written retainer, the court may imply the existence of a retainer from the conduct of the client in the particular case (c). Thus, where a fund has been received out of court by the client through an action (d), or where the client otherwise takes the benefit of an Retainer by conduct.

(o) As to the relationship between solicitor and client as regards limitation of actions, see title LIMITATION OF ACTIONS, Vol. XIX., p. 166; as to the consequences where a solicitor acts without a retainer, see pp. 741, 742, 833, 835, post.

(p) Owen v. Ord (1828), 3 C. & P. 349; Wiggins v. Peppin (1837), 2 Beav. 403; Bird v. Harris, [1881] W. N. 5, C. A.; but see p. 731, post. As to the appointment of a solicitor to a corporation, see title CORPORATIONS, Vol. VIII., p. 381.

(q) Statute of Frauds (29 Car. 2, c. 3), s. 4; Eley v. Positive Assurance Co. (1875), 1 Ex. D. 20. As to the necessity for writing where the retainer is in the nature of a guarantee or where the work is done for two clients, but not for their joint benefit, see Tomlinson v. Gell (1837), 6 Ad. & El. 564; Hellings v. Gregory (1825), 1 C. & P. 627.

(r) Owen v. Ord, supra, per Lord TENTERDEN, C.J.

(s) Re Hincks, [1867] W. N. 291.

(t) Wright v. Castle (1817), 3 Mer. 12; Re Gray, Gray v. Coles (1891), 65 L. T. 743.

(a) Gray v. Wainman (1823), 7 Moore (C. P.), 467; Moore v. Prance (1851), 9 Hare, 299; Blyth v. Fladgate, Morgan v. Blyth, Smith v. Blyth, [1891] 1 Ch. 337.

(b) Allen v. Bone (1841), 4 Beav. 493, per Lord LANGDALE, M.R.; Re Paine (1912), 28 T. L. R. 201, following Crossley v. Crowther (1851), 9 Hare, 384; see also Wiggins v. Peppin, supra; Atkinson v. Abbott (1855), 25 L. T. (o. s.) 314; Re Gray, Ex parte Incorporated Law Society (1869), 20 L. T. 730; Bird v. Harris, supra; Re Wooding, Ex parte Coates (1834), 3 Deac. & Ch. 626; Wilson v. Wilson (1820), 1 Jac. & W. 457.

(c) See the cases cited in note (d), infra, notes (e)—(h), p. 730, post.

(d) Blyth v. Fladgate, Morgan v. Blyth, Smith v. Blyth, supra, per STIRLING, J., at p. 359; and see Gray v. Wainman, supra; Moore v. Prance, supra; Fergus Navigation and Embankment Co. v. Kingdon (1861), 4 L. T. 262, where the solicitor for a company acted on the instructions of one director only.

SECT. 1. Retainer.

action instituted by the solicitor without his authority (e), the solicitor concerned will be presumed to have had the client's instructions to act in the action, and the client cannot escape liability for his share of the costs incurred on the ground that the action was instituted or his name used without his authority. In the case of an intestate estate, however, in order to make the administrator liable for services rendered by the solicitor before letters of administration were granted, it must be shown not only that the services were for the benefit of the estate, but that they were rendered under a contract with someone who subsequently became authorised to bind the estate and ratified the contract (f). On the other hand, the mere fact that a person whose name is used as a co-plaintiff without his authority acquiesces in its use and does not take any active step to have his name expunged as plaintiff from the record is not, as regards the solicitor, equivalent to a retainer or an adoption of the solicitor, so as to render the person whose name is so used liable to the solicitor for his share of the costs (g). As regards third persons, however, acquiescence with knowledge is equivalent to a ratification of the solicitor's act (h).

Retainer by partner etc.

1203. As a general rule one person has no authority to retain a solicitor to act on another person's behalf (i). Such an authority may, however, be expressly conferred (k), or may be implied from the relations between the parties (l). Thus a partner, even although dormant and retiring from the firm before completion of the work charged for, may instruct a solicitor to sue a debtor to the firm and bind his firm for costs (m); and the managing partner of a business firm may employ a solicitor to defend an action against the firm for goods supplied in the ordinary course of business (n).

Joint and several retainers.

1204. Retainers by two or more persons may be either joint or several; in the former case each party is liable for the whole of the costs incurred for the benefit of himself or any of the other parties to it (o), whilst in the latter case each party is only liable for (e) Hall v. Laver (1842), 1 Hare, 571.

(f) Re Watson, Ex parte Phillips (1886), 18 Q. B. D. 116, C. A.

(g) Hall v. Laver, supra.

(h) Reynolds v. Howell (1873), L. R. 8 Q. B. 398, 400; Robson v. Eaton (1785), 1 Term Rep. 62; and see Bolden v. Nicholay (1857), 3 Jur. (N. S.) 884.

(i) Chivers v. Fenn (1681), 2 Show. 161; Roe v. Doe (1736), Barnes, 39; Wiggins v. Peppin (1839), 2 Beav. 403; Yonge v. Toynbee, [1910] 1 K. B. 215, C. A. As to the right of justices to retain a solicitor to act in a licensing appeal, see title INTOXICATING LIQUORS, Vol. XVIII., p. 84.

(k) Pickford v. Ewington (1835), 4 Dowl. 453; May v. Sherwin (1883), 27 Sol. Jo. 278, C. A.

(l) As to the maxim delegatus non potest delegare and its exceptions, see title AGENCY, Vol. I., p. 169. As to the employment of London agents, see pp. 844 et seq., post; and compare title PARTNERSHIP, Vol. XXII., pp. 37, 38, 76.

(m) Court v. Berlin, [1897] 2 Q. B. 396, C. A.

(n) Tomlimson v. Broadsmith, [1896] 1 Q. B. 386, C. A.

(o) Burridge v. Bellew (1875), 32 L. T. 807.

his proportion of the costs incurred on behalf of all (p). Where, however, a retainer joint in form is in fact joint and several, and the work done enures for the benefit of all, as for instance in a partition suit, each party to it will be liable for the whole costs incurred (q).

Retainer at salary.

1205. A retainer of a solicitor to act for a term certain at a salary or for a fixed sum is perfectly good; but it must be in writing (a). A retainer at a fixed salary only gives the solicitor the right to sue for and recover the salary; he cannot insist upon acting for the client or upon being furnished with work to do (b).

Retainer by infant.

1206. A retainer given by an infant has no legal effect (c) unless the services to be rendered under it are "necessaries" (d). Thus, the preparation or settlement of the terms of a proper marriage settlement may properly be undertaken on a retainer by an infant (e).

Retainer by married woman.

1207. A married woman may retain a solicitor in two capacities, namely:—(1) on her own behalf, with the intention of binding her separate estate (f); and (2) in a proper case for her benefit, but as agent for her husband (g), as, for instance, where she is a party to a divorce suit, either as petitioner or respondent (h), or where she is compelled to seek the assistance of the court against her husband (i).

(p) Re Colquhoun, Ex parte Ford (1854), 5 De G. M. & G. 35, C. A.; Re Allen, Davies v. Chatwood (1879), 11 Ch. D. 244.

(q) Furlong v. Scallan (1875), 9 I. R. Eq. 202.

(a) Attorneys and Solicitors Act, 1870 (33 & 34 Vict. c. 28), ss. 4—8; Solicitors Remuneration Act, 1881 (44 & 45 Vict. c. 44), s. 8.

(b) Emmens v. Elderton (1853), 4 H. L. Cas. 624; Galloway v. London Corporation (1867), L. R. 4 Eq. 90; Rees v. Williams (1875), L. R. 10 Exch. 200; Re Galland (1885), 31 Ch. D. 296, C. A.; but see Montforts v. Marsden, [1895] 1 Ch. 11, C. A.

(c) Oliver v. Woodroffe (1839), 4 M. & W. 650; Biddell v. Dowse (1827), 6 B. & C. 255; Walkden v. Hartley and Cavell (1886), 81 L. T. Jo. 177. As to the liability of a next friend for costs incurred on behalf of an infant, see title INFANTS AND CHILDREN, Vol. XVII., pp. 135, 139; as to the liability of a guardian ad litem, see ibid., p. 144. As to a solicitor acting in proceedings by the next friend of an infant, see ibid., p. 134, note (e).

(d) See ibid., p. 68.

(e) Helps v. Clayton (1864), 17 C. B. (N. S.) 553.

(f) See Married Women's Property Act, 1893 (56 & 57 Vict. c. 63), ss. 1, 2; Hood Barrs v. Cathcart, [1894] 3 Ch. 376, C. A.; Colyer v. Isaacs (1897), 77 L. T. 19, C. A. As to when a charging order will be made against property restrained from anticipation, see Re Keane, Lumley v. Desborough (1871), L. R. 12 Eq. 115. As to the effect of a judicial separation, see Matrimonial Causes Act, 1857 (20 & 21 Vict. c. 85), ss. 21, 25.

(g) See title HUSBAND AND WIFE, Vol. XVI., pp. 428 et seq.; compare Clark v. Field, [1885] W. N. 108, H. L.

(h) Brown v. Ackroyd (1856), 5 E. & B. 819; Stocken v. Pattrick (1873), 29 L. T. 507; see, further, title HUSBAND AND WIFE, Vol. XVI., pp. 429, 561, 582, 583. It has been held that, if the husband becomes bankrupt, the wife is personally liable to pay her own costs (Pead v. Price (1903), 19 T. L. R. 563), but it is submitted that this case was wrongly decided; see Yearly Practice of the Supreme Court, 1914, p. 1082.

(i) Turner v. Rookes (1839), 10 Ad. & El. 47; compare Wilson v. Ford (1868), L. R. 3 Exch. 63.

SECT. 1. Retainer.

Retainer by lunatic.

1208. A lunatic (k) cannot retain a solicitor (l), except in so far as the retainer of a solicitor may be necessary, as, for instance, in the case of a lunatic so found in connexion with the proceedings to establish the client's lunacy (m). Moreover, a retainer given by a person who was sane at the time of giving it, but who becomes insane before it is acted upon, confers no authority upon the solicitor to act in the client's name (n), since the solicitor's authority ceases as soon as the client becomes insane, and it is immaterial that the solicitor was unaware of the fact that his client had become insane (n).

Retainer by convict.

1209. A convict who is still under sentence cannot make a valid contract of retainer (a), unless he is lawfully at large under a ticket of leave (b).

Retainer by corporation.

1210. A corporation is entitled to retain a solicitor (c), but the retainer should, strictly speaking, be by writing under its common seal (d). In this case the corporation is liable to the solicitor for the costs and expenses incurred under the retainer (e). A retainer in fact, though not under seal, if acted upon, binds the corporation as regards third persons (f); it gives the solicitor a lien over the papers of the corporation in his possession (g), and, apparently,

(k) See title LUNATICS AND PERSONS OF UNSOUND MIND, Vol. XIX., pp. 396 et seq. As to when the retainer of a solicitor may be a necessary, see ibid., p. 399. As to legal proceedings by dangerous lunatics, see ibid., pp. 462 et seq.

(l) Compare Pomery v. Pomery, [1909] W. N. 158. A retainer is valid though lunacy proceedings are pending (Re Armstrong (George) & Sons, [1896] 1 Ch. 536, where the court stayed the action till the lunacy proceedings were terminated); and compare title LUNATICS AND PERSONS OF UNSOUND MIND, Vol. XIX., pp. 462 et seq.

(m) Wentworth v. Tubb (1843), 2 Y. & C. Ch. Cas. 537.

(n) Yonge v. Toynbee, [1910] 1 K. B. 215, C. A., following Collen v. Wright (1857), 8 E. & B. 647, Ex Ch., and overruling on this point Smout v. Ilbery (1842), 10 M. & W. 1, Imperial Loan Co. v. Stone, [1892] 1 Q. B. 599, C. A., Fore Street Warehouse Co. v. Durrant (1883), 10 Q. B. D. 471, 474, and Drew v. Nunn (1879), 4 Q. B. D. 661; see title LUNATICS AND PERSONS OF UNSOUND MIND, Vol. XIX., p. 464.

(a) Forfeiture Act, 1870 (33 & 34 Vict. c. 23), s. 8. The retainer of a solicitor to appeal against the conviction is not affected; see Criminal Appeal Act, 1907 (7 Edw. 7, c. 23), ss. 10 (which enables a solicitor to be assigned to an appellant who has not sufficient means to obtain legal aid), 15 (5); Criminal Appeal Rules, 1908, rr. 4 (a), 11 (c), 39 (a), (c) (Stat. R. & O., 1908, p. 239). As to the right of a solicitor to obtain an interview with a convict client, see title PRISONS, Vol. XXIII., p. 265.

(b) Forfeiture Act, 1870 (33 & 34 Vict. c. 23), s. 30.

(c) Lewis v. Rochester Corporation (1860), 9 C. B. (N. S.) 401; A.-G. v. Brecon Corporation (1878), 10 Ch. D. 204. As to the taxation of a solicitor's bills chargeable to a council, see title LOCAL GOVERNMENT, Vol. XIX., pp. 288, 289.

(d) Arnold v. Poole Corporation (1842), 4 Man. & G. 860; see title CORPORATIONS, Vol. VIII., p. 381. The retainer is presumed to be under seal till the contrary is shown (Thames Haven Rail. Co. v. Hall (1843), 5 Man. & G. 274, where the objection was taken too late).

(e) Lewis v. Rochester Corporation, supra.

(f) Faviell v. Eastern Counties Rail. Co. (1848), 2 Exch. 344.

(g) Newington Local Board v. Eldridge (1879), 12 Ch. D. 349, C. A.

renders the corporation liable to him for his costs (h). If the corporation is not bound by the retainer, the individual members of the corporation who actively join in the appointment may be personally liable (i). In the case of a company incorporated by statute, the constitution of the company may authorise the appointment of a solicitor by a contract not under seal (k).

Proposed company.

1211. Where a solicitor is employed to take the necessary steps to form a company and to procure its incorporation, the question arises whether, after the incorporation of the company, the solicitor is entitled to be paid for his services by the company, or whether he must look to the promoters of the company by whom he was originally employed. In the case of companies formed under private Acts of Parliament, provision is usually made by the Act incorporating the company for the costs, charges and expenses incident to obtaining the Act and forming the company being paid out of the company's assets when formed. Such a provision, being intended to benefit the promoters, does not entitle a solicitor employed under a retainer from the promoters to obtain payment of his costs directly from the company (l). To enable him to do so, he must establish either that the company has, subsequent to its formation, entered into a new contract with himself to pay him (m), or, perhaps, that he has no claim against the promoters, being in fact a promoter himself and having only his company to look to for payment (a). Where, however, the undertaking is abandoned, the solicitor is entitled to claim against the parliamentary deposit as a creditor (b).

(h) Newington Local Board v. Eldridge (1879), 12 Ch. D. 349, C. A., per BRETT, L.J., at p. 360; see title CORPORATIONS, Vol. VIII., p. 384. This is subject to any express statutory requirement as to the seal, as, for instance, Public Health Act, 1875 (38 & 39 Vict. c. 55), s. 174; see title CORPORATIONS, Vol. VIII., p. 386. In Newington Local Board v. Eldridge, supra, this point was not taken.

(i) Robinson v. Price (1886), 21 L. J. 46, where churchwardens were held to be personally liable.

(k) R. v. Cumberland Justices (1847), 12 Jur. 1025.

(l) Wyatt v. Metropolitan Board of Works (1862), 11 C. B. (N. S.) 744, distinguishing Tilson v. Warwick Gas Light Co. (1825), 4 B. & C. 962, and Carden v. General Cemetery Co. (1839), 5 Bing. (N. C.) 253; Re Kent Tramways Co. (1879), 12 Ch. D. 312, C. A.; Re Skegness and St. Leonard's Tramways Co., Ex parte Hanly (1888), 41 Ch. D. 215, C. A.; and see Re Manchester, Middleton, and District Tramways Co., [1893] 2 Ch. 638, 644—652. It has been suggested that, to prevent circuity of action, the solicitor might claim directly against the company (Re Manchester, Middleton, and District Tramways Co., supra, per KEKEWICH, J., at p. 651; compare Terrell v. Hutton (1854), 4 H. L. Cas. 1091).

(m) Nichols v. Regent's Canal Co. (1894), 63 L. J. (Q. B.) 641; Terrell v. Hutton, supra.

(a) Re Brampton and Longtown Rail. Co., Shaw's Claim (1875), 10 Ch. App. 177; Re Skegness and St. Leonard's Tramways Co., Ex parte Hanly, supra, per BOWEN, L.J., at p. 241; compare Savin v. Hoylake Rail. Co. (1865), L. R. 1 Exch. 9. It is difficult to see how this can happen in the case of a solicitor, who necessarily acts on instructions, and who, therefore, looks to the person instructing him for his costs; see Re Skegness and St. Leonard's Tramways Co., supra, per LINDLEY, L.J., at p. 241, followed in Re Manchester, Middleton, and District Tramways Co., supra, per KEKEWICH, J., at p. 650.

(b) Parliamentary Deposits and Bonds Act, 1892 (55 & 56 Vict. c. 27),

SECT. 1.

Retainer.

Company under Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908.

1212. In the case of companies registered under the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908 (c), a solicitor who has been retained by the promoters before the company is registered, and who has become entitled to costs under such retainer, must look for his remuneration to those who gave or signed his retainer, as the company cannot ratify acts done in its name before it was incorporated (d). To make the company liable, the solicitor relying upon the retainer must establish the existence of a new contract between himself and the company (e). This he may do by showing that after incorporation the company has adopted the contract under which he was retained and which was made by the promoters or by a trustee for the intended company, and has thereby become liable by novation (f).

Retainer by clubs etc.

1213. Unincorporated bodies (g) cannot, although purporting to act in a corporate capacity, enter into a contract of retainer upon which they may be sued as an entity by the solicitor; the members of the committee or other persons who retain the solicitor are alone responsible for his charges, and he can only look directly to them (h).

Retainer by trustees etc.

1214. Trustees and executors can jointly retain and appoint a solicitor to represent the estate in regard to which they act. The retainer should be given by all the trustees or executors, since a retainer by one does not bind the rest, in the absence of express authority (i), unless the rest ratify or adopt the retainer by their acts or by acquiescence and thus become liable to the solicitor upon it (j). A direction in a will to employ a particular solicitor does not

s. 1 (2), abolishing the distinction between meritorious and non-meritorious services creating debts for which payment may be made out of a parliamentary deposit, as applied in Re Manchester, Middleton, and District Tramways Co., [1893] 2 Ch. 638; Ex parte Bradford and District Tramways Co., [1893] 3 Ch. 463; compare Re Tilleard (1863), 3 De G. J. & Sm. 519, C. A. As to the parliamentary deposit, see title PARLIAMENT, Vol. XXI., pp. 735 et seq.

(c) 8 Edw. 7, c. 69; see title COMPANIES, Vol. V., p. 56.

(d) Kelner v. Baxter (1866), L. R. 2 C. P. 174; Scott v. Ebury (Lord) (1867), L. R. 2 C. P. 255; Melhado v. Porto Alegre Rail. Co. (1874), L. R. 9 C. P. 503; Bagot Pneumatic Tyre Co. v. Clipper Pneumatic Tyre Co., [1902] 1 Ch. 146, C. A.; Re Empress Engineering Co. (1880), 16 Ch. D. 125, C. A.; Re Northumberland Avenue Hotel Co. (1886), 33 Ch. D. 16, C. A.; Re Rotherham Alum and Chemical Co. (1883), 25 Ch. D. 103, C. A.; Re Dale and Plant, Ltd. (1889), 61 L. T. 206.

(e) Re Hereford and South Wales Waggon and Engineering Co. (1876), 2 Ch. D. 621, C. A.; and see Re Patent Ivory Manufacturing Co., Howard v. Patent Ivory Manufacturing Co. (1888), 38 Ch. D. 156.

(f) Nichols v. Regent's Canal Co. (1894), 63 L. J. (Q. B.) 641; reversed 71 L. T. 836, C. A.; see also title COMPANIES, Vol. V., p. 246.

(g) Such as clubs, learned societies and the like; compare title CLUBS, Vol. IV., pp. 420 et seq.

(h) Flemyng v. Hector (1836), 2 M. & W. 172; Jones v. Hope, [1880] W. N. 69. As to the position of a solicitor acting for a building society, see title BUILDING SOCIETIES, Vol. III., p. 337.

(i) Wiggins v. Peppin (1839), 2 Beav. 403; Luke v. South Kensington Hotel Co. (1879), 11 Ch. D. 121, C. A.; Brazier v. Camp (1894), 9 R. 852, C. A. A solicitor employed to receive trust money is liable if he pays the money to one trustee only, who subsequently misappropriates it (Lee v. Sankey (1873), L. R. 15 Eq. 204).

(j) Cotterell v. Stratton (1872), 8 Ch. App. 295; Stott v. Milne (1884), 25 Ch. D. 710.

bind the executors or trustees to employ him any longer than they like (k).

Trustee in bankruptcy.

1215. A trustee in bankruptcy, including an official receiver when acting as trustee (l), may, with the consent of the committee of inspection, if any, and otherwise with the sanction of the Board of Trade, employ a solicitor to act for the estate (m). The solicitor's appointment must be made by virtue of a written sanction obtained before the work is done, except in cases of urgency, when it must be shown that no undue delay took place in obtaining the sanction (n).

Liquidator.

The same rule applies to the employment of a solicitor by the liquidator of a company (a), whether the winding-up is compulsory (b) or voluntary (c).

Acting for opposing interests.

1216. By accepting a retainer the solicitor becomes bound to act towards his client with absolute loyalty and good faith (d). Where, therefore, he accepts a subsequent retainer from a person having interests adverse to those of his former client, he must not make use of any knowledge derived from his connexion with his former client for the purpose of assisting his new client against his former client (e); and if he attempts to do so, he may be restrained by injunction (f). There is, however, no general rule prohibiting a solicitor who has acted in a particular matter for one of the parties from acting subsequently in the same matter for the opposite party; and the court will not interfere unless there is reasonable ground for anticipating that the former client will be prejudiced (g). The client, if damnified by the solicitor's breach of confidence, has also a right of action in damages against the solicitor as for a breach of the implied contract of inviolable secrecy (h).

(k) Foster v. Elsley (1881), 19 Ch. D. 518. The solicitor has no direct claim on the trust estate for his costs (Staniar v. Evans, Evans v. Staniar (1886), 34 Ch. D. 470).

(l) Re Duncan, Ex parte Duncan, [1892] 1 Q. B. 331; Re York, Atkinson v. Powell (1887), 36 Ch. D. 233.

(m) Bankruptcy Act, 1883 (46 & 47 Vict. c. 52), ss. 22 (9), 57 (3). There is no such office as "solicitor to the trustee" (Re London Metallurgical Co., [1897] 2 Ch. 262, per VAUGHAN WILLIAMS, J., at p. 269); and the solicitor has no independent right to be paid costs out of the estate (Re Pooley, Ex parte Harper (1882), 20 Ch. D. 685, C. A.).

(n) Bankruptcy Act, 1890 (53 & 54 Vict. c. 71), s. 15 (3); and see Re Pryor, Ex parte Board of Trade (1888), 59 L. T. 256. As to what costs will be allowed, see title BANKRUPTCY AND INSOLVENCY, Vol. II., pp. 105 (costs), 107 (taxation), 127, note (g).

(a) There is no such office as "solicitor to the liquidator" (Re London Metallurgical Co., supra).

(b) Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908 (8 Edw. 7, c. 69), s. 151 (1) (c).

(c) Ibid., s. 186 (iv.).

(d) See title AGENCY, Vol. I., p. 184.

(e) This duty does not cease with the death of the client (Biggs v. Head (1887), Sau. & Sc. 835).

(f) Rakusen v. Ellis, Munday and Clarke, [1912] 1 Ch. 831, explaining Cholmondeley (Earl) v. Clinton (Lord) (1815), 19 Ves. 261, and not following Little v. Kingswood Collieries Co. (1882), 20 Ch. D. 733, C. A.; Johnson v. Marriott (1833), 4 Tyr. 78; Grissell v. Peto (1832), 9 Bing. 1; Barber v. Stone (1881), 50 L. J. (Q. B.) 297; compare Ashburton (Lord) v. Pape, [1913] 2 Ch. 469, C. A., per SWINFEN EADY, L.J., at p. 474.

(g) Rakusen v. Ellis, Munday and Clarke, supra; compare Robinson v. Mullett (1817), 4 Price, 353.

(h) Lawrence v. Harrison (1654), Sty. 426; Barber v. Stone, supra.

SECT. 1. Retainer.

Where no conflict of interests.

In proceedings of a purely friendly or formal description, where there is no real conflict of interests, a solicitor may properly represent different parties; but as soon as any conflict of interests arises, it is the solicitor's duty to cease to represent any party whose interests conflict with those of his other client. Thus, where a solicitor has been representing trustees and infants and the question of compromising the infant's claim arises, the solicitor should arrange for the infant to be separately represented (i). The same principle applies in bankruptcy proceedings as between the trustee and a creditor (k), and in lunacy as between the committee of the lunatic's estate and adverse claimants (l). On the other hand, the common employment of the same solicitor by vendor and purchaser, lessor and lessee, mortgagor and mortgagee, trustee and cestui que trust, is quite legitimate, and, so far as the first three cases are concerned, is recognised by statute (m).

Secret profits.

1217. In accordance with the same principle, a solicitor must not, without the knowledge of his client, make any profit or receive any benefit, other than his professional remuneration, from the transaction which he is retained to carry through (a). In particular, the acceptance of a secret commission from the other party to the transaction is forbidden (b), and any solicitor who receives a commission from the other party must account for it to his client, unless he has his client's permission to keep it (c). Thus, a solicitor who is instructed to effect a policy of fire insurance on behalf of his client, usually arranges with the insurers to effect the policy on agency terms, and receives from them an agency commission: this commission must be accounted for to his client, in the absence of any agreement between the solicitor and his client to the contrary (d).

As to the position of a solicitor accepting a commission from the other side without the knowledge of his client, see Re Haslam and Hier-Evans, [1902] 1 Ch. 765, C. A.; Tyrrell v. Bank of London (1862), 10 H. L. Cas. 26; and compare title AGENCY, Vol. I., p. 189.

(i) Howe v. Robinson (1890), Times, 7th July, per KAY, J.; and compare title RECEIVERS, Vol. XXIV., p. 363.

(k) Ex parte Arrowsmith (1807), 14 Ves. 209; Re York, Atkinson v. Powell (1887), 36 Ch. D. 233, 241; Barber v. Stone (1881), 50 L. J. (Q. B.) 297.

(l) Re Wilson (1877), 21 Sol. Jo. 770, C. A.; Re Ferrior (a Lunatic), Carrow v. Ferrior, Dunn v. Ferrior (1867), 3 Ch. App. 175; Re Strachan (H. W.), an alleged Lunatic, [1895] 1 Ch. 439, C. A.; and as to the position of an under-sheriff who is a solicitor, see title INTERPLEADER, Vol. XVII., p. 590.

(m) Rules applicable to Part II. of Sched. I. of Solicitors Remuneration Order, 1881, r. 2; General Order 3 relating to Sched. I., Part I., of the same Rules (Conveyancing Act, 1882 (45 & 46 Vict. c. 39), s. 3). As to the effect of notice to a solicitor insurance agent acting in the matter of a mortgage of a policy, see titles CHOSES IN ACTION, Vol. IV., p. 385; INSURANCE, Vol. XVII., p. 560.

(a) Tyrrell v. Bank of London, supra; Learoyd v. Alston, [1913] A. C. 529; see title AGENCY, Vol. I., pp. 189 et seq. As to the solicitor as secret vendor of his own property or secret purchaser of his client's property, see p. 749, post.

(b) Re a Solicitor, Ex parte Law Society (1909), 26 T. L. R. 22; see title AGENCY, Vol. I., p. 190.

(c) See title AGENCY, Vol. I., p. 190.

(d) Workman and Army and Navy Auxiliary Co-operative Supply, Ltd.

SUB-SECT. 2.—Duration of Retainer.

Termination of retainer.

1218. Except where the solicitor is retained for a fixed period, the retainer continues, as a general rule, until the completion of the business for which the solicitor was retained (e). The retainer may, however, come to an end at an earlier date on the relation of solicitor and client ceasing to exist between the parties (f). Thus, the retainer is ended by the death (g), insanity (h), or bankruptcy (i) of either the client or the solicitor. The client may at any time discharge the solicitor (j): in particular this takes place when, in the course of an action, the client gives notice to change his solicitor (k). The solicitor may equally discharge himself at any time, either expressly or impliedly (l). There is an implied discharge where the solicitor refuses to continue until he is furnished with the requisite funds (m), or until a dispute as to his costs is settled (n); or where he puts it out of his power to continue by assigning his business to another solicitor (o), or, in the case of a firm being retained, by a dissolution of partnership (p); or where he is incapacitated from continuing by imprisonment (q) or misconduct (r).

Retainer to conduct action.

1219. A retainer to conduct an action continues in force, in the ordinary course of events, until the final conclusion (s) of the cause or matter to which the retainer relates, whether in the High Court

v. London and Lancashire Fire Insurance Co. (1903), 19 T. L. R. 360, per KEKEWICH, J., at p. 362. But the solicitor cannot be attached for failure to comply with an order to pay over any such commission (Re Berwick (Lord), Berwick (Lord) v. Lane (1900), 81 L. T. 797, C. A.).

(e) See p. 731, ante. Thus, an agreement that the solicitor is to get his costs out of the fund in the suit implies a condition that his retainer is to continue until there is a fund in court available for costs (Hollings v. Booth (1860), 2 F. & F. 220).

(f) As to the effect of the premature determination of the retainer on the solicitor's right to costs, see pp. 739, 740, post.

(g) As to the effect of the death of either party, see p. 739, post.

(h) Yonge v. Toynbee, [1910] 1 K. B. 215, C. A., overruling Smout v. Ilbery (1842), 10 M. & W. 11, and Salton v. New Beeston Cycle Co., [1900] 1 Ch. 43, and approving Collen v. Wright (1857), 8 E. & B. 647, Ex. Ch.

(i) As to the effect of the bankruptcy of either party, see p. 740, post.

(j) There is no such thing as a standing relation of a solicitor to a client (Saffron Walden Second Benefit Building Society v. Rayner (1880), 14 Ch. D. 406, C. A.); compare title COMPANIES, Vol. V., p. 246.

(k) Webster v. Le Hunt (1861), 9 W. R. 804; R. S. C., Ord. 7, r. 3; see pp. 742, 743, post. As to the solicitor's lien in this case, see p. 818, post.

(l) If the solicitor's name is on the record, the client's consent appears to be necessary, since the solicitor cannot himself apply to have his name removed from the record without his client's consent (Re Seymour (1888), 34 Sol. Jo. 361, not following Re Ward, Mills, Witham & Lambert, De Mora v. Concha, [1887] W. N. 194); see p. 743, post. As to the effect of the solicitor discharging himself upon his right to costs, see p. 739, post; as to its effect upon his lien, see p. 818, post.

(m) Robins v. Goldingham (1872), L. R. 13 Eq. 440.

(n) Wilson v. Emmett (1854), 19 Beav. 233.

(o) Colegrave v. Manley (1823), Turn. & R. 400.

(p) Griffiths v. Griffiths (1843), 2 Hare, 587; Rawlinson v. Moss (1861), 30 L. J. (CH.) 797.

(q) Solicitors Act, 1843 (6 & 7 Vict. c. 73), s. 31; Scott v. Fleming (1845), 9 Jur. 1085; Re Smith (1861), 9 W. R. 396.

(r) Bennett v. Baxter (1840), 10 Sim. 417; Re Smith (1841), 4 Beav. 309.

(s) As to what constitutes final conclusion, see Harris v. Quine (1869), L. R. 4 Q. B. 653; De la Pole (Lady) v. Dick (1885), 29 Ch. D. 351, C. A.; Sandford v. Porter and Waine, [1912] 2 I. R. 551, C. A.

SECT. 1. Retainer.

Entire contract.

or the Court of Appeal (t), though in any other court the retainer comes to an end when the litigation in that court is finished (a). Such a retainer is primâ facie an entire contract (b). It is, therefore, the duty of the solicitor, if properly instructed and provided with funds out of pocket, to act for his client throughout the litigation (c), and he is not entitled to his costs unless and until the whole of the work to be done under the retainer has been completed (d).

Natural breaks.

Where, however, the retainer relates to business of a complicated nature, in which the proceedings are likely to be protracted as involving a number of parties, or as comprehending a variety of really independent matters, the retainer is not necessarily entire (e). The proceedings may be capable of being divided into stages, and, at the end of each stage, there may be a natural break which entitles the court to treat it as the conclusion of a particular transaction, though it is not the final conclusion of the whole business (f). Administration actions (g) and proceedings for the winding up of bankrupt estates (h) are capable of being thus treated (i). In such cases the retainer cannot be regarded as entire, since it comprises a series of services which, though nominally in relation to one matter, is in reality in relation to a succession of matters (k). The solicitor, therefore, is not bound to wait for his remuneration until the final conclusion of the whole business which he was retained to conduct; he may, if he chooses, from time to time at any reasonable break in the proceedings claim payment for the services rendered up to that date (l).

Special contract.

A solicitor may at any time make a special arrangement as to his remuneration (m), providing for payment on account of costs as the action proceeds; in this case no question as to the retainer being entire arises (n).

Quantum meruit.

1220. Even when the retainer is entire, the fact that the solicitor

(t) R. S. C., Ord. 7, r. 3; Bagley v. Mapie & Co., Ltd. (1911), 27 T. L. R. 284. Formerly the retainer ended on final judgment being signed; see Lawrence v. Harrison (1654), Sty. 426; De la Pole (Lady) v. Dick (1885), 29 Ch. D. 351, C. A.; Callow v. Young (1886), 55 L. T. 543.

(a) R. v. Oxfordshire Justices, [1893] 2 Q. B. 149, C. A.; see title MAGISTRATES, Vol. XIX., p. 644, note (k).

(b) Court v. Berlin, [1897] 2 Q. B. 396, C. A.; Underwood, Son, and Piper v. Lewis, [1894] 2 Q. B. 306, C. A.; Re Romer and Haslam, [1893] 2 Q. B. 286, C. A.

(c) Pool v. Pool (1889), 58 L. J. (P.) 67.

(d) Cresswell v. Byron (1807), 14 Ves. 271; Harris v. Osbourn (1834), 2 Cr. & M. 629, 632; followed in Whitehead v. Lord (1852), 7 Exch. 691.

(e) Re Romer and Haslam, supra, per BOWEN, L.J., at p. 298, approving Re Hall and Barker (1878), 9 Ch. D. 538; see also Re Nelson, Son, and Hastings (1885), 30 Ch. D. 1, C. A.

(f) Re Romer and Haslam, supra, per Lord ESHER, M.R., at p. 293.

(g) Re Hall and Barker, supra, per JESSEL, M.R., at p. 543.

(h) Ibid.

(i) Re Romer and Haslam, supra, where it was suggested, but not decided, that in a protracted arbitration there might be a break between the award and its remission to the arbitrators for reconsideration.

(k) Re Hall and Barker, supra, per JESSEL, M.R., at p. 545.

(l) Ibid.; Re Romer and Haslam, supra.

(m) See pp. 770, 771, post.

(n) Harrington v. Binns (1863), 3 F. & F. 942; Webster v. Le Hunt (1861), 9 W. R. 804; Wadsworth v. Marshall (1832), 2 Cr. & J. 665.

ceases to act for the client before the final conclusion of the matter in which he was retained does not necessarily preclude him from recovering remuneration in respect of the work actually done (o). The solicitor is entitled to recover such remuneration where he is discharged by the client (p), or where he discharges himself for good cause, as, for instance, where his client refuses to supply him with the requisite funds for the prosecution of the action (q), or where the client conducts himself improperly (r), or where he discovers that the client has no cause of action (s). He must, however, give reasonable notice of his withdrawal from the case to his client (t).

Retainer in non-litigious matters.

1221. A retainer to act for a client in non-litigious matters, such as, for instance, a sale or purchase of real property, or the negotiation and completion of a mortgage, would appear to be an entire contract, because in the absence of notice of intention to charge under Schedule II. (u) the solicitor's remuneration is a fixed percentage upon the purchase or mortgage money, and the business is not susceptible of "natural breaks"; it would, therefore, be unreasonable for the solicitor to deliver a bill after delivering or perusing the abstract of title and to refuse to go on until he was paid a proportion of the scale charge.

Death or insanity of either party.

1222. The death of the client before completion of the business covered by the retainer discharges the solicitor from continuing to act (v); he may at once withdraw from the case and deliver his bill in respect of the costs already incurred to the legal personal representatives, who are responsible for its payment in due course (x). If, however, the executors continue proceedings in an action, the court will imply a contract by them making them personally liable for the whole of the costs (y). If the solicitor dies during the course of an action or before a business entered upon is completed, it is doubtful whether his legal personal representative is entitled to recover anything for costs incurred (a). The same principles apply

(o) As to his lien in such a case, see p. 818, post.

(p) Hawkes v. Cottrell (1858), 3 H. & N. 243.

(q) Rowson v. Earle (1829), Mood. & M. 538; Becke v. Cattell (1841), 3 Man. & G. 480; Vansandau v. Browne (1832), 9 Bing. 402; Wadsworth v. Marshall (1832), 2 Cr. & J. 665.

(r) Underwood, Son, and Piper v. Lewis (No. 2) (1894), Times, 24th July; Bryan v. Twigg (1834), 3 L. J. (CH.) 114.

(s) Lawrence v. Potts (1834), 6 C. & P. 428.

(t) Hoby v. Built (1832), 3 B. & Ad. 350; Whitehead v. Lord (1852), 7 Exch. 691; Nicholls v. Wilson (1843), 11 M. & W. 106; Harris v. Osbourn (1834), 2 Cr. & M. 629. As to the position of the solicitor whose name appears on the record, see note (l), p. 737, ante, note (e), p. 743, post.

(u) See pp. 761, 765 et seq., post.

(v) But see Chalié v. Gwynne (1846), 9 Beav. 319, where, in the circumstances, it was held to be his duty to the court to appear after service upon him of notice of motion, there having been considerable delay in the prosecution of the proceedings.

(x) Solicitors Act, 1843 (6 & 7 Vict. c. 73), s. 37; Whitehead v. Lord, supra; Harris v. Osbourn, supra. As to the time of payment, see pp. 774 et seq., 812 et seq., post.

(y) Re Bentinck, Bentinck v. Bentinck (1893), 37 Sol. Jo. 233.

(a) See Underwood, Son, and Piper v. Lewis, [1894] 2 Q. B. 306, C. A., per Lord ESHER, M.R., at p. 313. As to quantum meruit, see, generally, title CONTRACT, Vol. VII., pp. 440, 441.

SECT. 1. Retainer.

where the client (b), or, it is submitted, his solicitor (c), becomes insane.

Bankruptcy of either party.

1223. Where the client becomes bankrupt an existing retainer comes to an end, unless the trustee in bankruptcy continues to employ the solicitor (d). The bankruptcy of the solicitor, in its turn, entitles the client to treat the retainer as at an end (e). In this case the trustee in bankruptcy becomes entitled to the proportion of costs incurred up to the date of the bankruptcy and still remaining unpaid, and he is the proper person to receive and give a discharge for them (f). Where, however, work is done by the solicitor whilst undischarged and fees are earned during that period, he can give a good discharge for such fees until the trustee intervenes and intercepts them, and this applies whether the employer knows of the bankruptcy or not (g).

How far special agreement affected.

1224. Where a special agreement has been made by a client with his solicitor, and the solicitor dies or becomes incapable of acting before the agreement is wholly performed, the court may, on the application of any party to the agreement, either enforce or set it aside, and may order the costs in respect of the work done under it to be ascertained by taxation (h). If a client who has entered into such an agreement changes his solicitor before its termination, as he is entitled to do, the solicitor is deemed to have become incapable to act and the above consequences follow (i).

SUB-SECT. 3.—Ownership of Documents.

Property in papers.

1225. Where a solicitor is employed by the client to do business for him, any documents which come into existence in the course of this business, whether contentious or non-contentious, belong, as between the client and the solicitor, absolutely to the client (k), except so far as they consist of copies of letters in the solicitor's letter books or entries in his diaries or bill or other books (l). In the case of a firm, no agreement between the partners can alter the client's right of property in such documents (m) ; subject to this right, the partnership deed may quite properly provide that the papers relating to any particular client's business are to go to some particular member of the firm.

(b) Yonge v. Toynbee, [1910] 1 K. B. 215, C. A.

(c) See title AGENCY, Vol. I., p. 234.

(d) Re Moss (1866), L. R. 2 Eq. 345 ; compare Becke v. Penn (1835), 7 C. & P. 397.

(e) Re Moss, supra.

(f) See title BANKRUPTCY AND INSOLVENCY, Vol. II., pp. 117 et seq.

(g) Cohen v. Mitchell (1890), 25 Q. B. D. 262, C. A. ; Jameson v. Brick and Stone Co., Ltd. (1878), 4 Q. B. D. 208, C. A. ; Herbert v. Sayer (1844), 5 Q. B. 965.

(h) Attorneys and Solicitors Act, 1870 (33 & 34 Vict. c. 28), s. 13.

(i) Ibid., s. 14.

(k) Whittaker v. Howe (1840), 3 Beav. 383 ; see Davidson v. Napier (1827), 1 Sim. 297 ; Ashburton (Lord) v. Pape, [1913] 2 Ch. 469, C. A. (copies of client's letters to solicitor improperly obtained by third person). As to the client's right to an order for delivery of papers, see pp. 840, 841, post.

(l) These remain the property of the solicitor (Re Wheatcroft (1877), 6 Ch. D. 97).

(m) Whittaker v. Howe, supra.

SECT. 2.—Authority of Solicitor to Bind his Client.

SECT. 2. Authority of Solicitor to Bind his Client.

SUB-SECT. 1.—In General.

1226. The solicitor's authority to bind his client arises from his retainer and is confined within the express terms of it so far as such terms are expressed. Apart from this, the limits of the solicitor's authority depend upon whether the work to be done is contentious or non-contentious.

Limits of authority.

A general retainer, whether relating to contentious or non-contentious business, does not in the absence of special instructions authorise the solicitor to make long journeys or to go abroad at his client's expense; but if whilst in a locality where work can usefully be done for such client he does work which, on his return, is adopted and utilised by the client, the solicitor is entitled to charge a fair remuneration in respect of the time actually so occupied (a).

General retainer.

A solicitor has no authority to pledge his client's credit to counsel for fees, whether in respect of contentious or non-contentious business (b).

SUB-SECT. 2.—Contentious Business.

1227. A special authority is essential to entitle a solicitor either to commence an action in his client's name (c) or to appear for and represent him as defendant in an action (d), or to take part, on his behalf, in any proceedings (e).

Special authority necessary.

This authority is not retrospective so as to apply to acts done by the solicitor before the action was brought; if, therefore, a solicitor who afterwards appears for a client in a suit has before action brought written a letter making an admission, such admission cannot be taken advantage of in the subsequent action without further proof that the client authorised the communication (f).

1228. If a solicitor purports to act for a client in taking or continuing legal proceedings without in fact having any authority to do so, any proceedings taken by him in the name of the person whom he purports to represent will, on motion, be summarily

Effect of acting without authority.

(a) Re Snell (a Solicitor) (1877), 5 Ch. D. 815, 834, 835, C. A.; see also title INTERPLEADER, Vol. XVII., p. 599, note (f).

(b) Mostyn v. Mostyn (1870), 5 Ch. App. 457.

(c) Wright v. Castle (1817), 3 Mer. 12; Lord v. Kellett (1833), 2 My. & K. 1; Atkinson v. Abbott (1855), 3 Drew. 251; Tabram v. Horn (1827), 1 Man. & Ry. (K. B.) 228; Wray v. Kemp (1884), 26 Ch. D. 169; Re National Old Age Pensions Trust, Stevens v. Taverner (1912), 57 Sol. Jo. 114; James v. Ricknell (1887), 20 Q. B. D. 164 (interpleader proceedings); compare Bewley v. Seymour (1850), 14 Jur. 213; Crook v. Wright (1825), Ry. & M. 278. As to commencement of proceedings before the Railway and Canal Commission, see title RAILWAYS AND CANALS, Vol. XXIII., p. 757.

(d) Re Gray, Gray v. Coles (1891), 65 L. T. 743; Dent v. Hallifax (1809), 1 Taunt. 493; Wright v. Castle, supra; Spencer v. Newton (1837), 6 Ad. & El. 630, n.; Drake v. Lewin (1834), 4 Tyr. 730; Heinrich v. Sutton (1871), 6 Ch. App. 220; Salton v. New Beeston Cycle Co., [1900] 1 Ch. 43.

(e) Bird v. Harris (1880), 43 L. T. 434; compare Wheatley v. Bastow (1855), 7 De G. M. & G. 261, C. A.

(f) Wagstaff v. Wilson (1832), 4 B. & Ad. 339; Daniels v. Trefusis (1913), 136 L. T. Jo. 253.

SECT. 2. Authority of Solicitor to Bind his Client.

stayed (g). It is immaterial whether the solicitor purports to act on behalf of a defendant by defending proceedings in his name without authority (h), or on behalf of a plaintiff by issuing a writ in his name without authority (i).

Death or lunacy of client.

Moreover, the solicitor's authority to represent his client must exist in fact at the time when every step in an action under a retainer is taken. Thus, the death or lunacy (k) of the client puts an end to the solicitor's authority to represent his client. If, therefore, he continues to act afterwards, any proceedings taken by him will be struck out, and he will be ordered to pay his supposed client's costs as between solicitor and client, and also, as upon a breach of warranty of authority, the costs as between party and party of his opponent (l). His bonâ fide belief that he had authority does not help him (m). If, in these circumstances, costs are paid by the opposite party to the solicitor on the assumption that he had authority, they may be recovered back as money had and received (n).

The solicitor may, further, be attached or committed (o) for taking proceedings in the name of a person without authority, and in gross cases, where there is fraud, he may be struck off the roll (a).

Solicitor on record.

1229. As soon as a solicitor is duly instructed to represent his client in an action, it becomes his duty to put his name upon the record as solicitor for the party whom he represents (b). After he has done this all documents in the action which are not by law required to be served personally (c) are duly served by being left at the solicitor's address for service as shown on the writ, præcipe of appearance, or notice of change of solicitors as filed by him (d). So long as his name appears on the record as representing the client,

(g) Fricker v. Van Grutten, [1896] 2 Ch. 649, C. A.; Newbiggin-by-the-Sea Gas Co. v. Armstrong (1879), 13 Ch. D. 310, C. A.

(h) Bayley v. Buckland (1847), 5 Dow. & L. 115; Re Lloyd, Allen v. Lloyd (1879), 12 Ch. D. 447; Camps v. Marshall (1873), 8 Ch. App. 462; Simmons v. Liberal Opinion, Ltd., [1911] 1 K. B. 966, C. A. (where appearance was entered for a non-existing corporation); Porter v. Fraser (1912), 29 T. L. R. 91.

(i) Geilinger v. Gibbs, [1897] 1 Ch. 479; Schjott v. Schjott (1881), 19 Ch. D. 94, C. A.; Scott v. Hitchcock (1904), 20 T. L. R. 759.

(k) But this does not apply where the client is disabled from attending to business by an attack of paralysis or any other physical incapacity (Steel v. Cobb (1863), 11 W. R. 298).

(l) See pp. 833, 835, post.

(m) Yonge v. Toynbee, [1910] 1 K. B. 215, C. A., overruling Smout v. Ilbery (1842), 10 M. & W. 1, and Salton v. New Beeston Cycle Co., [1900] 1 Ch. 43, and approving Collen v. Wright (1857), 8 E. & B. 647, Ex. Ch.

(n) Dupen v. Keeling (1829), 4 C. & P. 102.

(o) Ex parte Stuckey (1791), 2 Cox, Eq. Cas. 283.

(a) Re Collins, Wheatley v. Bastow (1855), 7 De G. M. & G. 558, 561, C. A.; Re Gray, Ex parte Incorporated Law Society (1869), 20 L. T. 730; see also title CONTEMPT OF COURT, ATTACHMENT, AND COMMITTAL, Vol. VII., p. 294, notes (e), (i)—(l); see also Scott v. Hitchcock (1904), 20 T. L. R. 759, where the court found that the plaintiff was a mere puppet of the solicitor.

(b) See Mason v. Grigg, [1909] 2 K. B. 341, C. A.; Hunt v. Fineburg (1889), 22 Q. B. D. 259, C. A.

(c) A solicitor is not bound to produce his client for the purpose of enabling him to be personally served (Shaw v. Neale (1858), 6 H. L. Cas. 581).

(d) R. S. C., Ord. 12, r. 10; Ord. 67, r. 2. A company's solicitor duly appointed for the purpose can accept service of a petition to wind up the

he must be taken as between himself and the opposite party to represent the client, unless the client not only discharges him but substitutes another solicitor on the record (e).

The solicitor may, therefore, give notice of discontinuance on his client's behalf, and such notice may effectively be given by a letter intimating that he is instructed to proceed no further (f). His authority to represent his client is not terminated by the trial of the action, but continues until the final conclusion of the cause or matter, whether in the High Court or the Court of Appeal (g); it therefore continues so long as any order made in the action is not worked out or so long as anything remains for working out the judgment (h). Thus, payment to the solicitor of the amount of the debt (i) or costs ordered to be paid (j) is valid as against the client.

Acts covered by authority.

1230. Except where his authority has been expressly limited by the terms of his retainer, he is entitled to do all such things in connexion with the conduct of the action as he bonâ fide believes to be in his client's interest (k). Thus he may, without express instructions, agree to refer the action (l); he may also compromise the action (m), company in spite of the provision in the Companies Acts as to service at the registered office (Re Regent United Service Stores (1878), 8 Ch. D. 75, C. A.); and compare title INTERPLEADER, Vol. XVII., p. 600; as to the effect of service of a notice on a solicitor in non-contentious business, see Saffron Walden Second Benefit Building Society v. Rayner (1880), 14 Ch. D. 406, C. A.; and p. 746, post.

(e) See De la Pole (Lady) v. Dick (1885), 29 Ch. D. 351, C. A., per COTTON, L.J., at p. 357. A failure to give notice of the change to the opposite party does not preclude the client from recovering costs incurred after the change (Morris v. Bailey (1893), 5 R. 313). The solicitor cannot himself apply to have his name removed from the record without his client's consent (Re Seymour (1888), 34 Sol. Jo. 361, not following Re Ward, Mills, Witham & Lambert, De Mora v. Concha, [1887] W. N. 194). As to the effect of admissions by a solicitor before or in the course of an action, see title EVIDENCE, Vol. XIII., p. 462.

(f) The Pommerania (1879), 4 P. D. 195; Spincer v. Watts (1889), 23 Q. B. D. 350, C. A.

(g) R. S. C., Ord. 7, r. 3; see pp. 737, 738, ante

(h) Callow v. Young (1886), 55 L. T. 543, per CHITTY, J., at p. 544; Bagley v. Maple & Co., Ltd. (1911), 27 T. L. R. 284, following De la Pole (Lady) v. Dick, supra; Sandford v. Porter and Waine, [1912] 2 I. R. 551, C. A.; see Re Ward, Mills, Witham & Lambert, De Mora v. Concha, supra, where service on solicitors who had obtained an order ex parte removing their names from the record, and had not given notice to an opposite party, was held good service. The retainer does not, however, extend to interpleader proceedings (James v. Ricknell (1887), 20 Q. B. D. 164, doubted in Bagley v. Maple & Co., Ltd., supra). As to determination of authority, see Macbeath v. Cooke (1828), 1 Moo. & P. 513.

(i) Yates v. Freckleton (1781), 2 Doug. (K. B.) 623, where it was held that payment to an agent of the solicitor was not sufficient.

(j) Mason v. Whitehorne (1838), 6 Scott, 375.

(k) This authority does not extend to engaging in interpleader proceedings; see title INTERPLEADER, Vol. XVII., p. 599, note (f). Where a solicitor puts in a fraudulent defence in his client's name, but without his authority, the client is not bound by it (Williams v. Preston (1882), 20 Ch. D. 672, C. A.).

(l) Faviell v. Eastern Counties Rail. Co. (1848), 2 Exch. 344.

(m) He cannot, without express instructions, compromise before action brought, if retained to bring an action (Macaulay v. Polley, [1897] 2 Q. B. 122, C. A.).

SECT. 2. Authority of Solicitor to Bind his Client.

provided that he does so bonâ fide and not contrary to his client's express instructions (n). Moreover, where the client by his conduct induces his solicitor to believe that he is authorised to make a certain compromise in an action which the solicitor is conducting on behalf of the client, and the solicitor, reasonably relying on that conduct and believing that he has the authority of the client, makes the compromise, the client is bound whether he intended to give that authority or not, and whether he in fact understood or did not understand the terms of the compromise (o).

Acts falling outside authority.

1231. A solicitor cannot bind his client by signing a document which, pursuant to a rule of court, must be signed by the client personally, as, for instance, in the case of a consent to add a co-plaintiff in an action (p), even though the solicitor's signature may actually be appended to the document in the presence of the client (q). Nor can he bind his client, in the absence of express authority to do so, by employing a shorthand writer to take a note of the evidence, and the solicitor is personally liable for the costs of a note taken without the client's authority (r).

SUB-SECT. 3.—Non-contentious Business.

Production of deed.

1232. Where a solicitor (s) produces a deed having in the body thereof or indorsed thereon a receipt for consideration money or other consideration, if the deed is executed or the indorsed receipt is signed by the person entitled to give a receipt for the consideration, the deed is sufficient authority to the person liable to pay for making payment to the solicitor without the production of any separate authority from the person executing the deed (a).

Party whom solicitor represents.

The solicitor must, however, be actually acting for the person shown by the deed to be the person to whom the money is paid. Thus, a solicitor acting for a mortgagee cannot validly receive and (n) Prestwich v. Poley (1865), 18 C. B. (N. S.) 806; Latuch v. Pasherant (1796), 1 Salk. 86; Fray v. Voules (1859), 1 E. & E. 839. As to the authority to compromise generally, see title BARRISTERS, Vol. II., pp. 398 et seq.; as to admissions by a solicitor, see Re Wood, Ex parte Wenham (1872), 21 W. R. 104; Swinfen v. Swinfen (1857), 24 Beav. 549; Butler v. Knight (1867), L. R. 2 Exch. 109; compare Sill v. Thomas (1839), 8 C. & P. 762; Griffiths v. Williams (1787), 1 Term Rep. 710 (London agent); Carruthers v. Newen (1903), 19 T. L. R. 247 (agent in Liverpool for a London firm).

(o) Little v. Spreadbury, [1910] 2 K. B. 658, per BRAY, J., at p. 664; Chambers v. Mason (1858), 5 C. B. (N. S.) 59.

(p) R. S. C., Ord. 16, r. 11; and compare titles INTERPLEADER, Vol. XVII., p. 595; INTOXICATING LIQUORS, Vol. XVIII., p. 80.

(q) Fricker v. Van Grutten, [1896] 2 Ch. 649, C. A.; and see title JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS, Vol. XVIII., p. 188.

(r) Cocks v. Bruce, Searl and Good (1904), 21 T. L. R. 62.

(s) As to the meaning of "solicitor" in this provision, see King v. Smith, [1900] 2 Ch. 425, 432.

(a) Conveyancing and Law of Property Act, 1881 (44 & 45 Vict. c. 41), s. 56; compare the similar authority of a stockbroker; see title STOCK EXCHANGE, Vol. XXVII., p. 222. But the person liable may insist on paying the client direct: he is not bound to make payment to the solicitor (Re Bellamy and Metropolitan Board of Works (1883), 24 Ch. D. 387, C. A.).

SECT. 2. Authority of Solicitor to Bind his Client.

give a discharge for money due to the mortgagor (b). Similarly, a deed forged by the solicitor confers no authority on the solicitor. Where, therefore, the mortgagee's solicitor forges a reconveyance of the mortgage and delivers it to the mortgagor along with the title deeds in exchange for the amount of the mortgage debt, the payment to the solicitor does not bind the client (c). In this case it is immaterial that the solicitor has been in the habit of making investments for his client and keeping the deeds; the mortgagor is not discharged from the mortgage debt, and must redeliver the deeds to the mortgagee (d).

Trustee.

1233. A trustee may, in the same way as a person beneficially and personally interested, authorise, or concur in authorising, a solicitor to receive and give a discharge for money on behalf of the trust without being guilty of a breach of trust (e).

A solicitor may also be validly appointed by a trustee to receive and give a discharge for any money payable to the trustee under a policy of assurance by production of the policy with a receipt signed by the trustee upon it (f).

Sale by court.

1234. A solicitor having the conduct of a sale by the court has authority to receive the purchase-money for the purpose of payment into court (g).

Payment by cheque etc.

1235. A solicitor, unless specifically authorised to do so, is not justified in accepting a payment by cheque or other negotiable instrument, since payment, to be within the solicitor's general or statutory authority, must be made in cash (h). Where the solicitor accepts payments by cheque, he is protected if the cheque is duly met (i); but if it is dishonoured, he is liable to make good the loss personally (k). Nor is he authorised to accept payment by means of a settlement in account; such a settlement in account will not bind his client (l). Thus, where, in winding up an estate, a solicitor has authority from the executors to receive from stockbrokers the purchase-money of stock forming part of the estate, and instead of actually receiving the money he is given credit by the brokers in account with other transactions in exchange for the transfer duly

(b) Day v. Woolwich Equitable Building Society (1888), 40 Ch. D. 491; Re Hetling and Merton's Contract, [1893] 3 Ch. 269, C. A.; King v. Smith, [1900] 2 Ch. 425, 432; and see Thorne v. Heard and Marsh, [1895] A. C. 495; compare titles LIMITATION OF ACTIONS, Vol. XIX., p. 150; MORTGAGE, Vol. XXI., p. 193.

(c) Jared v. Walker (1902), 18 T. L. R. 569; see also Jared v. Clements, [1903] 1 Ch. 428, C. A.

(d) Ibid.

(e) Trustee Act, 1893 (56 & 57 Vict. c. 53), s. 17 (1).

(f) Ibid., s. 17 (2).

(g) Biggs v. Bree (1881), 51 L. J. (CH.) 64; Brown v. Farebrother (1888), 58 L. J. (CH.) 3. He has no implied authority to receive payment of money ordered to be paid to his client by a receiver (Ind, Coope & Co. v. Kidd (1894), 10 R. 258).

(h) Blumberg v. Life Interests and Reversionary Securities Corporation, [1898] 1 Ch. 27, C. A.

(i) Bridges v. Garrett (1870), L. R. 5 C. P. 451, Ex. Ch.; Pearson v. Scott (1878), 9 Ch. D. 198.

(k) Papé v. Westacott, [1894] 1 Q. B. 272, C. A.

(l) Pearson v. Scott, supra; see title AGENCY, Vol. I., p. 210.

SECT. 2. Authority of Solicitor to Bind his Client.

executed by the executors, the brokers will not be discharged from their liability to pay the executors, any rule of the Stock Exchange to the contrary notwithstanding (m).

Receipt by partner.

1236. Where one of the partners in a firm of solicitors which has been in the habit of acting for a client in receiving from him securities and negotiating loans upon them carries through any such transaction and receives any money on behalf of the client, the receipt of the money by the partner binds the firm, since it is within the apparent scope of any partner's authority to conduct the client's business; if, therefore, the partner misappropriates the money so received, his partners are liable to make the amount good to the client (n).

Deposit on sale.

1237. A solicitor acting for a vendor in a sale of property either by private treaty or by auction, who receives a deposit in the ordinary way and without any statement in the contract that it is paid to him as stakeholder, holds it in law merely as agent for the vendor and not as stakeholder (o). He must, therefore, pay it over to his client on demand (p); but where he is acting for both parties he is a stakeholder (q).

Notice to solicitor.

1238. A solicitor acting generally for trustees has no authority to receive notice of incumbrance on a share in an estate, so as to render the trustees liable for negligence on the ground that they have dealt with such share subsequently without regard to the incumbrance, provided they have not personally had notice of it; on the other hand, the solicitor is not guilty of a breach of warranty of authority if he bonâ fide believed that he had such authority and accepted the notice (r). Where, however, a solicitor is authorised by executors to advertise for creditors, notice of any claim sent in to the solicitor is good notice to the executors (s).

SECT. 3.—Transactions between Solicitor and Client.

SUB-SECT. 1.—In General.

General principles.

1239. The law looks with a very jealous eye upon all transactions in the way of gifts, sales, or mortgages from a client to his solicitor (a); if there is any sign that the solicitor has taken an

(m) Pearson v. Scott (1878), 9 Ch. D. 198; Baring v. Corrie (1818), 2 B. & Ald. 137.

(n) Rhodes v. Moules, [1895] 1 Ch. 236, C. A., per Lord HERSCHELL, L.C., at pp. 243—246; compare Lloyd v. Grace, Smith & Co., [1912] A. C. 716 (managing clerk).

(o) See title SALE OF LAND, Vol. XXV., p. 320.

(p) Edgell v. Day (1865), L. R. 1 C. P. 80; Bamford v. Shuttleworth (1840), 11 Ad. & El. 926; Norfolk (Duke) v. Worthy (1808), 1 Camp. 337; Ellis v. Goulton, [1893] 1 Q. B. 350, 352, 353, C. A.

(q) Edgell v. Day, supra, per ERLE, C.J., at p. 85.

(r) Saffron Walden Second Benefit Building Society v. Rayner (1880), 14 Ch. D. 406, C. A.; Arden v. Arden (1885), 29 Ch. D. 702, 709.

(s) Re Frewen, Frewen v. Frewen, [1889] W. N. 109. As to notice generally, see titles EQUITY, Vol. XIII., p. 87; MORTGAGE, Vol. XXI., p. 342.

(a) See, generally, titles GIFTS, Vol. XV., pp. 397 et seq.; MORTGAGE, Vol. XXI., pp. 65 et seq.; SALE OF LAND, Vol. XXV., pp. 285 et seq.

unfair advantage over his client or over-reached him, the courts will, at the instance of the client or of those representing him, set aside the transaction (b).

SUB-SECT. 2.—Gifts.

Gifts.

1240. A gift from a client to his solicitor is presumed to have been made by the client whilst under the undue influence of the solicitor (c). The mere position of the parties (d) whilst the relationship of solicitor and client exists, and until such time as the binding force of the relationship may be taken to have ceased to exist, renders the solicitor practically incapable of keeping a gift of any real and substantial intrinsic value (e); trifling gifts are not within the rule, unless mala fides can be proved (f). Gifts or benefits to the solicitor's son (g), or wife (h), even though she may be a niece of the client (i), will equally be set aside (k). The same principle applies where the solicitor is consulted, not strictly as a solicitor, but as a friend of the person consulting him. Thus, where a person interested under a settlement consults a solicitor as to a proposed alteration in the deed which may detrimentally affect his interests, it is the solicitor's duty to explain the effect of the alteration in such a way that the whole transaction with all its disadvantages, as well as advantages, will be present to the mind of the person who will be called upon to concur in the alteration; if, therefore, a son or other relative of the solicitor takes a benefit under the deed as altered, the transaction will be set aside (l).

Where the gift made is of an income-bearing character, such as houses let at a rental or stocks and shares which have earned dividends during the time that the gift remained unimpeached, the solicitor ordered to make restitution will have to account for

(b) Savery v. King (1856), 5 H. L. Cas. 627; Re Haslam and Hier-Evans, [1902] 1 Ch. 765, C. A., per STIRLING, L.J., at p. 769; O'Brien v. Lewis (1863), 9 Jur. (N. S.) 321, 528; Mearns v. Knapp (1889), 37 W. R. 585 (an agreement by a person with no knowledge of business to pay £40 for costs on the purchase of a business for £50). As to secret commissions taken by a solicitor, see p. 736, ante.

(c) See titles EQUITY, Vol. XIII., p. 19; FRAUDULENT AND VOIDABLE CONVEYANCES, Vol. XV., pp. 104, 108; GIFTS, Vol. XV., p. 420.

(d) The rule in regard to gifts made by a client to his solicitor beyond what is fair remuneration for work done by him is far more stringent than in the case of sales or purchases (Tomson v. Judge (1855), 3 Drew. 306).

(e) Liles v. Terry, [1895] 2 Q. B. 679, C. A.; Hatch v. Hatch (1804), 9 Ves. 292; Welles v. Middleton (1784), 1 Cox, Eq. Cas. 112; Re Holmes' Estate, Woodward v. Humpage, Bevan's Case (1861), 3 Giff. 337; O'Brien v. Lewis, supra; Harris v. Tremenheere (1808), 15 Ves. 34; Gardener v. Ennor, Humby v. Moody (1866), 35 Beav. 549; Garrett v. Wilkinson (1848), 2 De G. & Sm. 244; and compare title LUNATICS AND PERSONS OF UNSOUND MIND, Vol. XIX., p. 405.

(f) Rhodes v. Bate (1866), 1 Ch. App. 252.

(g) Willis v. Barron, [1902] A. C. 271, 277.

(h) Goddard v. Carlisle (1821), 9 Price, 169.

(i) Liles v. Terry, supra.

(k) See title FRAUDULENT AND VOIDABLE CONVEYANCES, Vol. XV., p. 108.

(l) Willis v. Barron, supra, at p. 277.

SECT. 3. Transactions between Solicitor and Client.

and pay over to the donor any benefits received by him by virtue of the gift (m).

When gift valid.

1241. To entitle the solicitor to retain the gift, he must show either (1) that it was made at a time when not only the relationship had ceased, but the influence might rationally be supposed to have ceased also (n); or, if it was made whilst the relationship subsisted, (2) that his influence did not operate with regard to it, and that the client had separate and competent advice from another solicitor who was fully informed of all the circumstances (o); or (3) that it was affirmed by the client after the relationship had ceased (p). A gift made during the relationship is voidable only (q), and acquiescence may be sufficient proof that the gift has been affirmed, provided that the solicitor is able to satisfy the court (1) that the client's conduct amounted to an unequivocal act of acquiescence (r); (2) that the act of acquiescence took place after the relationship had entirely ceased (s); and (3) that the client was fully aware of his right to avoid the gift (t). The Statute of Limitations (u) does not operate to shift the burden of proof from the shoulders of the solicitor to those of the client seeking to impeach the gift, and he must therefore be careful to preserve all the necessary evidence to enable him to support it (v).

SUB-SECT. 3.—Purchases and Sales.

Purchase and sale.

1242. Transactions of purchase or sale between solicitor and client must be characterised by the most absolute good faith if they are to be upheld (w). A purchase of property by the client from the

(m) Adams v. Sunder (1864), 10 L. T. 49, C. A., where the account was directed to be taken on the footing of a wilful default.

(n) Holman v. Loynes (1854), 4 De G. M. & G. 270, 283, C. A.; but see Molony v. L'Estrange (1829), Beat. 406, where the court refused to order the personal representatives of the solicitor to refund past payments of an annuity; see title FRAUDULENT AND VOIDABLE CONVEYANCES, Vol. XV., p. 108.

(o) Wright v. Carter, [1903] 1 Ch. 27, C. A.; Hatch v. Hatch (1804), 9 Ves. 292; Mitchell v. Homfray (1881), 8 Q. B. D. 587, C. A.; Liles v. Terry, [1895] 2 Q. B. 679, C. A.; Powell v. Powell, [1900] 1 Ch. 243; see also Allcard v. Skinner (1887), 36 Ch. D. 145, C. A.; Parfitt v. Lawless (1872), L. R. 2 P. & D. 462; Morgan v. Minett (1877), 6 Ch. D. 638; Tyass v. Alsop, Mann & Co. (1889), 5 T. L. R. 242.

(p) See title GIFTS, Vol. XV., p. 420.

(q) See titles FRAUDULENT AND VOIDABLE CONVEYANCES, Vol. XV., pp. 113 et seq.; GIFTS, Vol. XV., pp. 419 et seq.

(r) Stump v. Gaby (1852), 2 De G. M. & G. 623; Bellew v. Russel (1809), 1 Ball & B. 96.

(s) Gregory v. Gregory (1815), Coop. G. 201; Ward v. Sharp (1884), 53 L. J. (CH.) 313; Browne v. McClintock (1873), L. R. 6 H. L. 456.

(t) Tyass v. Alsop, Mann & Co., supra; Mitchell v. Homfray, supra; Allcard v. Skinner, supra; Molony v. L'Estrange, supra, at p. 413; compare De Bussche v. Alt (1878), 8 Ch. D. 286, 313, C. A. (a case of profit made by an agent at his principal's expense); and title AGENCY, Vol. I., pp. 189, 190. As to the effect of a partial acquiescence, see Waters v. Thorn (1856), 22 Beav. 547.

(u) 21 Jac. 1, c. 16.

(v) Gresley v. Mousley (1859), 4 De G. & J. 78, C. A.

(w) McPherson v. Watt (1877), 3 App. Cas. 254, per Lord O'HAGAN, at p. 266; and see Fry v. Lane, Re Fry, Whittet v. Bush (1888), 40 Ch. D. 312

solicitor cannot therefore be upheld if the client pays more than its fair market value (a), or if the solicitor conceals the fact that the property which the client is purchasing is his own (b). A sale by the client to the solicitor will equally be set aside by the court where the solicitor purchases the property at an undervalue (c) or, in the case of property which, to the knowledge of the solicitor, is likely to increase in value, where the solicitor does not point this out to his client (d), or where the solicitor conceals the fact that he is the actual purchaser, the conveyance being taken in the name of a third person (e). Other circumstances to be taken into consideration are the fact that the client is in difficulties (f); or the non-payment of the purchase-money, the client having only the personal security of the solicitor (g); or the omission from the contract of terms showing a profit to the solicitor (h); or the haste with which the sale is completed (i). The same principle applies to the case of a purchase by the solicitor from the trustee of a bankrupt client, where he makes use of knowledge acquired whilst acting for the client; he cannot be allowed to retain, as against the trustee, an advantage obtained by him in a purchase by means of the knowledge which he has gained whilst acting as solicitor to the bankrupt (k).

Proof of bona fides.

1243. To uphold the sale, the solicitor must be prepared to show that he has acted with the most complete loyalty and fairness;

(solicitor to mortgagee buying the equity of redemption from an ignorant mortgagor in straitened circumstances); Ward v. Carttar (1865), L. R. 1 Eq. 29 (solicitor paying off a mortgage and taking possession of his client's property); title FRAUDULENT AND VOIDABLE CONVEYANCES, Vol. XV., pp. 108, 109; see also title ACTION, Vol. I., p. 55; Tyrrell v. Bank of London (1862), 6 L. T. 1, H. L.; Aitkin v. Campbell's Trustees, [1909] S. C. 1217.

(a) Mitchinson v. Spencer (1902), 86 L. T. 618.

(b) Rothschild v. Brookman (1831), 5 Bli. (N. S.) 165, H. L.; Gillett v. Peppercorne (1840), 3 Beav. 78; Driscoll v. Bromley (1837), 1 Jur. 238, 306.

(c) Wright v. Carter, [1903] 1 Ch. 27, C. A., per STIRLING, L.J., at p. 60; see Cane v. Allen (Lord) (1814), 2 Dow, 289, H. L.; Savery v. King (1856), 5 H. L. Cas. 627.

(d) Pisani v. A.-G. for Gibraltar (1874), L. R. 5 P. C. 516; McPherson v. Watt (1877). 3 App. Cas. 254; Gibson v. Jeyes (1801), 6 Ves. 266; Wood v. Downes (1811), 18 Ves. 120; Denton v. Donner (1856), 23 Beav. 285; Uppington v. Bullen (1842), 2 Dr. & War. 184; Gresley v. Mousley (1859), 4 De G. & J. 78, C. A.; Widgery v. Tepper (1877), 5 Ch. D. 516; Tonkin v. Hughes (1885), 1 T. L. R. 468. In this case it is advisable that the client should be separately advised by another solicitor (Pisani v. A.-G. for Gibraltar, supra; Allison v. Clayhills (1907), 97 L. T. 709 (lease with option to purchase); but the other solicitor must himself know sufficient to make his advice serviceable (Barnard v. Hunter (1856), 2 Jur. (N. S.) 1213; Moxon v. Payne (1873), 8 Ch. App. 881).

(e) McPherson v. Watt, supra (where it was held to be immaterial that the solicitor acted gratuitously); Lewis v. Hillman (1852), 3 H. L. Cas. 607.

(f) Gresley v. Mousley, supra; Holman v. Loynes (1854), 4 De G. M. & G. 270.

(g) Waters v. Thorn (1856), 22 Beav. 547. The fact that the conveyance contains or is indorsed with a receipt for the purchase-money is not sufficient to prove payment (Gresley v. Mousley, supra).

(h) Tonkin v. Hughes, supra.

(i) Lyddon v. Moss (1859), 4 De G. & J. 104, C. A.

(k) Luddy's Trustee v. Peard (1886), 33 Ch. D. 500, per KAY, J., at p. 519.

SECT. 3. Transactions between Solicitor and Client.

that his advice has been free from all taint of self-interest; that he has not misrepresented anything or concealed anything; that he has given an adequate price; and that his client has had the advantage of the best professional assistance which, if he had been engaged in a transaction with a third party, he could possibly have afforded (l). Where the solicitor has otherwise dealt fairly with his client, the transaction will not be set aside merely because the consideration is costs already incurred (m), or because the solicitor happens at a later date to resell the property at a profit (n). Moreover, the transaction is not liable to be set aside where the solicitor succeeds in proving that the relationship of solicitor and client did not exist between himself and the other contracting party in respect of the transaction in question (a).

Sale by court.

1244. A solicitor (b) who, under an order of the court (c), has the conduct of a sale by auction, or who represents any of the parties to the action in which the order is made (d), cannot bid for the property without the leave of the court (e), and, except in special circumstances (f), without the consent of the parties interested (g). In applying for leave to bid, it is the duty of the solicitor to be honest and straightforward in all statements relevant to the duty which the court has to perform in approving the transaction, whether such statements are made voluntarily, or in answer to questions, or arise out of the terms of any proposal or preliminary agreement (h). In the absence of any request for information, he is not bound to lay before the court all the information in his possession: if, however, he purports to give the court information on any particular subject with a view to guide its discretion and obtain its approval, he is bound to lay before it all the material information which he possesses on that particular subject (i). The

(l) McPherson v. Watt (1877), 3 App. Cas. 254, per Lord O'HAGAN, at p. 286; Savery v. King (1856), 5 H. L. Cas. 627; see the cases cited at pp. 748, 749, ante.

(m) Montesquieu v. Sandys (1811), 18 Ves. 302; contrast Uppington v. Bullen (1842), 2 Dr. & War. 184.

(n) Spencer v. Topham (1856), 22 Beav. 573, 577.

(a) Cane v. Allen (Lord) (1814), 2 Dow, 289, H. L.; Edwards v. Williams (1863), 32 L. J. (CH.) 763, C. A. As to purchases by the mortgagee, see title MORTGAGE, Vol. XXI., p. 257.

(b) Including his partner (Price v. Moxon (1754), cited 2 Ves. 54).

(c) As to sales by order of the court, see R. S. C., Ord. 51; title SALE OF LAND, Vol. XXV., pp. 313 et seq. The same principle applies to the purchase of a bankrupt's property by the solicitor of the trustee (Ex parte James (1803), 8 Ves. 337); see title BANKRUPTCY AND INSOLVENCY, Vol. II., p. 120.

(d) Elworthy v. Billing (1841), 10 Sim. 98; Coaks v. Boswell (1886), 11 App. Cas. 232; contrast Guest v. Smythe (1870), 5 Ch. App. 551.

(e) As to when the court will give leave to a solicitor to bid, see Atkins v. Delmege (1847), 12 I. Eq. R. 1; Popham v. Exham (1860), 10 I. Ch. R. 440; Price v. Moxon, supra; Martinson v. Clowes (1882), 21 Ch. D. 857; Coaks v. Boswell, supra, per Lord SELBORNE, at p. 241; Ex parte James, supra.

(f) Re Sedgwick, Ex parte Watts (1846), De G. 265.

(g) Tennant v. Trenchard (1869), 4 Ch. App. 537, 545.

(h) Coaks v. Boswell, supra, per Lord SELBORNE, at p. 236.

(i) Ibid., per Lord FITZGERALD, at p. 244.

leave to bid puts an end to the solicitor's disability to purchase on account of his mere position of solicitor on the record for any of the parties; if, therefore, the auction fails he may under the same leave bid for and purchase the property by private treaty (k).

SECT. 3. Transactions between Solicitor and Client.

SUB-SECT. 4.—Mortgages.

Mortgage to solicitor.

1245. A solicitor is not prohibited from taking security from his client for money advanced, or for costs already due (l), or to become due (m). The validity of any mortgage given by the client is governed by the same principles as govern the validity of a sale by the client. The transaction must be in every way a fair transaction, and the solicitor must not reserve for himself any unusual advantage by the form of the mortgage deed (n) unless fully explained to the client (a). Thus, the rate of interest charged must not be excessive (b); the ordinary right of redemption must not be fettered or restricted (c). Powers to consolidate (d), or to sell immediately on default (e), except when the mortgage is given to secure an existing debt for which the solicitor is pressing (f), should not be reserved without adequate explanation. Even the ordinary power of sale gives the solicitor the right to retain no more than the amount of his advance (g). Moreover, a mortgage may be set aside on the ground of fraud (h) or pressure and undue influence (i).

Mortgage to client.

1246. The same principles apply where a solicitor borrows from his client. In the preparation of any mortgage or security on behalf of the client, great care should be taken that there is no departure

(k) Coaks v. Boswell (1886), 11 App. Cas. 232, per Lord SELBORNE, at pp. 235—242; Turner v. Harvey (1821), Jac. 169, 178; Brownlie v. Campbell (1880), 5 App. Cas. 925, 950; Redgrave v. Hurd (1881), 20 Ch. D. 1, 13, C. A.; Pooley v. Quilter (1858), 2 De G. & J. 327, C. A.; Walters v. Morgan (1860), 3 De G. F. & J. 718; Brooke v. Mostyn (Lord) (1864), 2 De G. J. & Sm. 373, C. A.

(l) Nelson v. Booth (1857), 5 W. R. 722. As to the effect of taking security for costs, see p. 811, post.

(m) Attorneys and Solicitors Act, 1870 (33 & 34 Vict. c. 28), s. 16; Remuneration Order, 1882 (Stat. R. & O. Rev., Vol. XI., Solicitor, England, p. 1), clause 7. As to the position of a solicitor paying off his client's mortgage and receiving the rents, see titles LIMITATION OF ACTIONS, Vol. XIX., p. 150; MORTGAGE, Vol. XXI., p. 193.

(n) Cockburn v. Edwards (1881), 18 Ch. D. 449; Eyre v. Hughes (1876), 2 Ch. D. 148; compare Hiles v. Moore (1848), 17 L. J. (CH.) 385; Prees v. Coke (1871), 6 Ch. App. 645.

(a) Jones v. Linton (1881), 44 L. T. 601; Cockburn v. Edwards, supra.

(b) Jones v. Linton, supra.

(c) Cowdry v. Day (1859), 1 Giff. 316; Biggs v. Hoddinott, Hoddinott v. Biggs, [1898] 2 Ch. 307, C. A.

(d) Climpson v. Coles (1889), 23 Q. B. D. 465, 467.

(e) Cockburn v. Edwards, supra; Cradock v. Rogers, [1885] W. N. 134, C. A. Except, perhaps, in the case of a second mortgage (ibid.).

(f) Pooley's Trustee v. Whetham (1886), 33 Ch. D. 111, C. A.; compare Johnson v. Fesemeyer (1858), 3 De G. & J. 13.

(g) Macleod v. Jones (1883), 24 Ch. D. 289, C. A.; Nelson v. Booth, supra; see title MORTGAGE, Vol. XXI., pp. 177, 253. Costs improperly obtained under a threat of selling are recoverable as money paid under duress (Close v. Phipps, (1844), 7 Man. & G. 586); see title MORTGAGE, Vol. XXI., p. 246, note (s).

(h) Ward v. Sharp (1884), 53 L. J. (CH.) 313.

(i) Walmesley v. Booth (1741), 2 Atk. 27, 29.

SECT. 3. Transactions between Solicitor and Client.

from the usual form in favour of the solicitor (k). The solicitor's real position at the time should also be communicated to the client (l).

SUB-SECT. 5.—Wills.

Wills.

1247. A solicitor is allowed to take benefits under wills made by him for his clients (m). He must, however, be able to show (1) that the testator was capable of making a will; (2) that the testator knew and approved of its contents; and (3) that there was nothing in the way of undue advantage taken or influence exercised by the solicitor (n). In every case honesty and prudence suggest that the client shall be sent to another solicitor acting quite independently from the solicitor who is to receive the benefit, and that such independent solicitor should preserve a complete record of the instructions given to him by the client and of the advice given when such instructions were taken (o). Where a solicitor prepares a will under which he is sole executor, this is by itself sufficient to induce the court to appoint a receiver if a suit is pending as to the validity or meaning of the will (p).

SUB-SECT. 6.—Solicitor as Trustee.

Profit costs not chargeable.

1248. A solicitor-trustee acting on behalf of a trust estate is not, in the absence of a clause giving him that power in the will or settlement under which he is trustee, entitled to charge or recover anything from the trust estate for profit costs (q). Even where costs due in respect of work done by him on behalf of the trust estate have been paid to him, he must account to the trust estate for such portion of them as represents profit (r). This principle applies to the case of a solicitor-trustee (s) who employs an independent solicitor, including a London agent (a), to do work on behalf of his trust estate on agency terms, as regards any profit which the solicitor-trustee may make by reason of such bargain. Where, however, the solicitor is acting for a cestui que trust in an action he is allowed to keep his profit charges, although the costs are paid out of the trust estate (b).

(k) Compare Pooley's Trustee v. Whetham (1886), 38 Ch. D. 111, C. A.

(l) Re a Solicitor, Ex parte Incorporated Law Society (1893), 63 L. J. (Q. B.) 313.

(m) Parfitt v. Lawless (1872), L. R. 2 P. & D. 462; Hindson v. Weatherill (1854), 5 De G. M. & G. 301, C. A.; Walker v. Smith (1861), 29 Beav. 394.

(n) Barry v. Butlin (1838), 2 Moo. P. C. C. 480; Fulton v. Andrew (1875), L. R. 7 H. L. 448, 471; see Re Birchall, Wilson v. Birchall (1881), 44 L. T. 243.

(o) Wright v. Carter, [1903] 1 Ch. 27, C. A. As to independent advice generally, see note (d), p. 749, ante.

(p) Hamilton v. Girdleston, [1876] W. N. 202; Lovesy v. Smith (1880), 15 Ch. D. 655; Rhodes v. Bate (1866), 1 Ch. App. 252.

(q) See titles EQUITY, Vol. XIII., pp. 158, 159; EXECUTORS AND ADMINISTRATORS, Vol. XIV., p. 321, note (n); TRUSTS AND TRUSTEES.

(r) Broughton v. Broughton (1855), 5 De G. M. & G. 160; Re Corsellis, Lawton v. Elwes (1887), 34 Ch. D. 675, C. A.

(s) Re Taylor (1854), 18 Beav. 165; Vipont v. Butler (1893), 28 L. J. 293.

(a) Burge v. Bruton (1843), 2 Hare, 373.

(b) Re Barber, Burgess v. Vinnicome (1886), 34 Ch. D. 77. This is not so in the case of non-contentious business (ibid.).

SECT. 3. Transactions between Solicitor and Client.

1249. The instrument creating a trust may, however, give the solicitor, in spite of the fact that he is a trustee, the right to charge and receive payment of his profit costs (c). The extent of this right depends upon the language of the particular instrument under which the solicitor acts. The words used may be wide enough to entitle the solicitor to charge for all business done by him on behalf of the trust estate, whether such business falls within the usual course of a solicitor's business or not (d). On the other hand, the instrument may empower him to make only the usual professional charges; in this case the allowance will be strictly limited to that kind of work which a solicitor would in the ordinary course of business be necessarily employed by a client to do for him (e). The solicitor, in preparing the instrument under which he is to act, ought not to insert the provision enabling him to charge for non-professional business, in the absence of express instructions to that effect from his client (f).

Express provision.

1250. A solicitor who is appointed a trustee in bankruptcy is entitled, in fixing the amount of remuneration to be paid to him for his services, to take into account the professional services which he may have to render to the debtor's estate; but his remuneration must be a percentage to be fixed by an ordinary resolution of the creditors or by the committee of inspection (g). A resolution to pay him by way of remuneration his proper professional charges as a solicitor for attendance and work done and expenses incurred by him in or about the proceedings in the bankruptcy is ultra vires and void (h).

Trustee in bankruptcy.

SECT. 4.—Obligations of Solicitor towards his Client.

SUB-SECT. 1.—Possession of Legal Skill and Knowledge.

1251. A solicitor (i) holds himself out to his clients (k) as possessing adequate skill, knowledge, and learning for the purpose

Liability for negligence.

(c) See title TRUSTS AND TRUSTEES. The solicitor cannot, in the case of a will, charge profit costs if the estate is insolvent, since the provision enabling him to do so is in effect a legacy of profit costs (Re White, Pennell v. Franklin, [1898] 2 Ch. 217, C. A.). He is, however, entitled to out-of-pocket costs (Re Shuttleworth, Lilley v. Moore (1911), 55 Sol. Jo. 366).

(d) Re Ames, Ames v. Taylor (1883), 25 Ch. D. 72; see also Ellison v. Airey (1748), 1 Ves. Sen. 111; Willis v. Kibble (1839), 1 Beav. 559.

(e) Re Chapple, Newton v. Chapman (1884), 27 Ch. D. 587, per KAY, J., at p. 687; Re Fish, Bennett v. Bennett, [1893] 2 Ch. 413, C. A.; Re Chalinder and Herington, [1907] 1 Ch. 58; and see Re Webb, Lambert v. Still, [1894] 1 Ch. 73, 77, C. A.

(f) Re Chapple, Newton v. Chapman, supra.

(g) Bankruptcy Act, 1883 (46 & 47 Vict. c. 52), s. 72 (1); and see title BANKRUPTCY AND INSOLVENCY, Vol. II., p. 127.

(h) Re Wayman, Ex parte Official Receiver (1889), 24 Q. B. D. 68.

(i) He need not have taken out his certificate (Brown v. Tolley (1874), 31 L. T. 485).

(k) It is immaterial whether the solicitor is paid or acts gratuitously (Donaldson v. Haldane (1840), 7 Cl. & Fin. 762, H.L.). But the relation of solicitor and client must exist (Fish v. Kelly (1864), 17 C. B. (N. S.) 194; Robertson v. Fleming (1861), 4 Macq. 167, H. L.; compare Learoyd v. Alston, [1913] A. C. 529, where the solicitor acted for both husband and wife, though, in the circumstances, he was held not to have been of properly conducting all business that he undertakes, whether contentious or non-contentious (l). If, therefore, he causes loss or damage to his client owing to want of such knowledge as he ought to possess or the want of such care as he ought to exercise, he is guilty of negligence giving rise to an action for damages by his client (m). Where an action is brought by the client against his solicitor for negligence, the client must prove two things, namely, (1) that there was want of skill or care, and (2) that owing to such want of skill or care he has suffered damage (a). It is for the judge to say whether upon the evidence there is any case made out to go to the jury on the question of negligence (b); and for the jury to say whether the negligence proved is sufficient to make the defendant liable (c). The measure of damages is the full amount of the pecuniary loss which the client has sustained (d), and in addition the solicitor forfeits the right to receive costs in respect of the work rendered useless to his client by reason of his negligence (e).

SECT. 4. Obligations of Solicitor towards his Client.

guilty of negligence towards the wife. The solicitor may, however, be made liable for negligence to a person not his client as an officer of the court (Batten v. Wedgwood Coal and Iron Co. (1886), 31 Ch. D. 346); compare Re Burton, Ex parte Scallan, Ex parte Jones (1827), 1 Mol. 63. As to his liability for misrepresentation, see Pasley v. Freeman (1789), 3 Term Rep. 51; Arnot v. Biscoe (1748), 1 Ves. Sen. 95; Clark v. Hoskins (1867), 15 W. R. 1161; M'Elroy v. Murphy (1874), 22 W. R. 501.

(l) Hart v. Frame (1839), 6 Cl. & Fin, 193, H. L.; Lanphier v. Phipos (1854), 8 C. & P. 475; Parker v. Rolls (1854), 14 C. B. 691; Harmer v. Cornelius (1858), 5 C. B. (N. S.) 236; Bulkley v. Wilford (1834), 2 Cl. & Fin. 102, 181, H. L.; and see titles AGENCY, Vol. I., pp 185, 186; NEGLIGENCE, Vol. XXI., pp. 367 et seq. As to the protection afforded by counsel's advice, see p. 758, post; title BARRISTERS, Vol. II., pp. 401 et seq.

(m) Hart v. Frame, supra; Donaldson v. Haldane (1840), 7 Cl. & Fin. 762, H. L.; Parker v. Rolls (1854), 14 C. B. 691; Elkington v. Holland (1842), 9 M. & W. 659; see Townley v. Jones (1860), 8 C. B. (N. S.) 289, where a solicitor was ordered to pay, out of his own pocket, the costs of the day thrown away for having failed to instruct counsel in time. A solicitor cannot, by special agreement with his client, contract out of liability for negligence (Attorneys and Solicitors Act, 1870 (33 & 34 Vict. c. 28), s. 7). As the right of action is based upon an implied contract, an action lies after the solicitor's death against his representatives (Davies v. Wood (1903), 88 L. T. 19; contra, Young v. Wallingford (1883), 52 L. J. (CH.) 590). As to when the court will order the solicitor to pay costs, see pp. 832 et seq., post.

(a) Hatch v. Lewis (1861), 7 H. & N. 367; compare Bettyes v. Maynard (1883), 49 L. T. 389, C. A.; and see, generally, title NEGLIGENCE, Vol. XXI., pp. 367 et seq. As to the duty of a professional man to acquaint himself with recent judicial decisions, see title BUILDING CONTRACTS, ENGINEERS, AND ARCHITECTS, Vol. III., p. 296, note (t).

(b) Metropolitan Rail. Co. v. Jackson (1877), 3 App. Cas. 193, per Lord BLACKBURN, at p. 207; Giblin v. McMullen (1868), L. R. 2 P. C. 317.

(c) Hunter v. Caldwell (1847), 10 Q. B. 69. A solicitor-trustee of a will should not appoint his son co-trustee (Re Norris, Allen v. Norris (1884), 27 Ch. D. 333).

(d) Whiteman v. Hawkins (1878), 4 C. P. D. 13; compare Baker v. Loader (1872), L. R. 16 Eq. 49. The cause of action, however, arises when the negligence is committed, not when the loss is sustained (Smith v. Fox (1848), 6 Hare, 386). The solicitor may rely on the Statute of Limitations (21 Jac. 1, c. 16) (Dooby v. Watson (1888), 39 Ch. D. 178); and see title DAMAGES, Vol. X., p. 346.

(e) Lewis v. Samuel (1846), 8 Q. B. 685; Pasmore v. Birnie (1817), 2 Stark. 59; Re Massey and Carey (1884), 26 Ch. D. 459, C. A.; Otley v. Gilbert (1845), 8 Beav. 602; see p. 798, post.

SECT. 4. Obligations of Solicitor towards his Client.

1252. A solicitor is not guilty of negligence if he has merely acted upon his client's instructions in the reasonable belief that they were correct (f), or if he has fully explained the position to his client and is nevertheless instructed to proceed (g); nor merely because he has committed an error in judgment, whether on matters of discretion (h) or of law (i), such as, for instance, on points of new occurrence or of doubtful construction (k). Where the facts would otherwise establish a case of negligence, the solicitor may escape liability on the ground that he acted upon counsel's advice (l). For this purpose he must show that the counsel whom he consulted was, in his judgment, a competent person (m), that the facts of the case were fully laid before counsel (n), and that he himself merely carried out what counsel had advised (o). Counsel's advice is, however, no protection to the solicitor where, in the circumstances of the case, the solicitor ought to have the knowledge himself (p), or where the question is one of practical procedure (q), not involving any special difficulty (r).

Facts not constituting negligence.

Effect of counsel's advice.

1253. In matters which are contentious the solicitor is liable for the consequences of his ignorance or non-observance of the rules of practice; for his want of care in the preparation of the action for trial or his failure to attend thereon with his witnesses; and for the mismanagement of so much of the conduct of an action as is usually allotted to his department of the profession (s). Thus, a solicitor is liable for negligence where, before bringing the action, he fails to make proper investigation into the cause of action (t), or, knowing Negligence in contentious matters.

(f) Lewis v. Collard (1853), 14 C. B. 208; compare Pitman v. Francis (1884), Cab. & El. 355.

(g) Lee v. Dixon (1863), 3 F. & F. 744.

(h) Hill v. Finney (1865), 4 F. & F. 616, 625, n.; Faithfull v. Kesteven (1910), 103 L. T. 56, C. A.

(i) Hart v. Frame (1839), 6 Cl. & Fin. 193, H. L.; Purves v. Landell (1845), 12 Cl. & Fin. 91, H. L.; Shilcock v. Passman (1836), 7 C. & P. 289.

(k) Godefroy v. Dalton (1830), 6 Bing. 460; Kemp v. Burt (1833), 4 B. & Ad. 424; Re Sadd (1865), 34 Beav. 650; Stevenson v. Rowand (1830), 2 Dow & Cl. 104, 119, H. L.

(l) See title BARRISTERS, Vol. II., pp. 401, 402. Counsel is not, in such a case, liable for negligence; see ibid., p. 394; title NEGLIGENCE, Vol. XXI., p. 370.

(m) Compare Chapman v. Chapman (1870), L. R. 9 Eq. 276 (surveyors).

(n) Hawkins v. Harwood (1849), 4 Exch. 503; Ireson v. Pearman (1825), 3 B. & C. 799; compare Clarke v. Couchman (1885), 20 L. J. N. C. 318.

(o) Godefroy v. Dalton, supra; Potts v. Sparrow (1834), 6 C. & P. 749; Andrew v. Hawley (1857), 26 L. J. (EX.) 323; compare Re Clark (1851), 1 De G. M. & G. 43, C. A.

(p) Godefroy v. Dalton, supra; Bryan v. Twigg (1834), 3 L. J. (CH.) 114; compare Re Clark, supra.

(q) Russell v. Palmer (1767), 2 Wils. 325; Baikie v. Chandless (1811), 3 Camp. 17; compare Compton v. Chandless (1802), cited 3 Camp. 19.

(r) Laidler v. Elliott (1825), 3 B. & C. 738; see title BARRISTERS, Vol. II., p. 402.

(s) Godefroy v. Dalton, supra, per TINDAL, C.J., at p. 469. For the rules of practice, see title PRACTICE AND PROCEDURE, Vol. XXIII., pp. 89 et seq.; and compare title PLEADING, Vol. XXII., pp. 421, 424. As to a solicitor's liability when acting in divorce proceedings, see title HUSBAND AND WIFE, Vol. XVI., pp. 549, 554.

(t) Gill v. Lougher (1830), 1 Cr. & J. 170; Ottley v. Gilbey (1845), 8 Beav. 602.

SECT. 4. Obligations of Solicitor towards his Client.

that the client has done some act which will preclude him from recovering, neglects to point this out (u); where he advises the client to enter into litigation though success is improbable and though counsel's advice is against the action being brought (a); where he proceeds under a wrong statute or section of a statute (b); where (c) he fails to issue or renew a writ in time to save the Statute of Limitations (d); where he brings an action in the wrong court, as, for instance, where he sues in the High Court, though, owing to the amount claimed, the action ought to have been brought in a county court (e), or where he sues in an inferior court, though he knows that the cause of action arose out of its jurisdiction (f); where he fails to inform the trustee of a bankrupt that if he brings an action without the consent of the creditors he will be liable to pay costs out of his own pocket (g); where he fails to prepare the case properly for trial (h); where, on the trial of an action, he neglects without reasonable excuse to instruct counsel to appear on his client's behalf (i), or, if he has the right of audience, where he fails to attend to conduct the case (k), or conducts it improperly (l); where he fails to see that a material witness whom his client has undertaken to call is in court when wanted whereby his client loses his action (m); where, there being a good defence to an action, he allows judgment to go by default (n); where in a proper case he fails to issue execution (o); where he does not communicate an offer of compromise to his client (p); where he advises a hopeless appeal which could not benefit the client (q); or where he neglects to register a lis pendens (r).

Negligence in non-contentious matters.

1254. In non-contentious matters it is the solicitor's duty to carry them out according to the regular method prescribed by statute, rule, or custom. Thus, he is guilty of negligence where (u) Jacks v. Bell (1828), 3 C. & P. 316.

(a) Re Clark (1851), 1 De G. M. & G. 43, C. A.
(b) Hart v. Frame (1839), 6 Cl. & Fin. 193, H. L.
(c) Hunter v. Caldwell (1847), 10 Q. B. 69.
(d) 21 Jac. 1, c. 16.
(e) Lee v. Dixon (1863), 3 F. & F. 744; contrast Barker v. Fleetwood Improvement Commissioners (1890), 62 L. T. 831.
(f) Williams v. Gibbs (1836), 5 Ad. & El. 208; compare Cox v. Leech (1857), 1 C. B. (N. S.) 617.
(g) Allison v. Rayner (1827), 7 B. & C. 441, 443.
(h) Manley v. Palache (1895), 73 L. T. 98, P. C.
(i) Hawkins v. Harwood (1849), 4 Exch. 503; De Rousigny v. Peale (1811), 3 Taunt. 484; compare Townley v. Jones (1860), 8 C. B. (N. S.) 289.
(k) Swannell v. Ellis (1823), 1 Bing. 347 (arbitration); and see Courtney v. Stock (1842), 2 Dr. & War. 251.
(l) Montriou v. Jefferys (1825), 2 C. & P. 113.
(m) Reece v. Rigby (1821), 4 B. & Ald. 202; compare Hatch v. Lewis (1861), 2 F. & F. 467, 472; and contrast Price v. Bullen (1824), 3 L. J. (O. S.) (K. B.) 39.
(n) Godefroy v. Jay (1831), 7 Bing. 413.
(o) Harrington v. Binns (1863), 3 F. & F. 942; Ridley v. Tiplady (1855), 20 Beav. 44; Fray v. Foster (1860), 1 F. & F. 681; compare Bevins v. Hulme (1846), 15 M. & W. 88.
(p) Sill v. Thomas (1839), 8 C. & P. 762.
(q) Harbin v. Masterman, [1896] 1 Ch. 351, C. A.
(r) Plant v. Pearman (1872), 41 L. J. (Q. B.) 169.

he fails to explain adequately to the client any document which is to be executed by the client, such as a deed or will (s), or bill of sale (t); where, in acting for the settlor under a voluntary settlement, he fails to see that all usual clauses, such as, for instance, an ultimate power of appointment in the settlor's favour after the specific trusts have been worked out, are inserted (u), and to point out to his client the statutory provisions relating to voluntary conveyances (a), or to preserve strict evidence of the settlor's ability to pay his then existing debts without the aid of the settled property (b); where, in acting for a mortgagee, he fails to require production of the deeds relating to the property, and his client in order to sell under his mortgage has to pay off a prior equitable mortgagee (c), or where, having reason to be doubtful of the solvency of the mortgagor, he fails to make the usual and proper searches in bankruptcy (d), or where he fails to give the proper notices to secure priority for a charge taken on his client's behalf (e), or where he advises an investment without seeing that the security is adequate in amount as well as sufficient and proper in point of form (f); where, in acting for a vendor, he allows an unusual covenant to be inserted in the conveyance, and neglects to explain its effect (g); where, in acting for a purchaser of leasehold property, he fails to investigate the vendor's title (h), or to require production of the head lease (i), or the last receipt for ground rent (j); or where, in drawing up an

(s) Morrell v. Morrell (1882), 7 P. D. 68, 73; Henshall v. Fereday (1873), 27 L. T. 743; Horan v. MacMahon (1886), 17 L. R. Ir. 641, C. A.; see title FAMILY ARRANGEMENTS, Vol. XIV., p. 551, note (i). It is his duty to see his client before preparing a will for him (Clery v. Barry (1887), 21 L. R. Ir. 152, C. A.; compare Aylwin v. Aylwin, [1902] P. 203).

(t) Re Haynes, Ex parte National Mercantile Bank (1880), 15 Ch. D. 42, 52, C. A.

(u) James v. Couchman (1885), 29 Ch. D. 212.

(a) Namely, stat. (1571) 13 Eliz. c. 5; Bankruptcy Act, 1883 (46 & 47 Vict. c. 52), ss. 4, 29; see titles BANKRUPTCY AND INSOLVENCY, Vol. II., pp. 275 et seq.; FRAUDULENT AND VOIDABLE CONVEYANCES, Vol. XV., pp. 77 et seq.; and compare title MISTAKE, Vol. XXI., pp. 12, 16.

(b) Re Butterworth, Ex parte Russell (1882), 19 Ch. D. 588, 597, C. A.

(c) Whiteman v. Hawkins (1878), 4 C. P. D. 13; compare Wilson v. Tucker (1822), 3 Stark. 154; and see Agra Bank, Ltd. v. Barry (1874), L. R. 7 H. L. 135.

(d) Cooper v. Stephenson (1852), 16 Jur. 424.

(e) Watts v. Porter (1854), 3 E. & B. 743; Stevenson v. Rowand (1832), 2 Dow & Cl. 104, H. L.; Donaldson v. Haldane (1840), 7 Cl. & Fin. 762, H. L.; Bean v. Wade (1885), Cab. & El. 519. It is his duty to register the mortgage, if registration is necessary (Re Patent Bread Machinery Co., Ex parte Valpy and Chaplin (1872), 7 Ch. App. 289).

(f) Stokes v. Prance, [1898] 1 Ch. 212; Langdon v. Godfrey (1865), 4 F. & F. 445; contrast Brumbridge v. Massey (1858), 28 L. J. (EX.) 59; Scholes v. Brook (1891), 63 L. T. 837; Learoyd v. Alston, [1913] A. C. 529. As to the formalities necessary on the execution of a warrant of attorney, see title MORTGAGE, Vol. XXI., p. 90.

(g) Stannard v. Ullithorne (1834), 10 Bing. 491.

(h) Allen v. Clark (1863), 7 L. T. 781; De Montmorency v. Devereux (1840), 7 Cl. & Fin. 188, H. L.; see, however, British Mutual Investment Co. v. Cobbold (1875), L. R. 19 Eq. 627; compare title NEGLIGENCE, Vol. XXI., p. 486.

(i) Allen v. Clark, supra.

(j) Waine v. Kempster (1859), 1 F. & F. 695.

SECT. 4. Obligations of Solicitor towards his Client.

agreement on behalf of his client, he fails to insert a necessary stipulation (k), or, if a seal is essential to its validity, neglects to make it under seal (l). A solicitor is also liable to his client in an action of detinue if he loses or mislays his deeds (m).

SUB-SECT. 2.—Personal Attention and Protection of Client's Interests.

Delegation of authority.

1255. A solicitor undertaking any kind of business on behalf of a client is bound to give to it that amount of personal attention which it reasonably requires; if, therefore, he hands it over to an agent to carry through for him, he is responsible for the acts and defaults of the agent (n). Thus, he is liable for any want of care, knowledge or honesty in his partner (o), his clerk (p), or his London agent (q). He is not, however, responsible for agents employed by him on the client's behalf to do other than legal work, such as, for instance, a stockbroker, accountant, or surveyor, unless knowledge of such agent's incompetence can be proved against him (a). It is also his duty to give proper instructions to any agent whom he may employ to conduct the client's business. Thus, if a firm of solicitors allows one of the partners in the firm to act as advocate in a case in which the firm is retained, and owing to such member being insufficiently acquainted with the facts the client suffers, the firm is guilty of a want of diligence and will be liable in damages to the client (b). If the solicitor instructs counsel, he is bound to prepare or to give counsel verbally adequate instructions to enable him properly to lay the case before the court (c), but here his liability under this head ceases; if he has properly instructed counsel, who fails to attend, he is not responsible for counsel's default (d).

SUB-SECT. 3.—Liability for Acts of Partners.

Authority of partners.

1256. Each partner in the firm acting within the scope of his apparent authority as a partner binds his co-partners, unless the (k) A solicitor, however, who has made a mistake in the preparation of a document will not be ordered to pay the costs of a suit for its rectification, although he may be sued for negligence (Clark v. Girdwood (1877), 7 Ch. D. 9, C. A.). As to relief in such a case, see title MISTAKE, Vol. XXI., p. 12.

(l) Parker v. Rolls (1854), 14 C. B. 691.

(m) Wilmot v. Elkington (1833), 1 Nev. & M. (K. B.) 749 · Reeve v. Palmer (1858), 5 C. B. (N. S.) 84.

(n) See title AGENCY, Vol. I., p. 193.

(o) See the text, infra.

(p) Floyd v. Nangle (1747), 3 Atk. 568; Curlewis v. Broad (1862), 1 H. & C. 322 (process server); Lloyd v. Grace, Smith & Co., [1912], A. C. 716.

(q) Re Ward, Simmons v. Rose, Weeks v. Ward (1862), 31 Beav. 1, 11; see p. 845, post.

(a) Carruthers v. Hodgson (1896), 100 L. T. Jo. 395; Mercer v. King (1859), 1 F. & F. 490; Chapman v. Chapman (1870), L. R. 9 Eq. 276; see title CONTRACT, Vol. VII., pp. 356, note (c), 358, note (m). If he pays his client's money into a bank and mixes it with his own, he is liable to make it good if the bank fails, even though he acted bonâ fide (Robinson v. Ward (1825), 2 C. & P. 59).

(b) Clarke v. Couchman (1885), 20 L. J. N. C. 318.

(c) R. v. Tew (1752), Say. 50; De Rousigny v. Peale (1811), 3 Taunt. 484; Dauntley v. Hyde (1841), 6 Jur. 133.

(d) Lowry v. Guilford (1832), 5 C. & P. 234; see title BARRISTERS, Vol. II., p. 401.

partner so acting has in fact no authority to act for the firm in the particular matter, and the person with whom he is dealing either knows that he has no authority or does not know or believe him to be a partner (e). Thus, each partner primâ facie binds the firm when in the ordinary course of business he gives an undertaking (f), or is guilty of negligence (g), fraud (h), or misconduct (i). Where, however, one partner pledges the credit of the firm for a purpose apparently not connected with its business as a firm of solicitors, the firm is not bound unless such partner was specially authorised by the others to do so (k). Thus, in the absence of special authority to the partner so purporting to contract, the firm is not liable upon a promissory note (l), a bill of exchange (m), nor a post-dated cheque (n), nor upon an undertaking to pay a debt and costs on behalf of a client (o); nor is the firm liable for the fraud of a partner acting in his private capacity, such as mortgagor (p) or administrator (q), or trustee (r), nor for the misconduct of a partner in allowing a stranger to make use of the firm name (s).

Misappropriation.

Similarly, where a partner receives moneys or securities from or on behalf of a client, and misappropriates them, the firm is liable, provided that they came to the hands of the partner in the ordinary course of business (t). Solicitors are not, however, as such, scriveners (u); if, therefore, a partner, without the knowledge of his co-partners, receives money or securities for safe custody or on deposit until an investment can be found, the firm is not liable (a): to render the firm liable, it must be shown that the (e) Partnership Act, 1890 (53 & 54 Vict. c. 39), s. 5.

(f) Alliance Bank v. Tucker (1867), 17 L. T. 13.
(g) Rew v. Lane (1856), 5 W. R. 110.
(h) Sawyer v. Goodwin (1867), 36 L. J. (CH.) 578; Brydges v. Branfill (1841), 12 Sim. 369; compare p. 758, post.
(i) Norton v. Cooper, Re Manby and Hawksford, Ex parte Bittlestone (1856), 3 Sm. & G. 375.
(k) Partnership Act, 1890 (53 & 54 Vict. c. 39), s. 7; Cleather v. Twisden (1884), 28 Ch. D. 340, C. A.
(l) Hedley v. Bainbridge (1842), 3 Q. B. 316; Levy v. Pyne (1842), Car & M. 453; Smith v. Coleman (1843), 7 Jur. 1053.
(m) Garland v. Jacomb (1873), L. R. 8 Exch. 216, Ex. Ch.
(n) Forster v. Mackreth (1867), L. R. 2 Exch. 163; see title PARTNERSHIP, Vol. XXII., p. 26, note (c).
(o) Hasleham v. Young (1844), 5 Q. B. 833.
(p) Hughes v. Twisden (1886), 55 L. J. (CH.) 481.
(q) Chilton v. Cooke (1879), Times, 2nd July, C. A.
(r) Palmer v. S. (1907), 51 Sol. Jo. 653.
(s) Marsh v. Joseph, [1897] 1 Ch. 213, C. A.
(t) Moore v. Smith (1851), 14 Beav. 393; Atkinson v. Mackreth (1866), L. R. 2 Eq. 570; Biggs v. Bree (1882), 51 L. J. (CH.) 263, C. A.; Dundonald (Earl) v. Masterman (1869), L. R. 7 Eq. 504; Tendring Hundred Waterworks Co. v. Jones, [1903] 2 Ch. 615; compare Hackney v. Knight (1891), 7 T. L. R. 254 (managing clerk); Lloyd v. Grace, Smith & Co., [1912] A. C. 716 (managing clerk); and see, further, title PARTNERSHIP, Vol. XXII., pp. 30, 31, 35, 92.
(u) Harman v. Johnson (1853), 2 E. & B. 61; Plumer v. Gregory (1874), L. R. 18 Eq. 621; compare note (e), p. 766, post.
(a) Sims v. Brutton (1850), 5 Exch. 802; Harman v. Johnson, supra; Bourdillon v. Roche (1858), 27 L. J. (CH.) 681; Re Lawrence, Crowdy and Bowlby, Ex parte Burdon (1854), 2 Sm. & G. 367; compare Hills v. Reeves (1882), 31 W. R. 209, C. A.

SECT. 4. Obligations of Solicitor towards his Client.

receipt of the money or securities was authorised (b) or ratified (c) by his co-partners, or that they consented to his having a general authority to act without their knowing what he did (d). On the other hand, the firm is liable when the money is received for the purpose of being invested in a specific security (e).

Dealings with trust property.

1257. It is not within the scope of the implied authority of a solicitor carrying on business in partnership to constitute himself a constructive trustee, and thereby to subject his partner to liability in that character, the partner being ignorant of the dealings by which the constructive trust is established (f). If, however, one member of a firm is acting as solicitor for trustees in mortgage transactions where the trustees are mortgagees, and a security is accepted which the solicitor ought to have known was not a trustee security, all the members of the firm, including the representatives of a partner who has died since the transaction, may be held liable for negligence in their capacity as solicitors to make good any loss to the trust estate either at the suit of the trustees or the beneficiaries, and it is immaterial that the partners concerned may have had no personal knowledge of the transaction (g).

Part V.—Remuneration of Solicitors; Costs.

SECT. 1.—Amount Fixed by Law.

SUB-SECT. 1.—In General.

Non-contentious and contentious business.

1258. The remuneration of a solicitor for professional work done by him for a client is governed, (1) as regards non-contentious business, strictly by statute (h); and (2) as regards contentious business, by rules of the House of Lords, Privy Council, Supreme Court, County Court, and Court of Bankruptcy (i).

SUB-SECT. 2.—Non-contentious Business.

Conveyancing business.

1259. Conveyancing business properly so called (k) is governed by the general order made pursuant to the Solicitors Remuneration

(b) Blair v. Bromley (1847), 2 Ph. 354; St. Aubyn v. Smart (1868), 3 Ch. App. 646; Slack v. Parker (1886), 54 L. T. 212.

(c) Cleather v. Twisden (1884), 28 Ch. D. 340, C. A.; distinguished in Rhodes v. Moules, [1895] 1 Ch. 236, C. A.

(d) Cleather v. Twisden, supra, per BOWEN, L.J., at p. 350.

(e) Blair v. Bromley, supra, followed in Moore v. Knight, [1891] 1 Ch. 547; Harman v. Johnson (1853), 2 E. & B. 61; Plumer v. Gregory (1874), L. R. 18 Eq. 621; Hughes v. Twisden (1886), 55 L. J. (CH.) 481; Eager v. Barnes (1862), 31 Beav. 579; Willet v. Chambers (1778), 2 Cowp. 814.

(f) Mara v. Browne, [1896] 1 Ch. 199, C. A.; see, further, title PARTNERSHIP, Vol. XXII., p. 31.

(g) Blyth v. Fladgate, Morgan v. Blyth, Smith v. Blyth, [1891] 1 Ch. 337; Rae v. Meek (1889), 14 App. Cas. 558; Brinsden v. Williams, [1894] 3 Ch. 185.

(h) See the text, infra.

(i) See pp. 767 et seq., post.

(k) The scale applies as well to conveyancing matters which are carried out in the course of an action as to those carried through entirely out of

SECT. 1. Amount Fixed by Law.

Act, 1881 (a). Provision is made for two distinct methods of remuneration, namely:—(1) under Schedule I. of the Order by an ad valorem charge (b) upon all transactions of purchase and sale, mortgages, and leases; and (2) under Schedule II. of the Order by a series of separate charges for all the different items of work done. Schedule I. applies in every case, unless the solicitor has elected to charge his client under Schedule II. (c). The solicitor's election is signified by notice, which, to be effective, must be in writing, and must be given before undertaking any business (d). If, therefore, the solicitor has done any preliminary work, such as, for instance, writing for particulars with regard to his client's admission to copyhold land (e), or preparing a draft agreement for sale or purchase of land (f), or conferring with the client as to a sale and as to title (g), it is too late for him to give notice of election, and he is bound by the scale.

Sales, purchases, and mortgages.

1260. In the case of sales, purchases, and mortgages (h), a solicitor court; the only exception from the scope of the scale is "other business not being conveyancing business" (Stanford v. Roberts (1884), 26 Ch. D. 155). As to the cases in which, by usage, the remuneration is payable, not by his client, but by the other party to the transaction in which the solicitor is employed, see titles CUSTOM AND USAGES, Vol. X., pp. 283, 284; LANDLORD AND TENANT, Vol. XVIII., pp. 402, 403; MORTGAGE, Vol. XXI., pp. 123, 124; SALE OF LAND, Vol. XXV., pp. 336, 434, 435. As to costs of a solicitor appointed guardian ad litem, see title INFANTS AND CHILDREN, Vol. XVII., p. 144; as to the costs of compulsory sales under the Lands Clauses Acts, see title COMPULSORY PURCHASE OF LAND AND COMPENSATION, Vol. VI., pp. 112 et seq.

(a) 44 & 45 Vict. c. 44, ss. 1—7; Remuneration Order, 1882 (Stat. R. & O. Rev., Vol. XI., Solicitor, England, p. 1; Yearly Practice of the Supreme Court, 1914, p. 1471). The order does not apply to a sale of land out of the jurisdiction (Re Greville's Settlement (1888), 40 Ch. D. 441).

(b) This does not include disbursements, such as counsel's fees, stamps, or travelling expenses (Remuneration Order, 1882, clause 4). All drafts and copies made in the course of the business are the property of the client (ibid., clause 3); see p. 740, ante.

(c) Remuneration Order, 1882, clause 6; Re Peel's (Sir Robert) Settled Estates, [1910] 1 Ch. 389 (sale of estate in lots). But the whole of the business must have been done (Re Hickley and Steward (1885), 54 L. J. (CH.) 608); see p. 767, post. The solicitor may elect though acting for a local authority (Re Evans (a Solicitor), [1905] 1 Ch. 290).

(d) Remuneration Order, 1882, clause 6; Re Bridewell Hospital and Metropolitan Board of Works (1887), 57 L. T. 155 (compulsory purchase). Sending in a bill of costs in the old form is not an election to charge by items (Fleming v. Hardcastle (1885), 52 L. T. 851; and see Re Love, Hill v. Spurgeon (1889), 58 L. J. (CH.) 272).

(e) Re Allen (1887), 34 Ch. D. 433, C. A.

(f) Hester v. Hester (1887), 34 Ch. D. 607, C. A.

(g) Re Metcalfe, Metcalfe v. Blencowe (1887), 57 L. J. (CH.) 82.

(h) Remuneration Order, 1882, clause 2 (a), Sched. I., Part. I. The scale applies to an equitable mortgage, even though it is not under seal and contains an agreement to execute a further legal mortgage, if the work contemplated by the scale has been done by the solicitor (Re Baker, [1912] 2 Ch. 405). This scale applies also to transfers of mortgage where title is investigated, unless the investigation is by the solicitor who investigated the title of the original mortgage or on any previous transfer (Remuneration Order, 1882, Sched. I., Part I., r. 10); see note (n), p. 762, post. A solicitor-mortgagee, whether solely or jointly interested, may charge the same costs as if he had been acting for a client, and is entitled to remuneration ad valorem (i) in respect of each of the following matters, namely: (1) for negotiating a sale or purchase of property by private contract, or a mortgage, payable to the solicitors acting for both vendor and purchaser, and to the solicitor acting for the mortgagee (k); (2) for conducting a sale of property by public auction (l); (3) for deducing or investigating the title to freehold, copyhold, or leasehold property, perusing (m), and completing the conveyance or mortgage, including the preparation of the contract or the conditions of sale (if any), or the mortgage, payable to the solicitors acting for both vendor and purchaser and to the solicitor acting for the mortgagee (n). If any other party joins in may add the costs to his security (Mortgagees Legal Costs Act, 1895 (58 & 59 Vict. c. 25), ss. 2, 3; Eyre v. Wynn-Mackenzie, [1896] 1 Ch. 135, C. A.); see title MORTGAGE, Vol. XXI., pp. 124, 145, 156, 242, note (e). As to a solicitor paying off his client's mortgage, see title LIMITATION OF ACTIONS, Vol. XIX., p. 150. The Mortgagees Legal Costs Act, 1895 (58 & 59 Vict. c. 25), is not retrospective (Day v. Kelland, [1900] 2 Ch. 745, C. A.; Cheese v. Keen (1907), 24 T. L. R. 138; Wellby v. Still, [1895] 1 Ch. 524). As to the parties liable for the costs of sales and purchases, see title SALE OF LAND, Vol. XXV., pp. 336, 433 et seq.; as to the persons liable for costs of mortgages, see titles CUSTOM AND USAGES, Vol. X., p. 284; MORTGAGE, Vol. XXI., pp. 123, 124; as to the parties liable on transfers of mortgage, see title CUSTOM AND USAGES, Vol. X., p. 284.

SECT. 1. Amount Fixed by Law.

(i) The amount of any incumbrances is to be included as part of the purchase-money, unless the mortgagee purchases (Remuneration Order, 1882, Sched. I., Part I., r. 9); see Fortescue v. Mercantile Bank of London, [1897] 2 Q. B. 236, C. A.; Re Gallard, Ex parte Harris (1888), 21 Q. B. D. 38 (bankrupt's estate). The minimum fee is £5, or when the transaction is under £100, £3 (Remuneration Order, 1882, Sched. I., Part I., r. 8). On the sale of an estate by auction in lots, the sale of each lot is a separate transaction (Re Thomas, Evans v. Griffiths, [1900] 1 Ch. 454; Re Margetts, [1896] 2 Ch. 263; but see Cholditch v. Jones, [1896] 1 Ch. 42; and compare Re Onward Building Society, Ex parte Watson, [1893] 1 Q. B. 16). As to a resale of part before completion, see Re Read, [1894] 3 Ch. 238. The rule has reference only to sales, purchases, and mortgages (Re Hellard and Bewes, [1896] 2 Ch. 229). On the sale of the assets of a bankrupt, the scale fee is chargeable, though the assets do not exceed £300. If there is a change of solicitors after an attempted sale, the taxation of the costs of sale must be by item charges under r. 2 (c) (Re Dean, Ward v. Holmes (1886), 32 Ch. D. 209; and see Re Smith, Pinsent & Co. (1890), 44 Ch. D. 303; Re Martin (a Lunatic) (1889), 41 Ch. D. 381, C. A.; Re Parfitt (1889), 23 Q. B. D. 40; and compare title MORTGAGE, pp. 231, 317, 318).

(k) The charge is £1 per cent. on the first £3,000, 10*s.* per cent. on each subsequent £100 up to £10,000, and 5*s.* per cent. for every subsequent £100 up to £100,000 (Remuneration Order, 1882, Sched. I., Part I).

(l) Where the property is sold, the charge is £1 per cent. on the first £1,000, 10*s.* per cent. on the second and third £1,000, 5*s.* per cent. on the next £7,000, and 2*s.* 6*d.* per cent. on each subsequent £100 up to £100,000; where the property is not sold, one-half of each of the last-mentioned percentages is allowed to the vendor's solicitor, based upon the reserve price (ibid.).

(m) In the case of perusal on behalf of parties having distinct interests the solicitor may charge £2 additional for each party after the first (ibid., Sched. I., Part I., r. 4). As to what constitutes investigation, see Ex parte London Corporation (1887), 34 Ch. D. 452. Where several houses are included in one conveyance, but only one title is deduced, a scale fee cannot be charged in respect of each house (Re Simmons' Contract, [1908] 1 Ch. 452).

(n) The charge is £1 10*s.* per cent. on the first £1,000, £1 per cent. on the conveyance or mortgage, his solicitor's remuneration is governed by Schedule II. (o).

SECT. 1. Amount Fixed by Law.

Sale accompanied by mortgage.

1261. Where upon a conveyance of property a mortgage is prepared at the same time and by the same solicitor, he is entitled to charge only a proportion of the full charge for investigating title in addition to his full charges upon the purchase-money, and his commission, if any, for negotiating (p); and where the same solicitor is concerned for both mortgagor and mortgagee he is entitled to the full charges in respect of acting for the mortgagee, but only half additional in respect of acting for the mortgagor (q).

Leases.

1262. In the case of leases and agreements for leases at rack-rents the solicitor's remuneration is regulated by the rent payable (r). The lessor's solicitor is entitled to remuneration for preparing, settling and completing the lease and counterpart (s), and the lessee's solicitor is entitled to remuneration for perusing the draft and completing (t). The scale includes remuneration for negotiations which lead up to and the preparation of the agreement which may precede an actual lease, and no charge can be made in addition in respect of this (u); but it does not include negotiations with persons other than the ultimate lessee (a).

Conveyances reserving rentcharges, building leases etc.

1263. In the case of conveyances in fee reserving a rentcharge, the second and third £1,000, 10*s.* per cent. on the next £7,000, and 2*s.* 6*d.* per cent. on each subsequent £100 up to £100,000 (Remuneration Order, 1882, Sched. I., Part I.). In the case of transfers of mortgages and further charges when the title has already been investigated by the same solicitor, the remuneration is governed by ibid., Sched. II. (ibid., Sched. I., Part I., r. 10); see Aylesford (Earl) v. Poulett (Earl), [1891] 1 Ch. 248, C. A.; see also note (h), p. 761, ante.

(o) Remuneration Order, 1882, Sched. I., Part I., r. 5.

(p) Namely, one-half of the scale fee up to £5,000, and on any excess one-quarter (ibid., Sched. II., Part I., r. 6); see Re Glascodine v. Carlyle (1885), 52 L. T. 781 C. A. As to a solicitor advancing money to a client on mortgage, see Re Norris, [1902] 1 Ch. 741; note (g), p. 766, post.

(q) Remuneration Order, 1882, Sched. I., Part I., r. 3; see Wellby v. Still, [1894] 3 Ch. 641.

(r) Remuneration Order, 1882, Sched. I., Part II., First Scale.

(s) The scale of remuneration is at the rate of £7 10*s.* per cent. where the rent does not exceed £100, with a minimum of £5; where the rent exceeds £100, but does not exceed £500, £7 10*s.* on the first and £2 10*s.* per cent. on each subsequent £100, and where it exceeds £500, £7 10*s.* on the first £100, £2 10*s.* per cent on the next £400, and £1 per cent. on each subsequent £100 (ibid.). The scale fee for the first £100 is a percentage, but after that sum it is only payable on each complete £100 of rent (Re McGarel (a Lunatic), [1897] 1 Ch. 400, C. A.). The scale does not apply to a sale carried out by way of underlease (Re Webb, Still v. Webb, [1897] 1 Ch. 144), or to renewals of leases under a covenant for renewal (Re Baylis, [1907] 2 Ch. 54).

(t) The lessee's solicitor's remuneration is half the amount payable to the lessor's solicitor (Remuneration Order, 1882, Sched. I., Part II., First Scale).

(u) Savery v. Enfield Local Board, [1893] A. C. 218; Re Emanuel and Simmonds (1886), 33 Ch. D. 40, C. A.; Re Field (1885), 29 Ch. D. 608, C. A.; Re Horn and Francis, [1896] 2 Ch. 797, where the lease was granted in consideration of a premium as well as rent.

(a) Re Martin (a Lunatic) (1889), 41 Ch. D. 381, C. A. As to the liability for costs on the grant of a lease, see title LANDLORD AND TENANT, Vol. XVIII., pp. 402, 403.

SECT. 1. Amount Fixed by Law.

building (b) and other long leases not at a rack-rent (c) (except mining leases) and agreements for the same (d) a different rate of remuneration is payable (e). The vendor's or lessor's solicitor is entitled to be remunerated for preparing, settling and completing the conveyance and duplicate and the lease and counterpart (f); and the purchaser's or lessee's solicitor is entitled to be remunerated for perusing the draft and completing (g).

Transactions relating to registered land.

1264. As regards the registration of land and transactions in the Land Registry (h), special provision has been made for regulating the remuneration of solicitors (i). Fees are payable (1) on the conversion of a possessory or qualified title (j) into an absolute or good leasehold title, when the solicitor has acted for the applicant on the occasion of a transfer for value, or charge, or transfer for value of a charge (k); (2) on every completed transfer, charge, exchange or

(b) A lease of a house for thirty-five years with a covenant to expend money in alterations is a "building lease" (Re Kilkenny Corporation, Ex parte Shortal, [1904] 1 I. R. 570); see also Re Hogan's Estate, [1894] 1 I. R. 503.

(c) A lease for 100 years in consideration of a money fine and an annual rental is a "long lease not at a rack-rent" (Ex parte Conolly to Sheridan and Russell, [1900] 1 I. R. 1, C. A.; but see Re Robson (1890), 45 Ch. D. 71; Ex parte Ferguson & Co. to Buckley (1888), 21 L. R. Ir. 392).

(d) Where an abstract is supplied it is to be separately charged for by item (Cholditch v. Jones, [1896] 1 Ch. 42; Re Macgowan, Macgowan v. Murray, [1891] 1 Ch. 105, C. A.; Re Withall, [1891] 3 Ch. 8, C. A.).

(e) The remuneration is a fixed sum of £5 in respect of a rental not exceeding £5, between £5 and £50, £5 plus 20 per cent. on any excess up to £50, and between £50 and £150, a further 10 per cent. on the excess beyond £50 and where the rent exceeds £150, a further 5 per cent. on any excess above that sum. Where the rent varies the remuneration is calculated on the largest amount (Remuneration Order, 1882, Sched. I., Part II., Second Scale). In the case of a conveyance or lease partly in consideration of rent and partly in consideration of a payment, in addition to the remuneration on the rent there is payable a sum equal to the remuneration on a purchase at a price equal to such payment (ibid., Sched. I., Part II., r. 5). Fractions of £5 are counted as £5 (ibid., Sched. I., Part II., r. 6).

(f) Ibid., Sched. I., Part II., Second Scale. In estimating the costs properly payable by the lessee to the lessor's solicitor, the costs of the counterpart must be deducted from the scale fee when ascertained (Re Negus, [1895] 1 Ch. 73).

(g) The purchaser's or lessee's solicitor's remuneration is half the amount payable to the vendor's or lessor's solicitor (Remuneration Order, 1882, Sched. I., Part II., Second Scale). Where both parties are represented by the same solicitor the charges are to be half as much for the second party as for the first (ibid., Sched. I., Part I., r. 2); where a mortgagee joins, his solicitor may charge £1 1*s.* (ibid., Sched. I., Part I., r. 3); and where any other joins, his solicitor may charge for work done (ibid., Sched. I., Part I., r. 4).

(h) See title REAL PROPERTY AND CHATTELS REAL, Vol. XXIV., pp. 301 et seq.

(i) Land Transfer Rules, 1903, 1907, 1908 (Stat. R. & O. Rev., Vol. VII., Land (Registration) England, pp. 33 et seq.; Stat. R. &. O., 1907, p. 341; Stat. R. & O. 1908, p. 435). The Remuneration Order, 1882, excepting ibid., Sched. I., Part I., applies where no special provision is made (Land Transfer Rules, 1903, r. 336 (J)), or when the solicitor so elects (ibid., r. 336 (I)). The remuneration prescribed does not include disbursements etc. (ibid., r. 336 (F)).

(j) Except under the Land Transfer Rules, 1903, rr. 37, 42.

(k) Land Transfer Rules, 1908, r. 336 (B). For the scale of remuneration, see ibid., Sched. II.

partition of registered land or of a registered charge (l). The solicitor's right to a registration fee and to a fee for conducting a sale by auction is preserved (m). Where the solicitor acts both for mortgagor and mortgagee, he is entitled to receive his full charges from the mortgagee in addition to a proportion of the ordinary charges payable by the mortgagor (n).

The charges for registering a memorial of the conveyance in a register county are included in the scale charge (o).

Special allowance.

1265. Where the solicitor, by special exertion, carries through any business in an exceptionally short space of time, he may be allowed additional remuneration according to the circumstances (p).

Item charges.

1266. Where Schedule I. of the Remuneration Order is inapplicable, the solicitor is entitled to remuneration item by item for the work actually done in accordance with the provisions of Schedule II. (q). Schedule I. is inapplicable, (1) where the solicitor has elected against it (r); (2) where the business transacted falls outside its scope, such as, for instance, the sale or purchase of an (l) Land Transfer Rules, 1903, r. 336 (C). As to the scale where no title outside the register is investigated, see Land Transfer Rules, 1903, Sched. II., Part II.: where title outside the register is investigated, the Remuneration Order, 1882, except ibid., Sched. I., Part I., applies. In the case of the transfer of registered freehold land wholly or partly in consideration of a rent, the remuneration is calculated on the value of the rent taken at twenty-five years' purchase, provided that where no title is investigated the remuneration must not exceed the charges of the solicitor of the grantee under the Remuneration Order, 1882, for perusal of the draft conveyance and for completion (Land Transfer Rules, 1908, r. 336 (D)).

(m) Land Transfer Rules, 1903, r. 336 (E).

(n) Ibid., r. 336 (G). Where the solicitor acts on behalf of several parties having distinct interests, he is entitled to an additional fee of £2 2*s.* for each party after the first (ibid., r. 336 (H)).

(o) Grey v. Curtice, [1899] 1 Ch. 121, C. A.

(p) Remuneration Order, 1882, clause 5.

(q) Parker v. Blenkhorn, Newbould v. Bailward (1888), 14 App. Cas. 1; Re Reade, Salthouse v. Reade (1889), 33 Sol. Jo. 219; Stanford v. Roberts (1884), 26 Ch. D. 155, followed in Humphreys v. Jones (1885), 31 Ch. D. 30, C. A. The Remuneration Order, 1882, Sched. II., provides for such sum as the taxing master may think proper being allowed for instructions; 2*s.* per folio for drawing; 8*d.* per folio for ingrossing; 4*d.* per folio for fair copying; 1*s.* per folio for perusing (this fee does not apply to perusal of abstracts of title, the fee being 6*s.* 8*d.* for every three brief sheets of eight folios (Re Parker (R. A.) (1885), 29 Ch. D. 199)); 10*s.* in ordinary cases for attendances, with power to the taxing master to increase or diminish it in extraordinary cases; for drawing abstracts of title 6*s.* 8*d.* per brief sheet of eight folios, and 3*s.* 4*d.* for fair copy per brief sheet; for journeys from home each day of seven hours £5 5*s.*, and under seven hours 15*s.* per hour. The taxing master has power to increase or diminish any of the above charges (Re Reade, Salthouse v. Reade, supra; Re Rees, Rees v. Rees (1887), 58 L. T. 68; Re Mahon, [1893] 1 Ch. 507, C. A.). He need not state his reasons for doing so unless he is called upon to answer objections (Re Mahon, supra). A second fair copy of abstract is not allowed except in special circumstances, as where counsel had defaced the copy laid before him with notes rendering it unfit to be submitted to the purchaser (Rumsey v. Rumsey, Ex parte Rumsey (1855), 21 Beav. 40).

(r) See p. 761, ante.

SECT. 1. Amount Fixed by Law.

easement (s), or of property, other than freehold (t), copyhold or leasehold (a), though a loan obtained on the security of partly real and partly personal property is within its scope (b); and (3) where, though the business transacted falls within the scope of Schedule I., the whole of the work covered by the scale charge has not been done, as, for instance, where the solicitor has not been required to investigate the title (c), or where a proposed sale proves abortive (d). In particular, a solicitor (e) is not entitled to a negotiation fee (f), unless he actually conducts the negotiations (g). He must arrange the sale, purchase, or loan, the sum of money to be paid or advanced, and the terms and conditions of the contract (h); it is not sufficient for him merely to bring the parties into communication (i) or to submit an offer to his client (k). Similarly, where property is sold by auction, the solicitor is not entitled to the conducting fee under the scale (l), if commission is paid direct by the client to the auctioneer (m) or if the sale is not in fact conducted by the solicitor (n). The solicitor must necessarily employ an auctioneer to take the bids (o); if, however, he allows the auctioneer

(s) Re Sanders' Settlement, [1896] 1 Ch. 480, C. A.; Re Stewart (1889), 41 Ch. D. 494.

(t) "Freehold" includes an advowson (Re Earnshaw-Wall, [1894] 3 Ch. 156), but not land situate out of England (Re Greville's Settlement (1888), 40 Ch. D. 441).

(a) See Re Coe (1894), 38 Sol. Jo. 421; and see title COPYHOLDS, Vol. VIII., p. 64.

(b) Re Furber, [1898] 2 Ch. 538. As to a solicitor-mortgagee, see Re Robertson (1887), 19 Q. B. D. 1.

(c) Re Lacey & Son (1883), 25 Ch. D. 301, C. A.; Re Keeping and Gloag (1888), 58 L. T. 679; Re Harris, Powell and Goodale (1887), 56 L. T. 477; Wellby v. Still, [1894] 3 Ch. 641; Re Webster and Jones' Contract, [1902] 2 Ch. 551, C. A.; Ex parte Ferguson & Co. to Buckley (1888), 21 L. R. Ir. 392; compare Re Secretary of State for War and Denne (1884), 33 W. R. 120; Lomas v. Joseph (1909), 53 Sol. Jo. 271 (lease).

(d) Re Stead, Smith v. Stead, [1913] 1 Ch. 240; compare Re Bircham & Co. (1895), 11 T. L. R. 547, C. A. (trust deed to secure debentures). If an abortive sale is afterwards followed by a completed sale, the Remuneration Order, 1882, Sched. I., Part I., applies (Re Stead, Smith v. Stead, supra).

(e) The principles under discussion have no application to the case where the solicitor acts, not as solicitor, but as scrivener (Gradwell v. Aitchison (1893), 10 T. L. R. 20); compare p. 759, ante.

(f) Re Pybus (1887), 35 Ch. D. 568; see p. 762, ante.

(g) Re Reade, Salthouse v. Reade (1889), 33 Sol. Jo. 219; Re Withall, [1891] 3 Ch. 8, C. A.; Re Weddall (1884), 29 Sol. Jo. 85. A solicitor-mortgagee may charge the negotiation fee, although he himself advances the money in question (Re Norris, [1902] 1 Ch. 741).

(h) Re Macgowan, Macgowan v. Murray, [1891] 1 Ch. 105, C. A.

(i) Re Eley (1887), 37 Ch. D. 40.

(k) Re Reade, Salthouse v. Reade, supra.

(l) See p. 762, ante.

(m) Remuneration Order, 1882, Sched. I., Part I., r. 11; Re Romain, [1903] 1 Ch. 702; Re Peace and Ellis (1887), 35 W. R. 61; Drielsma v. Manifold, [1894] 3 Ch. 100, C. A.

(n) Re Wilson (a Lunatic) (1885), 29 Ch. D. 790, C. A., explained in Re Merchant Taylors' Co. (1885), 30 Ch. D. 28, 37, C. A., and followed in Wood v. Calvert (1886), 34 W. R. 732; Re Sykes, Sykes v. Sykes (1887), 56 L. J. (CH.) 238; Re Faulkner (a Solicitor) (1887), 36 Ch. D. 566; Burd v. Burd (1889), 40 Ch. D. 628.

(o) Re Wilson (a Lunatic), supra; Cholditch v. Jones, [1896] 1 Ch. 42.

to do more (p), or if he employs a surveyor to divide up the property into lots (q), the scale becomes inapplicable, and the solicitor is entitled to remuneration under Schedule II. for such part of the work as is actually done by himself, such as, for instance, preparing advertisements (r).

SUB-SECT. 3.—Contentious Business.

House of Lords.

1267. In appeals to the House of Lords the House has an inherent jurisdiction as the highest Court of Appeal to award costs (s), and such costs are intended as an indemnity (a). The amount to be paid by the party ordered to pay costs must be ascertained by the taxing officer of the House of Lords, and by him certified to the Clerk of the Parliaments or Clerk Assistant, after which payment from the person liable to pay may be demanded; if such person has made a deposit of £200 on entering his appeal, regard must be had to such deposit (b). The amount of costs allowable by the taxing officer is fixed by a scale (c), which is always adopted and acted upon in such taxation (d).

Privy Council.

1268. In the Privy Council costs are allowed to a successful appellant (e), which costs are taxed by the registrar to the Judicial Committee and allowed on a fixed scale (f).

Supreme Court.

1269. In the Supreme Court (g) the amount of costs to which a (p) Re Wilson (a Lunatic) (1885), 29 Ch. D. 790, C. A., as explained in Re Merchant Taylors' Co. (1885), 30 Ch. D. 28, 37, C. A.

(q) Re Wilson (a Lunatic), supra; Wood v. Calvert (1886), 34 W. R. 732.

(r) Re Peace and Ellis (1887), 35 W. R. 61; Re Sykes, Sykes v. Sykes (1887), 56 L. J. (CH.) 238; Re Faulkner (a Solicitor) (1887), 36 Ch. D. 566.

(s) West Ham Union Guardians v. St. Matthew, Bethnal Green (Churchwardens etc.), [1896] A. C. 477, per Lord MACNAGHTEN, at p. 489.

(a) Bowes v. Shand (1877), 2 App. Cas. 455, per Lord BLACKBURN, at p. 485.

(b) Standing Orders of the House of Lords (Judicial Business) (Yearly Practice of the Supreme Court, 1914, pp. 1827 et seq.), No. 10.

(c) In pauper cases in the House the fees of the House and counsel's fees are disallowed, and the solicitor is allowed three eighths of the charges in "Dives" appeals to cover his office expenses, including clerks etc., in addition to his costs out of pocket (Standing Orders of the House of Lords (Judicial Business), Appendix E, Directions as to Pauper Costs, when awarded).

(d) Johnson's Bills of Costs, 1897, p. 670 (the revised scale is sold at the House of Lords Office in print, the revision being to the 12th December, 1893).

(e) Order in Council of the 13th June, 1853 (Stat. R. & O. Rev. Vol. VI., Judicial Committee, p. 1).

(f) Order in Council of the 11th August, 1842, Schedule of Fees; Safford and Wheeler's Privy Council Practice, 1901, p. 144.

(g) Where the jurisdiction of any court is transferred to the High Court, rules as to costs prevailing in such court are given effect to in the High Court, but the taxing masters of the High Court may revise the allowance of fees so as to assimilate them to those there ruling and make the practice uniform (R. S. C., Ord. 65, r. 27 (37)). This means that the old rules of the Court of Chancery remain in force except in so far as they are altered by new rules (Smith v. Day (1881), 16 Ch. D. 726; Pringle v. Gloag (1879), 10 Ch. D. 676; Newbiggin-by-the-Sea Gas Co. v. Armstrong (1879), 13 Ch. D. 310, C. A.; Thomas v. Palin (1882), 21 Ch. D. 360, C. A.; Harrison v. Wearing (1879), 11 Ch. D. 206). As to the extent to which these regulations may go in fettering the discretion given by R. S. C., Ord. 65, r. 27, see Masters' Practice Notes, 1903; Re Ermen,

SECT. 1. Amount Fixed by Law.

solicitor is entitled is ascertained by taxation (h), the master being bound by the scales contained in the Rules of the Supreme Court, 1883, Appendix N (i). There are two scales of costs, the higher scale and the lower scale. Costs are payable, as a general rule, on the lower scale (j); but costs on the higher scale may be ordered on special grounds (k) arising out of the nature (l) and importance (m), or the difficulty (n), or the urgency (o) of the case (p). In respect of work and labour properly done, which is not specifically provided for, the same or similar fees may be allowed as formerly (q).

Discretion of taxing master.

Notwithstanding the scales, however, the taxing master has a very wide discretion in all matters of costs (r). He may allow all such costs, charges, and expenses as appear to him to have been

Tatham v. Ermen, [1903] 2 Ch. 156. As to costs in the Court of Appeal, see title PRACTICE AND PROCEDURE, Vol. XXIII., p. 207; as to costs in the county court, see title COUNTY COURTS, Vol. VIII., pp. 578 et seq.; and compare title MAYOR'S COURT, LONDON, Vol. XX., p. 297.

(h) As to the taxation of costs, see pp. 780 et seq., post.

(i) Compare title PRACTICE AND PROCEDURE, Vol. XXIII., pp. 176 et seq. As to when a fixed sum is allowed for costs, see note (j), p. 799, post. It is outside the scope of this work to enumerate in detail the particular items mentioned in R. S. C., Appendix N, or to set out the sums allowed under either scale in respect of each item. For such matters reference should be made to the Yearly Practice of the Supreme Court. As to costs in divorce, see title HUSBAND AND WIFE, Vol. XVI., pp. 547 et seq., and as to costs relating to an application for an injunction, see title INJUNCTION, Vol XVII., pp. 287 et seq.; and compare title PATENTS AND INVENTIONS, Vol. XXII., pp. 225 et seq.; as to the scale of costs applicable in lunacy proceedings, see title LUNATICS AND PERSONS OF UNSOUND MIND, Vol. XIX., p. 461; and as to the costs of an action relating to appointed and unappointed funds, see title POWERS, Vol. XXIII., pp. 45, 46.

(j) R. S. C., Ord. 65, r. 8.

(k) The same principles apply to the awarding of costs on the higher scale as between solicitor and client (ibid., r. 10). As to when a solicitor may be ordered to pay costs, see pp. 832 et seq., post. The Court of Appeal does not interfere unless the judge, in exercising his discretion, has acted on a wrong principle or has made a manifest slip (Re Terrell (1882), 22 Ch. D. 473, C. A.).

(l) The Robin, [1892] P. 95; Moseley v. Victoria Rubber Co. (1887), 57 L. T. 142.

(m) Turton v. Turton (1889), 42 Ch. D. 128, 149, C. A.; Rivington v. Garden, [1901] 1 Ch. 561, discussing Davies v. Davies (1887), 36 Ch. D. 359, C. A.; Re Leeuw, Rein v. Wrathall (1892), 93 L. T. Jo. 333; Marriott v. Cobbett (1894), 38 Sol. Jo. 620.

(n) Fraser v. Province of Brescia Steam Tramways Co. (1887), 56 L. T. 771; Gadd and Mason v. Manchester Corporation (1892), 9 R. P. C. 516, C. A.; A.-G. v. Edwards, [1891] 1 Ch. 194; Williamson v. North Staffordshire Rail. Co. (1886), 32 Ch. D. 399, C. A.; Paine v. Chisholm, [1891] 1 Q. B. 531, C. A.

(o) Assets Development Co., Ltd. v. Close Brothers & Co., [1900] 2 Ch. 717.

(p) R. S. C., Ord. 65, r. 9.

(q) Ibid., r. 27 (30); Harrison v. Leutner (1881), 16 Ch. D. 559; Re Bowes, Strathmore (Earl) v. Vane, [1900] 2 Ch. 251. As to the liability of a retired partner of a client firm, see title PARTNERSHIP, Vol. XXII., pp. 37, 38, 76; and see, further, as to payment of costs of a partnership action, ibid., p. 91.

(r) McIver & Co., Ltd. v. Tate Steamers, Ltd., [1902] 2 K. B. 184, C. A.; Re Ermen, Tatham v. Ermen, supra; Manchester Corporation v. Sugden, Gresham Life Assurance Society v. Bishop, [1903] 2 K. B. 171, C. A.; Stewart & Co. v. Weber (1903), 89 L. T. 559; Cavendish v. Strutt, [1904] 1 Ch. 524. As to the discretion of the court as to costs of an action for partition, see title PARTITION, Vol. XXI., pp. 854 et seq., 864.

necessary or proper for the attainment of justice (s) or for defending the rights of any party (t); and for this purpose he may, in respect of any item, allow a sum in excess of the limit fixed by either scale (u). On the other hand, if the taxing master comes to the conclusion that any part of the costs has been incurred or increased by over-caution, negligence, or mistake, he may disallow them against an adverse party (a), although they may be properly allowable against the solicitor's own client (b). When the solicitor has done work for which no fee is provided by the scales, the taxing master may allow a fee, if he is of opinion that the work in question, having regard to the circumstances, was reasonable and proper (c), and if a fee was payable therefor by the former practice (d).

Bankruptcy costs.

1270. In bankruptcy all costs allowed must, before they can be passed in a trustee's accounts, be taxed by the prescribed officer (e). The items which are allowable for costs are fixed by scale, and depend upon (1) whether the case is a summary one, that is to say,

(s) Bartlett v. Higgins, [1901] 2 K. B. 230, C. A., approving Delaroque v. S. S. Oxenholme & Co., [1883] W. N. 227, and disapproving Ridley v. Sutton (1863), 1 H. & C. 741; Re Burroughs, Wellcome & Co.'s Trade Marks (1904), 22 R. P. C. 164.

(t) R. S. C., Ord. 65, r. 27 (29).

(u) McIver & Co., Ltd. v. Tate Steamers, Ltd., [1902] 2 K. B. 184, C. A; Re Ermen, Tatham v. Ermen, [1903] 2 Ch. 156. The taxing master cannot cut down the sum allowed by the scale (Price v. Clinton, [1906] 2 Ch. 487; Walker v. Provincial Homes Investment Co. (1910), 101 L. T. 871, C. A.).

(a) As to party and party costs, see Richardson v. Richardson, [1895] P. 346, C. A.; Carson v. Pickersgill & Sons (1885), 14 Q. B. D. 859, C. A.; Picasso v. Maryport Harbour Trustees, [1884] W. N. 85; Smith v. Buller (1875), L. R. 19 Eq. 473. As to disallowing costs on account of misconduct on the part of the solicitor, see pp. 795, 800, post; compare titles HUSBAND AND WIFE, Vol. XVI., p. 549; INJUNCTION, Vol. XVII., p. 296.

(b) R. S. C., Ord. 65, r. 27 (29); Geen v. Herring, [1905] 1 K. B. 152, C. A. (costs of joining unnecessary parties disallowed); Simmons v. Storer (1880), 14 Ch. D. 154 (if the master thinks the costs were improperly incurred he must disallow them); Re Wright, Crossley & Co. (1902), 86 L. T. 280, C. A.; see Boswell v. Coaks (1887), 36 Ch. D. 444, C. A. As against the client, unusual expenses will be disallowed, if incurred without his authority (Re Harrison (1886), 33 Ch. D. 52, C. A.; Re Blyth and Fanshawe (1882), 10 Q. B. D. 207, C. A.; distinguished in Re Rowley (1886), 30 Sol. Jo. 567; Re Evans, Ex parte Brown (1887), 35 W. R. 546); compare title PRACTICE AND PROCEDURE, Vol. XXIII., p. 184.

(c) Harrison v. Leutner (1881), 16 Ch. D. 559, C. A.

(d) R. S. C., Ord. 65, r. 27 (30); Re Bowes, Strathmore (Earl) v. Vane, [1900] 2 Ch. 251 (costs of translations of documents made in the solicitor's office); Re de Rosaz, Rymer v. de Rosaz (1883), 24 Ch. D. 684 (charges for perusal of lengthy exhibits); see also Masters' Practice Notes, 1902 (Yearly Practice of the Supreme Court, 1914, pp. 2147 et seq.). As to elements to be taken into consideration by the taxing master when exercising his discretion, see R. S. C., Ord. 65, r. 27 (38A); Re Johnston, Mills v. Johnston, [1904] 1 Ch. 132.

(e) Namely, the bankruptcy taxing master in the High Court and the registrar in the county court, who must tax them in person (Bankruptcy Act, 1883 (46 & 47 Vict. c. 52), s. 73 (4)). When the trustee or solicitor is guilty of misconduct, the court may refuse to allow the solicitor's costs to be paid out of the estate notwithstanding taxation (Re Pooley, Ex parte Harper (1882), 20 Ch. D. 685, C. A.). As to the costs of solicitor employed by a trustee in bankruptcy, see title BANKRUPTCY AND INSOLVENCY, Vol. II., pp. 107, note (l), 127, note (d).

SECT. 1. Amount Fixed by Law.

whether the assets have been certified as not likely to realise £100; (2) whether they are likely not to realise £300 (f); and (3) whether they are likely to realise more than £300 (g).

SECT. 2.—Special Agreements Fixing Amount.

SUB-SECT. 1.—In General.

Statutes applicable.

1271. The validity of a special agreement between a solicitor and his client as to the terms on which the solicitor's business is to be done depends, so far as the solicitor is concerned, upon two statutes, namely, the Attorneys and Solicitors Act, 1870 (h), relating to contentious business (i), and the Solicitors Remuneration Act, 1881 (k), relating to non-contentious business (l). Such an agreement was not necessarily unenforceable before 1870 (m), though the court would have viewed it with great jealousy and would have been slow to enforce it, where it was favourable to the solicitor, unless satisfied that it had been made in circumstances precluding any suspicion of undue influence (n). Where, on the other hand, the special agreement was favourable to the client, the difficulty did not arise, and the court would enforce the agreement against the solicitor (o).

Necessity of compliance with statutes.

A special agreement being thus in the hands of the solicitor an agreement of imperfect validity, the object of the statutes was to relieve the solicitor from his disability, and to prescribe the terms on which such agreements should in future be held valid (p). Unless such terms are complied with the solicitor cannot avail himself of the benefits and privileges conferred by the statutes (q).

(f) Where the estate is estimated to realise less then £300, costs are to be taxed on the lower scale, but if afterwards the estate realises more than that sum they may be retaxed (Bankruptcy Rules, rr. 112, 112A, 112B).

(g) Ibid., Appendix, Part II. As to details of allowances relating to different classes of work, both contentious and non-contentious, see General Regulations (ibid., Appendix, Part II. (VII.)) at the end of the scales of costs. As to costs of a solicitor-trustee, see also title BANKRUPTCY AND INSOLVENCY, Vol. II., p. 127, and as to the court's discretion to allow solicitor and client costs, see ibid., p. 321, note (e); as to costs of application for commitment, see ibid., p. 344, note (c).

(h) 33 & 34 Vict. c. 28, ss. 4—15.

(i) See pp. 771 et seq., post.

(k) 44 & 45 Vict. c. 44, s. 8.

(l) See pp. 773 et seq., post.

(m) Clare v. Joseph, [1907] 2 K. B. 369, C. A., per FLETCHER MOULTON, L.J., at p. 376; Gundry v. Sainsbury, [1910] 1 K. B. 645, C. A., per FLETCHER MOULTON, L.J., at p. 650. For examples, see Re Whitcombe (1844), 8 Beav. 140; Stedman v. Collett (1854), 17 Beav. 608; Scarth v. Rutland (1866), L. R. 1 C. P. 642.

(n) Clare v. Joseph, supra, per FLETCHER MOULTON, L.J., at p. 376; see Saunderson v. Glass (1742), 2 Atk. 296; Re Ingle (1855), 21 Beav. 275.

(o) Clare v. Joseph, supra, per FLETCHER MOULTON, L.J., at p. 376; see Collins v. Brook (1859), 4 H. & N. 270; Turner v. Tennant (1846), 10 Jur. 429, n.; Moon v. Hall (1864), 17 C. B. (N. S.) 760; Tabram v. Horn (1827), 1 Man. & Ry. (K. B.) 228; Morgan v. Taylor (1859), 5 C. B. (N. S.) 653.

(p) Clare v. Joseph, supra; Gundry v. Sainsbury, supra; Re Jones, [1896] 1 Ch. 222, C. A.

(q) Clare v. Joseph, supra.

The client, however, who sets up a special agreement is not bound to show that it has been made in accordance with the statutory terms, since his agreement is valid at common law and he does not require any assistance from the statutes (r); if, however, he claims a benefit given by the statutes, he must comply with their terms (s).

SUB-SECT. 2.—Under the Attorneys and Solicitors Act, 1870.

Form of agreement.

1272. A solicitor may make a special agreement with his client as to the costs of contentious matters under the Attorneys and Solicitors Act, 1870 (t). To bind the client (a) the agreement must be in writing (b), signed (c) by him (d). It may be contained in a letter (e) or any other document (f), provided that all the terms of the agreement appear therein (g) and the intention of the parties is clearly shown (h). Writing is not, however, necessary to bind the solicitor, since the client's right to enforce a special agreement depends, not on the statute, but on common law (i). Thus, a verbal agreement to charge the client nothing for costs binds the solicitor (k) and precludes him from recovering anything for costs either from the client (l) or from the opposite party (m).

Scope of agreement.

1273. The special agreement may relate to any contentious business, whether past or future, and may deal with the whole or

(r) Clare v. Joseph, [1907] 2 K. B. 369, C. A.

(s) Ibid.

(t) 33 & 34 Vict. c. 28, s. 4. Any such agreement is exempt from stamp duty, and no signed bill need be delivered (ibid., s. 15).

(a) Such an agreement is valid, notwithstanding the client's subsequent bankruptcy; and money paid to the solicitor without notice of an act of bankruptcy may be retained, though the work is not done till afterwards (Re Charlwood, Ex parte Masters, [1894] 1 Q. B. 643, C. A.; Re Sinclair, Ex parte Payne (1885), 15 Q. B. D. 616; contrast Re Beyts and Craig, Ex parte Cooper (1894), 38 Sol. Jo. 327; Re Pollitt, Ex parte Minor, [1893] 1 Q. B. 175; and compare Attorneys and Solicitors Act, 1870 (33 & 34 Vict. c. 28), s. 12).

(b) Attorneys and Solicitors Act, 1870 (33 & 34 Vict. c. 28), s. 4.

(c) As to the place of the signature, see Evans v. Hoare, [1892] 1 Q. B. 593; and compare Re Frape, Ex parte Perrett, [1893] 2 Ch. 284, 291, C. A.

(d) Re Thompson, Ex parte Baylis, [1894] 1 Q. B. 462, disapproving on this point Re Lewis, Ex parte Munro (1876), 1 Q. B. D. 724; Bake v. French (No. 2), [1907] 2 Ch. 215; compare Re Jones, [1896] 1 Ch. 222, C. A., where no objection was raised to the agreement on this ground; see, contra, Re Raven, Ex parte Pitt (1881), 45 L. T. 742.

(e) Pontifex v. Farnham (1892), 5 R. 149; compare Re Palmer (1890), 45 Ch. D. 291, C. A.

(f) Re Thompson, Ex parte Baylis, supra.

(g) Ray v. Newton, [1913] 1 K. B. 249, C. A.; compare Re Baylis, [1896] 2 Ch. 107, C. A.

(h) Pontifex v. Farnham, supra; Re Van Laun, Ex parte Pattullo, [1907] 1 K. B. 155.

(i) See the text, supra.

(k) Clare v. Joseph, supra; Gundry v. Sainsbury, [1910] 1 K. B. 645, C. A.; Jennings v. Johnson (1873), L. R. 8 C. P. 425; Ibberson v. Neck (1886), 2 T. L. R. 427.

(l) He is not entitled to recover even out-of-pocket expenses (Turner v. Tennant (1846), 10 Jur. 429, n.), unless the agreement is in fact to charge only out-of-pocket expenses (Jones v. Reade (1836), 5 Dowl. 216).

(m) Gundry v. Sainsbury, supra.

SECT. 2. Special Agreements Fixing Amount.

part of the costs (n), and their amount or manner of payment (o). The remuneration under the agreement may be greater or less than that which would have been payable in the absence of any agreement (p); but the solicitor has no further claim beyond the terms of the agreement in respect of matters covered thereby (q). The solicitor cannot, by his agreement, contract out of liability for negligence (r), nor must the agreement be champertous (s).

Allowance by taxing master.

1274. No remuneration under the agreement is to be received (t) by the solicitor until the agreement has been examined and allowed by a taxing master (u). If the taxing master is of opinion that it is not fair and reasonable (a), as, for instance, where the agreed sum is in addition to the ordinary remuneration (b), or where, in the circumstances, it is excessive (c), he may require the opinion of the court to be taken (d); and the court may reduce the amount payable, or order the agreement to be cancelled and the costs to be taxed as if no such agreement had been made (e).

(n) Compare Mackendrick v. National Union of Dock Labourers (1911), 48 Sc. L. R. 17, where the agreement was held to cover not only charges and disbursements, but also the Edinburgh agent's account.

(o) Attorneys and Solicitors Act, 1870 (33 & 34 Vict. c. 28), s. 4; Re Russell, Son and Scott (1885), 30 Ch. D. 114, per KAY, J., at p. 116. Apparently the amount must not be paid by a commission or percentage on the amount recovered, as this would make the agreement champertous (Re Attorneys and Solicitors Act, 1870 (1875), 1 Ch. D. 573, per JESSEL, M.R., at p. 575); and see Hilton v. Woods (1867), L. R. 4 Eq. 432; Knight v. Bowyer (1858), 5 De G. & Sm. 421, C. A.; Re Hoggart's Settlement (1912), 56 Sol. Jo. 415 (where the agreement in question was held not to be champertous); see also title ACTION, Vol. I., pp. 53 et seq.

(p) Attorneys and Solicitors Act, 1870 (33 & 34 Vict. c. 28), s. 4.

(q) Ibid., s. 6.

(r) Ibid., s. 7.

(s) Ibid., s. 11; see Pince v. Beattie (1863), 9 Jur. (N. S.) 1119; Re Attorneys and Solicitors Act, 1870, supra; Strange v. Brennan (1846), 2 Coop. temp. Cott. 1; Earle v. Hopwood (1861), 9 C. B. (N. S.) 566; Grell v. Levy (1864), 16 C. B. (N. S.) 73 (where the agreement was made in France and was valid by French law). As to champerty generally, see title ACTION, Vol. I., pp. 53 et seq.

(t) This provision does not apply where the agreement relates to payments which have already been made (Re Thompson, Ex parte Baylis, [1894] 1 Q. B. 462). But the taking of a bill of exchange, which is dishonoured, for an agreed sum, is not sufficient (Ray v. Newton, [1913] 1 K. B. 249, C. A.).

(u) Attorneys and Solicitors Act, 1870 (33 & 34 Vict. c. 28), s. 4; see also ibid., s. 11, relating to agreements by guardians, trustees and committees. With these exceptions special agreements are exempt from taxation (ibid., s. 15). The court will not, on taxation, determine whether a special agreement exists, and how the agreed costs and charges are to be paid (Re Rhodes (1844), 8 Beav. 224; Re Beale (1849), 11 Beav. 600; Re Thompson (1845), 8 Beav. 237).

(a) As to the meaning of "fair and reasonable," see Re Owen, Ex parte Payton (1885), 52 L. T. 628; Re Stuart, Ex parte Cathcart, [1893] 2 Q. B. 201, C. A.

(b) Re Montagu, Scott and Baker, [1889] W. N. 40.

(c) Mearns v. Knapp (1889), 37 W. R. 585.

(d) The opinion of the court cannot be taken before the amount agreed on is payable (Re Attorneys and Solicitors Act, 1870, supra).

(e) Attorneys and Solicitors Act, 1870 (33 & 34 Vict. c. 28), s. 4; Bake v. French (No. 2), [1907] 2 Ch. 215.

SECT. 2. Special Agreements Fixing Amount.

Enforcement of agreement.

1275. No action can be brought upon the agreement (f); but all questions relating to its validity, effect, or enforcement are to be raised summarily by application to the court (g). On such application the court may, if it is of opinion that the agreement is fair and reasonable, enforce it; otherwise it may set the agreement aside and order the costs to be taxed as if such agreement had not been made (h). In special circumstances the court has also power to reopen the agreement after payment, provided that the client makes application within twelve months after payment (i).

Quantum meruit.

1276. If the solicitor dies or becomes incapable of acting before the completion of the work to which the agreement refers, the court may, on the application of any party to the agreement or his personal representative, deal with the agreement so far as it has been acted upon; if the court thinks the agreement fair and reasonable, it may direct the taxing master to ascertain the value of the work done thereunder (k). The same principle applies when the client changes his solicitor before the completion of the work. In this case the court may direct the taxing master to have regard to the circumstances in which the change of solicitors has taken place; and the solicitor is not entitled to be paid the full amount agreed unless it appears that there were no reasonable grounds for the change (l).

Position of third persons.

1277. The existence of a special agreement does not affect the position of third persons as regards costs recoverable from or payable to the client, except that the client cannot recover as costs from any other person more than the amount payable by him to his own solicitor under the agreement (m). If therefore the solicitor has agreed to charge his client no costs, no costs can be awarded to the client (n).

SUB-SECT. 3.—Under the Solicitors Remuneration Act, 1881.

Form of agreement.

1278. As regards non-contentious business (o), a solicitor may

(f) But the solicitor may sue the client for failure to employ him under the agreement (Rees v. Williams (1875), L. R. 10 Exch. 200).

(g) As to what court has jurisdiction, see Attorneys and Solicitors Act, 1870 (33 & 34 Vict. c. 28), s. 8; title COUNTY COURTS, Vol. VIII., p. 585; and see Re Jones, [1896] 1 Ch. 222, C. A., where it was held, as regards an agreement relating to business at a police court or quarter sessions, that the jurisdiction was in the High Court. In the King's Bench Division the application is by a summons in chambers (Re Thomas, [1893] 1 Q. B. 670).

(h) Attorneys and Solicitors Act, 1870 (33 & 34 Vict. c. 28), s. 9. The court may do this although the taxing master has allowed the agreement (Re Stuart, Ex parte Cathcart, [1893] 2 Q. B. 201, C. A.).

(i) Attorneys and Solicitors Act, 1870 (33 & 34 Vict. c. 28), s. 10.

(k) Ibid., s. 13.

(l) Ibid., s. 14.

(m) Ibid., s. 5; Re Owen, Ex parte Payton (1885), 52 L. T. 628. The position is different when the solicitor is the salaried servant of the client (Henderson v. Merthyr Tydfil Urban Council, [1900] 1 Q. B. 434).

(n) Gundry v. Sainsbury, [1910] 1 K. B. 645, C. A.

(o) This is defined as business connected with sales, purchases, leases, mortgages, settlements and other matters of conveyancing, and other business not being business in any action or transacted in any court or in make a special agreement as to his remuneration under the Solicitors Remuneration Act, 1881 (p). The agreement must be in writing (q), signed by the person to be bound thereby (r) or by his agent in that behalf (s).

SECT. 2. Special Agreements Fixing Amount.

The agreement may be made at any time before or after the business is undertaken or completed; it may provide for remuneration by a gross sum, commission or percentage (t), or by salary or otherwise (u), and it may, at the option of the parties, be inclusive or exclusive of disbursements (a).

Enforcement of agreement.

1279. The agreement may be enforced or set aside by action (b); or it may be reviewed under an order for taxation (c). In this case the taxing master may, if the agreement is objected to as unfair or unreasonable, inquire into the facts and certify them to the court, and the court may order the agreement to be cancelled or the amount payable thereunder to be reduced (d).

SECT. 3.—Delivery of a Bill of Costs.

Necessity for delivery.

1280. It is provided by statute (e) that no solicitor is to commence or maintain any action for his fees, charges, or disbursements until the expiration of one calendar (f) month after he has delivered the chambers of any judge or master, and not being otherwise contentious business (Solicitors Remuneration Act, 1881 (44 & 45 Vict. c. 44), s. 2). An agreement as to non-professional work is not affected by the statute, and if it is disputed that the agreement relates to professional work, the court cannot order a taxation until that question is determined (Re Inderwick (1883), 25 Ch. D. 279, C. A.; compare Re Gray, Ex parte Everitt (1886), 30 Sol. Jo. 551).

(p) 44 & 45 Vict. c. 44, s. 8 (1).

(q) Re Baylis, [1896] 2 Ch. 107, C. A. (where a document referring to a verbal agreement was held to be insufficient).

(r) Re Frape, Ex parte Perrett, [1893] 2 Ch. 284, C. A.

(s) Solicitors Remuneration Act, 1881 (44 & 45 Vict. c. 44), s. 8 (2). Re West, King and Adams, Ex parte Clough, [1892] 2 Q. B. 102.

(t) An agreement to take a percentage of a sum to be recovered in non-contentious proceedings is not champertous, but will be strictly regarded by the court, which will take into consideration the question whether the client has had independent advice (Re Hoggart's Settlement (1912), 56 Sol. Jo. 415).

(u) Solicitors Remuneration Act, 1881 (44 & 45 Vict. c. 44), s. 8 (1). The agreed remuneration must be in lieu of, and not in addition to, the scale fee (Re Montagu, Scott and Baker, [1889] W. N. 40).

(a) Solicitors Remuneration Act, 1881 (44 & 45 Vict. c. 44), s. 8 (3).

(b) Ibid., s. 8 (4).

(c) Ibid. But some ground for taxation must be shown (Re Palmer (1890), 45 Ch. D. 291, C. A.); compare Re Duncan (1907), 51 Sol. Jo. 485.

(d) Solicitors Remuneration Act, 1881 (44 & 45 Vict. c. 44), s. 8 (4).

(e) Solicitors Act, 1843 (6 & 7 Vict. c. 73), s. 37. The statute does not apply to an Irish solicitor suing here for work done in Ireland (Kernaghan v. Wadeson (1855), 3 C. L. R. 764). The defence under the statute should be specially pleaded (Lane v. Glenny (1837), 7 Ad. & El. 83; Robinson v. Rowland (1838), 2 Jur. 136). As to the right to sue on an account stated, see p. 776, post; as to the solicitor's remedies for costs, see pp. 812 et seq., post.

(f) Solicitors Act, 1843 (6 & 7 Vict. c. 73), s. 48. The month is reckoned exclusive of the day of delivery (Blunt v. Heslop (1838), 8 Ad. & El. 577). Where the bill is sent by post the month begins on the day following that on which the bill will be delivered in the ordinary course of post (Browne v. Black, [1912] 1 K. B. 316, C. A.). The solicitor may, with his bill (g) to the person to be charged (h). This provision applies only where the business to which the solicitor's claim relates was done by him in his professional capacity; he need not deliver a bill where his claim relates to business of a different kind (i). As regards disbursements, a distinction must be drawn between professional disbursements, that is to say, payments made by the solicitor in his professional capacity, which must be included in his bill of costs, and disbursements made by him merely as agent on behalf of his client, which must be inserted in a separate cash account, and not in the bill of costs (k). Professional disbursements include payments which are necessarily made by the solicitor in pursuance of his professional duty (l), such as, for instance, court fees (m) or counsel's fees (n), or which are sanctioned as professional disbursements by the general and established custom of the profession (o). To the class of non-professional disbursements belong all payments which are made by the solicitor merely as a matter of convenience and not in pursuance of his professional duty (p), and which are therefore to be regarded as advances to the client (q), such as, for instance, payments of money into court as security for costs (r), payments of stamp (s), estate (t) or other leave, bring his action before the month has expired, if he satisfies the court that there is probable cause for believing that the party chargeable is about to quit England, or to become a bankrupt, or to compound with his creditors, or to do any other act which in the opinion of the court would tend to defeat or delay payment (Legal Practitioners Act, 1875 (38 & 39 Vict. c. 79), s. 2). As to when time begins to run against a solicitor, see title LIMITATION OF ACTIONS, Vol. XIX., p. 48.

SECT. 3. Delivery of a Bill of Costs.

Disbursements.

(g) For a case where, in the circumstances, the solicitor was held entitled to sue though no bill had been delivered, see Turner v. Willis, [1905] 1 K. B. 468, where there had been cross-claims and a balance had been agreed in favour of the solicitor; see also title CONTRACT, Vol. VII., p. 492; and compare title POOR LAW, Vol. XXII., p. 541.

(h) This does not include a guarantor (Greening v. Reeder (1892), 67 L. T. 28).

(i) Bush v. Martin (1863), 2 H. & C. 311; compare Mowbray v. Fleming (1809), 11 East, 285; Re Eldridge (1849), 12 Beav. 387; Re Inderwick (1883), 25 Ch. D. 279; Re Shilson, Coode & Co., [1904] 1 Ch. 837. Work done by a solicitor as revision agent (Re Andrews (1853), 17 Beav. 510) or election agent (Re Osborne (1858), 25 Beav. 353) is work done in a professional capacity.

(k) Re Remnant (1849), 11 Beav. 603; followed in Re Kingdon and Wilson, [1902] 2 Ch. 242, C. A., and Re Blair and Girling, [1906] 2 K. B. 131, C. A.

(l) Re Remnant, supra. A London agent's charges are to be given in detail as part of his bill; they are not disbursements (Re Pomeroy and Tanner, [1897] 1 Ch. 284).

(m) Compare Re Grant, Bulcraig & Co., [1906] 1 Ch. 124.

(n) Re Harrison (1886), 33 Ch. D. 52, C. A.; Re Metcalfe (1862), 30 Beav. 406.

(o) Re Remnant, supra; Franklin v. Featherstonhaugh (1834), 1 Ad. & El. 475.

(p) Re Remnant, supra.

(q) Re Taylor, Stileman, and Underwood, [1891] 1 Ch. 590, C. A.; compare Wardle v. Nicholson (1833), 4 B. & Ad. 469.

(r) Re Buckwell and Berkeley, [1902] 2 Ch. 596, C. A.

(s) Re Blair and Girling, supra.

(t) Re Kingdon and Wilson, supra, overruling Re Lamb (1889), 23 Q. B. D. 5.

SECT. 3. Delivery of a Bill of Costs.

duties (a), and payments due from the client whether under a judgment (b) or a contract (c).

The solicitor's failure to deliver a bill precludes him only from maintaining an action for his costs; it does not preclude him from setting off his costs in an action brought against him by his client (d), or from proving for them in his client's bankruptcy (e); nor does it preclude him from maintaining an action in any other form than upon the bill, as, for instance, upon an account stated (f), or upon a promissory note given to him by his client on account of the costs (g), or, where he has taken a mortgage to secure his costs, for foreclosure (h).

Contents of bill.

1281. The bill must contain sufficient information to enable the client to obtain advice as to its taxation (i). It must, therefore, be a complete bill of the whole of the fees, charges, and disbursements in respect of the particular business done (k). The business to which it relates should be specified item by item (l). Each item should be dated (m), and should state its subject-matter precisely, and not in vague and general terms (n). If the bill relates to contentious business, the action or actions in question and the court concerned should be specified (o). All items must be charged in a taxable shape (p); each item must therefore be charged specifically, and

(a) Re Haigh (1849), 12 Beav. 307; Re Bedson (1846), 9 Beav. 5.

(b) Woollison v. Hodgson (1834), 2 Dowl. 360; Harrison v. Ward (1835), 4 Dowl. 39.

(c) Re Kingdon and Wilson, [1902] 2 Ch. 242, C. A., per COZENS-HARDY, L.J., at p. 254.

(d) Harrison v. Turner (1847), 10 Q. B. 482; Ex parte Cooper (1854), 14 C. B. 663; Brown v. Tibbits (1862), 11 C. B. (N. S.) 855; see title SET-OFF AND COUNTERCLAIM, Vol. XXV., p. 493.

(e) Eicke v. Nokes (1829), Mood. & M. 303; Re Howell, Ex parte Howell (1812), 1 Rose, 312; compare Re Duffield, Ex parte Peacock (1873), 8 Ch. App. 682.

(f) Turner v. Willis, [1905] 1 K. B. 468; see title CONTRACT, Vol. VII., p. 492.

(g) Jeffreys v. Evans (1845), 14 M. & W. 210.

(h) Thomas v. Cross (1864), 11 L. T. 430.

(i) Engleheart v. Moore (1846), 15 M. & W. 548; Waller v. Lacy (1840), 1 Man. & G. 54, 69; Haigh v. Ousey (1857), 7 E. & B. 578; Keene v. Ward (1849), 13 Q. B. 515. A bill containing scandalous matters will be struck out (Re Miller, Re French, Love v. Hills (1884), 54 L. J. (CH.) 205).

(k) Cobbett v. Wood, [1908] 2 K. B. 420, C. A. (where the bill omitted all items of party and party costs, and charged extra costs only), commenting on Re Mercantile Lighterage Co., [1906] 1 Ch. 491, 495; see also Pigot v. Cadman (1857), 1 H. & N. 837; Waller v. Lacy, supra, at p. 69.

(l) Re Smith (1841), 4 Beav. 309; Wilkinson v. Smart (1875), 33 L. T. 573.

(m) Masters' Practice Notes, 1902 (Yearly Practice of the Supreme Court, 1914, pp. 2147 et seq.).

(n) Re Pender (1847), 10 Beav. 390.

(o) Lewis v. Primrose (1844), 6 Q. B. 265; Engleheart v. Moore, supra; Martindale v. Faulkner (1846), 2 C. B. 706; Ivimey v. Marks (1847), 16 M. & W. 843; Anderson v. Boynton (1849), 13 Q. B. 308; Sargent v. Gannon (1849), 7 C. B. 742; Dimes v. Wright (1849), 8 C. B. 831. This information may be derived from letters accompanying the bill (Cozens v. Graham (1852), 12 C. B. 398).

(p) Philby v. Hazle (1860), 8 C. B. (N. S.) 647.

it is not sufficient to detail the separate items and to charge a lump sum at the end of the bill (q). Professional charges must be entered in a separate column from disbursements (r); and items representing disbursements not paid at the time when the bill was delivered must be set out under a separate heading (s).

Delivery in parts.

The whole bill need not be delivered at once; there is no objection to a delivery in parts, or to a delivery of successive bills relating to particular periods or particular groups of items (t).

Signature.

1282. The bill must be signed by the solicitor, his personal representative, or assignee (a), or, in case of a partnership, by any of the partners, either in his own name or the name of the partnership (b); or, if not signed, must be enclosed in or accompanied by a letter so signed and referring to the bill (c). Signature by a clerk is not sufficient (d), unless ratified by the solicitor (e). The client may treat the delivery of an unsigned bill as a nullity, or, if he thinks fit, he may waive the absence of the signature and adopt the bill (f), as, for instance, by applying for its taxation (g).

Name of person to be charged.

1283. The bill must clearly show the person who is to be charged, otherwise he is not liable upon it (h). It is immaterial whether his

(q) Wilkinson v. Smart (1875), 33 L. T. 573.

(r) R. S. C., Ord. 65, r. 19II. As to the allowance of moneys properly paid out of pocket, see Re Page (No. 3) (1863), 32 Beav. 487; Re Porter, Amphlett and Jones, [1912] 2 Ch. 98, following Southampton Guardians v. Bell (1888), 21 Q. B. D. 297, and distinguishing Re James (Frank) & Sons, [1903] W. N. 99; and compare Osmond v. Mutual Cycle and Manufacturing Supply Co., [1899] 2 Q. B. 488, C. A.

(s) R. S. C., Ord. 65, r. 27 (29A), altering the law as laid down in Sadd v. Griffin, [1908] 2 K. B. 510, C. A.

(t) Cobbett v. Wood, [1908] 2 K. B. 420, C. A., per FLETCHER MOULTON, L.J., at p. 428; Ottaway v. Hamilton (1878), 3 C. P. D. 393, C. A. On the other hand, separate bills relating to distinct transactions are not to be treated as one bill because they are delivered together (Re Ward, [1896] 2 Ch. 31, C. A.). As to when there are natural breaks in a transaction permitting different bills to be sent in, see p. 738, ante.

(a) Ingle v. M'Cutchan (1884), 12 Q. B. D. 518; Re Ward (1885), 28 Ch. D. 719.

(b) Owens v. Scales (1842), 10 M. & W. 657; Smith v. Brown (1831), 5 C. & P. 94. It is immaterial that the bill contains items of work done before the then partnership was constituted (Pilgrim v. Hirchfelt (1865), 9 L. T. 288); and the then partnership may sue in respect of such items as assignees of the old firm (Penley v. Anstruther (1883), 52 L. J. (CH.) 367).

(c) Solicitors Act, 1843 (6 & 7 Vict. c. 73), s. 37; compare Re Bush (1844), 8 Beav. 66; Blake v. Hummel (1884), 1 T. L. R. 22.

(d) Solicitors Act, 1843 (6 & 7 Vict. c. 73), s. 37.

(e) Angell v. Tratt (1883), Cab. & El. 118 (where the solicitor, who was paralysed, had his hand subsequently guided over the signature with a dry pen).

(f) Re Gedye (1851), 14 Beav. 56; compare Pritchard v. Draper (1831), 1 Russ. & M. 191; Gerrard v. Arnold (1838), 6 Dowl. 336.

(g) Re Pender (1846), 2 Ph. 69; compare Whalley v. Glover (1850), 3 Car. & Kir. 13.

(h) Manning v. Glyn and Sheehan (1835), 1 Jo. Ex. Ir. 513; distinguished and doubted in Roberts v. Lucas (1855), 11 Exch. 41, where it was suggested that a personal delivery of the bill to the person liable might be sufficient, though it did not specify his name.

SECT. 3. Delivery of a Bill of Costs.

name appears on the face of the bill (i), or whether it is contained in some writing connected with the bill (k), as, for instance, the envelope in which it is sent (l), or the letter accompanying it (m).

Mode of delivery.

1284. The bill must be delivered (n) to the person to be charged (o), or to some person authorised to accept delivery on his behalf (p). It may be delivered to him personally (q), or sent by post to or left at his business (r) or private address (s), or at his last known place of abode (t), or at any address to which he may have directed letters to be sent (a).

Effect of delivery.

1285. For purposes of taxation (b) the solicitor is, as a general rule, bound by his bill as delivered (c); and he is not entitled, as of course, to withdraw the bill delivered and substitute an amended one, whether on the first bill he has overcharged (d) or undercharged (e) his client. Where the overcharge or undercharge is intentional no amendment can be made without the leave of the court (f). Leave will only be granted in special circumstances and Amendment.

(i) Phipps v. Daubney (1851), 16 Q. B. 514, Ex. Ch.; Mant v. Smith (1859), 4 H. & N. 324.

(k) Champ v. Stokes (1861), 6 H. & N. 683; Kienran v. Brereton (1866), 17 I. C. L. R. 203.

(l) Roberts v. Lucas (1855), 11 Exch. 41.

(m) Taylor v. Hodgson (1845), 3 Dow. & L. 115.

(n) Phipps v. Daubney, supra; Re Robertson (a Solicitor) (1889), 42 Ch. D. 553. As to proof of delivery by the indorsement of a deceased clerk, see Champneys v. Peck (1816), 1 Stark. 404.

(o) Gridley v. Austen (1849), 16 Q. B. 504; Re Abbott (1861), 4 L. T. 576.

(p) Re Bush (1844), 8 Beav. 66; Phipps v. Daubney, supra; Eggington v. Cumberledge (1847), 1 Exch. 271; Re Kellock (Solicitors) (1887), 56 L. T. 887; Re Layton, Steele & Co. (1890), 38 W. R. 652.

(q) In the case of joint contractors, delivery to one is sufficient (Mant v. Smith, supra; Crowder v Shee (1808), 1 Camp. 437; Finchett v. How and Jarratt (1809), 2 Camp. 275; Oxenham v. Lemon (1823), 2 Dow. & Ry. (K. B.) 461; Kiteley v. Scofield (1842), 6 Jur. 1059; Edwards v. Lawless (1848), 6 C. B. 329).

(r) Edwards v. Lawless, supra; Blandy v. De Burgh (1848), 6 C. B. 623.

(s) Delivery to a servant at his dwelling-house is sufficient (Macgregor v. Keily (1849), 3 Exch. 794).

(t) Solicitors Act, 1843 (6 & 7 Vict. c. 73), s. 37. If the bill is actually delivered, it is a good delivery, though it was misdirected (Welsh v. Silwell (1847), 11 Jur. 471).

(a) Spier v. Bernard (1863), 8 L. T. 396.

(b) See pp. 780 et seq., post.

(c) Loveridge v. Botham (1797), 1 Bos. & P. 49; Re Carven (1845), 8 Beav. 436; Davis v. Dysart (Earl) (1856), 8 De G. M. & G. 33, C. A.; Re Jones (a Solicitor), Ex parte King (1885), 54 L. T. 648; Hays v. Trotter (1834), 5 B. & Ad. 1106.

(d) Re Heather (1870), 5 Ch. App. 694; followed in Re Holroyde and Smith (1881), 43 L. T. 722; Re Blakesley and Beswick (1863), 32 Beav. 379.

(e) Re Wells (1845), 8 Beav. 416; Re Walters (1845), 9 Beav. 299. The omission of items does not preclude the solicitor from recovering upon the items properly inserted (Haigh v. Ousey (1857), 7 E. & B. 578; followed in Blake v. Hummel (1884), Cab. & El. 345; Pilgrim v. Hirchfelt (1863), 9 L. T. 288).

(f) Re Thompson (1885), 30 Ch. D. 441, C. A.; Lumsden v. Shipcote Land Co., [1906] 2 K. B. 433, C. A., per VAUGHAN WILLIAMS, L.J., at p. 436; see also Re Wells, supra; Re Walters, supra. The consent of the client to the amendment is not necessarily sufficient (Re Heather, supra).

where the solicitor has acted with perfect fairness to his client, as, for instance, where the solicitor informs him that the first bill includes charges which cannot be sustained on taxation (g). Where, however, the overcharge or undercharge is due to accident or mistake, the solicitor will be permitted to rectify the bill, by omitting the items wrongly inserted (h) or by inserting or increasing the items unintentionally omitted or undercharged (i). Moreover, where a lump sum is claimed in the bill in respect of a particular transaction, the solicitor may, on taxation, bring in particulars showing how the lump sum is made up (k).

Rectification.

Where the solicitor sues the client on the second bill, and succeeds on the question of the client's liability, no question of taxation having been raised, the court may refer the question of amount to a taxing master, who is entitled to consider both bills (l).

1286. By statute (m) the court is empowered to order a solicitor to deliver a bill to the client in the same cases in which it may refer a bill, when delivered, to the taxing master (n); if, however, the solicitor makes no claim for costs and swears that he has not retained any costs out of the client's moneys, he cannot be ordered to deliver a bill under the statute, though it seems that the court may order him to do so under its general jurisdiction (o). Delivery of a bill may also be ordered on the application of any person other than the client, who is entitled to claim taxation of the bill when delivered (p). The court has also, under its general jurisdiction, power to order a solicitor, on the application of the client, to deliver a bill (q), though this power is exercised rarely and in special circumstances only (r).

Order for delivery.

(g) Re Thompson (1885), 30 Ch. D. 441, C. A.; Re Andrews (1853), 17 Beav. 510; Re Chambers (1865), 34 Beav. 177.

(h) Re Negus, [1895] 1 Ch. 73 (where the solicitor delivered an item bill instead of a scale bill); but see Re Whalley (1855), 20 Beav. 576.

(i) Re Whalley, supra; Re Walters (1845), 9 Beav. 299; Marshall v. Oxford (1832), 5 Sim. 456.

(k) Re Tilleard (1863), 32 Beav. 476; Re Russell, Son and Scott (1886), 55 L. T. 71, C. A.; Re Kellock (Solicitors) (1887), 56 L. T. 887.

(l) Lumsden v. Shipcote Land Co., [1906] 2 K. B. 433, C. A. The first bill is evidence against the new or increased items in the second bill (ibid., per FLETCHER MOULTON, L.J., approving Archbold's Practice, 14th ed., p. 157).

(m) Solicitors Act, 1843 (6 & 7 Vict. c. 73), s. 37. As to the procedure, see pp. 780 et seq., post; title PRACTICE AND PROCEDURE, Vol. XXIII., pp. 190, 191.

(n) The solicitor cannot resist the application on the ground of delay, provided that he has the materials necessary for the bill (Re Baylis, [1896] 2 Ch. 107; compare Re Ker (1850), 12 Beav. 390, C. A.), or on the ground that his retainer was champertous (Re Thomas, Jaquess v. Thomas, [1894] 1 Q. B. 747, C. A.).

(o) Re Landor (a Solicitor), [1899] 1 Ch. 818; Re Griffith, Eggar and Griffith (1891), 7 T. L. R. 268.

(p) Solicitors Act, 1843 (6 & 7 Vict. c. 73), s. 40; Re Blackmore (1851), 13 Beav. 154; Tanner v. Lea (1842), 4 Man. & G. 617.

(q) Re West, King and Adams, Ex parte Clough, [1892] 2 Q. B. 102;

(r) For note (r) see p. 780, post.

SECT. 4. Taxation of Costs.

SECT. 4.—Taxation of Costs.

SUB-SECT. 1.—Jurisdiction of the Court.

Threefold jurisdiction.

1287. In dealing with a solicitor's costs the High Court (s) has a threefold jurisdiction (t). Usually the court acts under its statutory jurisdiction, by virtue of which the bill is referred to a taxing master for taxation (a). Where the statutory jurisdiction is inapplicable, as where part only of a bill is involved, the court may order taxation under its general jurisdiction over its officers (b). Where taxation is no longer possible (c), the court may, if the solicitor has sued the client to judgment upon the bill (d), or claimed for its amount in the administration of the client's estate (e), refer the bill to a taxing master for the purpose of investigating the reasonableness of its charges; in this case, the court acts under its ordinary jurisdiction in dealing with contested claims, and the taxing master does not tax the bill, but inquires on behalf of the court into the propriety of any disputed items (f).

compare Duffett v. McEvoy (1885), 10 App. Cas. 300, P. C. Where the relationship of solicitor and client exists or has existed, the client may take out a summons for the delivery of a cash account, or the payment of moneys, or the delivery of securities, and the solicitor may be ordered to deliver a list of the moneys or securities in his custody or control or to bring into court the whole or part of the same; provision is made at the same time for any claim for costs or lien (R. S. C., Ord. 52, r. 25; Haydon v. Cartwright, [1902] W. N. 163, C. A.). This rule does not apply where the money is in the solicitor's hands as a loan (Re Y. (a Solicitor), (1910) 54 Sol. Jo. 459).

(r) Re Foljambe (1846), 9 Beav. 402 (where the solicitor had undertaken to do so); Re Bailey (1865), 34 Beav. 392.

(s) As to taxation of costs of private Bills, see title PARLIAMENT, Vol. XXI., p. 745; in the county court, Vol. VIII., pp. 597 et seq.; as to taxation by the clerk of the peace where the bill is payable by a local authority, see title LOCAL GOVERNMENT, Vol. XIX., pp. 288 et seq.; as to the taxation of counsel's fees, see title BARRISTERS, Vol. II., pp. 418 et seq.; and as to taxation of costs in the Divorce Division, see title HUSBAND AND WIFE, Vol. XVI., pp. 580 et seq. The costs of obtaining a provisional order for a tramway or light railway are taxed on the High Court scale and not on the parliamentary scale; see title TRAMWAYS AND LIGHT RAILWAYS, Vol. XXVII., pp. 785, note (h) (tramway), 832, note (s) (light railway).

(t) Re Park, Cole v. Park (1889), 41 Ch. D. 326, C. A., per STIRLING, J., at p. 331; compare Wilson v. Gutteridge (1824), 3 B. & C. 157.

(a) See p. 781, post. As to the effect of an undertaking to pay costs when taxed, for the purpose of the Statute of Limitations, see title LIMITATION OF ACTIONS, Vol. XIX., p. 66.

(b) Re Johnson and Weatherall (1888), 37 Ch. D. 433, C. A.; affirmed, sub nom. Storer & Co. v. Johnson (1890), 15 App. Cas. 203; Re Thomas, Jaquess v. Thomas, [1894] 1 Q. B. 747, C. A.; Re Griffith, Eggar and Griffith (1891), 7 T. L. R. 268; Re Druce (1893), 94 L. T. Jo. 583.

(c) See pp. 785 et seq., post.

(d) Lumsden v. Shipcote Land Co., [1906] 2 K. B. 433, C. A.

(e) Re Park, Cole v. Park, supra (deceased client); Re Van Laun, Ex parte Chatterton, [1907] 2 K. B. 23, C. A. (bankrupt client); Re Foss, Bilbrough, Plaskitt and Foss, [1912] 2 Ch. 161 (insolvent company), discussing Re Marseilles Extension Railway and Land Co., Ex parte Evans (1870), L. R. 11 Eq. 151, Re James, Ex parte Quilter (1850), 4 De G. & Sm. 183, Re Liverpool Household Stores Association, [1889] W. N. 48, Re Brabant (1879), 23 Sol. Jo. 779, and Re Park, Cole v. Park, supra; compare Re Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, Re Palace Restaurants, Ltd. (1914), Times, 21st January, C. A.

(f) Re Park, Cole v. Park, supra, discussing Anderson v. May (1800), 2

SECT. 4. Taxation of Costs.

Statutory jurisdiction.

1288. The statutory jurisdiction of the court extends over all bills relating to business transacted by a solicitor in his professional capacity (g), but not over bills relating to business transacted by him in any other capacity (h). Thus, taxation will be ordered where the bill relates to a solicitor's charges as election agent (i), but not as canvassing agent (k), or where it relates to the fees for holding a court leet as steward of a manor (l), though the ordinary fees as steward of the manor are not taxable (m). Where the solicitor acts in a professional capacity, it is immaterial whether the bill relates to contentious or non-contentious (n) business, or as regards contentious business, whether the business was civil or criminal (o) or parliamentary (p). Taxation may also be ordered of an agency bill between a country solicitor and his London agent (q).

Persons entitled to taxation: (1) Client.

1289. The persons entitled to invoke the jurisdiction of the court are the following, namely:—

(1) The client (r), as being the person chargeable with the bill (s), Bos. & P. 237, and Hooper v. Till (1779), 1 Doug. (K. B.) 198; Re Woods, Ex parte Ditton (1880), 13 Ch. D. 318, C. A.; Allen v. Jarvis (1869), 4 Ch. App. 616.

(g) Re Ward, Allen v. Aldridge (1844), 5 Beav. 401. It is immaterial that the work is done out of the jurisdiction (Re Maugham (1885), 29 Sol. Jo. 576).

(h) Re Ward, Allen v. Aldridge, supra; Re Baker, Lees & Co., [1903] 1 K. B. 189, C. A.; compare Bush v. Martin (1863), 2 H. & C. 311. Unless he adopts the character of a solicitor by delivering the bill in the usual form (Re Jones (1872), L. R. 13 Eq. 336).

(i) Re Osborne (1858), 25 Beav. 353; Re Andrews (1853), 17 Beav. 510.

(k) Re Oliver (1867), 36 L. J. (CH.) 261; compare Re Parker (1882), 21 Ch. D. 408, C. A.

(l) Luxmore v. Lethbridge (1822), 5 B. & Ald. 898.

(m) Re Ward, Allen v. Aldridge, supra; compare Re Corsellis, Lawton v. Elwes (1887), 34 Ch. D. 675, C. A.

(n) Re Lees (1844), 5 Beav. 410; Re Bowen (1872), 41 L. J. (CH.) 327; Re Barker (1834), 6 Sim. 476; Re Rice (1837), 2 Keen, 181.

(o) Curling v. Sedger (1838), 4 Bing. (N. C.) 743; Sylvester v. Webster (1832), 9 Bing. 388; Clarke v. Donovan (1794), 5 Term Rep. 694; Billing v. Coppock (1847), 1 Exch. 14, 15. As to the taxation of costs of a licensing appeal, see title INTOXICATING LIQUORS, Vol. XVIII., p. 85; and compare title POOR LAW, Vol. XXII., p. 616.

(p) Allison v. Herring (1839), 9 Sim. 583; Re Strother (1857), 3 K. & J. 518; Re Sudlow and Kingdom (1849), 11 Beav. 400; but see Ex parte Wheeler (1814), 3 Ves. & B. 21; Re Baker, Lees & Co., supra.

(q) Jones v. Roberts (1838), 2 Jur. 30; Re Boord, Toghill v. Grant (1840), 2 Beav. 261; Smith v. Dimes (1849), 4 Exch. 32.

(r) The client has a right to taxation, though the agreement is to charge only out-of-pocket costs (Re Ransom (1854), 18 Beav. 220; compare Re Philp (a Solicitor) (1860), 2 Giff. 35). As to the position of a mortgagee of sums due to the client from the solicitor, see Re Battams and Hutchinson, [1897] 1 Ch. 699; note (q), p. 793, post.

(s) Solicitors Act, 1843 (6 & 7 Vict. c. 73), s. 37. This includes the country solicitor, as regards the London agent's bill (Re Wilde, [1910] 1 Ch. 100); but the amount due must be brought into court (Storer & Co. v. Johnson (1890), 15 App. Cas. 203; Jones v. Roberts (1837), 8 Sim. 397; Lees v. Nuttall (1834), 2 My. & K. 284); except in special circumstances (Re Smith (1841), 4 Beav. 309). A bill may be referred to taxation, though unsigned (Young v. Walker (1847), 16 M. & W. 446; Re Pender (1846), 2 Ph. 69).

SECT. 4. Taxation of Costs.

or his personal representative (t), or trustee in bankruptcy (a). If the solicitor is retained to act on behalf of several persons in the same matter, each is entitled, where the retainer is separate, to have the whole bill taxed, although he himself is only liable for a portion of the whole amount (b). Where the retainer is joint, all should, if possible, concur; but the court will make the order on the application of one of the persons chargeable, if the other refuses to join (c).

(2) Solicitor.

(2) The solicitor (d), his personal representative (e), or trustee in bankruptcy (f), but not, probably, his assignee (g).

(3) Third persons.

(3) Any person not being the person chargeable with the bill,

(t) See Langford (Lady) v. Mahony (1843), 4 Dr. & War. 81, where the application was made after the death of the administrator by his administrator as administrator de bonis non. The taxation is not confined to costs incurred after the client's death (Re Dalby (1845), 8 Beav. 469). If the client dies during the taxation, the proceedings may be revived (Re Whalley (1855), 20 Beav. 576).

(a) Re Elmslie & Co. (1869), L. R. 9 Eq. 72; Stephens v. Davies (1827), 6 L. J. (O. S.) (CH.) 66. In this case the bankrupt himself cannot obtain the order (Re Leadbitter (1878), 10 Ch. D. 388, C. A.; Re Halsall (1848), 11 Beav. 163; compare Re Gingell, Ex parte Gingell (1833), 2 Deac. & Ch. 546). If the client, after obtaining the order, becomes bankrupt, the trustee in bankruptcy, where the solicitor undertakes not to prove for his costs, cannot continue the taxation without undertaking to pay the taxed amount of the bill (Re Merrick, Ex parte Joyce, [1911] 1 I. R. 279, C. A.).

(b) Re Salaman, [1894] 2 Ch. 201, C. A., following Re Colquhoun, Ex parte Ford (1854), 5 De G. M. & G. 35, C. A.; Re Allen, Davies v. Chatwood (1879), 11 Ch. D. 244. To avoid a multiplicity of taxations the court, as far as possible, directs a single taxation in the presence of all persons interested (Re Salaman, supra).

(c) Margerum v. Sandiford (1791), 3 Bro. C. C. 233; Lockhart v. Hardy (1841), 4 Beav. 224; Re Schelingser, Ex parte Watts (1836), 1 Deac. 588; Re Dawson and Bryan (1860), 28 Beav. 605; Re Hair (1847), 10 Beav. 187 (where the solicitor had obtained judgment against one partner, but the other partners were allowed to obtain an order for taxation); but see Re Chilcote (1839), 1 Beav. 421.

(d) Solicitors Act, 1843 (6 & 7 Vict. c. 73), s. 37. The court has a discretion (Re Woods, Ex parte Ditton (1880), 13 Ch. D. 318, C. A.). A London agent cannot obtain an order against the country solicitor's client (Re Scholes & Sons (1886), 32 Ch. D. 245). Taxation by the clerk of the peace on behalf of a local authority (see title LOCAL GOVERNMENT, Vol. XIX., pp. 288, 289) does not preclude the solicitor from applying (Southampton Guardians v. Bell and Tayler (1888), 21 Q. B. D. 297; Re Blake and Croydon Rural Sanitary Authority (1886), 2 T. L. R. 336). If the client dies, the solicitor may apply for taxation against his estate (Re Raphael, Ex parte Salomon, [1899] 1 Ch. 853).

(e) Solicitors Act, 1843 (6 & 7 Vict. c. 73), s. 37. If the solicitor dies during the taxation, the proceedings may be revived on the application of the client (Re Nicholson (1861), 29 Beav. 665), or of the solicitor's personal representatives (Re Waugh (1859), 29 Beav. 666).

(f) Solicitors Act, 1843 (6 & 7 Vict. c. 72), s. 37.

(g) See Re Ward (1885), 28 Ch. D. 719, where the court refused to decide whether the word "assignees" in the statute extended to persons to whom the solicitor had assigned his costs. In that case it was stated that no taxing master had ever seen an order to tax made on the application of an assignee of costs. An assignee is entitled to payment of the costs as against the solicitor's trustee in bankruptcy (Day v. Day (1857), 1 De G. & J. 144, C. A; Sharples v. Marsh (1854), 2 W. R. 400).

who is liable to pay (h) or who has paid it (i), or his trustee in bankruptcy (j). In this case application can only be made when the taxation is between solicitor and client (k). The application is subject to the same conditions as those governing an application by the client (l), and the taxation is a taxation of the bill as between the original parties (m). Persons liable to pay include a purchaser (n), a lessee (o), a mortgagor (p), or his trustee in bankruptcy (q), or a subsequent incumbrancer (r), as regards a vendor's, lessor's, or mortgagee's costs (s); a person obliged to sue in the name of another, as regards the nominal plaintiff's costs (t); any party to a compromise, as regards the costs which he has agreed to pay (u), or which, being payable out of a fund, fall upon (h) Solicitors Act, 1843 (6 & 7 Vict. c. 73), s. 38; Re Cusack (1888), 21 L. R. Ir. 493. If he has no copy of the bill, the court may order the solicitor to deliver him a copy on payment (Solicitors Act, 1843 (6 & 7 Vict. c. 73), s. 40); the charge is 4*d.* per folio of seventy-two words; see Re Blackmore (1851), 13 Beav. 154.

(i) As to taxation after payment, see pp. 787 et seq., post.

(j) Re Allingham (1886), 32 Ch. D. 36, C. A., distinguishing Re Marsh, Ex parte Marsh (1885), 15 Q. B. D. 340, C. A.

(k) Re Cowdell (1883), 52 L. J. (CH.) 246; Re Grundy, Kershaw & Co., Solicitors (1881), 17 Ch. D. 108, explaining Re Hartley (1861), 30 Beav. 620; Re Morris (1874), 27 L. T. 554. The court will not, except in special circumstances, order retaxation on the application of a person liable, if the bill has already been taxed (Solicitors Act, 1843 (6 & 7 Vict. c. 73), s. 40; see Re Congreve (1841), 4 Beav. 87; Worsley v. Labouchere (1893), 28 L. J. 879; Newton v. Boodle (1847), 4 C. B. 359). The petition is to be served also on the party chargeable if the bill is not taxable between the solicitor and himself; see Re Baker (1863), 32 Beav. 526.

(l) Re Jones and Everett, [1904] 2 Ch. 363. Hence, taxation will not be ordered, in the absence of special circumstances, where the bill has already been paid (Re Shrewsbury and Leicester Rail. Co., Re Vardy (1851), 20 L. J. (CH.) 325; Re Abbott (1861), 4 L. T. 576; Re Dickson (1856), 8 De G. M. & G. 655, C. A.; Re Smith (1884), 32 W. R. 408; Re Carew (1844), 8 Beav. 150; Re Massey (1845), 8 Beav. 458). As to special circumstances, see pp. 788 et seq., post.

(m) Re Wells (1845), 8 Beav. 416; Re Jones (1845), 8 Beav. 479; Re Fyson (1846), 9 Beav. 117; Re Harrison (1847), 10 Beav. 57; Re Barrow (1853), 17 Beav. 547; Re Phillpotts (1853), 18 Beav. 84; Re Taylor (1854), 18 Beav. 165; Re Newman (1867), 2 Ch. App. 707; Re Longbottam & Sons, [1904] 2 Ch. 152, C. A. But the solicitor may bind himself to submit to taxation as between the client and the person paying the costs (Re Fisher (1854), 18 Beav. 183). An allowance must be made where the third person is not liable for the whole of the costs (Re Negus, [1895] 1 Ch. 73; Re Morecroft (1885), 29 Sol. Jo. 471, C. A.; Re Cohen and Cohen, [1905] 2 Ch. 137, C. A.).

(n) Re Morecroft, supra.

(o) Re Gray, [1901] 1 Ch. 239; Re Negus, supra.

(p) Re Wells, supra; Re Carew, supra; Re Lees (1844), 5 Beav. 410; Re Bignold (1845), 9 Beav. 269; Re Thomas (1844), 8 Beav. 145; Painter v. Linsell (1840), 8 Scott, 453.

(q) Re Allingham, supra.

(r) Re Taylor, supra. As to the liability of the next friend of an infant for costs, see title INFANTS AND CHILDREN, Vol. XVII., p. 139; and as to the rights of a solicitor where the infant attains full age and adopts the proceedings, see ibid., p. 140. As to the costs of a solicitor appointed guardian ad litem, see ibid., p. 144; Re Jessop (1863), 32 Beav. 406.

(s) As to the usage of the legal profession in these and similar matters, see title CUSTOM AND USAGES, Vol. X., pp. 283, 284.

(t) Re Masters (1835), 4 Dowl. 18.

(u) Hirst and Capes v. Fox, [1908] A. C. 416; Balme v. Paver (1821),

SECT. 4. Taxation of Costs.

his share (a); and, generally, any person who is legally liable to pay the bill as such (b). On the other hand, application for taxation cannot be made by a ratepayer, though the bill is payable out of the rates (c), or by a person who has voluntarily paid the bill (d).

(4) Persons interested.

(4) Where a trustee or personal representative is chargeable, any person interested in the property out of which the bill has been or is to be paid (e). This provision enables a creditor to apply for the taxation of an executor's bill paid out of the deceased debtor's estate (f); but it does not extend to a trustee in bankruptcy, so as to enable the bankrupt to apply for taxation (g). The court has a discretion as to making the order (h); if the application is made after payment, the application must show sufficient special circumstances to support an order on the application of the person originally chargeable (i). As in the case of the person liable (k), the taxation is as between the original parties (l); but costs not properly chargeable against the estate are to be disallowed (m).

SUB-SECT. 2.—The Making of the Order.

Application within one month.

1290. Where the application is made within one month from the date of the delivery of the bill, the client is entitled as of course to

Jac. 305; Vincent v. Venner (1833), 1 My. & K. 212; Re Hulbert and Crowe (1894), 71 L. T. 748; Re Hartley (1861), 30 Beav. 620. A person who has agreed to pay a fixed sum for costs cannot apply (Re Morris (1892), 27 L. T. 554; Re Heritage, Ex parte Docker (1878), 3 Q. B. D. 726).

(a) Re Early, [1897] 1 I. R. 6, C. A.; Re Brown (1867), L. R. 4 Eq. 464.

(b) Sadler v. Palfreyman (1834), 1 Ad. & El. 717 (where there was an agreement to pay costs as between solicitor and client); Re Shrewsbury and Leicester Rail. Co., Re Vardy (1851), 20 L. J. (CH.) 325 (liquidator); compare Re Mills (1885), 79 L. T. Jo. 162 (person supplying funds for convict's defence).

(c) Re Barber, Ex parte Manchester and Leeds Rail. Co. (1845), 14 M. & W. 720.

(d) Re Becke and Flower (1844), 5 Beav. 406; Langford v. Nott (1820), 1 Jac. & W. 291.

(e) Solicitors Act, 1843 (6 & 7 Vict. c. 73), s. 39; Re Spencer, Spencer v. Hart (1881), 51 L. J. (CH.) 271, C. A.; Re Jackson, Re Cottrell, Boughton-Leigh v. Boughton-Leigh (1889), 40 Ch. D. 495; Re Hallett (1855), 21 Beav. 250; Re Drake (1856), 22 Beav. 438. Except in special circumstances retaxation will not be ordered if the bill has already been taxed (Solicitors Act, 1843 (6 & 7 Vict. c. 73), s. 40); see note (l), p. 783, ante.

(f) Re Jones and Everett, [1904] 2 Ch. 363.

(g) Re Leadbitter (1878), 10 Ch. D. 388, C. A.

(h) Solicitors Act, 1843 (6 & 7 Vict. c. 73), s. 39. The court may take into consideration the extent and nature of the applicant's interest (ibid.); see Re Dawson (1860), 2 L. T. 686.

(i) Re Wellborne, [1901] 1 Ch. 312, C. A., following Re Press and Inskip (1865), 35 Beav. 34, and Re Neate (1847), 10 Beav. 181, and not following Re Chowne (1884), 52 L. T. 75, C. A.; Re Dickson (1856), 8 De G. M. & G. 655, C. A. No taxation can be ordered under this provision after the lapse of twelve months from payment (Re Rees (1849), 12 Beav. 256; Re Downes (1844), 5 Beav. 425; Re Massey (1845), 8 Beav. 458).

(k) See p. 783, ante.

(l) Re Brown (1867), L. R. 4 Eq. 464; Re Dickson, supra; Re Story, Ex parte Marwick (1859), 8 W. R. 15; Re Downes, supra; compare Re Miles, [1903] 2 Ch. 518.

(m) Re Brown, supra; Re Dickson, supra; compare Re Hill, a Solicitor (1886), 33 Ch. D. 266, C. A.

obtain an order for the taxation of the bill (n). The solicitor, however, is not entitled to obtain an order within the month unless he satisfies a judge that the person chargeable is about to leave the country or to become bankrupt or to compound with his creditors or to do any other act which in the opinion of the judge would tend to defeat or delay the recovery or payment of the amount claimed (o).

Application after the month.

1291. Where application is not made until after the expiration of one month from the date of delivery of the bill, the order for taxation may be obtained either by the client or by the solicitor (p). In this case the court may give such directions and impose such conditions as it thinks proper (q), and may restrain the solicitor from suing upon his bill (r).

After verdict.

If the solicitor has, before the application is made, already obtained a verdict (s) in an action upon the bill, the court will not order taxation except in special circumstances (t).

Application after twelve months.

1292. Where the application is not made until after the expiration of twelve months (a) from the date of the delivery of the bill, or, where the bill is delivered in parts (b), from the date of the delivery of the last part (c), the court will not order taxation except in special circumstances (d).

Special circumstances.

1293. Special circumstances exist wherever there are circumstances in the particular case (e) which appear to the court so special

(n) Solicitors Act, 1843 (6 & 7 Vict. c. 73), s. 37.

(o) Legal Practitioners Act, 1875 (38 & 39 Vict. c. 79), s. 2; Re Duckers (1906), 50 Sol. Jo. 441.

(p) Solicitors Act, 1843 (6 & 7 Vict. c. 73), s. 37.

(q) Re Brockman, [1909] 2 Ch. 170, C. A.; Re Gaitskell (1845), 1 Ph. 576; Re Pender (1846), 2 Ph. 69.

(r) Solicitors Act, 1843 (6 & 7 Vict. c. 73), s. 37.

(s) See Re Gedye (1852), 15 Beav. 254; Re Barnard, Ex parte Wetherell (1852), 2 De G. M. & G. 359, C. A.; Re Hair (1847), 10 Beav. 187 (where judgment had been obtained against one of three partners); compare Re Chilcote (1839), 1 Beav. 421.

(t) Solicitors Act, 1843 (6 & 7 Vict. c. 73), s. 37; Lumsden v. Shipcote Land Co., [1906] 2 K. B. 433, C. A. As to special circumstances, see Re Shrewsbury and Leicester Rail. Co., Re Vardy (1851), 20 L. J. (CH.) 325; Re Whicher (1844), 13 M. & W. 549; Langstaffe v. Taylor (1807), 14 Ves. 262; and see the text, infra.

(a) In the case of a company in liquidation the material date is the date of the winding-up (Re Foss, Bilbrough, Plaskitt and Foss, [1912] 2 Ch. 161, following Re Marseilles Extension Railway and Land Co., Ex parte Evans (1870), L. R. 11 Eq. 151; Re Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, Re Palace Restaurants, Ltd. (1914), Times, 21st January, C. A.). As to the material date when a fund over which the solicitor has a lien is paid into court, see De Bay v. Griffin (1875), 10 Ch. App. 291.

(b) See p. 777, ante.

(c) Re Romer and Haslam, [1893] 2 Q. B. 286, C. A.; Re Cartwright (1873), L. R. 16 Eq. 469; contrast Re Hall and Barker (1878), 9 Ch. D. 538, followed in Re Hudson (a Solicitor), [1904] W. N. 32; Re James, Ex parte Quilter (1850), 4 De G. & Sm. 183.

(d) Solicitors Act, 1843 (6 & 7 Vict. c. 73), s. 37; Re Harper (1847), 10 Beav. 284; Re Wilton (1843), 13 L. J. (Q. B.) 17; Cowdell v. Neale (1856), 1 C. B. (N. S.) 332.

(e) Re Norman (1886), 16 Q. B. D. 673, C. A., per LOPES, L.J., at p. 677. As to reopening an account between solicitor and client, compare title MORTGAGE, Vol. XXI., p. 217, note (j).

SECT. 4. Taxation of Costs.

and exceptional as to justify taxation (f). The clearest examples of special circumstances are cases of pressure and overcharge (g) or overcharge amounting to fraud (h). The discretion of the court is not, however, limited to these cases; and, even in the absence of fraud or pressure, the overcharge may be so great as to amount to a special circumstance (i). It is not sufficient merely to show that the amount claimed in the bill is excessive (k); specific items must be objected to (l). Charges for particular items may be unreasonably large, as, for instance, where the solicitor charges for a shorthand note as if a professional shorthand writer had taken it, though it was in fact taken by his own clerk (m); there may be charges calling for explanation, as where the solicitor charged £92 for thirty-one days' attendance in London (n); or there may be gross blunders on the face of the bill, as where the solicitor charged for witnesses' expenses which had already been paid by the client direct to the witnesses (o).

On the other hand, the continuance of the relation of solicitor and client after delivery is not, in itself, a special circumstance (p); nor are there special circumstances in the fact that the solicitor has possession of the client's papers (q), or that he has charged for counsel's fees which have not yet been paid (r).

Third persons.

If the application is made by a third person as being the person liable to pay or having paid the bill (s), the court may take into (f) Re Boycott (1885), 29 Ch. D. 571, C. A., per BOWEN, L.J., at p. 579, approved in Re Norman (1886), 16 Q. B. D. 673, C. A.; compare Re Baylis, [1896] 2 Ch. 107, C. A.

(g) Re Strother (1857), 3 K. & J. 518; see p. 789, post; compare Re Williams (1852), 15 Beav. 417, where the bill was delivered just before the client went abroad and long after he had asked for it.

(h) Re Pybus (1887), 35 Ch. D. 568; Re Elmslie & Co., Ex parte Tower Subway Co. (1873), L. R. 16 Eq. 326.

(i) Re Boycott, supra; Re Norman, supra; Re Cheeseman, [1891] 2 Ch. 289, C. A.; Re Williams, Ex parte Love (1891), 65 L. T. 68; Re Nicholson (1861), 3 De G. F. & J. 93, C. A.; Re Hook (1861), 10 W. R. 116; Re Robinson (1867), L. R. 3 Exch. 4; Re G., a Solicitor (1909), 53 Sol. Jo. 469; compare Hughes v. Murray (1863), 9 L. T. 93, where the solicitor had offered to take a much smaller sum. The fact that the bill contains a few items which would not be allowed on taxation is not sufficient (Re Harle (a Solicitor) (1868), 19 L. T. 305).

(k) But a dispute as to the completeness of the bill may be sufficient (Re Bagshawe, Ex parte Huddersfield and Manchester Rail. and Canal Co. (1848), 2 De G. & Sm. 205; Binns v. Hey (1843), 1 Dow. & L. 661; Re Pomeroy and Tanner, No. 2 (1897), 76 L. T. 149).

(l) Re Boycott, supra, where, however, BOWEN, L.J., at p. 582, differed on this point from the rest of the court; Re Williams (1852), 15 Beav. 417; Re Bennett (1845), 8 Beav. 467; Re Evans (1845), 15 L. J. (CH.) 115. All the items objected to need not be specified (Re Dawson and Bryan (1860), 28 Beav. 605; compare Ex parte Andrews (1844), 13 L. J. (CH.) 222).

(m) Re Norman, supra.

(n) Re Robinson, supra.

(o) Re Norman, supra.

(p) Re Elmslie & Co., Ex parte Tower Subway Co., supra, discussing Re Nicholson, supra, and Ex parte Flower (1868), 18 L. T. 457; see Re Layton, Steele & Co., [1890] W. N. 112.

(q) Re Gedye (1851), 14 Beav. 56.

(r) Re Nelson, Son and Hastings (1885), 30 Ch. D. 1, C. A.

(s) See p. 782, ante.

consideration any additional special circumstances applicable to the person making the application (t).

Application after payment.

1294. After the bill has been paid (a), the client is not entitled to obtain an order for taxation, unless he makes application within twelve months of the date of payment (b), and unless he satisfies the court that there are special circumstances calling for its intervention (c). To preclude the client on the ground of payment from his general right to have the bill taxed, the solicitor must prove (1) that a proper bill was delivered (d), except in the cases where the costs have been paid by some person other than the client, such as, for instance, a purchaser (e); and (2) that the bill has in fact been paid (f). To satisfy the statute the payment should be a payment in money, though the giving of security for the amount of the bill after its delivery is, apparently, equivalent to payment (g). The delivery by the client to the solicitor of a negotiable instrument for the amount of the bill is not in itself payment of the bill (h), and if the negotiable instrument is dishonoured the bill is not paid (i). Since, however, the parties may agree to substitute a different consideration, the solicitor may succeed in proving that the parties intended the negotiable instrument to be taken as payment in any event (j). Similarly, the retainer (k) by the solicitor of the amount of the bill out of moneys received by him on behalf of the client is not payment (l), unless the client agrees thereto (m).

"Payment."

(t) Solicitors Act, 1843 (6 & 7 Vict. c. 73), s. 38; Re Dickson (1856), 8 De G. M. &. G. 655, C. A.; Re Massey (1845), 8 Beav. 458.

(a) The bill may have been paid by a third person (Turner v. Hand (1859), 27 Beav. 561).

(b) See Sayer v. Wagstaff (1844), 8 Jur. 1083.

(c) Solicitors Act, 1843 (6 & 7 Vict. c. 73), s. 41; Re South-Eastern Rail. Co., Ex parte Somerville (1883), 23 Ch. D. 167.

(d) Re Baylis, [1896] 2 Ch. 107, C. A., explaining Re Bischoff and Coxe, Ex parte Hemming (1856), 28 L. T. (o. s.) 144 (followed in Re Sealy (1911), 45 I. L. T. 1), and Re Thompson, Ex parte Baylis, [1894] 1 Q. B. 462; Re Street (1869), L. R. 10 Eq. 165.

(e) Re Chapman (1903), 20 T. L. R. 3, C. A.

(f) A payment on account is not sufficient (Re Woodard (1869), 18 W. R. 37; Re Angove (1882), 26 Sol. Jo. 417; Re Callis (1901), 49 W. R. 316).

(g) Re Boyle, Ex parte Turner (1854), 5 De G. M. & G. 540, C. A. (where, however, the security was paid off before the application).

(h) If the negotiable instrument is honoured, the date when it is honoured, and not the date when it is given, is the date of payment (Sayer v. Wagstaff, supra; Re Harries (1844), 13 M. & W. 3).

(i) Re Harries, supra; Re Peach (1844), 2 Dow. & L. 33; Re Romer and Haslam, [1893] 2 Q. B. 286, C. A.; Ray v. Newton, [1913] 1 K. B. 249, C. A. (where, however, the court refused to stay an action on the negotiable instrument); see Re a Solicitor (1894), 38 Sol. Jo. 239.

(j) Re Harries, supra; Re Romer and Haslam, supra; compare Re Harper (1847), 10 Beav. 284.

(k) As to the distinction between retainer and payment, see Re Harman & Son, Solicitors, [1912] W. N. 111 (solicitor-trustee).

(l) Re Street (1869), L. R. 10 Eq. 165; followed in Re Stogdon, Ex parte Baker (1887), 56 L. T. 355; Re Baylis, supra; Re West, King

(m) For note (m) see p. 788, post.

SECT. 4. Taxation of Costs.

Special circumstances after payment.

1295. Since payment of the bill is primâ facie an admission of its correctness (n), a strong case is required to entitle the client to taxation (o). Delay in making the application is therefore prejudicial (p), unless the client had no opportunity, at the time of payment, of examining into the bill (q). On the other hand, the client may, at the time of payment, expressly reserve the right to have the bill taxed (r), or may pay under protest (s); these facts amount to special circumstances within the meaning of the statute. There is no rigid rule defining what are special circumstances (t); the court has in each case a discretion (a), with which a court of appeal is slow to interfere (b). As a general rule, however, the same principles are applied as in the other cases where taxation depends on special circumstances (c), except that, perhaps, and Adams, Ex parte Clough, [1892] 1 Q. B. 102; Re Frape, Ex parte Perrett, [1893] 2 Ch. 284, C. A.; Re Ingle (1855), 21 Beav. 275; Re Vines and Hobbs, Ex parte Shackell (1852), 2 De G. M. & G. 842, C. A. The solicitor cannot insist on including in the taxation a previous bill which has been settled in the same way (Re Gregg (1861), 30 Beav. 259).

(m) Re Thompson, Ex parte Baylis, [1894] 1 Q. B. 462; Re Bischoff and Coxe, Ex parte Hemming (1856), 28 L. T. (O. S.) 144; Hitchcock v. Stretton, [1892] 2 Ch. 343; Re David (1861), 30 Beav. 278; Re Falls (1891), 29 L. R. Ir. 1; Re Foss, Bilbrough, Plaskitt and Foss, [1912] 2 Ch. 161; compare Turner v. Willis, [1905] 1 K. B. 468, explained in Re Van Laun, Ex parte Chatterton, [1907] 2 K. B. 23, C. A., per VAUGHAN WILLIAMS, L.J., at p. 26. But there must have been a delivered bill (Re Baylis, [1896], 2 Ch. 107, C. A.; Re Thompson, Ex parte Baylis, supra), or the agreement must be one which binds the client (Re Brady (1867), 15 W. R. 632; Brown v. Tibbitts (1862), 11 C. B. (N. S.) 855). The subsequent delivery of a bill may be sufficient (Re Baylis, supra, explaining Re Thompson, Ex parte Baylis, supra; Re Bischoff and Coxe, Ex parte Hemming, supra), but not if made under an order of the court (Re Baylis, supra, doubting Hitchcock v. Stretton, supra).

(n) Re Harding (1847), 10 Beav. 250.

(o) Re Browne, Ex parte Jefferies (1852), 1 De G. M. & G. 322, C. A.; Re Barrow (1853), 17 Beav. 547; compare Re Heritage, Ex parte Docker (1878), 3 Q. B. D. 726; Re Wyche (1848), 11 Beav. 209; Horlock v. Smith (1837), 2 My. & Cr. 495; Lewes v. Morgan (1817), 5 Price, 42.

(p) Re Harrison (1847), 10 Beav. 57; Re Browne, Ex parte Jefferies, supra; Re Bayley (1854), 18 Beav. 415; Re Barrow, supra; Re King (1910), 74 J. P. 445; compare Re Colquhoun, Dunt v. Dunt (1846), 9 Beav. 146.

(q) Re Steele (1851), 20 L. J. (CH.) 562; Re Fielder and Sumner (1871), 40 L. J. (CH.) 615.

(r) Re Williams, Ex parte Love (1892), 65 L. T. 68; Re Tweedie, Solicitors, [1909] W. N. 110; compare Re Dearden (1853), 9 Exch. 210.

(s) Re Cheeseman, [1891] 2 Ch. 289, C. A.; Re R. E. F. (1908), 52 Sol. Jo. 83; Re Tryon (1844), 7 Beav. 496; Re Leggatts and Carruthers (1908), 53 Sol. Jo. 84; compare Re Ward, Bowie & Co. (1910), 102 L. T. 881; but see Re Browne (1851), 15 Beav. 61.

(t) Re Cheeseman, supra; Re Ward, Bowie & Co., supra. It is a special circumstance that a criminal charge, which may be affected by the taxation, has been brought against the solicitor's clerk (Re Fisher & Co. (1879), 42 L. T. 261).

(a) Re Chowne (1884), 52 L. T. 75, C. A.; Re Norman (1884), 16 Q. B. D. 673, C. A.

(b) Re Cheeseman, supra; Gane and Kilner v. Linley (1909), 53 Sol. Jo. 198, C. A.

(c) See pp. 785, 786, ante.

they are applied more strictly (d). The most usual special circumstances are overcharge and pressure (e) and overcharge accompanied by fraud (f). Pressure exists where the solicitor requires immediate payment of the bill as a condition of permitting a transaction to be completed (g), as, for instance, where the client requires his title deeds for the purpose, and the solicitor, who has them in his possession, refuses to hand them over until his bill is paid (h). The client must, however, establish a case of real pressure: he must show that the prompt completion of the transaction was not merely a convenience (i), but a pressing necessity (k), and that it involved as a consequence the immediate payment of the solicitor's bill (l). He must further show (m) that, through the solicitor's delay in delivering the bill (n), he was given, before payment, no opportunity of considering it (o); if the bill was in his hands for a sufficient time beforehand, there is no pressure (p). It is not, however, necessary to show pressure or fraud; the court will interfere where the overcharge is excessive (q), and (d) Re Browne (1851), 15 Beav. 61; Re Barrow (1853), 17 Beav. 547; Re Abbott (1854), 18 Beav. 393.

(e) Re Foster, Ex parte Walker (1860), 2 De G. F. & J. 105, C. A.; Re Currie (1846), 9 Beav. 602; Re Rance (1856), 22 Beav. 177; Re Sladden (1847), 10 Beav. 488; Re Wells (1845), 8 Beav. 416; Re Harrison (1847), 10 Beav. 57; Re Newman (1867), 2 Ch. App. 707; contrast Re Griffith, Jones & Co. (1883), 53 L. J. (CH.) 303, C. A.

(f) Re Harding (1847), 10 Beav. 250; Re Hubbard (1852), 15 Beav. 251; Re Munns and Longden (1884), 50 L. T. 356.

(g) Re Pugh, Ex parte Briscoe (1863), 1 De G. J. & Sm. 673, C. A.; Re Wells, supra; Re Bennett (1845), 8 Beav. 467; Re Philpotts (1853), 18 Beav. 84.

(h) Re Lett (1862), 31 Beav. 488; Re Tryon (1844), 7 Beav. 496; Ex parte Andrews (1844), 13 L. J. (CH.) 222. The court does not, however, interfere where the overcharge is not excessive (Re Finch and Shepheard, Ex parte Barton (1853), 4 De G. M. & G. 108, C. A.).

(i) Re Abbott, supra; compare Re Dolman (1854), 2 W. R. 447.

(k) Re Harding, supra; Re Finch (1853), 16 Beav. 585; Re Boycott (1886), 29 Ch. D. 571, C. A.

(l) Re Newman, supra; Re Browne, Ex parte Jefferies (1852), 1 De G. M. & G. 322, C. A.; Re Kinneir, Ex parte Price (1858), 7 W. R. 175.

(m) Re Mash (1851), 15 Beav. 83.

(n) Re Boycott, supra. An order is not made where the solicitor has, before payment, offered an opportunity for taxation, and warned the client of the difficulty of obtaining an order after payment (Re Boyle, Ex parte Turner (1854), 5 De G. M. & G. 540, C. A.).

(o) Re Fielder and Sumner (1871), 25 L. T. 56; Re Elmslie (1850), 12 Beav. 538; Re Pugh (1863), 8 L. T. 586; Re Abbott, supra; Re Massey (1909), 101 L. T. 517; compare Re Loughborough (1857), 23 Beav. 439; Re Fyson (1846), 9 Beav. 117.

(p) Re Harrison, supra; Re Drew (1847), 10 Beav. 368; Re Hubbard, supra; Re Jones (1845), 8 Beav. 479; Re Lacey & Son (1883), 25 Ch. D. 301, C. A.; Re Welchman (1848), 11 Beav. 319; Re Towle (1860), 30 Beav. 170; compare Nokes v. Warton (1842), 5 Beav. 448.

(q) Re Norman (1884), 16 Q. B. D. 673, C. A.; Re Barrow, supra; Re Kinneir, Ex parte Price, supra; Re Dickson (1856), 8 De G. M. & G. 655, C. A.; Re Eley (1887), 37 Ch. D. 40; Re Brady (1867), 15 W. R. 632; contrast Re Layton, Steele & Co. (1890), 38 W. R. 652. A trifling overcharge is not sufficient (Re Drake (1844), 8 Beav. 123; Re Walsh (1850), 12 Beav. 490; Re Chowne (1884), 52 L. T. 75, C. A.;

SECT. 4. Taxation of Costs.

unexplained (r); and, generally, wherever the bill contains charges open to criticism (s).

Twelve months after payment.

1296. After the expiration of twelve months from the date of payment, no order to tax the bill can be made (t).

Procedure in Chancery Division.

1297. In the Chancery Division application may be made for an order of course for taxation of the bill, within one month after the delivery of the bill, by the client (a) or person liable to pay the bill (b), or, after the expiration of a month and within twelve months after the delivery of the bill, by the client (c), or person liable to pay the bill (d), or by the solicitor (e). The application is made ex parte, by petition (f), which should contain full materials to enable the court to decide whether or not the application should be granted (g) and the order is made ex parte by a registrar (h).

Re Towle (1860), 30 Beav. 170; Re Finch and Shepheard, Ex parte Barton (1853), 4 De G. M. & G. 108).

(r) Re Robinson (1867), L. R. 3 Exch. 4. A common mistake that the remuneration was by scale fee is not sufficient to justify taxation (Re Glascodine and Carlyle (1885), 52 L. T. 781, C. A.).

(s) Re N., a Solicitor (1912), 56 Sol. Jo. 520.

(t) Binns v. Hey (1843),1 Dow. & L. 661; Re Wilton (1843), 13 L. J. (Q. B.) 17; Re Harper (1847), 10 Beav. 284; Barwell v. Brooks (1844), 7 Beav. 345 (where a petition presented within time failed on the ground of irregularity); Waters v. Taylor (1837), 1 Jur. 375; Re Sutton (1883), 11 Q. B. D. 377, C. A.; Re Falls (1891), 29 L. R. Ir. 1; contrast Watson v. Rodwell (1879), 11 Ch. D. 150, C. A.; Re Cawley and Whatley (1870), 18 W. R. 1125. The same principle applies to an application by a person interested (Re Jackson, Re Cottrell, Boughton-Leigh v. Boughton-Leigh (1889), 40 Ch. D. 495; Re Wellborne, [1901] 1 Ch. 312, C. A., following Re Downes (1844), 5 Beav. 425). But taxation may be ordered notwithstanding twelve months have elapsed if no proper bill has been delivered (Re Callis (1901), 49 W. R. 316, n).

(a) Solicitors Act, 1843 (6 & 7 Vict. c. 73), s. 37.

(b) Ibid., s. 38; Re Bracey (1845), 8 Beav. 338; Re Bignold (1845), 9 Beav. 269; Re Hartley (1861), 30 Beav. 620. The bill (Re Robertson, a Solicitor (1889), 42 Ch. D. 553), or a copy (Re Kellock (1887), 35 W. R. 695), must have been delivered to him; it need not have been delivered to the party chargeable (Re Abbott (1861), 4 L. T. 576). A person applying as a person interested cannot apply for an order of course; see p. 791, post.

(c) Solicitors Act, 1843 (6 & 7 Vict. c. 73), s. 37. A second order of course should not be applied for where the first has lapsed (Re Webster, [1891] 2 Ch. 102; Re Taylor, Sons, and Tarbuck, [1894] 1 Ch. 503; see Re Gedye (1852), 15 Beav. 254; Re Hinton (1852), 15 Beav. 192; and compare Harvey v. Mayhew (1853), 2 W. R. 128 (London agent)).

(d) Solicitors Act, 1843 (6 & 7 Vict. c. 73), s. 38.

(e) Ibid., s. 37.

(f) For the forms of petition, see Daniell, Chancery Forms, 5th ed., pp. 1042—1048. The petition must be indorsed in the name of the country solicitor, not of his London agent (Re Scholes & Sons (1886), 32 Ch. D. 245).

(g) Re Gedye, supra, followed in Re Collyer-Bristow, Russell Hill & Co., Ex parte Fletcher (1899), 81 L. T. 110; Re Ingle (1855), 21 Beav. 275; Re S., a Solicitor (1910), 55 Sol. Jo. 127.

(h) See R. S. C., Appendix N., item 195, n.; Ord. 62, r. 18. The district registrars at Liverpool and Manchester have now jurisdiction to make the order (ibid., Ord. 35, r. 6A, altering the law as laid down in Stead v. Smith, [1911] A. C. 688). For the present form of order, see Re Brockman, [1909] 2 Ch. 170, C. A.; R. S. C., Appendix K, No. 41A.

Special order.

Where the right to taxation depends upon special circumstances (i), application must not be made for an order of course, but for a special order. A special order should also be applied for where there is a dispute between the parties as to the existence of the retainer (k) or of some point affecting the right to tax, such as the delivery (l) or payment (m) of the bill or the professional character of the work done (n), or where the application is made by one only of several clients (o), or against a firm of solicitors, only one of the partners being concerned (p), or by a person who is not a client, but who claims taxation as a person interested (q), or by a country solicitor against his London agent (r), or, generally, wherever, in the circumstances, the common order is inapplicable (s). In these cases the application is made by an originating summons (t); it must

Procedure.

(i) As where taxation is applied for after payment (Sayer v. Wagstaff (1843), 12 L. J. (CH.) 496; Re Carew (1844), 8 Beav. 150; Re Winterbottom (1851), 15 Beav. 80; Re Forsyth (1865), 2 De G. J. & Sm. 509, C. A.; see Howell v. Edmunds (1827), 4 Russ. 67). The same principle applies to a person liable to pay (Re Becke and Flower (1844), 5 Beav. 406).

(k) Re Thurgood (1854), 19 Beav. 541; Re Wood, [1891] W. N. 203; Re Haddelsey (a Solicitor) (1891), 35 Sol. Jo. 563; compare Re Donaldson (1884), 27 Ch. D. 544; and see Re Graham and Wigley (1908), 52 Sol. Jo. 684. But, under the common order, the retainer may be disputed as to particular items (Re Frape, Ex parte Perrett (No. 2), [1894] 2 Ch. 290; Re Herbert (1887), 34 Ch. D. 504; Re Bracey (1845), 8 Beav. 266). The solicitor may obtain the common order, though he knows that his retainer is disputed (Re Jones, a Solicitor (1887), 36 Ch. D. 105; considered in Re Wingfield and Blew (Solicitors), [1904] 2 Ch. 665).

(l) Re Hulbert and Crowe (Solicitors etc.) (1894), 39 Sol. Jo. 83; Re Thompson (1885), 30 Ch. D. 441, C. A.; Re Robertson (a Solicitor) (1889), 42 Ch. D. 553 (where the delivery to a person liable was in dispute); compare Re C. (a Solicitor) (1907), 53 Sol. Jo. 616.

(m) Re Winterbottom, supra; compare Re Holland (1854), 19 Beav. 314.

(n) Re Eldridge (1849), 12 Beav. 387; Re Inderwick (1883), 25 Ch. D. 279, C. A.

(o) Re Perkins (1845), 8 Beav. 241; Re Lewin (1853), 16 Beav. 608; Re Ilderton (1863), 33 Beav. 201.

(p) Re Curnot and Parkinson (1871), 40 L. J. (CH.) 608.

(q) Re Straford (1852), 16 Beav. 27; Re Richardson, Ex parte Mobbs (1845), 8 Beav. 499; compare Re Hallett (1855), 21 Beav. 250. For the form of summons, see Daniell, Chancery Forms, 5th ed., p. 1049; for the form of order, 1 Seton, Judgments and Orders, 7th ed., pp. 250, 251.

(r) Lees v. Nuttall (1834), 2 My. & K. 284; Foley v. Smith (1851), 20 L. J. (CH.) 621; but see Harvey v. Mayhew (1853), 2 W. R. 128. As to bringing the amount of the bill into court, see Ostle v. Christian (1823), Turn. & R. 324; Lees v. Nuttall, supra; Re Smith (1841), 4 Beav. 309; Storer & Co. v. Johnson (1890), 15 App. Cas. 203, 205.

(s) Re Jones, a Solicitor, supra; Re Thompson (1888), 36 Ch. D. 441, C. A.; Re Carven (1845), 8 Beav. 436; Re Rees (1849), 12 Beav. 256; Re Fanshawe (H. H.), [1905] W. N. 64. A special order must be obtained to tax one of several distinct bills (Re Yetts (1864), 33 Beav. 412; Re Byrch, Holland v. Gwynne (1844), 8 Beav. 124; Re Wavell (1856), 22 Beav. 634; Re Law and Gould (1856), 21 Beav. 481), unless it is admitted that nothing is due to the solicitor, the only question being whether he has been overpaid (Re Ward, [1896] 2 Ch. 31, C. A.).

(t) R. S. C., Ord. 55, r. 2 (15). For the form, see ibid., Appendix K, No. 1G; Daniell's Chancery Forms, 5th ed., pp. 1047—1049. In taxations of the costs of conveyances under the Lands Clauses Consolidation Act, 1845 (8 & 9 Vict. c. 18), where the promoter and the party entitled to such costs are unable to agree, the application is by petition (ibid., s. 83).

SECT. 4. Taxation of Costs.

be served on the other side two clear days before the return day (a), but no appearance need be entered (b). The order, whether granting or refusing the application, is a final order for the purpose of appeal (c).

Costs of improper procedure.

An order obtained ex parte which should not have been so obtained will be, as a rule, discharged with costs (d), though the court may deal with it on the merits (e). Application to discharge the order must be made by motion (f), and the notice of motion should state the objections to the order (g). If a special application is made where an order of course might have been obtained, the applicant must pay the extra costs incurred (h). In a doubtful case, therefore, the applicant should ask the other side to consent to an order ex parte (i): if consent is improperly refused, the person refusing will be ordered to pay the extra costs (k).

Submission to pay.

1298. Where the client applies for an order of course within one month after delivery of the bill, he has an absolute right to it, and cannot be required to bring money into court or to submit to pay the amount found on taxation to be due (l). Where, however, he applies for the delivery up of papers (m), or where he appeals to the discretion of the court (n), the court may require from him a submission to pay (o). This submission, which is inserted in the

(a) R. S. C., Ord. 54, r. 4E.

(b) Ibid., r. 4F (1). If the client does not oppose the summons, he cannot afterwards object that items in the bill are not taxable (Re Johnson (1855), 1 Jur. (N. S.) 1140).

(c) Re Reeves (Herbert) & Co., [1902] 1 Ch. 29, C. A.; see R. S. C., Ord. 58, r. 3.

(d) Re S., a Solicitor (1910), 55 Sol. Jo. 127; Re Byrch, Holland v. Gwynne (1844), 8 Beav. 124; compare Re Straford (1852), 16 Beav. 27; Re Brown (1867), L. R. 4 Eq. 464; Re Perkins (1845), 8 Beav. 241; Re Gabriel (1846), 10 Beav. 45, where, in the circumstances, the order was discharged without costs.

(e) Re Webster, [1891] 2 Ch. 102; Re Taylor, Sons and Tarbuck, [1894] 1 Ch. 503; Re Thompson (1888), 36 Ch. D. 441, C. A.; Re Kellock (1887), 35 W. R. 695; compare R. S. C., Ord. 70, r. 1.

(f) Judicature Act, 1873 (36 & 37 Vict. c. 66), s. 50; see Boake v. Stevenson, [1895] 1 Ch. 358. The application must be made within a reasonable time (R. S. C., Ord. 70, r. 2; Re Hilliard, Ex parte Arthur & Co. (1891), 35 Sol. Jo. 698). An application by the client to vary his own order must also be made within a reasonable time (Re Tibbitts, a Solicitor (1881), 30 W. R. 177; Re Springall (1844), 8 Beav. 63).

(g) R. S. C., Ord. 70, r. 3.

(h) Curwen v. Milburn (1889), 42 Ch. D. 424, C. A.; Re Bignold (1845), 9 Beav. 269; Re Steele (1851), 20 L. J. (CH.) 562; Re Cattlin, Barwell v. Brooks (1844), 8 Beav. 121; Re Atkinson and Pilgrim (1858), 26 Beav. 151; compare Re Kellock, supra.

(i) Re Taylor (1852), 15 Beav. 145.

(k) Re Adamson (1854), 18 Beav. 460; Re Lett (1862), 31 Beav. 488; Re Bracey (1845), 8 Beav. 266.

(l) Re Brockman, [1909] 2 Ch. 170, C. A.

(m) The court has a discretion as to adding an order for the delivery of papers (Ex parte Jarman (1877), 4 Ch. D. 835).

(n) See Re Battams and Hutchinson, [1897] 1 Ch. 699, where the client was bankrupt and the application was made by a mortgagee of the sums due from the solicitor.

(o) A submission to pay is not necessary, since an order can be made to pay the certified balance under the Solicitors Act, 1843 (6 & 7 Vict. c. 73), order, should be a submission to pay not what is due, but only what is certified as recoverable, having regard to, inter alia, the Statute of Limitations (p); in this case the order should direct taxation of the statute-barred items so as to ascertain the amount for which the solicitor has a lien (q). The forms of order in use further provide for the solicitor giving credit for all moneys received on behalf of the client, for the costs of the reference, for certifying the amount due (r) and by whom it is to be paid (s), for delivery up of papers on payment, and for restraining the solicitor from suing on the bill pending the reference (t).

Service of order.

When the order of course is obtained by the client, it must be indorsed and personally served on the solicitor (a).

Procedure in King's Bench Division.

1299. In the King's Bench Division the application is made, if connected with proceedings before the court, by a summons in the action or other proceeding (b); if not connected with any proceedings, by an originating summons (c). The order is made by a master (d).

SUB-SECT. 3.—The Conduct of the Taxation.

Appointment for taxation.

1300. The solicitor having the carriage of an order for taxation must, within seven days after the order is perfected, leave at the office of the taxing master to whom the taxation is allotted (e) a

s. 43; but it is convenient as saving the expense of a separate application (Re Brockman, [1909] 2 Ch. 170, C. A.).

(p) 21 Jac. 1, c. 16; see Re Brockman, supra, discussing Budgett v. Budgett, [1895] 1 Ch. 202, and Re Margetts, [1896] 2 Ch. 263; Re Templeton & Co. (1909), 101 L. T. 144, C. A.

(q) Re Brockman, supra. As to the effect of the Statute of Limitations (21 Jac. 1, c. 16) on a solicitor's bill of costs, see title LIMITATION OF ACTIONS, Vol. XIX., p. 42; as to when time begins to run, see pp. 774, 775, ante; title LIMITATION OF ACTIONS, Vol. XIX., p. 48.

(r) The taxing master may, under R. S. C., Ord. 65, r. 27 (57), extend the time limited in the order (namely, one month) for making the certificate (Re Macintosh and Thomas, Solicitors, [1903] 2 Ch. 394, C. A.). If the solicitor attends the taxation after the time limited has expired, this is a waiver of his right to object (Re Field (1853), 16 Beav. 593).

(s) Where the order is obtained by the solicitor, it provides only for payment of any balance due from him (1 Seton, Judgments and Orders, 7th ed., pp. 234 et seq.; R. S. C., Appendix K, No. 42). He can recover what is due from the client by action only (Re Debenham and Walker, [1895] 2 Ch. 430; Re Harcourt, a Solicitor (1887), 32 Sol. Jo. 92); see p. 812, post.

(t) This does not prevent the solicitor from enforcing any collateral security for his costs; see p. 811, post.

(a) R. S. C., Ord. 41, r. 5; Re Wilde, [1910] W. N. 129, C. A.; Re Norvall, a Solicitor, [1869] W. N. 255; compare Re Robertson (a Solicitor) (1889), 42 Ch. D. 553. As to service out of the jurisdiction, see R. S. C., Ord. 11, r. 8A, altering the law as laid down in Re Bouron, Ex parte Brandon (1886), 54 L. T. 128. The taxing master also gives notice by post of the dates when the bills are to be left for taxation, and when the taxation is to be proceeded with (R. S. C., Ord. 65, r. 19D; compare ibid., r. 19E).

(b) For the form, see R. S. C., Appendix K, No. 42A.

(c) For forms, see ibid., Nos., 40C, 41B.

(d) Re Thomas, [1893] 1 Q. B. 670. For forms of orders, see R. S. C., Appendix K, Nos. 41—43. In Re Brockman, supra, it was suggested that the same form should be used both in the Chancery and in the King's Bench Division.

(e) For the allotment of business amongst the taxing masters, see Regulations issued by Taxing Masters, 1902. Any taxing master may copy of the order, together with a statement containing the names and addresses of parties appearing in person and of the solicitors of parties not appearing in person (f). The taxing master then gives notice by post fixing a date before which the bills to be taxed are to be left at his office, along with the necessary vouchers, and a subsequent date on which the taxation is to be proceeded with (g). The taxation must, if possible, continue without interruption till completed; notice of any adjournment must be sent by the taxing master to any solicitor not present at the time of the adjournment whose attendance is desired at the next appointment (h).

SECT. 4. Taxation of Costs.

Powers of taxing master.

1301. The taxing master has, for the purposes of the taxation, power to administer oaths, to examine witnesses (i), and to require the production of documents (k). He may grant extensions of time (l), and may award costs against any person neglecting to proceed with the taxation (m). He may direct parties to be represented by separate solicitors (n); and, where the costs are payable out of a fund, he may direct what parties are to attend and disallow the costs of any parties attending unnecessarily (o). He may take account of what is due on the taxation (p), and may adjust the rights of the parties by allowing a set-off (q).

assist in taxing a bill referred to another taxing master (R. S. C., Ord. 65, r. 19; Solicitors Act, 1843 (6 & 7 Vict. c. 73), s. 42).

(f) R. S. C., Ord. 65, r. 19C. If he fails to do so, he loses the costs of drawing and copying the bill and of attending the taxation (ibid.).

(g) Ibid., r. 19D.

(h) Ibid., r. 19E. Where any party entitled to costs delays bringing in his costs, the taxing master may proceed without him, and may allow him a nominal or other sum (ibid., r. 27 (28)).

(i) If necessary, he must hear witnesses on both sides and allow them to be cross-examined (Brown v. Great Western Rail. Co. (1887), 3 T. L. R. 582; Re Flux, Argles and Rawlins (1874), 44 L. J. (CH.) 375).

(k) R. S. C., Ord. 65, r. 27 (25); Re Evans, Ex parte Brown (1887), 35 W. R. 546; see also Harben v. Gordon (1913), 48 L. J. 703.

(l) R. S. C., Ord. 65, r. 27 (57). This enables the taxing master to extend the time for making the allocatur, though the time limited by the order has expired (Re Macintosh and Thomas, Solicitors, [1903] 2 Ch. 394, C. A.). As to the costs of applications to extend time, see R. S. C., Ord. 65, r. 27 (24).

(m) Ibid., r. 27 (28).

(n) Ibid., r. 27 (25).

(o) Ibid., r. 27 (27); Re Salmond, Rydon v. Williams (1905), 22 T. L. R. 161; Stahlschmidt v. Lett (1861), 9 W. R. 830. Before completing the taxation the taxing master may require the solicitor to submit the bill to his client and to inform the client of the taxation (R. S. C., Ord. 65, r. 27 (56)).

(p) Ibid., r. 27 (27); see also ibid., r. 27 (28). But not general accounts between the parties (Jones v. James (1839), 1 Beav. 307; Re Smith (1841), 4 Beav. 309; Cooper v. Ewart (1847), 15 Sim. 564; King v. Savery (1856), 8 De G. M. & G. 311, C. A.; Re Le Brasseur and Oakley, [1896] 2 Ch. 487, C. A.).

(q) R. S. C., Ord. 65, r. 27 (21); Batten v. Wedgwood Coal and Iron Co. (1884), 28 Ch. D. 317; Harmer v. Harris (1826), 1 Russ. 155; Re Crawshay, Dennis v. Crawshay (1890), 45 Ch. D. 318, C. A. This does not apply to costs of different proceedings between the same parties which cannot be set off (David v. Rees, [1904] 2 K. B. 435, C. A.; Bake v. French, [1907] 1 Ch. 428; Re Bassett, Ex parte Lewis, [1896] 1 Q. B. 219; Re Adams, Ex

1302. On the completion of the taxation the taxing master issues his certificate or allocatur (r) showing the result of the taxation (s).

SUB-SECT. 4.—Review of Taxation.

Allocatur.

List of objections.

1303. At any time before the allocatur is issued (t) any party (a) dissatisfied with the taxing master's allowance or disallowance of the whole or part of any items may carry in a list of objections; the list must be in writing, and must specify concisely the particular items or parts of items objected to (b), and the grounds of objection (c). Thereupon application is made to the taxing master to review the taxation (d); and the taxing master is to review the taxation before issuing the allocatur (e). He may receive further evidence, if he thinks fit (f); and, if required, he must state in his allocatur or by reference to the objections his decision thereon, together with his reasons and any special facts or circumstances (g).

Review by taxing master.

Order for review.

1304. As regards items not so objected to, the taxing master's allocatur is final (h). As regards items which have been specified in the list of objections, any party (i) dissatisfied with the parte Griffin (1880), 14 Ch. D. 37, C. A.; Hassell v. Stanley, [1896] 1 Ch. 607; Barker v. Hemming (1880), 5 Q. B. D. 609, C. A.).

(r) For the form, see R. S. C., Appendix F, Nos. 21, 21A.

(s) See title PRACTICE AND PROCEDURE, Vol. XXIII., p. 185. He may issue an interim allocatur without waiting till the whole amount can be certified (R. S. C., Ord. 65, r. 27 (17) (b), (39)). If it appears that there must in any event be moneys due from the solicitor to the client, he may issue an interim allocatur, on the filing of which a master may order the moneys so certified to be forthwith paid to the client or brought into court (ibid., Ord. 52, r. 26).

(t) See, however, Re Furber (1898), 33 L. J. 343, C. A., where, to avoid a miscarriage of justice, the allocatur was set aside so as to enable objections to be carried in.

(a) Including any party's solicitor, though no longer acting for him, where such party's costs are directed to be taxed (Re Clarke's Settlement (1911), 55 Sol. Jo. 293).

(b) R. S. C., Ord. 65, r. 27 (39). As regards libel, the objections are absolutely privileged (Pedley and May v. Morris (1891), 61 L. J. (Q. B.) 21).

(c) No fresh grounds of objection can be taken before the judge (Strousberg v. Sanders (1889), 38 W. R. 117, C. A.).

(d) R. S. C., Ord. 65, r. 27 (39).

(e) Ibid., r. 27 (40). Where the taxing master to whom the bill was referred has been assisted in his taxation by another taxing master, the first taxing master is to review the taxation, though the items objected to were dealt with by the second taxing master (Ross v. Ashwin, [1884] W. N. 86; Re Lett, Ex parte Parry (1861), 5 L. T. 416).

(f) R. S. C., Ord. 65, r. 27 (40).

(g) Ibid.; Dashwood v. Magniac, [1892] W. N. 54; compare Re Mahon, [1893] 1 Ch. 507, C. A. The opposite party may then carry in counter-objections (Strousberg v. Sanders, supra; Shrapnel v. Laing (1888), 20 Q. B. D. 334, C. A.; Re Furber, supra).

(h) R. S. C., Ord. 65, r. 27 (41). Where the taxation is conducted under the Lands Clauses (Taxation of Costs) Act, 1895 (58 & 59 Vict. c. 11), s. 1 (2), the court has no power to review it (Re Cannings, Ltd. and Middlesex County Council, [1907] 1 K. B. 51, C. A.; see also Sandback Charity Trustees v. North Staffordshire Rail. Co. (1877), 3 Q. B. D. 1, C. A., following Owen v. London and North Western Rail. Co. (1867), L. R. 3 Q. B. 54).

(i) A person who is not a party should apply to have the order for taxation discharged (Charlton v. Charlton (1882), 31 W. R. 237).

SECT. 4. Taxation of Costs.

allocatur (k) may, within fourteen days from its date (l), apply to the judge in chambers for an order to review the taxation; and the judge may make such order as he thinks just (m). No evidence other than that before the taxing master is to be received unless the judge so directs (n).

Principles followed by the court.

The court does not, as a general rule, interfere with the discretion of the taxing master (o), even though he may have disallowed the whole of the costs (p). Where, however, the matter is not purely one for his discretion (q), or where he has acted upon a wrong principle (r), or has mistaken the scope of the order for taxation (s), or where he ought to have heard further evidence (t), the court orders a review.

Appeal.

1305. An appeal lies to the Court of Appeal from the order of the judge (a). The order being an interlocutory order, leave is necessary (b), and the appeal must be brought within fourteen days (c).

(k) The review is not ordered until the allocatur is made (Re Le Brasseur and Oakley, [1896] 2 Ch. 487, C. A.). The objections must be confined to those taken before the taxing master (Strousberg v. Sanders (1889), 38 W. R. 117, C. A.; Re Hill, a Solicitor (1886), 33 Ch. D. 266, C. A.; Shrapnel v. Laing (1888), 20 Q. B. D. 334, C. A.; Craske v. Wade (1899), 80 L. T. 380, C. A.; Re Nation, Nation v. Hamilton (1887), 57 L. T. 648), unless the objection is to the whole of the finding (Re Castle (1887), 36 Ch. D. 194, following Re Sparrow (1881), 8 Q. B. D. 479, C. A.), or unless the taxing master has wrongly allowed a lump sum without taxing at all (Re Johnston, Mills v. Johnston [1904] 1 Ch. 132).

(l) The time may be extended (R. S. C., Ord. 65, r. 27 (41)).

(m) Ibid. Where the taxation has taken place before a district registrar, the judge may refer the items objected to to a taxing master of the Supreme Court (Stevens v. Griffin, [1897] 2 Q. B. 368, C. A.).

(n) R. S. C., Ord. 65, r. 27 (42); Sturge v. Dimsdale (1846), 9 Beav. 170; Hester v. Hester (1887), 34 Ch. D. 607, C. A.

(o) In the Estate of Ogilvie, Ogilvie v. Massey, [1910] P. 243, C. A.; Ginn v. Robey, [1911] W. N. 28, C. A.; Re Findlay, Findlay v. Cuthbertson (1910), 44 I. L. T. 214, C. A.; Denaby and Cadeby Main Collieries v. Yorkshire Miners' Association (1907), 23 T. L. R. 635, C. A.; Wheeler v. Fradd (1898), 14 T. L. R. 440, C. A.; Glamorgan County Council v. Great Western Rail. Co., [1895] 1 Q. B. 21; Re Maddock, Butt v. Wright, [1899] 2 Ch. 588, 591; Mangan v. Metropolitan Electric Supply Co., [1891] 2 Ch. 551, C. A.; Fenton v. Crickett (1818), 3 Madd. 496; Alsop v. Oxford (Lord) (1833), 1 My. & K. 564; Friend v. Solly (1847), 10 Beav. 329; Re Catlin (1854), 18 Beav. 508; Eyre v. Shelley (1841), 5 Jur. 439; Re Moss (1854), 3 W. R. 19; Bucknall v. Boydell (1839), 7 Scott, 171; Re Brown (1867), L. R. 4 Eq. 464; Clarke v. Tyne Improvement Commissioners (1868), L. R. 3 C. P. 230; Yglesias v. Royal Exchange etc. Corporation (1870), L. R. 5 C. P. 141; Potter v. Rankin (1870), L. R. 5 C. P. 518; Beattie v. Ebury (Lord) (1873), 43 L. J. (CH.) 80. But he must have exercised his discretion (Boswell v. Coaks (1887), 36 Ch. D. 444, C. A.).

(p) Simmons v. Storer (1880), 14 Ch. D. 154.

(q) Ager v. Blacklock & Co. (1887), 56 L. T. 890.

(r) Fenton v. Crickett, supra; Sparrow v. Hill (1881), 7 Q. B. D. 362; Carter v. Apfel (1912), 57 Sol. Jo. 97; Re Porter, Amphlett and Jones, [1912] 2 Ch. 98.

(s) Russell v. Buchanan (1838), 9 Sim. 167.

(t) Sturge v. Dimsdale, supra.

(a) Re Oddy, [1895] 1 Q. B. 392, C. A.; see also Harben v. Gordon (1913), 48 L. J. 703.

(b) Re Jerome, [1907] 2 Ch. 145, C. A.

(c) Re Watson, Ex parte Phillips (1887), 19 Q. B. D. 234, C. A.

SECT. 5.—What Costs Allowed on Taxation.

SUB-SECT. 1.—In General.

Discretion of taxing master.

1306. Where an order is made for the taxation of costs pursuant to the statutory powers of the court (d), the taxing officer, subject to the court's direction, is given a very large discretion as to the amount which he may allow (e). The principles of allowance by which he ought to be guided in taxations in matters and actions in the Supreme Court of Judicature (f), and in non-contentious cases where he has jurisdiction, differ according to the circumstances of the case, depending upon which of the following categories the taxation belongs to, namely:—(1) As between solicitor and client; (2) as between party and party; (3) where the costs are payable out of a fund; (4) where they are to include costs, charges, and expenses, and to be by way of indemnity; (5) where they are covered by the scales attached to the Solicitors Remuneration Order, 1881, Schedule I.; and (6) where they are regulated or affected by any statutory provision.

SUB-SECT. 2.—Costs as between Solicitor and Client.

Where applicable.

1307. The taxation of costs as between solicitor and client applies to costs which a solicitor is entitled to recover as against his own client; and to costs which in special cases may be awarded as between solicitor and client against an unsuccessful party to litigation (g).

As against client.

1308. The solicitor's right to recover costs as against his own client arises out of his professional employment (h). In non-contentious business the taxing master is bound to allow the scale charges fixed by the Remuneration Order, 1882 (i), unless the work done falls outside the scale (j), or unless the solicitor has elected to charge item charges (k). As regards contentious proceedings, the solicitor is not limited in his charges against his own client to such sums as may be allowed against his opponent as party and party costs (l). Any items in excess of party and party costs will become payable to him when he has complied with his obligation to deliver to his client a signed bill of such items and has waited the necessary month (m). If, however, any of the items are unusual in their

(d) See p. 780, ante.

(e) R. S. C., Ord. 65, r. 27 (29); Re Ermen, Tatham v. Ermen, [1903] 2 Ch. 156; McIver & Co., Ltd. v. Tate Steamers, Ltd., [1902] 2 K. B. 184, C. A.; Re Burroughs, Wellcome & Co.'s Trade Marks (1904), 22 R. P. C. 164.

(f) As to costs in the county court, see title COUNTY COURTS, Vol. VIII., pp. 578 et seq.

(g) See also title PRACTICE AND PROCEDURE, Vol. XXIII., p. 183. As to costs in county court actions where a solicitor is not employed, see title COUNTY COURTS, Vol. VIII., p. 583; as to costs as between solicitor and client, see ibid., p. 585.

(h) See pp. 728 et seq., ante.

(i) See pp. 760 et seq., ante.

(j) See pp. 765 et seq., ante.

(k) See ibid. As to special agreements as to remuneration, see pp. 770 et seq., ante.

(l) As to party and party costs, see pp. 799 et seq., post.

(m) See pp. 774, 775, ante.

SECT. 5. What Costs Allowed on Taxation.

nature, and such as would not be incurred in the matter by a solicitor in the ordinary course of conducting a business of the kind on behalf of his client, the solicitor cannot recover these items unless he has protected himself by taking his client's express authority to incur them (n). Moreover, where costs have been incurred improperly or without any reasonable cause, or where there has been misconduct or default on the part of the solicitor by reason of which the costs, although properly incurred, have proved fruitless to the client, such costs may be disallowed (o).

Trustees and personal representatives.

1309. The court has power by a special order to award costs as between solicitor and client to a successful party where it is exercising its equitable jurisdiction (p), but not where it is exercising its ordinary common law jurisdiction (q). This power is discretionary, and the court may either itself allow or direct the taxing master to allow costs as between solicitor and client wherever the court on special grounds may consider it right and proper to do so (a).

Such orders are usually made in favour of trustees (b) and personal representatives (c).

(n) Re Harrison (1886), 33 Ch. D. 52, C. A.; Re Blyth and Fanshawe (1882), 10 Q. B. D. 207, applied in Re Broad and Broad (1885), 15 Q. B. D. 420, C. A., and in Re Roney & Co. (1913), 49 L. J. 34, C. A.; Foy v. Cooper (1842), 2 Q. B. 937; Lynch to Chance (1892), 30 L. R. Ir. 278, C. A.; Re Evans, Ex parte Brown (1887), 35 W. R. 546; Re Barnhill (1893), 29 L. R. Ir. 399 (where the court held that for the allowance of costs disallowed on a prior party and party taxation, the client's authority ought to be produced or valid reasons shown, arising from the importance of the case or otherwise, why the expenses were incurred; it is very doubtful, however, whether this would be followed in England). The authority given by the client must be regarded as qualified by the discretion in the taxing master to disallow (Donnelly v. Malone (1913), 47 I. L. T. 208).

(o) R. S. C., Ord. 65, r. 11; Re X., a Solicitor (1886), 54 L. T. 634; Potts v. Dutton (1845), 8 Beav. 493; Langford (Lady) v. Mahony (1845), 3 Jo. & Lat. 97; Re Clark (1851), 1 De G. M. &. G. 43, C. A.; Re Massey and Carey (1884), 26 Ch. D. 459, C. A. As to a solicitor being ordered to pay costs personally, see pp. 832 et seq., post; title MALICIOUS PROSECUTION AND PROCEDURE, Vol. XIX., p. 673, note (s).

(p) Andrews v. Barnes (1888), 39 Ch. D. 133, C. A., approving Mordue v. Palmer (1870), 6 Ch. App. 22; Eady v. Elsdon, [1901] 2 K. B. 460, C. A.; Brown v. Burdett (1888), 40 Ch. D. 244, C. A.; Re Brown (1867), L. R. 4 Eq. 464; Johnson v. Telford (1827), 3 Russ. 477; Re Davies, Jenkins v. Davies (1891), 64 L. T. 824; Re Medland, Eland v. Medland (1889), 41 Ch. D. 476, C. A.

(q) A plaintiff in an action of tort can only be awarded party and party costs (Cockburn v. Edwards (1881), 18 Ch. D. 449, C. A.), and the difference between solicitor and client costs and party and party costs cannot be awarded as damages (Harrison v. McSheehan, [1885] W. N. 207). An action may, however, be settled on the terms that one of the parties is to have costs as between solicitor and client (Young v. Walker (1847), 16 M. & W. 446).

(a) Re Bradshaw, Bradshaw v. Bradshaw, [1902] 1 Ch. 436.

(b) Dodds v. Duke (1884), 25 Ch. D. 617; Re Turner, Wood v. Turner, [1907] 2 Ch. 126, 133, C. A.; Re Love, Hill v. Spurgeon (1885), 29 Ch. D. 348, C. A.; Williams v. Wight, [1890] W. N. 50; Turner v. Hancock (1882), 20 Ch. D. 303, C. A.; Re Barne, Lee v. Barne (1890), 62 L. T. 922; Re Beddoe, Downes v. Cottam, [1893] 1 Ch. 547, C. A.; Brown v. Burdett (1888), (c) For note (c) see p. 799, post.

SECT. 5. WHAT COSTS ALLOWED ON TAXATION.

1310. Where in an action brought against a public authority the plaintiff proceeds after tender of amends or payment into court, and does not recover more than the amount tendered or paid into court, the defendants are, unless good cause exists for depriving them of the costs (d), entitled to costs as between solicitor and client as from the date of the tender or payment in (e). In proceedings relating to the opposition to the grant of a patent, the Comptroller may award to any party such costs as he may consider reasonable, which would include costs as between solicitor and client (f). A defendant who in an action of infringement of a patent is granted a certificate of validity is in a subsequent action entitled to solicitor and client costs unless deprived of them by the court's order (g).

Actions against public authorities.

Patent actions.

Where the client has received costs from the opposite party, it is the proper course for his solicitor to include the details of such costs in his solicitor and client bill (h).

SUB-SECT. 3.—Costs as between Party and Party.

1311. All costs ordered to be paid in an action ought to be taxed as between party and party (i), unless in the order there are qualifying words directing that they are to be allowed in any other manner (j).

Party and party costs.

40 Ch. D. 244, 260, C. A.; Allen v. Jarvis (1869), 4 Ch. App. 616; Re Brown (1867), L. R. 4 Eq. 464; Johnson v. Telford (1827), 3 Russ. 477. The real as well as the personal estate is liable to pay costs (Re Vickerstaff, Vickerstaff v. Chadwick, [1906] 1 Ch. 762); see title TRUSTS AND TRUSTEES.

(c) Re Griffiths, Jones v. Owen (1904), 90 L. T. 639; see title EXECUTORS AND ADMINISTRATORS, Vol. XIV., p. 352.

(d) East v. Berkshire County Council (1911), 106 L. T. 65.

(e) Public Authorities Protection Act, 1893 (56 & 57 Vict. c. 61), s. 1 (c); see title PUBLIC AUTHORITIES AND PUBLIC OFFICERS, Vol. XXIII., pp. 339 et seq. But if the plaintiff takes the money out of court and discontinues, the defendants are only entitled to party and party costs from the date of payment in (Smith v. Northleach Rural Council, [1902] 1 Ch. 197). As to the taxation of solicitors' bills chargeable to the council, see title LOCAL GOVERNMENT, Vol. XIX., pp. 288, 289; and as to costs in an action against a corporate officer, see ibid., p. 327.

(f) Patents and Designs Act, 1907 (7 Edw. 7, c. 29), s. 39 (1); see title PATENTS AND INVENTIONS, Vol. XXII., p. 178, note (f). As to costs in infringement actions, see ibid., pp. 225, 226.

(g) Patents and Designs Act, 1907 (7 Edw. 7, c. 29), s. 35; see title PATENTS AND INVENTIONS, Vol. XXII., pp. 225, 226. As to collusive or vexatious actions, see Davenport v. Rylands (1865), L. R. 1 Eq. 302, 309; Proctor v. Sutton Lodge Chemical Co. (1888), 5 R. P. C. 142.

(h) Re Osborn and Osborn, [1913] 3 K. B. 862, C A.

(i) For the regulations governing the taxation of costs as between party and party, see R. S. C., Ord. 65, r. 27 (1)—(58); and Masters' Practice Notes, 1902 (Yearly Practice of the Supreme Court, 1914, pp. 2147 et seq.). As to the amounts to be allowed in respect of particular items, see R. S. C., Appendix N. The present title, on the question of costs, deals comprehensively with the general principles governing taxation, but mere questions of amount and matters of detail in respect of the particular items allowable fall outside its scope. They are, however, dealt with exhaustively in the Yearly Practice of the Supreme Court, 1914. As to costs as between party and party in county courts, see title COUNTY COURTS, Vol. VIII., pp. 583, 584; as to costs in divorce matters, see title HUSBAND AND WIFE, Vol. XVI., pp. 547 et seq.

(j) Re Bradshaw, Bradshaw v. Bradshaw, [1902] 1 Ch. 436. In certain cases it has been provided by Masters' Regulations that fixed costs are to be allowed (see title PRACTICE AND PROCEDURE, Vol. XXIII., pp. 176 et seq.), as, for instance, in cases under R. S. C., Ord. 14 (Masters' Resolu-

SECT. 5. What Costs Allowed on Taxation.

The proper principle upon which party and party costs should be taxed is that the successful party should have an indemnity against costs reasonably incurred in prosecuting or defending the action (k). This principle is, however, subject to the allowance being limited by the charges set forth in the lower scale of charges (l).

Discretion of taxing master.

Where, however, the taxing master has a discretion as to amount, he may allow such amounts as may appear to him to be proper to be paid for the attainment of justice or for defending the rights of any party, though he is precluded from allowing against an adverse party any costs which appear to him to have been incurred or increased through over-caution, negligence, or mistake, or by payment of special fees to counsel, or special charges or expenses to witnesses or other persons, or by other unusual expenses (m). The effect of this latitude is to give the master a very wide margin in the allowance of amount in discretionary items (n), and where he bonâ fide exercises his discretion and does not err in the principle of allowance, the court will not as a rule interfere on appeal, particularly on the question of quantum of allowance (o).

Special allowances.

1312. The taxing master may make special allowances for the preparation of special indorsements, special cases, pleadings, answers tions, May, 1906, see Yearly Practice of the Supreme Court, 1914, p. 2145), garnishee cases (Masters' Resolutions, 1911, see ibid., p. 687), and cases where the defendant fails to appear (Masters' scale issued in May, 1906, see ibid., p. 2144; and see Armitage v. Parsons, [1908] 2 K. B. 410, C. A.). If an action or petition is dismissed, or motion refused, with costs, the taxing master may tax such costs without an order, unless the court or a judge prohibits the taxation (R. S. C., Ord. 65, r. 27 (33); Gosnell v. Bishop (1888), 38 Ch. D. 385). As to the power of the court to deal with costs in an action, see title PRACTICE AND PROCEDURE, Vol. XXIII., pp. 176 et seq.

(k) Richardson v. Richardson, [1895] P. 346, C. A.; Carson v. Pickersgill & Sons (1885), 14 Q. B. D. 859, C. A., per BRETT, M.R., at p. 868; Picasso v. Maryport Harbour Trustees, [1884] W. N. 85; and see Smith v. Buller (1875), L. R. 19 Eq. 473; as to costs in an action for breach of covenant, see title LANDLORD AND TENANT, Vol. XVIII., pp. 542, 544.

(l) R. S. C., Appendix N; Price v. Clinton, [1906] 2 Ch. 487. As to the higher and lower scales, see p. 768, ante; as to costs where the Crown is a party, see title CONSTITUTIONAL LAW, Vol. VI., p. 412.

(m) R. S. C., Ord. 65, r. 27 (29); Re Broad and Broad (1885), 1 T. L. R. 653, C. A..

(n) This regulation gives the master power to increase but not to decrease the items set out in R. S. C., Appendix N (Price v. Clinton, [1906] 2 Ch. 487; Re Burroughs, Wellcome & Co.'s Trade Marks (1904), 22 R. P. C. 164; Bartlett v. Higgins, [1901] 2 K. B. 230, C. A.). It does not abolish the distinction between solicitor and client and party and party costs (Re Bradshaw, Bradshaw v. Bradshaw, [1902] 1 Ch. 436). The items mentioned in R. S. C., Appendix N, may be increased by the taxing master in the following cases, namely:—Instructions for originating summons (Re Ermen, Tatham v. Ermen, [1903] 2 Ch. 156); attending on examination of witness before an examiner (McIver & Co., Ltd. v. Tate Steamers, Ltd., [1902] 2 K. B. 184, C. A.); daily refreshers to counsel (Stewart & Co. v. Weber (1903), 19 T. L. R. 722; Cavendish v. Strutt, [1904] 1 Ch. 524); taking evidence before trial (Bartlett v. Higgins, supra; Delaroque v. S.S. Oxenholme & Co., [1883] W. N. 227); fees to counsel to view (Leeds Forge Co., Ltd. v. Deighton's Patent Flue and Tube Co., Ltd., [1903] 1 Ch. 475); settling a special case for appeal in the Revenue Paper (Manchester Corporation v. Sugden, Gresham Life Assurance Society v. Bishop, [1903] 2 K. B. 171, C. A.).

(o) See p. 796, ante.

to interrogatories, and other special affidavits and admissions in lieu of the scale allowances for instructions and preparing or drawing (p). He may also, if on special grounds he considers the fees set forth in the scale for instructions for and preparing briefs inadequate, increase them as he may consider reasonable (q).

A reasonable allowance in excess of the scale charge may be made for an affidavit to be sworn by several deponents or at a distance (r).

Delivery of pleadings etc.

The fees for delivery of pleadings, services and notices do not apply where both parties are represented by the same solicitor unless an affidavit of service is required (s). Where two or more defendants (t) are represented by the same solicitor (u) and deliver separate pleadings, the taxing master must consider whether such separate pleadings are necessary (a); if he thinks they are not, he is to disallow them, both as between solicitor and client and as between party and party (b).

Evidence.

Such just and reasonable charges are to be allowed for procuring evidence (c) and the attendance of witnesses (d) as in the opinion of the taxing master have been properly incurred (e).

(p) R. S. C., Ord. 65, r. 27 (1). As to instructions, see Re Burroughs, Wellcome & Co.'s Trade Marks (1904), 22 R. P. C. 164; Re Anglo-Austrian Printing and Publishing Union, [1894] 2 Ch. 622; S. v. K. (1886), 30 Sol. Jo. 220; as to attendances, Re Mahon, [1893] 1 Ch. 507, 514, C. A.; Re Bray Electric Tramway (1889), 23 L. R. Ir. 116; Lynch to Chance (1892), 30 L. R. Ir. 278, C. A.). As to the costs of amendment, see R. S. C., Ord. 65, r. 27 (31), (32); Nottage v. Jackson (1883), 11 Q. B. D. 627, C. A.

(q) R. S. C., Ord. 65, r. 27 (3). This is probably the most elastic item in the whole scale. The fee for instructions may range from 1 guinea to 1,000 guineas, according to the magnitude and importance of the case; see Turnbull v. Janson (1878), 3 C. P. D. 264; Re Craven's Settlement (1889), 6 T. L. R. 105. The taxing master's discretion is not subject to review unless he has acted on a wrong principle (Carter v. Apfel (1912), 57 Sol. Jo. 97).

(r) R. S. C., Ord. 65, r. 27 (4); How v. Winterton (Earl) (No. 4) (1905), 91 L. T. 763.

(s) R. S. C., Ord. 65, r. 27 (6).

(t) This does not apply to several actions brought against the same defendant for the same or a similar object (Grieb's Case (1890), 45 Ch. D. 606).

(u) As between themselves, each defendant is chargeable only with his proportion of the costs (Re Colquhoun, Ex parte Ford (1854), 5 De G. M. & G. 35; Beaumont v. Senior, [1903] 1 K. B. 282).

(a) A defendant severing his defence ought to have an opportunity of explaining why he did so (Re Isaac, Cronbach v. Isaac, [1897] 1 Ch. 251, C. A.).

(b) R. S. C., Ord. 65, r. 27 (7). No appeal lies against his decision unless he has failed to exercise his discretion at all (Boswell v. Coaks (1887), 36 Ch. D. 444, C. A.).

(c) Re Catlin (1854), 18 Beav. 508, 510 (bills of costs); Great Eastern Rail. Co. v. Norwich and Spalding Rail. Co., [1881] W. N. 92 (co-defendant's pleadings); Wentworth v. Lloyd (1866), L. R. 2 Eq. 607 (perusal of depositions taken abroad); Re de Rosaz, Rymer v. de Rosaz (1883), 24 Ch. D. 684 (exhibits); Betts v. Cleaver (1872), 7 Ch. App. 513 (affidavits of documents).

(d) Conduct money is to be allowed unless paid prematurely (Carter v. Apfel, supra). The scale of allowances in use is that issued in Hilary Term, 1853, under the Common Law Procedure Act, 1852 (15 & 16 Vict.

(e) For note (e) see p. 802, post.

SECT. 5. What Costs Allowed on Taxation.

Agency cases.

1313. In country agency cases the taxing master may make a special allowance in respect of any special or extensive correspondence between the country solicitor and his London agent (f). He may also make a special allowance for the attendance of the country

c. 76). This is put under two heads, namely: (i.) those who reside in the town where the action is tried; and (ii.) those who reside at a distance from it; thus common witnesses receive from 5*s.* to 7*s.* 6*d.*; tradesmen, farmers etc., from 7*s.* 6*d.* to 15*s.*; professional men, 21*s.*; solicitors' and others' clerks, 10*s.* 6*d.* to 21*s.*; engineers, surveyors and notaries, 21*s.* to 63*s.*; gentlemen, bankers, merchants etc., 21*s.* first day and reasonable expenses after; females (according to station in life), 5*s.* to 20*s.*; police inspectors, 5*s.* to 10*s.*; and police constables, 3*s.* to 7*s.* 6*d.* Reasonable travelling expenses may be allowed in addition (Hunter v. Liddell (1851), 16 Q. B. 402; Vice v. Anson (Dowager Viscountess) (1827), 3 C. & P. 19; Re Working Men's Mutual Society (1882), 21 Ch. D. 831; Wiltshire v. Marshall, [1866] W. N. 80). Hotel expenses are in the discretion of the taxing master (East Stonehouse Local Board v. Victoria Brewery Co., [1895] 2 Ch. 514; Briggs & Co. v. Gaylord (1894), 97 L. T. Jo. 389 (county court)). Parties to an action are not allowed conduct money, but are entitled to the same allowance as witnesses of the same class for their travelling and hotel expenses (Dowdell v. Australian Royal Mail Steam Navigation Co. (1854), 3 E. & B. 902; Howes v. Barber (1852), 18 Q. B. 588). Foreign witnesses may be allowed compensation for loss of time where brought to or detained in England to give evidence; see Lonergan v. Royal Exchange Assurance (1831), 7 Bing. 729; Tremain v. Barrett (1815), 6 Taunt. 88; Lopes v. de Tastet (1822), 7 Moore (C. P.), 120; Picasso v. Maryport Harbour Trustees, [1884] W. N. 85; The City of Lucknow (1884), 51 L. T. 907. A witness subpœnaed by both sides is entitled to be paid all his expenses by the party who puts him into the witness box at the trial (Allen v. Yoxall (1844), 1 Car. & Kir. 315), but not by both (Hale v. Bates (1858), E. B. & E. 575, 581). Where a witness gives evidence on more than one issue and a party is by the judgment given costs of only one issue, he is not entitled to costs of any witnesses who did not give evidence on the issue on which he succeeded exclusively (Brown v. Houston, [1901] 2 K. B. 855, C. A.; Harrison v. Bush (1855), 5 E. & B. 344). As to the number of days' attendance allowable, see Railways Commissioner v. O'Rourke, [1896] A. C. 594, P. C.; Fryer v. Sturt (1855), 16 C. B. 218. Scientific witnesses may be allowed such sum for qualifying as the master in his absolute discretion thinks fit; see Ashworth v. English Card Clothing Co., Ltd. (No. 1), [1904] 1 Ch. 702; Smith v. Buller (1875), L. R. 19 Eq. 473; Batley v. Kynock (1875), 20 Eq. 632; Re Laffitte (Charles) & Co., Ltd., Laffitte's Claim (1875), L. R. 20 Eq. 650. As to the number of witnesses who will be allowed for qualifying (usually not more than two), see Leonhardt v. Kalle, [1895] W. N. 97 (where three chemists were allowed); Stanger Leathes v. Stanger Leathes, [1879] W. N. 86; but the master ought to have evidence showing how their qualifying fee is justified (Thompson v. Moore (1890), 25 L. R. Ir. 98). Costs of bringing inanimate evidence into court (e.g., a broken wheel or piece of machinery) are proper to be allowed (Mackley v. Chillingworth (1877), 2 C. P. D. 273, 279). Costs of employing interpreters to translate the evidence of foreign witnesses are proper to be allowed (Shrewsbury (Earl) v. Trappes (1862), 10 W. R. 663). Witnesses may recover their fees for attendance from the party serving them with subpœnas (Collins v. Godefroy (1831), 1 B. & Ad. 950; Chamberlain v. Stoneham (1889), 24 Q. B. D. 113 (bankruptcy); but see Re Working Men's Mutual Society, supra). As to the expenses of witnesses generally, see title EVIDENCE, Vol. XIII., pp. 583 et seq.

(e) R. S. C., Ord. 65, r. 27 (9). The expenses of procuring evidence may be allowed to a defendant when the plaintiff discontinues (Windham v. Bainton (1888), 21 Q. B. D. 199; compare Bright's Trustee v. Sellar, [1904] 1 Ch. 369).

(f) R. S. C., Ord. 65, r. 27 (10). As to the relation between the country solicitor and the London agent, see, further, pp. 844 et seq., post.

solicitor at the trial (g) in London, provided that the case is exceptional, and the country solicitor's attendance is necessary on account of his personal knowledge of the case (h) or on account of the nature of the case (i).

Attendances.

1314. For attendances before a registrar in the Chancery Division for the purpose of settling and passing judgments or orders, the taxing master may make a special allowance, if the registrar has certified (j) that a special allowance ought to be made on account of the special nature, unusual length or difficulty of the judgment or order in question (k). For attendances before the judge or master in chambers the usual fee is 6*s*. 8*d*., or, according to circumstances, not to exceed £1 1*s*. (l). Where the attendance is lengthy, or the case difficult, the taxing master may allow up to £2 2*s*. (lower scale), or £3 3*s*. (higher scale), and in company cases £5 5*s*. In very special cases the judge may by memorandum signed by him and stating his grounds allow up to £10 10*s*. (m).

Failure to attend.

Where a solicitor fails to attend an appointment at judges' chambers, or where by reason of his not having the necessary evidence or not being properly prepared to proceed the appointment becomes abortive, the client or his solicitor personally may be ordered to pay the costs of such appointment, and may be deprived of his own costs of the same against any other party or a fund (n).

Counsel's fees.

1315. The taxing master may allow such fees to counsel for advice (o) or settling pleadings and other documents (p) as in his discretion he may think fit (q); but no additional fees are allowed for conferences, unless the taxing master is of opinion that for some

(g) In McIver & Co., Ltd. v. Tate Steamers, Ltd., [1902] 2 K. B. 184, C. A., attendance before an examiner of the court was allowed. In Perry & Co. v. Hessin & Co. (1913), 108 L. T. 332, attendance on trial for passing-off action was disallowed.

(h) The Soto, [1893] P. 73, considering Bell v. Aitkin (1868), L. R. 3 C. P. 320, Potter v. Rankin (1868), L. R. 4 C. P. 76, Re Snell (a Solicitor) (1877), 5 Ch. D. 815, C. A., Re Foster, Ex parte Dickens (1878), 8 Ch. D. 598, Re Sherwell, Ex parte Snow, [1879] W. N. 22, and Re Storer (1884), 26 Ch. D. 189.

(i) Re Dixon, Tousey v. Sheffield, [1898] 2 Ch. 443, C. A. (fraud and personal misconduct). If allowance is made for the country solicitor's attendance, no allowance is made for the London agent's attendance (Masters' Practice Notes, 1902; see Yearly Practice of the Supreme Court, 1914, pp. 2147 et seq.).

(j) Under R. S. C., Ord. 62, r. 15.

(k) Ibid., Ord. 65, r. 27 (11).

(l) Ibid., Appendix N, Nos. 150, 151.

(m) Ibid., Ord. 65, r. 27 (12).

(n) Ibid., r. 27 (13); compare title MALICIOUS PROSECUTION AND PROCEDURE, Vol. XIX., p. 673, note (s). As to disallowance of costs improperly incurred, see p. 800, ante.

(o) One fee to counsel to advise on evidence only is generally allowed, but in exceptional circumstances a second fee may be allowed (Wicksteed v. Biggs (1885), 54 L. J. (CH.) 967). Originals of important documents should not be laid before counsel, and the cost of preparing copies is allowed (Re Beamish's Trusts (1871), 19 W. R. 740; compare Stephens v. Newborough (Lord) (1848), 11 Beav. 403).

(p) Including indorsement on writ (Tisdall v. Richardson (1887), 20 L. R. Ir. 199), or notice of appeal (Re Bailey, Bailey v. Bailey, [1909] W. N. 110).

(q) R. S. C., Ord. 65, r. 27 (15); A.-G. v. Carrington (Lord) (1843), 6 Beav. 454; Parkinson v. Hanbury (1865), 11 Jur. (N. S.) 474.

SECT. 5. What Costs Allowed on Taxation.

special reason a conference was proper (r). The attendance of counsel at chambers is not allowed, unless the case is certified as fit for counsel (s). Where not more than £50 is recovered in an action of contract, the costs of briefing one counsel only are as a general rule allowed (t). In other cases the taxing master has a discretion as to allowing the costs of briefing two counsel (a) and as to allowing fees for consultations (b) and refreshers (c). No (r) R. S. C., Ord. 65, r. 27 (45); Re Harrison (1886), 33 Ch. D. 52, C. A.; Hanwell Local Board v. Wenham (1892), 36 Sol. Jo. 743; Re Anglo-Austrian Printing and Publishing Union, [1894] 2 Ch. 622; Railways Commissioner v. O'Rourke, [1896] A. C. 594, P. C.

(s) R. S. C., Ord. 65, r. 27 (16). This rule applies also to taxations between solicitor and client (Re Chapman (1882), 10 Q. B. D. 54, C. A.).

(t) R. S. C., Ord. 65, r. 27 (46).

(a) Wheeler v. Fradd (1898), 14 T. L. R. 440, C. A.; Friend v. Solly (1847), 10 Beav. 329; Benton v. Ellis, Lever & Co. (1885), 1 T. L. R. 499; Drew v. Josolyne (1888), 4 T. L. R. 717; Orient Steam Navigation Co. v. Ocean Marine Insurance Co. (1887), 3 T. L. R. 778; Re Webb's Estate, Webb v. Jones (1873), 28 L. T. 726). As a rule two counsel should be allowed in a contested case in the High Court (Llanover v. Homfray, [1884] W. N. 134), but three counsel should not be allowed unless the taxing master is of opinion that a prudent man acting with ordinary prudence would not have ventured to go into court with less than three (Kirkwood v. Webster (1878), 9 Ch. D. 239, 242). There must, however, be special complications in the case (Peel v. London and North Western Rail. Co. (No. 2), [1907] 1 Ch. 607; Great Western Railway v. Carpalla United China Clay Co., Ltd. (No. 2), [1910] A. C. 83; The Mammoth (1884), 9 P. D. 126; Re Cathcart, [1893] W. N. 107, C. A.; Re Anglo-Austrian Printing and Publishing Union (1894), 71 L. T. 331; Hartopp v. Hartopp and Cowley (1904), 20 T. L. R. 216, C. A.). It is not sufficient that the case took a long time (Denaby and Cadeby Main Collieries v. Yorkshire Miners' Association (1907), 23 T. L. R. 635, C. A.; Dyer v. London School Board (1903), 19 T. L. R. 413; Perry & Co. v. Hessin & Co. (1913), 108 L. T. 332), or involved a large amount of scientific evidence (A.-G. v. Birmingham, etc. Drainage Board (1908), 52 Sol. Jo. 855). The costs of three counsel are not allowed as between solicitor and client (Downing College Case (1838), 3 My. & Cr. 474; compare A.-G. v. Vigors (1838), 2 Jur. 508), unless the solicitor pointed out to the client that they would not be allowed on taxation against the opposite party (Re Broad and Broad (1885), 15 Q. B. D. 420, C. A.). If judgment is given in the same sittings as the case was tried, a fee to counsel to hear judgment will not generally be allowed (Re Biss, Biss v. Biss, [1903] 2 Ch. 40, C. A.; but see Taxing Masters' Regulations, 1902, No. 39). Crown counsel's fees may be allowed against an unsuccessful party, although such counsel may be paid by salary (Lord Advocate v. Stewart (No. 2) (1899), 63 J. P. 473). No fee to counsel is allowed unless vouched by his signature (R. S. C., Ord. 65, r. 27 (52)), and the receipt if for over £2 must be stamped (General Council of the Bar (England) v. Inland Revenue Commissioners, [1907] 1 K. B. 462). No attendance on counsel can be allowed unless a fee is paid to him (Re Catlin (1854), 18 Beav. 508, 516). In county court cases fees to two counsel cannot be allowed, except where specially provided for by the rules (Bates v. Gordon Hotels, Ltd., [1913] 1 K. B. 631); see title COUNTY COURTS, Vol. VIII., p. 594. As to counsel's fees, see, further, title BARRISTERS, Vol. II., pp. 418 et seq.

(b) Re Harrison (1886), 33 Ch. D. 52, C. A.; Railways Commissioner v. O'Rourke, supra; compare Forster v. Davies (1863), 32 Beav. 624.

(c) R. S. C., Ord. 65, r. 27 (48). The usual refresher fees, namely, from five to ten guineas per day to the leading counsel, and from three to seven guineas to the second counsel, are payable when the trial lasts more than five hours (ibid.). The taxing master may allow larger fees, in special circumstances, between solicitor and client (ibid.), and even, at his costs will be allowed where the brief was delivered prematurely, if the case subsequently does not come on for trial (d).

Inspection of documents.

1316. The costs of inspection of documents may be allowed if the taxing master is satisfied that there were good reasons for making the inspection (e). Copies of documents to be supplied between solicitors are to be charged at 4*d*. per folio; but if the copy is refused by the solicitor in whose possession the document is, the solicitor requiring it may make the copy himself without making any payment (f).

Vexatious and unnecessary proceedings.

1317. The court may, on the hearing of any action or matter or upon any application or proceedings either in court or in chambers, disallow the costs of any vexatious or unnecessary (g) step or discretion, between party and party (Stewart & Co. v. Weber (1903), 19 T. L. R. 722; Cavendish v. Strutt, [1904] 1 Ch. 524). Refreshers, although within the rule, may be disallowed at the master's discretion (Smith v. Wills (1885), 34 W. R. 30; Macleod v. Thrupp (1892), 37 Sol. Jo. 31). The five hours may be distributed between the first and subsequent days (Boswell v. Coaks (1887), 36 Ch. D. 444, 450, C. A.; O'Hara, Matthews & Co. v. Elliott & Co., [1893] 1 Q. B. 362; The Courier, [1891] P. 355; The Hestia, [1895] W. N. 100; Wicksteed v. Biggs (1885), 52 L. T. 428; Dunning v. Grosvenor Dairies, Ltd., [1901] W. N. 218). As to allowance in the Court of Appeal, see Easton v. London Joint Stock Bank (1888), 38 Ch. D. 25, C. A.; Svendsen v. Wallace (1885), 16 Q. B. D. 27; Edgington v. Fitzmaurice (1885), 33 W. R. 911, 913, C. A. Term refreshers may be allowed where the case has been in the daily list of the term previous to that in which it is tried (Levetus v. Newton (1883), 28 Sol. Jo. 166). See also Masters' Practice Notes, 1902 (Yearly Practice of the Supreme Court, 1914, pp. 2147 et seq.).

(d) R. S. C., Ord. 65, r. 27 (49); Harrison v. Leutner (1881), 16 Ch. D. 559; Whiteley Exerciser, Ltd. v. Gamage, [1898] 2 Ch. 405. The rule is to allow items relating to getting up evidence and preparation of brief after notice of trial has been given (Windham v. Bainton (1888), 21 Q. B. D. 199). It depends upon the nature of the action how long the brief should be delivered beforehand (Thomas v. Palin (1882), 21 Ch. D. 360, C. A.).

(e) R. S. C., Ord. 65, r. 27 (17) (a). Where parties for their own convenience desire to produce their documents out of London, it should be at their expense (Prestney v. Colchester Corporation (1883), 24 Ch. D. 376, C. A.). The costs incident to the inspection of a locus in quo may be allowed on taxation, but it is desirable to obtain an order for it and to ask for the costs to be provided for in such order (Mitchell v. Darley Main Colliery Co. (1883), 10 Q. B. D. 457; Ashworth v. English Card Clothing Co., Ltd. (No. 1), [1904] 1 Ch. 702). Where an inspection of books is made under the Bankers' Books Evidence Act, 1879 (42 & 43 Vict. c. 11), the order should provide for the costs.

(f) R. S. C., Ord. 65, r. 27 (18). Formerly, the party inspecting was not bound to employ the party holding to make the copy for him (Ormerod, Grierson & Co. v. St. George's Ironworks, Ltd., [1905] 1 Ch. 505, C. A.); but where the inspection takes place under an order the form of order now provides otherwise; see R. S. C., Appendix K, No. 18. Printed copies of pleadings, notices, special cases, petitions of right, depositions, or affidavits, required to be printed (see title PRACTICE AND PROCEDURE, Vol. XXIII., p. 141, note (o)) must be supplied to the solicitor acting for the other parties at 1*d*. per folio for the first copy and ½*d*. per folio for other copies; not more than ten copies need be supplied (R. S. C., Ord. 66, r. 7 (i.)). Carbon copies, if legible, are only charged 2*d*. per folio (Masters' Practice Notes, 1902, see Yearly Practice of the Supreme Court, 1914, p. 2151); as to lithographed and printed copies, see ibid. Typewritten copies, produced several at a time by means of a duplicator, cannot be charged for as separately written (Re Morse, Ex parte Latimer, Clarke, Muirhead & Co., Ltd. (1891), 65 L. T. 552, C. A.).

(g) Because particular evidence provided for the trial is not used, it proceeding in the action, or the costs or part of the costs of any document which is of unnecessary (h) length or which contains vexatious or unnecessary matter, or any costs incurred or caused by misconduct or negligence (i), and may direct the taxing master to look into and disallow such costs; even if the court does not exercise this power, it is the taxing master's duty to look into and disallow such costs (k).

SECT. 5. What Costs Allowed on Taxation.

Set-off.

1318. Where a party entitled to costs is ordered to pay costs to his opponent in an action, the taxing master may set the one bill off against the other and give his allocatur for the balance, or he may postpone giving his allocatur until the party who has been ordered to pay costs, but has failed to do so, has paid or provided for the same (l).

Taxation in case of difference.

1319. Where an order is made for taxation of costs in case the parties differ, the party to whom they are payable must carry them into the taxing office for taxation and give notice to the other side, who may inspect them and agree or object to them within eight days. If he objects, he may tender a sum in satisfaction; and if this sum is not accepted and a taxation follows which results in no more being allowed, the costs of taxation will fall upon the party claiming the costs (m).

Discretionary fees.

1320. Discretionary fees are allowed at the discretion of the taxing master, who in exercising it must be guided by any other allowances in respect of the same work, the importance of the matter and its nature, the amount involved, the interest of the parties, the general cost and conduct of the proceedings and all other circumstances; and a fixed sum for the costs of the judgment may be allowed (n). Where costs have in the taxing master's does not follow that it is "unnecessary" under this rule (Delaroque v. S.S. Oxenholme & Co., [1883] W. N. 227, 228). The test is whether the costs were unnecessary at the time they were incurred (Bartlett v. Higgins, [1901] 2 K. B. 230, C. A. (costs of evidence taken de bene esse, the witness being present at the trial)).

(h) Hill v. Hart-Davis (1884), 26 Ch. D. 470, C. A.

(i) Re Massey and Carey (1884), 26 Ch. D. 459, C. A.; but see The Papa de Rossie (1878), 3 P. D. 160. As to the solicitor's liability to an action for negligence, see pp. 754 et seq., ante.

(k) R. S. C., Ord. 65, r. 27 (20); Baines v. Wormsley (1878), 47 L. J. (CH.) 844; Cracknall v. Janson (1879), 11 Ch. D. 1, C. A. As to the costs of particulars of objection in a patent action where no certificate has been given under the Patents and Designs Act, 1907 (7 Edw. 7, c. 29), s. 29 (6), see Garrard v. Edge (1890), 44 Ch. D. 224, C. A.

(l) R. S. C., Ord. 65, r. 27 (21); Re Crawshay, Dennis v. Crawshay (1890), 45 Ch. D. 318, C. A.; Re Bassett, Ex parte Lewis, [1896] 1 Q. B. 219. There can be no set-off between costs in the High Court and those in the county court (Barker v. Hemming (1880), 5 Q. B. D. 609, C. A.; Hassell v. Stanley, [1896] 1 Ch. 607; David v. Rees, [1904] 2 K. B. 435, C. A.; Bake v. French, [1907] 1 Ch. 428). As to set-off generally, see title SET-OFF AND COUNTERCLAIM, Vol. XXV., pp. 484 et seq.

(m) R. S. C., Ord. 65, r. 27 (34).

(n) Ibid., r. 27 (38); Re Dale, Stubbs v. Dale (1889), 62 L. T. 28; MacGuare v. Milligan, [1903] 1 Ch. 145; Re Ames, Ames v. Taylor (1883), 25 Ch. D. 72; Re Chapple, Newton v. Chapman (1884), 27 Ch. D. 584. As to fixed costs, see note (j), p. 799, ante; Flatau v. Cullen (1899), 81 L. T.

opinion been increased by unnecessary delay, unnecessary proceedings, misconduct or negligence, he may allow a proportionate lump sum according to the importance of the matter in dispute in lieu of item charges, and his allowance may be reviewed by the judge as in the case of an ordinary taxation (o).

SUB-SECT. 4.—Costs Regulated by Statute.

Double and treble costs.

1321. Where, under any statute (p), the successful party is entitled to receive double or treble costs, he is only entitled, in the case of local and personal Acts, to party and party costs (q), and in the case of actions to which the Public Authorities Protection Act, 1893 (r), applies, to costs as between solicitor and client (s). Such costs are not subject to the discretion of the judge or to the provisions of the County Courts Act, 1888 (t); hence the successful plaintiff is entitled to them as of right, even though he may recover less than £10 (u).

SUB-SECT. 5.—Costs of Taxation.

Party and party taxation.

1322. In party and party taxations (v), the costs of drawing and fair copying the bill and attending and completing the taxation form part of the costs which are payable by the party against whom the costs are being taxed, unless they are forfeited by reason of a failure to leave the bill after notice to do so or delay in proceeding with the taxation (w), or unless, where the costs are to be paid out of a 402, C. A., where £1 for costs of substituted service of writ was held not to be justified.

(o) R. S. C., Ord. 65, r. 27 (38A). As to the principles upon which the master should act, see Williams v. Dunphy, [1889] W. N. 188; Re Dale, Stubbs v. Dale (1889), 62 L. T. 28. The discretion must be exercised judicially and the special circumstances and reasons stated by him (Re Johnston, Mills v. Johnston, [1904] 1 Ch. 132).

(p) Thus, under the Prisons Act, 1865 (28 & 29 Vict. c. 126), s. 49, double costs are given to any person sued unsuccessfully for anything done under that Act. Formerly double costs were given by the Dramatic Copyright Act, 1833 (3 & 4 Will. 4, c. 15), s. 2, and the Lunacy Act, 1845 (8 & 9 Vict. c. 100), both of which are now repealed.

(q) Limitations of Actions and Costs Act, 1842 (5 & 6 Vict. c. 97), s. 1. The expression "full costs" used in any Act of Parliament means that the person who, but for the repealed statutes, would be entitled to them, is entitled instead to ordinary costs as between party and party (Avery v. Wood, [1891] 3 Ch. 115, C. A.; Irwine v. Reddish (1822), 5 B. & Ald. 796; Jamieson v. Trevelyan (1855), 10 Exch. 748; compare House Property Co. of London v. Whiteman, [1913] 2 K. B. 382, where, the action being brought in the county court, it was held that the costs were to be taxed on the county court scale, but that the plaintiffs were in addition entitled to be indemnified against all costs reasonably incurred in taking action, including the costs of taking counsel's opinion as to whether an action would lie).

(r) 56 & 57 Vict. c. 61.

(s) Ibid., s. 1, repealing, as regards such actions, the Limitations of Actions and Costs Act, 1842 (5 & 6 Vict. c 97), s. 2; see title PUBLIC AUTHORITIES AND PUBLIC OFFICERS, Vol. XXIII., p. 349.

(t) 51 & 52 Vict. c. 43.

(u) Reeve v. Gibson, [1891] 1 Q. B. 652, C. A.

(v) As to the costs of taxation of proceedings under the Lands Clauses Acts, see titles COMPULSORY PURCHASE OF LAND AND COMPENSATION, Vol. VI., pp. 113, 114.

(w) R. S. C., Ord. 65, rr. 19G, 27 (28), (55).

SECT. 5. What Costs Allowed on Taxation.

Solicitor and client taxation.

fund or estate or out of the assets of a company in liquidation, the total bill of charges and disbursements is reduced upon taxation by one-sixth (a).

1323. In solicitor and client taxations, at the instance of the client (b), or person who has paid or is liable to pay (c), or person interested (d), the costs of the reference to taxation depend upon whether one-sixth or less is taxed off the bill as delivered (e). If less than one-sixth is taxed off, the client pays these costs; if one-sixth or more, the solicitor pays them (f). The taxing master may, however, certify specially as to the circumstances, in which case the court may make such order as to the costs of taxation as it may think fit (g), and may deprive the solicitor of the costs of the taxation, although less than one-sixth has been taxed off (h), or allow

(a) R. S. C., Ord. 65, r. 27 (38B); Simmons v. Simmons (1895), 39 Sol. Jo. 673.

(b) See p. 781, ante.

(c) See pp. 782, 783, ante.

(d) See p. 784, ante.

(e) Solicitors Act, 1843 (6 & 7 Vict. c. 73), s. 37; Re Burn and Berridge (1908), 99 L. T. 606. But allowance must be made for items increased by the taxing master (R. v. Eastwood (1856), 6 E. & B. 285; Re Hartley (1856), 2 Jur. (N. S.) 448). As to the position where several bills delivered to the same client are taxed together, see May v. Biggenden, Cheesman v. May (1857), 24 Beav. 207. As to amendment of the bill as delivered, see p. 778, 779, ante. If the taxation takes place after action brought but before verdict, the client must, if anything is found due, pay the costs of the action (Re Hair (1848), 11 Beav. 96; compare Thomas v. Swansea Corporation (1843), 2 Dowl. (N. S.) 1003), though the solicitor must pay the costs of the taxation if more than one-sixth is taxed off (Ex parte Woollett (1844), 12 M. & W. 504; Higgins v. Woolcott (1826), 5 B. & C. 760; compare Featherstonehaugh v. Reen (1833), 1 Cr. & M. 495), the client being liable if less than one-sixth is taxed off (Wilson v. Knapp (1840), 8 Dowl. 426; Re Shaw (1851), 2 L. M. & P. 214). If, however, the reference to the taxing master is after verdict, the one-sixth principle does not, in the ordinary course, apply (Lumsden v. Shipcote Land Co., [1906] 2 K. B. 433, C. A.; see Re Hirst and Capes, Hirst and Capes v. Fox, [1908] 1 K. B. 982, 986, note (3), C. A.; compare Robinson v. Powell (1839), 5 M. & W. 479).

(f) This does not apply to taxation in bankruptcy (Re Marsh, Ex parte Marsh (1885), 15 Q. B. D. 340, C. A.), nor where the taxation takes place after the solicitor's death (Re Jackson, Ex parte Hammond (1839), 4 Deac. 48; compare Gale v. Pakington (1823), M'Cle. & Yo. 354), though it does apply as against the representative of a deceased client (Jefferson v. Warrington (1840), 7 M. & W. 137). Where the solicitor is bankrupt his trustee is liable for the costs if he delivers a bill in respect of which a sixth or more is taxed off (Re Peers (1856), 21 Beav. 520); the solicitor himself is liable if he obtains his discharge pending the taxation (Whalley v. Williamson (1843), 6 Man. & G. 269). The amount of the excess over one-sixth is immaterial (Swinburn v. Hewitt (1838), 7 Dowl. 314 (where the excess amounted to 5*d.*); Morris v. Parkinson (1835), 3 Dowl. 744; Davison v. Allen (1840), 8 Dowl. 673); it is equally immaterial that the solicitor has accepted in full discharge a sum less than that allowed by the taxing master (Re Elwes and Turner (1888), 58 L. T. 580; see also Re Hellard and Bewes, [1896] 2 Ch. 229).

(g) The court may exercise its discretion in favour of the solicitor as well as in favour of the client (Re Richards, [1912] 1 Ch. 49, 54; compare Russell v. Yorke (1839), 7 Scott, 130).

(h) Holderness v. Barkworth (1838), 3 M. & W. 341; Hodge v. Bird (1844), 6 Man. & G. 1020; Baker v. Mills (1834), 2 Dowl. 382; Yea v. Yea (1794), 2 Anst. 494; Webb v. Stone (1793), 1 Anst. 260.

him the costs though one-sixth or more has been taxed off (i). In computing the amount of the bill for this purpose, the amount of the professional charges only, excluding disbursements, is taken into account (k). Where the order for taxation itself has been made by the court upon the ground that there were special circumstances justifying it in spite of payment or the expiry of more than a year from its delivery, the court may in the order give special directions relative to the costs of the reference (l).

Taxation at solicitor's instance.

1324. If the taxation is at the instance of the solicitor the costs of the taxation, if the client attends, depend upon the event, and the client is liable to pay them if less than one-sixth is taxed off (m). The client cannot, however, be ordered to pay the costs of the reference if he fails to attend (n).

SECT. 6.—Interest on Costs.

Non-contentious matters.

1325. In non-contentious matters (o) a solicitor is entitled to charge interest on his disbursements and costs, whether by scale or otherwise, from the expiration of one month from demand (p); where they are payable by an infant, or out of a fund not presently available, the demand may be made on the parent or guardian, or the trustee or other person liable (q). For this purpose the delivery of the bill is a sufficient demand (r). Where the solicitor takes security for future costs (s) the security may extend to interest on such costs, but the interest must not commence until the amount due for costs is ascertained by agreement or taxation (t).

Contentious matters.

1326. In contentious matters an agreement by the client to pay interest on the costs, if otherwise valid (u), seems to be binding (a); but interest does not, it seems, commence until the amount of the costs has been ascertained by agreement or

(i) Re Mackenzie, Ex parte Short (1894), 69 L. T. 751, C. A., following Re Carthew, Re Paull (1884), 27 Ch. D. 485, C. A.; compare Ward v. Gregg (1837), 5 Dowl. 729.

(k) Re Mercantile Lighterage Co., [1906] 1 Ch. 491; Cunningham v. M'Donagh, [1904] 2 I. R. 417; Wollison v. Hodgson (1834), 2 Dowl. 360. Similarly, items included in the cash account are not taken into consideration (Re Haigh (1849), 12 Beav. 307).

(l) Solicitors Act, 1843 (6 & 7 Vict. c. 73), ss. 37—39, 41.

(m) Ibid., s. 37; compare Peters v. Sheehan (1842), 10 M. & W. 213.

(n) Ex parte Woollett (1844), 12 M. & W. 504, per PARKE, B., at p. 506; Re Upperton (1882), 30 W. R. 840.

(o) This provison does not apply to contentious business (Re Marsden's Estate, Withington v. Neumann (1889), 40 Ch. D. 475); but see Blair v. Cordner, as reported [1887] W. N. 162.

(p) The personal representative of a deceased client is the proper person from whom to demand payment (Re McMurdo, Penfield v. McMurdo, [1897] 1 Ch. 119).

(q) Remuneration Order, 1882, clause 7.

(r) Blair v. Cordner (1887), 19 Q. B. D. 516.

(s) See p. 751, ante.

(t) Remuneration Order, 1882, clause 7.

(u) See pp. 770 et seq., ante.

(a) Compare Lyddon v. Moss (1859), 4 De G. & J. 104, C. A.; Shannon v. Casey (1874), 8 I. R. Eq. 307.

SECT. 6. Interest on Costs.

taxation (b). Apart from this the solicitor may, after delivering his bill, make a demand (c) in writing upon his client, giving him notice that interest will be claimed from the date of the demand, in which case the jury (d) may, in any action upon the bill, award interest on the costs (e).

Disbursements.

A solicitor is by statute entitled to interest on his disbursements, if allowed by the taxing master, at such rate and from such time as the taxing master thinks fit (f); but this provision does not apply as between a country solicitor and his London agent (g).

Amount shown by allocatur.

After taxation the solicitor is entitled to interest on the amount shown to be due by the taxing master's certificate from the date of the certificate (h). Costs, however, ordered by the court to be paid out of a fund do not carry interest in the absence of special directions (i); but the court may direct interest to be paid from the date of the certificate (k). Such a direction will be given where payment of costs is unavoidably delayed (l).

Judgment for costs.

A solicitor who sues upon his bill of costs and recovers judgment is entitled to interest upon the amount recovered from the time of signing judgment (m).

Money improperly retained.

1327. A solicitor who improperly retains moneys of his client

(b) Compare Re Smith (1846), 9 Beav. 342; Re Bloomfield's Estate (1878), 3 L. R. Ir. 82.

(c) As to what constitutes a sufficient demand, see title MONEY AND MONEY-LENDING, Vol. XXI., p. 38, note (a).

(d) If the bill is referred to the taxing master, special provision must be made allowing him to deal with the interest; otherwise he cannot award interest (Berrington v. Phillips (1836), 1 M. & W. 48).

(e) Civil Procedure Act, 1833 (3 & 4 Will. 4, c. 42), s. 28.

(f) Attorneys and Solicitors Act, 1870 (33 & 34 Vict. c. 28), s. 17; see Hartland v. Murrell (1873), L. R. 16 Eq. 285. The solicitor cannot appropriate payments to costs so as to leave disbursements unpaid, and, therefore, bearing interest (Re Harrison (1886), 33 Ch. D. 52, C. A.).

(g) Ward v. Eyre (1880), 15 Ch. D. 130, C. A., per JAMES, L.J., at p. 136.

(h) Judgments Act, 1838 (1 & 2 Vict. c. 110), s. 18; Solicitors Act, 1843 (6 & 7 Vict. c. 73), s. 43; Re Marsden's Estate, Withington v. Neumann (1889), 40 Ch. D. 475, per CHITTY, J., at p. 479. Where costs are ordered to be paid by the unsuccessful party, interest runs from the date of the judgment (R. S. C., Ord. 41, r. 3; Ord. 42, r. 16; Pyman & Co. v. Burt, [1884] W. N. 100; Boswell v. Coaks (1888), 57 L. J. (CH.) 101; Taylor v. Roe, [1894] 1 Ch. 413).

(i) Re Marsden's Estate, Withington v. Neumann, supra; A.-G. v. Nethercote (1841), 11 Sim. 529; Hartland v. Murrell, supra; but see Lippard v. Ricketts (1872), L. R. 14 Eq. 291, where the costs were an equitable charge on the fund; see title CHARITIES, Vol. IV., p. 354.

(k) Solicitors Act, 1860 (23 & 24 Vict. c. 127), s. 127. The rate of interest is 4 per cent. (ibid.). This provision only applies in favour of the solicitor, and not of a party (Jenner v. Morris, Webster v. Jenner (1863), 11 W. R. 943).

(l) Fox v. Charlton, Charlton v. Fox (1865), 6 New Rep. 352; Carter v. Carter (1863), 2 New Rep. 512; Re Campbell's Trusts (1871), 19 W. R. 427.

(m) Judgments Act, 1838 (1 & 2 Vict. c. 110), s. 17. The rate of interest is 4 per cent. (ibid.); see title JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS, Vol. XVIII., pp. 206, 209.

may be ordered by the taxing master to pay interest at such rate and from such time as the taxing master thinks fit (n).

SECT. 6. Interest on Costs.

SECT. 7.—Security for Costs.

Past and future costs.

1328. A solicitor may at common law take security from his client for costs already due (o); as regards future costs, both in contentious (p) and non-contentious (q) matters, his right to do so is conferred by statute. The security may cover interest, but such interest is not chargeable until the amount due from the client has been ascertained either by agreement or taxation (r). The giving of security by the client does not, in the absence of an agreement in writing fixing the amount of payment for specific work to be done (s), relieve the solicitor from the necessity of delivering a bill of costs and submitting to have it taxed if the client wishes it (t); in this case the security given or the balance of the money deposited must be returned by the solicitor upon payment of what is found to be due by the taxing master (a). If the security is taken in the form of a mortgage, great care must be taken, unless the client is separately advised, that no terms which are not strictly usual or are in any way unfairly burdensome to the client are inserted (b); otherwise the court will set the transaction aside and only enforce the security for such a sum as it is equitable that the client should pay (c). The court will also reopen the transaction where the security is given in circumstances which amount to fraud (d) or undue influence (e), or where there has been no proper statement or investigation of accounts (f).

Mortgage for costs.

(n) Attorneys and Solicitors Act, 1870 (33 & 34 Vict. c. 28), s. 17; Burdick v. Garrick (1870), 5 Ch. App. 233.

(o) Sanderson v. Glass (1742), 2 Atk. 296; Brown v. Pring (1750), 1 Ves. Sen. 407; Jones v. Tripp (1821), Jac. 322; Williams v. Piggott (1825), Jac. 598; Pitcher v. Rigby (1821), 9 Price, 79; Fowler v. Moore (1837), 2 Jo. Ex. Ir. 415; Bristowe v. Warner (1847), 10 I. Eq. R. 246, commenting on Re Evans, Ex parte Bovill (1826), 2 Mont. & A. 382, n.; Cheslyn v. Dalby (1836), 2 Y. & C. (EX.) 170; Nelson v. Booth (1857), 3 Jur. (N. S.) 951; Jones v. Roberts (1846), 9 Beav. 419; Hooper v. Cooke (1856), 2 Jur. (N. S.) 527; Morgan v. Higgins (1859), 1 Giff. 270; Anderson v. Radcliffe (1858), E. B. & E. 806; Waters v. Taylor (1837), 2 My. & Cr. 526. As to the validity of securities for costs, see p. 751, ante.

(p) Attorneys and Solicitors Act, 1870 (33 & 34 Vict. c. 28), s. 16.

(q) Solicitors Remuneration Act, 1881 (44 & 45 Vict. c. 44), s. 5; Remuneration Order, 1882, clause 7.

(r) Remuneration Order, 1882, clause 7; Re Carnegie (1907), 52 Sol. Jo. 14.

(s) See pp. 770, 771, ante.

(t) Solicitors Act, 1870 (33 & 34 Vict. c. 28), s. 16; Brown v. Pring, supra; Morgan v. Higgins, supra.

(a) Shaw v. Neale (1858), 6 H. L. Cas. 581; Willens v. Tandy (1842), 5 I. Eq. R. 1; compare Vaughan v. Vanderstegen (1854), 2 Drew. 289.

(b) See p. 751, ante.

(c) Cowdry v. Day (1859), 1 Giff. 316; Cockburn v. Edward (1881), 18 Ch. D. 449, C. A.; Craddock v. Rogers (1884), 53 L. J. (CH.) 968; but see Pooley's Trustee v. Whetham (1886), 33 Ch. D. 111, C. A.

(d) Ward v. Sharp (1884), 53 L. J. (CH.) 313.

(e) Walmesley v. Booth (1741), 2 Atk. 27; Watson v. Rodwell (1879), 11 Ch. D. 150, C. A.; Eyre v. Hughes (1876), 2 Ch. D. 148.

(f) Davies v. Parry (1859), 1 Giff. 174; Morgan v. Higgins, supra; and see Todd v. Wilson (1846), 9 Beav. 486; Gomley v. Wood and Daly (1846), 3 Jo. & Lat. 678.

SECT. 8. Solicitor's Remedies for Costs.

SECT. 8.—Solicitor's Remedies for Costs.

SUB-SECT. 1.—Action.

Time when action may be brought.

1329. A solicitor (g) is entitled to maintain an action against his client for the amount of his bill at the expiration of one month from its delivery (h), unless the court has already (i) made an order restraining him from doing so pending taxation (k).

Procedure.

The writ may be specially indorsed for the full amount of the claim, although the bill has not been taxed (l), and the solicitor may apply for summary judgment under R. S. C., Order 14 (m). If the client raises no defence, judgment may be given for the full amount claimed without reference to taxation (n). If, however, the client disputes the amount of the bill, the bill is referred to a taxing master for taxation, the plaintiff being given leave to sign judgment for the amount found to be due on taxation and the costs of the action (o); if it is too late to tax the bill (p), the bill may be referred to a taxing master under the general jurisdiction of the court (q).

Statute of Limitations.

1330. For the purposes of an action on the bill, the Statute of Limitations (r) begins to run against the solicitor from the date when the work to which it relates was completed (s), and not from the expiration of one month from the delivery of the bill (a). If (g) A solicitor who carries on business under a firm name may sue in his own name if his partner is only a nominal partner (Kell v. Nainby (1829), 10 B. & C. 20; Spurr v. Cass, Cass v. Spurr (1870), L. R. 5 Q. B. 656).

(h) See pp. 774, 775, ante; and compare Bell v. Girdlestone, [1913] 2 K. B. 225, explaining Cubison v. Mayo, [1896] 1 Q. B. 246, C. A. (county court costs). If the client is about to become a bankrupt etc., the court may authorise the solicitor to sue, although the month has not expired (Legal Practitioners Act, 1875 (38 & 39 Vict. c. 79), s. 2); see note (f), p. 774, ante. As to the effect of a solicitor not taking out a practising certificate or making a false declaration on applying for his certificate, see p. 720, ante; see also title AGENCY, Vol. I., p. 151.

(i) The court has no power, in making a subsequent order for taxation, to restrain a pending action (Judicature Act, 1873 (36 & 37 Vict. c. 66), s. 24 (5)), but it may order the action to be stayed; see R. S. C., Appendix K, No. 43.

(k) See p. 785, ante.

(l) Lagos v. Grunwaldt, [1910] 1 K. B. 41, C. A. As to proceedings under R. S. C., Ord 14, after taxation, see Re Debenham and Walker, [1895] 2 Ch. 430; and note (o), p. 814, post.

(m) Smith v. Edwardes (1888), 22 Q. B. D. 10, C. A.; see Ward v. Procter (1891), 7 T. L. R. 244, where unconditional leave to defend was given; see also title COMPULSORY PURCHASE OF LAND AND COMPENSATION, Vol. VI., pp. 113, 114.

(n) Gilsenan v. M'Govern (1892), 30 L. R. Ir. 300; but see Lumley v. Brooks (1889), 41 Ch. D. 323, C. A., where the solicitor raised no objection to the bill being referred for taxation.

(o) Smith v. Edwardes, supra; Lumley v. Brooks, supra; compare Whalley v. Glover (1850), 3 Car. & Kir. 13; Re Lowless & Son (1853), 6 C. B. 123. For the form of order, see R. S. C., Appendix K, No. 9F.

(p) See p. 790, ante.

(q) See p. 780, ante.

(r) 21 Jac. 1, c. 16.

(s) See title LIMITATION OF ACTIONS, Vol. XIX., p. 48, and the cases there cited. As to the duration of a solicitor's retainer, see pp. 737 et seq., ante.

(a) Coburn v. Colledge, [1897] 1 Q. B. 702, C. A.; see Cheese v. Keen, [1908] 1 Ch. 245.

some only of the items included in the bill are statute-barred, the solicitor may recover in respect of the balance (b).

When delivery of bill unnecessary.

1331. No delivery of the bill is necessary where the client does not defend the action on this ground (c), or where the action is brought not against the client, but against a person who has given the solicitor a guarantee against the amount of his costs (d).

SUB-SECT. 2.—Proceedings in Bankruptcy.

Proceedings in bankruptcy.

1332. A bankruptcy petition may be presented by the solicitor against his client in respect of his costs, although he has not delivered his bill, and is, therefore, not in a position to maintain an action (e). In this case the petition will be stayed until the bill has been delivered and the costs taxed (f). Similarly the solicitor may prove in the client's bankruptcy for the amount of his costs (g), though he has delivered no bill (h), and although the costs have not been taxed (i). In this case the trustee may require full particulars of how the amount is made up (k), and the proof, when complete, may be referred to a taxing master for consideration under the general jurisdiction of the court (l).

SUB-SECT. 3.—Proceedings on Allocatur.

Order for payment.

1333. Where the reference to the taxing master results in a certificate or allocatur in favour of the solicitor, the solicitor is entitled to apply to the court for an order for payment by the client of the amount certified to be due (m). The order may be made by any Division of the High Court (n), and it appears to be immaterial that

(b) Blake v. Hummell (1884), 51 L. T. 430, following Haigh v. Ousey (1857), 7 E. & B. 578; see Re Pomeroy and Tanner, [1897] 1 Ch. 284; Pilgrim v. Hirschfeld (1863), 12 W. R. 51. The solicitor cannot, after judgment against him on the statute-barred items, set off against them a sum received on behalf of the client, or appropriate such sum to such items (Smith v. Betty, [1903] 2 K. B. 317, C. A.).

(c) Lane v. Glenny (1837), 7 Ad. & El. 83; Robinson v. Rowland (1838), 2 Jur. 136; compare Pritchard v. Draper (1831), 1 Russ. & M. 191. The defence of no signed bill is a statutory defence of which notice must be given under County Court Rules, Ord. 10, rr. 10, 18 (Lewis and Davies v. Burrell (1897), 77 L. T. 626). As to enforcement of collateral security, see p. 811, ante.

(d) Greening v. Reeder (1892), 67 L. T. 28; Reece v. Cox (1867), 16 L. T. 327.

(e) Ex parte Sutton (1805), 11 Ves. 163; Ex parte Steele (1809), 16 Ves. 162; Re Howell, Ex parte Howell (1812), 1 Rose, 312; Re Ford, Ex parte Ford (1838), 3 Deac. 494; Ex parte Dewdney, Ex parte Seaman (1809), 15 Ves. 479, 489.

(f) Re Symes, Ex parte Prideaux (1821), 1 Gl. & J. 28.

(g) If the bankruptcy takes place after an order to tax has been obtained by the client, and the solicitor undertakes not to prove for his costs, the trustee cannot continue the taxation unless he undertakes to pay the taxed amount of the bill (Re Merrick, Ex parte Joyce, [1911] 1 I. R. 279, C. A.).

(h) Re Woods, Ex parte Ditton (1880), 13 Ch. D. 318, C. A.; Eicke v. Nokes (1829), Mood. & M. 303.

(i) Re Woods, Ex parte Ditton, supra; compare Re Dowson, Ex parte Webb (1851), 4 De G. & Sm. 366.

(k) Re Van Laun, Ex parte Chatterton, [1907] 2 K. B. 23, C. A.

(l) Re Woods, Ex parte Ditton, supra.

(m) Solicitors Act, 1843 (6 & 7 Vict. c. 73), s. 43.

(n) Re Brockman, [1909] 2 Ch. 170, C. A., per COZENS-HARDY, M.R., at p. 175.

SECT. 8. Solicitor's Remedies for Costs.

the client has made no submission to pay and that the order for taxation contains no direction requiring him to pay the amount certified to be due (o). If the order for taxation contains a direction to pay (p), a separate application for an order for payment is unnecessary (q), since the court has jurisdiction over the client by virtue of his submission (r). The order for payment may be enforced by execution (s).

Entry for judgment.

Where the reference was made in the King's Bench Division, the court may also order judgment to be entered up for the amount certified to be due, unless the retainer is disputed (t), or may make any order which the court deems proper (u). This jurisdiction may be exercised although the order for taxation contains no direction to pay (w).

SECT. 9.—Lien.

SUB-SECT. 1.—Kinds of Lien.

Three kinds of lien.

1334. A solicitor is entitled to three kinds of lien (a) to protect his right to recover his costs from his client, namely:—(1) a passive or retaining lien (b); (2) a common law lien on property recovered or preserved by his efforts (c); (3) a statutory lien enforceable by a charging order (d).

SUB-SECT. 2.—Retaining Lien.

Property subject to lien.

1335. The retaining lien enures in the solicitor's favour in respect of all deeds, papers, or other personal chattels which come (o) The words of the statute are, "the amount certified to be due and directed to be paid" (Solicitors Act, 1843 (6 & 7 Vict. c. 73), s. 43). In the King's Bench Division it has always been the practice to make the order, although the order for taxation contains no direction for payment (Archbold's Practice, 14th ed., p. 159). It was held in Re Debenham and Walker, [1895] 2 Ch. 430, that, in the Chancery Division, no order could be made under the statute, if the order for taxation contained no direction for payment, and that the solicitor's remedy was by action under R. S. C., Ord. 14. This decision, however, appears to be inconsistent with the reasoning of Re Brockman, [1909] 2 Ch. 170, C. A., where it was stated in general terms that a submission to pay was not necessary in any case, as an order for payment could be made under the statute in any Division of the High Court.

(p) See p. 793, ante.

(q) Re Brockman, supra, per COZENS-HARDY, M.R., at p. 175.

(r) Re Debenham and Walker, supra, per NORTH, J., at p. 432.

(s) R. S. C., Ord. 42, r. 17; see also ibid., rr. 3, 8, 24; title EXECUTION, Vol. XIV., pp. 1 et seq. Service of the order is not necessary (Re a Solicitor (1884), 33 W. R. 131).

(t) The parties may, however, have agreed to submit the question of retainer to the master, in which case the client is bound by a decision in favour of the solicitor (Re Lowless & Son (1848), 6 C. B. 123).

(u) Solicitors Act, 1843 (6 & 7 Vict. c. 73), s. 43; Griffiths v. Hughes (1847), 16 M. & W. 809; Neale v. Postlethwaite (1841), 1 Q. B. 243. For the forms of order and of judgment, see Chitty's King's Bench Forms, 11th ed., pp. 22 et seq. As to the title of the order, see Re Hair (1844), 7 Man. & G. 510; Re Vallance and Beioley, Gregory v. Brunswick (Duke) (1844), 7 Man. & G. 511.

(w) Re Lowless & Son, supra.

(a) As to lien generally, see title LIEN, Vol. XIX., pp. 1 et seq.

(b) See the text, infra.

(c) See pp. 820, 821, post.

(d) See pp. 823 et seq., post.

into his possession in the course of his professional employment (e), including bills of exchange (f), letters patent (g), policies of assurance (h), letters of administration (i), documents contained in a drawer of which the solicitor is given the key (k), and applications for shares (l). The solicitor's lien does not, however, extend to the share register and minute book of a company or to any documents which come into his hands after the commencement of the winding-up (m).

In respect of what costs.

1336. The costs in respect of which the solicitor's lien arises must be taxable costs, charges and expenses incurred by him as solicitor for his client, including advances which may be disallowed or moderated on taxation (n). There is therefore no lien in respect of costs which are not due to him in his capacity as a solicitor (o), such as, for instance, his charges as a land agent (p), or as steward of a manor (q). A town clerk (r) or clerk to a local authority (s), if a solicitor, has a lien on all papers belonging to the borough council or local authority which come to his hands in his capacity as a solicitor, but not on such papers as he holds merely as clerk.

The solicitor is not entitled to exercise a lien in respect of costs incurred in a matter in which he has no authority to act on behalf of the person against whom the lien is claimed (t), such as, for instance, the costs of promoting a company, as against the (e) Bozon v. Bolland (1839), 4 My. & Cr. 354; Stedman v. Webb (1839), 4 My. & Cr. 346, 354; Friswell v. King (1846), 15 Sim. 191; compare title LIEN, Vol. XIX., p. 24. As to the effect of repudiation by an infant on arriving at full age of proceedings taken on his behalf, see title INFANTS AND CHILDREN, Vol. XVII., p. 140.

(f) Gibson v. May (1853), 4 De G. M. & G. 512, C. A.

(g) Re Aubusson, Ex parte Solomon (1821), 1 Gl. & J. 25.

(h) West of England Bank v. Batchelor (1882), 51 L. J. (CH.) 199.

(i) Barnes v. Durham (1869), L. R. 1 P. & D. 728; In the Goods of Martin (1883), 13 L. R. Ir. 312, C. A.

(k) Re Markbey (1864), 11 L. T. 250; see title CHOSES IN ACTION, Vol. IV., p. 386.

(l) Re Capital Fire Insurance Association (1883), 24 Ch. D. 408, C. A. Alimony payable to a divorced wife may become subject to the lien; see title HUSBAND AND WIFE, Vol. XVI., p. 520; compare p. 817, post.

(m) Re Capital Fire Insurance Association, supra; Re Union Brick and Cement Co., Ex parte Purbrook (1869), 4 Ch. App. 627; Re Anglo-Maltese Hydraulic Dock Co. (1885), 54 L. J. (CH.) 730; see title COMPANIES, Vol. V., p. 247. As to the effect of winding-up on a solicitor's lien, see, further, ibid., pp. 247, 525.

(n) Re Taylor, Stileman and Underwood, [1891] 1 Ch. 590, C. A.; see also Richards v. Platel (1841), 5 Jur. 834. As to what are such costs, see pp. 760 et seq., ante.

(o) Worrall v. Johnson (1820), 2 Jac. & W. 214; Re Taylor, Stileman and Underwood, supra; compare title LIEN, Vol. XIX., p. 20.

(p) Re Walker, Meredith v. Walker (1893), 68 L. T. 517.

(q) Champernown v. Scott (1821), Madd. & G. 93.

(r) R. v. Sankey (1836), 5 Ad. & El. 423; see title LOCAL GOVERNMENT, Vol. XIX., p. 312, note (s); see also title BANKRUPTCY AND INSOLVENCY, Vol. II., p. 142, note (j).

(s) Newington Local Board v. Eldridge (1879), 12 Ch. D. 349, C. A.

(t) Hall v. Laver (1842), 1 Hare, 571; Re Phœnix Life Assurance Co., Howard and Dollman's Case (1863), 1 Hem. & M. 433.

SECT. 9. Lien.

company (a); the costs incurred by a firm, as against a partner (b); or the costs relating to the obtaining of a writ of habeas corpus, as against the prisoner (c). Nor is he entitled to exercise a lien in respect of costs which he was never entitled to recover by reason of his being unqualified at the time when they were earned (d). On the other hand, the lien is available though the solicitor has lost his right to sue for the costs in respect of which the lien is claimed by reason of the Statutes of Limitation (e).

General lien.

1337. The lien is a general lien (f). The solicitor may, therefore, exercise his lien over papers handed to him for a particular purpose, and may decline to hand them over unless paid any balance of costs that may be due to him in respect of all matters in which he has acted as solicitor for the client (g). The general lien may, however, be excluded by express agreement or by the facts of the particular case (h).

Where papers in an action remain in the possession of a solicitor who asserts his lien upon them, an order for their production at the client's instance will be subject to such lien (i).

Not available against third persons.

1338. The lien is a right exercisable against the client (j), and gives the solicitor no higher right as against third persons than the client himself possesses (k). Thus, notwithstanding the lien, the solicitor can be compelled to produce the papers in his possession, if his client would have been bound to produce them (l): if, therefore,

(a) Re Galland (1885), 31 Ch. D. 296, C. A.; compare title COMPANIES, Vol. V., pp. 56, 246, 525.

(b) Turner v. Deane (1849), 3 Exch. 836.

(c) Re Hanbury, Whitting and Nicholson (1896), 75 L. T. 449.

(d) Re Standing (1898), Times, 21st January; Latham v. Hide (1832), 1 Dowl. 594.

(e) Re Broomhead (1847), 5 Dow. & L. 52; Re Murray, [1867] W. N. 190; Re Carter, Carter v. Carter (1885), 55 L. J. (CH.) 230; Curwen v. Milburn (1889), 42 Ch. D. 424, C. A.; Re Margetts, [1896] 2 Ch. 263; compare title LIMITATION OF ACTIONS, Vol. XIX., pp. 42, 48.

(f) See title LIEN, Vol. XIX., p. 26.

(g) Ex parte Sterling (1809), 16 Ves. 258; Stevenson v. Blakelock (1813), 1 M. & S. 535; Bozon v. Bolland (1839), 4 My. & Cr. 554; Ex parte Pemberton (1810), 18 Ves. 282; Re Broomhead (1847), 5 Dow. & L. 52; Re Faithfull, Re London, Brighton and South Coast Rail. Co. (1868), L. R. 6 Eq. 325. As to the position of a solicitor as bailee generally, see title LIEN, Vol. XIX., pp. 13, 26.

(h) Champney v. Burland (1879), 9 W. R. 913; Colmer v. Ede (1870), 40 L. J. (CH.) 185; Re Messenger, Ex parte Calvert (1876), 3 Ch. D. 317; Re Dee Estates, Ltd., Wright v. Dee Estates, Ltd., [1911] 2 Ch. 85, C. A. There is no lien over money deposited with a solicitor for a specific purpose which has failed (Stumore v. Campbell & Co., [1892] 1 Q. B. 314, C. A.).

(i) Lewis v. Powell, [1897] 1 Ch. 678; Vale v. Oppert (1875), 10 Ch. App. 340; Re Hawkes, Ackerman v. Lockhart, [1898] 2 Ch. 1, C. A.; followed in Re Caudery, London Joint Stock Bank v. Wightman (1910), 54 Sol. Jo. 444; see titles DISCOVERY, INSPECTION, AND INTERROGATORIES, Vol. XI., p. 86; EVIDENCE, Vol. XIII., pp. 581, 582.

(j) Re Mason and Taylor (1878), 10 Ch. D. 729, following Re Snell (a Solicitor) (1877), 6 Ch. D. 105; Re Sadd (1865), 34 Beav. 650; Lightfoot v. Keane (1836), 1 M. & W. 745; Re Long, Ex parte Fuller (1881), 16 Ch. D. 617.

(k) Smith v. Chichester (1842), 2 Dr. & War. 393; Bell v. Taylor (1836), 8 Sim. 216; see Turner v. Letts (1855), 24 L. J. (CH.) 638.

(l) Furlong v. Howard (1804), 2 Sch. & Lef. 115; Vale v. Oppert, supra;

the validity of a deed is impeached in an action, the solicitor is bound to produce it, if in his possession, in spite of his lien (m). A prior equitable title prevails against the lien, even though the solicitor had no notice of it (n). Similarly, a lien against a tenant for life is of no avail against a remainderman (o). The vendor's solicitor cannot, as against the purchaser, retain the conveyance in respect of his costs of acting for the vendor in the transaction of sale (a). The mortgagor's solicitor, as against the mortgagee, has no lien on the mortgage deed (b); nor has the mortgagee's solicitor, as against the mortgagor, a lien on the title deeds after the debt has been repaid and the reconveyance executed (c). The solicitor preparing a marriage settlement on the instructions of the husband has no lien upon it, as against the trustees of the settlement, for his unpaid bill of costs, but is bound to deliver it up to them on their requesting him to do so (d). Where costs have been incurred with a solicitor in an action claiming the delivery of deeds, after the deeds have been given up to him, he cannot exercise the lien against the successful party (e). In accordance with the same principle, the solicitor has no lien over a will in respect of costs due from the testator (f); nor has he a lien over papers deposited with him for a particular purpose by a person who is not his client (g). A solicitor who is also one of the trustees has no lien over a trust fund (h), although there is a lien over alimony paid to a solicitor as the agent of the wife (i).

1339. The lien is not taken away, in the case of a company, by Effect of bankruptcy etc.

compare Simmonds v. Great Eastern Rail. Co. (1868), 3 Ch. App. 797; see title DISCOVERY, INSPECTION, AND INTERROGATORIES, Vol. XI., p. 86.

(m) Balch v. Symes (1823), Turn. & R. 87.

(n) Pelly v. Wathen (1851), 1 De G. M. & G. 16, C. A.; Hollis v. Claridge (1813), 4 Taunt. 807; Symons v. Blake (1835), 2 Cr. M. & R. 416; Marsh v. Bathoe (1744), Ridg. temp. H. 256.

(o) Ex parte Nesbitt (1805), 2 Sch. & Lef. 279; Re Mayhew (1859), 7 W. R. 351; compare Re Stannard's Estate, [1897] 1 I. R. 415.

(a) Esdaile v. Oxenham (1824), 3 B. & C. 225.

(b) Hutchison v. Joyce (1836), 2 Jo. Ex. Ir. 122; Taylor v. Gorman (1844), 7 I. Eq. R. 259; Young v. English (1843), 7 Beav. 10; Pratt v. Vizard (1833), 5 B. & Ad. 808; contrast Brunton v. Electrical Engineering Corporation, [1892] 1 Ch. 434.

(c) Wakefield v. Newbon (1844), 6 Q. B. 276; Re Llewellin, a Solicitor, [1891] 3 Ch. 145; Re Mosely (1867), 15 W. R. 975; and see Sheffield v. Eden (1878), 10 Ch. D. 291, C. A., where the solicitor was also mortgagee; Re Nicholson, Ex parte Quinn (1884), 53 L. J. (CH.) 302, where the solicitor acted for both parties.

(d) Re Lawrance, Bowker v. Austin, [1894] 1 Ch. 556; Fowler v. Fowler (1881), 50 L. J. (CH.) 686.

(e) Morgan v. Scott (1839), 2 I. Eq. R. 128; Blunden v. Desart (1842), 2 Dr. & War. 405.

(f) Balch v. Symes, supra.

(g) Re Mayhew (1859), 7 W. R. 351.

(h) Re Clark, Ex parte Newland (1877), 4 Ch. D. 515.

(i) Ex parte Bremner (Sarah) (1866), L. R. 1 P. & D. 254; Cross v. Cross (1880), 43 L. T. 533; Leete v. Leete (1879), 48 L. J. (P.) 61; see title HUSBAND AND WIFE, Vol. XVI., p. 520.

SECT. 9. Lien.

its winding up (k), by the bankruptcy (l) or death (m) of the client, or by a change in his administrators (n). Nor is it destroyed by a change in the solicitor's firm (o) or by its dissolution (p); or by the solicitor's death (q) or refusal to proceed (r).

Change of solicitors.

1340. In the event of a change of solicitors in the course of an action, the former solicitor's lien is not taken away, but his rights in respect of his lien may be modified according as he discharges himself or is discharged by the client (s). If he is discharged by the client otherwise than for misconduct, he cannot, so long as his costs are unpaid, be compelled to produce or hand over the papers (t). If, on the other hand, he discharges himself, he may be ordered to hand over the papers to the new solicitor, on the latter undertaking to hold them without prejudice to his lien, to return them intact after the action is over, and to allow the former solicitor access to them in the meantime (a).

The priorities of successive solicitors employed by the same

(k) Re Meter Cabs, Ltd., [1911] 2 Ch. 557; Re Rapid Road Transit Co., [1909] 1 Ch. 96; Belaney v. Ffrench (1873), 8 Ch. App. 918; see title COMPANIES, Vol. V., p. 247; compare ibid., p. 525. As to the rights of the liquidator, see ibid., pp. 573 et seq.

(l) Re Hemsworth, Ex parte Underwood (1845), De G. 190; Re Leah, Ex parte Jabet (1860), 6 Jur. (N. S.) 387, C. A.; Re May, Ex parte Hawley (1852), Fonbl. 243; compare Ross v. Laughton (1813), 1 Ves. & B. 349. But the solicitor, notwithstanding his lien, must produce any documents in his possession for examination by the trustee (Re Toleman and England, Ex parte Bramble (1880), 13 Ch. D. 885); see title BANKRUPTCY AND INSOLVENCY, Vol. II., p. 117.

(m) Lloyd v. Mason (1845), 4 Hare, 132; Blunden v. Desart (1842), 2 Dr. & War. 405.

(n) Re Watson (1884), 53 L. J. (CH.) 305.

(o) Pelly v. Wathen (1849), 7 Hare, 351.

(p) Vaughan v. Vanderstegen (1854), 2 Drew. 408; Re Gough, Lloyd v. Gough (1894), 70 L. T. 725.

(q) Kellett v. Kelly (1842), 5 I. Eq. R. 34; Allen v. Jervoise (1847), 11 I. Eq. R. 583; Redfarn v. Sowerby (1818), 1 Swan. 84; Magrath v. Muskerry (Lord) (1787), 1 Ridg. Parl. Rep. 469.

(r) Re Williams (1860), 28 Beav. 465; Re Smith (1861), 4 L. T. 43; Scott v. Fleming (1845), 9 Jur. 1085. As to the effect of his refusal to proceed, see the text, infra.

(s) Re Rapid Road Transit Co., [1909] 1 Ch. 96.

(t) Re Faithfull, Re London, Brighton and South Coast Rail. Co. (1868), L. R. 6 Eq. 325; Re Moss (1866), L. R. 2 Eq. 345; Re Austin, Ex parte Yalden (1876), 4 Ch. D. 129, C. A.; Re Brook, Pilcher v. Arden (1877), 7 Ch. D. 318, C. A.; Newington Local Board v. Eldridge (1879), 12 Ch. D. 349, C. A.; Kettlewell v. Barstow (1872), 20 W. R. 621; Steele v. Scott (1828), 2 Hog. 14. In administration actions and other proceedings of a representative character, such as a winding-up, papers which have come to the solicitor's hands since the commencement of the action (Re Capital Fire Insurance Association (1883), 24 Ch. D. 408, C. A.), and for the purpose of carrying on the action (Re Boughton, Boughton v. Boughton (1883), 23 Ch. D. 169, followed in Boden v. Hensby, [1892] 1 Ch. 101), must be handed over subject to his lien, to be returned when the judge directs.

(a) Robins v. Goldingham (1872), L. R. 13 Eq. 440; Griffiths v. Griffiths (1843), 2 Hare, 587; Hutchinson v. Norwood (2) (1886), 54 L. T. 842; Bluck v. Lovering & Co. (1886), 35 W. R. 232; Commerell v. Poynton (1818), 1 Swan. 1; Colegrave v. Manley (1823), Turn. & R. 400; Rawlinson v. Moss (1861), 7 Jur. (N. S.) 1053; Robins v. Goldingham (1872), L. R. 13 Eq. 440; Re Wontner & Sons, Ex parte Scheyer (1888), 52 J. P. 183. As to the London agent discharging himself, see Re Smith (1842), 4 Beav client in regard to lien are regulated as follows: (1) In the winding up of companies (b), and in a debenture-holder's action, the rights of the respective solicitors to payment, and consequently to a lien upon the documents, rank pari passu (c); (2) in an action in the Chancery Division, the rule is that the solicitor who actually conducts the action to its conclusion has the first lien upon any money recovered or preserved, but, subject to this lien, the court will grant the solicitor employed at an earlier stage of the action a charging order in respect of his costs (d). Where the second solicitor receives the whole of the costs, he must pay over the full amount of the first solicitor's claims, without deduction in respect of any set-off to which he may be entitled to as between himself and his client (e). The fact that the second solicitor pays off the first solicitor's claim does not give the second solicitor any lien in respect of the amount so paid (f). Where the subject of a lien is converted into money and the amount paid into court, the liens are satisfied out of the fund according to their priorities (g).

Priorities.

The delivery over of papers "subject" or "without prejudice" to a lien gives the person handing the papers over no priority (h); if it is intended to preserve the lien as a prior charge, an undertaking to that effect must be insisted upon (i).

Discharge of lien.

1341. The lien is discharged (j) in one or other of the following ways, namely:—

(1) By the solicitor receiving payment of the costs in respect of which it arises (k); it is not, however, discharged by the solicitor obtaining judgment (l) or a charging order (m) for his costs.

309; Willson v. Emmett (1854), 19 Beav. 233; Re H. (a Solicitor), Walker v. Beanlands (1866), 15 W. R. 168; Webster v. Le Hunt (1861), 9 W. R. 804. As to London agents generally, see pp. 844 et seq., post.

(b) Re Audley Hall Cotton Spinning Co. (1868), L. R. 6 Eq. 245; Re Dominion of Canada Plumbago Co. (1884), 27 Ch. D. 33, C. A.; see, further, title COMPANIES, Vol. V., p. 247, note (e).

(c) Batten v. Wedgwood Coal and Iron Co. (1884), 28 Ch. D. 317.

(d) Cormack v. Beisly (1858), 3 De G. & J. 157, C. A.; Re Wadsworth, Rhodes v. Sugden (1886), 34 Ch. D. 155; Re Knight, Knight v. Gardner, [1892] 2 Ch. 368. As to charging orders, see pp. 824 et seq., post.

(e) Re Bernard, Ex parte Bailey and Hope (1851), 14 Beav. 18. As to the rights of the solicitors inter se, see Mornington v. Wellesley (1857), 4 Jur. (N. S.) 6, where, the second solicitor having accepted a gross sum without taxation, it was held that the first solicitor, having obtained no charging order, had no claim against the fund, but only against the second solicitor. As to set-off generally, see title SET-OFF AND COUNTERCLAIM, Vol. XXV., pp. 484 et seq.

(f) Irving v. Viana (1827), 2 Y. & J. 70; Christian v. Field (1842), 2 Hare, 177.

(g) Re Walker, Meredith v. Walker (1893), 68 L. T. 615.

(h) Batten v. Wedgwood Coal and Iron Co., supra; Re Capital Fire Insurance Association (1883), 24 Ch. D. 408, C. A.

(i) Re Gloucester Rail. Co. (1860), 8 W. R. 175; Re Audley Hall Cotton Spinning Co., supra; Re Armstrong (1886), 30 Sol. Jo. 181.

(j) As to the discharge or extinguishment of lien generally, see title LIEN, Vol. XIX., pp. 28 et seq.

(k) Re Emma Silver Mines, Re Turner (1875), 24 W. R. 54.

(l) Re Aikin's Estate, [1894] 1 I. R. 225; compare Hector v. Jolliffe (1842), 6 Jur. 120; see title LIEN, Vol. XIX., p. 28, note (g); as to the effect of judgments generally, see title JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS, Vol. XVIII., p. 209.

(m) Re Lumley (1892), 37 Sol. Jo. 83; see pp. 824 et seq., post.

SECT. 9. Lien.

(2) By the solicitor parting with possession (n) of the documents over which the lien is claimed, unless he has done so for a particular purpose, as, for instance, where he sends a conveyance to be executed (o) or hands papers to an arbitrator to enable him to draw up his award (p), or where after dissolution of a firm a former partner takes away deeds which are subject to a lien (q).

(3) By waiver, where the solicitor conducts himself in a manner inconsistent with the retention of his lien, as, for instance, where he acts for the client in obtaining a loan on the security of documents upon which he has a lien (r), or where he takes a security for his costs (s); there is, however, no waiver where the solicitor expressly reserves his lien (t).

(4) By proving in bankruptcy for the amount of the costs (u).

SUB-SECT. 3.—Common Law Lien on Property or Funds Recovered.

Particular lien on property recovered.

1342. A solicitor has at common law (x), and apart from any order of the court (y) or statute (a), a lien over property recovered or preserved or the proceeds of any judgments obtained (b) for the client by his exertions (c). This lien is a particular lien (d); it is not, therefore, available for the general balance of account between the solicitor and the client (e), but extends only to the costs of recovering or preserving the property in question (f), including the (n) Re Phœnix Life Assurance Co., Howard and Dollman's Case (1863), 1 Hem. & M. 433; see, however, p. 818, ante.

(o) Watson v. Lyon (1855), 7 De G. M. & G. 288, C. A.

(p) Whalley v. Halley (1829), 8 L. J. (O. S.) (K. B.) 6.

(q) Re Carter, Carter v. Carter (1885), 55 L. J. (CH.) 230.

(r) Fitzgerald v. Bermingham (1842), 1 Con. & Law. 405; Hicks v. Keate (1839), 3 Jur. 1024.

(s) Re Taylor, Stileman and Underwood, [1891] 1 Ch. 590, C. A.; Bissell v. Bradford and District Tramways Co. (1893), 9 T. L. R. 337; Balch v. Symes (1823), Turn. & R. 87; Re Norman (Douglas) & Co., [1898] 1 Ch. 199; Re Morris, [1908] 1 K. B. 473, C. A.; Tyler v. Drayton (1825), 2 Sim. & St. 309; Cowell v. Simpson (1809), 16 Ves. 275; Robarts v. Jefferys (1830), 8 L. J. (O. S.) (CH.) 137.

(t) See the cases cited in note (s), supra.

(u) Re Tarleton, Ex parte Hornby (1819), Buck, 351; Re Aubusson, Ex parte Solomon (1821), 1 Gl. & J. 25; compare the text, supra.

(x) As to his statutory lien, see pp. 823 et seq., post.

(y) Lloyd v. Mason (1845), 4 Hare, 132; compare Re Wright's Trust, Wright v. Sanderson, [1901] 1 Ch. 317, C. A.

(a) Re Clarke's Settlement Fund, [1911] W. N. 39, per JOYCE, J., at p. 40.

(b) Ex parte Morrison (1868), L. R. 4 Q. B. 153, per BLACKBURN, J., at p. 156.

(c) Bozon v. Bolland (1839), 4 My. & Cr. 354; Re Wadsworth, Rhodes v. Sugden (1886), 34 Ch. D. 155, C. A., per KAY, L.J., at p. 157; M'Bride v. Clarke (1839), 1 I. Eq. R. 203; Ex parte Price (1751), 2 Ves. Sen. 407. It is really a claim to the equitable interference of the court to protect the solicitor (Barker v. St. Quintin (1844), 12 M. & W. 441; Ross v. Buxton (1889), 42 Ch. D. 190, per STIRLING, J., at p. 200).

(d) As to particular lien generally, see title LIEN, Vol. XIX., pp. 10 et seq.; Re Downes, Verity v. Wylde (1859), 4 Drew. 427.

(e) Mackenzie v. Mackintosh (1891), 64 L. T. 706, C. A.; contrast Worrall v. Johnson (1820), 2 Jac. & W. 214.

(f) Lann v. Church (1820), 4 Madd. 391; Bozon v. Bolland, supra; Stephens v. Weston (1824), 3 B. & C. 535; Smith v. Betty, [1903] 2 K. B. 317, C. A. If part of the costs has already been paid by the client, the lien extends only to the balance (Cain v. Adams (1836), 5 L. J. (K. B.) 252). Apparently, the costs must have been incurred in the action in which the property is in fact recovered or preserved (Hall v. Laver (1842), 1 Hare, 571; Re Bayly's Estate, Ex parte Humphrey (1860), 12 I. Ch. R. 315).

costs of protecting the solicitor's right to such costs (g), and of establishing the lien (h). This lien may be asserted by the solicitor, though his right to recover the costs may be barred by lapse of time (i).

Extent of lien.

1343. The lien does not attach to real property (k), but, with this exception, it applies to property of every description (l), such as, for instance, money payable to the client under a judgment (m), or an award (n), including costs ordered to be paid to the client (o), or the proceeds of an execution in the hands of the sheriff (p), money paid into court, whether as security for costs (q) or by way of defence (r), or otherwise (s), money received by way of compromise (t), or money payable by way of royalties on a patent (u). The property must, however, have been recovered or preserved in consequence of the solicitor's exertions (x), and the solicitor must have been acting on behalf of the person against whom the lien is claimed (a). The lien can be exercised against the client only (b), and it attaches to the property only to the extent of the client's interest therein (c). The solicitor has no higher right than his client (d), and is liable to all the equities between his client and

(g) Lucas v. Peacock (1846), 9 Beav. 177.

(h) Re Meter Cabs, Ltd., [1911] 2 Ch. 557.

(i) Higgins v. Scott (1831), 2 B. & Ad. 413; see titles LIEN, Vol. XIX., pp. 3, 6; LIMITATION OF ACTIONS, Vol. XIX., p. 42.

(k) Shaw v. Neale (1858), 6 H. L. Cas. 581.

(l) Compare pp. 824 et seq., post.

(m) Slater v. Sunderland Corporation (1863), 33 L. J. (Q. B.) 37.

(n) Ormerod v. Tate (1801), 1 East, 464; Cowell v. Betteley (1834), 10 Bing. 432; Jones v. Turnbull (1837), 2 M. & W. 601.

(o) Ex parte Bryant (1815), 1 Madd. 49; Aspinall v. Stamp (1824), 3 B. & C. 108; O'Brien v. Lewis (1863), 3 De G. J. & Sm. 606, C. A.; compare Pounset v. Humphreys (1837), Coop. Pr. Cas. 142.

(p) Griffin v. Eyles (1789), 1 Hy. Bl. 122 (where the execution debtor had given the sheriff notice to retain the money in his hands, and was applying to the court to set aside the execution); Re Bank of Hindustan, China, and Japan, Ex parte Smith (1867), 3 Ch. App. 125.

(q) Hall v. Hall, [1891] P. 302, C. A.

(r) See Emden v. Carte (1881), 19 Ch. D. 311, C. A.

(s) M'Bride v. Clarke (1839), 1 I. Eq. R. 203.

(t) Ross v. Buxton (1889), 42 Ch. D. 190, per STIRLING, J., at p. 195; see p. 823, post.

(u) Re Graydon, Ex parte Official Receiver, [1896] 1 Q. B. 417.

(x) Townsend v. Reade, Dooley v. Reade (1835), 4 L. J. (CH.) 233; Hodgens v. Kelly (1826), 1 Hog. 388; compare Stretton v. London and North Western Rail. Co. (1855), 16 C. B. 40. A second solicitor, who pays the costs of the solicitor actually recovering the property, does not succeed to the latter's lien over the property (Irving v. Viana (1827), 2 Y. & J. 70).

(a) Chick v. Nicholls (1877), 26 W. R. 231; Re Clark, Ex parte Newland (1876), 4 Ch. D. 515; compare Wickens v. Townsend (1830), 1 Russ. & M. 361, applied in Re Birt, Birt v. Burt (1883), 22 Ch. D. 604. It is immaterial whether the solicitor acted for the plaintiff or for the defendant (Townsend v. Reade, Dooley v. Read, supra).

(b) Francis v. Francis (1854), 5 De G. M. & G. 108, C. A. The death (Lloyd v. Mason (1845), 4 Hare, 132) or the bankruptcy of the client does not affect a lien which has already attached. The lien is available against an infant (Re Wright's Trust. Wright v. Sanderson, [1901] 1 Ch. 317, C. A.) or lunatic (Ex parte Price (1751), 2 Ves. Sen. 407).

(c) Re Downes, Verity v. Wylde (1859), 4 Drew. 427; Chick v. Nicholls, supra.

(d) Re Harrald, Wilde v. Walford (1884), 53 L. J. (CH.) 505, C. A.; Re Union Cement and Brick Co. (1872), 26 L. T. 240.

SECT. 9. Lien.

Effect of set-off.

the other parties interested in the property (e). In particular, a set-off (f) for damages or costs between parties may be allowed, notwithstanding the solicitor's lien for costs (g) in the particular cause or matter in which the set-off is sought (h). As regards damages, the set-off necessarily arises in respect of different actions (i); but as regards costs (k) the set-off is confined to interlocutory costs (l), and to the costs of separate issues (m) or parties (n) in the same proceedings, and does not extend to the costs of independent proceedings (o), or separate actions (p), even though in the latter case a consolidation order may have been made (q).

Enforcement of lien.

1344. By virtue of his lien the solicitor has a right to ask for the intervention of the court for its protection whenever he finds, after recovering or preserving the property for the client, that there is a probability of the client depriving him of his costs (a). He is, therefore, entitled to apply to the court for an injunction against his client, restraining the client from receiving payment without notice to himself (b), or, if the fund is in court, for an order for payment thereout of his costs (c). He may also give notice of his lien

(e) Taylor v. Popham, Monke v. Taylor (1808), 15 Ves. 72; Bawtree v. Watson (1838), 2 Keen, 713; Gwynn v. Krous (1845), 7 I. Eq. R. 274.

(f) As to set-off generally, see title SET-OFF AND COUNTERCLAIM, Vol. XXV., pp. 484 et seq.

(g) M'Cormack v. Ross, [1894] 2 I. R. 545. The court has a discretion as to whether the set-off is to be allowed subject to the lien or otherwise (Edwards v. Hope (1885), 14 Q. B. D. 922, C. A.; Blakey v. Latham (1889), 41 Ch. D. 518).

(h) R. S. C., Ord. 65, r. 14. There is no similar rule in the case of appeals to the House of Lords, and there is, therefore, no right of set-off unless at the hearing a special order is made (Russell v. Russell, [1898] A. C. 307).

(i) Goodfellow v. Gray, [1899] 2 Q. B. 498, C. A., following Blakey v. Latham, supra; compare Ward v. Haddrill, [1904] 1 K. B. 399.

(k) Costs and damages may be set off against each other in the same action where the plaintiff, though he recovers damages, is ordered to pay the defendant's costs (Bawtree v. Watson, supra; compare Pringle v. Gloag (1879), 10 Ch. D. 676), or where the defendant fails on the claim, but succeeds on the counterclaim (Meynall v. Morris (1911), 104 L. T. 667).

(l) Cattell v. Simons (1843), 6 Beav. 304; Byron v. Metropolitan Saloon Omnibus Co. (1859), 4 Drew. 546; Jenner v. Morris, Webster v. Jenner (1863), 11 W. R. 943; Throckmorton v. Crowley (1866), L. R. 3 Eq. 196.

(m) Taylor v. Popham, Monke v. Taylor, supra; Robarts v. Buèe (1878), 8 Ch. D. 198.

(n) Lees v. Reffitt (1835), 3 Ad. & El. 707; M'Cormack v. Ross, supra; George v. Elston (1835), 1 Bing. (N. C.) 513.

(o) Hassell v. Stanley, [1896] 1 Ch. 607; Re Bassett, Ex parte Lewis, [1896] 1 Q. B. 219; Re Adams, Ex parte Griffin (1880), 14 Ch. D. 37, C. A.; Barker v. Hemming (1880), 5 Q. B. D. 609, C. A.; Re Davies, Ex parte Cleland (1867), 2 Ch. App. 808; Re Harrald, Wilde v. Walford (1884), 53 L. J. (CH.) 505, C. A.; Re Dickinson, Bute (Marquis) v. Walker, Ex parte Hoyle, Shipley v. Hoyle, [1888] W. N. 94.

(p) David v. Rees, [1904] 2 K. B. 435, C. A.; Bake v. French, [1907] 1 Ch, 428; Johnston v. MacKenzie, [1911] 2 I. R. 118; Edwards v. Hope (1885). 14 Q. B. D. 922, C. A.; Blakey v. Latham, supra; Wright v. Mudie (1823), 1 Sim. & St. 266; Cowell v. Betteley (1834), 10 Bing. 432 (awards); Collett v. Preston (1852), 15 Beav. 458.

(q) Bake v. French, supra.

(a) Mercer v. Graves (1872), L. R. 7 Q. B. 499; Hough v. Edwards (1856), 1 H. & N. 171.

(b) Lloyd v. Jones (1879), 40 L. T. 514; Hobson v. Shearwood (1845), 8 Beav. 486.

(c) Moore v. Smith (1851), 14 Beav. 393.

to the party liable to his client, who thereupon becomes liable to the solicitor if he subsequently pays the client without regard to the solicitor's lien (d). If the money in respect of which the lien is claimed is already in the solicitor's hands, he may retain thereout the amount of his costs, and pay over the balance to the client (e).

Effect of compromise of action.

1345. The solicitor's lien may be affected by the compromise of a suit, and the court does not, for the purpose of preserving it, interfere in a bonâ fide compromise (f), whether the damages sought to be affected are liquidated (g) or unliquidated (h). It must, however, be clear that the compromise is made honestly and not with the intention of cheating the solicitor of his proper charges (i). If the compromise is a collusive one entered into between the plaintiff and the defendant specifically for the purpose of depriving the solicitor of his lien, the court interferes for the solicitor's protection; in this case he may apply summarily for payment of his costs by either of the parties to the collusive scheme (k). Where a valid compromise of an action has been entered into involving payment of a sum of money to the plaintiff, the defendant, if he receives express notice from the plaintiff's solicitor of his claim to a lien for his costs, must not disregard the notice and make the payment to the plaintiff (l).

SUB-SECT. 4.—Statutory Lien and Charging Orders.

Extent of the jurisdiction.

1346. The court has power (m), in any proceedings, to make a charging order in favour of the solicitor employed to conduct the (d) Ormerod v. Tate (1801), 1 East, 464; Read v. Dupper (1795), 6 Term Rep. 361; Ross v. Buxton (1889), 42 Ch. D. 190 (where the defendants' solicitors were held liable for disregarding the notice); compare Ex parte Morrison (1868), L. R. 4 Q. B. 153. Similarly, a release by the client after notice does not affect the lien (Ex parte Bryant (1815), 1 Madd. 49; Ormerod v. Tate, supra). The solicitor cannot claim payment direct to himself in the first instance (Lloyd v. Mansell (1853), 22 L. J. (Q. B.) 110; Re —— (1853), 1 W. R. 150). The solicitor cannot take proceedings if he has already allowed the other party to pay his client (Morse v. Cook (1824), 13 Price, 473).

(e) See Watson v. Maskell (1834), 1 Bing. (N. C.) 366; and compare Miller v. Atlee (1849), 3 Exch. 799.

(f) M'Pherson v. Allsop (1839), 8 L. J. (EX.) 262; Quested v. Callis (1842), 1 Dowl. (N. S.) 888; Brunsdon v. Allard (1859), 2 E. & E. 19; Ex parte Morrison, supra; Morse v. Cook, supra.

(g) Brunsdon v. Allard, supra.

(h) Re Tovery v. Payne, Ex parte Hart (1830), 1 B. & Ad. 660.

(i) Chapman v. Haw (1808), 1 Taunt. 341; Jordan v. Hunt (1855), 3 Dowl. 666; The Hope (1883), 8 P. D. 144, 146, C. A.; Reynolds v. Reynolds (1909), 26 T. L. R. 104, C. A.; but see Price v. Crouch (1891), 60 L. J. (Q. B.) 767.

(k) Re Williams v. Lloyd, Ex parte Games (1864), 3 H. & C. 294; Gould v. Davis (1831), 1 Cr. & J. 415; Ex parte Morrison, supra; Young v. Redhead (1833), 2 Dowl. 119; Re Margetson and Jones, [1897] 2 Ch. 314, 321; Price v. Crouch, supra.

(l) Ross v. Buxton, supra, per STIRLING, J., at p. 202.

(m) The power of the court is discretionary (Re Born, Curnock v. Born, [1900] 2 Ch. 433; Re Turner, Wood v. Turner, [1907] 2 Ch. 539, C. A.; Re Cockrell's Estate, [1912] 1 Ch. 23), and the solicitor must make out a primâ facie case that he cannot obtain payment in any other way (Harrison v. Harrison (1888), 13 P. D. 180, C. A., followed in Croghan v. Maffett (1891), 28 L. R. Ir. 97). If the judgment debtor becomes bankrupt a charging order in favour of the judgment creditor's solicitor will not be made by the bankruptcy court against the dividend payable to the judgment creditor (Re Cook, Ex parte Cripps, [1899] 1 Q. B. 863); see title BANKRUPTCY AND INSOLVENCY, Vol. II., p. 239. The court does not proceedings (n) against any property recovered or preserved through the solicitor's instrumentality (o), in respect of his taxed costs, charges and expenses in such proceedings (p), and the charge thus created is only defeated by a conveyance to a bonâ fide purchaser for value without notice (q). The court may order the costs to be taxed and the amount of them to be raised and paid out of the property by sale or otherwise (r). No order, however, may be made where the costs, charges or expenses are barred by any Statute of Limitation (s); nor will an order be made in favour of a solicitor who has already accepted from his client a mortgage or other security for his costs in a pending action to which his client is a party, since the acceptance of the security is inconsistent with the solicitor's right to payment otherwise (a). To bring a case within the power conferred upon the court the property must have been recovered or preserved in a proceeding in a court of justice (b). Any class of property may be the subject of a charging order (c), such make a charging order where there is already an order of the court in existence directing payment to the solicitor's London agent (Re Viney's Trust (1868), 18 L. T. 851).

SECT. 9. Lien.

(n) Where there is a change of solicitors during the proceedings, the latest in order of employment has priority (Re Knight, Knight v. Gardner, [1892] 2 Ch. 368, following Re Wadsworth, Rhodes v. Sugden (1885), 29 Ch. D. 517; Cormack v. Beisley (1858), 3 De G. & J. 157, C. A.).

(o) This does not include money paid into court as security for costs by the plaintiff, which the plaintiff becomes entitled to take out of court when the action results in his favour (Re Wadsworth, Rhodes v. Sugden, supra; Re Turner, Wood v. Turner, [1907] 2 Ch. 126, 539, C. A.); see also Pierson v. Knutsford Estates Co. (1884), 13 Q. B. D. 666, C. A., where the question was raised, but not decided, as to whether a charging order could be made against property which was not the direct subject-matter of the litigation.

(p) Ex parte Thompson (1860), 3 L. T. 317; Wilson v. Round (1863), 4 Giff. 416; Shevlin v. M'Grane (1886), 17 L. R. Ir. 271; Re Hill, a Solicitor (1886), 33 Ch. D. 266, C. A.

(q) Solicitors Act, 1860 (23 & 24 Vict. c. 127), s. 28; compare title RECEIVERS, Vol. XXIV., p. 383. As to the position of a London agent, see pp. 844 et seq., post; as to the effect of the making of a winding-up order upon a solicitor's lien for costs against a limited company, see title COMPANIES, Vol. V., p. 525.

(r) Solicitors Act, 1860 (23 & 24 Vict. c. 127), s. 28. Before a sale is ordered the proceedings must have come to an end and the costs must have been directed to be paid (Re Green, Green v. Green (1884), 26 Ch. D. 16, C. A.), and notice must be given to persons interested in the property who were not parties (Rowley v. Southwell, Southwell v. Rowley (1889), 61 L. T. 805, where substituted service was allowed).

(s) Solicitors Act, 1860 (23 & 24 Vict. c. 127), s. 28.

(a) Groom v. Cheesewright, [1895] 1 Ch. 730, 733; Re Pinkerton, Pinkerton v. Easton (1873), L. R. 16 Eq. 490; Re Humphreys, Ex parte Roberts (1897), 77 L. T. 501; Westacott v. Bevan, [1891] 1 Q. B. 774 (amount recovered on claim reduced by amount recovered on counterclaim); Goodfellow v. Gray, [1899] 2 Q. B. 498, C. A.

(b) Macfarlane v. Lister (1887), 37 Ch. D. 88, C. A.; Re Humphreys, Ex parte Lloyd-George and George, [1898] 1 Q. B. 520, C. A.; Birchall v. Pugin (1875), L. R. 10 C. P. 397; compare M'Aleavey v. M'Aleavey (1882), 9 L. R. Ir. 165 (award). It is immaterial that the advice was a friendly action (Baile v. Baile (1872), L. R. 13 Eq. 497).

(c) Foxon v. Gascoigne (1874), 9 Ch. App. 654, per MELLISH, L.J., at p. 660; Pelsall Coal and Iron Co. v. London and North-Western Rail. Co. (No. 3) (1892), 8 Ry. & Can. Tr. Cas. 146 (wagons subject to lien which was reduced by solicitor's exertion).

as, for instance, a sum secured to a wife on the dissolution of her marriage (d); money paid into court by way of defence (e) or under R. S. C., Order 14 (f), or as the proceeds of the sale of a ship, under an order made in an Admiralty action (g); sums recovered by a receiver in a debenture-holder's action as the result of proceedings taken by his solicitors (h); assets of a company preserved by a scheme approved by the court as regards the company's solicitor's costs of the winding up and reconstruction (i); money payable as the result of a compromise of an action (j); the estate of a deceased testator as regards the executor's costs (k); money payable to a beneficiary in an administration action (l); investments successfully defended against a claim to follow them (m); costs payable to the client under a judgment (n); or costs ordered to be repaid by the Court of Appeal as the result of an appeal (o). The solicitor may by the charging order acquire priority over other creditors, even though they were not parties to the proceedings in question (p). Thus, a solicitor who has obtained a charging order in his favour has priority over a judgment creditor who has obtained a garnishee order against the same fund (q). A solicitor bringing an action on behalf of an undischarged bankrupt is entitled, as

(d) Harrison v. Harrison (1888), 13 P. D 180, C. A.; see title HUSBAND AND WIFE, Vol. XVI., p. 589. As to a solicitor's lien on alimony, see ibid., p. 520.

(e) Emden v. Carte (1881), 19 Ch. D. 311, C. A., following Berdan v. Greenwood (1878), 3 Ex. D. 251, C. A. The court before which an action is tried has no jurisdiction to grant a charging order against money paid into court under an order of the Bankruptcy Court (Pierson v. Knutsford Estates Co. (1884), 13 Q. B. D. 666, C. A.).

(f) Moxon v. Sheppard (1890), 24 Q. B. D. 627; Hunt v. Austin (1882), 9 Q. B. D. 598, C. A.

(g) The Heinrich (1872), L. R. 3 A. & E. 505; compare The Philippine (1867), L. R. 1 A. & E. 309; but contrast The Livietta (1883), 8 P. D. 209.

(h) Re Horne (W. C.) & Sons, Ltd., Horne v. Horne (W. C.) & Sons, Ltd., [1906] 1 Ch. 271; distinguished in Re Drew (1913), 135 L. T. Jo. 322; Twynam v. Porter (1870), L. R. 11 Eq. 181; Turnbull v. Richardson (1885), 1 T. L. R. 244, C. A.; Pelsall Coal and Iron Co. v. London and North Western Rail. Co. (1892), 8 T. L. R. 629.

(i) Re Clayton (John), Ltd. (1905), 92 L. T. 223; see also Re Freehold Land and Brickmaking Co., Ex parte Massey (1870), L. R. 9 Eq. 36.

(j) Re Turner, Wood v. Turner, [1907] 2 Ch. 539, C. A.; M'Larnon v. Carrickfergus Urban District Council, [1904] 2 I. R. 44; Ross v. Buxton (1889), 42 Ch. D. 190; The Paris, [1896] P. 77; Rowlands v. Williams (1885), 53 L. T. 135; reversed without affecting this point (1885), Times, 12th November, C. A.; Twynam v. Porter, supra.

(k) Catlow v. Catlow (1877), 2 C. P. D. 362; Ex parte Tweed, [1899] 2 Q. B. 167, C. A.; The Paris, supra; Johnston v. McKenzie, [1911] 2 I. R. 118.

(l) Smith v. Winter, Ex parte Hartley (1870), 18 W. R. 447.

(m) Porter v. West (1880), 50 L. J. (CH.) 231.

(n) Dallow v. Garrold (1881), 14 Q. B. D. 543, C. A.

(o) Guy v. Churchill (1887), 35 Ch. D. 489, C. A.

(p) Hamer v. Giles, Giles v. Hamer (1879), 11 Ch. D. 942, explained in Jackson v. Smith, Ex parte Digby (1884), 53 L. J. (CH.) 972; Dennis v. Addy, [1894] 1 I. R. 511; Haymes v. Cooper, Cooper v. Jenkins (1864), 33 Beav. 431; The Heinrich, supra; Wilson v. Round (1863), 4 Giff. 416; contrast Keeson v. Luxmore (1889), 61 L. T. 199.

(q) Shippey v. Grey (1880), 49 L. J. (Q. B.) 524, C. A.; Hamer v. Giles, Giles v. Hamer, supra; The Jeff Davis (1865), L. R. 2 A. & E. 1; Birchall v. Pugin (1875), L. R. 10 C. P. 397; Dallow v. Garrold, supra; but see North v. Stewart (1890), 15 App. Cas. 452.

SECT. 9. Lien.

against the trustee in bankruptcy, to a charging order in respect of costs incurred down to the time when the trustee intervened (r).

Real property.

Real property may be charged in favour of the solicitor, not only as against his client, but also as against all persons interested in the property, upon the principle of salvage (s); and the order may be made against the property of an infant (t), or against property settled upon a married woman without power of anticipation (a).

Partnership property.

A solicitor who has recovered or preserved the assets of the firm in a partnership action is entitled to a lien in priority to debts due from the partnership (b), including rent due to a landlord who has not distrained (c). A charging order is not, however, made in the absence of creditors, nor unless the solicitor is able to satisfy the court that he cannot otherwise obtain payment of his costs (d).

Who may apply for charging order.

1347. The charging order is made on the application of the solicitor interested (e), or of his legal personal representative (f), or an assignee of the costs (g), as the case may be. A charging order will not as a general rule be made ex parte except in special circumstances (h). The court will, if necessary, protect the lien by

(r) Emden v. Carte (1881), 19 Ch. D. 311, C. A.; compare Re Seaman, Wilson v. Hood (1864), 33 L. J. (EX.) 204; Ex parte Sleeman (1864), 12 W. R. 748.

(s) Faithfull v. Ewen (1878), 7 Ch. D. 495, C. A.; Charlton v. Charlton (1883), 49 L. T. 267, not following Berrie v. Howitt (1869), L. R. 9 Eq. 1; Shevlin v. M'Grane (1886), 17 L. R. Ir. 271; Greer v. Young (1883), 24 Ch. D. 545, C. A.; Bailey v. Birchall (1865), 2 Hem. & M. 371; Wilson v. Round (1863), 4 Giff. 416; Scholey v. Peck, [1893] 1 Ch. 709; Re Fiddey, Jones v. Frost (1872), 7 Ch. App. 773; Cole v. Eley, [1894] 2 Q. B. 180, 350, C. A.; Reynolds v. Reynolds (1909), 26 T. L. R. 104, C. A.; Bulley v. Bulley (1878), 8 Ch. D. 479; Dennis v. Addy, [1894] 1 I. R. 511; contrast Lloyd v. Jones (1879), 40 L. T. 514. But the refusal of a mandatory injunction for the pulling down of buildings in an action relating only to an easement is not a preservation of property entitling the solicitor of the defendant to a charging order (Foxon v. Gascoigne (1874), 9 Ch. App. 654). The interest of a mortgagee may be charged (Scholefield v. Lockwood (1868), L. R. 7 Eq. 83; Keenan v. Armstrong (1891), 27 L. R. Ir. 371).

(t) Pritchard v. Roberts (1874), L. R. 17 Eq. 222; compare Bonser v. Bradshaw (1863), 4 Giff. 260; Baile v. Baile (1872), L. R. 13 Eq. 497; Greer v. Young, supra; Re Brook, Pilcher v. Arden (1877), 7 Ch. D. 318, C. A. As to the right of the infant on attaining full age to adopt or repudiate the transaction, see title INFANTS AND CHILDREN, Vol. XVII., p. 140.

(a) Re Keane, Lumley v. Desborough (1871), L. R. 12 Eq. 115; see title HUSBAND AND WIFE. Vol. XVI., pp. 366, 367.

(b) Jackson v. Smith, Ex parte Digby (1884), 53 L. J. (CH.) 972; Re Nicholas and Paine, Ex parte Lovett (1889), 61 L. T. 87; Ridd v. Thorne, [1902] 2 Ch. 344; and see Harrison v. Cornwall Minerals Rail. Co. (1884) 53 L. J. (CH.) 596.

(c) Re Suffield and Watts, Ex parte Brown (1888), 20 Q. B. D. 693, C. A.

(d) Jackson v. Smith, Ex parte Digby, supra. As to costs of a solicitor obtaining admission of a creditor's proof in bankruptcy, see title BANKRUPTCY AND INSOLVENCY, Vol II., p. 239.

(e) Solicitors Act, 1860 (23 & 24 Vict. c. 127), s. 28. The order will be made though he has ceased to act for the client, provided that he has not discharged himself improperly (Clover v. Adams (1881), 6 Q. B. D. 622; Re Wadsworth, Rhodes v. Sugden (1885), 29 Ch. D. 517). The parties to an action cannot apply for an order (Harrison v. Cornwall Minerals Rail. Co., supra). An application to set aside a charging order made ex parte should be made promptly (Re Deakin, Ex parte Daniell, [1900] 2 Q. B. 489, C. A.).

(f) Baile v. Baile, supra.

(g) Briscoe v. Briscoe, [1892] 3 Ch. 543.

(h) The Birnam Wood, [1907] P. 1, C. A. The court may allow substituted service of the application (Hunt v. Austin (1882), 9 Q. B. D. 598, C. A.).

injunction, which may in a proper case be granted ex parte (i), restraining the client from receiving the money or alienating the property which forms the security for the lien until a charging order can be obtained (k). A delay in making the application does not preclude the court from exercising its discretion in favour of the solicitor, unless other rights in respect of the property sought to be charged have meantime arisen (l).

Court making the order.

1348. The order may be made by any judge of the division of the High Court in which the action is tried (m), or where the judgment relied upon is that of the Court of Appeal, either by the Court of Appeal or by a judge of the division in which the action was originally tried (n). In the King's Bench Division the order is usually made by the judge in chambers (o). In the Chancery Division the order is made by the judge sitting either in court or in chambers (p), and in the Probate, Divorce and Admiralty Division by the judge in chambers (q). The judge in bankruptcy has no power to make a charging order in the exercise of his bankruptcy jurisdiction, but he may do so by virtue of his jurisdiction as a judge of the High Court, and may direct the power to be exercised in chambers by a registrar (r). There seems to be no reason why a charging order should not be made by a county court where the solicitor applying for the order was employed to conduct the action there (s).

The charging order when granted may direct the costs of the application to be taxed as between solicitor and client and added to the amount for which it is made (t).

(i) Gerrard v. Dawes, Re Dawes, Dryden v. Dawes (1809), 18 W. R. 32; but see Heap v. Jackson, [1886] W. N. 192.

(k) Birch v. Podmore, cited (1829), 1 Jur. (N. S.) 123; S. C., cited sub nom. Bovill v. Podmore (1829), 7 De G. M. & G. 27; Lloyd v. Jones (1879), 40 L. T. 514.

(l) Re Born, Curnock v. Born, [1900] 2 Ch. 433; Roche v. Roche (1890), 29 L. R. Ir. 339, C. A.; Re Cumming (1860), 2 De G. F. & J. 376, C. A.

(m) Solicitors Act, 1860 (23 & 24 Vict. c. 127), s. 28; Re Deakin, Ex parte Daniell, [1900] 2 Q. B. 489, C. A. (where, however, the earlier cases, holding that the application should be made to the judge who tried the action (Re Fiddey (a Solicitor), Heinrich v. Sutton (1871), 6 Ch. App. 865; Higgs v. Schrader (1878), 3 C. P. D. 252; Owen v. Henshaw (1877), 7 Ch. D. 385), were not cited).

(n) Re Deakin, Ex parte Daniell, supra; Guy v. Churchill (1887), 35 Ch. D. 489, C. A.; Catlow v. Catlow (1877), 2 C. P. D. 362.

(o) R. S. C., Ord. 54, r. 12; Clover v. Adams, supra; see title EXECUTION, Vol. XIV., pp. 105, note (g), 107, note (a).

(p) The application may be made either by summons or petition (Hamer v. Giles, Giles v. Hamer (1879), 11 Ch. D. 942 (where it was also held that the order need only be intituled in the action)); see also Porter v. West (1881), 50 L. J. (CH.) 231; Re Fiddey (a Solicitor), Jones v. Frost (1872), 7 Ch. App. 773. The other parties to the action should not be served if their interests are not affected (Brown v. Trotman (1879), 12 Ch. D. 880).

(q) The Birnam Wood, [1907] P. 1, C. A.

(r) Re Wood, Ex parte Fanshawe, [1897] 1 Q. B. 314; but see Re Deakin, Ex parte Daniell, supra, where it was suggested that the judge in bankruptcy would have jurisdiction if the property was recovered or preserved in bankruptcy proceedings.

(s) The words in the Solicitors Act, 1860 (23 & 24 Vict. c. 127), s. 28, are "any court of justice"; compare Re Wood, Ex parte Fanshawe, supra, per VAUGHAN WILLIAMS, J., at p. 316. Such orders are in practice frequently made.

(t) Waterland v. Serle (1897), 32 L. J. 582, C. A. Contrast Mildmay v.

Part VI.—Liabilities of Solicitors as Officers of the High Court.

SECT. 1. In General.

SECT. 1.—In General.

Disciplinary jurisdiction.

1349. The court possesses a disciplinary jurisdiction over solicitors, as being its officers (a). This jurisdiction, though it has been extended by statute (b), and by the Rules of the Supreme Court (c), is inherent in the court (d), and is based upon the doctrine of contempt (e). It is exercisable summarily by writ of attachment (f) or by committal (g).

Criminal contempt.

1350. A solicitor is guilty of criminal contempt (h) where he is guilty of conduct, whether in or out of court (i), amounting to a contemptuous interference with the administration of justice (k), as, for instance, where he insolently defies the judge in open court (l), or uses improper language to the judge (m), or to the solicitor of the opposite party (n); where he writes to the Press with Quicke (1877), 6 Ch. D. 553, where the costs of appearing on further consideration were not allowed.

(a) Compare Re Haynes, Ex parte National Mercantile Bank (1880), 15 Ch. D. 42, C. A., per JAMES, L.J., at p. 52. The jurisdiction is exercisable by the High Court or the Court of Appeal (Judicature Act, 1873 (36 & 37 Vict. c. 66), s. 87). Where an order is made by a judge in chambers, the appeal lies to a Divisional Court and not to the Court of Appeal (Haxby v. Wood Advertising Agency, Ltd., [1913] W. N. 331, following Re Marchant, [1908] 1 K. B. 998, C. A. As to whether a solicitor exercises a public office, see Bebb v. Law Society (1913), 29 T. L. R. 634, per JOYCE, J., at p. 635.

(b) For examples, see Solicitors Act, 1843 (6 & 7 Vict. c. 73), s. 31; Debtors Act, 1869 (32 & 33 Vict. c. 62), s. 4 (4).

(c) For an example, see R. S. C., Ord. 31, r. 23.

(d) As to contempt in inferior courts, see Re Pater, R. v. Middlesex Justices (1864), 5 B. & S. 299; R. v. Lefroy (1873), L. R. 8 Q. B. 134; Willis v. Maclachlan (1876), 1 Ex. D. 376; County Courts Act, 1888 (51 & 52 Vict. c. 43), s. 162; Army Act (44 & 45 Vict. c. 58), s. 129.

(e) R. v. Almon (1765), Wilm. 243, 254; 2 Hawk. P. C., c. 22, ss. 6—12.

(f) As to attachment and committal, see, generally, title CONTEMPT OF COURT, ATTACHMENT, AND COMMITTAL, Vol. VII., pp. 307 et seq.

(g) Committal is the proper remedy for breach of an undertaking (D. v. A. & Co., [1900] 1 Ch. 484; see Callow v. Young (1887), 56 L. T. 147).

(h) As to criminal contempt generally, see title CONTEMPT OF COURT, ATTACHMENT, AND COMMITTAL, Vol. VII., pp. 280 et seq. As to the distinction between the different classes of contempt as regards the right of appeal, see Scott v. Scott, [1913] A. C. 417.

(i) An inferior court cannot commit for contempt out of court (R. v. Lefroy, supra; R. v. Brompton County Court Judge, [1893] 2 Q. B. 195).

(k) R. v. Almon (1765), Wilm. 243, 254, approved in Re Martin, Ex parte Van Sandau (1844), 1 Ph. 445, and in Re Johnson (1887), 20 Q. B. D. 68, C. A.

(l) Watt v. Ligertwood (1874), L. R. 2 Sc. & Div. 361.

(m) Re Pollard (1868), L. R. 2 P. C. 106; Re Pater, R. v. Middlesex Justices (1864), 5 B. & S. 299.

(n) Re Johnson, supra (where the altercation took place in the corridors of the Royal Courts of Justice after leaving the presence of the judge in chambers); contrast Re Clements, Costa Rica Republic v. Erlanger (1877), 46 L. J. (CH.) 375, C. A., where the altercation took place in the solicitor's office.

reference to the merits of a pending case in which he is professionally interested (o); or where he prepares a special case for the opinion of the court based upon a fictitious statement of facts (p). A solicitor who commences or defends legal proceedings on behalf of a client, whilst he himself is in prison, or who permits a solicitor in prison to use his name for the purpose, is guilty of contempt (q).

Contempt in procedure.

1351. A solicitor is also liable to punishment for contempt in procedure (r), as, for instance, where he fails to perform an undertaking given by him in his capacity as an officer of the court (s), or where he neglects without reasonable excuse to give notice to his client of any order against him for interrogatories, discovery, or inspection (t). In many cases the act done by the solicitor which calls for the intervention of the court is not in itself a contempt; the court in the first instance makes an order against the solicitor, and it is his disobedience to the order which constitutes the actual contempt (a). In particular, where the court has ordered a solicitor to pay costs for misconduct as such, or to pay (b) a sum of money in his character as an officer of the court, the solicitor, on making default, is liable to attachment and imprisonment for a period not exceeding one year (c). The court, however, will not intervene summarily where the solicitor acted in his private capacity (d), such as, for instance, as a trustee (e), or arbitrator (f), or even where he merely acted in the ordinary course of business as a solicitor (g): the act must have been done by him as an officer of the court (h).

(o) Daw v. Eley (1868) L. R. 7 Eq. 49; and see the cases cited in title CONTEMPT OF COURT, ATTACHMENT, AND COMMITTAL, Vol. VII., p. 285, note (b).

(p) Re Elsam (1824), 3 B. & C. 597; compare Coxe and Phillips (1736), Lee temp. Hard. 237; Bishop v. Willis (1749), 5 Beav. 83, n.

(q) Solicitors Act, 1843 (6 & 7 Vict. c. 73), s. 31; see title CONTEMPT OF COURT, ATTACHMENT, AND COMMITTAL, Vol. VII., p. 294.

(r) As to contempt in procedure, see, generally, title CONTEMPT OF COURT, ATTACHMENT, AND COMMITTAL, Vol. VII., pp. 297 et seq., 301 et seq.

(s) See p. 830, post.

(t) R. S. C., Ord. 31, r. 23; see title CONTEMPT OF COURT, ATTACHMENT, AND COMMITTAL, Vol. VII., p. 306.

(a) Re a Solicitor (1877), 36 L. T. 113; see p. 830, post; title CONTEMPT OF COURT, ATTACHMENT, AND COMMITTAL, Vol. VII., pp. 298 et seq.

(b) As to the form of the order as affecting the remedy by attachment, see title CONTEMPT OF COURT, ATTACHMENT, AND COMMITTAL, Vol. VII., p. 298.

(c) Debtors Act, 1869 (32 & 33 Vict. c. 62), s. 4 (4); see title CONTEMPT OF COURT, ATTACHMENT, AND COMMITTAL, Vol. VII., p. 301. The court has a discretion to refuse the attachment (Debtors Act, 1878 (41 & 42 Vict. c. 54), s. 1). An appeal against the order for attachment lies to the Divisional Court (Re Marchant, [1908] 1 K. B. 998; Haxby v. Wood Advertising Agency, Ltd., [1913] W. N. 331).

(d) Re Chitty (1833), 2 Dowl. 421.

(e) Re Blanchard, Re Le Doulcet's Mortgage (1861) 7 Jur. (N. S.) 505; Pearson v. Sutton (1814), 5 Taunt. 364.

(f) Re Anon. (1849), 19 L. J. (EX.) 219.

(g) Re Ditchman, Ex parte Bull (1833), 3 Deac. & Ch. 116; Ex parte Cowie (1835), 3 Dowl. 600; Brazier v. Bryant (1834), 2 Dowl. 600; compare Meux v. Lloyd (1857), 2 C. B. (N. S.) 409; Re an Attorney (1856), 4 W. R. 617 (where the client had already sued the solicitor).

(h) Re Anon. (1849), supra; Re Phelps and Dodd (1839), 3 Jur. 479.

SECT. 2. Liability upon Undertakings given as a Solicitor.

SECT. 2.—Liability upon Undertakings given as a Solicitor.

Enforcement of undertakings.

1352. Where a solicitor, in the course of business which he is conducting for his client with third parties in the way of his profession, gives an undertaking incidental thereto, the parties having the right to enforce the undertaking may be entitled to employ the summary procedure of an application to the court under its summary jurisdiction over its own officers (i). To entitle them to do so, it must be shown that the undertaking is given by the solicitor personally (k), and not merely as agent on behalf of his client (l); the undertaking must also be given by the solicitor, not as an individual (m), but in his professional capacity as a solicitor (n).

Basis of jurisdiction.

The jurisdiction is based upon the right of the court to require its officers to observe a high standard of conduct; it is immaterial that no misconduct on the part of the solicitor is suggested (o). The solicitor cannot, therefore, defend himself on the ground that his undertaking is not enforceable as a contract against him (a), or on the ground that the application has been delayed (b).

What undertakings enforceable.

The undertaking must be clear in its terms (c); the whole of the agreement to which it relates must be before the court (d); and the undertaking must be one which is not impossible ab initio for the solicitor to perform (e). An undertaking will, however, be enforced against the solicitor although, after it is given, the client

An order for an injunction may extend to the defendant's solicitor; see title INJUNCTION, Vol. XVII., pp. 282, 283.

(i) As to a verbal guarantee by a solicitor, see also title GUARANTEE, Vol. XV., p. 456. As to the procedure, see title CONTEMPT OF COURT, ATTACHMENT, AND COMMITTAL, Vol. VII., pp. 305 et seq.

(k) Burrell v. Jones (1819), 3 B. & Ald. 47; Appleton v. Binks (1804), 5 East, 148; Re Fairthorne (1846), 1 Saund. & C. 40; Brandon v. Smith (1853), 1 W. R. 130; Iveson v. Conington (1823), 1 B. & C. 160; Re Bentley, Ex parte Bentley (1833), 2 Deac. & Ch. 578; Hall v. Ashurst (1833), 1 Cr. & M. 714; Leedham v. Baxter (1856), 4 W. R. 241.

(l) Re an Attorney, Burnett v. Proois (1870), 22 L. T. 543; Re Williams (1849), 12 Beav. 510; Lewis v. Nicholson (1852), 18 Q. B. 503; Downman v. Williams (1845), 7 Q. B. 103, Ex. Ch.; compare Walker v. Arlett (1831), 1 Dowl. 61.

(m) Northfield v. Orton (1832), 1 Dowl. 415; Re Bateman (1833), 2 Dowl. 161; Re Kearns (1847), 11 Jur. 521; Ex parte Clifton (1836), 5 Dowl. 218; Ex parte Evans (1840), 4 Jur. 991; Re Webb (1845), 14 L. J. (Q. B.) 244; Russel v. Reece (1847), 2 Car. & Kir. 669; Allaway v. Duncan (1867), 16 L. T. 264; Ex parte Watts (1832), 1 Dowl. 512.

(n) United Mining and Finance Corporation, Ltd. v. Becher, [1910] 2 K. B. 296, per HAMILTON, J., at p. 307, not following Peart v. Bushell (1827), 2 Sim. 38, and Re a Solicitor, Ex parte Hales, [1907] 2 K. B. 539; see title CONTEMPT OF COURT, ATTACHMENT, AND COMMITTAL, Vol. VII., p. 306. An undertaking by a partner is binding on his firm (Alliance Bank v. Tucker (1867), 17 L. T. 13), provided that he is acting within his authority in giving it (Hasleham v. Young (1844), 5 Q. B. 833).

(o) United Mining and Finance Corporation, Ltd. v. Becher, supra.

(a) Re Hilliard (1845), 2 Dow. & L. 919; Senior v. Butt (1827), 5 L. J. (O. S.) (K. B.) 136; Evans v. Duncombe (1831), 1 Cr. & J. 372; Re Paterson (1832), 1 Dowl. 468; compare Re Kearns (1847), 11 Jur. 521.

(b) Re Swan (1846), 15 L. J. (Q. B.) 402.

(c) Thompson v. Gordon (1846), 15 M. & W. 610.

(d) Gilbert v. Cooper (1848), 17 L. J. (CH.) 265.

(e) Peart v Bushell, supra; but see United Mining and Finance Corporation, Ltd. v. Becher, supra, per HAMILTON, J., at p. 306.

dies (f) or instructs the solicitor not to perform it (g), or changes his solicitor (h). If performance of the undertaking has been waived the undertaking will not be enforced afterwards (i). Similarly, if the undertaking is conditional, the condition must be fulfilled before the undertaking will be enforced (k).

Illustrations.

1353. Undertakings may be given by a solicitor in connexion with legal proceedings which he is conducting on behalf of a client (l). Thus, the solicitor for the defendant may give his personal undertaking to enter an appearance for his client (m): if he fails to do so, he is then liable to attachment (m), though the court may, instead of granting the order for attachment at once, order him to fulfil his obligation by entering the appearance (n). If at the time when the undertaking was given the solicitor was duly authorised by his client, the subsequent attempted withdrawal of authority by the client does not excuse the solicitor (o). If, on the other hand, the solicitor had no authority from his client to give the undertaking, and the client refuses to authorise him to enter the appearance, he may be either attached or sued for damages for breach of warranty of authority (p). Again, the solicitor may, in the course of the proceedings, give his personal undertaking not to interfere with a witness (q), or he may undertake to stamp a document (r). Where an action is compromised or settled, he may bind himself personally to carry out the terms of the compromise (a). Thus, he may (f) Hellings v. Jones (1825), 3 Bing. 70; see Bailey v. Daniell (1834), Hayes & Jo. 586.

(g) Re Kerley, Son and Verden, [1901] 1 Ch. 467, C. A.; see title CONTEMPT OF COURT, ATTACHMENT, AND COMMITTAL, Vol. VII., p. 306, note (b).

(h) Williams v. Williams and Partridge (1910), 54 Sol. Jo. 506, C. A.

(i) Miller v. James (1823), 8 Moore (C. P.), 208; compare Staite v. Haddon (1841), 9 Dowl. 995; see title CONTEMPT OF COURT, ATTACHMENT, AND COMMITTAL, Vol. VII., p. 306, note (b).

(k) Hill v. Fletcher (1850), 5 Exch. 470; Leedham v. Baxter (1856), 4 W. R. 241.

(l) If the undertaking is in connexion with an order of court, it is immaterial that the undertaking is not embodied in the order (Williams v. Williams and Partridge, supra).

(m) R. S. C., Ord. 12, r. 18; see Jacob v. Magnay (1842), 12 L. J. (Q. B.) 93; Morris v. James (1838), 6 Dowl. 514; see titles CONTEMPT OF COURT, ATTACHMENT, AND COMMITTAL, Vol. VII., p. 306; PRACTICE AND PROCEDURE, Vol. XXIII., p. 114.

(n) Compare Swyny v. Harland, [1894] 1 Q. B. 707, C. A. As to neglect by a solicitor to give his client notice of an order for interrogatories, discovery, or inspection, see title CONTEMPT OF COURT, ATTACHMENT, AND COMMITTAL, Vol. VII., p. 306.

(o) Re Kerly, Son and Verden, supra; The Crimdon, [1900] P. 171. The client cannot, after authorising his solicitor to enter appearance, withdraw his authority after the undertaking has been given (Re Kerly, Son and Verden, supra, per FARWELL, J., at p. 472); but a solicitor who accepts service without undertaking to appear is not liable to attachment for not entering appearance (The Anna and Berta (1891), 64 L. T. 332).

(p) Yonge v. Toynbee, [1910] 1 K. B. 215, C. A.

(q) Lawford v. Spicer (1856), 4 W. R. 497.

(r) Re Coolgardie Goldfields, Ltd., Re Cannon, Son and Morten (Solicitors), [1900] 1 Ch. 475; and as to an undertaking as to damages on the grant of an interlocutory injunction where the plaintiff is out of the jurisdiction, see title INJUNCTION, Vol. XVII., p. 285.

(a) Leedham v. Baxter (1856), 4 W. R. 241; compare Re Aylwin (1904), 20 T. L. R. 252, where the solicitor, who had proved for a sum of money undertake that his client shall consent to a reference (b), or that the debt (c), including the costs (d), shall be paid. After judgment he may undertake not to issue execution in consideration of payment of the judgment debt being accelerated (e).

SECT. 2. Liability upon Undertakings given as a Solicitor.

Undertaking to repay costs.

Where an order is made for a stay of execution pending appeal, the applicant to pay the taxed costs of the successful party to his solicitor on his personal undertaking to repay them should the appeal be successful, the undertaking given by the solicitor may likewise be enforced in a summary manner (f), as in the absence of this undertaking the court might have stayed execution or directed the money to be paid into court to abide the event of the appeal (g). Where, however, the solicitor, though asked to give an undertaking to repay costs in the event of the decision being reversed, refuses, and the costs in the court below are duly paid, the court has no power, if the decision is reversed on appeal, to order the solicitor to repay such costs to the successful appellant; the remedy in these circumstances is against the respondent client and not against the solicitor (h).

Undertakings apart from litigation.

1354. The undertaking need not, however, be confined to matters arising in the course of legal proceedings (i). Thus, a solicitor may give his personal undertaking to pay rent (k) or any other debt (l) due from his client; and, when acting on behalf of a mortgagee, may bind himself personally to the mortgagee's solicitor to pay his costs (m).

Right of indemnity.

1355. If the solicitor, in performing an undertaking given on his client's authority, suffers loss, he may recover such loss in an action against his client (n). He cannot, however, claim the benefit of execution proceedings taken against his client which he has been forced to satisfy (o).

SECT. 3.—Liability to Pay Costs.

Liability to client.

1356. The court has power to order a solicitor to pay any costs occasioned by his misconduct or default in the course of legal proceedings (a) to the person injured thereby or to indemnify his on the bankruptcy of his client, who was a lunatic, undertook, on a motion being made by the official solicitor as committee, to pay the money into court.

(b) Ex parte Hughes (1822), 5 B. & Ald. 482.

(c) Harper v. Williams, (1843), 4 Q. B. 219.

(d) Iveson v. Conington (1823), 1 B. & C. 160; Re Woodfin and Wray (1882), 51 L. J. (CH.) 427; compare Hall v. Ashurst, (1833), 1 Cr. & M. 714; Re Bentley, Ex parte Bentley (1833), 2 Deac. & Ch. 578.

(e) Re Commonwealth Land, Building, Estate and Auction Co., Ex parte Hollington (1873), 43 L. J. (CH.) 99.

(f) Swyny v. Harland, [1894] 1 Q. B. 707, C. A.; Dotesio v. Biss (No. 2), (1912), 56 Sol. Jo. 736, C. A.

(g) See A.-G. v. Emerson (1889), 24 Q. B. D. 56, C. A.

(h) Hood Barrs v. Crossman and Prichard, [1897] A. C. 172.

(i) United Mining and Finance Corporation, Ltd. v. Becher, [1910] 2 K. B. 296.

(k) Burrell v. Jones (1819), 3 B. & Ald. 47.

(l) Re Pass (1887), 35 W. R. 410.

(m) Re Gee (1846), 10 Jur. 694.

(n) See title AGENCY, Vol. I., pp. 196, 197.

(o) Kite v. Mileman (1833), 2 Moo. & S. 616.

(a) The misconduct must be connected with the proceedings (Re Gregg, client in respect of his liability to pay them (b). Thus, a solicitor may be ordered to indemnify his client against costs where he defends an action to which there is to his knowledge no defence (c); where he appeals in his own interest, and not on behalf of his client (d); where he improperly continues proceedings after the lunacy of his client (e); where he fails to get an error in a decree of the court corrected (f); and, generally, wherever costs have been incurred improperly and without reasonable cause, or, though properly incurred, have proved fruitless to the client by reason of the solicitor's conduct (g). Where a solicitor institutes proceedings without authority, he may be ordered to pay the costs of his alleged client as between solicitor and client (h).

Liability to opposite party.

1357. A solicitor may be ordered to pay costs direct to the opposite party where he institutes or defends proceedings without authority from his client (i) or on behalf of a non-existent client (k), or where Re Prance (1869), L. R. 9 Eq. 137). The evidence of misconduct or default must be clear (Dickinson v. Jacobs (1862) 5 L. T. 757; compare Clark v. Girdwood (1877), 7 Ch. D. 9, C. A.).

(b) An appeal lies against any such order (Re Bradford (1883), 15 Q. B. D. 635, C. A.).

(c) Wilkins v. Greer (1884), 28 Sol. Jo. 535; compare Aubrey v. Aspinall (1822), Jac. 441; Thomas v. Vandermoolen (1818), 2 B. & Ald. 197; Bones v. Punter (1819), 2 B. & Ald. 777; Scott v. Hitchcock (1904), 20 T. L. R. 759.

(d) Harbin v. Masterman, [1896] 1 Ch. 351, C. A.

(e) Beall v. Smith (1873), 9 Ch. App. 85; Harbley v. Gilbert (1843), 13 Sim. 596; see Yonge v. Toynbee, [1910] 1 K. B. 215, C. A. It is otherwise where he believes his client to be of sound mind (Re Armstrong (George) & Sons, [1896] 1 Ch. 536).

(f) Re Bolton (1846), 9 Beav. 272; Black v. Creighton (1828), 2 Mol. 552; Taylor v. Gorman (1842), 4 I. Eq. R. 550; compare White v. Hillacre (1838), 3 Y. & C. (EX.) 278.

(g) R. S. C., Ord. 65, r. 11; Shorter v. Tod-Heatly, [1894] W. N. 21; Hill v. Hart-Davis (1884), 26 Ch. D. 470, C. A.; Furness v. Davis (1885), 51 L. T. 854; Re Dartnall, Sawyer v. Goddard, [1895] 1 Ch. 474, C. A. The rule extends to cases where the costs are payable out of a fund (Brown v. Burdett (1887), 37 Ch. D. 207, C. A.; see also Re Ormston, Goldring v. Lancaster (1888), 59 L. T. 594, C. A.; Re Scowby, Scowby v. Scowby, [1897] 1 Ch. 741, C. A.).

(h) Newbiggin-by-the-Sea Gas Co. v. Armstrong (1879), 13 Ch. D. 310, C. A.; Martindale v. Lawson (1838), Coop. Pr. Cas. 83; Allen v. Bone (1841), 4 Beav. 493, followed in Atkinson v. Abbott (1855), 3 Drew. 251, and Crossley v. Crowther (1851), 9 Hare, 384; Jerdein v. Bright (1862), 6 L. T. 279. But the alleged client may ratify the solicitor's act (Norton v. Cooper, Re Manby and Hawksford, Ex parte Bittleston (1856), 3 Sm. & G. 375; compare Hambidge v. De la Crouée (1846), 3 C. B. 742).

(i) Jenkins v. Fereday (1872), L. R. 7 C. P. 358; Re Savage (1880), 15 Ch. D. 557; Nurse v. Durnford (1879), 13 Ch. D. 764; Re Gray, Gray v. Coles (1891), 65 L. T. 743; Fricker v. Van Grutten, [1896] 2 Ch. 649, C. A., followed in Geilinger v. Gibbs, [1897] 1 Ch. 479; Porter v. Fraser (1912), 29 T. L. R. 91; Newbiggin-by-the-Sea Gas Co. v. Armstrong, supra; Wright v. Castle (1817), 3 Mer. 12; Malins v. Greenway (1847), 10 Beav. 564; Schjott v. Schjott (1881), 19 Ch. D. 94, C. A.; Hall v. Bennett (1824), 2 Sim. & St. 78; Bayley v. Buckland (1847), 1 Exch. 1. The same principle applies to continuing proceedings after the authority is revoked

(k) For note (k) see p. 834, post.

SECT. 3. Liability to Pay Costs.

he brings the wrong party before the court (l); where he brings a speculative action without taking reasonable care to satisfy himself that the plaintiff has a fair prospect of success (m); where he issues a writ on behalf of a client resident abroad and gives his client's address as in England (n); where he proceeds after his client has been ordered to give security for costs and before security has been given (o); where he fails to attend proceedings in chambers, and the judge does not think it expedient to proceed (p); where he fails to file an affidavit which has been used in the proceedings (q); where, on an account being taken in chambers, he acts unreasonably in adjourning items to the judge (r); where the trial of the action cannot proceed owing to his neglect to attend or send a representative, or to deliver any papers necessary for the use of the court which according to the practice ought to be delivered (s); where a case in which judgment has gone by default owing to the solicitor's negligence is restored to the list (t). Similarly, a solicitor may be liable for costs where a fraudulent adjudication in bankruptcy is set aside (u), or where an order for the appointment of a receiver is obtained through suppression of the facts, even though innocent (a). Where prohibition is granted against proceedings in an inferior court, the court may order the costs to be paid by the plaintiff's solicitor, provided that the rule has been (Freeman v. Fairlie (1838), 8 L. J. (CH.) 44; Yonge v. Toynbee, [1910] 1 K. B. 215, C. A.). Where the solicitor is aware of his want of authority the liability to pay costs is a liability incurred by means of fraud, and he is, therefore, not released therefrom by his discharge in bankruptcy (Jenkins v. Fereday (1872), L. R. 7 C. P. 358); see title BANKRUPTCY AND INSOLVENCY, Vol. II., p. 270, note (p).

(k) Hoskins v. Phillips (1847), 16 L. J. (Q. B.) 339; compare Ruthin Corporation v. Adams (1835), 7 Sim. 345.

(l) Martinson v. Clowes (1885), 33 W. R. 555, C. A.; Nurse v. Durnford (1879), 13 Ch. D. 764; Peed v. Cussen (1830), Hayes, 66; Wilson v. Wilson (1820), 1 Jac. & W. 457; Pinner v. Knights (1843), 6 Beav. 174; Fergus Navigation and Embankment Co. v. Kingdon (1861), 4 L. T. 262; Tabbernor v. Tabbernor (1836), 2 Keen, 679. The court may make the order though notice of discontinuance has been given (Gold Reef of Western Australia, Ltd. v. Dawson, [1897] 1 Ch. 115); but application must be made promptly (McNally v. Knox (1861), 5 L. T. 186; Collins v. Johnson (1855), 16 C. B. 588; Wilson v. Wilson, supra).

(m) Warren v. London Road Car Co. (1907), 52 Sol. Jo. 13; compare Re Jones (1870), 6 Ch. App. 497.

(n) Re a Solicitor, Karpeles v. Friedlander (1889), 53 J. P. 264.

(o) Ladywell Mining Co. v. Huggons, [1885] W. N. 55.

(p) R. S. C., Ord. 54, r. 7, Ord. 65, r. 27 (13); Land Transfer Rules, 1903, r. 305; compare Ridley v. Tiplady (1855), 20 Beav. 44.

(q) Taylor v. Gates (1895), 72 L. T. 436, C. A.

(r) Upton v. Brown (1882), 20 Ch. D. 731, C. A.

(s) R. S. C., Ord. 65, r. 5; Barnard v. Scoles (1889), 37 W R. 668; compare Somerville v. Jamieson (1853), 1 W. R. 123; Courtney v. Stock (1842), 2 Dr. & War. 251. As to the papers which ought to be delivered, see R. S. C., Ord. 36, r. 30; Lewis v. Cory, [1906] W. N. 95, C. A.

(t) De Roufigny v. Peale (1811), 3 Taunt. 484; Birch v. Williams (1876), 24 W. R. 700; compare Williams v. Jones (1855), 4 W. R. 99; White v. Sandell (1835), 3 Dowl. 798.

(u) Ex parte Arrowsmith (1807), 14 Ves. 209.

(a) Schmitten v. Faulks, [1893] W. N. 64; compare Simmons v. Rose, Weeks v. Ward, Re Ward (1862), 31 Beav. 1.

moved for in that form and notice has been given to the solicitor so as to give him an opportunity of showing cause (b).

A solicitor who obtains a special jury for a client without means may be ordered to pay the jury fees personally (c).

Solicitor-litigant.

1358. A solicitor who is ordered to pay costs as an unsuccessful litigant is not subject to the summary jurisdiction of the court (d). The jurisdiction, however, applies where the action, though brought in the name of a client, is in reality brought by the solicitor on his own behalf (e).

SECT. 4.—Liability to Third Persons.

Extent of liability.

1359. The solicitor's liability to third persons is not confined to costs thrown away, but extends to such loss as is the natural and probable consequence of his conduct (f). Thus, where a fund in court is paid out to the wrong person, the solicitor who acted on behalf of the recipient is liable to replace the fund if he knew or ought to have known the true state of facts (g); if, however, he merely ratifies the use of his name by the solicitor who acted in the transaction, he is only liable for such part of the fund as he actually received for costs (h). Similarly, a solicitor who assumes the position of receiver without authority is liable for all moneys, such as rents, lost to the estate through his neglect (i); and a solicitor who, as representing the party having the conduct of a sale under order of the court, is responsible for procuring the investment of the purchase-money when paid into court, is liable to make good to the person entitled the loss of interest occasioned

(b) Robinson v. Emanuel (1874), L. R. 9 C. P. 414; Rogers v. London, Chatham and Dover Rail. Co. (1877), 26 W. R. 192.

(c) Monserratt v. Scott, [1899] 2 I. R. 551; Bakewell v. Cornish (1884), Times, 24th November.

(d) Re Hope (1872), 7 Ch. App. 523; Farley v. Buckler (1893), Times, 30th October; Re Apelt, Ex parte Byrne (1889), 6 Morr. 102; compare Tilney v. Stansfield (1880), 28 W. R. 582.

(e) Cockle v. Whiting (1829), 1 Russ. & M. 43; Re Jones (1870), 6 Ch. App. 497; Dungey v. Angove (1794), 2 Ves. 304; Re Hook, Cook v. Rosslyn (Earl) (1861), 3 Giff. 175.

(f) Marsh v. Joseph, [1897] 1 Ch. 213, C. A.; contrast Davys v. Richardson (1888), 21 Q. B. D. 202, C. A.; see also p. 742, ante; title MALICIOUS PROSECUTION AND PROCEDURE, Vol. XIX., pp. 673, note (s), 694, note (s), 695, 697.

(g) Re Dangar's Trusts (1889), 41 Ch. D. 178, discussing and following Ezart v. Lister (1842), 5 Beav. 585, Todd v. Studholme (1857), 3 K. & J. 324, Dixon v. Wilkinson (1859), 4 De G. & J. 508, Simmons v. Rose, Weeks v. Ward, Re Ward (1862), 31 Beav. 1, and Re Spencer (1869), 21 L. T. 808; Slater v. Slater (1888), [1897] 1 Ch. 222, n.; Brydges v. Branfill (1841), 12 Sim. 369. The liability extends to all cases of misfeasance (Re Dangar's Trusts, supra, per STIRLING, J., at p. 196), and of nonfeasance (Dixon v. Wilkinson, supra, per TURNER, L.J., at p. 522; Batten v. Wedgwood Coal and Iron Co. (1886), 31 Ch. D. 346; distinguished in Re Dangar's Trusts, supra); but, in the absence of fraud, the exercise of the summary jurisdiction is discretionary and should only be exercised where the court sees that no injustice will be done to the solicitor thereby (Dixon v. Wilkinson, supra). The costs of enforcing the liability must be paid by the solicitor (Slater v. Slater, supra).

(h) Marsh v. Joseph, supra.

(i) Wood v. Wood (1828), 4 Russ. 558.

SECT. 4. Liability to Third Persons.

by his failure to procure the investment, though he is entitled to a set-off in respect of any gain resulting from a fall in the price of securities (k).

Principles applicable.

1360. Except in the cases in which the court intervenes under its summary jurisdiction, a solicitor's liability to third persons for acts done by him in his professional capacity (l) depends upon the application of the ordinary rules of agency (m). If he acts without authority, he may be sued for breach of warranty of authority (n). If, on the other hand, he acts under the authority of his client, he is not, as a general rule, personally liable in matters of contract, such as, for example, the payment of witnesses' expenses (o) or sheriff's fees (p). He may, however, make himself liable by special contract, whether express (q) or to be implied from the circumstances of the case (r), as where he asks for a particular officer to be employed to levy execution (s). In particular, he is personally liable to persons who are directly employed by him, and to whom he occupies the position of a principal, such as, for example, another solicitor employed as his London (t) or country (a) agent, a shorthand writer engaged to take notes of a trial (b), or a law stationer (c). As regards the fees of counsel employed by him, he is under no legal liability to pay them (d); and the court does not, under its summary jurisdiction, order him to do so (e).

Contract.

(k) Batten v. Wedgwood Coal and Iron Co. (1886), 31 Ch. D. 346; see MacDougall v. Knight, [1887] W. N. 68, C. A.

(l) Where he contracts ostensibly as a principal without disclosing the fact that he is acting for a client, as where he contracts in his own name to purchase property, he is, of course, personally liable (Saxon v. Blake (1861), 29 Beav. 438; contrast Clark v. Rivers (Lord) (1867), L. R. 5 Eq. 91).

(m) See title AGENCY, Vol. I., pp. 219 et seq.

(n) Yonge v. Toynbee, [1910] 1 K. B. 215, C. A.; see p. 742, ante.

(o) Robins v. Bridge (1837), 3 M. & W. 114; Simmons v. Liberal Opinion, [1911] 1 K. B. 966, C. A.; Lee v. Everest (1857), 2 H. & N. 285.

(p) Maybery v. Mansfield (1846), 9 Q. B. 754; Seal v. Hudson (1847), 4 Dow. & L. 760; Cole v. Terry (1861), 5 L. T. 347; Royle v. Busby (1880), 6 Q. B. D. 171, C. A. But he is liable to the clerk of the peace for the fees of entering an appeal at sessions (Langridge v. Lynch (1876), 34 L. T. 695); see title MAGISTRATES, Vol. XIX., p. 645, note (p).

(q) Hallet v. Mears (1810), 13 East, 15; Evans v. Phillpotts (1840), 9 C. & P. 270; Ormerod v. Foskett (1796), Peake, Add. Cas. 77. But a promise to pay without consideration is not binding on the solicitor (Bates v. Sturges (1832), 2 Moo. & S. 172).

(r) Fendall v. Noakes (1839), 3 Jur. 726.

(s) Foster v. Blakelock (1826), 5 B. & C. 328; Walbank v. Quarterman (1846), 3 C. B. 94; Maile v. Mann (1848), 2 Exch. 608; Newton v. Chambers (1844), 8 Jur. 244.

(t) Waller v. Holmes (1860), 1 John. & H. 239.

(a) Scrace v. Whittington (1823), 2 B. & C. 11, more fully reported 3 Dow. & Ry. (K. B.) 195. The custom in the country by which a solicitor who employs another on behalf of his client is personally liable to the latter forms an exception to the ordinary law of agency (ibid.). It was held in one case that the custom does not apply to an Irish solicitor employed by an English one (Hyndman v. Ward (1899), 15 T. L. R. 182).

(b) Cocks v. Bruce, Searl and Good (1904), 21 T. L. R. 62.

(c) Ex parte Hartop (1806), 12 Ves. 349, 352.

(d) See title BARRISTERS, Vol. II., pp. 390 et seq.

(e) Re Angell, Angell v. Oodeen (1860), 6 Jur. (N. S.) 1373.

SECT. 4. Liability to Third Persons.

In matters of tort, such as, for example, trespass (f), false imprisonment (g), conversion (h), or fraud (i), a solicitor is personally liable where from his conduct it is clear that he has acted as a principal and is or has made himself a party to the tort complained of (k). By statute (l) a solicitor acting for a vendor or mortgagor is liable to an action for damages, and is also guilty of a misdemeanour, if he conceals from the purchaser or mortgagee any instrument material to the title, or any incumbrance (m), or falsifies any pedigree on which the title depends, in order to induce the purchaser or mortgagee to accept the title with intent to defraud.

Tort.

SECT. 5.—Liability to Client.

SUB-SECT. 1.—To Pay over Money Received.

1361. Under the summary jurisdiction of the court a solicitor may be ordered to pay over to his client all moneys which he has received for or on account of his client (n). To give rise to the jurisdiction five conditions must be fulfilled, namely:—

Conditions to be fulfilled:

(1) The person applying for the order must be the client (o) of the solicitor (p), and it is not sufficient to show that the solicitor, whilst acting for a third person, received money on the applicant's behalf (q). No order therefore is made where the existence of any relation between the parties as solicitor and client has always

(1) Application of client.

(f) Sedley v. Sutherland (1800), 3 Esp. 202; Carrett v. Smallpage (1808), 9 East, 330; Sowell v. Champion (1837), 6 Ad. & El. 407; Williams v. Smith (1863), 14 C. B. (N. S.) 596. As to the solicitor's liability for the acts of the sheriff, see title EXECUTION, Vol. XIV., pp. 19, 20.

(g) Barker v. Braham (1773), 2 Wm. Bl. 866; Hood v. Phillips (1842), 6 Beav. 176; compare title MALICIOUS PROSECUTION AND PROCEDURE, Vol. XIX., pp. 673, note (s), 694, note (s), 695.

(h) Symonds v. Atkinson (1856), 1 H. & N. 146. As to the solicitor's liability as a constructive trustee, see title TRUSTS AND TRUSTEES.

(i) Pasley v. Freeman (1789), 3 Term Rep. 51; Bellairs v. Tucker (1884), 13 Q. B. D. 562; Phosphate Sewage Co. v. Hartmont (1877), 5 Ch. D. 394, C. A.; Bagnall v. Carlton (1877), 6 Ch. D. 371, C. A.

(k) A solicitor acting for a company is not an officer of the company for the purpose of misfeasance proceedings, unless remunerated by fixed salary (see title COMPANIES, Vol. V., p. 478; Re Harper's Ticket Issuing and Recording Machine, Ltd. (1912), 29 T. L. R. 63), but he is an officer for the purpose of registering mortgages; see title COMPANIES, Vol. V., p. 364.

(l) Law of Property Amendment Act, 1859 (22 & 23 Vict. c. 65) (commonly called Lord St. Leonards' Act), s. 24, as extended by Law of Property Amendment Act, 1860 (23 & 24 Vict. c. 38), s. 8.

(m) This applies only to existing incumbrances (Smith v. Robinson (1879), 13 Ch. D. 148).

(n) Re Dudley (1883), 12 Q. B. D. 44, C. A., following Re Freston (1883), 11 Q. B. D. 545, C. A., and explaining Re Ball (1873), L. R. 8 C. P. 104; R. S. C., Ord. 52, r. 25. A failure to obey the order is a default within the meaning of the Debtors Act, 1869 (32 & 33 Vict. c. 62), s. 4 (4) (Re Rush (1870), L. R. 9 Eq. 147; Re White (1870), 23 L. T. 387); compare title MORTGAGE, Vol. XXI., p. 217.

(o) Or his personal representative (Re Aitkin (1820), 4 B. & Ald. 47).

(p) Re Fenton (1835), 3 Ad. & El. 404.

(q) Re Hinton, Tylee v. Webb (1851), 14 Beav. 14; Dixon v. Wilkinson (1859), 4 De G. & J. 508, C. A.

SECT. 5. Liability to Client.

been denied by the applicant (r), or has already been disproved by him in an action brought by the solicitor for his costs (s). Where, however, one solicitor is employed by another as agent, he may be ordered, on the application of his principal's client, to pay over the moneys received by him in that capacity (t).

(2) Relation of solicitor and client.

(2) The relation of solicitor and client must have existed at the time when the money in question was received by the solicitor (a).

(3) Receipt on behalf of client.

(3) The money in question must have been received by the solicitor on behalf of the applicant, or, in other words, the solicitor must have been acting as solicitor for the applicant in the transaction in which he received it (b). This question becomes important where the solicitor is acting for the party from whom he receives the money as well as for the applicant; if he receives it as solicitor for the other party, who is equally his client, and not for the applicant, no order is made (c).

(4) Receipt in capacity as solicitor.

(4) The money must have been received by the solicitor in his capacity as an officer of the court (d). The court has no jurisdiction where the money comes into his hands in any other capacity, such as, for instance, as a borrower (e) or lender (f), or steward of a manor (g), or, if the client is a company, as a member of its committee of management (h). Hence, the order will not be made if the money was received by the solicitor before he was admitted and while he was still an articled clerk (i), though an unqualified person who purports to act as a solicitor and who receives the money as such, and not merely as agent for a duly qualified solicitor (k), is amenable to the jurisdiction on the ground of estoppel (l). If the money is paid to a member of a firm of solicitors, no order is made against his co-partners (m) unless

(r) Re Marshall (1857), 5 W. R. 200.

(s) Ex parte Maxwell (1835), 4 Dowl. 87.

(t) Ex parte Edwards (1881), 8 Q. B. D. 262, C. A.; Re an Attorney, Walker v. Pearce (1862), 7 L. T. 285; Re a Solicitor (1875), 1 Ch. D. 445. In this case the liability of the agent depends upon his fiduciary position, and not upon his position as an officer of the court (Litchfield v. Jones (1887), 36 Ch. D. 530).

(a) Re Strong (1886), 32 Ch. D. 342, C. A.

(b) Dixon v. Wilkinson (1859), 4 De G. & J. 508, C. A.

(c) Re Hinton, Tylee v. Webb (1851), 14 Beav. 14; Dixon v. Wilkinson, supra; Ex parte Faith (1841), 9 Dowl. 973; Re Butler (1866), 1 Ch. App. 607; compare Lewes v. Morgan (1817), 5 Price, 42.

(d) Re Aitkin (1820), 4 B. & Ald. 47; compare Re Berwick (Lord), Berwick (Lord) v. Lane (1900), 81 L. T. 722.

(e) Re Bryant (1884), 50 L. T. 450; Ex parte Faith, supra; Re Y., a Solicitor (1910), 54 Sol. Jo. 459.

(f) Ex parte Schwalbanker (1832), 1 Dowl. 182 (where the solicitor advanced money on bills and refused to account for the alleged balance).

(g) Re an Attorney (1855), 3 W. R. 515.

(h) Re Harvey (1859), 27 Beav. 330.

(i) Ex parte Deane (1834), 2 Dowl. 533.

(k) Re Hurst and Middleton, Ltd., Middleton v. The Co., [1912] 2 Ch. 520, C. A.

(l) Re Hulm and Lewis, [1892] 2 Q. B. 261; distinguished in Re Hurst and Middleton, Ltd., Middleton v. The Co., supra; but see Nash v. Goode and Parry (1841), 9 Dowl. 929.

(m) Re Lawrence, Crowdy and Bowlby, Ex parte Burdon (1854), 2 Sm. & G. 367; Re Lawrence, Crowdy and Bowlby, Chater v. Maclean (1855), 3 Eq. Rep. 375.

it is shown that the money has come into the hands of the firm (n).

(5) The solicitor must have refused without lawful excuse to pay the money over to the client (o). The order is not made where its effect would be to defeat the solicitor's lien (p), provided that the lien claimed is valid (q), or where the client's right to the money depends upon the existence of a special agreement which the solicitor disputes (r). On the other hand, the solicitor cannot refuse to pay over the money on the ground that it is claimed by third persons (s), or (t) that the client's right to receive it is barred by the Statute of Limitations (u).

(5) Refusal to pay.

1362. The client is not precluded from obtaining relief by the fact that the solicitor has subsequently been struck off the rolls (a), or adjudicated bankrupt (b), unless before the application he has received his discharge (c). The acceptance of a part of the amount due is not a waiver of the client's right to apply summarily for payment of the balance (d). If, however, he takes a promissory note from the solicitor for the whole amount, he cannot afterwards apply (e). If he sues the solicitor for the amount due, he cannot, while the action is pending, apply summarily (f), unless he first discontinues the action (g). After judgment, however, he may so apply (h), unless the proceedings have terminated in the solicitor's favour (i).

Extent of client's right.

1363. For the purpose of the jurisdiction, it is immaterial whether the money was received from a third person to be paid to

Source of money immaterial.

(n) Re Ford and Thomas (1840), 8 Dowl. 684; Re a Solicitor (1878), 22 Sol. Jo. 496.

(o) Re Becke (1854), 18 Beav. 462.

(p) Re Millard (1831), 1 Dowl. 140; R. S. C., Ord. 52, r. 25.

(q) Re Cullen (1859), 27 Beav. 51.

(r) Hodson v. Terrall (1833), 2 Dowl. 264.

(s) Re Becke, supra; Re Emma Silver Mining Co., Re Turner (1875), 24 W. R. 54; compare Re Walmsley (1835), 2 Ad. & El. 575, where the solicitor himself had an interest.

(t) Ex parte Sharpe (1837), 5 Dowl. 717; see title LIMITATION OF ACTIONS, Vol. XIX., p. 42; but see Re Triston (1850), 1 L. M. & P. 74.

(u) 21 Jac. 1, c. 16.

(a) Re Strong (1886), 32 Ch. D. 342, C. A.; Simes v. Gibbs (1838), 6 Dowl. 310.

(b) Re Wray, a Solicitor (1887), 36 Ch. D. 138, C. A.; Re Deere (1875), 10 Ch. App. 658; Re Edye (1891), 63 L. T. 762.

(c) Ex parte Culliford v. Warren (1828), 8 B. & C. 220; Baron v. Martell (1827), 9 Dow. & Ry. (K. B.) 390; R. v. Edwards (1829), 9 B. & C. 652. It is otherwise if the solicitor has been guilty of fraud (Re Bonner (1833), 4 B. & Ad. 811); and see title BANKRUPTCY AND INSOLVENCY, Vol. II., p. 270.

(d) Re Fereday, [1895] 2 Ch. 437, distinguishing Harvey v. Hall (1873), L. R. 16 Eq. 324. But there may be a special agreement (Haigh v. Jones (1843), 1 Dow. & L. 81).

(e) Anon. (1825), 3 L. J. (O. S.) (K. B.) 106.

(f) Re an Attorney (1856), 4 W. R. 617.

(g) Anon. (1841), 5 Jur. 678; compare Re Robinson (1859), 5 Jur. (N. S.) 1021.

(h) Re Grey (H. A.), [1892] 2 Q. B. 440, C. A., not following Re Davies (1865), 15 L. T. 161.

(i) Sittingbourne and Sheerness Rail. Co. v. Lawson (1886), 2 T. L. R. 605, C. A.

SECT. 5. Liability to Client.

the client or whether it was received from the client to be applied for a purpose which has not been carried out. Thus, the money may have been received by the solicitor from the sheriff as the proceeds of an execution levied on behalf of the client (k), or from a banker as the proceeds of a cheque payable to the client and indorsed to the solicitor for collection (l), or from a mortgagee as the sum advanced (m), or from a mortgagor in repayment of a mortgage held by the client (n). The money may have been received by the solicitor from the client himself, as, for instance, to pay into court (o), or to pay off a mortgage (p), or it may represent the balance of a sum paid to the solicitor for the expenses of litigation after deducting the whole of the costs incurred (q). In particular, upon taxation of a bill of costs under the common order for that purpose (r), the solicitor may be ordered to pay the balance found to be due (s).

SUB-SECT. 2.—To Deliver up Papers.

Conditions to be fulfilled.

1364. The court, under its summary jurisdiction, may order a solicitor to deliver up to his client all deeds and papers in his possession belonging to the client (t). For this purpose it is necessary to show that the relation of solicitor and client has existed between the parties (a), that the papers are the property of the (k) Ex parte Edwards (1881), 8 Q. B. D. 262, C. A.; compare Re an Attorney, Walker v. Pearce (1862), 7 L. T. 285.

(l) Mawhood v. Milbanke (1851), 15 Beav. 36; compare Re M., a Solicitor (1878), 1 L. R. Ir. 188, C. A.

(m) Ex parte Cripwell (1837), 5 Dowl. 689; compare Lewes v. Morgan (1817), 5 Price, 42.

(n) Compare Re Aitkin (1820), 4 B. & Ald. 47.

(o) Re Lawrence, Crowdy and Bowlby, Ex parte Burdon (1854), 2 Sm. & G. 367.

(p) Re Cullen (1859), 27 Beav. 51.

(q) Ex parte Wortham (1851), 4 De G. & Sm. 415; compare Re Parkinson, R. v. Gershon (1887), 56 L. T. 715.

(r) See pp. 784 et seq., ante.

(s) Re Rush (1870), L. R. 9 Eq. 147, also reported sub nom. Re A. B., 39 L. J. (CH.) 159; Re White (1870), 23 L. T. 387. The costs of the taxation are included (Re a Solicitor, [1895] 2 Ch. 66). The same principle is applied to the case of costs found upon taxation to be due from the solicitor to another solicitor whom he has employed as his agent (Re Barfield (1871), 24 L. T. 248). As to the costs of taxation generally, see pp. 807, 808, ante.

(t) Re Murray (1826), 1 Russ. 519; Re —— (1826), 4 L. J. (O. S.) (CH.) 207; Ex parte Uxbridge (Earl) (1801), 6 Ves. 425; Re Lowe (1807), 8 East, 237; Re Rice (1837), 2 Keen, 181; Ex parte Horsfall (1827), 7 B. & C. 528; Anderson v. Passman (1835), 7 C. & P. 193; Baber v. Harris (1839), 7 Dowl. 589; Re Thomson (1855), 20 Beav. 545; Ex parte Willand (1851), 11 C. B. 544; Ex parte Cobeldick (1883), 12 Q. B. D. 149, C. A.; R. S. C., Ord. 52, r. 5. The procedure by originating summons is inapplicable (Re Holloway (a Solicitor), Ex parte Pallister, [1894] 2 Q. B. 163, C. A.). As to the client's property in such papers, see p. 740, ante. The application for the order is made in chambers in the Chancery Division; see title PRACTICE AND PROCEDURE, Vol. XXIII., pp. 190, 191.

(a) Ex parte Maxwell (1835), 4 Dowl. 87; Ex parte Smart (1835), 1 Har. & W. 526; Ex parte Morris (1837), 1 Jur. 151; Ex parte Crisp (1834), 2 Dowl. 455; Re Thornton (1833), 2 Dowl. 156; compare Miers v. Evans (1839), 3 Jur. 170. The application may be made by the client's personal representatives (Re Campbell (1853), 3 De G. M. & G. 585, C. A.).

client (b) solely, and not jointly with other persons who do not take part in the application (c), and that the papers are held by the solicitor as such (d), and not as a party (e) or trustee (f). The papers must be in the possession of the solicitor (g), or of his agent, in which case the solicitor cannot resist the order on the ground that the agent claims to hold them under a lien (h). A demand for their delivery must have been made upon the solicitor by the client (i), or his personal representative (k), or by some person authorised to give a receipt on his behalf (l). The order will be refused where the solicitor claims a lien over the papers (m), unless the client pays into court or gives security for an amount sufficient to meet the solicitor's charges (n), or unless the solicitor is guilty of misconduct (o).

(b) Ex parte Cobeldick (1883), 12 Q. B. D. 149, C. A.

(c) Re Gregory and Hitch (1842), 6 Jur. 282; Phillips v. Dickson (1860), 8 C. B. (N. S.) 391; compare Duncan v. Richmond (1817), 7 Taunt. 391.

(d) Ex parte Cobeldick, supra; Ex parte Nicholls (1842), 2 Dowl. (N. S.) 423.

(e) Ex parte Moxon (1830), 1 Dowl. 6; Re Chitty (1833), 2 Dowl. 421; Re Cardross (Lord) (1839), 5 M. & W. 545.

(f) Pearson v. Sutton (1814), 5 Taunt. 364; but see Ex parte Holdsworth (1838), 4 Bing. (N. C.) 386.

(g) The solicitor is liable if he has parted with the papers for the purpose of evading the order (Re Gregg, Re Prance (1869), L. R. 9 Eq. 137).

(h) Re Andrew (1861), 7 H. & N. 87; but see Re Williams (1861), 3 De G. F. & J. 104, C. A.

(i) See the cases cited supra.

(k) Ex parte Du Faur (1837), 3 Hodg. 135; but see Ex parte Crisp (1834), 2 Dowl. 455. Where the solicitor dies, the summary jurisdiction does not apply as against his personal representative (Ex parte Nicholls, supra).

(l) Doe d. Hickman v. Hickman (1840) 8 Dowl. 833; Re Dicas (1831), 9 L. J. (O. S.) (CH.) 183.

(m) Ex parte Cobeldick, supra; Re Broomhead (1847), 5 Dow. & L. 52; Richards v. Platel (1841), Cr. & Ph. 79; Re Davies (1843), 7 Jur. 589; compare Re Teague (1848), 11 Beav. 318; Ex parte Jarman (1877), 4 Ch. D. 835; Turner v. Letts (1855), 7 De G. M. & G. 243, C. A.

(n) Re Galland (1885), 31 Ch. D. 296, C. A. (where it was suggested that the jurisdiction was extended by R. S. C., Ord. 50, r. 8); Newington Local Board v. Eldridge (1879), 12 Ch. D. 349, C. A.; Re South Essex Equitable Investment and Advance Co. (1882), 46 L. T. 280; Balch v. Symes (1823), Turn. & R. 87; Clutton v. Pardon (1823), Turn. & R. 301, 304; Mills v. Finlay (1839), 1 Beav. 560; Re Bevan and Whitting (1864), 33 Beav. 439; Re Jewitt (No. 2) (1864), 34 Beav. 22; Hughes v. Mayre (1789), 3 Term Rep. 275; compare Re Broomhead, supra. The order is not, however, made unless the client shows that it is necessary in his own interest that he should have the papers (Re Galland, supra; Re South Essex Equitable Investment and Advance Co., supra; Richards v. Platel, supra; Blunden v. Desart (1842), 2 Con. & Law. 111).

(o) Potts v. Dutton (1845), 8 Beav. 493.

Part VII.—Partnerships between Solicitors.

SECT. 1. In General.

SECT. 1.—In General.

Qualification.

1365. Every member of a partnership (p) between solicitors must be a duly qualified and certificated solicitor; the admission of a partner who does not possess the necessary qualifications renders the members of the firm who are duly qualified liable to be prosecuted for knowingly acting as agents for a person not duly qualified to act as a solicitor (q), since every partner is an agent of the firm and of his co-partners for the purpose of the business of the partnership (r). Moreover, such a partnership is illegal (s).

Solicitors sometimes undertake business jointly, although not regularly bound to one another as partners under a firm name; in these circumstances they are to be treated as partners to a limited extent, and in the absence of provision to the contrary will be jointly entitled to the profits and jointly bound to bear the losses and any damages or consequences which may flow from their so acting (t).

SECT. 2.—Profits of Offices and Premiums.

Profits of offices.

1366. Primâ facie the profits of offices held by particular members of the firm do not belong to the firm (u); but the articles of partnership may specifically otherwise provide (a). Where there is no specific provision made, it is a question of construction for the court as to whether or not they are covered by the general provisions of the articles (b). The test in construing such words as "all other offices compatible with the partnership" is whether such offices must be or are generally held by solicitors (c).

The premiums paid by clerks in respect of articles to one member of a firm, in the absence of provision to the contrary in the (p) As to partnership generally, see title PARTNERSHIP, Vol. XXII., pp. 1 et seq. As to the liability of partners to a client for the acts of co-partners, see pp. 758 et seq., ante.

(q) Solicitors Act, 1843 (6 & 7 Vict. c. 73), s. 32; Solicitors Act, 1860 (23 & 24 Vict. c. 127), s. 26.

(r) Partnership Act, 1890 (53 & 54 Vict. c. 39), s. 5.

(s) Williams v. Jones (1826), 5 B. & C. 108; see title PARTNERSHIP, Vol. XXII., p. 16, note (x); but an agreement to pay a portion of the profits to an unqualified person is not illegal (Candler v. Candler (1821), Jac. 225, 231; Bunn v. Guy (1803), 4 East, 190); see title PARTNERSHIP, Vol. XXII., p. 16, note (x).

(t) Partnership Act, 1890 (53 & 54 Vict. c. 39), ss. 1, 32 (b); Robinson v. Anderson (1855), 7 De G. M. & G. 239, C. A.; Webster v. Bray (1849), 7 Hare, 159; Ord v. Johnston (1855), 1 Jur. (N. S.) 1063.

(u) Alston v. Sims (1855), 1 Jur. (N. S.) 438.

(a) Clarke v. Richards (1835), 1 Y. & C. (EX.) 351; Sterry v. Clifton (1850), 9 C. B. 110; see title PARTNERSHIP, Vol. XXII., p. 16, note (x); see also Fox v. R. (1859), 1 E. & E. 729, 746, Ex. Ch.

(b) Collins v. Jackson, Jackson v. Collins (1862), 31 Beav. 645; Smith v. Mules (1852), 9 Hare, 556.

(c) Smith v. Mules, supra.

partnership deed or of agreement to the contrary by the partners amongst themselves, are profits of the partnership (d).

SECT. 3.—Goodwill.

Goodwill.

1367. Although a solicitor's business is purely a personal one and there can therefore be no goodwill, strictly speaking, attaching to it (e), except by means of introductions or the possession of client's papers, yet in partnership deeds the goodwill is always treated as an asset and provision made as to how it is to be dealt with either in the event of death or dissolution of the firm (f). A contract entered into by a practising solicitor to transfer his business to another for valuable consideration and to refrain from himself practising within certain limits is valid (g). The goodwill is assets in the hands of an administrator, who may assign it for value (h), and it can be disposed of by will. Where, however, under the partnership deed an annuity is payable to the widow of a deceased partner, this annuity is not, if the husband dies insolvent, assets of his estate, but belongs to the widow in her own right (i).

Effect of dissolution.

Unless otherwise provided by the partnership deed, the interest of a partner in the business of a solicitor ceases upon his death and merges into the interests of the surviving partners (k). Upon the dissolution of a solicitor partnership without any sale or assignment of the goodwill of the business and without any provision as to the use of the firm name, each of the partners is entitled to carry on business under that name, provided that he does not by so doing expose his former partners to any risk of liability, which must depend upon the circumstances of each case (l).

(d) Re Harper, Ex parte Bayley (1829), 9 B. & C. 691; see p. 713, ante.

(e) Arundell v. Bell (1883), 52 L. J. (CH.) 537, C. A.

(f) As to the rights and duties of the partners generally on the dissolution of the partnership, see title PARTNERSHIP, Vol. XXII., pp. 97 et seq.; Ray v. Flower Ellis (1912), 56 Sol. Jo. 724, C. A.

(g) Bunn v. Guy (1803), 4 East, 190; see also Austen v. Boys (1858), 2 De G. & J. 626. An agreement by a retiring partner to permit the use of his name is equally valid (Aubin v. Holt (1855) 2 K. & J. 66); see title PARTNERSHIP, Vol. XXII., p. 16, note (x).

(h) Smale v. Graves (1850), 3 De G. & Sm. 706; Spicer v. James (1830), cited 3 De G. & Sm. 713.

(i) Re Flavell, Murray v. Flavell (1883), 25 Ch. D. 89, C. A.; see Candler v. Candler (1821), Madd. & G. 141.

(k) Farr v. Pearce (1818), 3 Madd. 74.

(l) Burchell v. Wilde, [1900] 1 Ch. 551, C. A.; see also Gray v. Smith (1889), 43 Ch. D. 208, C. A.; Chappell v. Griffith (1885), 2 T. L. R. 58; Banks v. Gibson (1865), 34 Beav. 566; Levy v. Walker (1879), 10 Ch. D. 436, C. A. Agreements of partnership or clerkship between solicitors may contain stipulations restraining one of the parties after the termination of the agreement from practising within a specified area in competition with the other (see Edmundson v. Render (1904), 90 L. T. 814; Edmundson v. Render, [1905] 2 Ch. 320; Woodbridge & Sons v. Bellamy, [1911] 1 Ch. 326, C. A.; Freeman v. Fox (1911), 55 Sol. Jo. 650. As to restraint of trade generally, see title TRADE AND TRADE UNIONS, Vol. XXVII., pp. 548 et seq.

Part VIII.—London Agents.

SECT. 1. Scope of Country Certificate.

SECT. 1.—Scope of Country Certificate.

Scope of country certificate.

1368. A solicitor holding only a country practising certificate (m) is not entitled to carry on business within ten miles of the General Post Office, London (n); he may at any time, however, by payment of the extra dutyand, in litigious matters, by providing himself with an address for service within three miles of the principal entrance to the Royal Courts of Justice, Strand, London (a), carry on a London business. A solicitor who has only a country certificate must, if he desires systematically (b) to do work in London of either a contentious or a non-contentious character, employ a London agent (c); and the employment of a London agent is within the scope of his authority (d).

SECT. 2.—Relations between London Agent and Country Solicitor's Client.

Relation between client and London agent.

1369. The relation of solicitor and client does not exist between the London agent and the client, since there is no privity of

(m) See p. 721, ante.

(n) Stamp Act, 1891 (54 & 55 Vict. c. 39), s. 1, Sched., title "Certificate." As to the meaning of "carry on business," see Re Horton (1881), 8 Q. B. D. 434, where it was held that the phrase pointed to a series of acts and not to an isolated transaction.

(a) R. S. C., Ord. 4, r. 1. A country solicitor with an office in town is not entitled to charge for letters passing between the two offices in cases where he conducts the town portion of the business personally (Re Harle, a Solicitor (1868), 19 L. T. 305). Nor are agency charges allowed, whether for correspondence or otherwise, where there are common partners in the London and country firms (Re Borough Commercial and Building Society, [1894] 1 Ch. 289, C. A.), except as regards parliamentary business (Re Milward & Co., Solicitors, [1899] W. N. 251).

(b) A solicitor with a country certificate is not prohibited from coming up to London in connexion with an isolated transaction, such as the taxation of a bill of costs (Re Horton, supra).

(c) Similarly, a solicitor, practising in any part of the country may employ a solicitor practising in some other district (Re Bishop, Ex parte Langley, Ex parte Smith (1879), 13 Ch. D. 110, C. A.), or abroad (Re Maugham, a Solicitor (1885), 2 T. L. R. 115, C. A.), as his agent for a special purpose. A country solicitor is the "client" of his London agent within the meaning of a covenant not to transact business with any person who has been a client of the London agent (Reid v. Burrows, [1892] 2 Ch. 413).

(d) Solley v. Wood (1852), 16 Beav. 370. Any two solicitors may make an agreement as to charging or sharing costs on agency terms (Re Gedye (1857), 23 Beav. 347; Re Taylor (1854), 18 Beav. 165; Gordon v. Dalzell (1852), 15 Beav. 351; Ward v. Lawson (1872), 8 Ch. App. 65; Foley v. Smith (1851), 20 L. J. (CH.) 621); as to taxation in such a case, see Deere v. Robinson (1849), 7 Hare, 283. A solicitor-trustee making any such agreement as regards the business of the trust must account to the trust estate for any profit which he may make (Burge v. Brutton (1843), 2 Hare, 373).

contract between them (e). The London agent is not, therefore, responsible to the client for negligence (f) or misconduct (g). Nor is the client responsible to the London agent for payment of costs due to the London agent (h). As against the client (i), the London agent has no lien for the general balance of his account with the country solicitor (k), though, as regards the costs of any particular transaction, he may have a lien over any moneys received or any documents coming into his hands in connexion therewith (l). This lien cannot be enforced by means of a charging order (m); and in any event does not extend beyond the rights of the country solicitor, and is only available against the client in so far as the country solicitor himself remains unpaid (n). If, therefore, the client has paid the country solicitor without notice of the London agent's claim, the lien is extinguished (o); where, however, payment is made after notice, the London agent succeeds to the lien of the country solicitor as at the date of notice (p). The client has equally no right to claim taxation of the London agent's bill (q); nor is he entitled, where moneys are received on his behalf by the London agent in the ordinary course of business, to maintain an action against the London agent to enforce payment to himself (r). He may, however, in a proper case apply under the summary jurisdic- of the court for an order for payment against the London agent as an officer of the court (s), as, for instance, where the London agent had no authority either from the client or from the country

(e) Robbins v. Fennell (1847), 11 Q. B. 248; Cobb v. Becke (1845), 6 Q. B. 930. Nor is there privity of contract between the London agent and any other agent, such as an auctioneer employed by the country solicitor (Hannaford v. Syms (1898), 79 L. T. 30).

(f) Compare Robertson v. Fleming (1861), 4 Macq. 167, H. L.

(g) Gray v. Kirby (1834), 2 Dowl. 601; Ex parte Jones (1833), 2 Dowl. 161.

(h) Waller v. Holmes (1860), 1 John. & H. 239; Farewell v. Coker (1728), 2 P. Wms. 460; Re Baker, a Solicitor (1907), 52 Sol. Jo. 173. As to the custom in the country by which a solicitor who employs another pledges his personal credit, see note (a), p. 836, ante.

(i) As to his lien against the country solicitor, see the text, infra.

(k) Moody v. Spencer (1822), 2 Dow. & Ry. (K. B.) 6; Peatfield v. Barlow (1869), L. R. 8 Eq. 61; Waller v. Holmes, supra.

(l) Farewell v. Coker, supra; Dicas v. Stockley (1836), 7 C. & P 587; Ward v. Hepple (1808), 15 Ves. 297; Cockerel v. —— (1740), Barn. (CH.) 264; Bray v. Hine (1818), 6 Price, 203; Tardrew v. Howell (1861), 3 Giff. 381; Jeyes v. Jeyes (1876), 45 L. J. (CH.) 245.

(m) Macfarlane v. Lister (1887), 37 Ch. D. 88, C. A.

(n) Peatfield v. Barlow, supra; Moody v. Spencer, supra; compare Quarrington v. White (1837), 6 L. J. (C. P.) 253.

(o) Vyse v. Foster (1875), 10 Ch. App. 236; Waller v. Holmes, supra; Re Andrew (1861), 7 H. & N. 87; compare Cockayne v. Harrison (1873), L. R. 15 Eq. 298.

(p) Waller v. Holmes, supra.

(q) Wildbore v. Bryan, Ex parte Wildbore (1820), 8 Price, 677.

(r) Gray v. Kirby, supra; Cobb v. Becke, supra; Robbins v. Fennell, supra; Re Knox, Ex parte Baker (1837), 1 Jur. 894.

(s) See p. 838, ante. The London agent may be imprisoned under the Debtors Act, 1869 (32 & 33 Vict. c. 62), s. 4 (3), as a person acting in a fiduciary capacity, but not under ibid., s. 4 (4) (Litchfield v. Jones (1887), 36 Ch. D. 530).

SECT. 2. Relations between London Agent and Country Solicitor's Client.

solicitor to receive the money (t), or where he wrongfully claims a lien (a).

SECT. 3.—Relations between London Agent and Country Solicitor.

Responsibility of country solicitor.

1370. The country solicitor stands to the London agent in the relation of principal (b). He is therefore responsible to his client for the London agent's negligence (c) or misconduct (d). In accordance with the same principle, he is responsible to the London agent for his costs (e), and as against him the London agent has a general lien over any moneys and documents coming to his hands in any particular transaction for all his costs and disbursements, whether incurred in the same or any other transaction (f). The country solicitor, therefore, bears any loss which may arise from the client's failure to pay (g); on the other hand, he is entitled to retain for his own benefit any collateral advantage accruing from the business undertaken, such as, for instance, interest paid on the amount of costs remaining unpaid (g).

Remuneration of London agent.

1371. Though special agreements are sometimes made, the usual terms upon which the London agent acts are that the country solicitor shall pay him all disbursements, including counsel's fees (which in strictness ought to be provided before the papers are laid before counsel), and half the profit charges, except in respect of letters and copies of documents, when rather more than the half is charged by the London agent to cover the cost of postage, stationery etc. (h). In cases where documents are prepared and copied in the country for use in London for any purpose for which it is necessary for the London agent to qualify himself to bear any responsibility, it is customary and proper for him to charge a fee for perusal of the papers.

Interest.

The relation between the London agent and the country solicitor is not the common relation of a solicitor to an ordinary client (i), and the country solicitor cannot therefore be charged with interest on (t) Robbins v. Fennell (1847), 11 Q. B. 248.

(a) Re Johnson, Ex parte Edwards (1881), 8 Q. B. D. 262, C. A.; see title AGENCY, Vol. I., p. 172.

(b) See the cases cited infra.

(c) Asquith v. Asquith, [1885] W. N. 31; Collins v. Griffin (1734), Barnes, 37; Withers v. Parker (1860), 5 H. & N. 725, Ex. Ch.

(d) Simmons v. Rose, Weeks v. Ward, Re Ward (1862), 31 Beav. 1; Re Newen, Carruthers v. Newen, [1903] 1 Ch. 812; Gray v. Kirby (1834), 2 Dowl. 601; see also Prestwich v. Poley (1865), 18 C. B. (N. S.) 806.

(e) Waller v. Holmes (1860), 1 John. & H. 239; Ward v. Lawson (1890), 43 Ch. D. 353, C. A. A usage to this effect has been recognised by the courts; see title CUSTOM AND USAGES, Vol. X., p. 284. Such costs should be included as part of his own bill, and not as disbursements (Re Pomeroy and Tanner, [1897] 1 Ch. 284).

(f) White v. Royal Exchange Assurance (1822), 1 Bing. 20; Lawrence v. Fletcher (1879), 12 Ch. D. 858; Ex parte Steele (1809), 16 Ves. 161, 164; Re Jones and Roberts, [1905] 2 Ch. 219, C. A.; Tardrew v. Howell, Parry v. Howell (1861), 3 Giff. 381.

(g) Ward v. Lawson (1890), 43 Ch. D. 353, C. A.

(h) Ibid. Two-thirds is not unusual.

(i) Ward v. Eyre (1880), 15 Ch. D. 130, C. A., per JAMES, L.J., at p. 136.

disbursements in the same way as the lay client (k). The country solicitor, however, may tax his London agent's bill (l); but he is not, for the purpose of enabling him to evade the provisions of the Solicitors Act, 1843 (m), with regard to the time within which he must take action (n), entitled to treat the agency bills as a running account (o). Only those bills which have been delivered within twelve months can be taxed in the absence of special circumstances applying between the town and country solicitors. Thus, the non-payment of counsel's fees charged in the bill, where the country solicitor has not provided the requisite funds, does not constitute a special circumstance for the purpose of entitling the client to taxation where he would not otherwise be entitled (p).

Taxation.

SECT. 4.—Relations between London Agent and Opposite Parties.

1372. As regards the opposite parties to any litigation in which the London agent is employed, he has authority to bind both the country solicitor (a) and the client (b) in all matters connected with his employment. Thus, he has authority to waive any irregularity in the proceedings (c), to consent to any order being made (d), or to compromise the action (e); and payment to him of the amount due s valid as against the client (f). All notices and summonses in the action should be served upon him (g), except that he has no authority to receive notice of appeal from a county court (h), even though the action was originally remitted from the High Court (i).

Authority of London agent.

(k) Ward v. Eyre (1880), 5 Ch. D. 130, C. A. As to interest on disbursements, see p. 809, ante.

(l) Jones v. Roberts (1837), 8 Sim. 397; Re Boord, Toghill v. Grant (1840), 2 Beav. 261; Re Smith (1841), 4 Beav. 309; Smith v. Dimes (1849), 4 Exch. 32, followed in Re Wilde, [1910] 1 Ch. 100; Re Curnot and Parkinson (1871), 40 L. J. (CH.) 608; compare Ward v. Lawson (1872), 8 Ch. App. 65; and see Re Gedye (1857), 23 Beav. 347; Foley v. Smith (1851), 20 L. J. (CH.) 621.

(m) 6 & 7 Vict. c. 73.

(n) See pp. 784 et seq., ante.

(o) Re Nelson, Son and Hastings (1885), 30 Ch. D. 1, C. A.

(p) Ibid.; but see Re Romer and Haslam, [1893] 2 Q. B. 286, C. A. As to taxation of part of a bill, see Storer & Co. v. Johnson (1890), 15 App. Cas. 203.

(a) Withers v. Parker (1860), 5 H. & N. 725, Ex. Ch.

(b) Griffiths v. Williams (1787), 1 Term Rep. 710; Solley v. Wood (1852), 16 Beav. 370.

(c) Griffiths v. Williams, supra.

(d) Withers v. Parker, supra.

(e) Re Newen, Carruthers v. Newen, [1903] 1 Ch. 812, following Withers v. Parker, supra.

(f) Hanley v. Cassan (1847), 11 Jur. 1088.

(g) R. S. C., Ord. 4, rr. 1, 3; Ord. 12, r. 10; Prestney v. Colchester Corporation (1883), 24 Ch. D. 376, C. A.; Griffiths v. Williams, supra; Service on the country solicitor is irregular (Petty v. Daniel (1886), 34 Ch. D. 172).

(h) Powell v. Thomas, [1891] 1 Q. B. 97; followed in Jackson v. Margrett (1893), 68 L. T. 91.

(i) Malley v. Shepley (1892), 5 R. 78 (where the London agent's name and address were indorsed on the writ, but the particulars lodged with the registrar gave the country solicitor's address as the address for service).

SECT. 4. Relations between London Agent and Opposite Parties.

The London agent must act strictly as agent for the country solicitor; he has no authority to institute proceedings as solicitor for the client (k); nor has he any authority to proceed after his authority has been withdrawn by the country solicitor (l). Similarly, the death of the country solicitor puts an end to his authority (m), except for formal purposes, such as signing judgment (n).

Personal liability.

1373. The London agent is not, as a general rule, liable to pay costs to the opposite party (a); he may, however, be made personally liable when he is guilty of misconduct, as, for instance, when he files a scandalous affidavit, even though drawn by the country solicitor (b).

Part IX.—Discipline.

SECT. 1.—Grounds for Striking Solicitor off the Rolls.

Power of the court.

1374. The court, in the exercise of its disciplinary jurisdiction (c), has power to strike a solicitor off the rolls upon various grounds specified by statute (d), and also upon the ground of misconduct (e). In the latter case the court may, in lieu of striking the solicitor off the rolls, suspend him from practice (f).

Statutory grounds:

1375. The statutory grounds for striking a solicitor off the rolls are:—

(1) Defect in articles etc.

(1) That there is some defect in his articles, service, admission, or enrolment (g). In this case the application to strike the solicitor off the rolls must be made within twelve months from the time of his admission, unless such admission was procured by fraud (h).

(2) Acting for unqualified person.

(2) That he has wilfully and knowingly acted as agent in any action or suit in any court or matter in bankruptcy for any person not qualified to act as a solicitor, or has permitted or suffered his name to be used by any unqualified person to enable him to undertake solicitor's business for his own benefit, or has sent any

(k) Wray v. Kemp (1884), 26 Ch. D. 169; Re Scholes & Sons (1886), 32 Ch. D. 245; Nurse v. Durnford (1879), 13 Ch. D. 764; Re Savage (1880), 15 Ch. D. 557; Re Summerville (1885), 31 Ch. D. 160, C. A.

(l) Freeman v. Fairlie (1839), 8 L. J. (CH.) 44; Malins v. Greenway (1847), 10 Beav. 564; compare Richards v. Scarborough Market Co. (1853), 17 Beav. 83.

(m) Harris v. Nunn (1886), 21 L. J. 440.

(n) Taunton v. Goforth (1825), 6 Dow. & Ry. (K. B.) 384; Davies v. Bower (1863), 7 L. T. 739.

(a) Becke v. Cattell (1841), 3 Man. & G. 480.

(b) Re Booth, Ex parte Wake (1833), 3 Deac. & Ch. 246; compare Ruthin Corporation v. Adams (1835), 7 Sim. 345.

(c) As to attachment, see pp. 828 et seq., ante. As to removing a solicitor's name from the rolls at his own request, see p. 720, ante.

(d) See the text, infra.

(e) See p. 849, post.

(f) See p. 851, post. In less serious cases the court may think it sufficient punishment to order the solicitor to pay the costs of the proceedings; see Re a Solicitor, Ex parte Law Society (1913), 29 T. L. R. 354; Re a Solicitor, Ex parte Law Society (1910), 55 Sol. Jo. 49.

(g) Solicitors Act, 1843 (6 & 7 Vict. c. 73), s. 37; see Re Myres (1846), 8 Q. B. 515.

(h) Solicitors Act, 1843 (6 & 7 Vict. c. 73), s. 29.

process to such unqualified person for the like purpose (i). Where a solicitor permits an unqualified person to use his name contrary to this provision, the court has no discretion to inflict a less punishment on the solicitor than that of striking him off the rolls (k).

(3) That he has been guilty of a corrupt practice in connexion with an election, whether parliamentary (l) or municipal (m). (3) Corrupt practices.

1376. Apart from statute, a solicitor may be struck off the rolls on the following grounds, namely:— Other grounds:

(1) That he has been convicted of a criminal offence. It is not necessary that the offence should be of a pecuniary character or that it should have been committed by him in his practice as a solicitor, provided that the offence is of such a character as to make it expedient for the protection of the public and the profession that he should be suspended from practice or struck off the rolls (n). Thus, he may be struck off the rolls where he has been convicted of feloniously shooting with intent to murder (o), or of allowing houses belonging to him to be used as brothels (p). Where the solicitor is to the satisfaction of the court proved guilty of misconduct of a criminal nature (q), he may be struck off the rolls, although no criminal charge has been brought against him (r); if he has been tried and convicted, the same result will follow, although his conviction has been quashed on technical grounds (s). On the other hand, a verdict against the solicitor in civil proceedings for libel is not in itself sufficient (t). (1) Conviction of crime.

Where an application has been made to the statutory committee of the Law Society, and the same matter of complaint is being inquired into before magistrates, it is proper that the application to the court to deal with the findings of the committee should stand over until the magisterial inquiry has been concluded, and an order to this effect will be made on the solicitor giving an

(i) Solicitors Act, 1843 (6 & 7 Vict. c. 73), s. 32. As to what amounts to a breach of this provision, see p. 855, post.

(k) Re Burton and Blinkhorn, [1903] 2 K. B. 300; Re Kelly, [1895] 1 Q. B. 180, not following Re Lamb (1889), 23 Q. B. D. 477, C. A.; Re Two Solicitors and an Unqualified Person, Ex parte Incorporated Law Society (1909), 53 Sol. Jo. 342, C. A.

(l) Corrupt and Illegal Practices Prevention Act, 1883 (46 & 47 Vict. c. 51), s. 38 (7); see title ELECTIONS, Vol. XII., p. 485.

(m) Municipal Elections (Corrupt and Illegal Practices) Act, 1884 (47 & 48 Vict. c. 70), s. 23; see title ELECTIONS, Vol. XII., p. 525.

(n) Re a Solicitor, Ex parte the Law Society (1911), 55 Sol. Jo. 670; and see Re Hill (1868), L. R. 3 Q. B. 543; R. v. Southerton (1805), 6 East, 126, 143; Re King (1846), 8 Q. B. 129; Re Hall (1857), 4 W. R. 686; Re Weare, [1893] 2 Q. B. 439, C. A. If the solicitor has already been suspended, he is not struck off the rolls on his subsequent conviction for the same offence (Re a Solicitor, Ex parte Incorporated Law Society (1889), 37 W. R. 598, C. A.).

(o) Re Cooper (1898), 67 L. J. (Q. B.) 276.

(p) Re Weare, supra.

(q) Re —— (1838), 3 Nev. & P. (Q. B.) 389.

(r) Stephens v. Hill (1842), 10 M. & W. 28.

(s) Re Garbett (1856), 18 C. B. 403; compare Re King, supra.

(t) Ex parte —— (1833), 2 Dowl. 110.

SECT. 1.
Grounds for Striking Solicitor off the Rolls.

undertaking in writing not to practise until the committee's report has been dealt with by the court (u).

(2) Professional misconduct.

(2) That he has been guilty of professional misconduct (v). For this purpose it is not sufficient to show that the solicitor's conduct was such as to support an action for want of skill; his conduct must be judged by the rules and standard of his profession, and it must be shown that he has done something which would be reasonably regarded as disgraceful or dishonourable by solicitors of good repute and competency (w). Thus, he is guilty of professional misconduct if he wilfully misleads the court in the course of the conduct of a case (x); if he falsely represents that an injunction has been granted (y); if he knowingly takes a multitude of wrong or unnecessary steps for the purpose of running up costs or making costs in the knowledge that the opposite party would have to pay them (z); if he deals improperly with a fund in court by enabling the same to be paid out to a person not entitled (a); if he is guilty of a fraudulent breach of trust (b); if he betrays the confidence of his client (c); if he institutes criminal proceedings for the purpose of extorting money (d); if he assists a criminal to escape out of the country with the view of enabling him to avoid arrest, and thus defeat the ends of justice (e); if he systematically solicits debt-collecting business through the agency of a company which he has promoted, and which he finances and controls with that object, without disclosing his connexion with the company (f).

(u) Re a Solicitor, Ex parte Law Society (1907), 51 Sol. Jo. 212; see title COURTS, Vol. IX., pp. 75 et seq., 80, note (x).

(v) The court will not strike a solicitor off the roll on account of an irregularity in the service of his clerkship and misconduct prior to his admission (Re Page (1823), 1 Bing. 160; Re —— (1831), 2 B. & Ad. 766).

(w) Re a Solicitor, Ex parte Law Society, [1912] 1 K. B. 302, applying Allinson v. General Council of Medical Education and Registration, [1894] 1 Q. B. 750, 763, C. A.; Re a Solicitor, Ex parte Law Society (1913), 29 T. L. R. 354, following Re a Solicitor, Ex parte Law Society, [1912] 1 K. B. 302; compare Smith v. Matham (1824), 4 Dow. & Ry. (K. B.) 738).

(x) Re Hill (1868), L. R. 3 Q. B. 543; Stephens v. Hill (1842), 10 M. & W. 28; Re Cooke, a Solicitor (1889), 33 Sol. Jo. 397, C. A. Merely acting without authority is not sufficient (Re ——, an Attorney (1853), 2 W. R. 58).

(y) Kimpton v. Eve (1813), 2 Ves. & B. 349, 352.

(z) Re Cooke, a Solicitor, supra, per Lord ESHER, M.R.

(a) Re Collins, Wheatley v. Bastow (1855), 7 De G. M. & G. 558, C. A.

(b) Re Chandler (1856), 22 Beav. 253; Thompson v. Finch (1856), 8 De G. M. & G. 560, C. A.; Re Hall, Dolland v. Johnson (1856), 2 Jur. (N. S.) 633; Thorndike v. Hunt, Browne v. Butter (1859), 5 Jur. (N. S.) 879; Re a Solicitor (B.), Ex parte Law Society (1911), 28 T. L. R. 59; and compare Re —— (1846), 10 Jur. 198; but see Goodwin v. Gosnell, Ex parte Hill (1846), 10 Jur. 422, where the solicitor replaced the fund in obedience to the order of the court.

(c) Cholmondeley (Earl) v. Clinton (Lord) (1815), 19 Ves. 261.

(d) Re a Solicitor (1892), 27 L. J. 121; Re ——, an Attorney (1853), 2 W. R. 58; but see Ex parte Warren (1835), 1 Har. & W. 113; Smith v. Gillett (1835), 3 Dowl. 364 (both cases of civil proceedings).

(e) Re Vallance (1889), 24 L. J. 638; compare R. v. Vaughan (1743), 1 Wils. 22.

(f) Re a Solicitor, Ex parte Law Society, [1912] 1 K. B. 302 (where the solicitor was suspended for twelve months); Re a Solicitor, Ex parte Law Society (1913), 29 T. L. R. 354 (where the solicitor, having become aware

SECT. 1. Grounds for Striking Solicitor off the Rolls.

If he enters into any arrangement or understanding with solicitors representing interests adverse to those of his client, whereby they are to share profits, whether under the name of "agency" or otherwise, and does not disclose the arrangement or understanding to the client (g); or if he carries on business in association with an unqualified person (h).

(3) That he has been guilty of conduct showing him to be unfit to be a solicitor (i). Thus, a solicitor who carries on the business of a bookmaker and distributes circulars which may get into the hands of infants and married women and induce them to enter into betting transactions with him, may be struck off the rolls, in spite of the fact that he has ceased to practise as a solicitor and has not taken out a certificate for several years (k).

(3) Improper conduct.

1377. The court may, instead of striking the solicitor off the rolls, order him to be suspended from practice for a period stated in the order (l). Thus, a solicitor has been suspended from practice for using the name of a trustee in bankruptcy, without having obtained his consent, for the purpose of claiming specific performance of an agreement in which the trustee had an interest (m); for receiving money due upon a mortgage without informing his client, and continuing to pay him interest (n); for improperly indorsing a summons as if it had been attended before the judge (o); for deliberately allowing his client to make an affidavit setting forth a false date or other false statement of fact (p); for borrowing money on inadequate or no security from a young and inexperienced client, who has not been separately advised (q); for failing to pay counsel's fees when he has been provided with money specifically for the purpose (r).

Suspension.

1378. It is not necessarily misconduct justifying suspension for a solicitor to give a misleading or incorrect address in this country of a foreigner resident abroad for the purpose of evading an order for security for costs; but the court may order him to indemnify

Acts not amounting to misconduct.

that his conduct was unprofessional, at once severed his connexion with the company, and was ordered to pay the costs).

(g) Re Four Solicitors, Ex parte Incorporated Law Society, [1901] 1 K. B. 187.

(h) See pp. 855, 856, post.

(i) But see Re —— (1843), 12 L. J. (Q. B.) 331.

(k) Re a Solicitor, Ex parte Incorporated Law Society (1905), 22 T. L. R. 127.

(l) Suspension from practice by a colonial court is not per se a sufficient reason (Re a Solicitor, Ex parte Incorporated Law Society, [1898] 1 Q. B. 331, refusing to follow Re Collins (1856), 18 C. B. 272); on this subject see, generally, title BARRISTERS, Vol. II., p. 373, note (i).

(m) Re Gray, Ex parte Incorporated Law Society (1869), 20 L. T. 730.

(n) Re Blake (1860), 3 E. & E. 34.

(o) Re De Medina (1862), 10 W. R. 627.

(p) Re Gray, supra; Re Davies (W. R.) (1898), 14 T. L. R. 332, C. A.; see Re Stewart (1868), L. R. 2 P. C. 88; and compare Re Mant (1861), 5 L. T. 254.

(q) Re a Solicitor, Ex parte Incorporated Law Society, [1894] 1 Q. B. 254.

(r) Re Farman (1883), 18 L. J. 352; Re a Solicitor, Ex parte Incorporated Law Society (1894), 10 R. 576; compare Re a Solicitor, Ex parte Law Society (1910), 55 Sol. Jo. 49, where the solicitor was ordered to pay costs.

SECT. 1.
Grounds for Striking Solicitor off the Rolls.

the person damnified and to pay the costs of the proceedings (s); nor is it necessarily misconduct that a solicitor has been guilty of delay in paying over money collected by him on his client's behalf, if there is no finding that he intended to misappropriate it (t), even although it may ultimately be lost owing to the solicitor's bankruptcy (u).

Court guided by circumstances.

1379. The line between cases in which the court does and those in which it does not interfere is a very fine one, and every case must depend upon its own circumstances (v). Where the remedy against the solicitor is by attachment under its summary jurisdiction, the court does not as a rule interfere by suspending or striking the solicitor off the rolls (w).

SECT. 2.—Procedure.

Preliminary inquiry.

1380. The preliminary inquiry in cases where complaints are made by persons against solicitors for improper conduct in their dealings as such is made by a committee of the Law Society, consisting of not less than three and not more than seven members of that society, nominated by the Master of the Rolls (x).

Application.

1381. When it is sought to strike a solicitor off the rolls or to require him to answer allegations in an affidavit an application must be sent in writing by the person complaining to the Law Society as registrar of solicitors, together with an affidavit setting forth fully the matters of which he complains (y). The matter then comes before the committee for its consideration, and if the committee thinks the affidavit makes out a primâ facie case (z), a copy of the application and the affidavit must be sent by the Law Society to the solicitor, together with a notice fixing a date for the hearing of the complaint (a). The notice of the date of hearing (which must be sent also to the applicant) must require both parties to furnish to the Law Society and to each other a list of the documents which each of them intends to use: such list must be

(s) Re a Solicitor (1889), 5 T. L. R. 339.

(t) Re a Solicitor (1895), 11 T. L. R. 169, per WILLS, J.; Guilford v. Sims (1853), 13 C. B. 370. Where the misappropriation is fraudulent, it is not a defence that the solicitor has subsequently repaid the money (Re H., an Attorney (1875), 31 L. T. 730; Re Martin (1843), 6 Beav. 337; Re ——, an Attorney (1863), 9 L. T. 299).

(u) Re Sparks (1864), 17 C. B. (N. S.) 727.

(v) See in particular Goodwin v. Gosnell, Ex parte Hill (1846), 10 Jur. 422; Re Whitehead (1885), 28 Ch. D. 614, C. A.; Re Davies (W. R.) (1898), 14 T. L. R. 332, C. A.; Re a Solicitor, Ex parte Law Society (1910), 55 Sol. Jo. 49; Re Stewart (1868), L. R. 2 P. C. 88.

(w) Ex parte Townley (1834), 3 Dowl. 39; Ex parte Grant (1835), 3 Dowl. 320.

(x) Solicitors Act, 1888 (51 & 52 Vict. c. 65), s. 12. This committee is frequently referred to as the Statutory Committee.

(y) Rules of 1889, Part I., r. 1 (Stat. R. & O. Rev., Vol. XI., Solicitor, England, p. 9). The contents of this affidavit and of the application which it is made to support are privileged (Lilley v. Roney (1892), 61 L. J. (Q. B.) 727).

(z) As to the discretion of the committee, see p. 853, post.

(a) Rules of 1889, Part I., r. 2 (Stat. R. & O. Rev., Vol. XI., Solicitor, England, p. 9).

furnished by the applicant at least fourteen days before the date fixed for the hearing, and by the solicitor within seven days after he has received the applicant's list (b). On receipt of this notice each party may inspect the other's documents, and on giving three days' notice may take copies at his own expense (c).

Who may apply.

1382. The right to apply to the committee of the Law Society is not limited to persons aggrieved; application may be made by any person who alleges facts showing misconduct on the part of the solicitor, and is willing to make an affidavit as to them (d).

Application by solicitor himself.

The application may also be made at the solicitor's own instance, in which case the committee may require him to give notice, by advertisement or otherwise, that he has made such application and of the date of the hearing (e). Such an application is made either because threats have been uttered to the solicitor about specific matters of conduct which he is anxious to have cleared up by a committee consisting of experts in his own profession or because he desires to be called to the Bar or to adopt some other profession with which his status of a solicitor is inconsistent. In this latter event the application must also be supported by an affidavit of the applicant and must be accompanied by letters in support, written by two practising solicitors to whom he is personally known (f).

Hearing.

1383. At the hearing (which takes place at the Law Society's Hall, Chancery Lane, London), either party may appear in person or by counsel or solicitor. The committee may, if it thinks fit, appoint and pay a solicitor to represent it in preparing the case for hearing, the funds being provided by the Society (g). The absence of either party will not prevent the committee from proceeding with the matter if it thinks it attributable to negligence or to an intention to avoid or delay proceedings (h). In the event of the committee so proceeding it may take evidence of any fact by affidavit, including the affidavit in which the complaint was made (i).

Witnesses.

The hearing is conducted in all respects like the trial of an action, the chairman swearing the witnesses, who are examined and cross-examined in the usual manner (k), and the same rules as to admissibility of evidence apply. Where either party desires to compel the attendance of a witness application must be made to the committee, which may, if it thinks fit, authorise the party

(b) Rules of 1889, Part I., r. 3 (Stat. R. & O. Rev., Vol. XI., Solicitor, England, p. 10). The committee has power to dispense with strict compliance with the rules as to notices, services, time etc., and service may be made by registered letter, proof of the proper address being upon it and of due posting being sufficient. For suitable forms, see ibid., Schedule; these should be followed as far as practicable (ibid., Part VI., rr. 1—3; see title COURTS, Vol. IX., p. 55, note (q)).

(c) Rules of 1889, Part I., r. 4.

(d) Re a Solicitor (1890), 25 Q. B. D. 17, C. A.

(e) Rules of 1889, Part I., r. 6.

(f) Instructions issued by the Law Society, 20th May, 1909.

(g) Rules of 1889, Part I., r. 5; see title BARRISTERS, Vol. II., p. 375.

(h) Rules of 1889, Part I., r. 5.

(i) Ibid., r. 5A.

(k) Ibid., r. 7.

SECT. 2. Procedure.

applying to apply to a judge in chambers for leave to issue the necessary subpœnas; if this leave is granted, then the subpœnas are, upon production of the order, issued at the Central Office (l). The notes of the public examination of a solicitor who has been adjudicated bankrupt may be used against him at the hearing before the committee (m).

Report of committee.

1384. If the application is made by a complainant, the committee after the hearing makes its report, which must be signed by the chairman and filed at the Central Office; but if it is made by the solicitor, the report is made to the Master of the Rolls and filed with the Law Society or as the Master of the Rolls may direct (n). If the report is adverse it is set down for hearing by a Divisional Court (o), when the Law Society must forthwith give notice of the date fixed to the applicant and the solicitor (p); and if the court imposes any punishment upon the solicitor, it is the duty of the Law Society to make such entry or alteration in the roll as may be necessary (q).

Report not condition of further proceedings.

1385. If the committee, after having heard the matter, comes to the conclusion that no case requiring an answer has been made out, it is not bound to report the matter to the court at all; and a mandamus will not lie to compel it to do so (r). The applicant, however, is not barred by conclusions of the committee; he may himself bring the matter before the court direct (s).

An adverse report by the committee is not a condition precedent to the jurisdiction of the court (t); and although great deference will be paid to the report of the committee, the court is not precluded from acting by reason of the fact that the committee has found in favour of the solicitor (u). On the application of a dissatisfied applicant, the court goes into the facts as disclosed in the report, and if satisfied that there has been misconduct, in spite of the committee's report, punishes the solicitor (a).

(l) Rules of 1889, Part I., r. 7A (Stat. R. & O. Rev., Vol. XI., Solicitor, England, p. 10); see also title BARRISTERS, Vol. II., p. 375, note (n).

(m) Re a Solicitor (1890), 25 Q. B. D. 17, C. A.

(n) Rules of 1889, Part I., r. 8.

(o) Re Martin (1875), 24 W. R. 111. The application to the court must be made by counsel; see title BARRISTERS, Vol. II., p. 373, note (i).

(p) Rules of 1889, Part I., r. 10. An affidavit by the solicitor is admissible when the report comes before the court (Re Wilson, a Solicitor (1889), 5 T. L. R. 654).

(q) Rules of 1889, Part I., r. 11. The solicitor may, in addition to any other punishment, be ordered to pay the costs of the proceedings, and an action lies on the order of the court (Godfrey v. George, [1896] 1 Q. B. 48, C. A. (where an unsuccessful application had already been made to attach the solicitor)).

(r) R. v. Incorporated Law Society, [1895] 2 Q. B. 456; Ex parte Whitfield and the Incorporated Law Society (1892), 67 L. T. 856.

(s) Solicitors Act, 1888 (51 & 52 Vict. c. 65), s. 13; R. v. Incorporated Law Society, supra; see also Re Weare, [1893] 2 Q. B. 439, C. A., where it was held that the applicant could go to the court although no application had been made to the committee.

(t) Re Weare, supra.

(u) Re Davies (W. R.) (1898), 14 T. L. R. 332, C. A.

(a) Ibid.

1386. Where the solicitor has been exonerated by the committee, he is entitled to apply to the court for the purpose of getting an order for payment of his costs within three months after the date of report (b). This application may be made by summons to a judge in chambers (c).

SECT. 3.—Appeal.

Solicitor's right of appeal.

1387. As the court in making an order striking a solicitor off the rolls for misconduct does so in the exercise of its disciplinary powers over its own officers and not in the exercise of its criminal jurisdiction, an appeal lies from such order to the Court of Appeal (d). The solicitor appealing may be required to give security for costs if it is proved that he is insolvent; but if the order appealed against is limited to striking him off the rolls, it is probable that the court would look upon it as so serious a matter, affecting the whole of the solicitor's after life, that it would be slow to prevent him from bringing it to a hearing on account of want of means. Where, however, there are other matters included in the order appealed against, and the solicitor does not make an affidavit stating that he has means, the court may make the order (e).

How far complainant may appeal.

1388. From the decision of the committee that a primâ facie case has not been made out there is, strictly speaking, no appeal. The proper course is for the complainant to bring the facts which were by him laid before the committee, by way of substantive motion, before the Divisional Court, and to ask such court to come to a different conclusion, which the court has full power to do (f). When once there has been a hearing before the Divisional Court, there is an appeal as of right by either party to the Court of Appeal (g).

Part X.—Unqualified Persons.

Prohibition against unqualified persons.

1389. No person is entitled to act as a solicitor or in the capacity of a solicitor to conduct any proceedings in the name of any other person in any court of civil or criminal jurisdiction in England and Wales unless he is admitted and enrolled as a solicitor and his name is upon the roll at the time of so acting (a). Any unqualified

(b) Re Lilley, [1892] 1 Q. B. 759, C. A.; Re Neale, Ex parte Neale (1893), 10 T. L. R. 18.

(c) R. S. C., Ord. 52, r. 24.

(d) Re Hardwick (1883), 12 Q. B. D. 148, C. A.; Re Eede (1890), 25 Q. B. D. 228, C. A.

(e) Re Strong (1885), 31 Ch. D. 273; and see Hood Barrs v. Heriot, [1896] 2 Q. B. 375, C. A. (appeal from an order for attachment).

(f) R. v. Incorporated Law Society, [1896] 1 Q. B. 327, C. A., per Lord ESHER, M.R., at p. 329; see also Re Crowdy, Ex parte Incorporated Law Society (1895), 11 T. L. R. 406; Re Davies (W. R.) (1898), 14 T. L. R. 161; R. v. Incorporated Law Society, [1896] 1 Q. B. 327, C. A.; and see p. 854, ante.

(g) Re Hardwick, supra (a decision as to the solicitor's right to appeal, which for the reasons given must apply also to the applicant).

(a) Solicitors Act, 1843 (6 & 7 Vict. c. 73), s. 2; see also title PRACTICE

PART X. Unqualified Persons.

person who acts as a solicitor is incapable of recovering any fee for his services (b). In addition he is guilty of a contempt of court, and is liable to a fine of £50 at the suit of the Law Society (c); he may also be indicted for a misdemeanour (d) or prosecuted summarily (e). Moreover, a solicitor who wilfully and knowingly acts as agent for an unqualified person in any legal proceedings, or allows his name to be used in connexion with legal proceedings by an unqualified person, is liable to be struck off the rolls (f); and the unqualified person is liable to be committed to prison for a term not exceeding one year (g).

What acts prohibited.

1390. It is immaterial whether the unqualified person acts in his own name or in the name of another, provided that he is acting on his own behalf and for his own profit (h). Thus, an agreement between a solicitor and a debt collector (i) or an accountant (k) to divide the costs recovered from debtors through the medium of legal proceedings is contrary to law, and renders both parties liable

AND PROCEDURE, Vol. XXIII., p. 125, note (p). As to the right of an informant or complainant to examine and cross-examine witnesses, though not a solicitor, see title MAGISTRATES, Vol. XIX., p. 596, note (p); Abercrombie v. Jordan (1881), 8 Q. B. D. 187; Re Hall (an Unqualified Person), Ex parte Incorporated Law Society (1893), 69 L. T. 385; Symonds v. Incorporated Law Society (1884), 49 J. P. 212; Incorporated Law Society v. Bedford (1885), 49 J. P. 215.

(b) Solicitors Act, 1843 (6 & 7 Vict. c. 73), s. 26; Solicitors Act, 1860 (23 & 24 Vict. c. 127), s. 26; Attorneys and Solicitors Act, 1874 (37 & 38 Vict. c. 68), s. 12; Stamp Act, 1891 (54 & 55 Vict. c. 39), s. 43 (1); Verlander v. Eddolls (1881), 51 L. J. (Q. B.) 55. An unqualified person whose name appears on the record as solicitor is amenable to the summary jurisdiction of the court under R. S. C., Ord. 52, r. 25 (see p. 838, ante), and may be required to bring into court money received by him in that capacity (Re Hulm and Lewis, [1892] 2 Q. B. 261); but he is not so amenable where he merely purports to act on behalf of the duly qualified solicitor on the record (Re Hurst and Middleton, Ltd., Middleton v. The Co., [1912] 2 Ch. 520, C. A., distinguishing Re Hulm and Lewis, supra); see p. 838, ante.

(c) Solicitors Act, 1860 (23 & 24 Vict. c. 127), s. 26. He is not entitled to be treated as a first-class misdemeanant (Osborne v. Milman (1887), 18 Q. B. D. 471, C. A.; see title CONTEMPT OF COURT, ATTACHMENT, AND COMMITTAL, Vol. VII., p. 294).

(d) R. v. Buchanan (1846), 8 Q. B. 883 (a decision under the Solicitors Act, 1843 (6 & 7 Vict. c. 73), ss. 35, 36, which were repealed by the Statute Law Revision Act, 1874 (No. 2) (37 & 38 Vict. c. 96), but which are practically to the same effect as the Solicitors Act, 1860 (23 & 24 Vict. c. 127), s. 26, referred to in notes (b), (c), supra).

(e) Attorneys and Solicitors Act, 1874 (37 & 38 Vict. c. 68), s. 12. Penalty, not exceeding £10 (ibid.).

(f) Re D., a Solicitor, Ex parte Law Society (1911), 27 T. L. R. 535; and see Harper v. Eyjolfsson, [1914] W. N. 23; see pp. 848, 849, ante.

(g) Solicitors Act, 1843 (6 & 7 Vict. c. 73), s. 32; see Osborne v. Milman, supra.

(h) Re Simmons (1885), 15 Q. B. D. 348; Re Jackson and Wood (1823), 1 B. & C. 270; Scott v. Miller (1859), John. 220, 328; Re Watts (an Unqualified Person), Davies v. Davies (1913), 57 Sol. Jo. 534; see title CONTEMPT OF COURT, ATTACHMENT, AND COMMITTAL, Vol. VII., p. 294.

(i) Re a Solicitor, Ex parte Incorporated Law Society (1890), 63 L. T. 350; Re a Solicitor, Ex parte Law Society, [1912] 1 K. B. 302; followed in Re a Solicitor, Ex parte Law Society (1913), 29 T. L. R. 354.

(k) Re a Solicitor and Re Simmons (1886), 21 L. J. N. C. 462.

to punishment (l). On the other hand, a solicitor is permitted to employ outside assistance for the purpose of getting work done for which he is responsible throughout, and which would, in the ordinary course, be done by his clerks or servants (m). Thus, there is no breach of the law where law stationers act for solicitors in connexion with the carrying in of papers for obtaining probate of wills or the passing of residuary succession legacy or estate duty accounts at Somerset House (n), or where process servers, employed by solicitors to effect service of writs, settle affidavits of persons in their own employment, whether of personal service or of failure to effect service for the purpose of enabling the solicitors to obtain an order for substituted service (o).

Conveyancing matters.

The prohibition against unqualified persons acting as solicitors applies to the taking of instructions for or preparation of papers on which to found or oppose a grant of probate or letters of administration (p), and to conveyancing matters (q).

Part XI.—Commissioners for Oaths.

Appointment of commissioners.

1391. The Lord Chancellor may appoint practising solicitors and other fit and proper persons commissioners to administer oaths, including affirmations and declarations (r). A commissioner may by virtue of his commission take any affidavit for the purpose of being used in any court in England; but he is forbidden to administer an oath in any proceeding in which he is acting as solicitor or as clerk to any such solicitor or in any matter in which he is interested (s).

Officials.

Officers of the court performing duties in relation to the court and (l) But a solicitor may agree with his employer to be paid by salary and to pay over to his employer any surplus which he may receive above and beyond his salary (Galloway v. London Corporation (1867), L. R. 4 Eq. 90).

(m) Law Society v. Waterlow, Same v. Skinner (1883), 8 App. Cas. 407, per Lord SELBORNE, L.C., at p. 411; Re Louis, Ex parte Incorporated Law Society, [1891] 1 Q. B. 649, per MATHEW, J., at p. 651.

(n) Law Society v. Waterlow, Same v. Skinner, supra.

(o) Re Louis, Ex parte Incorporated Law Society, supra.

(p) Legal Practitioners Act, 1877 (40 & 41 Vict. c. 62), s. 2. Ibid., s. 3, defines "qualified practitioner" as any serjeant-at-law, barrister-at-law, certificated solicitor, proctor, notary public, certificated conveyancer, special pleader, or draughtsman in equity. The only three of these remaining are barristers (who are precluded by etiquette from acting direct), solicitors, and notaries.

(q) Stamp Act, 1891 (54 & 55 Vict. c. 39), s. 44; Land Transfer Act, 1897 (60 & 61 Vict. c. 65), s. 10.

(r) Commissioners for Oaths Act, 1889 (52 & 53 Vict. c. 10), ss. 1, 11. As to oaths under the Merchant Shipping Acts, 1854—1889, the Customs Consolidation Act, 1876, the Patents Acts, 1883—1888, and the Pawnbrokers Act, 1872, and Acts amending the same, see Commissioners for Oaths Act, 1891 (54 & 55 Vict. c. 50), s. 1.

(s) Commissioners for Oaths Act, 1889 (52 & 53 Vict. c. 10), s. 1 (2), (3); and see Northumberland (Duke) v. Todd (1878), 7 Ch. D. 777, 780; Ross v. Shearman (1820), 2 Coop. temp. Cott. 152; Re Bagley, [1911] 1 K. B. 317 C. A.

PART XI. Commissioners for Oaths.

authorised by the judge may administer oaths and take affidavits required for any purpose connected with their duties (t).

Ambassadors etc.

Every British ambassador, envoy, minister, chargé d'affaires, and secretary of embassy or legation exercising his functions in any foreign country, and every British consul-general, consul, vice-consul, acting consul, pro-consul and consular agent exercising his functions, in any foreign place may administer oaths and do notarial acts as effectually as though they were done by a duly qualified person in the United Kingdom, and any document so sworn or attested is receivable in evidence without proof of his seal or signature or of his official character (a).

Solicitors.

1392. In London and other large towns the practice is to grant commissions only to solicitors who have been in continuous practice for six years. This rule (which is not a rule of law, but one of practice in the Lord Chancellor's office) is in special cases relaxed in country districts where there is a real need for the services of a commissioner.

Procedure to obtain commission.

The procedure to obtain the commission is as follows:—The applicant leaves at the office of the Law Society, Chancery Lane, London, a petition for his appointment setting forth where and how long he has been engaged in active practice; this must be accompanied by a certificate of fitness signed by two practising barristers, two solicitors, and six householders or persons paying rent of offices. These papers, together with a notice to the registrar of intention to apply, must be left with the Law Society for at least three weeks, and the applicant must state the date of his first practising certificate. The petition when granted must be stamped with a £5 stamp and signed by the Lord Chancellor. The commission, before being acted upon, must again be left with the Law Society for registration and a fee of 1*s.* paid (b). The modern form of commission provides for its being exercised so long only as the commissioner practises as a solicitor. Where, however (as was the case before the Judicature Act, 1873 (c)), this limitation is absent from the commission, the holder of it can continue to exercise his powers under it, notwithstanding that he may have been struck off the rolls, until it is revoked by the Lord Chancellor (d).

(t) Commissioners for Oaths Act, 1889 (52 & 53 Vict. c. 10), s. 2; and see R. S. C., Ord. 38, r. 16.

(a) Commissioners for Oaths Act, 1889 (52 & 53 Vict. 10), s. 6.

(b) Solicitors Act, 1860 (23 & 24 Vict. c. 127), s. 30.

(c) 36 & 37 Vict. c. 66.

(d) Ward v. Gamgee (1891), 7 T. L. R. 752. Persons holding commissions to administer oaths in common law granted to them prior to the 1st November, 1875, are by the words of their commissions entitled "to have, enjoy, and exercise the said office of our commissioner so long as it shall please us." By virtue of the Commissioners for Oaths Act, 1889 (52 & 53 Vict. c. 10), s. 12 (b), the original powers conferred on existing commissioners are retained by them. Common law commissioners therefore hold their appointments until the same are cancelled by the Lord Chancellor (Ward v. Gamgee, supra). Solicitors holding commissions to administer oaths granted under stat. (1853) 16 & 17 Vict. c. 78, "London Commissioners to administer Oaths in Chancery," are empowered to act as such only "so long as [they] shall continue to practise as solicitors."

Duties of commissioner.

1393. The commissioner before whom an oath is taken must state truly in the jurat at what place and on what date the affidavit was taken (e). He must satisfy himself that the person named as the deponent and the person before him are the same, and that such person is outwardly in a fit state to understand what he is doing (f).

Colonial commissions.

1394. Commissions are also issued by various colonial authorities to solicitors practising in England and Wales to administer oaths and take affidavits and examinations for use in the colonies for which they are appointed (g).

Part XII.—Perpetual Commissioners.

Appointment and functions.

1395. The Lord Chief Justice of England is authorised to appoint perpetual commissioners for taking the acknowledgments of married women under the Fines and Recoveries Abolition Act, 1833 (h), and under the Settled Estates Act, 1877 (i). They may be such persons as he may think fit, and are removable by him at his pleasure (k). They may be appointed for every county, riding, division, soke or place for which there is a clerk of the peace. Although the appointment is in respect of a particular place, the commissioner may exercise his functions wherever the land to be conveyed may be situate or the married woman to make the acknowledgment may reside (l) or the acknowledgment may be taken (m). He has a lien upon the deed, certificate etc. for his fees (n). A perpetual commissioner who is personally interested in the matter in which the deed has to be acknowledged, or is the

The commissions granted under the Judicature Act, 1873 (36 & 37 Vict. c. 66), s. 84, contain the limitation inserted in the old Chancery commissions "so long as [they] shall continue to practise as solicitors." Commissions granted under the Commissioners for Oaths Act, 1889 (52 & 53 Vict. c. 10), s. 1, contain a similar limitation.

(e) Ibid., s. 5.

(f) Bourke v. Davis (1889), 44 Ch. D. 110, 126.

(g) The procedure is by petition addressed, in Canada to the Lieutenant-Governor, in other colonies to the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court. The petition should be verified by a statutory declaration, and be accompanied by a certificate of the Law Society as to the applicant's professional standing. The fee for such certificate is 10*s.* 6*d.* for members of the Society, and £1 1*s.* for non-members. As to the special procedure relating to particular colonies, see further, Solomon, Manual for Colonial Commissioners.

(h) 3 & 4 Will. 4, c. 74.

(i) 40 & 41 Vict. c. 18, s. 51.

(k) Fines and Recoveries Act, 1833 (3 & 4 Will. 4, c. 74), s. 81. As to appointments being made by the Lord Chief Justice of England, see Judicature Act, 1881 (44 & 45 Vict. c. 68), s. 26.

(l) Fines and Recoveries Act, 1833 (3 & 4 Will, 4, c. 74), s. 82.

(m) Blackmur v. Blackmur (1876), 3 Ch. D. 633.

(n) Ex parte Grove (1836), 3 Bing. (N. C.) 304. As to his fees, see Regula Generalis, Hilary Term, 1833, fixing 13*s.* 4*d.* for each commissioner for each mile travelled by him.

PART XII. Perpetual Commissioners.

solicitor or a clerk to the solicitor acting in regard to it, is not competent to take the acknowledgment (o).

The commission when granted must be entered with the Law Society and a fee of 1*s.* paid (p).

(o) Rules under the Conveyancing Act, 1882, r. 1 (Stat. R. & O. Rev., Vol. XII., p. 550).

(p) Solicitors Act, 1860 (23 & 24 Vict. c. 127), s. 30. The minimum period of practice qualifying for a commission is five years, and in all cases it must be shown that there is need for the appointment of an additional commissioner. The application is by petition, which must be accompanied by a certificate, signed by the magistrates, clergy, and principal inhabitants of the neighbourhood, and also a certificate by two or more barristers, stating that the applicant is a fit and proper person to be appointed a perpetual commissioner. These papers are lodged at the office for filing the acknowledgments of married women. The fee on obtaining the commission is £1.

SOMALILAND.

See DEPENDENCIES AND COLONIES.

SORCERY.

See CRIMINAL LAW AND PROCEDURE.

SOUTH AFRICA.

See DEPENDENCIES AND COLONIES.

SOUTH AUSTRALIA.

See DEPENDENCIES AND COLONIES.

SOUTHERN NIGERIA.

See DEPENDENCIES AND COLONIES.

SOUTHERN RHODESIA.

See DEPENDENCIES AND COLONIES.

SOVEREIGN.

See CONSTITUTIONAL LAW.

SOVEREIGNS AND STATES.

See CONSTITUTIONAL LAW; CONFLICT OF LAWS.

SPARKS.

See AGRICULTURE; NEGLIGENCE; RAILWAYS AND CANALS.

SPEAKER IN THE HOUSES OF PARLIAMENT.

See PARLIAMENT.

SPECIAL CASE.

See COURTS; INTOXICATING LIQUORS; MAGISTRATES; PRACTICE AND PROCEDURE.

SPECIAL CONSTABLE.

See POLICE.

SPECIAL DAMAGE.

See DAMAGES.

SPECIAL GRANTS OF ADMINISTRATION.

See EXECUTORS AND ADMINISTRATORS.

SPECIAL INDORSEMENT.

See JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS; PLEADING; PRACTICE AND PROCEDURE.

SPECIAL JURY.

See JURIES; PRACTICE AND PROCEDURE.

SPECIAL LICENCE TO MARRY.

See HUSBAND AND WIFE.

SPECIAL OCCUPANT.

See DESCENT AND DISTRIBUTION; REAL PROPERTY AND CHATTELS REAL.

SPECIAL RESOLUTION.

See COMPANIES.

SPECIAL SESSIONS.

See COURTS; INTOXICATING LIQUORS; MAGISTRATES.

SPECIAL VERDICT.

See JURIES.

SPECIALTY DEBTS.

See BONDS; CONTRACT; EXECUTORS AND ADMINISTRATORS.

SPECIFIC DELIVERY OF CHATTELS.

See SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE; TROVER AND DETINUE.

SPECIFIC DEVISE.

See EXECUTORS AND ADMINISTRATORS; WILLS.

SPECIFIC GOODS.

See SALE OF GOODS.

SPECIFIC LEGACY.

See EXECUTORS AND ADMINISTRATORS; WILLS.

END OF VOL. XXVI.

INDEX.

SHIPPING AND NAVIGATION, abandonment, rights of seaman under salvage agreement, of, illegality, 573, 574 ship, of, report to be made as to, 658 abroad, death of seaman, provisions relating to, 58 discharge of seaman, 55 duty of master, 56
mortgage or sale of ship, how effected, 30 payment of wages due where seaman left behind, 48, 49 sale of ship, discharge of seamen, 56 absence without leave, liability of seamen in respect of, 60 penalty attaching to offence of, 61 accident, definition of, 114 exception protecting charterer against, 132 liability where occurring in obeying directions of harbour master, 640 lights to be carried by vessels not under command through, 386 accidents of navigation, application of exception as to, extent of, 115 protection of shipowner by exceptions as to, 114, 115 accommodation, seamen, for, provision on British ship, 46 account, liability of co-owners to, 37 managing owners to, 36
acknowledgment, bill of lading as an, 144, 145 act of God, insertion of stipulation as to, reason for, 108 nature of peril known as, 108 non-liability of shipowner for damage caused by, 107 action against owner in respect of collision, essentials to right of, 500 enforcement of general average contribution by, 323 in rem, rights on collision as to, 545 time within which to be commenced, 545 limitation of time for, for damage by collision against harbour authorities, 648 none on failure to give certificate on discharge of seaman, 55 restrictions where taken by seaman or apprentice, 53 salvage, essentials to maintenance of, 581 adjustment, general average contribution, of, how determined, 323, 324 administration of effects of deceased seamen, 58, 59 Admiralty Court Act, 1861, damages for personal injuries under, 544 warrant, privileges granted to yacht owners holding, 661 advance freight, payment subject to insurance, effect of, 313 shipowner's right to, 312 special contract required as to, 134, 135 taking into account of, on completion of voyage, 313
what constitutes, 313, 314
when payable, 311, 312
notes, not negotiable, 51 stipulation in agreement as to, 51 advances to master at port of loading, insurance of, effect of, 313, 314 when on account of freight, 313, 314 advertisement, contract between parties may be contained in, 147, 148 sale of cargo by wharfinger or warehouseman, on, 283 advice, as salvage service, 557, 558
note, nature of, 148
when terms between parties contained in, 147, 148 agent, authority of, to sign bill of lading, extent of, 145 contract of charterparty by, effect of, 88 liability under charterparty not under seal, 89 unauthorised charterparty, 90 lien on bill of lading, 288

SHIPPING AND NAVIGATION—continued.
agent, managing owner as, 35 passage broker, of, how appointed, 351 rights and liabilities under charterparty where principal undisclosed or unnamed, 90 of consignee or indorsee as affected by acts of, 165 on payment of light dues, 631 transfer of bill of lading to, 159 agreement as to salvage, see salvage agreement.
right to salvage reward as affected by, 566 with crew, certificate as to, 43 delivery of, 43 deposit of, 658, 659
nature of, 41, 42
posting of, 42 production of, half-yearly, 43 rescission of, by court, 43 signature of, 42 agreements, crew, with, deposit of, 658, 659 aground, effect of local rule for steam vessels when, 478 in fairway, duty of persons in charge of vessel when, 498 lights to be shown by vessel when, 403 signals to be given by vessel when, 388
"aground," when vessel on the mud is not, 406 alien master, grant and renewal of pilotage certificate to, 602 mate, grant and renewal of pilotage certificate to, 602 allotment notes, form of, 51 payment of wages by means of, 51, 52 under, when beginning, 52 alterations to ship, registration of, when necessary, 31
"always afloat," stipulation containing qualification, effect of, 181 anchor, and see at anchor.
duty of vessel coming to, 489 lights, object of regulations as to, 403 position of, 405 to be shown by vessels, 403, 406 projecting, liability as to, 485, 500 watch, duty to have an, 489, 490 anchoring in fairway, when vessel justified in, 498 anchors, duty of steamship navigating in port as to, 484 vessels may be excused for not dropping, 484, 485
"and/or," as to effect in charterparty, 100 annual survey of passenger steamer, owner's duty as to, 332, 333
"another such light," meaning where an addition to an anchor light, 406 antecedent and subsequent negligence, burden of proof in cases of, 511 instances of alternatives relating to, 511, 512 liabilities, cesser clause as affecting, 133 negligence, subsidiary rule applied and not applied to, instances, 515, 516 anti-scorbutics, carriage by ship, provision as to, 45 appeal, against action of surveyor of ships, 650 decision of pilotage authority, 608, 609 finding of inquiry, 594 salvage award, grounds of, 581, 582
House of Lords, to, as to salvage reward, 581, 582 procedure on, in respect of inquiries or investigations, 594, 595 right where certificate of clearance refused to emigrant ship, 81, 82 appliances, non-existence of, compliance with Sea Regulations affected by, 369, 370 apportionment, agreement between salvors for, binding effect of, 573 salvage reward, of, 582—586 as between independent salvors, 584 master, crew and passengers, 583 officers and men of Government services, 584 owners, 582, 583

SHIPPING AND NAVIGATION—continued.
apportionment, salvage reward, of, as between separate sets of salvors, 584, 585 binding nature of agreement for, 573 how made, 582, 583 to whom made, 582 apprentice, binding of, provisions as to, 41 deductions from wages of, liability, 50 desertion or absence without leave, liability, 61 apprenticeship indentures, deposit of, 658, 659 execution of, 41
rescission of, 43 approaching vessel, navigating officer's duty to observe bearing of, 429 vessels, rules governing behaviour of, 425 et seq., 433 et seq.
wrongful act of one of two, effect of, 426 appurtenances, mortgage of ship and her, effect of, 24 arbitration clause, stipulation in charterparty as to, 136 arrest, enforcement of bottomry bond by, 73 exemption of Crown ships as to, 533 mail ship as to, 355, 356 transport from, 560, 561 foreign ships, at instance of English part-owner, when permitted, 37 majority and minority owners, respective powers as to, 36, 37 necessaries, for, 67, 68
non-payment of tonnage rates, on, 639 persons on mail ships, of, procedure, 355, 356 statutory powers of, 546 arrival in dock, stipulation in charterparty as to, 183, 184 of ship, at port of discharge, what amounts to, 260, 261 consignee's duty to discover, 263, 264 articles of the Sea Regulations, 1910, see Sea Regulations, 1910.
"ascertained," meaning when referring to position of vessel in fog etc., 421, 422 assault, seaman's liability for, 60, 61 assessment, salvage reward, of, by the court, 575 value of property salved, 576, 577
salved property, of, place of, 587 value of ship, cargo and freight, of, deductions allowed on, 587, 588 assignment, freight, of, effect of, 301—303 salvage or wages by seaman, effect of, 54 assistance, duty to render after collision, 371, 372 failure to render, 371, 372 associates of salvors, rights of, 565 shares of, in salvage reward, 583 assortment, delivery to owner where goods landed for, 281
"at all times of the tide," qualification of stipulation by, effect on loading, 181 at anchor, collision with vessel, liability, 515, 516 duty to keep clear of vessel, 488
meaning of, 404
method of bringing vessel up equivalent to being, 405 precautions to be taken against driving when, 490
"at or near the stern," when anchor light is, 405 average, and see general average.
adjuster, duty of shipowner to employ, 325 contribution, cargo owner's right to, 74
meaning of, 311
award, salvage, finality of, 589 badge, emigrant runner, of, liability for misuse of, 352 bail bond, on arrest by minority owners, amount of, 37 bailee, shipowner's liability as, 326 ballast, stipulation for provision of, as affecting time for loading, 185 banker, indorsement of bill of exchange by seller to, effect of, 162 bankruptcy of mortgagor, as affecting rights of mortgagee, 27 barometer, provision by harbour authority, 645 barge, see dumb barge.
barratry, acts of master amounting to, 112, 113 exception as to, meaning and effect of, 112 owner cannot be guilty of, 112

SHIPPING AND NAVIGATION—continued.
barratry, when master or crew guilty of, 62 barrels, damage through heating, liability, 204 battens, description of cargo in charterparty as, 99 Beachy Head, proper place for look-out off, 486 beacons, duty of harbour authority as to, 645 management of, 627
meaning of, 627
" being overtaken," meaning of, 400 berth, arrival at, provision as to exact place of, effect of, 184 when necessary to constitute, 261 consignee's duty to select discharging, 262 delay of ship in getting to, liability as to, 182, 183 inaccessibility or unavailability of, as affecting discharge, 262 loading, charterer's right to name, 183 notes, when terms between parties contained in, 147, 148 removal to another, liability of charterer, 184 rights of charterer on naming, 261, 262 bill of exchange, bottomry bond as security for, effect of, 73, 74 freight not discharged by dishonoured, 307 indorsing over to banker, effect of, 162 seller's right to draw on buyer on tender of bill of lading, 160, 161 lading, agent's authority to sign, extent of, 145 an acknowledgment of receipt of goods, 144, 145 as a document of title, 146, 147 negotiable instrument, extent of, 166, 167 between shipowner and indorsee, effect of, 148 evidence of contract with shipowner to pay freight, 298 quantity shipped, 145, 146 shipment, statutory provision as to, 155
" clean," meaning of, 151 contract under, where ship demised and not demised, 169, 170
definition of, 144
difference between terms of charterparty and, effect of, 169 discharge of shipowner on presentation of, 167, 168 drafting of, 151 effect where charterparty a demise of the ship, 169, 170 shipper is the charterer, 168, 169 exceptions in charterparty as part of, 177 existence of charterparty as affecting, 148, 149 form of, 150, 151
holder of, as person entitled to receive cargo, 264 when in position of shipper, 173 subject to shipowner's lien, 285, 286 inconsistent terms of charterparty not incorporated in, 177 incorporation of terms of charterparty in, 175, 176 indorsement of, effect of, 165, 166 insertion of a name in, effect of, 144 liability of indorsee in respect of, 165 to pay freight, 296 master under, when exceeding authority, 155 shippers for freight as affected by issue of, 293 lien of agent on, 288 limits of authority of master on signing, 155 matters in which shipowner liable where master signs, 154 mortgage or pledge of, 147, 162, 163 omission of negligence clause from, where contained in charterparty, effect of, 107 position of shipowner under, where ship not working under charterparty, 168 possession of more than one by shipper, effect of, 157, 158 practice as to, where delivered in a set, 152 presumption of authority of master to sign, 154 provision as to freight in, 106, 107 liability to general average contribution, 322 for carriage of goods freight free, effect of, 308, 309 payment of freight in, 303, 304
primage in, 311

SHIPPING AND NAVIGATION—continued.
bill of lading, provision in charterparty for signing by master, 107 qualification by signature of master, practice, 156 reference in charterparty as to, construction of, 285, 286 to charterparty in, construction of, 176 reservation of right of disposal effected by, 160 right to receive, 152 rights of shipper under, 171, 172 seller's right to draw bill of exchange on buyer on tender of, 160, 161 set of, 152
signature by master, when binding on shipowner, 174 person other than master, effect of, 173, 174 signing of, 153 stamping of, 151
statements in, binding shipowner, 145, 146 statutory rights of consignee or indorsee under, 164, 165 stipulations as to, in charterparty, 105, 106 in charterparty giving master authority to sign, 174, 175 terms of contract contained in, 148 through, payment of freight under, 149, 150 when contract expressed in, 149 transfer of, as equivalent to transfer of goods, 159, 160 effect of, 157
mode of, 158, 159
to agent, 159
consignee, effect of, 172, 173
when passing no property, 163, 164 transhipment of cargo through, 234, 235 when shipowner not bound by, 173 master's signature to, 146 shipper not compelled to accept terms of, 172 written statement as to quantities in, effect of, 142 sale, transfer of property in British ships by, 21, 22 binnacle light, not a proper stern light, 402 births, duty of master of ship as to, 64, 348, 658 blockade, rights under charterparty as affected by, 109 Board of Trade, appointment of emigration officers by, 353 as superintending shipping authority, 649 confirmation of bye-laws of pilotage authorities by, 600 control of lighthouse authorities by, 632 local marine board by, 654, 655 various authorities by, 651 over ship's measurements, 19, 20 duty to furnish copies of Sea Regulations, 362, 363 enforcement of authority of, 649, 650 establishment of local marine boards by, 652, 653 exercise of powers of pilotage authority by, 609 inquiry at instance of, 594, 595 power as to certificates and inquiries, 649 certifying passenger ship, 332—334 inquiries and investigations, 594, 595 making pilotage orders, 596 on survey of ship, 17 relating to distribution of deceased seaman's effects, 58, 59 to appoint surveyors and inspectors, 650 enforce mercantile laws, 652 make collision regulations, 359, 360 regulations by, as to steerage passengers, 338 reports of shipping casualties to be made to, 590 to be made to generally, 652 boarding wreck without authority, liability, 556 bond, limit of pilot's liability on his, 605, 615
" bonus," inclusion in term " wages," 53
bottomry bond, enforcement of, 73
form of, 69, 70
holder's rights where ship lost by default of another vessel, 73

SHIPPING AND NAVIGATION—continued.
bottomry bond, issue of, essentials to, 70 loss of vessel as affecting, 73 maritime lien in respect of, 620 master's duty before raising money by, 70 to communicate with owner before giving, 71
nature of, 69
negotiability of, 73, 74
no liability to contribute to salvage reward, 586 pledge of ship by way of, 69, 70 postponement of master's claim for wages to, 53 priority of claims in respect of, 623 rights of holders as against mortgagees, 29 risk undertaken by lender on, 71 security obtained by, extent of, 70
when payable, 72, 73
who may make advance on, 72 form of contract of, 241, 242 nature of contract by, 241 principle applied where several loans raised on, 246 breakdown of machinery, effect on payment of freight, 105
British flag, as to the law in relation to use of, 11, 660, 661
Government vessels, exemption in respect of salvage award, 560, 561
India, as to meaning of, 332 national character, assuming or concealing, penalty, 11, 32, 33 possessions, inquiries in, 593 places as to which orders of recognition of certificates have been made, 38, 39 power of Board of Trade where certificate granted to passenger steamer in, 335 to authorise inquiries as to casualties in, 593 recovery of light dues in, 631 ship, accommodation for seamen in, provision for, 46 adjustment of compasses of, 77, 78
certificated officers to be carried by, 38 closing the registry of, 19 deserters from, how dealt with, 59, 60 division into shares, 18, 19 fire hose on, provision of, 78 life-saving appliances on, provision of, 78 marking of, 17, 18, 78, 79 mortgage of, formalities, 23, 24 name of, provisions as to, 17 owners of, who may be, 16 ownership of, how acquired, 15 port of registry of, what is, 17, 18 prohibition of transfer of, 23
registration of, 16, 17
abroad, effect of, 612 return home of seamen wrecked on, provision for, 56, 57 storage of grain in, 80, 81
survey of, 16, 17
transfer of, mode of, 21, 22
unseaworthy, liability on sending to sea, 77 broker, payment of commission to, provision for, 136—138 sale or letting of passages, licensing of, 350 brokerage clause, stipulation in charterparty relating to, 136 when commission payable under, 137 bullion strong room, must be reasonably fit, 188, 189 shipowner's duty as to, 113 buoying of wreck, duty and liability as to, 555 buoys, duty of harbour authority to lay down, 645
management of, 627
meaning of, 627
burden of proof, as to ambiguous stipulations in charterparty, 130, 131 existence of salvage agreement, 570, 571 speed of "keep out of the way" vessel, 455 cases of antecedent and subsequent negligence, 511 collision cases, in, 500, 501

SHIPPING AND NAVIGATION—continued.
burden of proof, defence of inevitable accident, in, 535, 536 shifting on proof of damage by collision, 538 where overtaken vessel is run down, 402
Bute Docks, Cardiff, local navigation rules affecting, 481 bye-laws, binding nature of, 647 confirmation of harbour, 646 exemption from compulsory pilotage by, 611 harbour authority's power to make as to fines, 643, 645, 646 objections to, rights of pilots and dock authorities as to, 600 pilotage authority, of, confirmation of, 600 posting of copy in harbour, 647 power of pilotage authorities to make, purposes, 599, 600 proof of, 647
"cabin passenger," definition of, 332
cable ship, lights to be carried by, 386, 387 Canadian waters, narrow channels in, 466 canal owner, limitation of liability of, 612—617 canals, exception as to "perils of the sea," when applicable to, 110 navigation in, 376
cancellation clause, charterparty, in, effect of, 97, 98 salvage agreement, of, grounds of, 572
"cannot get out of the way," meaning of phrase, 387 capture, deviation for purpose of escaping, effect of, 95 captured ship, recovering or restoring, as salvage services, 558 care, rules afloat and ashore as to, compared, 505 salvor's duty to show reasonable degree of, 577 cargo, acceptance by shipowner, how far bound as to, 195, 196 amount to be carried, stipulations as to, 101 as subject of lien for purposes of salvage services, 579, 580 authority of master as to sale of ship or, 75, 76 carriage of dangerous goods as, charterparty should provide as to, 100, 101 charterer's duty to describe, 99 have ready for loading, 190, 191 procure, 191, 192
combustible, regulations as to, 643 conflicting claims to, shipowner's duty as to, 264, 265 conveyance to place of loading, charterer's duty as to, 192 deductions allowed on valuation for purposes of salvage reward, 588 definition for purposes of salvage reward, 559 delay in procuring, caused by circumstances contemplated, effect of, 193, 194 when source a colliery, effect of, 193, 194 delivery of, place of, 258, 259 demand by consignee after master commences landing, rights, 279, 280 description in charterparty, 99, 100 deterioration of, master's duty to check, 226, 227 discharge of, "at consignee's risk and expense," effect of, 268, 269 duties of shipowner apart from stipulations as to, 266, 267 regulations as to, 642, 643 shipowner on delivery of, 265 stipulations affecting duties of parties as to, 267, 268 where berth not available or inaccessible, 262 excessive amount of, shipowner's right to refuse, 197, 198 failure by charterer to ship proper cargo, measure of damages, 209 fitness of ship to carry, need of, 214 general average loss of, when arising, 317, 318
grain, of, stowage of, 80, 81 hypothecation of, conditions justifying, 242—245
definition of, 240, 241
must be partly in its interest, 244 landing of, when necessary to preservation, 227, 228 shipowner's rights as to, begins, 280, 281 loading and discharge of, provision in charterparty for, 119—121 loss of, as affecting right to advance freight, 312 master's power over, during voyage, 222 to land and warehouse, 279, 280

SHIPPING AND NAVIGATION—continued.
cargo, master's power to raise funds on the, 243—245 meaning of, for salvage purposes, 559 measure of damages for failure to provide, 207, 208 non-delivery of, 289, 290 misdescription of, effect where bill of lading is qualified, 99 nature of, prohibited on emigrant ship, 345, 346 to be procured by charterer, 191, 192 non-delivery of, measure of damages as to, 289, 290 option to select, provision in charterparty as to, 100 postponement of rights of lender on, 246 preservation of, master's duty as to, 224 et seq.
provision of, when charterer excused from, 192, 193 rights of shipowner where not as described, 197 shipper on delivery of, 199 risk attaching to delivery to ship of, 199, 200 sale of, by master, duty to communicate with owner before sale, 253 in preservation of, effect of, 250 necessity for, what amounts to, 251, 252 of whole, when justifiable, 252, 253 payment of freight after, 254
shipowner's liability for, 249, 250 to complete voyage, authority, 249 master's power as to, 76, 228, 248 shipowner's duty as to preservation of, 224 storage by shipowner, nature of place for, 188 of, as affecting seaworthiness of ship, 213 particular kinds of shipowner, liability as to, 189, 204 transhipment during voyage, master's rights as to, 222 kinds of, 233, 234
on cargo owner's behalf, 239, 240 to earn freight, effect of, 237, 238 under contract, liability, 234 unloading of, consignee's duty as to taking delivery on, 271 liability on delay in acceptance on, 271 obligation as to, 254, 255 shipowner's default in, effect of, 272, 273 valuation for purposes of general average contribution, 324 weight or measurement of, to ascertain freight, 308—310 cargo owner, contribution to salvage reward as between shipowner and, 586, 587 exercise of master's implied authority on behalf of, 229—231 hypothecation of cargo on behalf of, 247 inability to communicate with, as condition of hypothecation of cargo, 244, 245 liability to expenses where master has implied authority to deal with cargo, 231 general average contribution, 322
under salvage agreement, 573 master's duty before sale of cargo to communicate with, 253 implied authority on behalf of, 228 power to bind, on transhipment, 240 position of, on hypothecation of cargo by master, 241 right as against owners of carrying ship, 542 colliding vessel, 542, 543 to arrest of ship, 546 in respect of jettison, 74, 75 on wrongful sale of cargo, 247, 248 to be communicated with before cargo dealt with, 231 recover loss in consequence of collision, 541 where both vessels at fault, 522 cargo improperly sold, 76, 77 salvage agreement as affecting, 573 shipowner's liability to, 232 transhipment of cargo on behalf of, effect of, 239, 240 carriage of mails, regulations, 354—356 casks, responsibility for storage of, 203, 204 water, provisions as to an emigrant ship, 339 casualties, and see shipping casualties.

SHIPPING AND NAVIGATION—continued.
casualties, duty to report, 590 report of, form of, 590 cattle, live, shipowner's duty as to cargo of, 189 prohibition as to carriage of, in emigrant ship, 346 watering of, master's duty as to, 225
"cause," meaning in law of negligence, 509 cause of action, negligence as, 499, 500 certificate, as to agreement with crew, 43 medical stores, penalty for proceeding without, 45 exhibition by master or owner of passenger ship, 334 illegal use of, liability of ship to forfeiture on, 33 issue to passenger steamer, 333, 334 liability of owner or master of passenger steamer plying without, 334, 335 measurement of foreign ship, of, effect of, 615, 616 of clearance, granting of, 81, 82 competency, granting of, 38 offences relating to, 38 preservation of, 39 production by master, 39 recognition where granted in British possession, 38 discharge, duty of master as to, 55 mortgage or sale, where transaction abroad, 30 officer, delivery of judgment where cancelled or suspended, 594 jurisdiction to deal with, constitution of court, 592, 593 passenger steamer's, power of Board of Trade when granted in British possession, 335 penalty on failure by master or owner of steamer to exhibit, 334 registration, of, detention of vessel pending production of, 16, 17 registry, of, admissibility as evidence, 31, 32 evidence of nationality of British ship, 20 granting of, 20, 21
indorsement on change of master or ownership, 21 lost, furnishing of new in lieu of, 21 provisional, when granted, 21 when required to be delivered up, 21 survey, of, granting of, 17 power of the Board of Trade as to, 17 transfer of master or mate to another ship as affecting, 602 certificated cook, carriage by ships, provisions as to, 44 officers, British ships liable to carry, 38 certificates, power of Board of Trade as to, 649 cesser clause, charterer's liability to pay chartered freight as affected by, 294, 295 construction of, 133
insertion in charterparty, effect of, 133, 134 meaning of "loading excepted" in, 133 change of course, when justified in fog, 424 chartered ship, liability for collision by, 526, 527 of owner in respect of, 34 charterer, acceptance of ship arriving at port of loading, 179, 180 amount of cargo to be provided by, 102 berth named by, nature of, 184 construction of stipulations designed to relieve, 130 delay in arrival of ship at berth, when falling on, 184 delivery of goods to place of loading by, duty as to, 198, 199 destruction of goods during loading as affecting liability of, 201, 202 discharge from contract by delay or deviation, 93 duty as to naming port of discharge, 255 to have cargo ready for loading, 190, 191 procure a cargo, 191, 192 ship cargo according to description, 99 effect of bill of lading where goods shipped by, 168 exceptions relieving, from consequence of delay, 129, 130 failure to provide cargo, when excused, 192—195 ship proper cargo, measure of damages, 209 indemnity to shipowner by, where master signs bills of lading, 107

SHIPPING AND NAVIGATION—continued.
charterer, liability for his stevedore's defective stowage, 203 on naming an unsafe port, 256, 257 to general average contribution, 322 pay chartered freight as affected by cesser clause, 294, 295
freight, 293, 294
not affected by ownership of goods, 294 limitation of liability for damages, 612—617 losses to which limitation of liability applies to, 613 obligation of, extended by stipulation, 118, 119 option to name port of discharge, 97 outbreak of war as affecting contractual liability of, 193 payment of dispatch money to, effect of, 126 freight by, where goods sold during voyage, 72 where ship under, 297, 298 position of parties where shipper is not, 169—172 premature readiness of ship as affecting, 193 principal exceptions inserted for protection of, 131—133 principles prevailing where contemplated circumstances prevent providing of cargo by, 193, 194 right as to freight against consignee, 298 on naming a berth, 261, 262 to damages for delay on non-arrival of ship at port of loading, 178, 179 where shipowner fails to provide ship, 209, 210 demurrage and lay days, 124, 125 name loading berth, 183 place agent on vessel during loading, 119 salvage reward, 565, 566
stowage by, effect on liability of shipowner, 205, 206
when disqualified from claiming salvage reward, 565, 566 excused for failure or delay in loading, 200, 201 no right under charterparty to carry passengers, 327 not liable for loss of vessel, 99 stevedore the servant of, 207 time begins to run against, 126, 127 charterparty, admissibility of parol evidence to explain terms of, 140, 141 alterations and additions to, principles governing, 142
" and/or " in, effect of, 100 arbitration clause in, 136 brokerage clause in, 136, 137 cancellation clause in, effect of, 97, 98 cesser clause in, effect of, 133, 134 chartering ship as general ship in, effect of, 100 construction of, a question for court and jury, 141 rules of, 138—141 contract between shipowner and charterer is the, 175 of carriage not necessarily expressed by, 147, 148
definition of, 84
operation of, 84, 85
under bill of lading where ship not demised by, 170—172 dangerous goods as cargo, provision as to, 100, 101 demise, by, kinds of, 85 rights of charterer under, 86 description of cargo in, 99, 100 ship in, 91
duty of shipowner as to provision of ship under, 103 effect of bill of lading in addition to, 148, 149 where ship demised by, 169, 170 where under seal, 88, 89 exceptions as to fitness of ship no protection to shipowner, 189 in, how far mutual, 118 protecting charterer, when operative, 201 existence of, as affecting position of shipowner, 168 express lien conferred upon shipowner by, effect of, 285—287 stipulations as to deviation in, nature of, 96, 97 inconsistent terms of, not incorporated in bill of lading, 177

SHIPPING AND NAVIGATION—continued.
charterparty, incorporation of terms in bill of lading, 175 liability of shipowner may be regulated by, 107, 108 nature of, where not by demise, 86 negligence clause in, effect of, 116 not by demise, rights of charterer under, 86, 87 option as to selection of cargo, provision as to, 100 parties to, 88 penalty clause in, operation of, 135, 136 perils excepted from shipowner's contract of, 108 persons not bound by terms of, 175 preliminary voyage may be provided for in, 97 reference in bill of lading to, construction of, 176 rules of agency applicable when not under seal, 89, 90 scope of exceptions relating to loading, 194, 195 signing of bills of lading by master, provision for in, 106. 107 stamp duty on, 87, 88
stipulation in, as to amount of cargo, 101, 102 arrival at specified port, 182, 183 in dock, 183, 184 bringing cargo to ship, 118, 119 damages, 135, 136
day of sailing or arrival, liability of shipowner, 93, 94 different rates of freight, when occurring, 104
disbursements, 104
payment of dispatch money, 128, 129 precise spot of berth, effect of, 184 provision of full cargo in, 102 reporting of ship, 137 time for loading and discharge, 119, 120 voyage, effect of, 94 that cargo be loaded and discharged with customary despatch, effect of, 121 stipulations in, excusing charterer from delay or failure to provide cargo, effect of, 194, 195 relieving the charterer, 129, 130 which are conditions precedent, 91, 92 test of condition precedent in, 143 whether by demise or not, 86 time of voyage, conditions of, 92, 93 provision for successive voyage in, effect of, 93
stipulations contained in, 98 usual provisions of, 104, 105 unauthorised, agent's liability under, 90 unstamped, effect of, 87 value of written and printed parts of, 141, 142
when disregarded, 170 master no authority to vary terms of, 174 shipper's liability to pay freight not affected by, 292, 293 written and printed parts of, relative value of, 141, 142 chief officer, as successor to master on death at sea, 40 clearances, duty of master to obtain, 218 necessity for, before ship sails, 81 power to withhold on non-compliance with statutory provisions as to ship's papers, 43 non-payment of tonnage rates, 639 shipowner's duty to obtain, 126
"close-hauled," duty of vessel when, 425 how vessel is ascertained to be, 430, 431
when vessel is, 431—433
"close-hauled on the port tack," duty of vessel hove to and appearing to be, 432, 433
Clyde, local navigation rules affecting, 481 coal hulk, when ceasing to rank as a ship, 14, 22 supply of, necessary to seaworthiness, 215

SHIPPING AND NAVIGATION—continued.
coastguards, right to apportionment of salvage reward, 584
when entitled to salvage reward, 569, 570 coasting licence, not necessary to yacht owners, 661 collateral negligence, not material in attaching blame, 505 when damage never "caused" by, 508 colliery, delay in providing cargo from, effect on rights of parties, 193, 194 working days, meaning of, 123 collision, and see risk of collision.
assistance after, ship to blame no right to salvage for, 546 between tug and tow and third vessel, division of damages, 521 liability, 527, 528 burden of proof in case of, 500, 501 cargo owner's right to recover loss in consequence of, 541 compulsory pilotage as affecting liability for, 529, 530 consideration of "cause" of, 509 damage to another vessel without, 506 departure from rules may be necessary to avoid, 367 distribution of loss where more than two vessels at fault, 521 duty of both vessels when one alone cannot avoid the, 445, 446 injured party to mitigate damage by, 538 keep-on vessel to assist in preventing, 450, 451 to stand by and render assistance on, 371, 372, 535 stop and reverse to avoid, 460 entry of particulars in log, 372 exception against, when shipowner protected by, 114 exercise of jurisdiction in personam when damage caused by, 546 history of general regulations for preventing, 372, 373 instances where subsidiary rule applied and not applied to antecedent negligence, 515, 516 interpretation of articles framed to prevent, 472, 473 rule as to one vessel keeping course to prevent, 446 keep-on vessel's duty to take action to avoid, 449, 450 liability where chartered ship in, 526, 527 limit of liability in case of, 617 limitation of time of action for, 524
yacht owner's liability in case of, 661
meaning of, 359, 360
negligence causing damage by, 499, 500 of both vessels causing, 507 presumption as to liability for, 525 proof of negligence in case of, rules, 501, 502 regulations for preventing, authority making, 359, 360
see Sea Regulations. rights in rem in respect of, 545 of master and crew on, 543 third innocent vessel as to damages for, 522 to salvage award as affected by, 563 rule as to division of loss by, since 1911...517, 518 governing construction of rules by navigating officer in avoiding, 471, 472 salvage reward not affected by statutory duty to assist on, 563 sea regulations applicable to foreign vessels as to, 12 shipowner's liability for, presumption, 525, 526 rights as to damages on, 542 subsequent loss after damage by, presumption as to, 538, 539 subsidiary rule as to negligence in cases of, 512, 515 vessels may be excused for not dropping anchors to prevent, 484, 485 when antecedent fault not the cause of, 512, 513 flare shown "in sufficient time to prevent," 398 shipowner excused from liability in respect of, 111 the result of an inevitable accident, 535 with wreck, liability as to, 533, 534 colonial courts, jurisdiction as to inquiries and investigations into shipping casualties, 592 light dues, recovery of, 631, 632
ships, application of Merchant Shipping Acts to, 13
"colonial voyage," definition of, 332 colours, see flag.

SHIPPING AND NAVIGATION—continued.
combustible cargo, supervision of, in harbour, 643 commission, liability to pay, provision for, 137, 138 payment for services rendered to ship, provision for, 137 rate usually payable under brokerage clause, 136 when payable under brokerage clause, 137 Commissioners of Irish Lights, area of control of, 628 constitution of, 628
Northern Lighthouses, area managed by, 627, 628 common carrier, shipowner as, 195, 196 liability as, 325, 326 danger, right to general average contribution as affected by, 316 compasses, adjusting of, regulation as to, 77, 78 compensation, liability for payment on abuse of distress signals, 479 pilots, of, provision for, 597, 605 seamen's right to, on shortage of provisions, 44 wrongful discharge of seaman as ground of claim for, 52 complaint, duty of master where seaman or apprentice desires to make, 46 compulsory pilot, liability of tow as affected by charge of, 529 not the "person in charge," 371 pilotage, as affecting liability of vessel in fault, 519, 520, 529, 530 distressed seamen are not passengers for purposes of, 57 districts, exemptions as to abolished, 610
meaning of, 610
seaworthiness of vessels in, 215 exemption by bye-law from, 611 of pleasure yachts from, 660 proof of, 530
provision for, 598
in pilotage order as to, 599 right of action as affected by, 500 shipowner's liability as to, 611 ships excepted as to, 610, 611 subject to, 609, 610 condition precedent, shipowner's failure to perform as to loading, effect of, 192, 193 statements on face of charterparty amounting to, 142 stipulation in charterparty amounting to, 91, 92 subsequent events as affecting, 143, 144 test of, in charterparty, 143 conflict of laws, as affecting contract for carriage of passengers, 329 construction of charterparty in case of, 141 conservancy authority, definition of, 554 limitation of liability of, 612—617 powers as to removal of wrecks, 554 consignee, conduct of, as affecting liability to unload, 278, 279 delay in acceptance of delivery, by, when unable to rely on shipowner's default, 272 delivery of goods to, under mate's receipt, 153 duty as to discharge of cargo, 267 taking delivery of cargo, 271 unloading of cargo where no time fixed, 274, 275 to discover arrival of ship, 263, 264 pay freight, 164 take goods after knowledge that he can receive them, 281 failure of, to discharge ship, excuses for, 272, 273 liability apart from statute, 166 for delay in unloading cargo, extent of, 273, 274 when taking discharge at own risk and expense, 268, 269 where time fixed for acceptance of cargo, 271, 272 obligation to unload, when arising, 254, 255 right on coming forward after master commenced landing cargo, 279, 280 paying ship dues, 631 to damages in case of delay on voyage, 289 indemnification for loss, extent of, 291 select berth of discharge, 262

SHIPPING AND NAVIGATION—continued.
consignee, rights of charterer as to freight against, 298 where alternative methods of delivery are available, 269 statutory liability to pay freight, 295, 296 transfer of bill of lading to, effect of, 172, 173 when liable to general average contribution, 322, 323 consignments, shipowner's duty as to sorting, 270, 271 constructive total loss, rights of defendant to wreck where plaintiff recovers, 539 consular officer, inquiries abroad by, 593 contract by charterparty, definition of, 84 master, effect of, 65 of carriage, charterparty not necessarily expresses, 147, 148 document in which found, 175 interests involved during performance of, 315
towage, and see towage.
obligations relating to, 357, 358 ticket, as affecting right of recovery for personal injuries through collision, 543, 544 issue to ship's passenger, when necessary, 336, 337 production by passenger to emigration officer, 337 transhipment of cargo to earn freight as affecting, 237, 238 contractor, owner of wreck may be liable for acts of, 534 contribution, as between cargo owner and shipowner, 586, 587 owners for damages for loss of life, 523, 524 assessment of salved property for purposes of, 587 award, finality of, 589
general principles as to, 586—589 reward for life salvage, in respect of, 587 salvage services, in respect of, liability for, 586 control of ship, where ship held in shares, 36 conversations, contract of carriage may be inferred from, 147, 148 conversion, shipowner, by, what amounts to, 152 convoy, warranty for, effect of, 83 cook, ships compelled to carry a, 44 steerage, carriage in emigrant ship, 341, 342 costs, priority of solicitor's lien for, 625 security for, on appeal from judgment on inquiry or investigation, 594, 595 county court, appeal by pilot to judge of, 609 jurisdiction in respect of damage to cargo, 546
"course and speed," meaning in article 21...446, 447
"course," meaning of, 475
Court of Appeal, power to award salvage reward, 582 court of summary jurisdiction, inquiry by, 592, 593 courts of survey, duties of, 662
Cowes, local navigation rules affecting, 481 creditors, claims to property of deceased seaman by, 59 crew, agreement with, see agreement.
binding effect of salvage agreement on, 572, 573 carriage of letters by, illegality of, 354, 355 insufficient, liability as to, 495 lists of, delivery compulsory, 657, 658 to be sent to Registrar-General, 657 necessity for furnishing ship with adequate, 213 right as to loss occasioned by collision, 543 to salvage reward, 565
salved vessel, of, may be salvors, 567 share of, in salvage reward, 583 supplying officers and, as salvage service, 558 wages of, when a general average expense, 321
when disqualified from claiming salvage reward, 565, 566 crossing ahead, duty of "keep out of the way" vessel to avoid, 453 river, in, duty as to, 497, 498
"crossing rule," application in general, 436 open water and at sea, 436, 437 narrow waters and rivers, 437—439 of narrow channel rule in connexion with, 470 to vessels in rivers on opposite courses, 439, 440

SHIPPING AND NAVIGATION—continued.
"crossing rule," application where river has two channels, 440, 441 context of, 436 exclusion in certain circumstances, 442 when not applying, 437 vessel not within, 436
crow's nest, as place for look-out off Beachy Head, 486
Crown, freedom from arrest of ships of, 533 purchase of wreck for, 553 right to unclaimed wreck, 552, 553 current, duty to keep in view the effect of, 496 custom, admissibility of parol evidence as to, 140, 141 as affecting right to salvage reward, 566 discharge of cargo as affected by, 266, 267 of the port, as to discharge into lighters, effect of, 270 unloading, stipulations excluding, 268, 269 consignee's absolute duty as to unloading cargo not affected by, 274 discharge of cargo as affected by, 276, 277 loading and discharge of cargo as affected by, 118, 119 customary dispatch, provision for loading and discharge with, effect of, 121 customs, right of search of mail ship by officers of, 356 cutting fine, not permissible where risk of collision exists, 429 damage, another vessel, to, without collision, 506 arising in exceptional cases, 505, 506 cargo, to, facts to be taken into consideration as to, 226 prevention of spreading of, duty of master as to, 227, 228 collision, by, jurisdiction of county courts over, extent, 360 limitation of time of action for, 524 through negligence causing, 499, 500 harbour, to, recovery of cost of, 644 maritime lien for, when arising, 618, 619 meaning of "reasonable diligence" in case of lien for, 627
priority of lien for, 622
proof required from shipper as to, 156, 157 received while rendering salvage services, rights as to, 546, 547 ship, to, seaman's liability for, 61 damaged goods, liability of shipowner as to, 156, 157 vessel, towing, as salvage service, 562 damages, "arrival" of ship as affecting right to, 181, 182 charterer's liability for in case of demurrage, 125 division of, how ascertained, 520, 521 statutory rule, 516, 517 for detention, charterer's liability to pay when naming an unsafe port, 256, 257 general, recovery of, 537 interest as, 541 limitation by contract, 290, 291 of liability for, 521, 612—617 losses incurred by substituting vessel as, 540, 541 measure of, in case of total loss, 538 respect of damaged goods, 291 on breach of contract by shipowner to deliver, 288 non-delivery of cargo, 289, 290 principles as to, 536, 537
where charterer fails to provide a cargo, 207, 208
ship proper cargo, 209
shipowner fails to provide ship, 209, 210 provision in charterparty as to, 135, 136 recovery of, under Admiralty Court Act, 1861...544 shipowner's liability as to, for delay in arriving at port of loading, 179 right to, where cargo not ready, 191, 192 statutory limitation of liability for, 614 danger, as essential to claim to salvage reward, 558, 559 justification for departure from Sea Regulations, 370 life, to, the first consideration, 576 nature of, necessary to general average contribution, 317

SHIPPING AND NAVIGATION—continued.
danger, property, to, degree of, as affecting amount of salvage reward, 576 vessel in, setting in motion, fetching or bringing assistance to, 557, 558 dangerous goods, authority of master to jettison, 74 charterparty must stipulate as to carriage of, 100, 101 prohibition against carriage in emigrant ship, 345, 346 provisions relating to carriage of, 79 when shipowner may refuse to take, 197 vessels, precautions to be taken as to, 493, 494 Danube, local navigation rules affecting, 481 day, length of a, 123, 124 days, meaning of, 122
saved, charterer not entitled to take into account, 126
" dead freight," meaning of, 101
" dead slow," justification for going, 423, 424 death, British ship, on, returns to be made as to, 64, 348, 658 entry in log-book of, 58 pleasure yacht, on, provisions not applicable to, 660 seaman, of, payment of wages on, 51 provisions relating to, 58
deceased seaman, administration of effects of, 58, 59 creditors' claims to property of, 59 duty of master in respect of, 58 offences and penalties relating to property of, 59 deck cargo, carriage of wood goods as, regulations as to, 80 on emigrant ship, regulations as to, 80 foreign ships, provisions relating to, 12 jettisoning of, no general average contribution on, 317, 318 liability to be jettisoned, 74
meaning of, 79
usage of trade as affecting carriage of, 205 when added to ship's registered tonnage, 80 lines, regulations as to marking ship with, 78, 79 shelter, provision on passenger steamer, 336 declarations of survey, transmission to Board of Trade, 333 deductions, allowed on valuation of cargo for salvage purposes, 588 ship for salvage purposes, 587, 588 liability of seamen's wages to, 50 delay, arrival at port of loading, when shipowner liable as to, 178, 179 exceptions relieving charterer from consequences of, 129—133 in action, danger where risk of collision exists, 429 passenger's right of action in respect of, 83 provision of cargo, in, effect where circumstances contemplated, 193, 194 risk of, in reaching place of delivery after arrival, upon whom falling, 263 unloading, in, natural conditions of port of discharge as affecting, 275, 276
" deliver, always afloat," as distinguished from " lie afloat," 256 delivery, cargo, of, by shipowner, effect of, 147 person entitled to, 264 to ship, effect of, 199 place of, 198, 199
purchaser or mortgagee no right to refuse, pending payment of freight, 309 receiver's liability discharged by, 553 demise, charterparty, by, kinds of, 85 nature of charterparty where not by, 86 position of shipowner where charterparty not by, 170 test whether charterparty by, or not, 86 demurrage, " arrival " of ship for purposes of, 181—184 charterer not liable for, where default attributable to shipowner, 120 charterer's liability as affected by employment of stevedore, 206 to, on naming an unsafe port, 256, 257 days, charterer's right to, 124 duty of consignee or indorsee to pay, 164, 165 exception excusing charterer from delay in providing cargo, effect of, 195

SHIPPING AND NAVIGATION—continued.
demurrage, lien for, application of, 135
meaning of, 121, 122
payment of, in absence of stipulation, 125 special contract required in respect of, 134, 135
when payable, 125, 126
payment ceases, 126
depth of water, duty of harbour authority as to, 647 deputy superintendent, mercantile marine offices, of, acts which may be done by, 656, 657 appointment of, 655, 656
derelict, definition of, 549, 559, 560 recovery of, as affecting the payment of freight, 589 salvage of, as affecting freight, 589 saving, as salvage services, 557 ship, duty to report, 590 deserters, British ship, from, how may be dealt with, 59, 60 keeping of list of, 63 desertion, countries affected by reciprocal orders in respect of arrest for, 62 facilities to foreign countries as to arrest of seamen for, 62 liability of seaman in respect of, 61 loss of right to wages on, 49 unseaworthiness as an answer to, 61, 62 destitute seamen, provisions relating to, 56, 57 detention, shipowner's right to expenses of, after collision, 539, 540 deterioration, drying of goods to prevent, master's duty as to, 228 master's duty to check, 226, 227 detonating signal, right of vessels to use, 406
"detonating signal that cannot be mistaken for a distress signal," meaning of, 407 deviation, barratry, when amounting to, 113 discharge of charterer from contract by, 93 express stipulations as to, effect of, 96, 97 interests of cargo to be considered in question of, 227 justification of, 83 liability of shipowner for, where ship under charterparty, 95 valid excuses for, 95, 96 disabled vessel may be liable for subsequent damage, 369, 370 disablement signals, provision for, 386—388 disbursements, master's right to maritime lien for, 620 priority of master's lien for, 623, 624 discharge, boats, from, liability in respect of, 118 cargo, of, custom of the port as affecting, 118, 119, 276, 277 duty of respective parties as to, how regulated, 265, 266 readiness for, what amounts to, 263 regulations as to, 642, 643
shipowner's duties apart from stipulations as to, 266, 267 stipulation in charterparty as to, 120, 121 stipulations affecting parties' duties as to, 267, 268
where berth not available or inaccessible, 262
"in turn," provision as to, 127, 128 seamen, of, 55, 56
where ship sold abroad, 56 discipline, offences against, 60 powers of master as to, 59 disobedience, liability of seamen in respect of, 60, 61 dispatch money, provision for payment of, effect of, 128, 129 disputes, as to receiver of wreck's fees and expenses, how determined, 549 title to unclaimed wreck, how dealt with, 553 wages of seamen in case of foreign-going ships, how settled, 48 between harbour and conservancy authority, reference, 554 distraint, recovery of light dues by, 631 tonnage rates by, 638, 639 distress, deviation to assist ship in, effect of, 95 signals, abuse of, liability for, 479, 562 in Sea Regulations, 1910...479 distressed seamen, not passengers for purposes of pilotage, 57 dock dues, recovery as damages, 539 duty of vessel lying in, 490

SHIPPING AND NAVIGATION—continued.
dock, duty of vessels entering and leaving, 498, 499 jurisdiction in respect of damage by collision with, 547 master, liability of shipowner as affected by orders of, 532, 533
meaning of, 634
obeyance to orders of, 499 owners, limitation of liability of, 612—617 stipulation in charterparty as to arrival in, effect of, 183 doctor, when ship compelled to carry, 45 document of title, bill of lading as a, 146, 147 documents, duty of master to carry necessary, 213 dredging stern first, duty of steamship going up river as to, 496, 497 dry-docking, recovery of costs of, as damages, 539 dues, light, see light dues.
dumb barge, as vessel requiring lights, 380, 381 good seamanship, special rules of, for, 494, 495 may be held a " rowing boat," 381
meaning of, 494
navigation of, 494, 495 right of, in fog on river, 420 towed when lashed to tug, 389 dunnage, nature of, 203
shipowner's duty to provide, 203
Dutch steam pilot vessels, sound signals to be given by, 410 effects, deceased seaman, of, meaning of, 58 embezzlement, stores or cargo, of, seaman's liability for, 61 emigrant, licence required to solicit, 352 object of the Merchant Shipping Acts to protect, 11 offence of making false representation to, 352 recovery of passage money by relanded, 343 right to subsistence money where voyage delayed, 347 runner, definition of, 351 duty to wear badge, 352 fee of, when recoverable, 352 ship, carriage of medical officer on, 341 steerage steward and cook in, 341, 342 certificate of clearance for, regulations as to, 81, 82
" emigrant ship," definition of, 331 emigrant ship, duty of chief officer of customs where ship bound to British possession, 344 foreign, carriage of interpreters in, 342 inspection of medical stores before clearance of, 341 issue of rations, on, regulations as to, 339, 340 legal proceedings in respect of, 353 liability to obtain further certificate of clearance, 82 maintenance of steerage passengers delayed by wreck of, 348 master's bond as necessary to clearance of, 343, 344 medical inspection of, provision for, 342 stores on, regulations as to, 340, 341 number of steerage passengers to be carried in, 337, 338 passenger lists, provisions relating to, 344, 345, 348 power to make regulations as to, 330 prohibition of sale of spirits to steerage passengers of, 330 provision with fire engine, 78 provisions, water and stores for, 338, 339 regulations as to carriage of deck cargo on, 80 of Board of Trade as to steerage passengers in, 338 sanitary regulations concerning, 330 steerage passengers' rights at end of voyage of, 347 steward to be carried by, 341 survey of, provision for, 335 emigration officers, appointment of, 353 power to deal with sick persons, 343 protection of, 353
power of harbour authority as to, 646 emoluments, inclusion in term " wages," 47
Employers' Liability Act, as to definition of " seamen " for purposes of, 15
" end on or nearly end on," meaning of, 434, 435

SHIPPING AND NAVIGATION—continued.
endangering ship, liability of master or seamen in respect of, 62, 63
" engaged in trawling," meaning of, 398 English Channel, speed of sailing vessels in, 419 ensign, grant of privilege to members of yacht clubs as to, 660, 661 Royal Yacht Squadron, of, 660, 661 entry, goods before landing, of, effect where owner fails as to, 280, 281 for landing, of, at wharf other than that at which ship discharging, 281, 282 equipment, negligence in, effect of, 502 ship, of, provisions relating to, 77, 78 equitable assignment, freight, of, rights of assignee, 302, 30 interests, recognition of, extent of, 30, 31 establishments, lighthouse authorities, of, 633 evidence, documents relating to registration of ship as, 32 entries in log book as, 82 protest as, 84
register as, of ownership, 34 examination, persons concerning wreck by the receiver of wreck, 550 excepted ships, list of, 610, 611 execution of process, exemption relating to mail ships as to, 355, 356 expenditure, when recoverable as a general average sacrifice, 319, 320 expenses, lighthouse authorities, of, provision of, 632, 634 extra remuneration, when seaman may claim, 50, 51 extraordinary expenses, lighthouse, provision of, 633, 634 fair-way, as distinguished from mid-channel, 467, 468 duty of persons in charge of vessel aground in, 498
meaning of, 406, 467, 468
when vessel justified in anchoring in, 498 false declaration, as to qualification, penalty, 33 statement, liability of seaman on making, 62 fault, as distinguished from negligence, 517 division of damage or loss in proportion to, 516—518 nature of, where the cause of damage or loss, 519
" fault of the vessel," meaning of, 518, 519
" fault or privity," meaning of, 614 fault, presumption of, for breach of Sea Regulations, 534, 535 on failure to stand by and render assistance, 535 felony, sale of wreck in foreign port as amounting to, 556 ferry steamer, liability for proceeding in a fog, 417 final sailing, what constitutes, 219, 220 finders of wreck, duties of, 551 fines, imposition on crew, regulations as to, 50 fire engine, provision of emigrant ship with, 78 hose, provision on British sea-going steamship, 78 protection of shipowners from liability in respect of, extent of, 111, 112 saving property or life from vessel on, as salvage service, 558 fires, power to regulate use of in harbour, 643 fishing boat, see fishing vessel.
ground, speed of vessels over, 487 vessel, apprenticeship on, 41 day signals of, 395 duty of sailing vessel to keep out of way of, rule, 471 steamers passing among, 397 fog signals by, 395 lights to be carried by, 393, 394
meaning of, 396
provisioning with boats and lifebuoys, 78 sailing vessel to give way to, 444, 445 steam, navigation where incumbered, 396, 397 treatment of owners of, in respect of salvage reward, 583
" fishing with drift-nets," meaning of, 398 flag, British, liability of ship improperly using the, 11 nature of, as carried by merchant ships, 11 signal for pilot, 11
flare-up light, duty of vessel being overtaken when showing, 402 right of fishing vessels to use, 395 showing by pilot-vessels, 392 vessel being overtaken must show, 399

SHIPPING AND NAVIGATION—continued.
flare-up light, vessel's right to attract attention by showing, 406, 407 when shown in sufficient time to prevent collision, 398 floating derelicts, duty to report, 590 stranded vessel, as salvage service, 557
" flotsam," meaning of, 548, 549 fog, approaching bank of, duty of vessel when, 413 change of course in, when justified, 424, 425 circumstances not justifying stoppage of engines in, 422 density of, speed depending on, 416 dumb barge's right on river in a, 420 duty of vessel in neighbourhood of, 420 exception protecting charterer from accident caused by, 132 ferry steamer's liability for proceeding in a, 417 look-out in, 411, 412 position of vessel ascertained in, 421, 422 signals, duty of look-out as to, 411, 412 failure to stop on hearing, liability, 422 fishing vessels, by, 395 former regulations as to, 410, 411 inspection of ship's, 363 liability for not being heard, 411 neglect to sound, 411 powers making regulations as to, 359, 360 vessel moored to position connected with shore not to give, 414 unable to get out of the way, for, 388 when tug is " towing " for purpose of sounding, 414 sound-signals, regulations as to, 409—411 to be given by steamer or sailing vessel in, 410 speed of ships in, 414, 415, 417, 418 stoppage in, 423 of engines in, 416, 417, 420
when technically existing, 412
foghorn, absence of mechanical, no excuse for not giving warning, 369 foreign country, application of Sea Regulations to ships of, 376 reciprocity in respect of arrest of deserting seamen in, 62 discharge, seamen, of, 56 foreign-going ship, delivery of agreements with crew on arrival of, 43 official log-book of, 82, 83 engagement of seamen for, 42
meaning of, 38, 42
outward bound, notification of change in crew by master, 43 payment of wages of seamen on, 47, 48
Government vessels, exemption in respect of salvage award, 560, 561 judgment in rem, binding effect of, 76 port, selling wreck in, offence of, 556 foreign seamen, liability of master or owner importing, 56 ship, application of Merchant Shipping Acts to, 12, 13 detention of, 546 duty of consul-general on wreck of, 552 liability to arrest on claim for necessaries, 67, 68
tonnage rate, 637
observance of Sea Regulations by, 375 ownership of, when court will entertain question of, 37 registration abroad making British ship a, 612 regulations as to providing with lifebuoys, 78 tonnage of, how ascertained, 615, 616 wreck of, claim to, 552 state, freedom from arrest of ships of, 533 station, inquiry by naval officers on, 593 warships, when within Sea Regulations, 408 waters, narrow channels in, 465, 466 foreigner, failure to make application necessary on sale of ship to, penalty, 33 forfeiture, liability of ship to, 11, 33 seizure of ship liable to, officers entitled to effect, 33 wages, of, when seaman liable to, 49 formal investigations, constitution of court holding, 592, 593 holding in respect of shipping casualties, 592

SHIPPING AND NAVIGATION—continued.
foul berth, definition of, 489 liability on vessel giving a, 489 fraud, validity of salvage agreement as affected by, 571 freight, advance, what constitutes, 313, 314
when payable, 311, 312
allowance for, where shipowner obtains other employment on default of charterer, 208, 209 amount payable for, rule governing, 307, 308 as subject of maritime lien for salvage services, 579, 580 assessment for salvage service ending at port of destination, 588, 589 other than port of destination, 588 assignment by shipowner, effect of, 301, 302 at risk, how dealt with for purposes of salvage reward, 588 breakdown of machinery as affecting payment of, 105 charterer's liability to pay, 293, 294 classes of, where ship under charter, 297, 298 commencement of voyage necessary to payment of, 314 consignee's statutory liability to pay, 295, 296 definition for purpose of salvage, 560 delivery of goods essential to claim for, 304, 305 different rates of, when specified in same charterparty, 104 dishonoured bill of exchange no discharge for, 307 equitable assignment of, effect of, 302, 303 expense of ascertaining amount of, by whom payable, 310 failure to deliver goods as affecting shipowner's right to, 305, 306 forwarding of goods by another's ship, as affecting payment of, 306, 307
general average loss of, when arising, 318, 319 holder of maritime lien having right as against, 303 implied authority by master to receive, 297 contract to pay, 292
insurer's right to, in case of total loss, 301 liability of indorsee of bill of lading to pay, 296 to assessment for salvage reward, 588 lien for, existence of, 134 nature of, which must be provided for, 134, 135 where part paid in advance, 284 of shipowner for bill of lading, 171 extent of, 283, 284
lump, provision for payment of, effect of, 310 master's power to bind owner in respect of, on transhipment, 240 right to hypothecate for necessaries, 69, 70 mortgage of ship as affecting assignee of, 303 payment of, 299, 300 nature of, passing to mortgagee of a ship, 26, 27, 300 not payable where bill of lading provides "freight free," 308, 309 earned under unlawful contract, 307
note, nature of, 148
when terms between parties contained in, 147, 148 ownership of goods immaterial as affecting liability to pay, 294 part owner's right to sue for, 297 payment after sale of cargo by master, 254
by charterer where goods sold during voyage, extent of, 72 of advance freight as affecting balance of, 313 primary liability of shipper, 291, 292 under a through bill of lading, 149, 150 where part goods only delivered, 306 weight or bulk of cargo increased or decreased during voyage, 309 possession by mortgagee as affecting right to, 26, 27 pro ratâ, nature and payment of, 314, 315 provision in bill of lading for payment of, 106, 107, 303, 304 rate of, how ascertained, 308, 309 payable by shipper, 171 recovery of derelict as affecting payment of, 589 repayment of, where ship lost, extent of, 105 rights of assignee of, as against first mortgagee in possession, 29

SHIPPING AND NAVIGATION—continued.
freight, rights of assignee of, as against second mortgagee, 29 charterer against consignee as to, 298 sale of cargo during voyage as affecting, 249, 250 ship as affecting payment of, 298, 299 salvage of derelict as affecting, 589 shipowner, ability of, to deliver as affecting right to, 304, 305 as person primarily entitled to receive, 296, 297 right to withhold goods pending payment of, 164 shipper's liability to pay as affected by issue of bill of lading, 293 stipulation contained in voyage charter as to, 103, 104 transhipment of cargo to earn, effect of, 235—238 use of own ship by shipper as affecting payment of, 292 valuation for purposes of general average contribution, 324, 325
when master can pledge, 72 not returnable on loss of goods, 235 payable, 303, 304
the subject of salvage, 560 frozen meat, shipowner's duty on carriage of, 189 frost, exception protecting charterer against, 132 fruit cargo, master's duty during voyage with, 225
"full speed astern," nature of order, 457 funds, raising of, by hypothecation of cargo, when permissible, 243 gas float, not a ship, 375 general average contribution, adjustment of, 323, 324 enforcement of, 323
persons liable to, 322, 323 requisites to claim for, 316 valuation of cargo, ship and freight for purposes of, 324, 325 when not recoverable in case of collision, 541
definition of, 315
expenditure, shipowner's right to recover, 319, 320 expense, port charges and pilotage dues as, 321 reloading and warehousing charges as, 321, 322 repairs to ship as, 320, 321 unloading charges as, 321 wages of crew as, 321 expenses, expenses in port of refuge as, 320
lien for, existence of, 134
of shipowner for, 284 loss, cargo, of, how may arise, 317, 318 freight, of, when arising, 318, 319 ship, of, when arising, 319 provision for payment in bill of lading, 151 shipowner not protected against contribution in case of fire, 112 when shipowner liable for, 187 collision regulations, history of, 372, 373 table of, App. i. et seq.
damages, right to recover, 537 lighthouse authority, and see lighthouse authorities.
power as to removal of wreck, 554
General Lighthouse Fund, constitution of, 633 Register and Record Office, control and supervision of, 63, 64 lists of seamen to be returned to, 63, 64 general ship, ship chartered as, effect of, 100 getting under way, duty of vessel when, 484 giving-way vessel, duty not to cross ahead of keep-on vessel, 543
of, 432
rights as to manœuvring of keep-on vessel, 448 in exercising duty to keep out of the way, 457 good order and condition, effect of statement in bill of lading that goods shipped in, 156, 157 seamanship, avoidance of collision by, 456, 488 fog, in, rules as to, 410, 416, 495 rules of, extent of, 483 in narrow waters, 496 et seq.
special vessels, 490 et seq.

SHIPPING AND NAVIGATION—continued.
good seamanship, rules of, special weather, 495 usual events, 484 et seq.
goods, acknowledgment of receipt of, bill of lading as, 144—146 damaged, measure of damages in respect of, 291 shipowner's liability in respect of, 156, 157 delivery essential to shipowner's right to, 304 duty of owners of, on arrival in harbour, 638 failure to deliver as affecting shipowner's right to freight, 305, 306 fitness to receive, as condition of seaworthiness, 188 part delivery of, as affecting payment of freight, 306 possession of, bill of lading as effecting, 146, 147 power of harbour master where left on quay, 642 safety of, shipowner's liability as to, 107, 108 transfer by bill of lading, 159, 160 Government rules, Sea Regulations not to interfere with, 407 ships, exemption from claim for salvage reward, 560, 561 power to register, 16 registration as British ships, 375 grain, stowage of, provisions as to, 80 green hides, prohibition of carriage in emigrant ship, 345, 346 guano, prohibition of carriage on emigrant ship, 345, 346 gunpowder, harbour regulations as to, 643, 644 guns, harbour regulations as to, 643 harbour authority, duty as to buoys, lights, beacons and sea marks, 645 provision of lifeboat and rocket apparatus, 645 tide gauge, barometer, and weather report, 645 to post copies of bye-laws, 646, 647 employment of meters and weighers by, 643 liabilities of, 647, 648
limitation of liability of, 612—617
meaning of, 554, 612, 634
power as to fines and lights, 643 making of bye-laws, 645, 646 removal of wreck, 554 combustible cargo, precautions as to, 643 damage to, liability of shipowner as to, 644 recovery of cost of, 644 depositing of refuse matter in, regulations, 644 dues, duties of ship on arrival as to, 637, 638 duty of vessels approaching in opposite directions, 498, 499 jurisdiction in respect of damage done by ship to, 547 management of vessels entering, 639, 640 master, disobedience to directions of, liability, 641 duty on repairing or cleansing of harbour, 641, 642 liability of shipowner as affected by orders of, 532, 533
meaning of, 634, 640
obedience to orders of, 499 power as to goods left on quays, 642 mooring of vessels, 639, 640 to remove obstructions, 642 powers of, generally, 640, 641 wrongful exercise of powers by, liability, 642
meaning of, 554, 634
moving ship in, who may be employed in, 605 rate, collection of, 634, 635 rights on payment of, 635 reservation of rules for, 477, 478 safety of, provision for, 643, 644 harbours and inland navigation, reservation of rules for, under Sea Regulations, 477—479 hatches, when master must batten down, 225 heating, shipowner's liability in respect of, 204 hire of ship, master's implied authority to contract for, 65
His Majesty's ships, meaning of, 375 home-trade passenger ship, master's right to refuse to admit passenger on, 330
meaning of, 38, 330
steamer, equipment of, 336

SHIPPING AND NAVIGATION—continued.
home-trade ship, agreement with seamen for, nature of, 42 delivery of official log-book of, 82, 83
meaning of, 42, 611
payment of seamen's wages in, 48
House of Lords, appeal in respect of salvage reward to, 581, 582 hove-to, duty of vessel, 432, 433
Humber rules, application of, 481
" hurt or injury," seaman, to, what it includes, 45 hypothecation of cargo, conditions justifying, 242—245
definition of, 240, 241
on behalf of cargo owner, 247 powers of lender on, 241 rights of lender under, 245, 246 ship or freight, master's authority as to, 69, 70 ice, deviation to escape collision with, effect of, 95, 96 exception protecting charterer against accident caused by, 132 strengthening of ship to encounter, as condition of seaworthiness, 215 identification, method of achievement of, 11 illegal trading, liability of ship to forfeiture for, 33 illness, master or seaman, of, liability of owner as to, 45, 46 immoderate speed, what may amount to, 418, 419 impeding navigation of ship, seaman's liability for, 61 importing goods, discharge of lien on, statutory provisions as to, 287, 288
" in charge," meaning of, 371
" in or near coast," as to meaning of, 550 in personam, rights of salvor, 580, 581 in rem, extent of judgment, 617 foreign judgment, effect of, 76 rights of salvor, 579, 580 statutory rights, how enforced, 626
" in sight of one another," meaning of phrase, 473, 474
" in sufficient time to prevent collision," meaning of, 398
" in the forward part of the vessel," when anchor light is, 405
" in turn," meaning of, 128 provision in charterparty as to loading or discharging, 127, 128 incapacity, owners under, transfer of ship to, registered in name of, 23 incoming vessel, duty to wait for outgoing, 498, 499 indemnification, loss, for, extent of consignee's right to, 291 settlement of the, 537 independent salvors, apportionment of reward between, 584 indorsee, duty to pay freight, 164 liability apart from statute, 166 transfer of bill of lading by, 158, 159 indorsement, bill of lading, of, effect of, 165, 166 inevitable accident, instances of, 411 no right of action where damage caused by, 500 when collision the result of, 535, 536 infant owner, transfer of ship registered in name of, 23 information, as salvage service, 557, 558 injury, master or seaman, to, owner's liability for, 45, 46 inland waters, application of Sea Regulations to, 478 reservation of rules for, 477
inquiries and investigations, classes of, 591 inquiry, constitution of the court of, 592, 593 naval officers on foreign station may hold, 593 power of Board of Trade to order, 649 preliminary, when and by whom held, 591, 592 procedure at, 594 on appeal from finding of, 594, 595 institution of, 594 refusing to attend, on order of Board of Trade inspector, penalty, 651 rehearing and appeals from finding, 594, 595 inspection, ship's medical stores and anti-scorbutics, of, 45, 341 provisions, of, 44, 339 inspectors of ships, appointment and duties of, 650, 651 insurance, advance freight, of, effect of, 313, 314 payable subject to, effect of, 313 interests involved in maritime adventure as subject of, 315

SHIPPING AND NAVIGATION—continued.
insurance, right to effect in respect of steerage passengers, 349, 350 insurer, right to freight on total loss of ship, 301 interest, recovery as part damages through collision, 541 intermittent light, duty of vessel showing, 402 International Convention on safety of passenger traffic, 78 interpleader, when shipowner must resort to, in respect of claims to cargo, 264, 265 interpreters, carriage on emigrant ship, 342 investigations, formal, constitution of court holding, 592, 593 holding of, 592
procedure on institution of, 594 rehearing of, power of the Board of Trade as to, 594 when and how held, 591, 592
"jetsam," meaning of, 548, 549 jettison, authority of master to, 74 dangerous goods as subject of, 74 master's power as to the cargo, 228
"necessity" to, meaning of, 75 judge's report of inquiry, duty as to delivery, 594 judgment, as to cancellation or suspension of officer's certificate, delivery of, 594 creditors, postponement of rights of, to those of registered mortgagee, 28, 29 powers of arrest of mortgaged ship, 28 in rem, extent of, 617 foreign, effect of, 76 satisfaction of maritime liens in order of, 622 jurisdiction, application of Merchant Shipping Acts to foreign vessels within the, 12 keep-on vessel, duty to assist in avoiding collision, 450, 451 keeping course, duty of keep-on vessel as to, 448 steamer approaching another in winding river as to, 447 vessel not giving way as to, 445, 446 meaning in respect of sailing ship, 451, 452 rule, when departure from justified, 448, 449 vessel, duty of, 432
when sailing ship justified in departing from rule as to, 452, 453 King's enemies, non-liability of shipowner for damage caused by, 107 running without lights to escape, 369 stipulation as to, application of, 108 Regulations, how far power of warship to change course affected by, 449 knowledge, salvor's duty to show reasonable degree of, 577 laches, as affecting rights under maritime lien, 580
"lagan," meaning of, 549 landing cargo or persons, as salvage service, 557 stage, not a "vessel," 14 landowner, indemnification where salvage left on land of, 550 lascars, production of list of, liability to penalty in respect of, 43 return where found destitute, 56 right to engage, provisions as to, 43 latent defects, defects not excluded by exception as to, 115 launching a vessel, warnings to be given in respect of, 484 lay days, charterer's right to make use of, 124, 125
meaning of, 121, 122
leakage and breakage, loss covered by exception of, 115, 116 legal proceedings, and see proceedings.
in respect of emigrant ships, 353 offences in respect of emigrant ships, 353 lender, bottomry bond, on, risk undertaken by, 71 position of, where taking bottomry bond as security for bills of exchange, 73, 74 rights under a hypothecation of cargo, 245, 246 letters, illegal carrying of, 354, 355 liberty to call, stipulation in charterparty conferring, effect of, 96 tow, rights of master under stipulation giving, 96, 97

SHIPPING AND NAVIGATION—continued.
licence, emigrant runner's, how obtained, 352 necessary to passage broker, 350 passage broker's, how obtained, 350, 351 pilot boats, for, necessity, 393 pilot's, grant of, 600, 601 no liability implied by grant of, 601 revocation or suspension of, 601 supply or engage seamen, to, granting of, 43, 44
"lie afloat," as distinguished from "deliver, always afloat," 256 lien, agent on bill of lading, of, 288 application of proceeds of sale of goods by shipowner for, 282 charges not subject to, 285 clause, nature of liens conferred by, 134, 135 demurrage for, application of, 135
enforcement of general average contribution by, 323 holder of bill of lading as subject to shipowner, 285, 286 maritime, see maritime lien.
master, of, for unpaid passage money, 329
when arising, 68
mortgagee's liability in respect of, 25 nature of, to be created by special contract, 285 seaman's, on ship for wages, 53 shipowner's, discharge of, 287, 288 duration of, 287
extent of, 283, 284
when lost, 288
where goods landed and warehoused, 282 part goods lost, 150
statutory provision preserving master's, on landing cargo, 280 life, danger to, as affecting amount of salvage reward, 576 necessary salvage service, 562 the first consideration in assessing salvage reward, 576 right to salvage reward in respect of, 561 salvage, apportionment of contribution in respect of, 587 claim for, priority of, 561, 562 saving appliances, duty of owners and masters to provide, 78 of, as excuse for deviation, 95 statutory duty to assist in saving, 561 lifeboat crews, apportionment of salvage reward between, 584 when ranking as salvors, 570 provision and maintenance of, 645 service, meaning of, 554 lifebuoys, ships liable to carry, 78 light dues, calculation of, 630 colonial, recovery of, 631 liability of pleasure yachts to, 660 recovery of, 630, 631 ships liable to, 629, 630 lighter, not a ship, 377
lightermen, strike of, as affecting charterer's liability, 131 lighters, custom of the port as to discharge into, effect of, 269, 270 shipowner's liability to provide, 268 lighthouse authorities, as removal authorities, 554 establishments of, 633 exemption of premises of, 628 general, duties of, 630
powers of, 628, 629, 632
liability of, 628
definition of, 627
lighthouses, construction of, 628, 629 inspection and control of, 632 superintendence and management of, 627, 628 lighting of wreck, duty and liability as to, 555 lights, and see stern lights.
absence of, effect of, 382 alteration of, as showing a risk of collision, 430 application of regulations as to, mode of, 380 authorities making regulations as to, 359, 360

SHIPPING AND NAVIGATION—continued.
lights, breach of rules as to, 382 bright moonlight no excuse for not carrying, 381 bye-laws as to use of, harbour authority's power as to, 643 carrying in wrong place, liability, 385 duty of harbour authority as to, 645 look-out on river in reporting, 486, 487 fishing vessels, provisions, 393—395 fixing of, effect of regulations as to, 389, 390
inspection of ship's, 363
navigating officer's duty to observe, 429, 430 neglect to provide, no exoneration for, 477 object of regulations as to, 379, 380 obscuration of, effect of, 382, 383 pilot vessels, of, provisions as to, 392, 393 replacement where lost, duty as to, 381 rowing boats and vessels under 20 tons, 391 rules concerning, in Sea Regulations, 1910...379—383 shown by small vessels in bad weather, 390 vessel aground, 388
towed, 388
special cases where good seamanship requires showing of, 383 vessels, required to carry, 380 steam vessel of less than 40 tons, 391 under way, on, position of, 385 regulations, 384, 385
when towing, 385
vessels of less than 40 tons, 391 strict adherence to regulations as to, required, 381 telegraph cable ship, to be carried by, 386, 387 tow's liability for tug's, 491 towing, liability of tow as to, 381, 382 unusual, excuses and exceptions for showing, 381 vessel at anchor, of, 403 not under command through accident, on, 386 when tow liable in respect of tugs, 386 wrecks, on, liability, 383 wrong, liability for carrying, 381, 382 Limitation Act, 1623, application to seamen's wages, 54 limitation of action, against harbour authorities, 648 liability, collisions, in case of, 617 harbour authorities, of, 648 persons in whose favour applying, 612—617 statutory, 614
tonnage as affecting, 615, 616 where claim settled out of court, 617 time, action for damage by collision, for, 524 proceedings, procedure on, 616, 617
"limits of the United Kingdom," meaning of, 556 lists of crew, delivery and contents of, 657 load lines, provision for marking ship with, 79 loading, boats, from, liability in respect of, 118 cargo must be ready for, charterer's duty as to, 190, 191 charterer excused as to, where contract unlawful, 201 conveyance of cargo to place of, charterer's duty as to, 192 custom of the port as affecting, 118, 119 delay or failure in, due to contemplated cause, effect of, 201 delivery of cargo for purposes of, place of, 198, 199 destruction of goods during, as affecting charterer's liability, 201, 202 employment of stevedore for purposes of, effect of, 206, 207 exception protecting shipowner's responsible for, 198 exceptions to liability of charterer in respect of, 200—202 failure of shipowner to perform condition precedent to, effect of, 192, 193 or refusal of shipper to effect a, rights of shipowner, 196, 197 implied condition of seaworthiness during, 186, 187
"in turn," provision as to, 127, 128 liability of charterer to complete in case of obstructions, 180, 181 master's duty on completion of, 218

SHIPPING AND NAVIGATION—continued.
loading, notice of readiness to commence, duty of shipowner to give, 186 port of, charterer's duty to name a safe, 181 provision as to exact place of, 184 of ballast as affecting time for, 185 qualifying stipulations affecting shipowner's rights in respect of, 181 readiness of ship for purpose of, 177, 184, 185 regulations applicable to foreign vessels as to, 12 risk of shipowner in respect of, when attaching, 202 scope of exceptions in charterparty relating to, 194, 195 ship becoming unseaworthy during, non-liability of shipowner, 190 shipowner's default in respect of, liability, 200, 201 duty to obtain pratique before, 185, 186 liability in respect of, 203, 204 supervision of, duty of shipowner to provide a master for, 203 time for, provision in charterparty as to, 119, 120 stipulations in charterparty as to, 179, 180 local Acts, repeal by Pilotage Order, 598 local authority, meaning of, 479 rules of, requirements as to validity of, 478
light dues, recovery of, 631 lighthouse authorities, constitution of, 628
powers of, 629
marine boards, constitution of, 653 control by Board of Trade, 654, 655 election of elective element of, 653 establishment of, 652, 653 mercantile marine offices, where existing, 655 powers and duties of, 653
validity of proceedings of, 654 navigation rules, districts in which existing, 480—483 judicial decisions on, 481—483 observance of, 479, 480 rules, narrow channel rule as affected by, 470 lock-outs and strikes, exception protecting charterer against, 131, 132 lodging-houses, seamen's, provisions relating to, 54 log-book, engineer's, effect of entries in, 82 entry in, nature of, 82
when to be made, 82
of name of member of crew refusing to take anti-scorbutics, 45 offences in, 63
particulars of collision in, 372 statement as to leaving seaman abroad, 48 proof of desertion by, 49 look-out, absence of, as breach of Sea Regulations, 486 astern, when no necessity for, 486 duty as to fog signals, 411, 412 in reporting lights on river, 486, 487 on tug as to, 486 fog, in, 411, 412
good, burden of proof as to, 501
what constitutes, 485, 486
neglect to keep proper, no exoneration for, 477 proper, considerations in deciding what is a, 486 place for off Beachy Head, 486 loss, division between tug and tow and third vessel, 529 of, how ascertained, 520 statutory rule of, 516, 517 general average, 315 must take place on board the ship, 613 of cargo, proximate cause of, how arrived at, 232, 233 right to advance freight as affected by, 312 life, contribution as between shipowners in respect of damages for, 523, 524 right of action for damages in respect of, 523 profit, as part damages for collision, 540

SHIPPING AND NAVIGATION—continued.
loss of profit, failure of shipowner to provide ship, on, 210 ship, repayment of freight in case of, 105 report to be made of, 658 statutory duty to report, 590 particular average, 315 losses, nature to which liablity limitation applies, 613, 614
"lower passenger deck," definition of, 332 lucifer matches, prohibition of carriage on emigrant ship, 345, 346 lump freight, provision for payment of, effect of, 310, 311 lunatic owner, transfer of ship registered in name of, 23 machinery, breakdown of, as affecting payment of freight, 105 shipowner's duty to supply in respect of cargo, 189 magistrate, appeal by pilot to, 609 mail bag, meaning of, 354 ships, application of Order in Council as to, 354 exemptions in respect of, 355, 356
freedom from arrest, 356
right of search by officers of customs, 356 mails, carriage of, 354—356
Manchester Ship Canal, application of local rules to, 481 Sea Regulations not applicable to, 376 when position of vessel "ascertained" in fog in, 421, 422
"managing owner," a commercial as distinguished from legal expression, 590 managing owner, duty to report loss of ship, 590 liability to account, 36 nature of office and power of, 35 registration of name and address of, 18 marine store dealers, powers of receiver of wreck as to licensing of, 551 Maritime Conventions Act, 1911, application of, 524, 525 liabilities under, 518 rule of division of damage under, 516, 517 statutory jurisdiction in respect of damage under, 545 maritime lien, and see lien.
bottomry and respondentia bonds, for, 620
enforcement of, 625
extinction of, 626, 627
foreign court may establish, 617 liability of mortgagee in respect of, 25 master's right in respect of disbursements to, 620 nature and extent of, 617 object of, 545
priority of claim to salvage as a, 622, 623 master's claim to, 623, 624 where several actions arise out of one cause 622 property to which attaching, 619 right of holder in respect of freight, 303 rights of mortgagees deferred to, 29 salvage creating, 619 to what attaching, 545 transfer of, rule as to, 625, 626 wages, for, to what attaching, 620 when accruing in respect of salvage services, 579, 580 arising, 545, 618, 619
liens, priority as between, 580, 621, 622 property, as subject of salvage, 559, 560 what is, 559, 560
marking British ship, of, provision for, 17, 18, 78, 79 pleasure yachts, exemptions of, from, 660 marriages, duties of master as to, 64, 82, 657 master, acts of, amounting to barratry, 112, 113 without the exception "perils of the seas," 110, 111 advances by, right of recovery, 67 appointment or removal of, powers as to, 40 as agent of shipowner in ordering repairs, 246, 247 authority of, as to necessaries, 66, 67

SHIPPING AND NAVIGATION—continued.
master, authority of, general, 64, 65 limitations on, 65, 66 over passengers, 329
scope of, 67
to bind shipowner, extent of, 154, 173—175 hypothecate ship or freight, 69, 70 jettison, 74, 75
sell cargo, extent of, 248, 249 bond, of, necessity for, to clearance of emigrant ship, 343, 344 claim for wages postponed to that of bottomry bond holder, 53 delivery of ship's papers by, 64 deviation from course by, when excused, 95, 96 discretion of, as to obeying Sea Regulations, 366, 367 duty as to births, 64, 348, 658 care of cargo, 224, 225 certificate of seaman's discharge, 55 deaths, 58, 64, 82, 348, 658 dismantling vessel on entering harbour, 639, 640 illegal conveyance of letters, 355 maintenance of ship during voyage, 220 marriages, 64, 82, 657 passenger lists, 344, 345 preservation of goods, 237 provision of life-saving appliances, 78 record of fines, 50 repair of ship during voyage, 221, 222
sale of cargo, when justified, 253, 254 tonnage rates on arrival in harbour, 637, 638 on completion of loading, 218 reaching port of refuge, 221, 222 to assist proper officer to effect arrest, 355, 356 check deterioration of cargo, 226, 227 communicate with cargo owner, 231 owner of cargo before sale, 253 give notice as to floating derelicts, 590 obey owner's instructions, 66 observe conduct of pilot, 531 proceed to discharging berth, 262 report casualties, 590
engagement of, nature of contract of service, 40 grant of certificate of competency to, 38, 39 pilotage certificate to, 601 implied authority of, to receive freight, 297 on behalf of cargo owner, exercise of, 229—231
nature of, 228
inability to communicate with cargo owner as condition of right to hypothecate cargo, 244, 245 indorsement of certificate of registry on change of master or ownership, 21 injury or illness of, owner's liability for, 45 liability for disobedience to Sea Regulations, 362, 363 exceeding authority in signing bill of lading, 155 negligence, 526
on failing to render assistance, 372 improper sale of cargo, 76, 77 lien of, for disbursements, 67, 68 unpaid passage money, 329 statutory provision protecting, 280 limitation of authority of, on signing bill of lading, 155 when binding, 154
meaning of, 59, 355
offences by, in respect of Pilotage Regulations, 607, 608 personal responsibility of, 65 pilot boat, of, duty of, 605, 606 pilotage offences by, 607, 608 position as trustee for owner, 65 power to bind shipowner, 154, 173—175 hypothecate cargo, 240—247

SHIPPING AND NAVIGATION—continued.
master, power to hypothecate ship or freight, 69—74
jettison cargo, 74, 75 land and warehouse cargo, 278, 279 sell cargo, 76, 77, 247—254 ship, 75, 76
tranship cargo, 74, 239, 240 powers as to discipline, 59 practice to qualify on signature by, 156 presumption as to authority to sign bill of lading, 154 priority of lien of, for wages and disbursements, 623, 624 production of certificate by, 39 recovery of wages by, 53 right as to carriage of dangerous goods, 79 loss occasioned by collision, 543 transhipment, 74
in seeking port of refuge, 223, 224 to maritime lien for disbursements, 620 refuse admittance to passenger, 330 tranship cargo during voyage, 222, 223 sale of cargo by, for its preservation, effect of, 250
powers, 76, 77, 247—254
shipowner's liability as to, 249, 250
ship by, powers, 75, 76
share of, in salvage reward, 583
signature of bill of lading by, as agent for charterer, effect of, 175 signing of bill of lading by, 153 stipulation in charterparty as to signing of bills of lading by, effect of, 106, 107 successor to, on death at sea, 40 supervision of loading of cargo by, 203 transfer to another ship, effect on certificate, 602 transhipment of cargo by, rights as to, 74, 236, 237 when freight can be pledged by, 72 having no authority to vary charterparty, 174 wrongful sale of cargo by, 247, 248 master's bond, 343, 344 list, preparation of, after delivery of passenger list, 344, 345 mate, grant of pilotage certificate to, 601
transfer to another ship, effect on certificate, 602 mate's receipt, delivery of goods to consignee under, necessity for, 153 effect of delivery of, 152, 153 exchange of bill of lading for, 152, 153 handing over and effect of, 151, 152 loss of goods after delivery of, effect of, 151 mistake in, when master not liable, 156 transfer of, effect of, 153
when terms between parties contained in, 147, 148 measure of damages, breach of contract by shipowner to deliver, on, 288 non-delivery of cargo, on, 289, 290 partial failure to provide ship, 210
principles as to, 536, 537
where charterer fails to provide a cargo, 207, 208
ship proper cargo, 209 refuses to name a berth, 261 ship delayed on voyage, 289
shipowner fails to provide ship, 209, 210
vessel damaged but not lost, 539 measurement, ascertainment of freight by means of, 308—310 countries adopting British system of, 19, 20 ship, of, rules as to, 19, 20 mechanical foghorn, non-use of, effect of, 412 medical inspection, emigrant ships, of, provision for, 342 officer, emigrant ship on, when must be carried, 341 stores, carriage by ship, provision for, 45 emigrant ship, on, inspection before clearance, 341 provisions as to, 340
Mediterranean Sea, meaning of, 393
Medway bye-laws, application of, 481

SHIPPING AND NAVIGATION—continued.
mercantile documents, delivery to Registrar-General, 658 laws, power of Board of Trade to enforce, 652 Mercantile Marine Fund, abolition of, 632, 633 mercantile marine offices, establishment of, 655, 656 liability of officers of, 655, 656 superintendents of, appointment and duties of, 656 Merchant Shipping Acts, application to colonial ships, 13 foreigners, 12
object of the, 10, 11 merchant ships, flag carried by British, 11
Mersey rules, application of, 481 meters, employment by harbour authority, 643 mid channel, as distinguished from fair-way, 467, 468 misconduct, liability of master for, 65 salvors, of, effect, 577, 586 misdemeanour, disobedience to Sea Regulations as, 362 misrepresentation, salvage agreement as affected by, 571 mist, speed of vessels in, 414, 415 sound signals to be given by steamer or sailing vessel in, 410
when technically existing, 412 mistake, mate's receipt, in, when master not liable, 156 moderate speed, object of imposing, 415 what may be, 415, 416, 418, 419 money orders, seamen's, provision for issue of, 52 mooring of pleasure yachts, 661 vessels, regulations as to, 640, 641 mortgage, bill of lading, of, effect of, 147, 162 British ship, of, formalities of, 23, 24 ship, of, assignee of freight as affected by, 303 discharge of, 30
nature of, 24, 25
payment of freight as affected by, 299, 300 with her appurtenances, effect of, 24 mortgagee, ship, of, amount of freight payable to, 300 bankruptcy of mortgagor as affecting, 27 freight as affected by possession by, 26, 27 maritime lien as affecting rights of, 29 nature of freight passing to, 300 no right to refuse delivery of cargo pending payment of freight, 309 non-liability to claim of creditors, 26 possession by, how obtained, 25 power of sale of, 27
priority over judgment creditors of mortgagor, 28, 29 right to possession, 25 rights and liabilities on taking possession, 26 of assignee of freight where possession in, 29 law governing, 24 shares of, non-liability in respect of liens of part owners, 26 subsequent, right to possession, 300, 301 mortgagor, liability to reimburse mortgagee in respect of maritime lien, 25 name of British ship, provisions as to, 17, 18 narrow channel, allowance for behaviour of other vessel in, 469, 470
definition of, 465—467
duty of steam vessels in, rule, 465 fog in, behaviour in, 421 speed in, 416
positive duty of steamer in, 468, 469 rule, application of, 440—442
construction of, 465, 466
crossing rule as applied in connexion with, 441, 442 history of, 465
local rules as affecting, 470 not applying to vessel swinging, 469 channels, Canadian, 466 foreign waters, in, 466 list of, in British territorial waters, 465, 466

SHIPPING AND NAVIGATION—continued.
narrow channels, Queensland, 466 waters, application of crossing rule in, 437, 439
navigation in, 496—499
National Insurance Act, 1911, as to definition of seamen under, 15 national ship, liability in case of, 533 nationality, British, penalty on concealment of, 11 nautical assessors, appointment to assist in inquiries and investigations, 592 naval courts, constitution and jurisdiction of, 662 officers, inquiry on foreign station by, 593
" navigate with caution until danger of collision is over," meaning of, 423 navigating, as salvage service, 557 officer, duty as to bearing of approaching vessel, 429 to observe lights of approaching vessel, 429, 430 provision as to obeying and construing of rules by, 471, 472 navigation, accident of, when shipowner may be liable in respect of, 114, 115 local rules of, observance of, 479, 480 negligence in, 502
nature of, 503, 504
owner's liability for, 502, 503
" near relative," meaning of, 51 necessaries, liability of ship to arrest on claim in respect of, 67, 68 master's authority as to, 66, 67
meaning of, 68, 69
priority of statutory lien for, 624 proof required on claim in respect of supply of, 69 necessity, meaning of, as reason for sale of ship by master, 75, 76 negligence, acts of, antecedent and subsequent, 510, 512 as the " cause," a question of fact, 509 arising from act of one vessel only, 506, 507 breach of Sea Regulations, 364 as affecting salvage reward, 577 applied in exceptional cases, 505, 506 both vessels, of, 507
burden of proof, 114, 500, 501
" cause " in law of, meaning of, 509 clause, acts of negligence not covered by, 116, 117 as usual clause in bill of lading, 150, 151 effect where master also owner, 116 form and scope of, 117, 118 implied conditions not affected by, 116, 117 matters sometimes covered by, 132, 133 omission from bill of lading when contained in charter-party, effect of, 107 purpose and effect of insertion of, 116 statutory provisions in United States affecting insertion of, 116 collateral, immaterial, 505 during voyage, what amounts to, 221 equipment, in, 502
kinds of, where both vessels to blame, 510 liability for collision in the case of a chartered ship, 526, 527 of harbour authority for, 648 master for, 65, 526
shipowner liable for, 110, 111, 203 more than two vessels, by, 516 nature of cause of action for collision through, 499, 500 principles of liability for, 507—509 proof in collision cases, rules, 501, 502 shipowner's liability for loss outside the exception " perils of the seas " on account of, 110, 111 simultaneous, instances where both to blame for, 510 stevedore, of, shipowner's liability for, 206, 207 negligent navigation, by whom caused, 502 liability of owner for, divisions of, 503, 504
nature of, 503
negotiable instrument, bill of lading as, extent of, 166, 167 bottomry bond as, 73, 74
nets, not part of a ship, 360

SHIPPING AND NAVIGATION—continued.
Newport, application of local rules to, 481
" not under command," meaning of, 387 notice, readiness of ship, of, stipulation as to, 127 repairing or cleansing harbour, as to, duty of harbour master, 641, 642 when required of readiness to land goods, 281, 282 obstructing salvage of wreck, offence of, 550, 556 obstruction, Board of Trade inspector, of, penalty, 651 harbour master's power to remove, 642 master's duty to proceed until meeting with an, 258, 259 ship arriving at port of loading, to, provision for, 180, 181 voyage of ship, to, what amounts to, 259, 260 offences, by persons other than pilots, 608 pilots and masters, in respect of pilotage regulations, 606—608 master's power over passengers as to, 329, 330 officer on watch, want of due care by, what amounts to, 485, 486 officers and crew, supplying, as salvage service, 558 appointment and discharge of, 40 contract of service between owners and, 40 granting of certificates to, 38, 39
Royal Navy, of, right to apportionment of salvage reward, 584
share of in salvage reward, 583
official log, and see log.
delivery to marine superintendent, 82, 83 duty to carry, 82
entries to be made in, nature of, 82 entry of offences in, 63
" on approaching her," meaning of, 455, 456
open boats, lights to be carried by, 393
" open boats," meaning of, 397 ordinary skill, meaning of, 504
Ouse, application of local rules to the, 481 outgoing vessel, duty of incoming vessel to wait for, 498, 499 overhauling sailing vessel, duty of, when going down river, 433 overloading, as affecting seaworthiness of ship, 213, 214 overtaken vessel, burden of proof as to stern light is on, 402 lights to be shown by, 399 rights and duties of, 463, 464 overtaking, conditions implied as to, 401
meaning of, 400
vessel, application of rule to sailing vessel as, 464
definition of, 400, 461—463 duty of sailing vessel as, 445 to keep out of way of overtaken vessel, 461, 462 see hull or sails, 402 right to change course, 400 warning to when crossing astern, 401 when should slacken speed, 458, 459 owner, cannot be guilty of barratry, 112 cargo, of, when having no claim to general average contribution, 316 duty to provide ship with life-saving appliances, 78 report casualties, 590
instructions of, master's duty to obey, 66 liability for disobedience to Sea Regulations, 362, 363
generally, 33, 34
in respect of master's contracts for necessaries, 67 under salvage agreement entered into by master, 572, 573 property in danger, of, rights as to additional assistance, 585 right as to direction of salvors, 585, 586 on offer to take delivery, 281
to salvage reward, 565
where goods landed for assortment, 281 when disqualified from claiming salvage, 565, 566
" owners," meaning of under Maritime Conventions Act, 1911...519 ownership, British ship, of, how acquired, 15 change of, report to be made as to, 658 register as evidence of, 34 transmission of, by operation of law, effect of, 22, 23

SHIPPING AND NAVIGATION—continued.
ownership, vesting in unqualified persons, 23 oyster dredgers, lights to be carried by, 395 packing, shipowner's right to refuse goods the subject of improper, 197 parol evidence, admissibility to explain terms of charterparty, 140, 141 particular average, definition of, 315 passage broker, appointment of agent of, 351
definition of, 350
duty to exhibit list of agents or runners, 351 licence for, how obtained, 350, 351 required by, 350
money, recovery by relanded emigrant, 343 steerage passenger delayed by wreck of vessel, 348 on breach of contract of carriage, 346, 347
when payable, 329
passenger, contract tickets to be issued to, 336, 337
definition of, 331
liability to produce contract ticket to emigration officer, 337 list, identification established by, 613 master's duty in respect of, 344, 345 preparation of master's list after delivery of, 345 master's right to refuse admittance to, 330 ship, adjustment of compasses of, 77, 78 certificate for, issue of, 333, 334
certificated officers to be carried by, 38 equipment of, 336 steamer, definition of, 331 liability of owner or master of, on plying without certificate, 334, 335 penalty on travelling without paying fare, 345 survey of, owner's duty as to, 332, 333 passenger's luggage, as merchandise, 613 subject to lien for unpaid passage-money, 329 passengers, authority of master over, 329 carriage of letters by, illegality of, 354, 355 conflict of laws as affecting contract for carriage of, 329 conveyance of, position of shipowner as to, 327 forwarding of wrecked, 349 offences by, power of master on, 329, 330 right as to commencement of voyage, 328, 329 of action on non-compliance with warranties, 83 to special train where ship unpunctual in arrival, 329 rights in respect of damage by collision, 543, 544 where both vessels at fault, 522, 523
share of, in salvage reward, 583
safety of, liability of shipowner as to, 327, 328 shipowner's liability to, for negligence, 328
when entitled to salvage reward, 568 pauper boys, apprenticeship of, 41 penalty, attached to master's bond, 344 clause, operation of, in charterparty, 135 demanding or receiving fee for surveying emigrant ship, 335 disobedience to Sea Regulations, for, 362, 363 failure of master to post up scale of provisions in emigrant ship, 340 owner of passenger ship to send declarations of survey to Board of Trade, 333 to carry certified cook, 44 medicines and anti-scorbutics, 45 pay fare or show ticket on passenger ship, 330 register alterations to ship, 31 improper use of flag, 11 issue and production of contract tickets, as to, 337 liability of unlicensed emigrant runner as to use of badge, 352 on disobedience to order of Board of Trade inspector, 651 making false representation to emigrant, 352 marking and registration of ships, as to, 32, 33 master's liability on failing to make entries in official log-book, 82

SHIPPING AND NAVIGATION—continued.
penalty, non-compliance with regulations as to steerage passengers at end of voyage, 347 supply of water to emigrant ship, 339 non-production of provision list to steerage passengers, 340 offence against regulations affecting emigrant ship, 330 by master preventing arrest, 356 relating to property of deceased seamen, for, 59 stowaway's liability to, 345 taking unauthorised fees for finding seamen or apprentices, 44 travelling in passenger steamer without paying fare, 345 perils, fitness to encounter, as a condition of seaworthiness, 187, 188, 211—213
"perils of the sea," meaning of, 110, 111 perils of the sea, stipulation in charterparty as to, application of, 110, 111 usually excepted from shipowner's contract, 107, 108 perishable goods, time for sale of, 283 permission to sail, duty of master to obtain, 218 permit for shipment of cargo, charterer's duty to obtain, 190 personal injuries, right of action for damages in respect of, 523 representatives of personal sufferers, right as to injuries through collision, 543, 544 service, rule as to, in salvage operations, extent of, 565 sufferers, rights in respect of damage by collision, 543, 544 pier, jurisdiction in respect of damage by collision with, 547 master, meaning of, 634 pilot boat, approval and licensing of, 393, 605 characteristics of, list, 606 duty of master of, 605, 606 claim to salvage reward by, when justified, 567 compensation of, provision for, 597 under the Workmen's Compensation Act, 605 crossing rule when two vessels manœuvring to take up, 437 duty of, 530, 531
keep-on vessel on taking up, 447 flags, master's duty to display, 606 fund, payment of receipts by pilotage authority into, 603 liability for claiming excessive rate, 567 collision, extent of, 530 on his bond, 605 licence of, grant of, 600, 601 implies no liability, 601
revocation or suspension of, 601
limitation of liability of, 605 offences by, acts amounting to, 606, 607 right of appeal of, 609
to salvage reward, 604
rights and obligations of, 604 seaworthiness of vessel compelled to carry, 215 signal for, 11 signals, nature of, now in force, 606 duty to display, 606
Trinity House, limit of liability of, 615 unqualified person may not act as, 605 vessel, lights of, 392, 393 use of, 393
when "engaged on her station on pilotage duty," 393 pilotage authority, appeal against decision of, 608, 609 creation of, 597
definition of, 598, 599
establishment of, 597 expenses of, provisions for, 603 grant of pilots' licences by, 600, 601 liability not implied by grant of pilot's licence by, 601 power of Board of Trade to exercise powers of, 609 to submit reorganisation scheme, 597 purposes for which bye-laws may be made by, 599, 600 returns by, 604
revocation or suspension of pilots' licences by, 601

SHIPPING AND NAVIGATION—continued.
pilotage authority, Trinity House as, 599 certificate, alteration where master or mate transferred, 602 application for grant of, 601 extent of, 601, 602
form of, 601, 602
grant to alien, 602 master or mate, 601 offences for which suspended or revoked, 608
revocation or suspension of, 602
time for which in force, 602 districts, establishment and alteration of, 597 dues, as a general average expense, 321 basis and amount of, 603 liability for, 603, 604 who is liable for, 603, 604 offences, commission and punishment of, 606—608 order, confirmation of, 598 establishment of pilotage authorities and districts by, 597, 598 making of, 597 matters provided for in, 597 preparation by the Board of Trade, 596, 597 provision for compulsory pilotage by, 598 pilotage district under, 610 regulation of compulsory pilotage districts by, 610 repeal of local Acts by, 598 organisation, revision of, 596, 597 rates, basis and amount of, 603 regulations, offences by pilots and masters in respect of, 606—608 piloting, as salvage service, 557 piracy, liability of ship to forfeiture where engaged in, 33 nature of offence of, 62, 113 pirates, deviation to escape, effect of, 95 exception as to, nature of, 113 plant, shipowner's duty to supply in respect of cargo, 189 pleasure yachts, deaths on, provision not applicable to, 660 ensigns of, privileges granted in respect of, 660, 661 exemptions as to marking, 660 liability to light dues, 660 limitation of owner's liability for collisions, 661 mooring of, 661
officers and crew of, statutory provisions not applicable to, 659 privileges granted to owners holding Admiralty warrants, 661 pledge, bill of lading, of, effect of, 162, 163 plundering wreck, offence of, 550, 556 poor law relief, charge on seaman's wages in respect of, 57 enforcement of charge in respect of, 57 port charges, as a general average expense, 321
meaning of, 182, 220
of destination, assessment where salvage service ends at port other than, 588 salvage service ending at, effect of, 588, 589 discharge, actual state of affairs at, as affecting liability to unload, 277, 278 arrival at, what amounts to, 260—262 considerations necessary by charterer in naming, 256 natural conditions of, as affecting reasonable time for discharge, 275, 276 option of charterer to name, 97 shipowner's duty to reach, 257 safe, meaning of, 255, 256 situation of, where not named, 255
"so near thereto as she can safely get," effect of condition, 257, 258 unreasonable delay in arriving at, liability, 289 loading, advances made to master at, not necessarily advance freight, 313, 314

SHIPPING AND NAVIGATION—continued.
port of loading, arrival at, effect of provisions of charterparty as to, 181, 182 in dock or basin at, effect of provisions of charterparty as to, 183 duty of charterer to name, 178 ship to reach, provision as to, 180 implied condition as to ship arriving at, 93 naming of, duty of charterer as to, 181 provision in charterparty as to ship proceeding to, 92, 93 stipulation substituting, in case of war, meaning of, 193 time at which ship must arrive at, 177, 178 when shipowner's duty to arrive at fulfilled, 182
Port of London, maintenance of office of Registrar-General of Shipping and Seamen in, 657 port of refuge, duty of master on reaching, in unseaworthy condition, 221, 222 expenses in as general average expenses, 320 master's right in seeking, 223, 224 registry, British ship, of, what is, 17, 18, 20 registration to be effected at, 20 right to change, 20 possession, first and subsequent mortgagee's right to, 299—301 ship, of, by mortgagee, as affecting payment of freight, 299, 300 by, effect on right to freight, 26, 27 how obtained by mortgagee, 25 right of mortgagee to, 25 to where held in shares, 35 possessory lien, definition and effect of, 621 extinction of, 626, 627
how satisfied, 626
priority of, 624, 625
rights of mortgagees deferred to, 29 post letters, definition of, 354 postal officer, meaning of, 354, 355 pratique, duty of shipowner to obtain, 185, 186 precautions, observance of proper, Sea Regulations as to, 479 preliminary act, not filed by owners of landing stage, 14 inquiries, shipping casualties, into, when and by whom held, 591, 592 voyage, provision for in charterparty, 97
" prescribed for a vessel at anchor," meaning with reference to signals and lights, 399 preservation of cargo, sale by master to effect, effect of, 250—253 primage, payment of, provision in bill of lading for, 311 principal, liability under charterparty not under seal, 89, 90 rights and liabilities of agent under charterparty in case of unnamed or undisclosed, 90 priorities, as between registered and unregistered mortgagees, 27, 28 priority, lien for necessaries, 624 maritime lien for salvage, of, 622, 623 liens, of, 621, 622 master's and seamen's liens, of, 623, 624 private signals, registration of, 408, 409 saving for, 407
pro ratâ freight, nature and payment of, 314, 315 proceedings, limitation of liability, for, 616, 617 local marine boards, of, validity of, 654 power of Board of Trade to take, 649, 650 profits, distribution of, procedure on, 36 loss of, as part damages for collision, 540 prolonged blast, duration of, 409 blasts, two, usefulness of, 413, 414 property, danger to, degree of, as affecting amount of salvage reward, 576 liberty to save, effect of stipulation as to, 97 salved, nature of, subject to pay general average contribution, 317 value as affecting assessment of reward, 576, 577 protest, nature of a, 84
use as evidence, 84 provisional certificates, registry, of, when granted, 21 provisions and water, penalty on failure to provide proper, 44

SHIPPING AND NAVIGATION—continued.
provisions and water, regulations as to, 44, 338 on emigrant ship, 338
proximate cause, loss of cargo, of, how arrived at, 232, 233 Public Authorities Protection Act, 1893, application to emigration officers, 353 public officer, when salvage reward may be obtained by, 569 pumps, use for preservation of cargo, 227 purchaser, cargo, of, position of, where sale wrongful, 248 for value, postponement of rights of unregistered mortgagee to those of, 28 no right to refuse delivery pending payment of freight, 309
"quality unknown," effect of statement in bill of lading, 156 quantum meruit, recovery of seamen's wages on a, 42 quay, damage to, liability of shipowner for, 644 quays, power of harbour master when goods left on, 642 Queensland, narrow channels in, 466 raft, not a wreck, 559
rain storms, sound signals to be given by steamer or sailing vessel in, 410 speed of vessels in, 414, 415 ranking of liens, see priority.
rate, tonnage, see tonnage rate.
rations, issue on emigrant ship, regulations as to, 339, 340
"reasonable care," meaning in reference to navigation, 503 skill," meaning when referring to navigation, 503 receiver of wreck, appointment and remuneration of, 549 claim to salvage reward, 569, 570 discharge of liability of, 553 disposal of unclaimed wreck by, 553 duties of, 549—552
examination of witnesses as to cargo of wreck by, 550 exemption from trespass, 550 liability discharged by delivery, 553 penalty for withholding property from, 551 persons authorised to act in absence of, 550, 551
power of sale of, 552
to require assistance, 550 powers in executing duties, 550 remuneration of, 549
rights as salvor, 570 withholding wreck from, penalty, 551 red ensign, right to use the, 11 register, application to, how and by whom made, 18 as evidence of ownership, 34 book, admissibility as evidence, 31, 32 duty of registrar as to keeping, 18 inspection of, 18
registered mortgage, discharge of, 30 transfer of, form and effect of, 30 mortgagees, privileges between, 28 ranking of, 28
tonnage, basis of, 19
Registrar-General, appointment and removal of, 657 duty as to list of crews, 657 registration, alterations affecting the particulars of ship, of, 31 British ships, of, object of, 11 detention of ship until production of certificate of, 16, 17 duty of shipowner as to, 16, 17
effect of, 16, 17
exemptions from, 16, 659
Government ships, of, power as to, 16 mortgage of ship, of, 23, 24 name and address of managing owner, 18 private signals, of, 408, 409
regulations as to, 657—659 renewal of, when may be effected, 31 survey of ships prior to, 17 title, of, ownership of British ship as affected by, 15 where effected, 20
registry, certificate of, granting of, 20, 21

SHIPPING AND NAVIGATION—continued.
registry, closing the, 19
reloading charges, when a general average expense, 321, 322 removal of wreck, authorities having powers as to, 554, 555 expenses of, 555
removing vessel from danger, as salvage service, 558 remuneration, see wages.
repair, extent to which owner of damaged vessel entitled to, 539 repairs, how far master bound to effect, 223 hypothecation of cargo for purposes of, 242, 243 master as agent of shipowner in ordering, 246, 247 negligence arising from leaving port without effecting, 221, 222 rights of master in seeking port to effect, 223, 224
when a general average expense, 320, 321 repatriation of seamen, recovery of expenses of, 541 report, casualty, duty to make, 590
form of, 590
judge holding inquiry, of, 594 officers required to furnish to Board of Trade, 652 shipping casualty, of, duty as to and form of, 590 reporting ship, provision in charterparty for, 137 respondentia bonds, no liability to contribute to salvage reward, 586 maritime lien in respect of, 620 nature of contract of, 241 restitutio in integrum, application of maxim, 537 restraints of princes, stipulation as to, nature and application of, 109 returns, duty of Registrar as to, 31 pilotage authorities, by, 604 revenue cruisers, right of crews of, to apportionment of salvage reward, 584 officers, right to search mail ships, 356 reversing engines, duty in certain cases as to, 422, 423, 460 of steamer in fog as to, 423, 424 meaning of "if necessary" when referring to, 456, 457 rule to be observed by "keep out of the way" vessel as to, 454 rights in personam, salvor, of, in respect of salvage reward, 580, 581 rem, salvor, of, in respect of salvage reward, 579, 580 riots, compensation of owner of vessel in respect of damage from, 550
exception protecting charterer against, 132 risk of collision, alteration of lights showing a, 430 application of "crossing rule" when there is, 436 rules as to, 428 circumstances authorising departure from rule in case of, 427 conflict of rules obviating the, 426 cutting fine not permissible when acting on account of, 429 danger of delay where existing, 429 duty of steam vessel when red light appears on starboard bow with, 454 how may arise, 428, 429
meaning of, 427, 428
must appear before rules apply, 428 regulations where steamers meeting end on, 433—435 rule for construing rules with regard to, 471, 472 rules governing sailing vessels in case of, 425, 426 delay, in reaching place of delivery after arrival, upon whom falling, 263 salving property, in, as affecting salvage reward, 578 river, antecedent neglect not cause of collision in, 515 application of "crossing rule" in navigation of, 438, 439 duty as to navigating, when warping or there is risk of smelling the ground, 497 of look-out in reporting lights on, 486, 487 steamer proceeding in fog up, 417 vessel crossing or turning in, 497, 498 exception as to "perils of the sea," when applicable to, 110 keeping course in winding, meaning of, 447 liability of vessel navigating by warping, 370 local rules and practices as to, affecting narrow channel rule, 470
navigation in, 496—499

SHIPPING AND NAVIGATION—continued.
river, navigation where divided into two channels, 440, 441 reservation of rules for, 477, 478
speed of vessels in a, 487 waiting at bend of tidal, 496
"robbers," exception including term, effect of, 113 rocket apparatus, provision and maintenance of, 645 rowing boat, lights of, 391
when within provisions as to lights, 392
Royal Navy, apportionment of salvage reward to officers and men of, 584 officers and men of, when entitled to salvage reward, 569 payment of wages on seaman leaving to join, 48 right of seaman to leave ship to join, 63
Sea Regulations, not bound by, 408
Yacht Squadron, ensign of, 660, 661 rules concerning lights etc. in Sea Regulations, 1910...379—479
"runners," as crew for purposes of salvage apportionment, 583 running days, meaning of, 122
"running free," as distinguished from "close-hauled," 431 to meaning in rules, 433 duty of vessel when, 425, 431
how vessel is ascertained to be, 430, 431
no distinction as between "has the wind aft" and, 431 sacrifice, property must be subject of, to claim general average contribution, 317 safe port, meaning of, 255, 256 safety valve, provision to boilers in passenger steamer, 336 sailing and steering rules, under Sea Regulations, 1910...425 et seq.
from port, master's duty as to, 219
what constitutes, 219, 220
rules in Sea Regulations, 1910...425 et seq.
powers making, 359, 360
smack, distance at which hull and sails of visible, 402 telegrams, provision in charterparty for, 119 vessel, application of rule as to stern lights to, 401 departure from keeping course rule by, when justified, 452, 453 duty as overtaking vessel, 415 to sounding tacking signal, 414
in case of fog, 418 of keep-on, when meeting steamer, 452 steam vessel where there is risk of collision with, 442, 443 tug and tow to keep out of the way of, 492 when hove-to to give way to, 443 to give way to steam drifter when shooting nets, 443 keep clear of, when "going about," 488 out of the way of fishing vessels, 471 trawlers, 397
when close-hauled on the port tack, 432, 433 overhauling vessel on river, 433 fishing vessels do not give way to, 444, 445 liability as to lights when towing pilot boats, 382 lights to be carried by, 388 meaning of "keeping her course" when referring to, 451, 452 sound signals to be given by, in fog, snow, or rain storm, 410 speed held immoderate for, 419, 420 in fog, 418, 419 tug and tow, not subject to rule as to giving way to, 444
when under way, 388, 389 vessels, application of overtaking rule to, 464 duty as between, 492, 493
navigation where meeting end on, 434 sailors' homes, appropriation of land for, 57 sale, employment in lieu of, mortgagee not compelled in respect of, 27 mortgagee's power of, 27 of cargo, by master, effect of wrongful, 247, 248 necessity for, what amounts to, 251, 252
power as to, 76, 77
when justified, 250—253

SHIPPING AND NAVIGATION—continued.
sale of cargo, by shipowner in discharge of lien, application of proceeds, 282, 283 wharfinger or warehouseman, time for, 283 master's authority as to, extent of, 248 duty as to, where necessary, 253, 254
power as to, 228
ship, assignee of freight as affected by, 303 duty of owner when disputing, 76 foreigner, to, failure to make application in respect of, penalty, 33 payment of freight as affected by, 298, 299
under foreign judgment in rem, 76
when ordered at instance of part owners, 37 salvage agreement, abandonment of rights by seaman under, illegality of, 573, 574 cancellation of, grounds of, 572 cargo owners' liability under, 573
definition of, 570
exorbitancy or inadequacy of, effect of, 571, 572 form and proof of, 570, 571 fraud or misrepresentation as affecting validity of, 571 non-performance of, salvor's rights as to, 571 one of several salvors cannot bind others by, 573 persons bound by, 572, 573 reopening after settlement, grounds of, 571, 572 when set aside, 571 assignment not permitted by seaman, 54 assistance, duty to render, 371
award, finality of, 589
expenses, recovery as damages, 539 injured ship, of, owners of vessel to blame, no right in respect of, 546 life, of, statutory duty as to, 561 maritime lien for, when created, 619 property as subject of, 559, 560 res in case of, 619
meaning of, 557
operations, labour involved in, as affecting reward, 578 obstructing, offence of, 550, 556 plundering during, offence of, 550 principle of, unknown at common law, 579 priority of maritime lien for, 622, 623 receiver of wreck's right to deposit on land, 550 reward, abandonment of claim by seaman to, statutory provisions as to, 572, 573 appeal in respect of, grounds of, 581, 582 apportionment of, 573, 582—586 assessment by the court, 575 of freight at risk for purposes of, 588 circumstances affecting, 575, 576 claim by pilot, when justified, 567 for, when may be disqualified, 565, 566 coastguards may be entitled to, 569, 570 contract of towage as affecting tug owner's right to, 568, 569 custom or agreement as affecting right to, 566 danger and success essential to claim for, 558, 559 to life and property as affecting amount of, 576 exception to rule that success necessary to, 564 exemption of British and foreign Government vessels from, 560, 561 grounds of appeal in respect of, 581, 582 inclusion of salvor's expense or loss in, 578, 579 intervention of second set of salvors as affecting, 585 length of salvage operations as affecting, 578 liability of freight to assessment for, 588 to be proportioned, 587 limitation of amount of, 574, 575 loss or expense of salvor added to, 578, 579 misconduct as affecting, 577 negligence as affecting, 577

SHIPPING AND NAVIGATION—continued.
salvage reward, owner's share in, proportion of, 582, 583 position of tug and tow as to, 568, 569 proportioning of liability to, 587 recovery of, rights in personam as to, 580, 581 rem as to, 579, 580 remuneration of salvor's services by, 557 right of lifeboat crew to, 570 officers and men of Royal Navy as to, 569 passengers to, 568 pilots to, 604 public officers to, 569 receiver of wreck to, 569, 570 ship's agent to, 567, 568 tug to, 358 to, how arising, 558 in respect of life, 561 risk to salving property as affecting, 578 salvor's rights in rem in respect of, 579 ship's agent's right to, 567, 568 statutory duty to assist on collision not affecting, 563 success as essential to claim to, 563, 564, 581 usage as affecting division of, 574 value of salving property employed as affecting, 577, 578 vessels exempt from claims for, 560, 561 voluntary service as affecting claim to, 566, 567 service, assessment where ending at port other than port of destination, 588 damage received while rendering, rights, 546, 547 danger to property or life as condition of, 562 essence of, 562
how rendered, 557, 558
must be voluntary, 562, 563
nature of, 557
salved property, assessment of, place of, 587 consideration of value of, in ascertaining amount of award, 576, 577 salving property, value employed as affecting salvage reward, 577, 578 rights of owner of, 565 salvors, apportionment as between several sets of, 584, 585 care, skill and knowledge must be shown by, 577 crew of salved vessel may be, 567 independent, apportionment of reward as between, 584 intervention of second set of, effect on reward, 585 liability for negligence while rendering salvage services, 547 loss or expense of, as addition to salvage reward, 578, 579 misconduct of, as affecting rights inter se, 586 owner's right to direct, 585, 586 performance of services by different sets of, effect of, 573 persons entitled as, 564, 565, 568 et seq., 604 property of, risk to, as affecting salvage reward, 578 value of, as affecting assessment of salvage reward, 577, 578 rotation in which favoured, 584, 585 sanitary regulations relating to an emigrant ship, 330 saving of life, rights of deviation for purposes of, 95 property, liberty as to, special condition giving, 97 savings banks, seamen's, establishment of, 52 sea-going ship, definition of, 14 vessels, definition of, 377 fishing, meaning of, 396
marks, duty of harbour authority as to, 645 Sea Regulations, absence of look-out as breach of, 486 application to inland waters, 478 area of application of, 376, 377
1910, preliminary article, 373—379
article 1...379—383
2...384, 385
3...385, 386
4...386—388

SHIPPING AND NAVIGATION—continued.
Sea Regulations, 1910, article 5...388—390
6...390, 391
7...391, 392
8...392, 393
9...393—399
10...399—402
11...403—406
12...406, 407
13...407—409
14...409
15...409—414
16...414—425
17...425—433
18...433—436
19...436—442
20...442—445
21...445—453
22...453, 454
23...454—460
24...461—464
25...465—471
26...471
27...471—473
28...473—477
29...477
30...477—479
31...479
as to day signals, fishing boats, 395 distress signals, 479
fog signals, 409—414
fishing boats, 395
lights, anchor, 403—406
cable ship, 386, 388
fishing boats, 393—399
generally, 379—383, 406, 407
pilot vessels, 392, 393
private signals, 407—409 sailing vessel under way, 388, 389
small vessels, 390—392
steam vessel towing, 385, 386
under sail, 409
way, 384, 385
vessel aground, 403, 406
being overtaken, 399—402
towed, 388—389
not under command, 386—388
local rules, 477—479 sound signals, 473—477
speed in fog, 414—425
steering and sailing rules:—
fishing boats, 471—473
generally, 425 et seq.
narrow channel rule, 465—470
overtaking vessel, 461—464
sailing vessels, 425—433
steam vessel and sailing vessel, 442—445 vessels crossing, 436—442 meeting, 433—436
authorities having power to make, 359, 360 breach as to lights, effect of, 382 is subject to knowledge of master that rule applies 366
construction of, 360, 361
copies of, duty of Board of Trade to furnish, 362 departure from, may be a positive duty, 370, 371 disobedience to, effect of, 361 duty of "keep out of the way" vessel as to speed, 454 vessel not giving way as to keeping course, 445, 446

SHIPPING AND NAVIGATION—continued.
Sea Regulations, exceptional cases in which not applicable, 366, 367 exceptions to, creation of, 368 division into classes, 368, 369 extent of application, 360 Government rules not to be interfered with by, 407 international interpretation of, 361 interpretation of, 472 judicial construction of former, effect of, 362 master cannot alter, 365 may be too strictly adhered to, 367 motive for, 361
must be observed by all vessels, 374, 375 negligence arising from breach of, 364, 506, 507 no justification for neglect of proper precautions, 477 non-existence of appliances affecting compliance with, 369, 370 obedience to, the principle insisted upon, 364, 365 penalties for disobedience of, 362, 363 presumption of fault for breach of, 534, 535 principles with regard to the observance of, 363 provision as to obeying and construing of rules by navigating officer, 471, 472 qualification of articles by Article 16...420 ships of the Royal Navy not bound by, 408 usages overridden by, 365, 366
"sea risk," meaning of, 71 seal, effect of charterparty when under, 88, 89 seaman, deceased, master's duty in respect of, 58 seamen, abandonment of rights under salvage agreement by, 573, 574 agreement on engagement of, provisions as to, 41, 42 complaints by, duty of master as to, 46
definition of, 14
discharge abroad, duty of master, 56
of, 52, 55, 56
on sale of ship abroad, 56
duties of, 60
entry into navy by, payment of wages on leaving merchant ship, 48 injury or illness of, liability of owners in respect of, 45 liability of wages to charge for poor law relief to families, 57 licences to engage or supply, granting of, 43, 44 lien of, on ship for wages, 53 lodging-houses for, provisions relating to, 54 loss of right to wages, 49 payment of wages in case of death, 51 when in foreign-going ship, 47, 48 left abroad, 48, 49 persons who have been regarded as, 14, 15 priority of lien for wages due to, 624 provisioning of, during currency of agreement, 44 qualification of, 39, 40
rating of, 39, 40
registration and returns respecting, 63, 64 rescission of contracts with, powers, 43 right to compensation where proper provisions not provided, 44 leave ship to join the navy, 63 recover unspecified wages on a quantum meruit, 42
Royal Navy, of, right to apportionment of salvage reward, 584 supply of, taking unauthorised fees for, 114 wages of, extent of right as to, 46, 47 liability of shipowner for, 34
payment of, 47
remittance of, 52
wrongful discharge of, 52
"seamen," when term includes apprentices, 55 seaworthiness, at commencement of voyage, 211 breach of condition of, what constitutes, 188, 189 documents and papers to be carried by ship in state of, 213 fitness to carry cargo as affecting, 214

SHIPPING AND NAVIGATION—continued.
seaworthiness, implied condition of, during loading, 186, 187 overloading as affecting, 213, 214 provisions relating to, 77
scope of condition as to, 187, 188 stowage of cargo as affecting, 213, 214 strengthening of ship to encounter ice as condition of, 215 time at which necessary, 217 want of, consequences affecting shipowner in respect of, 217, 218
what amounts to, 211—213
where voyage divided into stages, 214—216
" seaworthy," definition of, 211
Secretary of State, duty as to destitute lascars, 56 security for costs, appeal from judgment on inquiry or investigation, on, 595 seller, indorsement of bill of exchange to banker by, effect of, 162 protection of, courses adopted for the purpose of, 160—163 right of stoppage in transitu, 159, 160 servants, harbour authority's liability for acts of, 647, 648 set-off, when available in respect of freight, 302 settlement out of court, shipowner's right to limit liability on, 617
" shall, so far as the circumstances of the case admit, stop her engines," meaning of, 422 shareholders, ship, in, as tenants in common, 34, 35 shares, division of ship into, 18, 19 liability to forfeiture, 33 rights of mortgagee of, 24, 25 ship, alterations to, when registration necessary of, 31 arrest in respect of claim for necessaries, 67, 68 arrival of, consignee's duty to discover, 263, 264
what amounts to, 260, 261
as to meaning of, 374
British, closing the registry of, 19
marking of, 17, 18
ownership of, how acquired, 15
registration of, 16, 17
survey of, 17
who may be owner of, 16 carriage of doctor, medicines and anti-scorbutics on, 45 change of employment of, report of, 658 clearances necessary to sailing of, 81 condition of, shipowner's duty as to, 216, 217 control of, where held in shares, 36 damage done by, when maritime lien arising on, 618, 619 deductions allowed on valuation of, for salvage purposes, 587
definition of, 14, 612
description in charterparty, necessity for, 91, 92 discharge of seamen on sale abroad, 56 disposal to unqualified person, 22
general average loss of, when arising, 319 hire of, master's implied authority for, 65, 66 jettisoning cargo which is a danger to, master's right as to, 74 liability to forfeiture, 33
on improper use of British flag, 11
light dues, 629, 630
loss of, repayment of freight in case of, 105 statutory notice required as to, 590 or abandonment of, report to be made of, 658
marking of, 78, 79
master's authority to sell cargo or, 75
meaning of, 331
measurement of, rules as to, 19 mortgage of, as affecting payment of freight, 299, 300 formalities of, 23, 24 with appurtenances, effect of, 24 moving in harbour, persons who may be engaged in, 605 part owner's liability, extent of, 35 owners in, nature of ownership of, 34, 35 passenger's rights as to special train on unpunctual arrival of, 329 premature readiness of, effect of, 193

SHIPPING AND NAVIGATION—continued.
ship, proceeding of, stipulation as to, under voyage charter, 92, 93 prohibition of transfer, 23 provision with life-saving appliances, 78 provisioning of, regulations as to, 44
registration of, 657—659
sale of, as affecting payment of freight, 298, 299 enforcement of bottomry bond by, 73
under foreign judgment in rem, 76
when ordered at instance of part-owners, 37
seaworthiness of, at commencement of voyage, 211
nature of, 187, 188
seizure of forfeited, officers entitled to effect, 33 stipulations in charterparty as to, which are conditions precedent, 91, 92 transfer of ownership of, report of, 658 unsafe, power to detain, 81
unseaworthy, liability on sending to sea, 77 valuation for purposes of general average contribution, 324
of, 587, 588
when a "wreck," 49
"arrived" at port of loading, 181, 182 ready to discharge, 263 subject to compulsory pilotage, 609, 610 to proceed to port of loading, 177, 178 wilfully endangering, offence of, 62, 63 ship's agent, right to salvage reward, 567, 568 articles, see agreement with crew.
husband, duty to report loss of ship, 590 right to deduct disbursements when authorised to receive freight, 297 papers, delivery by master, 64 master's duty as to, 213
shipbuilder, limitation of liability for damages, 612—617 shipowner, acceptance of cargo by, how far bound as to, 195, 196 other employment by, on default of charterer, effect of, 208, 209 alteration of destination after shipment by, duty as to, 199 as contracting party under bill of lading, 170 person primarily entitled to receive freight, 296, 297 assignment of freight by, effect of, 301, 302 bill of lading as affecting, 147 breach of condition of seaworthiness by, what constitutes, 188, 189 contract to deliver by, measure of damages on, 288 contract of carriage between charterer and, where found, 175 contribution to salvage reward as between cargo owner and, 586, 587 conversion by, what amounts to, 152 default in loading by, rights of parties on, 200, 201 unloading cargo, effect of, 272 discharge from liability, 167
on delivery of cargo, 265 duty as to delivery where goods entered for landing or warehousing at some other wharf, 281, 282 discharge of cargo apart from stipulations, 266, 267 employment of average adjuster, 325 preservation of cargo, 224 proceeding to port of loading, 177, 178 readiness of ship for loading, 177 sorting out different consignments, 270 survey of passenger ship, 332, 333
the loading of cargo, 203, 204 in providing ship under charter, 103 on landing goods in absence of consignee, 280, 281 to arrive at port of loading, when fulfilled, 182, 183 obtain pratique, 185, 186 place ship in readiness to load, 184, 185 reach port of discharge, 257 supply seaworthy ship, 216, 217 towards pilot, 531

SHIPPING AND NAVIGATION—continued.
shipowner, duty where alternative modes of delivery available to consignee, 269 cargo consigned to several consignees, 270 conflicting claims made to cargo, 264, 265 engaging to arrive in dock, 183, 184 exceptions as to fitness of ship no protection to, 189, 190 extent to which responsible for stowage, 101 failure to deliver goods as affecting right to freight, 305, 306 perform condition precedent to loading, effect of, 192, 193 provide ship by, measure of damages, 209, 210 how far bound by agent's signature to bill of lading, 145 ignorance of consignee as to arrival, liability, 263, 264 landing of cargo by, effect on liability, 280 liability as bailee, 326 common carrier, 325, 326 to compulsory pilotage, 611 damaged goods, 156, 157
repair of ship during voyage, 223
for breach of condition as to seaworthiness, 186, 187 damaged goods, extent of, 291 delay in arriving at port of loading, 178, 179 deviation or delay, under charterparty, 94 expense in calculating amount of freight, 310 improper stowage, 203, 204 loss or damage to cargo, 232 master's failure to check deterioration of cargo, 226 227 negligence in preserving cargo, 225 negligent navigation, 502, 503 safety of goods, extent of, 107, 108
passengers, 327
in respect of chartered ship, 34 of, generally, 34
on sale of cargo by master, 249, 250 to consignee or indorsee, 165
general average contribution, 112, 322 passenger for negligence, 328 provide lighters, 269 strong room, 113
under charterparty as to voyage stipulation, 94, 95
nature of, 88—90
custom to pay wharfage dues, 269, 270 exceptions against collisions, strandings or accidents of navigation, 114, 115 where cargo improperly sold by master, 76, 77 charterparty contains stipulation as to date of sailing or arrival, 93, 94 exception includes words " robbers " and " thieves," 113, 114 more cargo jettisoned than necessary, 74 lien for bill of lading freight, 171 of, duration of, 287
extent of, 283, 284
for general average, 284, 285
when lost, 288
part goods lost, 150
limitation of liability for damages, 612—617 delay, as subject of contract, 290, 291 losses, 613
to passenger, 328 matters in which bound by master under bill of lading, 154 nature of act of God exempting, 108 negligence clause as a protection of, 116, 117 non-delivery by, when exception in charterparty no excuse, 171, 172 notice of readiness to load to be given by, 186 object of exceptions in charterparty the protection of, 118 position as to conveyance of passengers, 327

SHIPPING AND NAVIGATION—continued.
shipowner, position where bill of lading transferred to consignee, 172, 173 cargo hypothecated by master, 246, 247 ship under demise, 169, 170 presumption as to liability for collision, 525, 526 protection against liability in respect of fire, extent of, 111, 112 obstruction in arriving at port of loading, 180, 181 where responsible for loading, 198 qualifying stipulations in charterparty as to loading affecting, 180, 181 responsibility of, when attaching, 202 right to advance freight, extent of, 312 call upon consignee to take delivery of cargo, 254 contract out as to limit of liability, 612 freight subject to ability to deliver, 304, 305 where goods forwarded by another ship, 306, 307
general average contribution, 316 receive freight where ship chartered, 297, 298 refuse excessive amount of cargo, 197, 198 goods improperly packed, 197 to allow ship to proceed to unsafe port, 255 rights and liabilities under bill of lading where ship not under charterparty, 168 as to acceptance of goods when not a common carrier, 196 carriage of dangerous goods, 197 freight where cargo owner wrongfully takes possession of cargo, 307 in respect of damage due to collision, 542 where cargo not as described, 99, 100, 197 claim settled out of court, 617 shipper fails or refuses to load, 196, 197 sale of goods by, in discharge of lien, application of proceeds, 282, 283 signature of bill of lading by master as binding on, 174 effect where signed by another person, 145 statements in bill of lading binding on, 145, 146 stipulations in charterparty affecting, 92 unseaworthiness of ship as affecting, 217, 218 when burden of proof as to unseaworthiness rests on, 218 entitled to demurrage, 125, 126 not bound by bill of lading, 173 liable in respect of stowage, 205, 206 under bill of lading signed by master, 154 protected by exception as to perils of the seas, 110, 111 Shipowners' Negligence (Remedies) Act, 1905, detention of ship causing damage under, 544 shipper, duty to deliver cargo at place within reach of ship's tackle, 198, 199 towards principal, 152
holder of bill of lading when in position of, 173 liability for freight as affected by issue of bill of lading, 293 position of parties where charterer is not the, 169, 186 primary liability of, for payment of freight, 291, 292 proof of damage required from, 156, 157 rights of, where ignorant of terms of charterparty, 172
on delivery of cargo, 199
under the bill of lading, 171, 172 use of own ship by, effect on payment of freight, 292 shipping casualties, duty to report, 590 inquiries and investigations held in respect of, 591—595 provisions relating to, 590—595
"shipping casualty," meaning of, 591 shipping investigations, see inquiries.
sick persons, power of emigration officer to deal with, 343 side lights, fixing of, possibility a question for Trinity Masters, 390 showing by small vessels "in sufficient time to prevent collision," 390, 391 small vessels, of, 390 siege, rights under charterparty as affected by, 109

SHIPPING AND NAVIGATION—continued.
signal, "prescribed for a vessel at anchor," effect of, 399 two prolonged blasts, of, usefulness of, 413, 414 signals, display by pilot, 606 neglect to carry or sound, no exoneration for, 477 of distress, wrongful, danger as arising from, 562 liability as to, 562 provision of sea-going passenger ship with, 336 sound, for fog, regulations as to, 409 where vessel aground, 388 simultaneous negligence, at the last by both vessels, 510 instances of both to blame for, 510 skill, degree required in sudden difficulty, 504, 505 duty of salvor to show reasonable degree of, 577 reasonable or ordinary, meaning of, 503, 504 rules afloat and ashore as to, compared, 505 strikes and lock-outs, what is implied by phrase, 131 sugar, shipowner's duty on carriage of cargo of, 189 slackening speed, duty of giving-way vessel as to, 454—457 officer in charge of steamer as to, 458 small sailing vessels, sound signals to be given by, 410 vessels, duty in manœuvring, 494 lights of, in bad weather, 390 smelling the ground, duty of vessel where there is risk of, 497 smoke, speed of vessel obscured by her own, 458, 487 smuggling, liability of seaman for, 61 master's act of, as amounting to barratry, 112, 113 snow, sound signals to be given by steamer or sailing vessel in falling, 410 speed of vessels approaching, 413 in falling, 414, 415
when technically falling, 412
"so near thereto as she can safely get," port of loading, to, effect of insertion in charterparty, 180 effect of provision, 257, 258 soliciting emigrants, licence required in respect of, 352 solicitor's lien, priority of, for costs in shipping action, 625 sound signals for fog, Sea Regulations as to, 409, 410 vessels in sight of one another, Sea Regulations as to, 473—477 importance when manœuvring, 476 intention of article setting out, 473 time for giving, 475
when duty arises in respect of, 474, 475 where vessel goes "full speed astern," 476 speaking, liability on going alongside for purpose of, 489 special damage, none where consignee suffers damage from delay in delivery, 290 train, passenger's right to, where ship unpunctual in arrival, 329 weather, liability as to guarding against, 495 speed, cases in which held to be immoderate, 418 circumstances affecting, 415, 416 dangerous rate of, how determined, 487 density of fog as affecting, 416 duty of "keep out of the way" vessel as to, 454 fishing ground, over, 487 giving-way vessel, of, distinction between rule and obligations of good seamanship as to, 457, 458 effect of rule as to operations relating to, 457 in fog etc., Sea Regulations as to, 414—425 moderate, what is a, 415, 416 regulating "if necessary," application, 456, 457 sailing vessels in fog, 418, 419 of, when held immoderate, 419, 420 steamers in fog, 417, 418 river, 487 vessels in fog, mist, snow or rain, of, regulations, 414, 415 where vessel obscured by her own smoke, 458, 487 spirits, privileges granted to yacht owners in respect of, 661 prohibition of sale to steerage passenger on emigrant ship, 330

SHIPPING AND NAVIGATION—continued.
St. Lawrence river, application of Article 18 to, 436 stamp duty, contract ticket not subject to, 337 bill of lading, on, 151 standing by, after collisions, right to salvage reward as affected by, 563 duty as to on collision, 535 when a salvage service, 557 too close, liability in respect of, 488
"stationary," meaning and effect of, 398, 399
"statute adult," definition of, 331 statutory lien, enforcement of, 626
extinction of, 626, 627
priority in respect of wages, 624 when attaching, 621
limitation of liability for damages, 614
steam drifter, when "under way," 378 not within Article 26...471 sailing vessel must in certain cases give way to, 443 fishing vessels, navigation of incumbered, 396, 397 pilot vessel, lights of, 392 pinnaces, lights carried by, 391 trawler, when sailing vessel must give way to, 445 vessel, a sailing vessel when under sail only, 373 allowance for behaviour of other vessel in narrow channel, 469, 470
definition of, 377
distance at which must give way to sailing vessel, 443, 444 duty as "keep out of the way" vessel, 454, 455 to waiting at bend, 496
when in neighbourhood of fog, 420 keep-on vessel to assist in avoiding collision, 450, 451 meeting sailing vessel coming up river, 429 passing among fishing vessels, 397 proceeding up river in fog, 417 red light appears on the starboard bow with risk of collision, 454 the "keep out of the way" vessel, 454 lights on, when less than 40 tons, 391 towing, 385
under way, 384, 385
meaning of, 374
narrow channel, rule affecting, 465, 469 obligation of good seamanship apart from rules imposed upon, 459, 460 positive duty in narrow channel, 468, 469 proceeding up river stern first, duty as to, 496, 497 regulations where meeting end on, 433—435 rules of good seamanship in avoiding collision by, 456, 488 signal to be carried by, when under sail, 409 signing of bill of lading in case of a, 153 sound signals to be provided on, 409
speed in fog, 417, 418
stoppage of engines in fog by, object of, 420 when to keep out of way of sailing vessel, 442, 443
under sail, 409
vessels, when "end on or nearly end on," 434, 435 steerage passage, definition of, 332 liability for procuring by false representation, 352
"steerage passenger," definition of, 332 steerage passengers, forwarding in case of wreck, 349 insurance of, rights as to, 349, 350 issue of rations to, 339, 340 list to be supplied by master on arrival in British Islands, 344, 345 maintenance where delayed through wreck, 348 number carried in emigration ship, limit of, 337, 338 prohibition of sale of spirits on emigrant ship to, 330 recovery of passage-money by, 346, 347

SHIPPING AND NAVIGATION—continued.
steerage passengers, recovery of passage-money where wrecked during voyage, 348 regulations to be observed as to accommodation of, 338 restrictions as to carriage of goods likely to interfere with health of, 345, 346 right to remain on board at end of voyage, 347 subsistence-money where voyage delayed, 347 unlawful landing of, what amounts to, 347 steering and sailing rules under Sea Regulations, 425, 426 gear, steamer's liability in respect of, 485 rules in Sea Regulations, 1910...425—433
powers making, 359, 360
stern lights, application of rule to sailing vessel lying to, 401 binnacle light not a substitute for, 402 duty where overtaking vessel crossing astern as to, 401 right of vessels to carry fixed, 399, 400 time for showing, 401, 402 vessels being overtaken, on, rule, 399, 400 stevedore, employment of, as affecting charterer's liability for demurrage, 206, 207 liability in respect of, 206, 207 liability for defective stowage by, when the servant of charterer, 203 when the servant of the charterer, 207 steward, steerage, when carried on emigrant ship, 341, 342 stipendiary magistrate, inquiry by, 593 stoppage in transitu, right not defeated by mortgage or pledge of bill of lading, 162, 163 seller's right of, 159, 160 of engines, circumstances not justifying, 422 degree of fog necessitating, 416, 417 general duty as to, 460 justification for departure from rule as to, 459 meaning of "if necessary," referring to, 456, 457 object of, when in fog, 420
rule to be observed by "keep out of the way" vessel as to, 454 steamer's duty in fog as to, 420 stores, carriage and inspection of, 44 storm, deviation where ship driven out of course by, 95, 96 exception protecting charterer from accidents caused by, 132 stowage, as affecting seaworthiness of ship, 213, 214 defect in, not covered by negligence clause, 117 expenses of, liability of shipowner for, 202 extent to which shipowner may be liable for, 101 improper method of, not allowed, 103 liability where undertaken by charterer, 205, 206
place of, 205
provision for broken, effect of, 103 shipowner's liability for improper, 203, 204 stowaways, liability to penalty, 345 punishment and treatment of, 62 stranded vessel, floating, as salvage service, 557 stranding, exception against, when shipowner protected by, 114 when certificate cannot be suspended on, 592 strikes and lock-outs, exception protecting charterer against, 131 consignee's duty to unload not affected by, 273 strong room, shipowner's duty to provide where bullion carried, 113 subsidiary rule, in cases of damage by collision through negligence, 512—515 subsistence money, steerage passenger's right to, where voyage delayed, 347 success, essential to earning of salvage reward, 558, 559 sudden difficulty, degree of skill required in, 504, 505 Suez Canal, application of local rules to, 481 summary proceedings, recovery of wages by, 52, 53 sunken cargo, raising, as salvage service, 557 vessel, cost of raising as damages in collision, 539 raising, as salvage service, 557 superintendent, duty on entering seamen, 39

SHIPPING AND NAVIGATION—continued.
superintendents, mercantile marine offices, of, duties of, 656 survey, emigrant ship, of, provision for, 335 passenger steamer, of, owner's duty as to, 332, 333 ship prior to regulation, of, 17 surveyor-general of ships, appointment of, 650 surveyors of ships, appeal against actions of, 650
appointment of, 650
inspection of ship's lights and fog signals by, 363
powers of, 363
swinging vessel, narrow channel rule does not apply to, 469 tackle, supplying to vessel in danger, as salvage service, 558 Tees, application of local rules to the, 481 telegrams, sailing, charterparty usually provides for sending, 119 telegraph cable ship, day signals to be shown by, 386, 387 lights to be carried by, 386, 387 sound signals to be given by, 410 territorial waters, British, narrow channels in, 465, 466 Thames, application of local rules to, 482, 483 navigation of dumb barges in the, 494, 495 rule as to navigating against tide in, 459, 460 speed in fog on the, 416
theft, protection of cargo from, 225
"thieves," exception including term, effect of, 113, 114 third innocent vessel, rights as to damages, 522 party, recovery of cost of damage to harbour from, 644 through bill of lading, payment of freight under, 149, 150
when contract expressed in, 149
tidal river, waiting at bend of, 496 waters, application of Sea Regulations to, 376
meaning of, 548, 554
tide, duty to keep in view the effect of, 496 gauge, provision of, 645 time charter, option to continue for further term under, 98, 99
stipulations contained in, 98
usual provisions of, 104, 105 discharge, of, stipulation in charterparty as to, 120, 121 loading of cargo, for, provisions in charterparty as to, 119, 120, 179, 180 terms used in charterparty relating to, 122—124 when beginning to run against the charterer, 126, 127 title to ship, transmission of, 22, 23 tobacco, privileges granted to yacht owners in respect of, 661 tonnage, basis of calculation, 19 dues, foreign, exemption of yachts from, 661 limit of liability as affected by, 615, 616 rate, composition of, 637 disputes as to amount of, how settled, 639 duty of master as to, 637, 638
enforcement of, 638
exemptions from, 636, 637
exhibition of list, 635, 636
how ascertained, 635
liability of foreign ships to, 637 owner evading payment of, 638 payment on goods unshipped in harbour, 638 powers as to levying, 635
total loss, insurer's right to freight in case of, 301 measure of damages in case of, 538 tow, control of tug by, 358 dumb barge lashed to tug as a, 389 exemption from liability when in charge of compulsory pilot, 529 liability for lights of tug, 491
in respect of volunteer tug, 529 where tug fails to show towing lights, 381, 382 liberty to, stipulation in charterparty as to, effect of, 96, 97 lights to be carried by, 388
when liable for absence of lights on tug, 386 towage, construction of contract of, 359 contract of, obligations relating to, 357, 358

SHIPPING AND NAVIGATION—continued.
towage, contract of, provisions of, 357 obligations imposed by contract of, 357, 358 recovery as damages, 539 right of tug to salvage reward as affected by contract of, 568, 569 towing, as salvage service, 557 damage arising from, as salvage service, 562 damaged vessel, of, as form of salvage service, 562 lights, liability of tow as to, 381, 382
object of, 385, 386
regulations as to, 385
tug attached to steamship not begun to tow is not, 414 transfer of mortgage, form and effect of, 30 transhipment, cargo, of, during voyage, master's rights as to, 222, 223
kinds of, 233, 234
liability when taking place under contract, 234 master's rights as to, 74, 236, 237 on cargo owner's behalf, 239, 240
to earn freight, 235—238
under through bills of lading, 234, 235 or persons, of, as salvage service, 557 shipowner's lien not lost by, 284 transport, exemption from arrest in salvage action, 560, 561 trawler, duty of sailing vessels to keep out of the way of, 397 granting of certificates of competency to skipper and second hand of, 38 information given by lights of, 397 lights to be carried by, 324, 325
when "under way," 378
trawling, judicial notice of nautical facts relating to, 398 meaning of "engaged in," 398 trespass, exemption of receiver of wreck in respect of, 550 Trinity House, as pilotage authority, 599 meaning of the, 627 pilot, limit of liability of, 615
powers of, 629
Regulations, application of, 363
superintendence and management of lighthouses by, 627, 628 Masters, inspection of vessels lights by, 385 trust, notice of, not registrable, 30, 31 trustee, position of master as, 65 tug and tow, collision between, liability, 527 with third vessel, liability, 527, 528
duty as between, 490—492
to keep out of way of sailing vessel, 492 fault of third vessel and, division of damages, 521 manœuvring for other vessels, 492 rule as to giving way to sailing vessel not generally applicable to, 444 assistance, liability for not taking, 485 conditions affecting obligations on, 358, 359 contract of towage as affecting right to salvage reward, 568, 569 controlled by tow, 358, 528, 529 duty as to giving way to sailing vessel, 443 look-out, 486
of, 358
at bend of river, 470 to render assistance where tow in collision, 371 show towing lights, 385, 386
when towing, 358
efficiency of, 357
exempting conditions no indemnity against damage caused by, 359 no implied warranty as to specified, 357 where performance by, impossible, 357 position with tow as to salvage reward, 568, 569 volunteer, tow's liability in respect of, 529 when salvage not recoverable by, 358 turning, river, in, duty of vessel when, 497, 498 two prolonged blasts, usefulness of, 413, 414

SHIPPING AND NAVIGATION—continued.
Tyne, application of local rules to the, 483 unclaimed wreck, and see wreck.
right of the Crown to, 552, 553 title to, power of receiver as to, 553
" under sail," definition of, 377 steam," definition of, 377 way," as distinguished from " under weigh," 378
definition of, 389
vessel not at anchor is, 405 when sailing vessel is, 388, 389 vessel is, 374, 378
United States, statutory provisions relating to inclusion of the negligence clause in, 116 unlawful contract, freight not payable where earned under, 307 release of charterer in respect of, 201 landing, steerage passenger, of, what amounts to, 347 unloading, actual circumstances at port of discharge as affecting liability as to, 277, 278 charges, when a general average expense, 321 consignee's duty as to, nature of, 273, 274 obligation as to, when arising, 254, 255 duty of consignee where no time fixed, 274, 275 parties as to, 265—268 master's duty to proceed to place of, 262 unqualified person, acquisition of ship by, penalty, 33 pilot may not act as, 605 transfer of ship to, effect of, 23 unregistered mortgagees, postponement of rights of, 28 unsafe port, consequences of naming, 256, 257 ship, power to detain, 81
unseaworthiness, a question of fact, 77 as an answer to charge of desertion, 61, 62 burden of proof as to, upon whom resting, 218 shipowner as affected by consequences of, 217, 218 not liable where arising during loading, 190 unseaworthy, defects which make ship, 212, 213 liability on sending ship to sea, 77 unpaid seller, right of stoppage in transitu not defeated by mortgage or pledge, 163
" upper passenger deck," definition of, 332 usage, admissibility of evidence as to payment of broker's commission, 137 parol evidence of, 140, 141
as affecting division of salvage reward, 574 deck cargo sanctioned by, 205 liability for delay in berthing of ship as affected by, 182, 183 may constitute exception to Sea Regulations, 370 Sea Regulations overriding, 365, 366 valuable consideration, necessary to pass goods by transfer of bill of lading, 163 valuation, ship, cargo and freight, of, deductions allowed on, 587, 588 for general average contribution, 324, 325 value of ship, what is, 587 ventilation during voyage, master's duty as to, 225 vessel aground, not within regulations as to lights, 380 at anchor, duty to keep clear of, 488
" vessel being towed," meaning of, 389 vessel, harbour master's powers as to, when entering harbour, 641 hove-to on the port tack, duty of, 432 in distress, duty of receiver of wreck as to, 549—551 length of, how determined for purpose of anchor lights, 403
meaning of, 14, 374, 375, 613
value of, for purpose of assessing damages, 538
when under way, 374
" vessels," meaning in Article 28...474
" visible," meaning where referring to lights, 379 vitriol, prohibition of carriage in emigrant ship, 345 voluntary service, necessary to claim of salvage reward, 566, 567 volunteer tug, tow's liability in respect of, 529

SHIPPING AND NAVIGATION—continued.
voyage charter, conditions of, 92, 93 provision for form of bill of lading in, 105, 106 stipulations as to freight contained in, 103, 104 commencement of, as necessary to payment of freight, 314 master's duty as to, 219
passenger's rights as to, 328, 329 condition of ship necessary to the, 216, 217 delay in prosecution of, rights of passenger as to, 328, 329 starting upon, liability, 219 on, measure of damages as to, 289 furnishing of adequate crew for the, 213 liberty to call or tow during voyage, effect of stipulations as to, 96, 97 maintenance of ship during, 220, 221 master's duty to check deterioration during, 226, 227 power over cargo during, 222 precautions to be taken by master during the, 224—226 proceeding during, duty of master as to, 220 repair of ship during, liability as to, 223 rights of majority and minority owners respectively as to, 36, 37 sale of cargo during, justification for, 250—252 to complete, master no authority as to, 249 stages, in, condition of seaworthiness fulfilled where, 214, 215 necessity for vessel to be seaworthy where, extent of, 215, 216 state of ship at commencement of, 211 steerage passengers' right to remain on board at end of, 347 stipulation in charterparty as to, effect of, 94 transhipment of cargo where continuance prevented, 239 wages, advance of, 51 assignment by seaman of, effect of, 54 disputes as to seamen's, how settled, 48 emoluments included in, 47 entries to be made in log-book relating to, 82 extra, when seaman entitled to, 50, 51 loss of right to, 49 maritime lien attaching for, 620 master's, delay in payment of, right to damages on, 47
priority of lien for, 623, 624 rights as to recovery of, 53 recovery by summary proceedings, 52 restrictions on action to recover, 53 right to sue for, when voyage ending in United Kingdom, 53 seaman's, agreement relating to, 41, 42 charge for poor law relief on, 57 lien on ship for, 53, 624 payment of, mode and place of, 47 on foreign-going ship, 47 home-trade ship, 48 where left abroad, 48, 49
remittance of, 52
right to, 46, 47
shipowner's liability for, 34
when a general average expense, 321 waiting at bend, duty of steamer as to, 496 war, exception protecting charterer against outbreak of, 132 outbreak of, as affecting charterer's liability to the contract, 193 stipulation substituting different port of loading in case of, meaning of, 193 warehouse, master's power to land and deliver cargo to, 278, 279 warehouseman, when shipowner incurs liability as, 280 warehousing charges, when a general average expense, 321, 322 warping, difficulties of, liability as to, 497 warranty, master, by, effect of, 65 of fitness, shipowner's liability for, 216, 217 warship, duty as to danger arising from ram of, 493, 494 exemption from claim to salvage reward, 560, 561 warships, departure from keeping course rule when meeting, 449
Sea Regulations not binding on, 408

SHIPPING AND NAVIGATION—continued.
water, carriage by ship, provision as to, 44 master's duty to preserve cargo from, 225 provisioning of emigrant ship with, regulations as to, 338, 339 weather report, duty of harbour authority as to, 645 working days, meaning of, 123
weighers, employment by harbour authority, 643 weight, ascertainment of freight by cargo's, 309, 310 weights and measures, duty to keep on ship, 44 wharfage dues, shipowner's liability under custom to pay, 270 wheat, description of cargo of, in charterparty, 99 whistling, officer in charge should err, if at all, on side of, 474
" wilful default," how construed, 362 will of seaman, provisions relating to, 58
" wind aft," duty of vessel having the, 425 how vessel is ascertained to have the, 430, 431 when vessel may be said to have the, 433 wines, privileges granted to yacht owners in respect of, 661 witnesses, expenses of, where attending Board of Trade inquiry, 651 wood goods, carriage as deck cargo, regulations as to, 80 wooden ship, valuation for purpose of general average contribution, 324 working day, length of, upon what depending, 123
days, meaning of, 123
Workmen's Compensation Act, as to definition of " seamen " for purposes of, 15 compensation of master or seaman under, 544 pilot under, 605
wreck, appointment of receiver of, 549 boarding, offence of, 556 collision with, liability, 533, 534 commissioner, formal investigation held by, 592
definition of, 46, 548, 559 duties of receiver regarding, 551, 552 finders of, duties, 551 foreign ship, of, claims to, 552 forwarding of passengers in case of, 349 lighting and buoying, liability, 555 lights on, liability, 383 maintenance of steerage passengers delayed in consequence of, 348 owner's claim to, 552 purchase for Crown, powers, 553 receiver's power to sell, 552 removal of, 554, 555
rioting in case of, compensation, 550 sale of cargo when ship a, when not justifiable, 251, 252 saving of, as salvage service, 557 selling in foreign port, offence of, 556 unclaimed, Crown's right to, 552, 553 disposal by receiver, 553 disputes as to title of, how determined, 553 title to, 553
when jetsam, flotsam or lagan becomes a, 549 ship is a, 49
withholding from receiver, penalty, 551 wrongful possession of, offence, 556 wrecked seamen, return to home port, provision for, 56, 57 writing, value of print and, of charterparty, 142, 143 wrongful discharge, rights of seaman on, 52 sale, cargo, of, position of parties on, 247, 248 signals of distress, danger arising from, 562 yacht, see pleasure yacht.
York-Antwerp Rules, adjustment according to, 323 under bill of lading under, 151

SMALL HOLDINGS AND SMALL DWELLINGS, accounts, small holdings and allotments committee, of, audit of, 676 acquisition of land, expenses of, 686, 687 restriction of price payable on, 684, 685 small holdings, for, 679 advances, power to make, to tenant of small holding for purchase, 674

SMALL HOLDINGS AND SMALL DWELLINGS—continued.
advances, small dwellings, for, 696, 698 agreement, acquisition of land by, 678, 679
"agricultural holding," meaning of, 670 agriculture, user of small holdings for purposes other than, 690 allotments, assisting provision of, 675 interchange of lands for purposes of, 692, 693 annual charge, limitation of amount of, 675 arbitration, settlement of amount due for depreciation by, 683 questions affecting the acquisition of land by, 673 arbitrator, assessment of compensation by, where lands taken compulsorily, 681, 682 bankruptcy, proprietor of small dwelling, of, effect of, 699 Board of Agriculture and Fisheries, annual report by, 671 compensation paid by, 671, 672 payment of loss on scheme by, 678 powers and duties of, 670, 671
in relation to the Public Health Acts, 671 reports by county council to, 675 transfer of land by, 672 borrowing powers, county council, of, for purposes of small holdings, 693, 694 local authorities, of, for small dwellings, 701 breach of conditions, power of local authorities in respect of small dwellings on, 698, 699 capital money, application by county councils, 694 in respect of small dwellings, 701, 702 charge, annual, limitation of amount of, 675
meaning of, 675
Commissioners, Small Holdings, see Small Holdings Commissioners. compensation, assessment where lands taken compulsorily, 681, 682 county council's right to, for improvements, 680 improvements on land compulsorily hired, for, 684 labourers for loss of employment, to, 692 payment out of Small Holdings Account, 673 to proprietor of small dwelling on giving up possession, 699, 700 power of Board of Agriculture and Fisheries to pay, 671, 672 tenants for disturbance, to, 692 where notice to treat withdrawn, 685 completion, sale of small holdings, on, 687, 688 compulsory purchase, considerations affecting, 685, 686 land by county councils, of, 680, 681 exempt from, 685
for purpose of scheme, 673 conditions of sale, on sale of small holdings by county council, 687—689 co-operative societies, power to form and assist, 675 society, meaning of, 675 county councils, accounts of, provisions as to, 694 adaptation of land for small holdings by, 686 application of capital moneys, 694 borrowing powers for purposes of small holdings, 693 cultivation of land leased to, 682 delegation of powers, 674, 675 duty to carry scheme into effect, 678 furnish Small Holdings Commissioners with information, 674 expenditure of, restriction on, 675, 676 expenses of, how defrayed, 694 scheme payable by, 673 fixing of rent payable by, powers, 690 letting of small holdings by, powers, 690 liability for depreciation, 683 power to acquire land for small holdings, 674 form and assist co-operative societies, 675 let unsold and superfluous land, 691, 692 provide small holdings, 673, 674 require sale of small holding, 689 preparation of scheme by, 677

SMALL HOLDINGS AND SMALL DWELLINGS—continued.
county councils, provisions as to pasture land held by, 683 registration of title of, 691 reports to be made by, 675 right to compensation for improvements, 680 interchange lands, 692, 693 rights as to timber and minerals, 683 sale of small holdings by, conditions on, 687 transfer of land to, 672 cultivation of lands leased to county council, 682 death of owner of small holding, effect of, 689 delegation of powers, county council's powers as to, 674, 675 small holdings and allotments committees, by, 676 depreciation, settlement of amount due by county council for, 683 disturbance, tenant's right to compensation for, 692 draft scheme, preparation of, 672 publication of, 677
specification of, 677
easements, provision in compulsory order as to, 686 Ecclesiastical Commissioners, payment to, where glebe land taken, 682 finance, provisions as to, 693, 694 glebe land, provision where land taken is, 682 hiring, land under compulsory powers, of, 682 necessary terms of, 682 improvements, compensation for where lands compulsorily hired, 684 county council's right to compensation for, 680 inquiry, holding of public, as to scheme, 678 instalments, payment of purchase-money by, 687, 688 interest, provisions as to payment of, 694 labourers, right to compensation for loss of employment, 692 adaptation by county council for small holdings, 686 compulsory purchase by county councils, 680, 681 considerations affecting compulsory acquisition of, 685, 686 land, letting of unsold or superfluous, by county councils, 691, 692 restriction of price for acquisition of, 684, 685 transfer to county councils, 672
when exempt from compulsory purchase, 685 Lands Clauses Acts, purchase of glebe land under, 682 land under, 680, 681 leased lands, landlord's power to resume possession of, 684 leasing of land, county council for small holding, to, 679 powers as to particular lands, 679 letting, small holdings, of, regulations as to, 690 limited owners, powers of leasing of, 679 local authorities, borrowing powers in respect of small dwellings, 701 expenses in respect of small dwellings, how defrayed, 700 having power to make advances for purposes of small dwellings, 695 inspection of small holding accounts of, 696 powers on breach of condition by proprietor of small dwelling, 698, 699 repayment by proprietors of small dwelling to, 697 inquiry, holding as to scheme, 678 loss, payment where scheme results in, 678 Metropolis, powers of authorities in, as to small dwellings, 702 minerals, right of county council as to, 683 mortgaged lands, effect of compulsory leases of, 684 notice to treat, compensation where withdrawn, 673, 685 order, as to compulsory hiring of land, 682 under Lands Clauses Acts, publication and confirmation of, 681 submission by county councils, 680 pasture land, provision against breaking up, 682, 683 possession of small dwelling, recovery of, 699
price, restriction on acquisition of land, 684, 685
Public Health Acts, powers of Board of Agriculture and Fisheries in relation to, 671 Works Loans Commissioners, powers as to lending for small holdings, 694 purchase-money, payment on sale of small holdings, 687, 688

SMALL HOLDINGS AND SMALL DWELLINGS—continued.
registration of title to small holdings, 691 renewal of lease of land compulsorily hired, 684 rent, fixing, where land compulsorily hired by county council, 683 reports, duty of Board of Agriculture and Fisheries to make, 671 county councils to make, 675
Small Holdings Commissioners as to, 677 right of way, sale subject to, 688 sale of small holdings, 687, 689 scheme, carrying into effect, 678 expenses of, how recovered, 673 local public inquiry as to, 678 payment where resulting in loss, 678 preparation by county council, 677 of draft, 672 publication of draft, 677, 678 specifications in draft, 677 security for advances on small dwellings account, provisions, 696, 697 Settled Land Acts, powers of tenant for life under, 679, 680 small dwellings, application of money in respect of, 701 authorities having power to make advances for, 695 bankruptcy of proprietors of, effect of, 699 conditions affecting advances in respect of, 697, 698 governing advances for purposes of, 695, 696 of letting by proprietors of, 698 disposal where local authority retakes possession of, 699 finance in respect of, provisions as to, 700—702 limits of expenditure in respect of, 700, 701 local authorities' powers on breach of conditions as to, 698, 699 powers in the Metropolis as to, 702 repayment by proprietors of, 697 of advances in respect of, 696, 697 sale of, procedure, 700
"small holding," definition of, 670
Small Holdings Account, payment of compensation out of, 671—673 payments to be made into, 671 and out of, 693
small holdings, acquisition of land for purpose of, 678, 679 adaptation of land for purpose of, 686 advances for purposes of, amount of, 696 to tenant on purchase of, 674 and allotments committees, audit of accounts of, 676 delegation of powers by, 676 establishment and constitution of, 676 conditions on sale by county council, 688, 689 death of owners of, 689
interchange of lands for purposes of, 692, 693 leasing of land for, 679 letting of, 690
power of county councils to acquire land for, 674 provide, 673, 674 sale of, by county council, conditions of, 687, 689 conditions governing, 689
user for purposes other than agriculture, 690
Small Holdings Commissioners, duties of, 672 duty of county council to give information to, 674
powers of, 672, 673
report on scheme by, 677 tenant for life, powers of sale, exchange, and leasing of, 679, 680 right to compensation for disturbance, 692 timber, county council's rights as to, 683 valuation, fixing of rent payable by county council by, 683 provisions as to method of, 683

SOLICITORS,
action, commencing without authority, effect of, 741, 742 compromise of, as affecting lien, 823

SOLICITORS—continued.
action, conduct of, retainer as to, 737 costs, for, time at which may be brought, 812 when delivery of bill not necessary before, 813 discontinuance of, right of solicitor as to, 743 name of solicitor acting must appear on record, 742, 743 special authority necessary to commence, 741 additional remuneration, when allowed, 765 administrator, liability for solicitor's costs, 730 admission, affidavit of employment necessary before, 715, 716 application for, 719 colonial solicitors, of, 722 defect in as ground for striking off the rolls, 847 examinations necessary before, 716 qualifications for, 710 screening of notices in respect of, 719 solicitors exempt from service under articles on, 710
stamp duty on, 719
affidavit, allowance in excess of scale, when made, 801 employment, of, necessary before admission, 715, 716 agency cases, allowances in, 802, 803 agent, see London agent.
allocatur, interest payable on amount shown by, 810 proceedings on, 813, 814 taxing master, issue of, by, 795 ambassadors. power to administer oaths, 857, 858 annual certificate, see practising certificate.
appeal, as to order for review of taxation, 796 complainant's right of, on finding as to solicitor's conduct, 855 refusal of pass certificate for the final examination, 719 intermediate examination, 718
to renew certificate, 722 solicitor's right of, from finding of statutory committee, 855 appointments, eligibility of solicitor for certain, 727, 728 arrest, solicitor's privilege from, 726 articled clerk, an apprentice, 710, 711 bankruptcy of master as affecting, 713, 714 death of solicitor as affecting rights of, 714 dismissal by master, rights on, 716 clerks, number which solicitor may take, 713 articles, defect in, as ground for striking off rolls, 848 employment under, must be exclusive, 714, 715 procedure where service not continuous, 714 provisions relating to, 712, 713
registration of, 713 service under, how far necessary, 711 period of, 711, 712 assignee of costs, rights of, 782 attachment, liability where acting without authority, 742 attendances, allowances on taxation for, 803 Attorneys' and Solicitors' Act, 1870, special agreement for costs under, 771—773 audience, right of solicitor as to, 723, 725 authority, acts falling outside the solicitor's authority, 744 of solicitor covered by, 743, 744 commencing action without, effect of, 741, 742 delegation of, liability on, 758 limits of, 741 partners, of, 758, 759 production of deed as, 744, 745 special, necessary as to contentious business, 741 under general retainer, 741 bankruptcy, as affecting retainer, 740 costs in matters of, 769, 770 effect on right to renewal of practising certificate, 721, 722 petition, right to present in respect of costs, 813 proof in, as affecting lien, 820 right of audience of solicitor in matters of, 723, 724 solicitor appointed trustee in, rights as to costs, 753

SOLICITORS—continued.
bankruptcy, solicitor, of, effect on articles of clerkship, 713, 714 barristers, offices held by, as solicitors, 710 bidding by solicitor having conduct of sale by court, 750, 751 bill of costs, contents of, 776, 777 delivery of, effect of, 778, 779
may be in parts, 777 ordered, 779
mode of, 778
necessity for, 774, 775
disbursements in, treatment of, 775, 776 failure to deliver, effect of, 776
London agent's charges in, treatment of, 775 naming of person charged in, 777, 778 necessity for signature, 777 non-delivery as affecting right to tax, 790 payment as admission of correctness, 788 rectification of, 779 taxation of persons entitled to, 781, 782 breach of trust, delegation of authority to receive money as not amounting to, 745 brief, instructions for and preparing, allowances, 801 cause of action, failure to investigate, liability, 755 certificate for costs, see allocatur.
chambers, right of audience of solicitors in, 724 Chancery Division, procedure on taxation in the, 790 change of solicitors, effect on right to costs, 740 lien as affected by, 818 charging order for costs, court making the, 827 may direct taxation as between solicitor and client, 827 none where recovery barred by Statutes of Limitation, 824 priority over garnishee order, 825 property subject to, 824—826
when court will make, 819, 823—827 who may apply for, 826, 827 cheque, receipt of payment by, requires special authority, 745, 746 clerk, liability for acts of, 758 client, acts of solicitor not binding on, 744 credit of, solicitor cannot pledge for counsel's fees, 741 liability to indemnify solicitor, 832 mortgage by solicitor to, effect of, 751, 752 relation between London agent and, 843, 844 right as to moneys in hands of solicitor, 839, 840 to papers, 740 tax bill of costs, 781, 782 sale to solicitor by, 748—750 solicitor may benefit under will of, when, 752 solicitor's authority to bind, 741 liability to pay over moneys received to, 837, 838 right to recover costs as against, 797, 798 clubs, retainer of solicitor by, 734 colonial authorities, issue of commissions in England by, 858 solicitors, admission of, 722 stamp duty and fees on admission of, 722 colonies, particular places as to which Orders in Council have been made, 722 commission to administer oaths, procedure to obtain, 858 where affidavit for use in colonies, 858 commissioner for oaths, appointment of, 857
duties of, 858
solicitors usually appointed, 858 commissioners, perpetual, see perpetual commissioners.
committal, as remedy for breach of undertaking, 827 Committee of Law Society, see statutory committee. common law lien, enforcement of, 822, 823
extent of, 821, 822
property recovered on, 820, 821

SOLICITORS—continued.
Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, right of solicitor retained in respect of formation of company under, 734 company, retainer of solicitor for proposed, 733 complaint as to solicitor's conduct, procedure, 852, 853 compromise of action, effect on lien, 823 conduct money, allowance of, 801 none allowed to parties, 802 retainer by, 729, 730
consideration, receipt in deed as authority to receive, 744, 745 constructive trustee, solicitor no authority to constitute himself a, 760 contempt in procedure, liability of solicitor for, 829 contentious business, acting without authority in, effect of, 741, 742 costs against client in, 797, 798 in, 767—769
death or lunacy of client as affecting retainer in, 742 interest on costs in, 809, 810 negligence arising in, 755, 756 special authority necessary as to, 741 contract, arising between solicitor and client, 728, 729 liability to third parties by, 836 conveyancing business, liability of unqualified person acting in, 856 remuneration for, 760, 761 convict, power to make contract of retainer, 732 solicitor's right to interview, 732 copy documents, costs of, 805, 806 corporation, individual liability of members in matter of retainer, 733 retainer by, 732, 733 corrupt practices, as ground for striking off the rolls, 849 costs, additional, on expediting matter, 765 as between party and party, 799—807 solicitor and client, 797—799 bankruptcy, in, 769, 770 charging order in respect of, power of the court as to, 824, 825 completion of work under retainer as affecting right to, 738 conveyancing matters, in, 760, 761 delivery of bill necessary to recovery of, 774, 775 disallowance by taxing master, powers, 769 discretion of taxing master as to, 768, 769 higher scale, when allowed, 768 improper procedure in respect of taxation of, 792 inquiry into conduct of solicitor, of, rights as to, 853 interest on, when payable, 809, 810 judgment for, power of the court to enter, 814 liability of solicitor to pay, 832—834 matters in the Supreme Court, in, 767, 768 mortgage for, precaution to be taken as to, 811 nature of, in respect of which lien arises, 815, 816 of taxation, as between solicitor and client, 808, 809 party and party costs, of, 807, 808 personal liability of solicitor to pay, 832 recovery as against client, 797, 798 remedies for recovery of, 812—814 retainer necessary to claim to, 729, 730 scales in non-contentious business, 760—765 security for, solicitor's right to, 811 solicitor trustee, of, when chargeable, 752, 753 special agreement as to, statutes applicable, 770 Statutes of Limitation as affecting recovery of, 812, 813 taxation of, jurisdiction of the court as to, 780 undertaking to repay, liability on, 832 where regulated by statute, 807 counsel, allowance for two or more, when made, 804 when solicitor may be heard in absence of, 723 counsel's advice, as affecting liability for negligence, 755 fees, allowances for, 803, 804 client's credit cannot be pledged for, 741 failure to pay when money provided, offence of, 850 payable where Crown unsuccessful, 804

SOLICITORS—continued.
counsel's fees, stamped receipt for to be produced, 804 country certificate, and see practising certificate, 721
scope of, 843
solicitor, allowance for, on taxation, 803 relation between London agents and, 846 right to tax London agent's bill, 846, 847 county court, power to make charging order, 827 solicitor's right of audience in, 724 court, basis of the jurisdiction of the, 829, 830 creditor, right to taxation, 784 crime, conviction for, as ground for striking off the rolls, 849 criminal contempt, when solicitor guilty of, 828 damages, measure of, where guilty of negligence, 754 want of skill or knowledge giving rise to liability in, 753, 754 death, as affecting retainer, 739, 740 of client, as affecting retainer in contentious business, 742 solicitor, as affecting rights of articled clerk, 714 deed, production of, as authority to receive payment, 744, 745 defamation, when solicitor not subject to action for, 726 delegation of authority, liability in respect of, 758 delivery of bill of costs, effect of, 778, 779 failure as to, effect of, 776
may be in parts, 777
mode of, 778
necessity for, 774, 775
order for, 779
when not necessary before action, 813 pleadings, fees on, 801 deposit on sale, receipt by solicitor, effect of, 746 disallowance of costs improperly incurred, 798 disbursements, interest on, rate of, 810 treatment of, on delivery of bill, 775, 776 discharge of lien, methods of, 819, 820 disciplinary jurisdiction of the court, 828 disclosure, address of ward of court not the subject of privilege, 726 prevented by injunction where solicitor acts for opposing interests, 735 solicitor's rights as to, 726 discontinuance of action, right of solicitor as to, 743 discretionary fees, when allowed, 806, 807 dismissal of articled clerk by master, rights, 716 dissolution of partnership, effect of, 842 documents, inspection of, costs allowed for, 805 ownership of, 740
double costs, provisions as to, 807 ecclesiastical courts, right of audience in, 724 employment, affidavit of, necessary before admission, 715, 716 articled clerk, of, must be exclusive, 714, 715 enrolment, defect in, as ground for striking off the rolls, 848 entire retainer, effect of, on right to costs, 738 equitable mortgage, scale applicable to, 761 examination, notice of intention to attend for, 717 examinations, entitling articled clerk to reduced term of service, 712 necessary before admission, 716 executors, power to retain solicitor, 734, 735 expediting matter, special allowance on, 765 final examination, appeal on refusal of pass certificate, 719 exemptions as to the, 718, 719 subjects for, 718
when and where held, 718
general lien, retaining lien is a, 816 meeting of the Law Society, when held, 709 retainer, extent of, 741 gifts between solicitor and client, 747, 748 when valid, 748
goodwill, as assets of partnership, 842
High Court, right of audience of solicitor in, 723, 724 higher scale, when costs allowed on the, 768

SOLICITORS—continued.
hotel expenses, allowances on taxation, 802 House of Lords, costs in contentious business in the, 767 right of audience of solicitor in, 723 improper conduct, what may amount to, 851 language, liability of solicitor in respect of, 828 inanimate evidence, allowance of cost of, 802 indemnity costs, party and party costs as, 799 right of solicitor to, on giving undertaking, 832 infant, retainer by, when effective, 731 injunction, disclosure by solicitor prevented by, 735 inquiry into conduct, appeal from finding on, 855 application by solicitor himself, 853
for, 852
insanity, as affecting retainer, 739, 740 inspection of documents, allowance of costs of, 805 insurance commission, must be accounted for, 736 interest, costs, on, when payable, 809, 810 country solicitor not chargeable by London agent with, 845, 846 payment by solicitor on money improperly retained, 810 intermediate examination, books chosen for the, 717 exemptions as to, 717, 718 refusal to admit for, rights, 718
when and where held, 717
interpreters, allowance for on taxation, 802 item charges, scale of, 765 schedule applicable to, 765, 766 judgment for costs, interest on, 810 power of the court as to entry of, 814
King's Bench Division, taxation of costs in the, 792, 793
Law List, as evidence of solicitor's right to practise, 721 Law Society, the, bodies upon which represented, 710 charter of incorporation of, 707, 708
duties of, 709 eligibility of members of, 708 general meetings of, 709
history of, 707, 708
inquiry into conduct of solicitor by Committee of, 852—854
management of, 708, 709 original name of, 707
registration of articles with, 713 law stationers, acts which may be done by, 856 leases, remuneration in respect of, 763 scale of remuneration in respect of, 763 lien, against tenant for life, remainderman not affected, 817 at common law, extent of, 821, 822 bankruptcy or winding-up, no effect on, 817, 818 change of solicitors as affecting, 818 compromise of action as affecting, 823 conversion into money and payment into court, effect of, 819 discharge of, methods of, 819, 820
enforcement of, 822, 823
equitable title as affecting, 817 kinds to which solicitor entitled, 814 none against third parties, 816, 817 parting with subject of, as a discharge, 820 proof in bankruptcy as affecting, 820 property recovered on, 820, 821 retaining, a general lien, 816 costs in respect of which arising, 815, 816 property subject to, 814, 815
statutory, 823—827
waiver of, what amounts to, 820 liquidator, retainer of solicitor by, 735 lis pendens, failure to register as negligence, 756 London agent, authority of, 847 interest not chargeable by, 846, 847 not personally liable, 848 relation between client and, 844, 845

SOLICITORS—continued.
London agent, relation between country solicitor and, 846
remuneration of, 846
scope of country certificate, 844
solicitor's liability for acts of, 758 taxation of bill of, 846, 847 treatment of charges of in bill, 775 certificate, see practising certificate.
lunacy of client, as affecting retainer in contentious business, 742 lunatic, retainer by, 732 magistrates, no power to refuse solicitor a hearing, 724 managing clerk cannot address judge without leave, 724 married woman, retainer by, when effective, 731 master, qualifications of solicitor as, 713, 714 Mayor's Court, London, right of audience of solicitor in, 725 measure of damages, where solicitor negligent, 754 memorial, charges on registration of, 765 misappropriation, liability of partners for, 759, 760 misconduct, and see professional misconduct.
costs disallowed on, 769 misleading the court, as professional misconduct, 849 moneys received, conditions to give rise to the court's jurisdiction as to, 837, 838 extent of client's right as to, 839 improper retention of, 810, 811
liability in respect of, 837, 838
source not affecting solicitor's liability, 839, 840 mortgage, client to solicitor, by, validity of, 751 costs, for, precaution to be taken as to, 811 remuneration on sale accompanied by, 763 solicitor to client, by, effect of, 751, 752 mortgages, remuneration in respect of, 761—763 necessaries, retainer by infant may be as for, 731 negligence, arising in contentious matters, 755, 756
non-contentious matters, 754 cause of action for, when arising, 754 counsel's advice as affecting liability for, 755 disallowance of costs in case of, 769 facts not amounting to, 755 liability of solicitor for, 753, 754 measure of damages in liability for, 754 proof required in action for, 754 negotiable instrument, payment of bill of costs by, effect of, 787 receipt of payment by, requires special authority, 745, 746 non-contentious business, agreement for costs as to, 773, 774 authority of solicitor in, 744—746 interests on costs in, 809 negligence in, 756—758
remuneration for, 760—767
retainer in, nature of, 739 taxing master governed by scale in, 797 notice, intention to sit for examination, of, 717 liability of solicitor on neglecting to give to client, 828, 830 of discontinuance, right of solicitor as to, 743 receipt by solicitor acting for trustees, effect of, 746 oaths, persons who may administer, 857, 858 power of the court as to administration of, 857 officers of the court, liabilities of solicitors as, 827 official receiver, retainer of solicitor by, 735 order of course for taxation, application for, 790 forms of, 793 service of, 793
overcharge, as special circumstance upon which taxation ordered, 789, 790 papers, client's property in, 740 delivery up of, conditions precedent to order, 840, 841
"without prejudice," of no effect, 819 handing over on change of solicitors, 818 solicitor's lien on, 816

SOLICITORS—continued.
parliamentary commission, solicitor may be heard before, 725 deposit, solicitor's claim for costs against, 733 particular lien, at common law, 820, 821 partner, receipt by as binding firm, 746 right to retain solicitor, 730 partners, liability for acts of, 758
misappropriation, 759, 760 partnership, dissolution of, effect of, 843 goodwill as assets of, 843 premiums as profits of, 842, 843 profits of offices held by partners not funds of, 842, 843 property, as subject of charging order, 825, 826 qualification of solicitors to enter into, 842 party and party costs, as indemnity costs, 799 discretion of taxing master as to, 800
power to increase amount of items, 800 regulations governing taxation of, 799 special allowances in respect of, 800, 801 taxation, costs of, 807, 808 patent, proceedings in opposition to grant of, costs on, 799 perpetual commissioners, appointment and functions of, 859, 860 personal representatives, costs as between solicitor and client awarded to, 798 petty sessions, right of audience of solicitors at, 724, 725 pleadings, fees for delivery of, 801 practice, non-observance of rules of, liability for, 755 practising certificate, application for, 720 effect on costs of steps taken without, 720 issue of, 721
necessity for, 720
renewal of, 721, 722
stamp duties on, 721
what solicitors exempt from taking out, 720 preliminary examination, persons exempt from, 716, 717
when and where held, 716
inquiry, procedure as to, 852 premium, as profits of partnership, 842 when articled clerk not entitled to return of, 712 preservation of property, solicitor's lien in respect of, 821, 822 pressure, when a special circumstance upon which taxation ordered, 789 printed copies of pleadings, cost of, 805 priorities, as between successive solicitors, 819 privileges to which solicitor subject, 726—728 Privy Council, costs in matters before the, 767 procedure, contempt in, liability of solicitor for, 828, 829 process servers, acts which may be done by, 856 production of deed, as authority to receive payment, 744, 745 professional disbursements, what are, 775, 776 misconduct, acts amounting to, 850, 851 not amounting to, 851, 852 as ground for striking off the rolls, 850, 852 court is guided by circumstances in its finding of, 852 profit costs, none under bill where estate is insolvent, 753 limit of solicitor's right to make, 736 profits of office, not fund of partnership, 841, 842 promissory note, client taking, for money in solicitor's hands, effect of, 838, 839 promoters, company, of, retainer by, 733 public authorities, rights as to costs between solicitor and client, 799 examination, notes of solicitor's, power of committee of Law Society as to, 853 office, exemption of solicitor from, 726 purchase and sale, between solicitor and client, 748, 749 purchases, remuneration in respect of, 761—763
"qualified practitioner," meaning of, 857 quantum meruit, recovery on a, where special agreement exists, 773 right of solicitor on ceasing to act to recover on a, 738, 739 quarter sessions, right of audience of solicitors at, 724 readmission, notice on application for, 719

SOLICITORS—continued.
readmission, rights of barrister or solicitor as to, 719, 720 real property, as subject of charging order, 826 record, duty of solicitor to put name on, 742, 743 refresher fees, discretion of taxing master as to, 804, 805 Registrar of Solicitors, Law Society as, 709 registration, articles of clerkship, of, 713 memorial, of, costs in respect of, 765 practising certificate, of, 721 remainderman, not affected by lien against tenant for life, 817 remuneration, agreement under the Solicitors Remuneration Act, 1881, as to, 773, 774 conveyancing matters, in, 760, 761
how governed, 760
item charges, by, 765—767
limits of, 736
London agents, of, 845 preparation and completion of leases, 763 special agreement as to, 738, 770, 771 under the Act of 1870...771, 772 where matter expedited, 765 when recoverable on a quantum meruit, 739 rentcharge, remuneration where reserved in conveyance, 763, 764 repayment of costs, liability of solicitor on undertaking in respect of, 831 report, statutory committee, of, effect of, 854 retainer, absence of evidence of, effect of, 729 accepting for opposing interests, rule as to, 735 at a salary, 731 authority to bind client arising from the, 741 bankruptcy as affecting, 740 both sides, by, when not improper, 736 clubs or learned societies, by, 734 completion of work under, as affecting right to costs, 738 conduct an action, to, effect of, 737, 738 convict's power of, 732 corporation, by, 732, 733 costs out of moneys in hand, of, effect of, 787 death or insanity of parties affecting, 739
"final conclusion," relating to, what constitutes, 737
form of, 729
general, extent of, 741 infant, by, when effective, 731 joint and several, 730, 731 liquidator, by, 735
lunatic, by, 732
married woman, by, when effective, 731 may be by conduct, 729, 730 natural break in, when arising, 738 non-litigious matters, in, nature of, 739 partner's right to give, 730 principles governing, 728, 729 proposed company, on behalf of, 733 termination of, 737
trustee in bankruptcy or official receiver, by, 735 trustees and executors, by, 734, 735 when may be treated as an entire contract, 738 writing, when necessary, 729 retaining lien, property subject to, 814, 815 return of premium, articled clerk's rights as to, 712, 713 review of taxation, appeal as to order in respect of, 796, 797
order for, 795, 796
principles followed in ordering, 796 test of objections in application, 795 right of audience, see audience.
to practise, courts in which solicitor has, 722, 723 Rule Committee of the Supreme Court, representation of the Law Society on, 709, 710 salary, retainer at a, 731 sale, between solicitor and client, 748—750

SOLICITORS—continued.
sale by court, authority of solicitor having conduct of, 745 solicitor having conduct of, when may bid, 750 remuneration in respect of, 761—763 where accompanied by, 763 solicitor must show bona fides to uphold, 749, 750
Schedule I., remuneration under, 760—765 II., remuneration under, 765—767 scientific witnesses, allowances to, 802 secret commission, solicitor may not make, 736 security, charging order not made where solicitor accepts, 824 for costs, solicitor's right to, 811 service under articles, defect in as ground for striking off the rolls, 847 and see articles.
set-off, lien as affecting, 822 on taxation of costs, power of taxing master as to, 806 settling pleadings, allowance on taxation for, 803 signature, necessary to bill of costs, 777 solicitor, agreement with debt collector by, offence of, 856 and client, contract between, when arising, 728, 729 costs as between, where applicable, 797 gifts between, presumptions as to, 747, 748 no standing relation of, 737 relation necessary to application to pay over money received, 837 special order as to costs as between, when made, 798 taxation of costs as between, costs of, 808, 809 transactions between, 746—753 courts in which entitled to practise, 722, 723 disciplinary jurisdiction of the court over, 828 eligibility for certain appointments, 727, 728 liability for costs, 832—835 on allowing unqualified person to use name, 855 solicitor-litigant, when liable to summary jurisdiction of the court, 835 solicitor-mortgagee, costs which may be charged by, 761 solicitor, qualification when taking articled clerks, 713 right of audience of, 723, 724 to claim taxation of costs, 782 solicitor-trustee, no lien over trust fund, 817 provision in trust deed for costs of, effect of, 753 when profit costs not chargeable by, 752, 753 solicitor, when may act for both sides, 736 be heard in absence of counsel, 723 solicitors, appointment as commissioners for oaths, 858 offices held by barristers as, 710
Solicitors Remuneration Act, 1881, agreement for costs under, 773, 774 special agreement as to remuneration, provisions for, 738, 770, 771 cancellation where unreasonable, 772 effect where either party becomes incapable of performing, 740 enforcement where under the Act of 1870...773 form of, under the Act of 1870...771 position of third parties under, 773 rights of client setting up, 771 scope of, under the Act of 1870...771, 772 under the Solicitors Remuneration Act, 1881...773, 774 allowances on taxing party and party costs, 800 circumstances, taxation of costs allowed on, proof of, 785, 786 general meeting of the Law Society, how requisitioned, 709 jury, liability of solicitor for fees of, 834 order for taxation of costs, when made, 791, 792 remuneration, when allowed, 765 stamp duty on admission, 719 of colonial solicitor, 722 Statute of Limitations, as affecting recovery of costs, 812, 813 statutory committee, complaint to, 849 inquiry into conduct of solicitor by, 852, 854 report of, effect of, 854 lien, when applying, 823—827

SOLICITORS—continued.
striking off the rolls, appeal from order for, 855 application as to, procedure, 852, 853 grounds other than statutory, for, 849—852 power of the court as to, 848 professional misconduct as ground for, 850, 851 statutory grounds for, 848, 849 taking proceedings without authority as cause for, 742 submission to pay, when not necessary on application for taxation, 792, 793
Supreme Court, costs in matters heard in the, 767—769 suspension, power of the court to order, 851 taxation of costs, after payment, 788, 789 allowances for attendances, 803
counsel's fees, 803
in respect of witnesses, 802 application after one month of delivery, 785
payment, 787
twelve months, 785
for, 784, 785
order of course for, 791, 792 appointment for, 793, 794 between solicitor and client, 808, 809 discretion of taxing master as to allowances, 797 improper procedure as to, costs of, 792 inspection of documents allowed for on, 805 jurisdiction of the court as to, 780, 781 no order where application more than twelve months after payment, 790 order for, when made, 784, 785 party and party, 807, 808 persons entitled to, 781, 782 procedure in the Chancery Division as to, 790 King's Bench Division as to, 792, 793 review of, 795 service of order of course for, 793 set-off on, 806
special circumstances affecting, rule as to, 785, 786 submission to pay on application for, when not necessary, 792, 793 when at instance of solicitor, 809 requiring a special order, 791, 792 where parties differ, procedure on, 806 taxing master, allowance of special agreement by, 772 discretion as to costs, 768, 769, 797
counsel's fees, 803—805
in taxing party and party costs, 800 of, not usually interfered with, 796 duty where two or more parties represented by same solicitor, 801 issue of allocatur by, 795 power to order solicitor to pay interest, 810
powers of, 794
the Law Society, see Law Society.
third party, application to tax by, 786, 787
no lien against, 816, 817 position under special agreement, 773 right to claim taxation of bill, 782, 783 solicitor may be liable for negligence to, 754 solicitor's liability to, principles applicable, 835, 836 title, statutory liability of solicitor concealing instrument of, 837 tort, liability of solicitor in respect of, 837 travelling expenses, allowance on taxation, 802 treble costs, provisions as to, 807 trust deed, provision giving solicitor-trustee right to profit costs in, effect of, 753 fund, solicitor-trustee no lien over, 817 property, liability of solicitors dealing with, 760 trustee, costs of solicitor as, when chargeable, 752, 753 in bankruptcy, retainer of solicitor by, 735

SOLICITORS—continued.
trustee in bankruptcy, right of solicitor as to costs when appointed a, 753 trustees, costs as between solicitor and client awarded to, 798 power to retain solicitor, 734, 735 receipt of notice by solicitor acting for, effect of, 746 right to authorise solicitor to receive money, 745 undertaking, committal as remedy for breach of, 827 enforcement of solicitor's, 830 liability for contempt in respect of, 830 may be apart from litigation, 832 nature of, to be enforceable, 830, 831 repay costs to, liability of solicitor on, 832 when enforceable, 830 unnecessary proceedings, disallowance of costs of, 805, 806 unqualified persons, acts prohibited to be done by, 856, 857 liability on acting for, 848, 849 penalties for offences by, 856 prohibition against, 855, 856 unreasonable charges, as reason for taxation of bill, 785, 786 vexatious proceedings, disallowance of costs of, 805, 806 waiver of lien, what amounts to, 820 ward of court, address of, must be disclosed, 726 will, solicitor may benefit under client's, 752 winding-up proceedings, lien not affected by, 817, 818 retainer of solicitor in, 735 witnesses, allowances to, scale, 802 as to number allowed for qualifying, 802 power of the committee of the Law Society as to attendance of, 853

BRADBURY, AGNEW, & CO. LD., PRINTERS, LONDON AND TONBRIDGE.

133246 Law.D
H196

Author Halsbury, Earl of and others

Title The laws of England being a complete statement

UNIVERSITY OF TORONTO LIBRARY

Do not remove the card from this Pocket.

Acme Library Card Pocket
Under Pat. "Ref. Index File."
Made by LIBRARY BUREAU